Revolutions are matters of constant occurrence in California. They are got up by men who are at the foot of the ladder and in desperate circumstances, just as a new political party is started by such men in our own country. The only object, of course, is the loaves and fishes; and instead of caucusing, paragraphing, libelling, feasting, promising, and lying, as with us, they take muskets and bayonets, and seizing upon the presidio and custom-house, divide the spoils, and declare a new dynasty. As for justice, they know no law but will and fear. A Yankee, who had been naturalized, and become a Catholic, and had married in the country, was sitting in his house at the Pueblo de los Angelos, with his wife and children, when a Spaniard, with whom he had had a difficulty, entered the house, and stabbed him to the heart before them all. The murderer was seized by some Yankees who had settled there, and kept in confinement until a statement of the whole affair could be sent to the governor-general. He refused to do anything about it, and the countrymen of the murdered man, seeing no prospect of justice being administered, made known that if nothing was done, they should try the man themselves. It chanced that, at this time, there was a company of forty trappers and hunters from Kentucky, with their rifles, who had made their head-quarters at the Pueblo; and these, together with the Americans and Englishmen in the place, who were between twenty and thirty in number, took possession of the town, and waiting a reasonable time, proceeded to try the man according to the forms in their own country. A judge and jury were appointed, and he was tried, convicted, sentenced to be shot, and carried out before the town, with his eyes blindfolded. The names of all the men were then put into a hat and each one pledging himself to perform his duty, twelve names were drawn out, and the men took their stations with their rifles, and, firing at the word, laid him dead. He was decently buried, and the place was restored quietly to the proper authorities. A general, with titles enough for an hidalgo, was at San Gabriel, and issued a proclamation as long as the fore-top-bowline, threatening destruction to the rebels, but never stirred from his fort; for forty Kentucky hunters, with their rifles, were a match for a whole regiment of hungry, drawling, lazy half-breeds. This affair happened while we were at San Pedro, (the port of the Pueblo,) and we had all the particulars directly from those who were on the spot. A few months afterwards, another man, whom we had often seen in San Diego, murdered a man and his wife on the high road between the Pueblo and San Louis Rey, and the foreigners not feeling themselves called upon to act in this case, the parties being all natives, nothing was done about it; and I frequently afterwards saw the murderer in San Diego, where he was living with his wife and family.

When a crime has been committed by Indians, justice, or rather vengeance, is not so tardy. One Sunday afternoon, while I was at San Diego, an Indian was sitting on his horse, when another, with whom he had had some difficulty, came up to him, drew a long knife, and plunged it directly into the horse's heart. The Indian sprang from his falling horse, drew out the knife, and plunged it into the other Indian's breast, over his shoulder, and laid him dead. The poor fellow was seized at once,

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

clapped into the calabozo, and kept there until an answer could be received from Monterey. A few weeks afterwards, I saw the poor wretch, sitting on the bare ground, in front of the calabozo, with his feet chained to a stake, and handcuffs about his wrists. I knew there was very little hope for him. Although the deed was done in hot blood, the horse on which he was sitting being his own, and a great favorite, yet he was an Indian, and that was enough. In about a week after I saw him, I heard that he had been shot. These few instances will serve to give one a notion of the distribution of justice in California.

In their domestic relations, these people are no better than in their public. The men are thriftless, proud, and extravagant, and very much given to gaming; and the women have but little education, and a good deal of beauty, and their morality, of course, is none of the best; yet the instances of infidelity are much less frequent than one would at first suppose. In fact, one vice is set over against another; and thus, something like a balance is obtained. The women have but little virtue, but then the jealousy of their husbands is extreme, and their revenge deadly and almost certain. A few inches of cold steel has been the punishment of many an unwary man, who has been guilty, perhaps, of nothing more than indiscretion of manner. The difficulties of the attempt are numerous, and the consequences of discovery fatal. With the unmarried women, too, great watchfulness is used. The main object of the parents is to marry their daughters well, and to this, the slightest slip would be fatal. The sharp eyes of a duena, and the cold steel of a father or brother, are a protection which the characters of most of them—men and women—render by no means useless; for the very men who would lay down their lives to avenge the dishonor of their own family, would risk the same lives to complete the dishonor of another.

Of the poor Indians, very little care is taken. The priests, indeed, at the missions, are said to keep them very strictly, and some rules are usually made by the alcaldes to punish their misconduct; but it all amounts to but little. Indeed, to show the entire want of any sense of morality or domestic duty among them, I have frequently known an Indian to bring his wife, to whom he was lawfully married in the church, down to the beach, and carry her back again, dividing with her the money which she had got from the sailors. If any of the girls were discovered by the alcalde to be open evil-livers, they were whipped, and kept at work sweeping the square of the presidio, and carrying mud and bricks for the buildings; yet a few reals would generally buy them off. Intemperance, too, is a common vice among the Indians. The Spaniards, on the contrary, are very abstemious, and I do not remember ever having seen a Spaniard intoxicated.

Such are the people who inhabit a country embracing four or five hundred miles of sea-coast, with several good harbors; with fine forests in the north; the waters filled with fish, and the plains covered with thousands of herds of cattle; blessed with a climate, than which there can be no better in the world; free from all manner of diseases, whether epidemic or endemic; and with a soil in which corn yields from seventy to eighty fold. In the hands of an enterprising people, what a country this might be! we are ready to say. Yet how long would a people remain so, in such a country? The Americans (as those from the United States are called) and Englishmen, who are fast filling up the principal towns, and getting the trade into their hands, are indeed more industrious and effective than the Spaniards; yet their children are brought up Spaniards, in every respect, and if the “California fever” (laziness) spares the first generation, it always attacks the second.

July 12th, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 12th of 7 M / Father was engaged in supplication
& testimony in the Morning, & in testimony in the Afternoon –
Both Meetings seemed favoured - Thos & Lydia Ann Gould took tea*

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

& spent the evening with us. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 July 16, Thursday: After some 41 years of service, the Unitarian parish of Dorchester over which the Reverend Thaddeus Mason Harris, D.D. was presiding acceded to his request and provided him with a colleague, the Reverend Nathaniel Hall, to assist in these duties.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 16th of 7 M / Our Meeting was rather smaller than usual, but to me it was a very sweet comfortable time -- I suppose the reason of its being smaller than in common times, it is the season of hay & those who have it to make must attend to it. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 July 19, Sunday: After a journey through the Swiss countryside of over a month, Franz Liszt and Marie d'Agoult arrived in Geneva and took up residence together.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 19th of 7 M / Father Rodman bore short testimonies in both Meetings, & both were solid good meetings to me – tho' I was not as much favoured with life in the Afternoon as in the Morning

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 July 22, Wednesday: The balloon of the master goldbeater and intrepid aeronaut Louis Lauriat rose from Providence (Moshasuck), Rhode Island and in one hour and 25 minutes transited to within 19 miles of Boston town.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th M 22nd 1835 (4th day) / We rode to Portsmouth to attend the Select Meeting – which was a time of some favour, & I was glad I was there it being the first I have attended Since we left Providence – We went to Uncle Stantons & spent the Afternoon – found him very poorly & the probability is that he is wearing out & cannot remain long with us – or cannot remain long on this side of the grave, tho' he may outlive many who now seem in tolerable health – We know not who may be called first, when I reflect on the many that are young in life pass to their long homes & leave behind them, those that are far advanced in life – I often think, how uncertain all things are in this transitory World

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 July 23, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

5th day 23 of 7 M / Attended Meeting in town which was a good solid one to me -

In the last which was Preparative Meetg We had a request for Membership from an ancient Man Aged about 85 Years by the name of Monro - who has been for many years a very dilligent attender of Friends meetings - The manner in which he came in & the diffident & humble manner in which he requested the care of Friends was affecting to my mind. - a committee was named to confer with him on the subject previous to its going to the Moy [Monthly] Meeting. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 26, Sunday: Over the following few days the 1st sugar cane plantation would be starting up in the Hawaiian Islands.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 26th of 7th M 1835 / Good meetings as those who attended, informed me, but I was unable to attend Meeting from a jar which I had yesterday, by the top of the cellar Stair giving way with me upon it, so that I was let thro' into the cellar with precipitancy & considerable jar to my great frame - - aside from the jar I was not hurt, excepting the under part of both my Arms were considerably scraped. - I felt thankful for the preservation - Today I have felt much worse than yesterday & have not been able to set up for most of the day. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 30, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 30th of 7 M / Much recovered from my fall tho' still feel the effects of it. - Attended our Moy [Monthly] Meeting - which was a time of favour - Mary Hicks first appeared in testimony - then Elizabeth Wing, then Hannah Dennis - then Father in Supplication then Ruth Davis - & then a short testimony from Father, after which the Meeting concluded & went to buisness - there was not much before it, save the Answering of the Queries &c.-
We had at Dinner Jon[athon] Dennis, Hannah Dennis Ruth Davis & Elizabeth Weeden - In addition we had at tea Susan Johnson & Martha Morris daughters of Isaac W Morris decd of Philadelphia, & after tea I walked with the two latter to their place of board in the Neck. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 2, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 2nd of 8th M 1835 / Our Meeting today was seasons of favour - In the forenoon Father & Ruth Davis were both in testimony & Ruth in supplication - In the Afternoon Father &

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Ruth both appeared in testimony - Ruth remarkably lively & pertinent in concern for the Youth. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 5, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 5 of 8 M / Rode to Portsmouth to attend the Select Quarterly Meeting - which was a time of some favour - Dined at Uncle Stantons & returned home. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 6, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 6 of 8 M / Again went to Portsmouth to attend the Quarterly Meeting at large, - It was a season of Watering under the Ministry of Moses Beede & Mead Atwater - Ruth Davis in supplication at the conclusion - The Meeting for buisness was not long - very little buisness but the Answers to the queries before it. - After Meeting we rode home without dinner & got into town in season to get on board the Lexington for Providence & arrived there just after Sunsett & went to my dear Friend Moses Browns & lodged - found him well & very glad to see me - I spent the evening very pleasantly with him & the company of there. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Commander George Back arrived at Montréal on his way back home to England and glory.

Bolivia gained its independence.

August 7, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 7th of 8 M 1835 / Met with the committee & spent the day at the YMBSchool returned to M Browns & lodged

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

August 8, Saturday: Penny Magazine:

<http://www.history.rochester.edu/pennymag/215.htm>

From this day until the 14th, David Lee Child and Lydia Maria Child accompanied George Thompson to New-York, intending to travel with him to England to work for British anti-slavery societies. Before they could depart, David was arrested for debt and thus they would need to spend the following six months boarding with the Quaker family of farmers, Joseph and Margaret Carpenter, in New Rochelle. "David's partner on the Massachusetts Journal and Tribune, George Snelling, not content with leaving the whole burden of the newspaper's debts to his associate, had filed suit against him and procured an injunction against letting David leave the country. Overcome with humiliation and disappointment, Child had sat down and wept on the quay."

Thomas George Morton was born in Philadelphia, a son of Dr. Samuel George Morton.³⁹⁴

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day - Met with the Meeting for Sufferings & Trustees of O B Fund - dined at Wm Jenkins's & after attending to a little buisness in the Town I returned to the School House- & lodged there. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

394. He seems not to have been a Quaker. He would be educated at the University of Pennsylvania and graduate in the medical department there in 1856. He would practice general surgery in Philadelphia for the next three years, actively engage during the Civil War in the establishment of military hospitals, and be a surgeon at Satterlee hospital, and consulting surgeon to the United States army hospital, Chesnut Hill, Pennsylvania. He would hold offices in numerous other hospitals, including the Orthopedic, of which he would be the originator. In 1876 he would be appointed a commissioner to erect a branch of the Pennsylvania Insane Asylum for the state's southern district, and be chairman of its committee on plans and buildings. He would be chosen president of the Pennsylvania Society for the Restriction of Vivisection in 1880, and vice-president of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children the same year, be appointed a Commissioner of Pennsylvania Public Charities in 1883, and chairman of the Committee of Lunacy in 1886. He would introduce the ward-carriage into the Pennsylvania Hospital in 1866, the bed-elevator and carriage in 1874, and in 1876 receive the Centennial medal awarded for hospital ward dressing-carriage. He would publish numerous professional papers in the American Journal of the Medical Sciences and Pennsylvania Hospital Reports. He would publish LECTURE ON THE TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD AND ITS PRACTICAL APPLICATION (New York, 1877); he and Dr. William Hunt would prepare SURGERY OF PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL (Philadelphia, 1880); and he would publish TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD AND ITS PRACTICAL APPLICATION (New York, 1887).

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

August 9, Sunday: Henry Thoreau's espousal of a "higher law," a need to obey the dictates of one's personal conscience even when this conflicted with the demands of statute law and of custom and precedent, can usefully be compared and contrasted with the attitude of the US Postmaster General, Amos Kendall, toward the South's perceived need to purge abolitionist writings such as the Liberator from the US mail. On this date Kendall wrote to the postmaster of Charleston allowing that he could begin to search the mails for incoming materials like the Liberator, and burn any offending documents:³⁹⁵

We owe an obligation to the laws, but a higher one to the community in which we live and, if the former be perverted to destroy the latter, it is patriotism to disregard them.

Here is what Lewis Perry has had to say about this concept of the Higher Law, which, he pointed out, was "a phrase with important variations in meaning":

The phrase has been much favored by historians, but was not used frequently by nonresistant abolitionists. The higher law could refer simply to the obligations of Christian conscience which prevented compliance with an unjust civil statute (in which case it was a component of the divine government as understood by non-nonresistants). It could refer to the embodiment of universal, legal morality within the unwritten code of the land (as in [The Reverend Lysander] Spooner's writings). It could also refer to a Christian standard of politics toward which saints were expected to drive their governments (whether this was a libertarian or authoritarian standard varied among political abolitionists). And in contemporary justification of John Brown it referred to a state of grace in which one man, by virtue of his faith in his ideas, became his own source of law, higher than any government.

Nonresistants may be compared with Transcendentalists to clarify different implications of the higher law. With few exceptions, nonresistants believed that there was one grand source of law outside their sphere of understanding: God. Fear of affronting this authority dictated broad leeway of private judgment. It was clear that intermediate forms of coercion, government, and enslavement violated God's law; the range of options left for private judgment was clearly restricted by God's law. Transcendentalism, generally speaking, assumed correspondence between abstract verities and human impulses, and thus it trusted strictly individual, but nonetheless human, sources of law. Less attention was paid to God the lawmaker. A man had to obey his own nature. Lacking the security of fixed prohibitions, such as that violence and homicide are infractions of the divine law, the transcendentalist might be left in deeper difficulties than the nonresistant by the relativity of private judgment. He might feel unqualified admiration for John Brown as, in Emerson's words, "a pure idealist, with no by-ends of his own,"

395. This would be termed the "Post Office Lynch Law." It was a volkish attitude worthy of the Third Reich. Thoreau, by espousing a higher law based not upon this putative "obligation to the community in which we live" but instead upon one's personal relationship with God, was at least in part seeking to subvert such racist illegalism. Tongue in cheek, he turned the US Postmaster's own argument quite against these racists and their all-white community.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

as a man who "believed in his ideas to the extent that he existed to put them all into action; he said 'he did not believe in moral suasion, he believed in putting the thing through.'"

Bronson Alcott, the only one of those ordinarily called Transcendentalists who was also a Garrisonian nonresistant, provided one of the most striking examples of nonviolent action in the 1850s. When armed abolitionists were being repelled in their attempt to deliver a Negro fugitive from Boston's court house, Alcott stepped forward and asked quietly, "Why are we not within?" His dignity was unruffled by a response of gunfire, but no one followed him. Though his action did not free anyone, Alcott furnished one of the rare examples of "practical Christianity" or active nonresistance. It is meaningful to say that he excelled other nonresistants on their own terms. We might conclude that, when the law of intuition was made identical with the Christian injunction of nonresistance, the result was proof against even such temptations as the plight of an imprisoned runaway. Alcott did not need to devise categories to exhort other men to violence. But no one else combined nonresistance and transcendentalism. And even Alcott, when he met John Brown, wrote ominously in his journal: "This is the man to do the Deed."

Most Transcendentalists spurned nonresistance. Brook Farm criticized Hopedale for presuming that divine laws, such as nonresistance, could be generalized in a creed. Orestes Brownson carried transcendentalism into a militant espousal of the interests of labor; in this cause he thought that armed resistance could be a Christian necessity. Although he wished that the world might comply with the principle of peace, he was shocked when nonresistants criticized Bunker Hill, "where Liberty and Slavery once met in the death-struggle." Emerson praised the principle of nonresistance lavishly in his diaries, but these private judgments were part of an inner life, walled off from public action. [The Reverend] Adin Ballou could not admire Emerson for this reason. If some of his "transcendental abstractions" were put into practice, they might "regenerate the world. But the fatal hitch with such moralists is that neither they nor their admirers can sail out of the old ship of society as it is." Emerson had told Ballou that his "utmost" would be to guide his own family above the plane of earthly strife.

[The Reverend Theodore Parker] did not lay the same priority on private life; he was an active abolitionist. Clear on most subjects, he was ambiguous about nonresistance. Although he respected nonresistants, he stated that the doctrine "never went down with me" – and for a transcendentalist it was what went down with him that counted. He admitted that his private opinions had fluctuated considerably on nonresistance; the BIBLE was not altogether clear, but he was not in any case "inclined to settle such questions on the authority of Jesus.... I could not cast down my own nature and be faithless to my own soul." He did not preach on the question, favorably or unfavorably, because his mind was not made up, because men needed no urging

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

to fight, and because nonviolence was right in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. But in being faithful to his own ideas, of course, he was associated with the most violent quarters of antislavery; he was one of the "Secret Six" who conspired with John Brown.

Thoreau deserves special attention since he is often called an anarchist and since his philosophy is sometimes compared to Garrisonianism. His views had little in common with nonresistance. Alcott's program for the New England nonresistants was the distillation from their consciences of persuasive simple truths; these were the measures with which he sought to evangelize the coercive world. Thoreau, on the other hand, paid little attention to the existence of universal truths. He placed a somewhat mystical value on particular experiences; he doubted the possibility of universal reform with a Calvinistic vehemence. His few remarks on antislavery, including his praise of John Brown, reveal a violent potential in what often is considered a philosophy of principled nonviolence.

Thoreau was generally critical of the reformers. In 1854, however, after Massachusetts had rendered a fugitive slave back to his owners, he spoke at a protest meeting in Framingham MA. Much of his time was spent in arguing the superiority of the countryside to the city and in attacking newspapers as bulwarks of slavery. He also used higher law to support arguments already familiar to antislavery – any perceiver of truth must judge the judges, law cannot make men free. But it was necessary for Thoreau to explain how he had gotten onto an antislavery platform in the first place: "I had never respected the government near to which I had lived, but I had foolishly thought I might manage to live here, minding my private affairs, and forget it." How he was impressed that his life was passing, not through some neutral zone, but "wholly within hell."

Even this shock did not mean that he joined organized reform. But he was ready, four years later, to condemn it for failing to equal his admiration for the hero John Brown. "A man of rare common sense and directness of speech, as of action; a transcendentalist above all, a man of ideas and principles," was his conception of Brown. This soldier "had no need to invent anything but to tell the simple truth, and communicate his own resolution." His martyrdom fed Thoreau's hatred of the respectable, commercial world. But Thoreau was not opposed to any government except that which disturbed his peace of mind. He explicitly identified Brown with a government needing no suffrage to establish justice and resist tyranny and occupying a Christian beachhead.

Thoreau brooded over the execution of John Brown and, a year later, he set his reflections down clearly. The martyr had been "the embodiment of principle," and therefore it was irrelevant to pass judgment on his means: "The man who does not recognize in Brown's words a wisdom and nobleness, and therefore an authority, superior to our laws, is a modern Democrat. This is the test by which to discover him. He is not wilfully but constitutionally blind on this side, and he is consistent with himself." Harpers Ferry was a test of personal sanctification; sinners could be discriminated from saints according to the ways in which different persons responded to Brown. As Thoreau proceeded to ridicule the ambitions and even the physical appearance of his neighbors, he spoke in terms of original sin:

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

"It is not every man who can be a Christian, even in a very moderate sense, whatever education you give him. It is a matter of constitution and temperament, after all. He may have to be born again many times. I have known many a man who pretended to be a Christian, in whom it was ridiculous, for he had no genius for it. It is not every man who can be a free man, even."

We may judge from this last sentence that not even in his veneration of Captain John Brown had Thoreau become an abolitionist.

Brown became Thoreau's personal Christ, a figure of unquestionable authority to liberate him from oppressive visions of authority. In the resulting scheme of law, Brown's importance as a reformer was dismissed; he was simply a vengeful foe of the unregenerate. Thoreau was able to celebrate "Resistance to Civil Government" (this was the original title of his great 1849 essay on civil disobedience).

So intent was he on the signs of his private consciousness, however, that he scarcely spoke of sinless alternatives to civil government. It was enough to worship the heroism -the faith in ideas- of Captain John Brown.

This brief look at the Transcendentalists gives perspective on the vacillations of the nonresistants in the 1850s. Nonresistants may not have measured up very well to their own original standards of pacifism, but they never ventured to proclaim any man a law unto himself. They also kept their minds on the goal of abolishing slavery more clearly than such a worshiper of John Brown as Thoreau. But transcendentalists and nonresistants shared the problem of how the validity of principles could be fixed between the sovereign individual and the sovereign God. The transcendentalists decided some men could embody principles and bring them to life. The nonresistant was left with the relativity of private judgment.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day Morning rose early & Seth Davis took me to the Lexington & returned home in plenty of time to have gone to Meeting, but feeling quite fatigued & unwell, was satisfied to stay at home but attended the Afternoon sitting, it was however to me a season of leanness tho' Father was engaged in testimony & I have no doubt it was a time of favour & good feeling to some -but the body & mind are so connected that when one suffers the other is very likely to

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 11, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 11 of 8 M 1835 / Just about tea time this Afternoon Wm Cozzins was married to my Neice Martha Stanton Gould & went immediately to Housekeeping in the house formerly Geo Champlins & lately occupied, & still owned by Dr Cotton Martha has been a very near & Dear neice to me. I love her & wish her well, there is a Singular coincidence between her Marriage & that of me & my wife, which occurred the same Month & day of the Month 27 Years ago - (11th of 8th M 1808) - We have been blessed - we have indeed much to be exceedingly thankful for, & it seems sometimes as if our cup has run over, yet we have had some keen trials to place in the opposite balance - The past year has been fraught with favourable incident & we count the Marriage of our dear Son with Mary Ashby as a blessing indeed & greatly desire the future walks of their lives may be prosperous & happy - Ours is now on the down hill side, & we greatly desire to render thanksgiving & praise to that power & preserving Arm which has so evidently been extended for our support

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 13, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 13th 8th M 1835 / Our Meeting was small & rather low in life, tho' it was solid & quiet & Father bore a good little testimony - This afternoon I called to see my dear Neice Martha S Cozzens for the first time at her own home - I hope & trust she will do well. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

 August 16, Sunday: Frédéric François Chopin met his parents for the 1st time since leaving Poland, in Karlsbad (they would stay together for three weeks).

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 16th of 8 M 1835 / Being cloudy & drizley our Meeting this morning was rather small, but it was a season of no common Solemnity to me & I believe others were made partakers of it - on entering & taking my seat in meeting supplication arose in my spirit for a portion of that Salt which seasons those around us tho' vocal sounds may not be heard - This was experienced in no common degree. Father was engaged in a short supplication & testimony, which I thought was in a good degree of life, tho' it would have been a good Meeting if nothing had been Said. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 August 20, Thursday: The balloon of the Boston master goldbeater and intrepid aeronaut Louis Lauriat rose from Castle Garden at the south tip of Manhattan Island in New-York and half an hour later care to rest on the farm of a Judge Terhune on the mainland.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 20th of 8th M 1835 / Our meeting was to me a poor lean season - Father said a little twice on the subject of Faith, but I could not attain to much of that which makes a good Meeting to me - In the last (Preparative) Edw Earle preposed intentions of Marriage with Ann B Buffum - Nathan Morris's request to be admitted to Membership, & a complaint against Geo Bowen for Marrying our of the order of Society were forwarded to the Moy [Monthly] Meeting

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 August 23, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 23 of 8 M / Our Meeting was silent & very solid in the forenoon - Silent & in a good measure so in the Afternoon - Father was not at meeting having had a very sick turn for several days -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 August 27, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 27th of 8 M 1835 / We went to Portsmouth to attend our Moy [Monthly] Meeting - the first was silent & more buisness than common.
Nathan Monro's application for Membership was recd & a committee appointed to visit him
Geo Bowen was complained of for marrying out of the Order of society & Edw Earle & Ann B Buffum published their intentions of Marriage & a committte was appointed to repair to Portsmouth Meeting house -*

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Dined at Uncle Stantons.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 30, Sunday: Felix Mendelssohn arrived in Leipzig to take up directorship of the Gewandhaus Orchestra.

Friend Angelina Emily Grimké wrote to William Lloyd Garrison informing him that she had made a commitment to abolitionism.

Friend John Greenleaf Whittier and the Englishman George Thompson were egged and stoned in Concord NH, on account of their having favored “the niggers” in a speech they had just made in Plymouth, New Hampshire:

“I maintained the testimony and resisted not — I gave place unto wrath.”³⁹⁶

One of the thrown stones injured Whittier’s leg. Afterward, the two stopped off at an inn where the landlord asked if they had heard of the ruckus. As they left, stepping into their chaise, Whittier introduced Thompson, then Thompson introduced Whittier, and they drove off with the innkeeper “standing, mouth wide open, gazing after us.” However, Whittier would comment repeatedly, elsewhere, that one cannot expect “that because men are reformers, they will therefore be better than other people.”

[According to Russel B. Nye’s FETTERED FREEDOM: CIVIL LIBERTIES AND THE SLAVERY CONTROVERSY, 1830-1860 (Michigan: Michigan State UP, 1963, page 203), it was Whittier and Samuel May and they were stoned. Would this have been a separate occasion, in New-York earlier, or in Boston later?]

I was mobbed in Concord, N.H., in company with George Thompson, afterwards member of the British Parliament, and narrowly escaped from great danger. I kept Thompson, whose life was hunted for, concealed in our lonely farm-house for two weeks. I was in Boston during the great mob in Washington Street, soon after, and was threatened with personal violence.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 30 of 8M / Both Meetings were solid & very good ones to me, & after the Afternoon Meeting Attended the funeral of John H Barbers Child - in both Meetings & at the funeral Father had short testimonies & I thought at the funeral was particularly favoured. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 1, Tuesday: Elijah Hinsdale Burritt, A.M.’s ATLAS, DESIGNED TO ILLUSTRATE THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE HEAVENS, COMPRISING THE FOLLOWING MAPS OR PLATES.... (New York: Published by F.J. Huntington and Co. 174 Pearl Street. Hand-colored copper engravings by W.G. Evans of New-York. This was accompanied by a 2d edition of the author’s GEOGRAPHY OF THE HEAVENS.)

ASTRONOMY

In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

396. To the people who were engaging in the antislavery struggle, this year of 1835 would become known as “the mob year.”

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

3rd 9th M 1st 1835 / This Morning went on board the President for Providence to attend the Meeting of the Sub-Committee & arrived at the School House a few minutes after the buisness of the Meeting had commenced

We had two laborious sittings as it appeared there was trouble in the Camp - I went down to Moses Browns & lodged - In the Morning of the 2nd inst word came that another Meeting of the committee was requested & those of us at M Brownss were desired to be at the School House to which we soon repaired & had two long settings & at 4 OClock I left them & returned in the President to Newport. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

[two blank pages]

September 3, Thursday: David Henry Thoreau checked out, from Harvard Library, for the 2d time, the 1st volume of Charles Rollin (1661-1741)'s THE ANCIENT HISTORY OF THE EGYPTIANS, CARTHAGINIANS, ASSYRIANS, BABYLONIANS, MEDES AND PERSIANS, MACEDONIANS, AND GRECIANS. INCLUDING A HISTORY OF THE ARTS AND SCIENCES OF THE ANCIENTS. TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH. THE 12TH EDITION, REVISED, CORRECTED, AND ILLUSTRATED WITH A SET OF MAPS NEWLY ENGRAVED (first printed 1730-1738; one of the first 17 English editions, possibly the one issued in London in 1813).

This time he also checked out the atlas to this set of volumes. Our guy would comment later of the catacombs full of preserved death, of our museums full of stuffed animals, and of such history textbooks stuffed full with irrelevant facts, that:

"I hate museums, there is nothing so weighs upon the spirits. They are catacombs of nature. They are preserved death. One green bud of Spring one willow catkin, one faint trill from some migrating sparrow, might set the world on its legs again.

I know not whether I muse most at the bodies stuffed with cotton and sawdust - or those stuffed with bowels and fleshy fibre.

The life that is in a single green weed is of more worth than all this death. They are very much like the written history of the world - and I read Rollin and Ferguson with the same feeling."

-JOURNAL; September 24, 1843

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Thoreau also checked out the 1st volume of the Christian Gottlob Heyne (1729-1812) translation of Homer's HOMERI ILLAS CUM BREVI ANNOTATIONE CURANTE C.G. HEYNE. Lipsiae: in Libraria Weidmannia, 1804)

Thoreau also checked out volumes 1, 2, and 5 of the five volumes of THE CANTERBURY TALES OF CHAUCER; WITH AN ESSAY ON HIS LANGUAGE AND VERSIFICATION, AN INTRODUCTORY DISCOURSE, NOTES AND A GLOSSARY BY THO. TYRWHITT, ESQ.... (London: W. Pickering, 1830).³⁹⁷

CANTERBURY TALES, I

CANTERBURY TALES, II

CANTERBURY TALES, V

"There is no Frigate like a Book
To take us Lands away"
— Emily Dickinson

397. The record of the books Thoreau checked out from the Harvard Library during his Sophomore (1834-1835) and Junior (1835-1836) school years is of particular interest to us, because Charging Book "D" of the "Institute of 1770"—the book which contained the record of Thoreau's borrowings from that student club's library—is missing. This record may yet turn up — but its present absence is a serious hole in Thoreau scholarship.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 9th M 3rd 1835 / Owing to the alteration of the time of Holding the Meeting not being given out last first day, Vizt from 1 / 2 Past 10 to 11 OClock the gathering was scattered, as it is apt to be at every change which takes place. – it was However a pretty solid good Meeting – Several from other places were in attendance & Hannah Dennis spoke. –In the Afternoon I called on my Cousins Henry & Thos Gould at their respective Mills. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 6, Sunday: Frédéric François Chopin and his parents traveled from Karlsbad to the estate of Count Bedrich Thun-Hohenstein in Cieszyn, Silesia (while in Paris, Chopin had taught the count's two sons).

In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 6th of 9th M / Pretty good Meetings Father said a little in each. –
I do much desire the help & strength of our poor Society, which is indeed in a low & poor condition both in Europe & in America – My hands indeed hang down & I fear for its safety. –*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 10, Thursday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. took up his new duty station, manning the weather cross-jack braces, and described the labor-intensive nature of configuring a ship to be driven by the power of the winds. (The large crews that were necessary, in order to man all duty-stations at once, and the intricate coordination which was requisite, and the extensive skills which could only be learned by on-the-job training, were what would in a few years make it economical to transition from free-fueled weightless wind power to costly- and heavy-fueled steam power.)

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

The second day out, the wind drew ahead, and we had to beat up the coast; so that, in tacking ship, I could see the regulations of the vessel. Instead of going wherever was most convenient, and running from place to place, wherever work was to be done, each man had his station. A regular tacking and wearing bill was made out. The chief mate commanded on the forecastle, and had charge of the head sails and the forward part of the ship. Two of the best men in the ship— the sailmaker from our watch, and John, the Frenchman, from the other, worked the forecastle. The third mate commanded in the waist, and, with the carpenter and one man, worked the main tack and bowlines; the cook, ex-officio, the fore sheet, and the steward the main. The second mate had charge of the after yards, and let go the lee fore and main braces. I was stationed at the weather cross-jack braces; three other light hands at the lee; one boy at the spanker-sheet and guy; a man and a boy at the main topsail, top-gallant, royal braces; and all the rest of the crew— men and boys— tailed on to the main brace. Every one here knew his station, must be there when all hands were called to put the ship about, and was answerable for every rope committed to him. Each man's rope must be let go and hauled in at the order, properly made fast, and neatly coiled away when the ship was about. As soon as all hands are at their stations, the captain, who stands on the weather side of the quarter-deck, makes a sign to the man at the wheel to put it down, and calls out "Helm's a lee!" "Helm's a lee!" answers the mate on the forecastle, and the head sheets are let go. "Raise tacks and sheets!" says the captain; "tacks and sheets!" is passed forward, and the fore tack and main sheet are let go. The next thing is to haul taught for a swing. The weather cross-jack braces and the lee main braces are each belayed together upon two pins, and ready to be let go; and the opposite braces hauled taught. "Main topsail haul!" shouts the captain; the braces are let go; and if he has taken his time well, the yards swing round like a top; but if he is too late, or too soon, it is like drawing teeth. The after yards are then braced up and belayed, the main sheet hauled aft, the spanker eased over to leeward, and the men from the braces stand by the head yards. "Let go and haul!" says the captain; the second mate lets go the weather fore braces, and the men haul in to leeward. The mate, on the forecastle, looks out for the head yards. "Well, the fore topsail yard!" "Top-gallant yard's well!" "Royal yard too much! Haul into windward! So! well that!" "Well all!" Then the starboard watch board the main tack, and the larboard watch lay forward and board the fore tack and haul down the jib sheet, clapping a tackle upon it, if it blows very fresh. The after yards are then trimmed, the captain generally looking out for them himself. "Well the cross-jack yard!" "Small pull the main top-gallant yard!" "Well that!" "Well the mizen top-gallant yard!" "Cross-jack yards all well!" "Well all aft!" "Haul taught to windward!" Everything being now trimmed and in order, each man coils up the rigging at his own station, and the order is given— "Go below the watch!"

During the last twenty-four hours of the passage, we beat off and on the land, making a tack about once in four hours, so that I had a sufficient opportunity to observe the working of the ship; and certainly, it took no more men to brace about this ship's lower yards, which were more than fifty feet square, than it did those of the Pilgrim, which were not much more than half the size; so much depends upon the manner in which the braces run, and the state of the blocks; and Captain Wilson, of the Ayacucho, who was afterwards a passenger with us, upon a trip to windward, said he had no doubt that our ship worked two men lighter than his brig.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Thursday In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 10th of 9 M / Our meeting was Silent, & After Meeting with two other committee men had an opportunity with Nathan Monro on account of his application, for Membership - He is now over 80 Years of Age & has been a dilligent attender of our Meetings for more than 50 Years both on first & on Week days - It is One Year ago this day that Aunt Nancy Carpenter departed this life since which time we have occupied her house & kept her family the same as she left it. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 12, Saturday: It was the 2d centennial of the founding of the town of Concord and Waldo Emerson stood before its assembled citizenry in the old church to deliver the 2d Centennial Anniversary Address. The structure was packed so full that it was felt appropriate to place props under the galleries. Still “one of them settled alarmingly with the weight,” and when it “cracked ominously” some members of the audience made a rush to save themselves. Emerson, however, read for an hour and three-quarters: “A Historical Discourse, Delivered before the Citizens of Concord, 12th September 1835.” (See Rusk, Volume I, pages 451-453.) Good people, they sat still to hear about themselves. The paper told them how fine New Englanders were and what a grand institution the New England town meeting was:

It is the consequence of this institution that not a school-house, a public pew, a bridge, a pound, a mill-dam, hath been set up, or pulled down, or altered, or bought, or sold, without the whole population of this town having a voice in the affair. A general contentment is the result. And the people truly feel that they are lords of the soil. In every winding road, in every stone fence, in the smokes of the poor-house chimney, in the clock on the church, they read their own power, and consider, at leisure, the wisdom and error of their judgments.

Waldo, in his wisdom, specifically called for the compensated emancipation of all American slaves (no compensation whatever to the slaves for their stolen labor, of course, and no provisions whatever for their illness or old age), followed of course by a total black repatriation to the coast of Africa. He supposed this could be accomplished at the ridiculously low cost of one week’s wages, which is to say approximately $6, per

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

white citizen worker: “It is said, it will cost a thousand millions of dollars to buy the slaves, — which sounds like a fabulous price. But if a price were named in good faith, — with the other elements of a practicable treaty in readiness, and with the convictions of mankind on this mischief once well awake and conspiring, I do not think that any amount that figures could tell, founded on an estimate, would be quite unmanageable. Every man in the world might give a week’s work to sweep this mountain of calamities out of the earth.”

As part of the oration, Emerson pointed out that after the Reverend “John Eliot’s praying Indians” had requested permission to establish a “praying village” near Concord, and had been granted such permission,

It is the misfortune of Concord to have permitted a disgraceful outrage upon the friendly Indians settled within its limits, in February, 1676, which ended in their forcible expulsion from the town.

That’s all. Nothing about racial mass murder, or the violation of the innocent woman and child.

JOHN ELIOT

John Shepard Keyes liked this one heck of a lot — self-congratulation being right up his alley:

At any rate I had never enjoyed so much in a day before and I keep the manuscript of Emersons oration to this day as my greatest literary treasure, and I mean never to part with it.

J.S. KEYES AUTOBIOGRAPHY

O C R the 64 pages of:

Waldo Emerson’s “A Historical Discourse, Delivered before the Citizens of Concord,

HDTWHAT?INDEXSTEPHEN WANTON GOULD*FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM*12th September 1835"

Fellow Citizens,
The town of Concord begins, this day, the third Century of its history. By a common consent, the people of New England, for a few years past, at the second centennial anniversary of each of its early settlements arrived, have seen fit to observe the day. You have thought it becoming to commemorate the planting of the first inland town. The sentiment is just, and the practice is wise. Our ear shall not be deaf to the voice of time. We will review the deeds of our fathers, and pass that just verdict on them we expect from posterity on our own.

the eternity of nature

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

A quotation from page 36 of Dr. Edward Jarvis's TRADITIONS AND REMINISCENCES OF CONCORD, MASSACHUSETTS 1779-1878, in regard to the elaborate mechanics of this celebration, is to be found on the following screen:

[next screen]

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The dinner tent was in the field where now (1875) stands the dwelling of Judge Brooks. Mr. Shepherd, the excellent keeper of the hotel, was professionally ambitious and unwilling to set out a cheap dinner to which the multitude should come. He would get one that would be honorable to his hotel and to the town. The majority and the leading influences in the committee agreed with him and accepted his proposition to have a dinner at the cost of a $1.50 for each person. There was not then nor has there since been any doubt that Mr. Shepherd's dinner was worth that sum or that as a matter of entertainment it was an honor to his skill and good taste and honorable dealing with customs. But although about 400 ate at this table and enjoyed the intellectual feast that followed, there was yet very many to whom it was an impossibility and these were kept away, who otherwise might have joined in the festivity and contributed by their presence to swell the gathering of Concord and her children and children's children at their family homes.... They remembered and brought up the scene on the Common when Lafayette was entertained in 1825 and said that this, like that, was for the glorification of the rich and [that it was] framed [planned] with the necessary consequence of the mortification of the mass of the people. Means were taken and influences used to persuade people not to accept this hospitality as alluded to in the article opposite then printed in the Concord paper. [The article referred is a letter dated September 12, 1835, signed "The wife of a Middlesex farmer," and describes the events of the centennial celebration: "I notice those who in independence might leisurely recline on a hair-cloth sofa with a volume of the ILLIAD, or ride in a splendid carriage to variegate the scene; here were those, who in the humbler walks of life ply their needles or tend their dairies for a livelihood -- all, all seemed happy without any inequality or distinction.... Most of us have the means of educating our children, as well as those who count their thousands; let us do it, and ever impress on their minds that true greatness and superiority consists more in wisdom and merit than in splendid equipages and fine houses."]... When the committee had finished their work and paid all the bills for expenses incurred under their direction, they found that they had exceeded the town's appropriation by about one hundred dollars. At first view, seeing that all this town's money had been expended in carrying out the purposes of the town, it would seem that this excess should be reported to the town and an additional appropriation asked for the payment. But the committee remembered the dissatisfaction that had been manifested by some and the undercurrent of censure that had been stirred by the leading malcontents and thought it more wise to ask no more grant of the town and avoid any opportunity of public complaint or unkind taunting at the gathering of the people. They therefore unanimously agreed to pay this deficiency out of their own private funds, each paying an equal proportion of the whole.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Meanwhile, on the opposite coast of the continent, Richard Henry Dana, Jr. was getting involved again in the port business of carrying hides, ferrying passengers, etc., in San Pedro harbor just as in San Diego harbor, the biggest difference between the two anchorages being that the ship was now farther offshore.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

The next morning, according to the orders of the agent, the Pilgrim set sail for the windward, to be gone three or four months. She got under weigh with very little fuss, and came so near us as to throw a letter on board, Captain Faucon standing at the tiller himself, and steering her as he would a mackerel smack. When Captain T_____ was in command of the Pilgrim, there was as much preparation and ceremony as there would be in getting a seventy-four under weigh. Captain Faucon was a sailor, every inch of him; he knew what a ship was, and was as much at home in one, as a cobbler in his stall. I wanted no better proof of this than the opinion of the ship's crew, for they had been six months under his command, and knew what he was; and if sailors allow their captain to be a good seaman, you may be sure he is one, for that is a thing they are not always ready to say. After the Pilgrim left us, we lay three weeks at San Pedro, from the 11th of September until the 2nd of October, engaged in the usual port duties of landing cargo, taking off hides, etc., etc. These duties were much easier, and went on much more agreeably, than on board the Pilgrim. "The more, the merrier," is the sailor's maxim; and a boat's crew of a dozen could take off all the hides brought down in a day, without much trouble, by division of labor; and on shore, as well as on board, a good will, and no discontent or grumbling, make everything go well. The officer, too, who usually went with us, the third mate, was a fine young fellow, and made no unnecessary trouble; so that we generally had quite a sociable time, and were glad to be relieved from the restraint of the ship. While here, I often thought of the miserable, gloomy weeks we had spent in this dull place, in the brig; discontent and hard usage on board, and four hands to do all the work on shore. Give me a big ship. There is more room, more hands, better outfit, better regulation, more life, and more company. Another thing was better arranged here: we had a regular gig's crew. A light whale-boat, handsomely painted, and fitted out with stern seats, yoke, tiller-ropes, etc., hung on the starboard quarter, and was used as the gig. The youngest lad in the ship, a Boston boy about thirteen years old, was coxswain of this boat, and had the entire charge of her, to keep her clean, and have her in readiness to go and come at any hour. Four light hands, of about the same size and age, of whom I was one, formed the crew. Each had his oar and seat numbered, and we were obliged to be in our places, have our oars scraped white, our tholepins in, and the fenders over the side. The bow-man had charge of the boat-hook and painter, and the coxswain of the rudder, yoke, and stern-sheets. Our duty was to carry the captain and agent about, and passengers off and on; which last was no trifling duty, as the people on shore have no boats, and every purchaser, from the boy who buys his pair of shoes, to the trader who buys his casks and bales, were to be taken off and on, in our boat. Some days, when people were coming and going fast, we were in the boat, pulling off and on, all day long, with hardly time for our meals; making, as we lay nearly three miles from shore, from forty to fifty miles rowing in a day. Still, we thought it the best berth in the ship; for when the gig was employed, we had nothing to do with the cargo, except small bundles which the passengers carried with them, and no hides to carry, besides the opportunity of seeing everybody, making acquaintances, hearing the news, etc. Unless the captain or agent were in the boat, we had no officer with us, and often had fine times with the passengers, who were always willing to talk and joke with us. Frequently, too, we were obliged to wait several hours on shore; when we would haul the boat up on the beach, and leaving one to watch her, go up to the nearest house, or spend the time in strolling about the beach, picking up shells, or playing hopscotch, and other games, on the hard sand. The rest of the crew never left the ship, except for bringing heavy goods and taking off hides; and though we were always in the water, the surf hardly leaving us a dry thread from morning till night, yet we were young, and the climate was good, and we thought it much better than the quiet, hum-drum drag and pull on board ship. We made the acquaintance of nearly half of California; for, besides carrying everybody in our boat, - men, women, and children, - all the messages, letters, and light packages went by us, and being known by our dress, we found a ready reception everywhere.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

At San Pedro, we had none of this amusement, for, there being but one house in the place, we, of course, had but little company. All the variety that I had, was riding, once a week, to the nearest rancho, to order a bullock down for the ship. The brig Catalina came in from San Diego, and being bound up to windward, we both got under weigh at the same time, for a trial of speed up to Santa Barbara, a distance of about eighty miles. We hove up and got under sail about eleven o'clock at night, with a light land-breeze, which died away toward morning, leaving us becalmed only a few miles from our anchoring-place. The Catalina, being a small vessel, of less than half our size, put out sweeps and got a boat ahead, and pulled out to sea, during the night, so that she had the sea-breeze earlier and stronger than we did, and we had the mortification of seeing her standing up the coast, with a fine breeze, the sea all ruffled about her, while we were becalmed, in-shore. When the sea-breeze died away, she was nearly out of sight; and, toward the latter part of the afternoon, the regular north-west wind set in fresh, we braced sharp upon it, took a pull at every sheet, tack, and halyard, and stood after her, in fine style, our ship being very good upon a taughtened bowline. We had nearly five hours of fine sailing, beating up to windward, by long stretches in and off shore, and evidently gaining upon the Catalina at every tack.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

When this breeze left us, we were so near as to count the painted ports on her side. Fortunately, the wind died away when we were on our inward tack, and she on her outward, so we were in-shore, and caught the land-breeze first, which came off upon our quarter, about the middle of the first watch. All hands were turned-up, and we set all sail, to the skysails and the royal studding-sails; and with these, we glided quietly through the water, leaving the Catalina, which could not spread so much canvas as we, gradually astern, and, by daylight, were off St. Buenaventura, and our antagonist nearly out of sight. The sea-breeze, however, favored her again, while we were becalmed under the headland, and laboring slowly along, she was abreast of us by noon. Thus we continued, ahead, astern, and abreast of one another, alternately; now, far out at sea, and again, close in under the shore. On the third morning, we came into the great bay of Santa Barbara, two hours behind the brig, and thus lost the bet; though, if the race had been to the point, we should have beaten her by five or six hours. This, however, settled the relative sailing of the vessels, for it was admitted that although she, being small and light, could gain upon us in very light winds, yet whenever there was breeze enough to set us agoing, we walked away from her like hauling in a line; and in beating to windward, which is the best trial of a vessel, we had much the advantage of her.

Wilhelm Wieprecht, director of the Berlin Gardes du Corps-Musik, received a patent for a bass tuba.

In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 12th of 9th M 1835 / I dreamed a dream last night which I have often thought of thro' the day. I was at the School in Providence where I saw a scene, which I shall not describe - It was among the classical Schollars & my mind was so wrought upon by it, that I fell to preaching to them with a powerful voice & with such regularity & connection as made me wonder at my self as when ever I have offered any thing among them my expressions have been few & under a degree of embarrassment - Well I have greatly desired & laboured much for the welfare of that Institution, but if things remain as they were when I was last there, & if they should prove as I saw them in my dream last night - it is Certainly time there was some change in its condition. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 13, Sunday: Felix Mendelssohn was introduced to the members of the Gewandhaus, Leipzig, and conducted his 1st rehearsal. Later he was guest of honor at a 16th birthday party for Clara Wieck. He entertained the assembly by doing imitations of Frédéric François Chopin and Liszt at the piano, then played his own music alone and with Clara. At Clara's request Mendelssohn played the scherzo from Schumann's new Piano Sonata. Clara received her presents, a new Capriccio, a birthday ode, and a gold watch from the Davidsbund.

In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 13 of 9 M / It was a cloudy day & Meeting rather small but I thought very quiet & solid seasons - tho' I must confess that to me individually it was very far from being a time of abounding
Father said a little in both Meetings - After tea I called over to Mary Williams to see Wm Robinsoin on my return called at Brother Isaacs & while there David returned from NYork having last night encountered great Danger in the Steam boat by being run a foul of by a Schooner - it being very dark & the sea high*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 18, Friday: David Henry Thoreau's Harvard College essay on assignment "Speak of the privileges and pleasures of a literary man."

In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 18th of 9th M 1835 / Today Sister Mary returned to me the Letters which I wrote to my Lamented & dear Sister Ruth during my residence in Providence - I have read them all over, between 30 & 40 in Number - they revived some past occurrences which were much effaced from my memory - & renewed the feelings & remembrance of others, & were on the whole very interesting to me - I was glad they were preserved, as they contain an account of some things, which may be remembered to some advantage in a future day. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 19, Saturday: Frédéric François Chopin arrived in Dresden from seeing his parents in Cieszyn. He was on his way to Leipzig.

Stephen Austin called on Anglo settlers in Texas to rise against the Mexican government.

A Quaker woman was depicted in this year, by Ammi Phillips:

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould had strained relations with some Quaker relatives who were being led astray by Friend Elias Hicks:

7th day 9th of 9th M / Today Thos R Robinson & his wife Jemima called to take leave of us on their return home to Vermont, having spent the Summer here among their relations - they are both Hixites [Hicksites], & tho' as relations & the offspring of respectable parents & familys, I felt a disposition to be more than civil to them, yet I could not part with them as Friends I had unity with - Very different was the feeling our Friend Stephen Stevens & his wife (Rachail Bird that was) who called at the Same time on their way home to Vermont to Speak with us by the way & take leave of us having spent a few days on a visit to her relations at Portsmouth - they felt life [like] friends with whom I had unity & sympathy. - Stephen brought me a remarkable Stone found on his Fathers farm it is a curiosity to us, thoi' he says many such are found in clay banks in Vermont - it looke like some Indian carved Work

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 20, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 20th of 9th M 1835 / Meeting this Morning was silent & Small - being Stormy but few came, it was however a solid good time to me. - Father had a short but good testimony in the Afternoon. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 23, Wednesday: The balloon of the Boston master goldbeater Louis Lauriat rose again from Castle Garden at the south tip of the island of Manhattan but this time the flight of our intrepid aeronaut terminated abruptly on some rocks near the Battery shore. A second attempt was somewhat more successful, depositing him at North Hempstead on Long Island.

Vincenzo Salvatore Carmelo Francesco Bellini died alone at 5PM at a country house in the Paris suburb of Puteaux, at the age of 33.

In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 23rd of 9th M 1835 / Went to Portsmouth to see Uncle Stanton who is still very ill with a stopage in his stomach, which prevents any thing remaining in it but a short time, before it is ejected - he suffers much from hunger & thirst & seems to be wearing out, tho' he may continue some time. -- This is also the day my aged & dear friend Moses Brown is 97 Years old, which I commemorate as having for the last Six years generally seen him on his birth day, & for some years previous to my residence in Providence have addressed a letter to him on that day or on this day of the Month. - but have been unable to today from the circumstance of by being from home. - This is also the Anniversary of the Great Storm 1815 which I well remember & also remember that our dear Sister Ruth Rodman Spent the day with us this day 20 Years ago & looked with us at the mighty force of the Wind & waves which beat over the Long Wharf & carried away Stores & house & drowned several in poor Newport, many were made suffered by it, & our Cellar kitchen was filled with Water & some loss sustained.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 24, Thursday: In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 24th of 9th M 1835 / Attended Monthly Meeting held in Town Mary Hix appeared in testimony in a solid weighty manner & was followed in a few words by Hannah Dennis & Father Rodman & also A Supplication by Elizabeth Wing - In the last we had rather more than usual buisness Nathan Moroe was recd into membership & a committtee was verybally appointed to consider of the subject of Memorials, several of our dear friends having recently passed from death unto Life there appeared a concern prevalent that their memory be preserved by written testimony but things are so low amongst us that I do not see that much will be done. -

After dinner our dear friend Elizabeth Wing & Ann Hopkins called to see us & spent a little time very pleasantly - We read them divers letters we have recently recd & conversed on the State of Society - after which Dear Elizabeth preached to us very sweetly & encouragingly

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 25, Friday: Samuel Whitmarsh exchanged the properties he had put together in Northampton for New-York financing in the amount of $40,000, forming a stock association to be known as the Northampton Silk Company.

Juan Alvarez Mendizabal replaced Miguel Ricardo de Alava Esquivel as Prime Minister of Spain.

An autopsy on the body of Vincenzo Bellini showed “an acute inflammation of the large intestine, complicated by an abscess of the liver.” The cause of death was amoebic dysentery.

In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 25th of 9 M / This day our Sister E R Nichols to fetch her little daughter Elizabeth who has been our pleasant inmate & companion thro' the Summer

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 27, Sunday: Frédéric François Chopin arrived in Leipzig and spent the day making music with Felix Mendelssohn. During his stay he visited Robert Schumann and the Wiecks, and declared that Clara Wieck was the only person in Germany to properly play his compositions.

In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 27th of 9th M / In our morning Meeting we had a Short communication from Father & in the Afternoon we were silent - both were solid meetings, but my mind was far from being in a state of Life - religious feelings were low tho' I trust I had some in the course of the Day

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 29, Tuesday: Records of the “Institute of 1770”:

“Whether the emigration [sic] of foreigners into our country is evil or not? Decided in the negative - 9 to 6.

Grand duo concertant sur la romance de ‘Le Marin’ for violin and piano by Franz Liszt was performed for the initial time, in Geneva.

In Newport, Rhode Island, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 29th of 9th M 1835 / This Morning Our Dear Sister Elizabeth R Nichols, her son in law Isaiah & her little daughter Elizabeth Jr left us by the Steam Boat expecting to be at the School committee in Providence today, expecting to leave for Salem tomorrow - I sent several letters by them to my friends at Providence. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

October 2, Friday: A Requiem mass for Vincenzo Bellini was held at Les Invalides. According to a report "Paer, Cherubini, Carafa, and Rossini each held one corner of the shroud." The earthly remains of the musician were deposited in Pere-Lachaise Cemetery, between those of Andre Ernest Modeste Gretry and Francois-Adrien Boieldieu.

Margaret Fuller's father Timothy Fuller died of the cholera, throwing much family responsibility onto her shoulders.

For the first two days, my grief, under this calamity, was such as I dare not speak of. But since my father's head is laid in the dust, I feel an awful calm, and am becoming familiar with the thoughts of being an orphan. I have prayed to God that duty may now be the first object, and self set aside. May I have light and strength to do what is right, in the highest sense, for my mother, brothers, and sister.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 10M 2nd 1835 / This morning word came in from Portsmouth that Uncle Stanton was very low - my Wife & I went our immediately & found he had breathed his last sometime before we got there. We found our dear Aunt in much affliction but as composed as could be expected on the occasion We spent the remainder of the day there & staid all night.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 3, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day Morning to our comfort & support Benj Marshall arrived which took from us much weight & responsibility -Arrangement was made for the funeral which was agreed to be from our house tomorrow at 10 OClock & to be inter'd in friends ground according to his request both verbal & written - we came home in the afternoon to arrange for the funeral & in the evening the Corps

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

was brought to Town & deposited in our South keeping room. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Daniel Webster, Edward Everett, and other dignitaries were approached, one by one, by the committee preparing for Concord's bicentennial event, to provide oratory for the occasion, and had struck out in each and every case. Finally they decided they would need to settle for some oratory from a local citizen, and approached Waldo Emerson. In preparation for his delivery of the keynote address for Concord's bicentennial, he borrowed proof sheets for the new local history book by Lemuel Shattuck. He also placed a notice of the publication of Shattuck's book in the Yeoman's Gazette.³⁹⁸

398. Lemuel Shattuck's 1835 A HISTORY OF THE TOWN OF CONCORD;..... Boston MA: Russell, Odiorne, and Company; Concord MA: John Stacy, 1835
(On or about November 11, 1837 Henry Thoreau would indicate a familiarity with the contents of at least pages 2-3 and 6-9 of this historical study.)

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

A HISTORY OF THE TOWN OF CONCORD:...

1612

When the English settlements first commenced in New England, that part of its territory, which lies south of New Hampshire, was inhabited by five principal nations of Indians: the Pequots, who lived in Connecticut; the Narragansets, in Rhode Island; the Pawkunnawkuts, or Womponoags, east of the Narragansets and to the north as far as Charles River;¹ the Massachusetts, north of Charles river and west of Massachusetts Bay; and the Pawtuckets, north of the Massachusetts. The boundaries and rights of these nations appear not to have been sufficiently definite to be now clearly known. They had within their jurisdiction many subordinate tribes, governed by sachems, or sagamores, subject, in some respects, to the principal sachem. At the commencement of the seventeenth century, they were able to bring into the field more than 18,000 warriors; but about the year 1612, they were visited with a pestilential disease, whose horrible ravages reduced their number to about 1800.² Some of their villages were entirely depopulated. This great mortality was viewed by the first Pilgrims, as the accomplishment of one of the purposes of Divine Providence, by making room for the settlement of civilized man, and by preparing a peaceful asylum for the persecuted Christians of the old world. In what light soever the event may be viewed, it no doubt greatly facilitated the settlements, and rendered them less hazardous.

1621

1. I have supposed that the Indians living south of the Charles River did not belong to the Massachusetts tribe. Chickatabot, sachem of Neponset, and Obatinuat acknowledged submission to Massasoit in 1621, and were at enmity with Squaw Sachem. No instance within my knowledge is recorded of a petty sachem going to war with his own tribe. It is also worthy of remark, that these sachems and their descendants executed deeds of lands within Massasoit's territories, but never in the Massachusetts territories. As the country became settled by the English, and the jealousies between different tribes were forgotten, all the Indians living within the Massachusetts patent were rather erroneously classed among the Massachusetts Indians. Hence the statements of Winthrop, Daniel Gookin, and other historians. See Prince, ANNALS, 1621.

2. MASSACHUSETTS HISTORICAL COLLECTION, volume I.

Shattuck, a resident in Concord from 1823 to 1834, noted that there had been a "third soldier buried and a house built over the spot” and that “one of the wounded died and was buried where Mr. Keyes’ house stands.”³⁹⁹ He evidently was referring to a house just to the northeast of the replacement Courthouse the town had erected in 1784, that in 1815 had been leased by John Shepard Keyes (the father, who worked at that courthouse).

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

A HISTORY OF THE
TOWN OF CONCORD ;
MIDDLESEX COUNTY, MASSACHUSETTS,
FROM ITS EARLIEST SETTLEMENT TO 1832 ;
AND OF THE ADJOINING TOWNS,
BEDFORD, ACTON, LINCOLN, AND CARLISLE ; CONTAINING VARIOUS NOTICES OF COUNTY AND STATE HISTORY NOT BEFORE PUBLISHED.
BY LEMUEL SHATTUCK,
MEMBER OF THE MASSACHUSETTS HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Nobler records of patriotism exist nowhere. — Nowhere can there be found higher proofs of a spirit that was ready to hazard all, to pledge all, to sacrifice all in the cause of their country, than in the New England towns. WEBSTER.

The local historian is sure of obtaining the gratitude of posterity if he perform his task with faithful diligence. — His work would have a great and increasing value within the narrow sphere of its subject, even if confined to that sphere ; but must be very imperfectly executed, if it does not contain some matter of illustration for the national annals, for the history of manners, for literature, philology, natural history, and various other departments of knowledge.

QUARTERLY REVIEW.

BOSTON :
RUSSELL, ODIORNE, AND COMPANY.

CONCORD :
JOHN STACY.

399. Of the three stricken soldiers of the 4th Regiment Light Infantry Company, Thomas Smith, Patrick Gray, and James Hall, two had died and were buried at the North Bridge itself, while the third was carried toward town before succumbing to his wounds.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1835.

October 4, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 4th of 10th M 1835 / The funeral this Afternoon was a solemn quiet opportunity & Father Rodman was engaged in testimony in nearly these words "I believe solemn & useful reflections are often much more impressive under the weight of silence which we have experienced, than from the utterance of many words, for words without knowledge darken council, & the minds of the hearers are in a worse state from them, but I believe it is my duty to say, that while sitting under the solemn covering with which we have been favoured, I have believed the Scripture would apply in regard to our valued friend whose remains we had assembled to pay the last of social duties Vizt "Because thy heart was tender & thou humbled thyself before the Lord & hast rent thy cloaths & wept before me, I also have heard thee, behold therefore I will gather thee unto thy fathers, & thou shalt be gathered into thy grave in peace." - he expressed a consoling hope that Uncle Stanton was at peace & rest - he added a little more which I do not clearly recollect - the setting soon closed & his remains were interd in Friend upper burying ground in the meadow field according to his request.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 11, Sunday: The last installment of "On the Situation of Artist and Their Condition in Society" by Franz Liszt appeared in the Gazette musicale de Paris.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 11th of 10th M / Attended both Meetings - Father was engaged in testimony in both - It was a time of some favour & some mental trial & exercise on my part - The Meeting was well attended particularly in the Morning.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Richard Henry Dana, Jr. sailed aboard the Alert from Santa Barbara anchorage to the bay of San Diego, California.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, Oct. 11th. Set sail this morning for the leeward; passed within sight of San Pedro, and, to our great joy, did not come to anchor, but kept directly on to San Diego, where we arrived and moored ship on.

October 13, Tuesday: Records of the "Institute of 1770":

"Has the form of government of the U.S.A. a greater appearance of stability than any other?" Decided in the affirmative - 8 to 2.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

(What do you suppose, would scholar David Henry's vote have been among the 8 affirmative ones, or one of the 2 in the negative?)

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 13th of 10th M 1835 / The House in Marlborough Street Once owned by the Venerable Govr Wm Coddington is now taking down, its great Age & the State of its timbers being such that it was unfit to live in & past repair - this circumstance reconciled my feelings to the removal of an object familiar to my eyesight from early childhood it was built by Rowland Robinson who was the first Robinson who settled in Newport for Govr Coddington & was the first contract he made as builder on his removal from Boston. This information I had from his grandson Thomas Robinson some years previous to his death - The Timbers are very large & were doubtless the growth of the land not far from the House & the Chimneys tho' of brick were evidently calculated for a very free use of fewel, being very wide & high. - While the rooms were yet Standing & the roof only removed I went into it & examined every part of it - & had I been a poet could have wrought up my mind to no very inconsiderable fancy - as it was I mentally saw the Yearly Meeting of Friends there Assembled - the weight & awe which covered the gathering & heard Geo. Fox preach in the demonstration of the Spirit & of Power - I walked thro' the rooms & saw (mentally) the pious & deeply exercised company of friends entertained around the large fireplaces by the Governor, & the table spread for refreshment - probably the Govr relating his exercises on board the Arbella & his trials as member of the General Court at Boston when Ann Hutchinson was tried before them or consulting with his friends relative to the welfare of his friends who then were grievously persecuted & the society in general - His funeral held in that House when the General Assembly adjourned to attend it, with the not improbable view of my Great great Grandfather Daniel Gould preaching at the time - That house was also probably the residence of His son Wm Coddington the Second of that Name & was also the residence of Nathaniel Coddington a former Secretary of State & was for many years the residence of Wm Coddington the old Town Clerk - In short for many very many years it was inhabited by those who were religious & Honourable in the World - but how indeed do all terestial things fail & that which was once in high account become low & even mean - for the last 20 or 30 Years, those who once were its dignified inmates have disappeared & it has been in habited by the lower order of society & it litteraly rotted down for want of seasonable repairs - I propose to obtain some of its venerable timbers to work into various little things such as boxes, Canes &c for the gratification of the Antiquarians & curious

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

October 18, Sunday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert sailed north up the coast of California from the bay of San Diego.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday was again, as usual, our sailing day, and we got under weigh with a stiff breeze, which reminded us that it was the latter part of the autumn, and time to expect south-easters once more. We beat up against a strong head wind, under reefed top-sails, as far as San Juan, where we came to anchor nearly three miles from the shore, with slip-ropes on our cables, in the old south-easter style of last winter. On the passage up, we had an old sea captain on board, who had married and settled in California, and had not been on salt water for more than fifteen years. He was astonished at the changes and improvements that had been made in ships, and still more at the manner in which we carried sail; for he was really a little frightened; and said that while we had top-gallant sails on, he should have been under reefed topsails. The working of the ship, and her progress to windward, seemed to delight him, for he said she went to windward as though she were kedging.

The Hochzeitskantate Cassia La sede empirea for four voices and piano by Otto Nicolai was performed for the initial time.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 18th of 10 m 1835 / Attended both Meetings & both were times of some favour –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 21, Wednesday: Waldo Emerson made a note in his journal about an initial visit to his home in Concord by Bronson Alcott:

Last Saturday night came hither Mr Alcott & spent the Sabbath with me. A wise man, simple, superior to display. & drops the best things as quietly as the least. Every man, he said, is a Revelation, & ought to write his Record. But few with the pen.

That night, just back in Boston from his visit to Emerson in Concord, Alcott would be visiting William Lloyd Garrison in the jail on Leverett Street. (What was Garrison doing in the Boston lockup? –Read on.)

Having met with brickbats in Concord, New Hampshire and garbage, raw eggs, and rocks in Lowell MA, and having been seriously injured by being hit in the face with a rock in Ohio, and having been denounced by President Andrew Jackson in a message to Congress, the English anti-slavery reformer George Thompson had been reduced to making his return plans in secret because of concern that pro-slavery activists would attempt to kidnap him (presumably to tar and feather him).⁴⁰⁰ He had fled Boston Harbor in a rowboat in order to board a British ship leaving for New Brunswick.

400. Safely back in England, George Thompson would be elected to Parliament.

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Back ashore, in what would come to be known as the “Gentlemen’s Riot” carried out by a downtown Boston group of swells associated with State Street and Milk Street which sometimes referred to itself as “the broadcloth mob,” what had been planned as a protest against a scheduled lecture by Thompson on behalf of the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society transformed itself into a mob of several thousand persons which stormed the meeting while the women prayed for the protection of God. They came uncomfortably close to tarring and feathering the substitute speaker.⁴⁰¹

STATE STREET, BOSTON

This substitute, William Lloyd Garrison, was saved only by the intervention of Boston’s mayor, who –despite the fact that there was a mayoral election coming up in December– dealt personally with this proslavery mob.

To the people who were engaging in the antislavery struggle, this year of 1835 would become known as “the mob year.” The riot against Garrison in Boston was far from the only one. The North was having what Grimsted refers to as a “riot conversation” with the South, in an attempt to reassure it that its institution of human enslavement would be tolerated, and that opposition to this institution would not be allowed to interfere with the flow of business. There was therefore also an assault on this day upon Henry B. Stanton in Newport, and an assault upon Samuel May in Montpelier. No great personal injury or property damage resulted, as that was not the point:

PAGE 27 GRIMSTED: The day’s riotous work was the North’s final offering of works to prove the sincerity of its stream of words against abolition ... few in the South noted how little damage to property and none to people these careful mobs perpetrated.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould recorded in his journal:

4th day 21 of 10 M / We rode to Portsmouth to attend the Select Meeting - After which we went to Aunt Stantons & spent the Afternoon with her in sympathy with her lonely situation

401. This mob was witnessed by William Cooper Nell, who, being himself a person of color, of course was unable to interfere.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

At this annual meeting of the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society at the Anti-Slavery Hall, the women were trapped in rooms on the 3d floor as the mob roamed the corridors of the building. The mayor of Boston belatedly arrived with a group of policemen and got the women to disperse, but William Lloyd Garrison was in his office and was left alone in the building with the mob. When he crawled through the back window and jumped down into the street, someone saw him and the mob gave chase. He was cornered in a 2d-floor room above a carpenter's shop into which he had dodged, whereupon there was a wrestling match to see whether he would be flung from the window, or into a tar kettle that had been prepared. The police jailed for the night for his own safety, in the jail on Leverett Street, and he inscribed on the wall there that his offense was "preaching the abominable and dangerous doctrine that all men have been created equal." Here is a fuller account of the action:

It was in the midst of such intense and widespread excitement that Boston called its meeting to abolish the Abolitionists. It was the month of August, and the heat of men's passions was as great as the heat of the August sun. The moral atmosphere of the city was so charged with inflammable gases that the slightest spark would have sufficed to produce an explosion. The Abolitionists felt this and carried themselves the while with unusual circumspection. They deemed it prudent to publish an address to neutralize the falsehoods with which they were assailed by their enemies. The address drawn up by Garrison for the purpose was thought "too fiery for the present time," by his more cautious followers and was rejected. The Liberator office had already been threatened in consequence of a fiery article by the editor, denouncing the use of Faneuil Hall for the approaching pro-slavery meeting. It seemed to the unawed and indignant champion of liberty that it were "better that the winds should scatter it in fragments over the whole earth – better that an earthquake should engulf it – than that it should be used for so unhallowed and detestable a purpose!" The anti-abolition feeling of the town had become so bitter and intense that Henry E. Benson, then clerk in the anti-slavery office, writing on the 19th of the month, believed that there were persons in Boston, who would assassinate George Thompson in broad daylight, and doubted whether Garrison or Samuel J. May would be safe in Faneuil Hall on the day of the meeting, and what seemed still more significant of the inflamed state of the public mind, was the confidence with which he predicted that a mob would follow the meeting. The wild-cat-like spirit was in the air – in the seething heart of the populace.

The meeting was held August 21st, in the old cradle of liberty. To its call alone fifteen hundred names were appended. It was a Boston audience both as to character and numbers, an altogether imposing affair, over whom the mayor of the city presided and before whom two of the most consummate orators of the commonwealth fulminated against the Abolitionists. One of their hearers, a young attorney of twenty-four, who listened to Peleg Sprague and Harrison Gray Otis that day, described sixteen years afterward the latter and the effects produced by him on that audience. Our young attorney vividly recalled how "'Abolitionist' was linked with contempt, in the silver tones of Otis, and all the charms that a divine eloquence and most

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

felicitous diction could throw around a bad cause were given it; the excited multitude seemed actually ready to leap up beneath the magic of his speech. It would be something, if one must die, to die by such a hand – a hand somewhat worthy and able to stifle anti-slavery, if it could be stifled. The orator was worthy of the gigantic task attempted; and thousands crowded before him, every one of their hearts melted by that eloquence, beneath which Massachusetts had bowed, not unworthily, for more than thirty years." Here is a specimen of the sort of goading which the wild-cat-like spirit of the city got from the orators. It is taken from the speech of Peleg Sprague. The orator is paying his respects to George Thompson, "an avowed emissary" "a professed agitator," who "comes here from the dark and corrupt institutions of Europe to enlighten us upon the rights of man and the moral duties of our own condition. Received by our hospitality, he stands here upon our soil, protected by our laws, and hurls firebrands, arrows, and death into the habitations of our neighbors and friends, and brothers; and when he shall have kindled a conflagration which is sweeping in desolation over our land, he has only to embark for his own country, and there look serenely back with indifference or exultation upon the widespread ruin by which our cities are wrapt in flames, and our garments rolled in blood." The great meeting was soon a thing of the past but not so its effects. The echoes of Otis and Sprague did not cease at its close. They thrilled in the air, they thrilled long afterward in the blood of the people. When the multitude dispersed Mischief went out into the streets of the city with them. Wherever afterward they gathered Mischief made one in their midst. Mischief was let loose, Mischief was afoot in the town. The old town was no place for the foreign emissary, neither was it a safe place for the arch-agitator. On the day after the meeting, Garrison and his young wife accordingly retreated to her father's home at Brooklyn, Conn., where the husband needed not to be jostling elbows with Mistress Mischief, and her pals. Garrison's answer to the speeches of Otis and Sprague was in his sternest vein. He is sure after reading them that, "there is more guilt attaching to the people of the free States from the continuance of slavery, than those in the slave States." At least he is ready to affirm upon the authority of Orator Sprague, "that New England is as really a slave-holding section of the republic as Georgia or South Carolina." Sprague, he finds, "in amicable companionship and popular repute with thieves and adulterers; with slaveholders, slavedealers, and slave-destroyers; ... with the disturbers of the public peace; with the robbers of the public mail; with ruffians who insult, pollute, and lacerate helpless women; and with conspirators against the lives and liberties of New England citizens." To Otis who was then nearly seventy years of age Garrison addressed his rebuke in tones of singular solemnity. It seemed to him that the aged statesman had transgressed against liberty "under circumstances of peculiar criminality." "Yet at this solemn period," the reprobation of the prophet ran, "you have not scrupled, nay, you have been ambitious, to lead and address an excited multitude, in vindication of all imaginable wickedness, embodied in one great system of crime and blood – to pander to the lusts and desires of the robbers of God and his poor – to consign over to the tender mercies of cruel taskmasters, multitudes of guiltless men, women, and children – and to denounce as an 'unlawful and dangerous association' a society whose only object is to bring this nation to repentance, through the truth as it is in Jesus." These audacious and iconoclastic performances of the reformer were not exactly adapted to turn from him the wrath of the idol worshipers. They more likely added fuel to the hot anger burning in Boston against him. Three weeks passed after his departure from the city, and his friends did not deem it safe for him to return. Toward the end of the fourth week of his enforced absence, against which he was chafing not a little, an incident happened in Boston which warned him to let patience have its perfect work. It was on the night of September 17th that the dispositions of the city toward him found grim expression in a gallows erected in front of his house at 23 Brighton street. This ghastly reminder that the fellow-citizens of the editor of the Liberator continued to take a lively interest in him, "was made in real workmanship style, of maple joist five inches through, eight or nine feet high, for the accommodation of two persons." Garrison and Thompson were the two persons for whom these brave accommodations were prepared. But as neither they nor their friends were in a mood to have trial made of them, the intended occupants consented to give Boston a wide berth, and to be somewhat particular that they did not turn in with her while the homicidal fit lasted. This editing his paper at long range, and this thought of life and safety Garrison did not at all relish. They grew more and more irksome to his fearless and earnest spirit. For his was a "pine-and-fagot" Abolitionism that knew not the fear of men or their wrath. But now he must needs have a care for the peace of mind of his young wife, who was, within a few months, to give birth to a child. And her anxiety for him was very great. Neither was the anxiety of devoted friends and followers to be lightly disregarded. All of which detained the leader in Brooklyn until the 25th of the month, when the danger signals seemed to have disappeared. Whereupon he set out immediately for his post in Boston to be at the head of his forces. He found the city in one of those strange pauses of popular excitement, which might signify the ebb of the tide or only the retreat of the billows. He was not inclined to let the anti-Abolition agitation subside so soon, before it had carried on its flood Abolition principles to wider fields and more abundant harvests in the republic. Anxious lest the cat-like temper of the populace was falling into indifference and apathy, he and his disciples took occasion to prod it into renewed wakefulness and activity. The instruments used for this purpose were anti-slavery meetings and the sharp goad of his Liberator editorials. The city was possessed with the demon of slavery, and its foaming at the mouth was the best of all signs that the Abolition exorcism was working effectively. So, in between the glittering teeth and the terrible paws was thrust the maddening goad, and up sprang the mighty beast horrible to behold. One of these meetings was the anniversary of the formation of the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society which fell on October 14th. The ladies issued their notice, engaged a hall, and invited George Thompson to address them. Now the foreign emissary was particularly exasperating to Boston sensibility on the subject of slavery. He was the veritable red rag to the pro-slavery bull. The public announcement, therefore, that he was to speak in the city threw the public mind into violent agitation. The Gazette and the Courier augmented the excitement by the recklessness with which they denounced the proposed meeting, the former promising to Thompson a lynching, while the latter endeavored to involve his associates who were to the "manner born" in the popular outbreak, which was confidently predicted in case the "foreign vagrant" wagged his tongue at the time appointed. Notwithstanding the rage of press and people the meeting was postponed through no willingness on the part of the ladies, but because of the panic of the owners of the hall lest their property should be damaged or destroyed in case of a riot. The ladies, thereupon, appointed three o'clock in the afternoon of October 21st as the time, and the hall adjoining the Anti-Slavery Office, at 46 Washington street, as the place where they would hold their adjourned meeting. This time they made no mention of Mr. Thompson's addressing them, merely announcing several addresses. In fact, an address from Mr. Thompson, in view of the squally outlook, was not deemed expedient. To provide against accidents and disasters, he left the city on the day before the meeting. But this his enemies did not know. They confidently expected that he was to be one of the speakers. An inflammatory handbill distributed on the streets at noon of the 21st seemed to leave no doubt of this circumstance in the pro-slavery portion of the city. The handbill referred to ran as follows:

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

THOMPSON, THE ABOLITIONIST!

That infamous foreign scoundrel, THOMPSON, will hold forth this afternoon at the Liberator office. No. 48 Washington street. The present is a fair opportunity for the friends of the Union to snake Thompson out! It will be a contest between the Abolitionists and the friends of the Union. A purse of $100 has been raised by a number of patriotic citizens to reward the individual who shall first lay violent hands on Thompson, so that he may be brought to the tar-kettle before dark. Friends of the Union, be vigilant!

Boston, Wednesday, 12 o'clock.

That Wednesday forenoon Garrison spent at the anti-slavery office, little dreaming of the peril which was to overtake him in that very spot in the afternoon. He went home to an early

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

dinner, since his wife was a member of the society, and he himself was set down for an address. As he wended his way homeward, Mischief and her gang were afoot distributing the aforesaid handbills "in the insurance offices, the reading-rooms, all along State street, in the hotels, bar-rooms, etc.," and scattering it "among mechanics at the North End, who were mightily taken with it." Garrison returned about a half hour before the time appointed for the meeting. He found a small crowd of about a hundred individuals collected in front of the building where the hall was situated, and on ascending to the hall more of the same sort, mostly young men, choking the access to it. They were noisy, and Garrison pushed his way through them with difficulty. As he entered the place of meeting and took his seat among the ladies, twenty had already arrived, the gang of young rowdies recognized him and evinced this by the exclamation: "That's Garrison!" The full significance of the crowd just without the hall did not seem to have occurred to the man whom they had identified. He did not know that they were the foam blown from the mouth of a great mob at the moment filling the streets in the neighborhood of the building where he sat with such serenity of spirit. His wife who had followed him from their home saw what Garrison did not see. The crowd of a hundred had swelled to thousands. It lay in a huge irregular cross, jammed in between the buildings on Washington street, the head lowering in front of the anti-slavery office, the foot reaching to the site where stood Joy building, now occupied by the Rogers, the right arm stretching along Court street to the Court House, and the left encircling the old State House, City Hall and Post-office then, in a gigantic embrace. All hope of urging her way through that dense mass was abandoned by Mrs. Garrison, and a friend, Mr. John E. Fuller, escorted her to his home, where she passed the night. Meantime the atmosphere upstairs at the hall began to betoken a fast approaching storm. The noises ominously increased on the landing just outside. The door of the hall was swung wide open and the entrance filled with rioters. Garrison, all unconscious of danger, walked over to these persons and remonstrated in his grave way with them in regard to the disturbance which they were producing, winding up with a characteristic bit of pleasantry: "Gentlemen," said he, "perhaps you are not aware that this is a meeting of the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society, called and intended exclusively for ladies, and those only who have been invited to address them. Understanding this fact you will not be so rude and indecorous as to thrust your presence upon this meeting." But he added, "If, gentlemen, any of you are ladies in disguise — why only apprise me of the fact, give me your names, and I will introduce you to the rest of your sex, and you can take seats among them accordingly." The power of benignity over malignity lasted a few moments after this little speech, when the situation changed rapidly from bad to worse. "The tumult continually increased," says an eye-witness, "with horrible execrations, howling, stamping, and finally shrieking with rage. They seemed not to

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

dare to enter, notwithstanding their fury, but mounted on each other's shoulders, so that a row of hostile heads appeared over the slight partition, of half the height of the wall which divides the society's rooms from the landing place. We requested them to allow the door to be shut; but they could not decide as to whether the request should be granted, and the door was opened and shut with violence, till it hung useless from its hinges." Garrison thinking that his absence might quiet these perturbed spirits and so enable the ladies to hold their meeting without further molestation volunteered at this juncture to the president of the society to retire from the hall unless she desired him to remain. She did not wish him to stay but urged him to go at once not only for the peace of the meeting but for his own safety. Garrison thereupon left the hall meaning at the time to leave the building as well, but egress by the way of the landing and the stairs, he directly perceived was impossible, and did what seemed the next best thing, entered the anti-slavery office, separated from the hall by a board partition. Charles C. Burleigh accompanied him within this retreat. The door between the hall and the office was securely locked, and Garrison with that marvelous serenity of mind, which was a part of him, busied himself immediately with writing to a friend an account of the scenes which were enacting in the next room. The tempest had begun in the streets also. The mob from its five thousand throats were howling "Thompson! Thompson!" The mayor of the city, Theodore Lyman, appeared upon the scene, and announced to the gentlemen of property and standing, who were thus exercising their vocal organs, that Mr. Thompson was not at the meeting, was not in the city. But the mayor was a modern Canute before the sea of human passion, which was rushing in over law and authority. He besought the rioters to disperse, but he might as well have besought the waves breaking on Nastasket Beach to disperse. Higher, higher rose the voices; fiercer, fiercer waxed the multitude; more and more frightful became the uproar. The long-pent-up excitement of the city and its hatred of Abolitionists had broken loose at last and the deluge had come. The mayor tossed upon the human inundation as a twig on a mountain stream, and with him for the nonce struggled helplessly the police power of the town also. Upstairs in the hall the society and its president are quite as powerless as the mayor and the police below. Miss Mary S. Parker, the president, is struggling with the customary opening exercises. She has called the meeting to order, read to the ladies some passages from the Bible, and has lifted up her voice in prayer to the All Wise and Merciful One "for direction and succor, and the forgiveness of enemies and revilers." It is a wonderful scene, a marvelous example of Christian heroism, for in the midst of the hisses and threats and curses of the rioters, the prayer of the brave woman rose clear and untremulous. But now the rioters have thrown themselves against the partition between the landing-place and the hall. They are trying to break it down; now, they have partially succeeded. In another moment they have thrown

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

themselves against the door of the office where Garrison is locked. The lower panel is dashed in. Through the opening they have caught sight of their object, Garrison, serenely writing at his desk. "There he is! That's Garrison! Out with the scoundrel!" and other such words of recognition and execration, burst from one and another of the mob. The shattering of the partition, the noise of splitting and ripping boards, the sharp crash caused by the shivering of the office door, the loud and angry outcries of the rioters warn the serene occupant of the office that his position has become one of extreme peril. But he does not become excited. His composure does not forsake him. Instead of attempting to escape, he simply turns to his friend, Burleigh, with the words, "You may as well open the door, and let them come in and do their worst." But fortunately, Burleigh was in no such extremely non-resistant mood. The advent of the mayor and the constables upon the scene at this point rescued Garrison from immediately falling into the hands of the mob, who were cleared out of the hall and from the stairway. Now the voice of the mayor was heard urging the ladies to go home as it was dangerous to remain; and now the voice of Maria Weston Chapman, replying: "If this is the last bulwark of freedom, we may as well die here as anywhere." The ladies finally decided to retire, and their exit diverted, while the operation lasted, the attention of the huge, cat-like creature from their object in the anti-slavery office. When the passing of the ladies had ceased, the old fury of the mob against Garrison returned. "Out with him!" "Lynch him!" rose in wild uproar from thousands in the streets. But again the attention of the huge, cat-like creature was diverted from its object in the second story of the building before which it was lashing itself into frenzy. This time it was the anti-slavery sign which hung from the rooms of the society over the sidewalk. The mob had caught sight of it, and directly set up a yell for it. The sensation of utter helplessness in the presence of the multitude seemed at this juncture to return to the chief magistrate of the city. It was impossible to control the cataract-like passions of the rioters. He heard their awful roar for the sign. The din had risen to terrific proportions. The thought of what might happen next appalled him. The mob might begin to bombard the sign with brickbats, and from the sign pass to the building, and from the building to the constables, and then – but the mayor glanced not beyond, for he had determined to appease the fury of the mob by throwing down to it the hateful sign. A constable detached it, and hurled it down to the rioters in the street. But by the act the mayor had signified that the rule of law had collapsed, and the rule of the mob had really begun. When the rioters had wreaked their wrath upon the emblem of freedom, they were in the mood for more violence. The appetite for destruction, it was seen, had not been glutted; only whetted. Garrison's situation was now extremely critical. He could no longer remain where he was, for the mob would invade the building and hunt him like hounds from cellar to garret. He must leave the building without delay. To escape from the front was out of the question. A way of escape must, therefore, be found in the rear. All of these considerations the mayor and Garrison's friends urged upon him. The good man fell in with this counsel, and, with a faithful friend, proceeded to the rear of the building, where from a window he dropped to a shed, but in doing so was very nearly precipitated to the ground. After picking himself up he passed into a carpenter's shop, meaning to let himself down into Wilson's Lane, now Devonshire street, but the myriad-eyed mob, which was searching every portion of the building for their game, espied him at this point, and with that set up a great shout. The workmen came to the aid of the fugitive by closing the door of the carpenter's shop in the face of his pursuers. The situation seemed desperate. Retreat from the front was cut off; escape from the rear anticipated and foiled. Garrison perceived the futility of any further attempts to elude the mob, and proposed in his calm way to deliver himself up to them. But his faithful Achates, John Reid Campbell, advised him that it was his duty to avoid the mob as long as it was possible to do so. Garrison thereupon made a final effort to get away. He retreated up stairs, where his friend and a lad got him into a corner of the room and tried to conceal his whereabouts by piling some boards in front of him. But, by that time, the rioters had entered the building, and within a few moments had broken into the room where Garrison was in hiding. They found Mr. Reid, and demanded of him where Garrison was. But Reid firmly refused to tell. They then led him to a window, and exhibited him to the mob in the Lane, advising them that it was not Garrison, but Garrison's and Thompson's friend, who knows where Garrison is, but refuses to tell. A shout of fierce exultation from below greeted this announcement. Almost immediately afterward, Garrison was discovered and dragged furiously to the window, with the intention of hurling him thence to the pavement. Some of the rioters were for doing this, while others were for milder measures. "Don't let us kill him outright!" they begged. So his persecutors relented, coiled a rope around his body instead, and bade him descend to the street. The great man was never greater than at that moment. With extraordinary meekness and benignity he saluted his enemies in the street. From the window he bowed to the multitude who were thirsting for his destruction, requesting them to wait patiently, for he was coming to them. Then he stepped intrepidly down the ladder raised for the purpose, and into the seething sea of human passion. Garrison must now have been speedily torn to pieces had he not been quickly seized by two or three powerful men, who were determined to save him from falling into the hands of the mob. They were men of great muscular strength, but the muscular strength of two or three giants would have proven utterly unequal to the rescue, and this Mr. Garrison's deliverers evidently appreciated. For while they employed their powerful arms, they also employed stratagem as well to effect their purpose. They shouted anon as they fought their way through the excited throng, "He is an

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

American! He shan't be hurt!" and other such words which divided the mind of the mob, arousing among some sympathy for the good man. By this means he was with difficulty got out of Wilson's lane into State street, in the rear of the old State House. The champion was now on historic ground, ground consecrated by the blood of Crispus Attucks and his fellow-martyrs sixty-five years before. His hat was lost, much of his clothing was stripped from his body, he was without his customary glasses, and was therefore practically blind. He could hear the awful clamor, the mighty uproar of the mob, but he could not distinguish them one from another, friend from foe. Nevertheless he "walked with head erect, calm countenance flashing eyes like a martyr going to the stake, full of faith and manly hope" according to the testimony of an eye-witness. Garrison himself has thrown light on the state of his mind during the ordeal. "The promises of God," he afterward remembered, sustained his soul, "so that it was not only divested of fear, but ready to sing aloud for joy." The news now reached the ears of the mayor that Garrison was in the hands of the mob. Thereupon the feeble but kindly magistrate began to act afresh the role of the twig in the mountain stream. He and his constables struggled helplessly in the human current rushing and raging around City Hall, the head and seat of municipal law and authority. Without the aid of private citizens Garrison must inevitably have perished in the commotions which presently reached their climax in violence and terror. He was in the rear of City Hall when the mayor caught up to him and his would-be rescuers. The mayor perceived the extremity of the situation, and said to the Faneuil Hall giants who had hold of Garrison, "Take him into my office," which was altogether more easily said than done. For the rioters have raised the cry "to the Frog Pond with him!" Which order will be carried out, that of the magistrate or that of the mob? These were horrible moments while the two hung trembling in the balance. But other private citizens coming to the assistance of the mayor struck the scales for the moment in his favor, and Garrison was finally hustled, and thrust by main force into the south door of the City Hall and carried up to the mayor's room. But the mob had immediately effected an entrance into the building through the north door and filled the lower hall. The mayor now addressed the pack, strove manfully in his feeble way to prevail upon the human wolves to observe order, to sustain the law and the honor of the city, he even intimated to them that he was ready to lay down his life on the spot to maintain the law and preserve order. Then he got out on the ledge over the south door and spoke in a similar strain to the mob on the street. But alas! he knew not the secret for reversing the Circean spell by which gentlemen of property and standing in the community had been suddenly transformed into a wolfish rabble. The increasing tumult without soon warned the authorities that what advantage the mayor may have obtained in the contest with the mob was only temporary and that their position was momentarily becoming more perilous and less tenable. It was impossible to say to what extreme of violence a multitude so infuriated would not go to get their prey. It seemed to the now thoroughly alarmed mayor that the mob might in their frenzy attack the City Hall to effect their purpose. There was one building in the city, which the guardians of the law evidently agreed could resist the rage of the populace, and that building was the jail. To this last stronghold of Puritan civilization the authorities and the powers that were, fell back as a dernier resort to save Garrison's life. But even in this utmost pitch and extremity, when law was trampled in the streets, when authority was a reed shaken in a storm, when anarchy had drowned order in the bosom of the town, the Anglo-Saxon passion for legal forms asserted itself. The good man, hunted for his life, must forsooth be got into the only refuge which promised him security from his pursuers by a regular judicial commitment as a disturber of the peace. Is there anything at once so pathetic and farcical in the Universal history of mobs? Pathetic and farcical to be sure, but it was also well meant, and therefore we will not stop to quarrel with men who were equal to the perpetration of a legal fiction so full of the comedy and tragedy of civilized society. But enough – the municipal wiseacres having put their heads together and evolved the brilliant plan of committing the prophet as a disturber of the peace, immediately set about its execution, which developed in the sequence into a bird of altogether another color. For a more perilous and desperate device to preserve Garrison's life could not well have been hit upon. How was he ever to be got out of the building and through that sea of ferocious faces surging and foaming around it. First then by disguising his identity by sundry changes in his apparel. He obtained a pair of trousers from one kindly soul, another gave him a coat, a third lent him a stock, a fourth furnished him a cap. A hack was summoned and stationed at the south door, a posse of constables drew up and made an open way from the door to it. Another hack was placed in readiness at the north door. The hack at the south door was only a ruse to throw the mob off the scent of their prey, while he was got out of the north door and smuggled into the other hack. Up to this point, the plan worked well, but the instant after Garrison had been smuggled into the hack he was identified by the mob, and then ensued a scene which defies description; no writer however skillful, may hope to reproduce it. The rioters rushed madly upon the vehicle with the cry: "Cut the traces! Cut the reins!" They flung themselves upon the horses, hung upon the wheels, dashed open the doors, the driver the while belaboring their heads right and left with a powerful whip, which he also laid vigorously on the backs of his horses. For a moment it looked as if a catastrophe was unavoidable, but the next saw the startled horses plunging at break-neck speed with the hack up Court street and the mob pursuing it with yells of baffled rage. Then began a thrilling, a tremendous race for life and Leverett street jail. The vehicle flew along Court street to Bodoin square, but the rioters, with fell purpose flew hardly less swiftly in its track. Indeed the pursuit of the pack was so close that the hackman did not dare to drive directly to the jail but reached it by a detour through Cambridge and Blossom streets. Even then the mob pressed upon the heels of the horses as they drew up before the portals of the old prison, which shut not an instant too soon upon the editor of the Liberator, who was saved from a frightful fate to use a Biblical phrase but by the skin of his teeth. Here the reformer safe from the wrath of his foes, was locked in a cell; and here, during the evening, with no abatement of his customary cheerfulness and serenity of spirit, he received several of his anxious friends, Whittier among them, whom through the grated bars he playfully accosted thus: "You see my accommodations are so limited, that I cannot ask you to spend the night with me." That night in his prison cell, and on his rude prison bed, he slept the sleep of the just man, sweet and long:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

"When peace within the bosom reigns,
And conscience gives th' approving voice;
Though bound the human form in chains.
Yet can the soul aloud rejoice.

"'Tis true, my footsteps are confined –
I cannot range beyond this cell –
But what can circumscribe my mind,
To chain the winds attempt as well!"

The above stanzas he wrote the next morning on the walls of his cell. Besides this one he made two other inscriptions there, to stand as memorabilia of the black drama enacted in Boston on the afternoon of October 21, 1835. After being put through the solemn farce of an examination in a court, extemporized in the jail, Garrison was discharged from arrest as a disturber of the peace! But the authorities, dreading a repetition of the scenes of the day before, prayed him to leave the city for a few days, which he did, a deputy sheriff driving him to Canton, where he boarded the train from Boston to Providence, containing his wife, and together they went thence to her father's at Brooklyn, Conn. The apprehensions of the authorities in respect of the danger of a fresh attack upon him were unquestionably well founded, inasmuch as diligent search was made for him in all of the outgoing stages and cars from the city that morning. In this wise did pro-slavery, patriotic Boston translate into works her sympathy for the South.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

October 22, Thursday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert began to lay in hides at the anchorage in San Pedro, California.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Thursday, Oct. 22d, at San Pedro, in the old south-easter berth, a league from shore, with a slip-rope on the cable, reefs in the topsails, and rope-yarns for gaskets. Here we lay ten days, with the usual boating, hide-carrying, rolling of cargo up the steep hill, walking barefooted over stones, and getting drenched in salt water.

Wilhelm III Friedrich Christian, Count von Aldenburg replaced Wilhelm II Gustav Friedrich as Baron of Knyphausen.

Samuel Colt of Hartford, Connecticut acquired French and British patents that protected his rights to the design of 5-shot rapid-firing percussion cap pistols using a ratchet to rotate its revolving cylinders (a year later, Colt would acquire similar United States protection and commence making his fortune in the small arms business):

The above is a most intriguing Daguerreotype! Normally the maneuver of producing the “revolver” self-protective device was to be masked by holding one’s hat in such manner as to conceal one’s pistol hand. However, for purposes of demonstrating the subtle maneuver to the camera — Mr. Colt has lowered his hat hand.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 22 of 10 M / Attended Meeting which was a good time in silence - excepting a few savory words from Father Rodman -

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The last was Preparative In which Benona Weaver requested Membership & two young couples laid their intentions of Marriage before the Meeting – After Meeting met with a committee of the Moy [Monthly] Meeting on the Sale of Land – In the Afternoon Answered a letter recd yesterday from Joshua Lynch of Ohio

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 25, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 25 of 10 M / Rode to Portsmouth with my cousin Thos B Gould & attended Meeting there - after which we met with a committee on the subject of Memorials of dec'd Friends. After which we dined at Benjamin Freeborns & spent the remainder of the Afternoon - I have not been at his house before in a number of years.-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Richard Henry Dana, Jr. recorded the arrival of the Rosa at the anchorage in San Pedro, California, and recorded the story of one George P. Marsh aboard her.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The third day after our arrival, the Rosa came in from San Juan, where she went the day after the south-easter. Her crew said it was as smooth as a mill-pond, after the gale, and she took off nearly a thousand hides, which had been brought down for us, and which we lost in consequence of the south-easter. This mortified us; not only that an Italian ship should have got to windward of us in the trade, but because every thousand hides went toward completing the forty thousand which we were to collect before we could say good-by to California.

While lying here, we shipped one new hand, an Englishman, of about two or three and twenty, who was quite an acquisition, as he proved to be a good sailor, could sing tolerably, and, what was of more importance to me, had a good education, and a somewhat remarkable history. He called himself George P.Marsh; professed to have been at sea from a small boy, and to have served his time in the smuggling trade between Germany and the coasts of France and England. Thus he accounted for his knowledge of the French language, which he spoke and read as well as he did English; but his cutter education would not account for his English, which was far too good to have been learned in a smuggler; for he wrote an uncommonly handsome hand, spoke with great correctness, and frequently, when in private talk with me, quoted from books, and showed a knowledge of the customs of society, and particularly of the formalities of the various English courts of law, and of Parliament, which surprised me. Still, he would give no other account of himself than that he was educated in a smuggler. A man whom we afterwards fell in with, who had been a shipmate of George's a few years before, said that he heard at the boarding-house from which they shipped, that George had been at college, (probably a naval one, as he knew no Latin or Greek,) where he learned French and mathematics. He was by no means the man by nature that Harris was. Harris had made everything of his mind and character in spite of obstacles; while this man had evidently been born in a different rank, and educated early in life accordingly, but had been a vagabond, and done nothing for himself since. What had been given to him by others, was all that made him to differ from those about him; while Harris had made himself what he was. Neither had George the character, strength of mind, acuteness, or memory of Harris; yet there was about him the remains of a pretty good education, which enabled him to talk perhaps beyond his brains, and a high spirit and sense of honor, which years of a dog's life had not broken. After he had been a little while on board, we learned from him his remarkable history, for the last two years, which we afterwards heard confirmed in such a manner, as put the truth of it beyond a doubt.

He sailed from New York in the year 1833, if I mistake not, before the mast, in the brig Lascar, for Canton. She was sold in the East Indies, and he shipped at Manilla, in a small schooner, bound on a trading voyage among the Ladrone and Pelew Islands. On one of the latter islands, their schooner was wrecked on a reef, and they were attacked by the natives, and, after a desperate resistance, in which all their number except the captain, George, and a boy, were killed or drowned, they surrendered, and were carried bound, in a canoe, to a neighboring island. In about a month after this, an opportunity occurred by which one of their number might get away. I have forgotten the circumstances, but only one could go, and they yielded to the captain, upon his promising to send them aid if he escaped. He was successful in his attempt; got on board an American vessel, went back to Manilla, and thence to America, without making any effort for their rescue, or indeed, as George afterwards discovered, without even mentioning their case to any one in Manilla. The boy that was with George died, and he being alone, and there being no chance for his escape, the natives soon treated him with kindness, and even with attention. They painted him, tattooed his body, (for he would never consent to be marked in the face or hands,) gave him two or three wives; and, in fact, made quite a pet of him. In this way, he lived for thirteen months, in a fine climate, with a plenty to eat, half naked, and nothing to do.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

THE REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR DANA, CONCLUDED:

He soon, however, became tired, and went round the island, on different pretences, to look out for a sail. One day, he was out fishing in a small canoe with another man, when he saw a large sail to the windward, about a league and a half off, passing abreast of the island and standing westward. With some difficulty, he persuaded the islander to go off with him to the ship, promising to return with a good supply of rum and tobacco. These articles, which the islanders had got a taste of from American traders, were too strong a temptation for the fellow, and he consented. They paddled off in the track of the ship, and lay-to until she came down to them. George stepped on board the ship, nearly naked, painted from head to foot, and in no way distinguishable from his companion until he began to speak. Upon this, the people on board were not a little astonished; and, having learned his story, the captain had him washed and clothed, and sending away the poor astonished native with a knife or two and some tobacco and calico, took George with him on the voyage. This was the ship Cabot, of New York, Captain Low. She was bound to Manilla, from across the Pacific, and George did seaman's duty in her until her arrival in Manilla, when he left her, and shipped in a brig bound to the Sandwich Islands. From Oahu, he came, in the British brig Clementine, to Monterey, as second officer, where, having some difficulty with the captain, he left her, and coming down the coast, joined us at San Pedro. Nearly six months after this, among some papers we received by an arrival from Boston, we found a letter from Captain Low, of the Cabot, published immediately upon his arrival at New York, and giving all the particulars just as we had them from George. The letter was published for the information of the friends of George, and Captain Low added, that he left him at Manilla to go to Oahu, and he had heard nothing of him since.

George had an interesting journal of his adventures in the Pelew Islands, which he had written out at length, in a handsome hand, and in correct English.

October 29, Thursday: Having already perused the 1st volume and the Atlas, David Henry Thoreau checked out, from Harvard Library, the 3rd volume of Charles Rollin (1661-1741)'s THE ANCIENT HISTORY OF THE EGYPTIANS, CARTHAGINIANS, ASSYRIANS, BABYLONIANS, MEDES AND PERSIANS, MACEDONIANS, AND GRECIANS. INCLUDING A HISTORY OF THE ARTS AND SCIENCES OF THE ANCIENTS. TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH. THE 12TH EDITION, REVISED, CORRECTED, AND ILLUSTRATED WITH A SET OF MAPS NEWLY ENGRAVED (first printed 1730-1738; one of the first 17 English editions, possibly the one issued in London in 1813).

Our guy would comment later of the catacombs full of preserved death, of our museums full of stuffed animals, and of such history textbooks stuffed full with irrelevant facts, that:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

"I hate museums, there is nothing so weighs upon the spirits. They are catacombs of nature. They are preserved death. One green bud of Spring one willow catkin, one faint trill from some migrating sparrow, might set the world on its legs again.

I know not whether I muse most at the bodies stuffed with cotton and sawdust – or those stuffed with bowels and fleshy fibre.

The life that is in a single green weed is of more worth than all this death. They are very much like the written history of the world – and I read Rollin and Ferguson with the same feeling."

–JOURNAL; September 24, 1843

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 10th M 29th 1835 / Again we rode to Portsmouth to attend the Monthly Meeting the first was silent & in the last we had much buisness - two couples passed Meeting for Marriage - One man requested to be admitted to Membership - One was disowned & several other cases of importance was before us. -- We dined with Stephen Chase & then rode home. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 30, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 10 M 30 1835 / In reviewing the exercises of Yesterday - I feel this Morning that we are not without an evidence that Quakerism is something yet - however the inward manifestation of Truth immediately conveyed to the mind may be undervalued & considerd as meere megrims [Webster: 1) a severe headache, 2) a whim, fancy or fad, 3) low spirits, the blues.] of the immagination - I do feel, & know from what is sealed on my mind as certain experience, that the Lord is yet great & his Name Known, & his power felt in the hearts of the children of Men, however great the effort may be to establish & bring in forms & ceremonies, without the life & power

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 1, Sunday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert sailed from San Pedro anchorage toward the port of Santa Barbara, California.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, November 1st. Sailed this day, (Sunday again,) for Santa Barbara, where we arrived on the 5th.

A convention in the Texas district of Mexico proclaimed the right of the province to secede (there's always a first time even if it's not named "Rick Perry").

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 11 M 1 1835 / Attended Meetings Morning & Afternoon Father bore short testimonies in both. - they were to me good solid seasons.-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 3, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

11th M 3rd (3rd day of week) 1835 / This Afternoon we Rode to Tiverton & staid at Edward Wings - this was the first time my wife was ever there

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 4, Wednesday: Waldo Emerson lectured at the Concord Lyceum on: Michael Angelo Buonaroti.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day after breakfast we rode to Somersett to attend the Select Qrtly Meeting - Dined at Daniel Braytons & lodged at Nathan Chases -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 5, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day attended the Quarterly Meeting at large In the first Hannah Robinson preached a savory little testimony after which our fr John Meader took the weight of Service & it felt to me that Truth was over the Meeting to the comfort & enlargement of many minds - after which Dorcas Paine appeard in Supplication, but from the feebleness of her voice was not generally heard - but there were feelings of unity in her appearance - Directly after Meeting we got into our Chaise & rode on to Providence & reached our frd Moses Browns House before it was very dark. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Having already perused Volume 1, the Atlas, and Volume 3 of Charles Rollin (1661-1741)'s THE ANCIENT HISTORY OF THE EGYPTIANS, CARTHAGINIANS, ASSYRIANS, BABYLONIANS, MEDES AND PERSIANS, MACEDONIANS, AND GRECIANS. INCLUDING A HISTORY OF THE ARTS AND SCIENCES OF THE ANCIENTS. TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH. THE 12TH EDITION, REVISED, CORRECTED, AND ILLUSTRATED WITH A SET OF MAPS NEWLY ENGRAVED (first printed 1730-1738; one of the first 17 English editions, possibly the one issued in London in 1813), David Henry Thoreau checked out, from Harvard Library, the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th volumes of that set.

Our guy would comment later of the catacombs full of preserved death, of our museums full of stuffed animals, and of such history textbooks stuffed full with irrelevant facts, that:

"I hate museums, there is nothing so weighs upon the spirits. They are catacombs of nature. They are preserved death. One green bud of Spring one willow catkin, one faint trill from some migrating sparrow, might set the world on its legs again. I know not whether I muse most at the bodies stuffed with cotton and sawdust – or those stuffed with bowels and fleshy fibre. The life that is in a single green weed is of more worth than all this death. They are very much like the written history of the world – and I read Rollin and Ferguson with the same feeling."

–JOURNAL; September 24, 1843

November 6, Friday: Unable to resolve the spoliation issue, United States charge d'affaires Thomas Barton departed from Paris, thus severing relations between the two countries.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day attended the School committee at the School House. – lodged again at Moses Browns.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 7, Saturday: According to BIRTHS, MARRIAGES AND DEATHS OF THE TOWN OF CONCORD, MASSACHUSETTS (Groton, 1894), Thomas S. Farnsworth of Groton & Harriet H. Lawton of Concord filed an intention to marry.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day Attended the Meeting for Sufferings at the Meeting House in Providence Dined at Moses Browns & sett off immediately for home - but got no further than Bristol ferry & lodged at Pierces

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Richard Henry Dana, Jr. observed and described typical smuggling activities along the coast of California.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

The second day after our arrival, a full-rigged brig came round the point from the northward, sailed leisurely through the bay, and stood off again for the south-east, in the direction of the large island of Catalina. The next day the Avon got under weigh, and stood in the same direction, bound for San Pedro. This might do for marines and Californians, but we knew the ropes too well. The brig was never again seen on the coast, and the Avon arrived at San Pedro in about a week, with a full cargo of Canton and American goods.

This was one of the means of escaping the heavy duties the Mexicans lay upon all imports. A vessel comes on the coast, enters a moderate cargo at Monterey, which is the only custom-house, and commences trading. In a month or more, having sold a large part of her cargo, she stretches over to Catalina, or other of the large uninhabited islands which lie off the coast, in a trip from port to port, and supplies herself with choice goods from a vessel from Oahu, which has been lying off and on the islands, waiting for her. Two days after the sailing of the Avon, the Loriotte came in from the leeward, and without doubt had also a snatch at the brig's cargo.

November 8, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day Mornng came across the ferry & rode home in season to be at Meetings in Newport -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 12, Thursday: The Texas Provisional Government, on the motion of Merriwether Woodson Smith, named Sam Houston a Major General in the Texas Army.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 12th of 11th M 1835 / Today our dear friend Elizabeth Wing was at meeting with is & had very seasonable & acceptable Service. - She & Betsy Sandford dined with us. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Waldo Emerson lectured in Boston.

This was lecture #2 of the series “Permanent Traits of the English National Character.”

Meanwhile Richard Henry Dana, Jr. was experiencing bad weather and adventurous rowing, in the Santa Barbara surfline.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Thursday, Nov. 12th. This day was quite cool in the early part, and there were black clouds about; but as it was often so in the morning, nothing was apprehended, and all the captains went ashore together, to spend the day. Towards noon, the clouds hung heavily over the mountains, coming half way down the hills that encircle the town of Santa Barbara, and a heavy swell rolled in from the south-east. The mate immediately ordered the gig's crew away, and at the same time, we saw boats pulling ashore from the other vessels. Here was a grand chance for a rowing match, and every one did his best. We passed the boats of the Ayacucho and Loriotte, but could gain nothing upon, and indeed, hardly hold our own with, the long, six-oared boat of the whale-ship. They reached the breakers before us; but here we had the advantage of them, for, not being used to the surf, they were obliged to wait to see us beach our boat, just as, in the same place, nearly a year before, we, in the Pilgrim, were glad to be taught by a boat's crew of Kanakas.

We had hardly got the boats beached, and their heads out, before our old friend, Bill Jackson, the handsome English sailor, who steered the Loriotte's boat, called out that the brig was adrift; and, sure enough, she was dragging her anchors, and drifting down into the bight of the bay. Without waiting for the captain, (for there was no one on board but the mate and steward,) he sprung into the boat, called the Kanakas together, and tried to put off. But the Kanakas, though capital water-dogs, were frightened by their vessel's being adrift, and by the emergency of the case, and seemed to lose their faculties. Twice, their boat filled, and came broadside upon the beach. Jackson swore at them for a parcel of savages, and promised to flog every one of them. This made the matter no better; when we came forward, told the Kanakas to take their seats in the boat, and, going two on each side, walked out with her till it was up to our shoulders, and gave them a shove, when, giving way with their oars, they got her safely into the long, regular swell. In the mean time, boats had put off from our ships and the whaler, and coming all on board the brig together, they let go the other anchor, paid out chain, braced the yards to the wind, and brought the vessel up.

In a few minutes, the captains came hurrying down, on the run; and there was no time to be lost, for the gale promised to be a severe one, and the surf was breaking upon the beach, three deep, higher and higher every instant. The Ayacucho's boat, pulled by four Kanakas, put off first, and as they had no rudder or steering oar, would probably never have got off, had we not waded out with them, as far as the surf would permit. The next that made the attempt was the whale-boat, for we, being the most experienced "beach-combers," needed no help, and staid till the last. Whalemens make the best boats' crews in the world for a long pull, but this landing was new to them, and notwithstanding the examples they had had, they slued round and were hove up—boat, oars, and men—altogether, high and dry upon the sand. The second time, they filled, and had to turn their boat over, and set her off again. We could be of no help to them, for they were so many as to be in one another's way, without the addition of our numbers. The third time, they got off, though not without shipping a sea which drenched them all, and half filled their boat, keeping them baling, until they reached their ship. We now got ready to go off, putting the boat's head out; English Ben and I, who were the largest, standing on each side of the bows, to keep her "head on" to the sea, two more shipping and manning the two after oars, and the captain taking the steering oar. Two or three Spaniards, who stood upon the beach looking at us, wrapped their cloaks about them, shook their heads, and muttered "Caramba!" They had no taste for such doings; in fact, the hydrophobia is a national malady, and shows itself in their persons as well as their actions.

November 15, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 15th of 11th M / Yesterday our dear friend Thos Anthony came down the river from Wickford to be at Meeting with us - he

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

THE REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR DANA, CONCLUDED:

Watching for a “smooth chance,” we determined to show the other boats the way it should be done; and, as soon as ours floated, ran out with her, keeping her head on, with all our strength, and the help of the captain’s oar, and the two after oarsmen giving way regularly and strongly, until our feet were off the ground, we tumbled into the bows, keeping perfectly still, from fear of hindering the others. For some time it was doubtful how it would go. The boat stood nearly up and down in the water, and the sea, rolling from under her, let her fall upon the water with a force which seemed almost to stave her bottom in. By quietly sliding two oars forward, along the thwarts, without impeding the rowers, we shipped two bow oars, and thus, by the help of four oars and the captain’s strong arm, we got safely off, though we shipped several seas, which left us half full of water. We pulled alongside of the Loriotte, put her skipper on board, and found her making preparations for slipping, and then pulled aboard our own ship. Here Mr. Brown, always “on hand,” had got everything ready, so that we had only to hook on the gig and hoist it up, when the order was given to loose the sails. While we were on the yards, we saw the Loriotte under weigh, and before our yards were mast-headed, the Ayacucho had spread her wings, and, with yards braced sharp up, was standing athwart our hawse. There is no prettier sight in the world than a full-rigged, clipper-built brig, sailing sharp on the wind. In a moment, our slip-rope was gone, the head-yards filled away, and we were off. Next came the whaler; and in a half an hour from the time when four vessels were lying quietly at anchor, without a rag out, or a sign of motion, the bay was deserted, and four white clouds were standing off to sea. Being sure of clearing the point, we stood off with our yards a little braced in, while the Ayacucho went off with a taught bowline, which brought her to windward of us. During all this day, and the greater part of the night, we had the usual south-easter entertainment, a gale of wind, variegated and finally topped off with a drenching rain of three or four hours. At daybreak, the clouds thinned off and rolled away, and the sun came up clear. The wind, instead of coming out from the northward, as is usual, blew steadily and freshly from the anchoring-ground. This was bad for us, for, being “flying light,” with little more than ballast trim, we were in no condition for showing off on a taught bowline, and had depended upon a fair wind, with which, by the help of our light sails and studding-sails, we meant to have been the first at the anchoring-ground; but the Ayacucho was a good league to windward of us, and was standing in, in fine style. The whaler, however, was as far to leeward of us, and the Loriotte was nearly out of sight, among the islands, up the Canal. By hauling every brace and bowline, and clapping watch-tackles upon all the sheets and halyards, we managed to hold our own, and drop the leeward vessels a little in every tack. When we reached the anchoring-ground, the Ayacucho had got her anchor, furled her sails, squared her yards, and was lying as quietly as if nothing had happened for the last twenty-four hours.

We had our usual good luck in getting our anchor without letting go another, and were all snug, with our boats at the boom-ends, in half an hour. In about two hours more, the whaler came in, and made a clumsy piece of work in getting her anchor, being obliged to let go her best bower, and finally, to get out a kedge and a hawser. They were heave-ho-ing, stopping and unstopping, pawling, catting, and fishing, for three hours; and the sails hung from the yards all the afternoon, and were not furled until sundown. The Loriotte came in just after dark, and let go her anchor, making no attempt to pick up the other until the next day.

This affair led to a great dispute as to the sailing of our ship and the Ayacucho. Bets were made between the captains, and the crews took it up in their own way; but as she was bound to leeward and we to windward, and merchant captains cannot deviate, a trial never took place; and perhaps it was well for us that it did not, for the Ayacucho had been eight years in the Pacific, in every part of it—Valparaiso, Sandwich Islands, Canton, California, and all, and was called the fastest merchantman that traded in the Pacific, unless it was the brig John Gilpin, and perhaps the ship Ann McKim of Baltimore.

came directly to our house & lodged & has attended both our

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Meetings today, which have indeed been watering & refreshing seasons - he dined at Henry Goulds & has gone to lodge at David Buffums.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

The HMS Beagle and Charles Darwin reached Tahiti.

At daylight, Tahiti, an island which must for ever remain classical to the voyager in the South Sea, was in view. At a distance the appearance was not attractive. The luxuriant vegetation of the lower part could not yet be seen, and as the clouds rolled past, the wildest and most precipitous peaks showed themselves towards the centre of the island. As soon as we anchored in Matavai Bay, we were surrounded by canoes. This was our Sunday, but the Monday of Tahiti: if the case had been reversed, we should not have received a single visit; for the injunction not to launch a canoe on the sabbath is rigidly obeyed. After dinner we landed to enjoy all the delights produced by the first impressions of a new country, and that country the charming Tahiti. A crowd of men, women, and children, was collected on the memorable Point Venus, ready to receive us with laughing, merry faces. They marshalled us towards the house of Mr. Wilson, the missionary of the district, who met us on the road, and gave us a very friendly reception. After sitting a very short time in his house, we separated to walk about, but returned there in the evening.

The land capable of cultivation, is scarcely in any part more than a fringe of low alluvial soil, accumulated round the base of the mountains, and protected from the waves of the sea by a coral reef, which encircles the entire line of coast. Within the reef there is an expanse of smooth water, like that of a lake, where the canoes of the natives can ply with safety and where ships anchor. The low land which comes down to the beach of coral-sand, is covered by the most beautiful productions of the intertropical regions. In the midst of bananas, orange, cocoa-nut, and bread-fruit trees, spots are cleared where yams, sweet potatoes, and sugar-cane, and pine-apples are cultivated. Even the brush-wood is an imported fruit-tree, namely, the guava, which from its abundance has become as noxious as a weed. In Brazil I have often admired the varied beauty of the bananas, palms, and orange-trees contrasted together; and here we also have the bread-fruit, conspicuous from its large, glossy, and deeply digitated leaf. It is admirable to behold groves of a tree, sending forth its branches with the vigour of an English oak, loaded with large and most nutritious fruit. However seldom the usefulness of an object can account for the pleasure of beholding it, in the case of these beautiful woods, the knowledge of their high productiveness no doubt enters largely into the feeling of admiration. The little winding paths, cool from the surrounding shade, led to the scattered houses; the owners of which everywhere gave us a cheerful and most hospitable reception.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

I was pleased with nothing so much as with the inhabitants. There is a mildness in the expression of their countenances which at once banishes the idea of a savage; and intelligence which shows that they are advancing in civilization. The common people, when working, keep the upper part of their bodies quite naked; and it is then that the Tahitians are seen to advantage. They are very tall, broad-shouldered, athletic, and well-proportioned. It has been remarked, that it requires little habit to make a dark skin more pleasing and natural to the eye of an European than his own colour. A white man bathing by the side of a Tahitian, was like a plant bleached by the gardener's art compared with a fine dark green one growing vigorously in the open fields. Most of the men are tattooed, and the ornaments follow the curvature of the body so gracefully, that they have a very elegant effect. One common pattern, varying in its details, is somewhat like the crown of a palm-tree. It springs from the central line of the back, and gracefully curls round both sides. The simile may be a fanciful one, but I thought the body of a man thus ornamented was like the trunk of a, noble tree embraced by a delicate creeper.

Many of the elder people had their feet covered with small figures, so placed as to resemble a sock. This fashion, however, is partly gone by, and has been succeeded by others. Here, although fashion is far from immutable, every one must abide by that prevailing in his youth. An old man has thus his age forever stamped on his body, and he cannot assume the airs of a young dandy. The women are tattooed in the same manner as the men, and very commonly on their fingers. One unbecoming fashion is now almost universal: namely, shaving the hair from the upper part of the head, in a circular form, so as to leave only an outer ring. The missionaries have tried to persuade the people to change this habit; but it is the fashion, and that is a sufficient answer at Tahiti, as well as at Paris. I was much disappointed in the personal appearance of the women: they are far inferior in every respect to the men. The custom of wearing a white or scarlet flower in the back of the head, or through a small hole in each ear, is pretty. A crown of woven cocoa-nut leaves is also worn as a shade for the eyes. The women appear to be in greater want of some becoming costume even than the men. Nearly all the natives understand a little English -- that is, they know the names of common things; and by the aid of this, together with signs, a lame sort of conversation could be carried on. In returning in the evening to the boat, we stopped to witness a very pretty scene. Numbers of children were playing on the beach, and had lighted bonfires which illumined the placid sea and surrounding trees; others, in circles, were singing Tahitian verses. We seated ourselves on the sand, and joined their party. The songs were impromptu, and I believe related to our arrival: one little girl sang a line, which the rest took up in parts, forming a very pretty chorus. The whole scene made us unequivocally aware that we were seated on the shores of an island in the far-famed South Sea.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Henry Thoreau would comment on this in his essay "WALKING":

"WALKING": A tanned skin is something more than respectable, and perhaps olive is a fitter color than white for a man – a denizen of the woods. "The pale white man!" I do not wonder that the African pitied him. Darwin the naturalist says "A white man bathing by the side of a Tahitian was like a plant bleached by the gardener's art compared with a fine, dark green one growing vigorously in the open fields."

Ben Jonson exclaims,—

"How near to good is what is fair!"

So I would say—

How near to good is what is wild!

Life consists with Wildness. The most alive is the wildest. Not yet subdued to man, its presence refreshes him. One who pressed forward incessantly and never rested from his labors, who grew fast and made infinite demands on life, would always find himself in a new country or wilderness, and surrounded by the raw material of life. He would be climbing over the prostrate stems of primitive forest trees.

CHARLES DARWIN

BEN JONSON

VOYAGE OF THE BEAGLE II

LOVE FREED FROM IGNOR ...

November 16, Monday: Halley's Comet whipped around the sun and was, for more than a week, lost to view.⁴⁰²

SKY EVENT

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 16th of 11th M / Thos Anthony has spent a little time

402. "P/HALLEY, (1P=1835 III). Viewed with the unaided eye from September 23 until February 18th, T=1835 November 16. First detected without optical aid on September 23 when situated in the morning sky in eastern Auriga. Moved swiftly to the northeast. By October 5 already 3rd magnitude. Beginning October 8, visible all night as a 1-2 magnitude object in Ursa Major. Passed through solar conjunction far north of the Sun, entering the evening sky. On October 14 located in northernmost Bootes, 1st magnitude with a 20 degree tail. By October 20 situated in Ophiuchus, magnitude 1-2 and still with an impressive tail. In the first half of November about 2nd magnitude, drifting slowly to the southwest and then entering the evening twilight. Following solar conjunction reported as about 2nd magnitude at the very end of January 1836 — about 30-50 times brighter than expected! Comet situated a little southwest of Antares. Throughout the first half of February seen as a steadily fading naked eye object." According to a comet list published in Boston in 1846, attributed to Professor Benjamin Peirce:

155	1834	April 2821	226	14	41	276	40	13	50	25	32	5	59	48	0.51240	R	Rumker.
156	1835	Mar. 30.68738	59	8	30	206	21	57	212	46	33	9	2	42	2.05149	R	W. Bessel.
		27.57651	58	32	23	207	55	33	210	36	50	9	7	39	2.041308	R	Santini.
H	1835	Nov. 15.94153	55	21	41	304	42	17	110	39	24	17	45	35	0.5863639	D	Lundhal.
157	1840	Jan. 4.47112	190	6	15	192	90	38	72	14	93	53	5	41	0.6184594	R	W. Bessel.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

with us this morning but has gone to Wm Nichols's to dine by invitation The Wind being high, he could not get up the River & lodged again with us. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 17, Tuesday: Cesar Franck offered his 1st piano recital in Paris, at the Gymnase Musical. In spite of a vigorous advertising campaign by his father, no review would appear in the press.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 17 of 11 M / The weather being very calm the Wickford Boat did not get power till near night & Thos again Staid with us

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

At anchor off the South Pacific island of Tahiti, the HMS Beagle and Charles Darwin registered the fact that they had crossed over this planet's Date Line and therefore needed to pay due homage to the calendar deity:

This day is reckoned in the log-book as Tuesday the 17th, instead of Monday the 16th, owing to our, so far, successful chase of the sun. Before breakfast the ship was hemmed in by a flotilla of canoes; and when the natives were allowed to come on board, I suppose there could not have been less than two hundred. It was the opinion of every one that it would have been difficult to have picked out an equal number from any other nation, who would have given so little trouble. Everybody brought something for sale: shells were the main articles of trade. The Tahitians now fully understand the value of money, and prefer it to old clothes or other articles. The various coins, however, of English and Spanish denomination puzzle them, and they never seemed to think the small silver quite secure until changed into dollars. Some of the chiefs have accumulated considerable sums of money. One chief, not long since, offered 800 dollars (about 160 pounds sterling) for a small vessel; and frequently they purchase whale-boats and horses at the rate of from 50 to 100 dollars.

After breakfast I went on shore, and ascended the nearest slope to a height of between two and three thousand feet. The outer mountains are smooth and conical, but steep; and the old volcanic rocks, of which they are formed, have been cut through by many profound ravines, diverging from the central broken parts of the island to the coast. Having crossed the narrow low girt of inhabited and fertile land, I followed a smooth steep ridge between two of the deep ravines. The vegetation was singular, consisting almost exclusively of small dwarf ferns, mingled higher up, with coarse grass; it was not very dissimilar from that on some of the Welsh hills, and this so close above the orchard of tropical plants on the coast was very surprising. At the highest point, which I reached, trees again appeared. Of the three zones of comparative luxuriance, the lower one owes its moisture, and therefore fertility, to its flatness; for, being scarcely raised above the level of the sea, the water from the higher land drains away slowly. The intermediate zone does not, like the upper one, reach into a damp and cloudy atmosphere, and therefore remains sterile. The woods in the upper zone are very pretty, tree-ferns replacing the cocoa-nuts on the coast. It must not, however, be supposed that these woods at all equal in splendour the forests of Brazil. The vast numbers of productions, which characterize a continent, cannot be expected to occur in an island.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

From the highest point which I attained, there was a good view of the distant island of Eimeo, dependent on the same sovereign with Tahiti. On the lofty and broken pinnacles, white massive clouds were piled up, which formed an island in the blue sky, as Eimeo itself did in the blue ocean. The island, with the exception of one small gateway, is completely encircled by a reef. At this distance, a narrow but well-defined brilliantly white line was alone visible, where the waves first encountered the wall of coral. The mountains rose abruptly out of the glassy expanse of the lagoon, included within this narrow white line, outside which the heaving waters of the ocean were dark-coloured. The view was striking: it may aptly be compared to a framed engraving, where the frame represents the breakers, the marginal paper the smooth lagoon, and the drawing the island itself. When in the evening I descended from the mountain, a man, whom I had pleased with a trifling gift, met me, bringing with him hot roasted bananas, a pine-apple, and cocoa-nuts. After walking under a burning sun, I do not know anything more delicious than the milk of a young cocoa-nut. Pine-apples are here so abundant that the people eat them in the same wasteful manner as we might turnips. They are of an excellent flavor -- perhaps even better than those cultivated in England; and this I believe is the highest compliment which can be paid to any fruit. Before going on board, Mr. Wilson interpreted for me to the Tahitian who had paid me so adroit an attention, that I wanted him and another man to accompany me on a short excursion into the mountains.

November 18, Wednesday: Jose Jorge Loureiro replaced Joao Carlos Gregorio Domingues Vicente Francisco de Saldanha Oliveira e Daun, marques e conde de Saldanha as prime minister of Portugal.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 18 of 11 M / The wind being favourable this Mornng Our fr Thos Anthony left us & returned home -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Charles Darwin went exploring on Tahiti:

In the morning I came on shore early, bringing with me some provisions in a bag, and two blankets for myself and servant. These were lashed to each end of a long pole, which was alternately carried by my Tahitian companions on their

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

shoulders. These men are accustomed thus to carry, for a whole day, as much as fifty pounds at each end of their poles. I told my guides to provide themselves with food and clothing; but they said that there was plenty of food in the mountains, and for clothing, that their skins were sufficient. Our line of march was the valley of Tiaauru, down which a river flows into the sea by Point Venus. This is one of the principal streams in the island, and its source lies at the base of the loftiest central pinnacles, which rise to a height of about 7000 feet. The whole island is so mountainous that the only way to penetrate into the interior is to follow up the valleys. Our road, at first, lay through woods which bordered each side of the river; and the glimpses of the lofty central peaks, seen as through an avenue, with here and there a waving cocoa-nut tree on one side, were extremely picturesque. The valley soon began to narrow, and the sides to grow lofty and more precipitous. After having walked between three and four hours, we found the width of the ravine scarcely exceeded that of the bed of the stream. On each hand the walls were nearly vertical, yet from the soft nature of the volcanic strata, trees and a rank vegetation sprung from every projecting ledge. These precipices must have been some thousand feet high; and the whole formed a mountain gorge far more magnificent than anything which I had ever before beheld. Until the midday sun stood vertically over the ravine, the air felt cool and damp, but now it became very sultry. Shaded by a ledge of rock, beneath a facade of columnar lava, we ate our dinner. My guides had already procured a dish of small fish and fresh-water prawns. They carried with them a small net stretched on a hoop; and where the water was deep and in eddies, they dived, and like otters, with their eyes open followed the fish into holes and corners, and thus caught them.

The Tahitians have the dexterity of amphibious animals in the water. An anecdote mentioned by Ellis shows how much they feel at home in this element. When a horse was landing for Pomarre in 1817, the slings broke, and it fell into the water; immediately the natives jumped overboard, and by their cries and vain efforts at assistance almost drowned it. As soon, however, as it reached the shore, the whole population took to flight, and tried to hide themselves from the man-carrying pig, as they christened the horse.

A little higher up, the river divided itself into three little streams. The two northern ones were impracticable, owing to a succession of waterfalls which descended from the jagged summit of the highest mountain; the other to all appearance was equally inaccessible, but we managed to ascend it by a most extraordinary road. The sides of the valley were here nearly precipitous, but, as frequently happens with stratified rocks, small ledges projected, which were thickly covered by wild bananas, lilaceous plants, and other luxuriant productions of the tropics. The Tahitians, by climbing amongst these ledges, searching for fruit, had discovered a track by which the whole precipice could be scaled. The first ascent from the valley was very dangerous; for it was necessary to pass a steeply inclined face of naked rock, by the aid of ropes which we brought with us. How any person discovered that this formidable spot was the only point where the side of the mountain was practicable, I cannot imagine. We then cautiously walked along one of the ledges till we came to one of the three streams. This ledge formed a flat spot, above which a beautiful cascade, some hundred feet in height, poured down its waters, and beneath, another high cascade fell into the main stream in the valley below. From this cool and shady recess we made a circuit to avoid the overhanging waterfall. As before, we followed little projecting ledges, the danger being partly concealed by the thickness of the vegetation. In passing from one of the ledges to another, there was a vertical wall of rock. One of the Tahitians, a fine active man, placed the trunk of a tree against this, climbed up it, and then by the aid of crevices reached the summit. He fixed the ropes to a projecting point, and lowered them for our dog and luggage, and then we clambered up ourselves. Beneath the ledge on which the dead tree was placed, the precipice must have been five or six hundred feet deep; and if the abyss had not been partly concealed by the overhanging ferns and lilies my head would have turned giddy, and nothing should have induced me to have attempted it. We continued to ascend, sometimes along ledges, and sometimes along knife-edged ridges, having on each hand profound ravines. In the Cordillera I have seen mountains on a far grander scale, but for abruptness, nothing at all comparable with this. In the evening we reached a flat little spot on the banks of the same stream, which we had continued to follow, and which descends in a chain of waterfalls: here we bivouacked for the night. On each side of the ravine there were great beds of the mountain-banana, covered with ripe fruit. Many of these plants were from twenty to twenty-five feet high, and from three to four in circumference. By the aid of strips of bark for rope, the stems of bamboos for rafters, and the large leaf of the banana for a thatch, the Tahitians in a few minutes built us an excellent house; and with withered leaves made a soft bed.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

They then proceeded to make a fire, and cook our evening meal. A light was procured, by rubbing a blunt pointed stick in a groove made in another, as if with intention of deepening it, until by the friction the dust became ignited. A peculiarly white and very light wood (the Hibiscus tiliareus) is alone used for this purpose: it is the same which serves for poles to carry any burden, and for the floating out-riggers to their canoes. The fire was produced in a few seconds: but to a person who does not understand the art, it requires, as I found, the greatest exertion; but at last, to my great pride, I succeeded in igniting the dust. The Gaucho in the Pampas uses a different method: taking an elastic stick about eighteen inches long, he presses one end on his breast, and the other pointed end into a hole in a piece of wood, and then rapidly turns the curved part, like a carpenter's centre-bit. The Tahitians having made a small fire of sticks, placed a score of stones, of about the size of cricket-balls, on the burning wood. In about ten minutes the sticks were consumed, and the stones hot. They had previously folded up in small parcels of leaves, pieces of beef, fish, ripe and unripe bananas, and the tops of the wild arum. These green parcels were laid in a layer between two layers of the hot stones, and the whole then covered up with earth, so that no smoke or steam could escape. In about a quarter of an hour, the whole was most deliciously cooked. The choice green parcels were now laid on a cloth of banana leaves, and with a cocoa-nut shell we drank the cool water of the running stream; and thus we enjoyed our rustic meal.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

I could not look on the surrounding plants without admiration. On every side were forests of banana; the fruit of which, though serving for food in various ways, lay in heaps decaying on the ground. In front of us there was an extensive brake of wild sugar-cane; and the stream was shaded by the dark green knotted stem of the Ava, – so famous in former days for its powerful intoxicating effects. I chewed a piece, and found that it had an acrid and unpleasant taste, which would have induced any one at once to have pronounced it poisonous. Thanks to the missionaries, this plant now thrives only in these deep ravines, innocuous to every one. Close by I saw the wild arum, the roots of which, when well baked, are good to eat, and the young leaves better than spinach. There was the wild yam, and a liliaceous plant called Ti, which grows in abundance, and has a soft brown root, in shape and size like a huge log of wood: this served us for dessert, for it is as sweet as treacle, and with a pleasant taste. There were, moreover, several other wild fruits, and useful vegetables. The little stream, besides its cool water, produced eels, and cray-fish. I did indeed admire this scene, when I compared it with an uncultivated one in the temperate zones. I felt the force of the remark, that man, at least savage man, with his reasoning powers only partly developed, is the child of the tropics.

As the evening drew to a close, I strolled beneath the gloomy shade of the bananas up the course of the stream. My walk was soon brought to a close, by coming to a waterfall between two and three hundred feet high; and again above this there was another. I mention all these waterfalls in this one brook, to give a general idea of the inclination of the land. In the little recess where the water fell, it did not appear that a breath of wind had ever blown. The thin edges of the great leaves of the banana, damp with spray, were unbroken, instead of being, as is so generally the case, split into a thousand shreds. From our position, almost suspended on the mountain side, there were glimpses into the depths of the neighbouring valleys; and the lofty points of the central mountains, towering up within sixty degrees of the zenith, hid half the evening sky. Thus seated, it was a sublime spectacle to watch the shades of night gradually obscuring the last and highest pinnacles.

Before we laid ourselves down to sleep, the elder Tahitian fell

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

on his knees, and with closed eyes repeated a long prayer in his native tongue. He prayed as a Christian should do, with fitting reverence, and without the fear of ridicule or any ostentation of piety. At our meals neither of the men would taste food, without saying beforehand a short grace. Those travellers who think that a Tahitian prays only when the eyes of the missionary are fixed on him, should have slept with us that night on the mountain-side. Before morning it rained very heavily; but the good thatch of banana-leaves kept us dry.

November 19, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 19th of 11th M 1835 / Our Meeting today was a solid good one - Father had a short encouraging testimony. - In the Preparative Meeting which followed, Thos P Nichols appeared in it & requested to become a member of our Society.- I felt glad Thos had given up to request Membership - he has been exemplary in the use of the plain language for some time, & a very dilligent attender of our religious Meetings both on First day & in the middle of the Week.-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Meanwhile, at the Masonic Temple in Boston, Waldo Emerson was delivering lecture Number 3 of the series "English Literature," entitled "The Age of Fable."

In the South Pacific, a Western ship ferried about 500 Māori warriors from New Zealand's North Island to the Chatham Islands, 500 miles to the east. The Moriori of the Chatham Islands were of the same stock as the Māori, but had been living in isolation for some 15 generations. Having learned from sealers of the existence of the Chatham Islands and of the existence of their relatives the Moriori, the Māori were going to make them be their slaves, and then, in short order, to exterminate them. This was their custom.

Meanwhile, on the island of Tahiti elsewhere in the South Pacific, Charles Darwin continued his explorations:

At daylight my friends, after their morning prayer, prepared an excellent breakfast in the same manner as in the evening. They themselves certainly partook of it largely; indeed I never saw any men eat near so much. I suppose such enormously capacious stomachs must be the effect of a large part of their diet consisting of fruit and vegetables, which contain, in a given bulk, a comparatively small portion of nutriment. Unwittingly, I was the means of my companions breaking, as I afterwards learned, one of their own laws, and resolutions: I took with me a flask of spirits, which they could not refuse to partake of; but as often as they drank a little, they put their fingers before their mouths, and uttered the word "Missionary." About two years ago, although the use of the ava was prevented, drunkenness from the introduction of spirits became very prevalent. The missionaries prevailed on a few good men, who saw that their country was rapidly going to ruin, to join with them in a Temperance Society. From good sense or shame, all the chiefs and the queen were at last persuaded to join. Immediately a law

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

was passed, that no spirits should be allowed to be introduced into the island, and that he who sold and he who bought the forbidden article should be punished by a fine. With remarkable justice, a certain period was allowed for stock in hand to be sold, before the law came into effect. But when it did, a general search was made, in which even the houses of the missionaries were not exempted, and all the ava (as the natives call all ardent spirits) was poured on the ground. When one reflects on the effect of intemperance on the aborigines of the two Americas, I think it will be acknowledged that every well-wisher of Tahiti owes no common debt of gratitude to the missionaries. As long as the little island of St. Helena remained under the government of the East India Company, spirits, owing to the great injury they had produced, were not allowed to be imported; but wine was supplied from the Cape of Good Hope. It is rather a striking and not very gratifying fact, that in the same year that spirits were allowed to be sold in Helena, their use was banished from Tahiti by the free will of the people.

After breakfast we proceeded on our Journey. As my object was merely to see a little of the interior scenery, we returned by another track, which descended into the main valley lower down. For some distance we wound, by a most intricate path, along the side of the mountain which formed the valley. In the less precipitous parts we passed through extensive groves of the wild banana. The Tahitians, with their naked, tattooed bodies, their heads ornamented with flowers, and seen in the dark shade of these groves, would have formed a fine picture of man inhabiting some primeval land. In our descent we followed the line of ridges; these were exceedingly narrow, and for considerable lengths steep as a ladder; but all clothed with vegetation. The extreme care necessary in poising each step rendered the walk fatiguing. I did not cease to wonder at these ravines and precipices: when viewing the country from one of the knife-edged ridges, the point of support was so small, that the effect was nearly the same as it must be from a balloon. In this descent we had occasion to use the ropes only once, at the point where we entered the main valley. We slept under the same ledge of rock where we had dined the day before: the night was fine, but from the depth and narrowness of the gorge, profoundly dark.

Before actually seeing this country, I found it difficult to understand two facts mentioned by Ellis; namely, that after the murderous battles of former times, the survivors on the conquered side retired into the mountains, where a handful of men could resist a multitude. Certainly half a dozen men, at the spot where the Tahitian reared the old tree, could easily have repulsed thousands. Secondly, that after the introduction of Christianity, there were wild men who lived in the mountains, and whose retreats were unknown to the more civilized inhabitants.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 22, Sunday: Le cinq Mai: chant sur la mort de l'Empereur Napoléon for bass, chorus, and orchestra by Hector Berlioz to words of de Beranger was performed for the initial time, at the Paris Conservatoire.

Charles Darwin recorded the condition of Tahiti in his journal:

The harbour of Papiete, where the queen resides, may be considered as the capital of the island: it is also the seat of government, and the chief resort of shipping. Captain Fitz Roy took a party there this day to hear divine service, first in the Tahitian language, and afterwards in our own. Mr. Pritchard, the leading missionary in the island, performed the service. The chapel consisted of a large airy framework of wood; and it was filled to excess by tidy, clean people, of all ages and both sexes. I was rather disappointed in the apparent degree of attention; but I believe my expectations were raised too high. At all events the appearance was quite equal to that in a country church in England. The singing of the hymns was decidedly very pleasing, but the language from the pulpit, although fluently delivered, did not sound well: a constant repetition of words, like "tata ta, mata mai," rendered it monotonous. After English service, a party returned on foot to Matavai. It was a pleasant walk, sometimes along the sea-beach and sometimes under the shade of the many beautiful trees.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 22 of 11 M / Both Meetings were silent with the exception of a Short offering by Father in the Morning - Both were seasons of some favour

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 26, Thursday: Waldo Emerson lectured in Boston. This was lecture Number 4 of the series: Chaucer.

THE LIST OF LECTURES

Texians captured a pack train bringing forage for General Martín Perfecto de Cos's cavalry.

REMEMBERING THE ALAMO

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 26th of 11th M / Our first Meeting was a very good one Father had a good pertinent & well seasoned testimony - then Hannah Dennis & then Elizabeth Wing & at the close Hannah Dennis kneeled in supplication - In the last (Moy [Monthly] Meeting)- Moses F Rogers recd his Answer to proceed in Marriage with Elizabeth Mitchell & Amos Earle was also liberated to proceed in the same way with Catherine Mitchell - Elizabeth Wing was liberated to pay a religious visit in Sandwich Quarterly Meeting
- And a committee was apptd to Visit Thos R Nichols in consequence of his request to be recd a Member of Society - other buisness refered*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 29, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 29th of 11th M 1835 / Our Morning meeting was an uncommon good one to me, & the afternoon not the worst, but did not come up in my feeling to the Morning - Father had short communications in both. - In the evening visited Francis Carr & wife

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

A baby that would one day be the empress of China was born, we have no idea where. Since we have no way to know what her name was, we will simply refer to her in this contexture as Tz'u-hsi 慈禧.⁴⁰³

Over the millennia there have been but three women to reign over the Celestial Kingdom. One of these was in control of the most populous nation on earth during the later part of Thoreau's florut:

Dynasty	Period	Person	Florut
Han	206BCE-220	The Empress Lü	195BCE-180BCE
T'ang	618-907	The Empress Wu Hou	660-705
Ch'ing 清	1644-1911	The Empress Dowager Tz'u-hsi 慈禧	1861-1908

Photography had yet to be invented and she didn't yet look like this:

慈禧

403. She is called by this name, and the other empress dowager is called Tz'u-an, literally “Old East” and “Old West,” simply due to confusion over naming systems for females, and because these two influential ladies had their respective apartments in the east and west wings of the palace. She is sometimes termed Lady “Yehenara” but this name designates not her but her entire clan of origin. A more formal and up-to-date naming system would differentiate the two ladies as Ci Xi or “Motherly Auspiciousness” and Ci An or “Motherly Peace.”

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

December 3, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 3rd of 12th M 1835 / This day at our Meeting house in Newport Were married Amos Earl of Swansey to Catherine Mitchell daughter of John Mitchell Father Rodman bore a short testimony and the Meeting was a solid favoured one –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 6, Sunday: David Henry Thoreau finished the second term of his junior year and withdrew briefly from Harvard College in Cambridge in order to teach school in Canton, Massachusetts while residing with the Unitarian Reverend Orestes Augustus Brownson, with whom he was to study German. (He would be out of college for some three months but the only time we can account for is the six weeks he spent with the Reverend Brownson.)

THOREAU RESIDENCES

Some have attempted to allege that Thoreau's encounter with the Reverend Orestes Augustus Brownson during his college years "transformed" David Henry Thoreau – that when he returned from the minister's house in Canton, and the study of the German language, to his Cambridge dorm room, he was an entirely different young man. In evaluating that account of it, we can take into consideration that in Thoreau's personal library was a copy of the Reverend's first book, NEW VIEWS... (undoubtedly a gift of the Reverend – but we have no indication whatever that Thoreau ever so much as glanced at it), and that in the Reverend's personal library was a copy of Thoreau's A WEEK... (inscribed as a gift from its author – but we know for sure that the Reverend did not ever bother to read it all the way through).

I am unable to come across any evidence whatever, that the writings or the example of the Reverend Brownson ever had the slightest impact on Thoreau's ideas or upon Thoreau's life. The most I have been able to infer is that Thoreau benefitted slightly, academically, from being able to have conversations in the German language.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 6 of 12 M / Both meetings were solid quiet seasons Father had short service. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 10, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 10th of 12th M / Elisha F Rogers And Elizabeth Mitchell daughter of Jethro F Mitchell were married in our Meeting House
-the gathering was much larger than last 5th day, & quite as still & quiet but I did not think there was as much of solid*

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

*weight as was felt a week ago - short testimonies were delivered by Father & Hannah Dennis
This Afternoon I wrote to my dear friend Thos Thompson of Liverpool. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

The Battle of B  xar came to an end as the Texians fought their way into San Antonio de B  xar and General Mart  n Perfecto de Cos surrendered his Centralist Mexican army.

REMEMBERING THE ALAMO

Until January 24, 1836, US Marines would be protecting American interests in Callao and Lima, Peru during an attempted revolution.

US MILITARY INTERVENTIONS

Our Perennial Quest to Do Harm So Good Will Come

Extermination of the Pequot Tribe	1634-1637
��King Phillip's�� Race War	1675-1676
The War of 1812	1812-1815
The Revolution of the Texians	1835-1836
War on Mejico	1846-1848
The War for the Union	1862-1865
War to End War	1916-1919
Stopping Hitler	1940-1945
The Korean Police Action	1950-1953
Helping South Vietnam be Free	1959-1975
Cuban Missile Crisis	1962

December 13, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 13th of 12 M / Good silent Meetings - my mind favoured with quiet. -
Joseph Cozzins was taken in a Fit Yesterday & lays very low today*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

December 15, Tuesday: Vincenzo Lavigna certified that Giuseppe Verdi had successfully completed lessons in counterpoint with him in Milan, and was therefore employable as a maestro di cappella.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 15 of 12 M 1835 / Attended the Funeral of Joseph Cozzens who died on 1st day [Sunday] the 13th inst about half past 7 OC in the evening - The funeral was a silent solid & very quiet opportunity & attended with a feeling of peace that was comfortable - Joseph was the Grandson of Old John Casey a former Minister in good standing in this Town & I believe was the only surviving grandchild of Joseph Casey & was the only attender of Friends Meeting of his family. - In the early part of his life he was disowned for Marrying out of the order of Society & much of his life was not marked with that Sobriety which was desirable, but was always a diligent attender of Friends Meeting on 1st day [Sunday] but for the last 12 or 15 Years of his life has been a very steady attender of Meetings in the Middle of the Week as well as on 1st days & has evinced a seriousness of mind & an attachment to Society which would afford the hope that his peace was made, & that he is at rest thro' the Mercy & goodness of Christ our Redeemer & intercesor with the father - He was Aged 83 Years

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

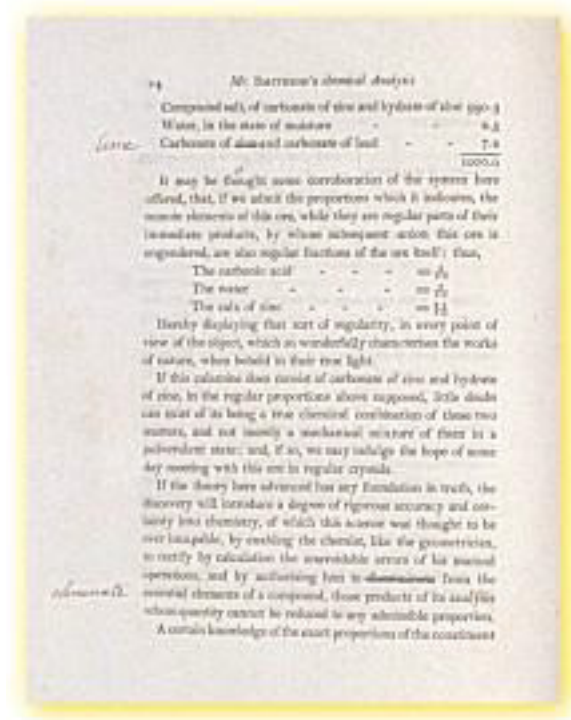

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

December 17, Thursday: President Andrew Jackson inaugurated a decade of angry tugging in the federal Senate over what to do about the James Smithson bequest which would eventually become the "Smithsonian Institution."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 17th of 12th M 1835 / Attended Meeting which was silent but a pretty good one

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 20, Sunday: Native Americans in Georgia were forced by the white government (because gold has been discovered on their land) to depart from their ancestral homeland, to a locale on the far side of the Mississippi River.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 20th of 12th M 1835 / Both our Meetings were Silent the Morning was pretty well attended considering the walking.- The Afternoon small but solid & quiet Aunt Stanton who has for a long time manifested signs of decaying powers of mind has of late grown much worse & is evidently now very much deranged & I fear in permanent distraction

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 23, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 23 of 12 M 1835 / What poor frail & forlorn creatures

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

we are when deprived of reason – I have just returned from Aunt Stanton's & assisted in doing what I could for her help – but she is entirely deranged & I fear will never be any better. – The prayer of my heart is Oh Lord preserve us, for without thy holy help we are poor miserable blind & helpless

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 24, Thursday: Waldo Emerson lectured in Boston. This was lecture Number 7 of the series, on Lord Bacon.

An opinion issued by the Committee on Finance was to the effect that the annuity promised to Gioachino Rossini by King Charles X and withheld by the new regime could now be afforded by the French government. The Ministry of Finance decided to drop its case against Rossini, and disburse the annuity retroactive to July 1st, 1830 — on the basis of this decision the composer was now set for life.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 24th of 12 M / At meeting Father had a Short testimony to bear, & it was a good solid Meeting In the Preparative there was no buisness excepting a request for a Certificate & the representatives to appoint

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

December 27, Sunday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert sailed out of the Golden Gate and turned south toward the bay of Monterey.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, December 27th. We had now finished all our business at this port, and it being Sunday, we unmoored ship and got under weigh, firing a salute to the Russian brig, and another to the Presidio, which were both answered. The commandant of the Presidio, Don Gaudaloupe Villego, a young man, and the most popular, among the Americans and English, of any man in California, was on board when we got under weigh. He spoke English very well, and was suspected of being favorably inclined to foreigners.

We sailed down this magnificent bay with a light wind, the tide, which was running out, carrying us at the rate of four or five knots. It was a fine day; the first of entire sunshine we had had for more than a month. We passed directly under the high cliff on which the Presidio is built, and stood into the middle of the bay, from whence we could see small bays, making up into the interior, on every side; large and beautifully-wooded islands; and the mouths of several small rivers. If California ever becomes a prosperous country, this bay will be the centre of its prosperity. The abundance of wood and water, the extreme fertility of its shores, the excellence of its climate, which is as near to being perfect as any in the world, and its facilities for navigation, affording the best anchoring-grounds in the whole western coast of America, all fit it for a place of great importance; and, indeed, it has attracted much attention, for the settlement of "Yerba Buena," where we lay at anchor, made chiefly by Americans and English, and which bids fair to become the most important trading place on the coast, at this time began to supply traders, Russian ships, and whalers, with their stores of wheat and frijoles.

The tide leaving us, we came to anchor near the mouth of the bay, under a high and beautifully sloping hill, upon which herds of hundreds and hundreds of red deer, and the stag, with his high branching antlers, were bounding about, looking at us for a moment, and then starting off, affrighted at the noises which we made for the purpose of seeing the variety of their beautiful attitudes and motions.

At midnight, the tide having turned, we hove up our anchor and stood out of the bay, with a fine starry heaven above us,— the first we had seen for weeks and weeks.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 27th of 12 M / Tho' our Meetings were solid & quiet, it did not seem to me that life rose as I have sometimes felt it — Father had short testimonies in both. — Aunt Stanton remains deranged & in a very trying State to herself & others — Rote this eveng to Benj Fry.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 30, Wednesday: The HMS Beagle and Charles Darwin sailed from New Zealand toward Sydney, Australia.

At Milan's Teatro alla Scala, the original version of Maria Stuarda, a tragedia lirica by Gaetano Donizetti to words of Bardari after Schiller, was performed for the initial time. Maria Felicita Malibran performed as lead soprano despite being noticeably ill.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

—th day 30th of 12th M / This day I complete my 54th Year

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

While I am sensible that my glass in running out - that Youthfulness has departed, & that my whole man begins to exhibit a decaying & venerable aspect - I am favour'd with a concern to so live, as that Age may be honourable & peaceful, & as I have often expressed to others "Grow old with a good grace" - How much have I had to be thankful for, & tho' portions of bitterness have been my lot, yet in truth I have had much, which calls forth the tribute of thanksgiving & praise - Never in the abundance, but as yet, always enough to satisfy present necessary wants. - My heart is often fraught with gratitude for the many favours I have recd & Oh that I may ever feel so & ascribe - not unto me, not unto me, but to thy goodness & mercy, O Lord, are all my blessings

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 31, Thursday: According to the Caledonian Mercury of Edinburgh, Scotland, the public tranquility had been completely restored at a port on the coast of Spain - the shops being open, there being music in the streets, a new governor having been installed - the result was a state of general confidence. The British troops had generally departed but, as a precaution, because it is better to be safe than to be sorry, had left behind "seventy artillerymen and two subalterns, under Captain [John] Thoreau, with a 24-pound howitzer, and two long 32-pounders." - Just in case a whiff of the ol' grapeshot might still upon occasion be what would be recommended. This is what warriors are for, to create peace! Congratulations, Sir! - Christmas has come and gone and the British army has brought the gift of peace to the entire Iberian peninsula but now you can't go home. Not yet.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 12th M 1835 / Rose early this Morn'g & got into the Stage & rode to Portsmouth to attend the Moy [Monthly] Meeting - The first was a good solid Meeting - a sound lively & pertinent from Mary Hicks - In the last it seemed to me the business was all resulted in Wisdom - After meeting went with Francis Carr to Shadrach Chases & dined - not having been to Shadracks in some years a renewal of intimacy & good feeling was very pleasant - after dinner rode home with Francis he being alone in a Chaise True it is that times & seasons are not at our command - yesterday I was very desirous to feel the arising of life in my heart it being my birth day but was unable to get at it & today I have been favoured & am thankful for it Here closes the Year & this day commences another of my Life-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Waldo Emerson lectured in Boston. This was lecture Number 8 of the series, on Ben Jonson, Robert Herrick, Herbert, and Sir Henry Wotton.

On this day there was yet another episode in yet another of America's race wars:

Black Native Warriors? Where Had That Come From?
December 1835	The destruction of sugar plantations along the St. Johns River south of St. Augustine, Florida
December 18, 1835	The battle of Black Point, west of the town of Micanopy in the Florida Territory
December 28, 1835	Massacre of Major Francis Dade's troops heading for Fort King
December 31, 1835	The 1st battle on the Withlacoochee River of Florida (Clinch's Battle)
February-March 1836	The siege of Camp Izard
October 12, 1836	The 2d battle on the Withlacoochee River of Florida (Call's Battle)
November 21, 1836	An action in the Wahoo Swamp on the Withlacoochee River
January 27, 1837	The battle of Hatcheelustee Creek at the head of the Kissimmee River
December 25, 1837	The battle of Lake Okeechobee
January 15, 1838	An action at Jupiter Inlet, on the east coast of Florida
January 24, 1838	The battle of Lockahatchee

SEMINOLES

WHITE ON RED, RED ON WHITE

SWAMP

“NARRATIVE HISTORY” IS FABULATION, HISTORY IS CHRONOLOGY

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1836

➡ January 1, Friday: During this general period Halley's Comet was in the constellation of Scorpius. As the comet would recede in the heavens, Sir John Herschel from his South Africa location would be well positioned to observe and sketch an entirely unexpected and most blazing amazing display. As the comet fled, Frederick Douglass made a new years resolution:

SKY EVENT

“By this date next year
I will be a free man!”

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal, mentioning that he was in the process of writing to Friend Moses Brown:

6th day 1st of 1st M 1836 / It has been a pleasant day as to the outward, & norm [?] in the inward to render it otherwise -called in the Afternoon to visit my cousins Henry & Thos Gould in their respective Mills - & this evening wrote a letter to my dear

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Ancient friend Moses Brown.⁴⁰⁴

January 3, Sunday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the crew of the Alert went on liberty in Monterey.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

On Sunday morning, as soon as the decks were washed, and we had got breakfast, those who had obtained liberty began to clean themselves, as it is called, to go ashore. A bucket of fresh water apiece, a cake of soap, a large coarse towel, and we went to work scrubbing one another, on the forecastle. Having gone through this, the next thing was to get into the head,— one on each side— with a bucket apiece, and duck one another, by drawing up water and heaving over each other, while we were stripped to a pair of trowsers. Then came the rigging-up. The usual outfit of pumps, white stockings, loose white duck trowsers, blue jackets, clean checked shirts, black kerchiefs, hats well varnished, with a fathom of black ribbon over the left eye, a silk handkerchief flying from the outside jacket pocket, and four or five dollars tied up in the back of the neckerchief, and we were “all right.” One of the quarter-boats pulled us ashore, and we steamed up to the town. I tried to find the church, in order to see the worship, but was told that there was no service, except a mass early in the morning; so we went about the town, visiting the Americans and English, and the natives whom we had know when we were here before. Toward noon we procured horses, and rode out to the Carmel mission, which is about a league from the town, where from the town, where we got something in the way of a dinner— beef, eggs, frijoles, tortillas, and some middling wine— from the mayordomo, who, of course, refused to make any charge, as it was the Lord’s gift, yet received our present, as a gratuity, with a low bow, a touch of the hat, and “Dios se lo pague!”

After this repast, we had a fine run, scouring the whole country on our fleet horses, and came into town soon after sundown. Here we found our companions who had refused to go to ride with us, thinking that a sailor has no more business with a horse than a fish has with a balloon. They were moored, stem and stern, in a grog-shop, making a great noise, with a crowd of Indians and hungry half-breeds about them, and with a fair prospect of being stripped and dirked, or left to pass the night in the calabozo. With a great deal of trouble, we managed to get them down to the boats, though not without many angry looks and interferences from the Spaniards, who had marked them out for their prey. The Diana’s crews—a set of worthless outcasts, who had been picked up at the islands from the refuse of whale-ships,— were all as drunk as beasts, and had a set-to, on the beach, with their captain, who was in no better state than themselves. They swore they would not go aboard, and went back to the town, were stripped and beaten, and lodged in the calabozo, until the next day, when the captain bought them out. Our forecastle, as usual after a liberty-day, was a scene of tumult all night long, from the drunken ones. They had just got to sleep toward morning, when they were turned up with the rest, and kept at work all day in the water, carrying hides, their heads aching so that they could hardly stand. This is sailor’s pleasure.

In Kassel, Louis Spohr got married with Marianne Pfeiffer, sister of his late friend Carl Pfeiffer (this was his 2d marriage, her 1st — she was 28).

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 3rd of 1st M / Our meeting this morning was a precious one to me — in the Afternoon not so lively, but solid & quiet -

404. Stephen Wanton Gould Diary, 1833-1838: The Gould family papers are stored under control number 2033 at the Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections of Cornell University Library, Box 9 Folder 15: January 1, 1833-August 28, 1836; Box 9 Folder 16: September 1, 1836-September 20, 1838; also on microfilm, see Series 7

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

THE REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR DANA, CONCLUDED:

Nothing worthy of remark happened while we were here, except a little boxing-match on board our own ship, which gave us something to talk about. A broad-backed, big-headed Cape Cod boy, about sixteen years old, had been playing the bully, for the whole voyage, over a slender, delicate-looking boy, from one of the Boston schools, and over whom he had much the advantage, in strength, age, and experience in the ship's duty, for this was the first time the Boston boy had been on salt water. The latter, however, had "picked up his crumbs," was learning his duty, and getting strength and confidence daily; and began to assert his rights against his oppressor. Still, the other was his master, and, by his superior strength, always tackled with him and threw him down. One afternoon, before we were turned-to, these boys got into a violent squabble in the between-decks, when George (the Boston boy) said he would fight Nat, if he could have fair play. The chief mate heard the noise, dove down the hatchway, hauled them both up on deck, and told them to shake hands and have no more trouble for the voyage, or else they should fight till one gave in for beaten. Finding neither willing to make an offer for reconciliation, he called all hands up, (for the captain was ashore, and he could do as he chose aboard,) ranged the crew in the waist, marked a line on the deck, brought the two boys up to it, making them "toe the mark;" then made the bight of a rope fast to a belaying pin, and stretched it across the deck, bringing it just above their waists. "No striking below the rope!" And there they stood, one on each side of it, face to face, and went at it like two game-cocks. The Cape Cod boy, Nat, put in his double-fisters, starting the blood, and bringing the black and blue spots all over the face and arms of the other, whom we expected to see give in every moment: but the more he was hurt, the better he fought. Time after time he was knocked nearly down, but up he came again and faced the mark, as bold as a lion, again to take the heavy blows, which sounded so as to make one's heart turn with pity for him. At length he came up to the mark for the last time, his shirt torn from his body, his face covered with blood and bruises, and his eyes flashing fire, and swore he would stand there until one or the other was killed, and set-to like a young fury. "Hurrah in the bow!" said the men, cheering him on. "Well crowed!" "Never say die, while there's a shot in the locker!" Nat tried to close with him, knowing his advantage, but the mate stopped that, saying there should be fair play, and no fingering. Nat then came up to the mark, but looked white about the mouth, and his blows were not given with half the spirit of his first. He was evidently cowed. He had always been his master, and had nothing to gain, and everything to lose; while the other fought for honor and freedom, under a sense of wrong. It would not do. It was soon over. Nat gave in; not so much beaten, as cowed and mortified; and never afterwards tried to act the bully on board. We took George forward, washed him in the deck-tub, complimented his pluck, and from this time he became somebody on board, having fought himself into notice. Mr. Brown's plan had a good effect, for there was no more quarrelling among the boys for the rest of the voyage.

*So far the Year has begun well with me & I feel thankful & can in sincerity & humility say Oh Lord preserve me to the end, with out thy Grace afforded we are indeed miserable creatiures
My Wife watched last night with Aunt Stanton - She is in a wretched State of Mind & but little hopes remain of her being any better.-*

January 5, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 5th of 1 M / I have this Morning pulled out my large front tooth next the eye tooth on the left side the one between the eye tooth & that having been gone for ten Years - this has

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

*been long loose & troublesome & becoming very sore - I resolved to take it out
I well remember the first tooth which grew in its place & with much difficulty was pulled out by Abner Taber when I was a boy, & the Jaw bone was so much injured pieces of it worked out of the gum a long time afterward. - this was taken out without difficulty - tho very large -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 7, Thursday: Waldo Emerson lectured in Boston. This was lecture Number 9 of the series: Ethical Writers.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 7th of 1st M 1836 / Our Meeting was small but favoured - Father was engaged in a short & very appropriate testimony on the subject of Watchfulness. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 8, Friday: The Reverend William Apess delivered a speech titled "Eulogy on King Philip." The speech was not well received.

Apess's innovation lies not primarily in his carefully documented exoneration of the "cursed memory" of Philip, for whom he ultimately claims the distinction of being "the greatest man that ever lived upon the American shores." Far more radically, Apess refuses the normalization of "extinction" by pointing out the ideological nature of American jurisprudence, by contending that institutionalized racism -rather than so-called natural processes- threatened the Indian, and by urging political intervention to alter the supposed destiny of indigenous peoples in America.

METACOM

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

*6th day 8th of 1st M / Awoke early this mornng with desires for preservation – Last eveng recd a letter from our friend Joshua Lynch giving some acct of the State of affairs in our Society in Ohio
Oh that we may be preserved on the right foundation. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 10, Sunday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert arrived at anchorage off Santa Barbara, California.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, January 10th. Arrived at Santa Barbara, and on the following Wednesday, slipped our cable and went to sea, on account of a south-easter. Returned to our anchorage the next day. We were the only vessel in the port. The Pilgrim had passed through the Canal and hove-to off the town, nearly six weeks before, on her passage down from Monterey, and was now at the leeward. She heard here of our safe arrival at San Francisco.

Great preparations were making on shore for the marriage of our agent, who was to marry Donna Anneta de G _____ de N _____ y C _____, youngest daughter of Don Antonio N _____, the grandee of the place, and the head of the first family in California. Our steward was ashore three days, making pastry and cake, and some of the best of our stores were sent off with him.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 10th of 1st M / Both meetings were small being a great Storm of Wind & rain, but were good meetings to me. – in the Afternoon Ann Weaver was all the Woman that attended. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

January 14, Thursday: Waldo Emerson lectured in Boston. This was the tenth and last of the “English Literature” series: Modern Aspects of Letters.

After forbidding his daughter Clara to have any contact with Robert Schumann, Friedrich Wieck carried her off to Dresden in an attempt to get her to forget about the guy.

General Sam Houston addressed his troops at Goliad and ordered Colonel Jim Bowie to return to San Antonio and blow up the Alamo.

REMEMBERING THE ALAMO

TEXAS

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

14th of 1 M 1836 / My cousin Anne Gould Died this Morning about 3 OC in the 67th Year of her Age She had been sick of a Stopage in the bowels for about 5 or 6 days & suffer'd much for the time I learn she was very quiet in her mind patient & resigned. – She was the Daughter of my Fathers first cousin Thos Gould late of Middletown & till within some years ago lived on the paternal Estate but of latter years lived in Newport & kept house in the house owned by her brother in law Henry Gould – with her Sister Mary. –

Our Meeting today was solid & quiet & Father Rodman bore a short good testimony. –

Spent Most of the Afternoon at cousin Henrys.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

In the US Senate, Daniel Webster spoke in regard to Mr. Benton's resolutions for appropriating the surplus revenue to the purpose of national defense:

It is not my purpose, Mr. President, to make any remark on the state of our affairs with France. The time for that discussion has not come, and I wait. We are in daily expectation of a communication from the President, which will give us light; and we are authorized to expect a recommendation by him of such measures as he thinks it may be necessary and proper for Congress to adopt. I do not anticipate him. In this most important and delicate business, it is the proper duty of the executive to go forward, and I, for one, do not intend either to be drawn or driven into the lead. When official information shall be before us, and when measures shall be recommended upon the proper responsibility, I shall endeavor to form the best judgment I can, and shall act according to its dictates.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

I rise, now, for another purpose. This resolution has drawn on a debate upon the general conduct of the Senate during the last session of Congress, and especially in regard to the proposed grant of the three millions to the President on the last night of the session. My main object is to tell the story of this transaction, and to exhibit the conduct of the Senate fairly to the public view. I owe this duty to the Senate. I owe it to the committee with which I am connected; and although whatever is personal to an individual is generally of too little importance to be made the subject of much remark, I hope I may be permitted to say a few words in defence of my own reputation, in reference to a matter which has been greatly misrepresented.

This vote for the three millions was proposed by the House of Representatives as an amendment to the fortification bill; and the loss of that bill, three millions and all, is the charge which has been made upon the Senate, sounded over all the land, and now again renewed. I propose to give the true history of this bill, its origin, its progress, and its loss.

Before attempting that, however, let me remark, for it is worthy to be remarked and remembered, that the business brought before the Senate last session, important and various as it was, and both public and private, was all gone through with most uncommon despatch and promptitude. No session has witnessed a more complete clearing off and finishing of the subjects before us. The communications from the other house, whether bills or whatever else, were especially attended to in a proper season, and with that ready respect which is due from one house to the other. I recollect nothing of any importance which came to us from the House of Representatives, which was neglected, overlooked, or disregarded by the Senate.

On the other hand, it was the misfortune of the Senate, and, as I think, the misfortune of the country, that, owing to the state of business in the House of Representatives towards the close of the session, several measures which had been matured in the Senate, and passed into bills, did not receive attention, so as to be either agreed to or rejected, in the other branch of the legislature. They fell, of course, by the termination of the session.

Among these measures may be mentioned the following, viz.:—

THE POST-OFFICE REFORM BILL, which passed the Senate unanimously, and of the necessity for which the whole country is certainly now most abundantly satisfied;
THE CUSTOM-HOUSE REGULATIONS BILL, which also passed nearly unanimously, after a very laborious preparation by the Committee on Commerce, and a full discussion in the Senate;

THE JUDICIARY BILL, passed here by a majority of thirty-one to five, and which has again already passed the

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Senate at this session with only a single dissenting vote;
THE BILL INDEMNIFYING CLAIMANTS FOR FRENCH SPOLIATIONS BEFORE 1800;
THE BILL REGULATING THE DEPOSIT OF THE PUBLIC MONEY IN THE DEPOSIT BANKS;
THE BILL RESPECTING THE TENURE OF CERTAIN OFFICES, AND THE POWER OF REMOVAL FROM OFFICE; which has now again been passed to be engrossed, in the Senate, by a decided majority.

All these important measures, matured and passed in the Senate in the course of the session, and many others of less importance, were sent to the House of Representatives, and we never heard any thing more from them. They there found their graves.

It is worthy of being remarked, also, that the attendance of members of the Senate was remarkably full, particularly toward the end of the session. On the last day, every Senator was in his place till very near the hour of adjournment, as the journal will show. We had no breaking up for want of a quorum; no delay, no calls of the Senate; nothing which was made necessary by the negligence or inattention of the members of this body. On the vote of the three millions of dollars, which was taken at about eight o'clock in the evening, forty-eight votes were given, every member of the Senate being in his place and answering to his name. This is an instance of punctuality, diligence, and labor, continued to the very end of an arduous session, wholly without example or parallel.

The Senate, then, Sir, must stand, in the judgment of every man, fully acquitted of all remissness, all negligence, all inattention, amidst the fatigue and exhaustion of the closing hours of Congress. Nothing passed unheeded, nothing was overlooked, nothing forgotten, and nothing slighted.

And now, Sir, I would proceed immediately to give the history of the fortification bill, if it were not necessary, as introductory to that history, and as showing the circumstances under which the Senate was called on to transact the public business, first to refer to another bill which was before us, and to the proceedings which were had upon it.

It is well known, Sir, that the annual appropriation bills always originate in the House of Representatives. This is so much a matter of course, that no one ever looks to see such a bill first brought forward in the Senate. It is also well known, Sir, that it has been usual, heretofore, to make the annual appropriations for the Military Academy at West Point in the general bill which provides for the pay and support of the army. But last year the army bill did not contain any appropriation whatever for the support of West Point. I took notice of this singular omission when the bill was before the Senate, but presumed, and indeed understood, that the House would send us a separate bill for the Military Academy. The army bill, therefore, passed; but no bill for the Academy at West Point appeared. We waited for it from day to day, and from week to

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

week, but waited in vain. At length, the time for sending bills from one house to the other, according to the joint rules of the two houses, expired, and no bill had made its appearance for the support of the Military Academy. These joint rules, as is well known, are sometimes suspended on the application of one house to the other, in favor of particular bills, whose progress has been unexpectedly delayed, but which the public interest requires to be passed. But the House of Representatives sent us no request to suspend the rules in favor of a bill for the support of the Military Academy, nor made any other proposition to save the institution from immediate dissolution. Notwithstanding all the talk about a war, and the necessity of a vote for the three millions, the Military Academy, an institution cherished so long, and at so much expense, was on the very point of being entirely broken up.

Now it so happened, Sir, that at this time there was another appropriation bill which had come from the House of Representatives, and was before the Committee on Finance here. This bill was entitled "An Act making appropriations for the civil and diplomatic expenses of the government for the year 1835."

In this state of things, several members of the House of Representatives applied to the committee, and besought us to save the Military Academy by annexing the necessary appropriations for its support to the bill for civil and diplomatic service. We spoke to them, in reply, of the unfitness, the irregularity, the incongruity, of this forced union of such dissimilar subjects; but they told us it was a case of absolute necessity, and that, without resorting to this mode, the appropriation could not get through. We acquiesced, Sir, in these suggestions. We went out of our way. We agreed to do an extraordinary and an irregular thing, in order to save the public business from miscarriage. By direction of the committee, I moved the Senate to add an appropriation for the Military Academy to the bill for defraying civil and diplomatic expenses. The bill was so amended; and in this form the appropriation was finally made.

But this was not all. This bill for the civil and diplomatic service, being thus amended by tacking the Military Academy to it, was sent back by us to the House of Representatives, where its length of tail was to be still much further increased. That house had before it several subjects for provision, and for appropriation, upon which it had not passed any bill before the time for passing bills to be sent to the Senate had elapsed. I was anxious that these things should, in some way, be provided for; and when the diplomatic bill came back, drawing the Military Academy after it, it was thought prudent to attach to it several of these other provisions. There were propositions to pave the streets in the city of Washington, to repair the Capitol, and various other things, which it was necessary to provide for; and they, therefore, were put into the same bill, by way of amendment to an amendment; that is to say, Mr.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

President, we had been prevailed on to amend their bill for defraying the salary of our ministers abroad, by adding an appropriation for the Military Academy, and they proposed to amend this our amendment by adding matter as germane to it as it was itself to the original bill. There was also the President's gardener. His salary was unprovided for; and there was no way of remedying this important omission, but by giving him place in the diplomatic service bill, among chargés d'affaires, envoys extraordinary, and ministers plenipotentiary. In and among these ranks, therefore, he was formally introduced by the amendment of the House, and there he now stands, as you will readily see by turning to the law.

Sir, I have not the pleasure to know this useful person; but should I see him, some morning, overlooking the workmen in the lawns, walks, copses, and parterres which adorn the grounds around the President's residence, considering the company into which we have introduced him, I should expect to see, at least, a small diplomatic button on his working jacket.

When these amendments came from the House, and were read at our table, though they caused a smile, they were yet adopted, and the law passed, almost with the rapidity of a comet, and with something like the same length of tail.

Now, Sir, not one of these irregularities or incongruities, no part of this jumbling together of distinct and different subjects, was in the slightest degree occasioned by any thing done, or omitted to be done, on the part of the Senate. Their proceedings were all regular; their decision was prompt, their despatch of the public business correct and reasonable. There was nothing of disorganization, nothing of procrastination, nothing evincive of a temper to embarrass or obstruct the public business. If the history which I have now truly given shows that one thing was amended by another, which had no sort of connection with it; that unusual expedients were resorted to; and that the laws, instead of arrangement and symmetry, exhibit anomaly, confusion, and the most grotesque associations, it is nevertheless true, that no part of all this was made necessary by us. We deviated from the accustomed modes of legislation only when we were supplicated to do so, in order to supply bald and glaring deficiencies in measures which were before us.

But now, Mr. President, let me come to the fortification bill, the lost bill, which not only now, but on a graver occasion, has been lamented like the lost Pleiad.

This bill, Sir, came from the House of Representatives to the Senate in the usual way, and was referred to the Committee on Finance. Its appropriations were not large. Indeed, they appeared to the committee to be quite too small. It struck a majority of the committee at once, that there were several fortifications on the coast, either not provided for at all, or not adequately provided for, by this bill. The whole amount of its appropriations was four hundred or four hundred and thirty thousand dollars. It contained no grant of three millions, and if the Senate had passed it the very day it came from the House,

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

not only would there have been no appropriation of the three millions, but, Sir, none of these other sums which the Senate did insert in the bill. Others besides ourselves saw the deficiencies of this bill. We had communications with and from the departments, and we inserted in the bill every thing which any department recommended to us. We took care to be sure that nothing else was coming. And we then reported the bill to the Senate with our proposed amendments. Among these amendments, there was a sum of $75,000 for Castle Island in Boston harbor, $100,000 for defences in Maryland, and so forth. These amendments were agreed to by the Senate, and one or two others added, on the motion of members; and the bill, as thus amended, was returned to the House.

And now, Sir, it becomes important to ask, When was this bill, thus amended, returned to the House of Representatives? Was it unduly detained here, so that the House was obliged afterwards to act upon it suddenly? This question is material to be asked, and material to be answered, too, and the journal does satisfactorily answer it; for it appears by the journal that the bill was returned to the House of Representatives on Tuesday, the 24th of February, one whole week before the close of the session. And from Tuesday, the 24th of February, to Tuesday, the 3d day of March, we heard not one word from this bill. Tuesday, the 3d day of March, was, of course, the last day of the session. We assembled here at ten or eleven o'clock in the morning of that day, and sat until three in the afternoon, and still we were not informed whether the House had finally passed the bill. As it was an important matter, and belonged to that part of the public business which usually receives particular attention from the Committee on Finance, I bore the subject in my mind, and felt some solicitude about it, seeing that the session was drawing so near to a close. I took it for granted, however, as I had not heard any thing to the contrary, that the amendments of the Senate would not be objected to, and that, when a convenient time should arrive for taking up the bill in the House, it would be passed at once into a law, and we should hear no more about it. Not the slightest intimation was given, either that the executive wished for any larger appropriation, or that it was intended in the House to insert such larger appropriation. Not a syllable escaped from anybody, and came to our knowledge, that any further alteration whatever was intended in the bill.

At three o'clock in the afternoon of the 3d of March, the Senate took its recess, as is usual in that period of the session, until five o'clock. At five o'clock we again assembled, and proceeded with the business of the Senate until eight o'clock in the evening; and at eight o'clock in the evening, and not before, the clerk of the House appeared at our door, and announced that the House of Representatives had disagreed to one of the Senate's amendments, agreed to others; and to two of those amendments, namely, the fourth and fifth, it had agreed, with an amendment of its own.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Now, Sir, these fourth and fifth amendments of ours were, one, a vote of $75,000 for Castle Island in Boston harbor, and the other, a vote of $100,000 for certain defences in Maryland. And what, Sir, was the addition which the House of Representatives proposed to make, by way of "amendment" to a vote of $75,000 for repairing the works in Boston harbor? Here, Sir, it is:-

"And be it further enacted, That the sum of three millions of dollars be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended, in whole or in part, under the direction of the President of the United States, for the military and naval service, including fortifications and ordnance, and the increase of the navy: Provided, such expenditures shall be rendered necessary for the defence of the country prior to the next meeting of Congress."

This proposition, Sir, was thus unexpectedly and suddenly put to us, at eight o'clock in the evening of the last day of the session. Unusual, unprecedented, extraordinary, as it obviously is, on the face of it, the manner of presenting it was still more extraordinary. The President had asked for no such grant of money; no department had recommended it; no estimate had suggested it; no reason whatever was given for it. No emergency had happened, and nothing new had occurred; every thing known to the administration, at that hour, respecting our foreign relations, had certainly been known to it for days and weeks. With what propriety, then, could the Senate be called on to sanction a proceeding so entirely irregular and anomalous? Sir, I recollect the occurrences of the moment very well, and I remember the impression which this vote of the House seemed to make all round the Senate. We had just come out of executive session; the doors were but just opened; and I hardly remember that there was a single spectator in the hall or the galleries. I had been at the clerk's table, and had not reached my seat, when the message was read. All the Senators were in the chamber. I heard the message, certainly with great surprise and astonishment; and I immediately moved the Senate to disagree to this vote of the House. My relation to the subject, in consequence of my connection with the Committee on Finance, made it my duty to propose some course, and I had not a moment's doubt or hesitation what that course ought to be. I took upon myself, then, Sir, the responsibility of moving that the Senate should disagree to this vote, and I now acknowledge that responsibility. It might be presumptuous to say that I took a leading part, but I certainly took an early part, a decided part, and an earnest part, in rejecting this broad grant of three millions of dollars, without limitation of purpose or specification of object, called for by no recommendation, founded on no estimate, made necessary by no state of things which was known to us. Certainly, Sir, I took a part in its rejection; and I stand here, in my place in the Senate, to-day,

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

ready to defend the part so taken by me; or, rather, Sir, I disclaim all defence, and all occasion of defence, and I assert it as meritorious to have been among those who arrested, at the earliest moment, this extraordinary departure from all settled usage, and, as I think, from plain constitutional injunction,—this indefinite voting of a vast sum of money to mere executive discretion, without limit assigned, without object specified, without reason given, and without the least control.

Sir, I am told, that, in opposing this grant, I spoke with warmth, and I suppose I may have done so. If I did, it was a warmth springing from as honest a conviction of duty as ever influenced a public man. It was spontaneous, unaffected, sincere. There had been among us, Sir, no consultation, no concert. There could have been none. Between the reading of the message and my motion to disagree, there was not time enough for any two members of the Senate to exchange five words on the subject. The proposition was sudden and perfectly unexpected. I resisted it, as irregular, as dangerous in itself, and dangerous in its precedent; as wholly unnecessary, and as violating the plain intention, if not the express words, of the Constitution. Before the Senate, then, I avowed, and before the country I now avow, my part in this opposition. Whatsoever is to fall on those who sanctioned it, of that let me have my full share.

The Senate, Sir, rejected this grant by a vote of TWENTY-NINE against nineteen. Those twenty-nine names are on the journal; and whensoever the EXPUNGING process may commence, or how far soever it may be carried, I pray it, in mercy, not to erase mine from that record. I beseech it, in its sparing goodness, to leave me that proof of attachment to duty and to principle. It may draw around it, over it, or through it, black lines, or red lines, or any lines; it may mark it in any way which either the most prostrate and fantastical spirit of man-worship, or the most ingenious and elaborate study of self-degradation, may devise, if only it will leave it so that those who inherit my blood, or who may hereafter care for my reputation, shall be able to behold it where it now stands.

The House, Sir, insisted on this amendment. The Senate adhered to its disagreement; the House asked a conference, to which request the Senate immediately acceded. The committee of conference met, and in a very short time came to an agreement. They agreed to recommend to their respective houses, as a substitute for the vote proposed by the House, the following:—

“As an additional appropriation for arming the fortifications of the United States, three hundred thousand dollars.”

“As an additional appropriation for the repairs and equipment of ships of war of the United States, five hundred thousand dollars.”

I immediately reported this agreement of the committee of conference to the Senate; but, inasmuch as the bill was in the House of Representatives, the Senate could not act further on the matter until the House should first have considered the report of the committee, decided thereon, and sent us the bill.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

I did not myself take any note of the particular hour of this part of the transaction. The honorable member from Virginia [Mr. Leigh] says he looked at his watch at the time, and he knows that I had come from the conference, and was in my seat, at a quarter past eleven. I have no reason to think that he is under any mistake on this particular. He says it so happened that he had occasion to take notice of the hour, and well remembers it. It could not well have been later than this, as any one will be satisfied who will look at our journals, public and executive, and see what a mass of business was despatched after I came from the committee, and before the adjournment of the Senate. Having made the report, Sir, I had no doubt that both houses would concur in the result of the conference, and looked every moment for the officer of the House bringing the bill. He did not come, however, and I pretty soon learned that there was doubt whether the committee on the part of the House would report to the House the agreement of the conferees. At first, I did not at all credit this; but was confirmed by one communication after another, until I was obliged to think it true. Seeing that the bill was thus in danger of being lost, and intending at any rate that no blame should justly attach to the Senate, I immediately moved the following resolution:—

Resolved, That a message be sent to the honorable the House of Representatives, respectfully to remind the House of the report of the committee of conference appointed on the disagreeing votes of the two houses on the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate to the bill respecting the fortifications of the United States."

You recollect this resolution, Sir, having, as I well remember, taken some part on the occasion. [Mr. King, of Alabama, was in the chair.]

This resolution was promptly passed; the secretary carried it to the House, and delivered it. What was done in the House on the receipt of this message now appears from the printed journal. I have no wish to comment on the proceedings there recorded; all may read them, and each be able to form his own opinion. Suffice it to say, that the House of Representatives, having then possession of the bill, chose to retain that possession, and never acted on the report of the committee of conference. The bill, therefore, was lost. It was lost in the House of Representatives. It died there, and there its remains are to be found. No opportunity was given to the members of the House to decide whether they would agree to the report of the committee or not. From a quarter past eleven, when the report was agreed to, until two or three o'clock in the morning, the House remained in session. If at any time there was not a quorum of members present, the attendance of a quorum, we are to presume, might have been commanded, as there was undoubtedly a great majority of members still in the city.

But, Sir, there is one other transaction of the evening which I now feel bound to state, because I think it quite important on several accounts, that it should be known.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

A nomination was pending before the Senate for a judge of the Supreme Court. In the course of the sitting, that nomination was called up, and, on motion, was indefinitely postponed. In other words, it was rejected; for an indefinite postponement is a rejection. The office, of course, remained vacant, and the nomination of another person to fill it became necessary. The President of the United States was then in the Capitol, as is usual on the evening of the last day of the session, in the chamber assigned to him, and with the heads of departments around him. When nominations are rejected under these circumstances, it has been usual for the President immediately to transmit a new nomination to the Senate; otherwise the office must remain vacant till the next session, as the vacancy in such case has not happened in the recess of Congress. The vote of the Senate, indefinitely postponing this nomination, was carried to the President's room by the secretary of the Senate. The President told the secretary that it was more than an hour past twelve o'clock, and that he could receive no further communications from the Senate, and immediately after, as I have understood, left the Capitol. The secretary brought back the paper containing the certified copy of the vote of the Senate, and indorsed thereon the substance of the President's answer, and also added, that, according to his own watch, it was quarter past one o'clock.

There are two views, Sir, in which this occurrence may well deserve to be noticed. One is as to the connection which it may perhaps have had with the loss of the fortification bill; the other is as to its general importance, as introducing a new rule, or a new practice, respecting the intercourse between the President and the two houses of Congress on the last day of the session.

On the first point, I shall only observe that the fact of the President's having declined to receive this communication from the Senate, and of his having left the Capitol, was immediately known in the House of Representatives. It was quite obvious, that, if he could not receive a communication from the Senate, neither could he receive a bill from the House of Representatives for his signature. It was equally obvious, that, if, under these circumstances, the House of Representatives should agree to the report of the committee of conference, so that the bill should pass, it must, nevertheless, fail to become a law for want of the President's signature; and that, in that case, the blame of losing the bill, on whomsoever else it might fall, could not be laid upon the Senate.

On the more general point, I must say, Sir, that this decision of the President, not to hold communication with the houses of Congress after twelve o'clock at night, on the 3d of March, is quite new. No such objection has ever been made before by any President. No one of them has ever declined communicating with either house at any time during the continuance of its session on that day. All Presidents heretofore have left with the houses themselves to fix their hour of adjournment, and to bring their

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

session for the day to a close, whenever they saw fit. It is notorious, in point of fact, that nothing is more common than for both houses to sit later than twelve o'clock, for the purpose of completing measures which are in the last stages of their progress. Amendments are proposed and agreed to, bills passed, enrolled bills signed by the presiding officers, and other important legislative acts performed, often at two or three o'clock in the morning. All this is very well known to gentlemen who have been for any considerable time members of Congress. And all Presidents have signed bills, and have also made nominations to the Senate, without objection as to time, whenever bills have been presented for signature, or whenever it became necessary to make nominations to the Senate, at any time during the session of the respective houses on that day. And all this, Sir, I suppose to be perfectly right, correct, and legal. There is no clause of the Constitution, nor is there any law, which declares that the term of office of members of the House of Representatives shall expire at twelve o'clock at night on the 3d of March. They are to hold for two years, but the precise hour for the commencement of that term of two years is nowhere fixed by constitutional or legal provision. It has been established by usage and by inference, and very properly established, that, since the first Congress commenced its existence on the first Wednesday in March, 1789, which happened to be the fourth day of the month, therefore the 4th of March is the day of the commencement of each successive term; but no hour is fixed by law or practice. The true rule is, as I think, most undoubtedly, that the session held on the last day constitutes the last day for all legislative and legal purposes. While the session begun on that day continues, the day itself continues, according to the established practice both of legislative and judicial bodies. This could not well be otherwise. If the precise moment of actual time were to settle such a matter, it would be material to ask, Who shall settle the time? Shall it be done by public authority, or shall every man observe the tick of his own watch? If absolute time is to furnish a precise rule, the excess of a minute, it is obvious, would be as fatal as the excess of an hour. Sir, no bodies, judicial or legislative, have ever been so hypercritical, so astute to no purpose, so much more nice than wise, as to govern themselves by any such ideas. The session for the day, at whatever hour it commences, or at whatever hour it breaks up, is the legislative day. Every thing has reference to the commencement of that diurnal session. For instance, this is the 14th day of January; we assembled here to-day at twelve o'clock; our journal is dated January 14th, and if we should remain here until five o'clock to-morrow morning (and the Senate has sometimes sat so late), our proceedings would still bear date of the 14th of January; they would be so stated upon the journal, and the journal is a record, and is a conclusive record, so far as respects the proceedings of the body. It is so in judicial proceedings. If a man were on trial for his life, at a late hour on the last day allowed by law for the holding of the court, and the jury should acquit him, but happened to remain so long in deliberation that they did not bring in their verdict till after twelve o'clock, is it all to be held for naught, and the man to be tried over again? Are all verdicts, judgments, and orders of courts null and void, if made after midnight on the day which the law prescribes as the last day? It would be easy to show by authority, if authority could be wanted for a thing the reason of which is so clear, that the day lasts while the daily session lasts. When the court or the legislative body adjourns for that day, the day is over, and not before.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

I am told, indeed, Sir, that it is true that, on this same 3d day of March last, not only were other things transacted, but that the bill for the repair of the Cumberland Road, an important and much litigated measure, actually received the signature of our presiding officer after twelve o'clock, was then sent to the President, and signed by him. I do not affirm this, because I took no notice of the time, or do not remember it if I did; but I have heard the matter so stated.

I see no reason, Sir, for the introduction of this new practice; no principle on which it can be justified, no necessity for it, no propriety in it. As yet, it has been applied only to the President's intercourse with the Senate. Certainly it is equally applicable to his intercourse with both houses in legislative matters; and if it is to prevail hereafter, it is of much importance that it should be known.

The President of the United States, Sir, has alluded to this loss of the fortification bill in his message at the opening of the session, and he has alluded, also, in the same message, to the rejection of the vote of the three millions. On the first point, that is, the loss of the whole bill, and the causes of that loss, this is his language: "Much loss and inconvenience have been experienced in consequence of the failure of the bill containing the ordinary appropriations for fortifications, which passed one branch of the national legislature at the last session, but was lost in the other."

If the President intended to say that the bill, having originated in the House of Representatives, passed the Senate, and was yet afterwards lost in the House of Representatives, he was entirely correct. But he has been wholly misinformed, if he intended to state that the bill, having passed the House, was lost in the Senate. As I have already stated, the bill was lost in the House of Representatives. It drew its last breath there. That House never let go its hold on it after the report of the committee of conference. But it held it, it retained it, and of course it died in its possession when the House adjourned. It is to be regretted that the President should have been misinformed in a matter of this kind, when the slightest reference to the journals of the two houses would have exhibited the correct history of the transaction.

I recur again, Mr. President, to the proposed grant of the three

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

millions, for the purpose of stating somewhat more distinctly the true grounds of objection to that grant.

These grounds of objection were two; the first was, that no such appropriation had been recommended by the President, or any of the departments. And what made this ground the stronger was, that the proposed grant was defended, so far as it was defended at all, upon an alleged necessity, growing out of our foreign relations. The foreign relations of the country are intrusted by the Constitution to the lead and management of the executive government. The President not only is supposed to be, but usually is, much better informed on these interesting subjects than the houses of Congress. If there be danger of a rupture with a foreign state, he sees it soonest. All our ministers and agents abroad are but so many eyes, and ears, and organs to communicate to him whatsoever occurs in foreign places, and to keep him well advised of all which may concern the interests of the United States. There is an especial propriety, therefore, that, in this branch of the public service, Congress should always be able to avail itself of the distinct opinions and recommendations of the President. The two houses, and especially the House of Representatives, are the natural guardians of the people's money. They are to keep it sacred, and to use it discreetly. They are not at liberty to spend it where it is not needed, nor to offer it for any purpose till a reasonable occasion for the expenditure be shown. Now, in this case, I repeat again, the President had sent us no recommendation for any such appropriation; no department had recommended it; no estimate had contained it; in the whole history of the session, from the morning of the first day, down to eight o'clock in the evening of the last day, not one syllable had been said to us, not one hint suggested, showing that the President deemed any such measure either necessary or proper. I state this strongly, Sir, but I state it truly. I state the matter as it is; and I wish to draw the attention of the Senate and of the country strongly to this part of the case. I say again, therefore, that, when this vote for the three millions was proposed to the Senate, there was nothing before us showing that the President recommended any such appropriation. You very well know, Sir, that this objection was stated as soon as the message from the House was read. We all well remember that this was the very point put forth by the honorable member from Tennessee [Mr. White], as being, if I may say so, the but-end of his argument in opposition to the vote. He said, very significantly, and very forcibly, "It is not asked for by those who best know what the public service requires; how, then, are we to presume that it is needed?" This question, Sir, was not answered then; it never has been answered since, it never can be answered satisfactorily.

But let me here again, Sir, recur to the message of the President. Speaking of the loss of the bill, he uses these words: "This failure was the more regretted, not only because it necessarily interrupted and delayed the progress of a system of national defence projected immediately after the last war, and since steadily pursued, but also because it contained a contingent appropriation, inserted in accordance with the views of the executive, in aid of this important object, and other branches of the national defence, some portions of which might have been most usefully applied during the past season."

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Taking these words of the message, Sir, and connecting them with the fact that the President had made no recommendation to Congress of any such appropriation, it strikes me that they furnish matter for very grave reflection. The President says that this proposed appropriation was "in accordance with the views of the executive"; that it was "in aid of an important object"; and that "some portions of it might have been most usefully applied during the past season."

And now, Sir, I ask, if this be so, why was not this appropriation recommended to Congress by the President? I ask this question in the name of the Constitution of the United States; I stand on its own clear authority in asking it; and I invite all those who remember its injunctions, and who mean to respect them, to consider well how the question is to be answered.

Sir, the Constitution is not yet an entire dead letter. There is yet some form of observance of its requirements; and even while any degree of formal respect is paid to it, I must be permitted to continue the question, Why was not this appropriation recommended? It was in accordance with the President's views; it was for an important object; it might have been usefully expended. The President being of opinion, therefore, that the appropriation was necessary and proper, how is it that it was not recommended to Congress? For, Sir, we all know the plain and direct words in which the very first duty of the President is imposed by the Constitution. Here they are:—"He shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient."

After enumerating the powers of the President, this is the first, the very first duty which the Constitution gravely enjoins upon him. And now, Sir, in no language of taunt or reproach, in no language of party attack, in terms of no asperity or exaggeration, but called upon by the necessity of defending my own vote upon the subject, as a public man, as a member of Congress here in my place, and as a citizen who feels as warm an attachment to the Constitution of the country as any other can, I demand of any who may choose to give it an answer to this question: WHY WAS NOT THIS MEASURE, WHICH THE PRESIDENT DECLARES THAT HE THOUGHT NECESSARY AND EXPEDIENT, RECOMMENDED TO CONGRESS? And why am I, and why are other members of Congress, whose path of duty the Constitution says shall be enlightened by the President's opinions and communications, to be charged with want of patriotism and want of fidelity to the country, because we refused an appropriation which the President, though it was in accordance with his views, and though he believed it important, would not, and did not, recommend to us? When these questions are answered to the satisfaction of intelligent and impartial men, then, and not till then, let reproach, let censure, let suspicion of any kind, rest on the twenty-nine names which stand opposed to this appropriation.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

How, Sir, were we to know that this appropriation "was in accordance with the views of the executive"? He had not so told us, formally or informally. He had not only not recommended it to Congress, or either house of Congress, but nobody on this floor had undertaken to speak in his behalf. No man got up to say, "The President desires it; he thinks it necessary, expedient, and proper." But, Sir, if any gentleman had risen to say this, it would not have answered the requisition of the Constitution. Not at all. It is not by a hint, an intimation, the suggestion of a friend, that the executive duty in this respect is to be fulfilled. By no means. The President is to make a recommendation,—a public recommendation, an official recommendation, a responsible recommendation, not to one house, but to both houses; it is to be a recommendation to Congress. If, on receiving such recommendation, Congress fail to pay it proper respect, the fault is theirs. If, deeming the measure necessary and expedient, the President fails to recommend it, the fault is his, clearly, distinctly, and exclusively his. This, Sir, is the Constitution of the United States, or else I do not understand the Constitution of the United States.

Does not every man see how entirely unconstitutional it is that the President should communicate his opinions or wishes to Congress, on such grave and important subjects, otherwise than by a direct and responsible recommendation, a public and open recommendation, equally addressed and equally known to all whose duty calls upon them to act on the subject? What would be the state of things, if he might communicate his wishes or opinions privately to members of one house, and make no such communication to the other? Would not the two houses be necessarily put in immediate collision? Would they stand on equal footing? Would they have equal information? What could ensue from such a manner of conducting the public business, but quarrel, confusion, and conflict? A member rises in the House of Representatives, and moves a very large appropriation of money for military purposes. If he says he does it upon executive recommendation, where is his voucher? The President is not like the British king, whose ministers and secretaries are in the House of Commons, and who are authorized, in certain cases, to express the opinions and wishes of their sovereign. We have no king's servants; at least, we have none known to the Constitution. Congress can know the opinions of the President only as he officially communicates them. It would be a curious inquiry in either house, when a large appropriation is moved, if it were necessary to ask whether the mover represented the President, spoke his sentiments, or, in other words, whether what he proposed were "in accordance with the views of the executive." How could that be judged of? By the party he belongs to? Party is not quite strongly enough marked for that. By the airs he gives himself? Many might assume airs, if thereby they could give themselves such importance as to be esteemed authentic expositors of the executive will. Or is this will to be circulated in whispers; made known to the meetings of party men; intimated through the press; or communicated in any other form, which still leaves the executive completely irresponsible; so that, while executive purposes or wishes pervade the ranks of party friends, influence their conduct, and unite their efforts, the open, direct, and constitutional responsibility is wholly avoided? Sir, this is not the Constitution of the United States, nor can it be consistent with any constitution which professes to maintain separate departments in the government. Here, then, Sir, is abundant ground, in my judgment, for the vote of the Senate, and here I might rest it. But there is also another ground. The Constitution declares that no money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law. What is meant by "appropriations"? Does not this language mean that particular sums shall be assigned by law to particular objects? How far this pointing out and fixing the particular objects shall be carried, is a question that cannot be settled by any precise rule. But "specific appropriation," that is to say, the designation of every object for which money is voted, as far as such designation is practicable, has been thought to be a most important republican principle. In times past, popular parties have claimed great merit from professing to carry this doctrine much farther, and to adhere to it much more strictly, than their adversaries. Mr. Jefferson, especially, was a great advocate for it, and held it to be indispensable to a safe and economical administration and disbursement of the public revenues.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

But what have the friends and admirers of Mr. Jefferson to say to this appropriation? Where do they find, in this proposed grant of three millions, a constitutional designation of object, and a particular and specific application of money? Have they forgotten, all forgotten, and wholly abandoned even all pretence for specific appropriation? If not, how could they sanction such a vote as this? Let me recall its terms. They are, that "the sum of three millions of dollars be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended, in whole or in part, under the direction of the President of the United States, for the military and naval service, including fortifications and ordnance, and the increase of the navy; provided such expenditures shall be rendered necessary for the defence of the country prior to the next meeting of Congress."

In the first place it is to be observed, that whether the money shall be used at all, or not, is made to depend on the discretion of the President. This is sufficiently liberal. It carries confidence far enough. But if there had been no other objections, if the objects of the appropriation had been sufficiently described, so that the President, if he expended

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

the money at all, must expend it for purposes authorized by the legislature, and nothing had been left to his discretion but the question whether an emergency had arisen in which the authority ought to be exercised, I might not have felt bound to reject the vote. There are some precedents which might favor such a contingent provision, though the practice is dangerous, and ought not to be followed except in cases of clear necessity. But the insurmountable objection to the proposed grant was, that it specified no objects. It was as general as language could make it. It embraced every expenditure that could be called either military or naval. It was to include "fortifications, ordnance, and the increase of the navy," but it was not confined to these. It embraced the whole general subject of military service. Under the authority of such a law, the President might repair ships, build ships, buy ships, enlist seamen, and do any thing and every thing else touching the naval service, without restraint or control.

He might repair such fortifications as he saw fit, and neglect the rest; arm such as he saw fit, and neglect the arming of others; or build new fortifications wherever he chose. But these unlimited powers over the fortifications and the navy constitute by no means the most dangerous part of the proposed authority; because, under that authority, his power to raise and employ land forces would be equally absolute and uncontrolled. He might levy troops, embody a new army, call out the militia in numbers to suit his own discretion, and employ them as he saw fit.

Now, Sir, does our legislation, under the Constitution, furnish any precedent for all this?

We make appropriations for the army, and we understand what we are doing, because it is "the army," that is to say, the army established by law. We make appropriations for the navy; they, too, are for "the navy," as provided for and established by law. We make appropriations for fortifications, but we say what fortifications, and we assign to each its intended amount of the whole sum. This is the usual course of Congress on such subjects; and why should it be departed from? Are we ready to say that the power of fixing the places for new fortifications, and the sum allotted to each; the power of ordering new ships to be built, and fixing the number of such new ships; the power of laying out money to raise men for the army; in short, every power, great or small, respecting the military and naval service, shall be vested in the President, without specification of object or purpose, to the entire exclusion of the exercise of all judgment on the part of Congress? For one, I am not prepared. The honorable member from Ohio, near me, has said, that if the enemy had been on our shores he would not have agreed to this vote. And I say, if the proposition were now before us, and the guns of the enemy were pointed against the walls of the Capitol, I would not agree to it.

The people of this country have an interest, a property, an inheritance, in this INSTRUMENT, against the value of which forty capitol do not weigh the twentieth part of one poor

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

scruple. There can never be any necessity for such proceedings, but a feigned and false necessity; a mere idle and hollow pretence of necessity; least of all can it be said that any such necessity actually existed on the 3d of March. There was no enemy on our shores; there were no guns pointed against the Capitol; we were in no war, nor was there a reasonable probability that we should have war, unless we made it ourselves.

But whatever was the state of our foreign relations, is it not preposterous to say, that it was necessary for Congress to adopt this measure, and yet not necessary for the President to recommend it? Why should we thus run in advance of all our own duties, and leave the President completely shielded from his just responsibility? Why should there be nothing but trust and confidence on our side, and nothing but discretion and power on his?

Sir, if there be any philosophy in history, if human blood still runs in human veins, if man still conforms to the identity of his nature, the institutions which secure constitutional liberty can never stand long against this excessive personal confidence, against this devotion to men, in utter disregard both of principle and experience, which seem to me to be strongly characteristic of our times. This vote came to us, Sir, from the popular branch of the legislature; and that such a vote should come from such a branch of the legislature was amongst the circumstances which excited in me the greatest surprise and the deepest concern. Certainly, Sir, certainly I was not, on that account, the more inclined to concur. It was no argument with me, that others seemed to be rushing, with such heedless, headlong trust, such impetuosity of confidence, into the arms of executive power. I held back the more strongly, and would hold back the longer. I see, or I think I see,—it is either a true vision of the future, revealed by the history of the past, or, if it be an illusion, it is an illusion which appears to me in all the brightness and sunlight of broad noon,—that it is in this career of personal confidence, along this beaten track of man-worship, marked at every stage by the fragments of other free governments, that our own system is making progress to its close. A personal popularity, honorably earned at first by military achievements, and sustained now by party, by patronage, and by enthusiasm which looks for no ill, because it means no ill itself, seems to render men willing to gratify power, even before its demands are made, and to surfeit executive discretion, even in anticipation of its own appetite.

If, Sir, on the 3d of March last, it had been the purpose of both houses of Congress to create a military dictator, what formula had been better suited to their purpose than this vote of the House? It is true, we might have given more money, if we had had it to give. We might have emptied the treasury; but as to the form of the gift, we could not have bettered it. Rome had no better models. When we give our money for any military purpose whatever, what remains to be done? If we leave it with one man to decide, not only whether the military means of the country shall be used at all, but how they shall be used, and to what extent they shall be employed, what remains either for Congress or the people but to sit still and see how this dictatorial power will be exercised? On the 3d of March, Sir, I had not forgotten, it was impossible that I should have forgotten, the recommendation in the message at the opening of that session, that power should be vested in the President to issue letters of marque and reprisal against France, at his discretion, in the recess of Congress. Happily, this power was not granted; but suppose it had been, what would then have been the true condition of this government? Why, Sir, this condition is very shortly described. The whole war power would have been in the hands of the President; for no man can doubt a moment that reprisals would bring on immediate war; and the treasury, to the amount of this vote, in addition to all ordinary appropriations, would have been at his absolute disposal also. And all this in a time of peace. I beseech all true lovers of constitutional liberty to contemplate this state of things, and tell me whether such be a truly republican administration of this government. Whether particular consequences had ensued or not, is such an accumulation of power in the hands of the executive according to the spirit of our system? Is it either wise or safe? Has it any warrant in the practice of former times? Or are gentlemen ready to establish the practice, as an example for the benefit of those who are to come after us?

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

But, Sir, if the power to make reprisals, and this money from the treasury, had both been granted, is there not great reason to believe that we should have been now actually at war? I think there is great reason to believe this. It will be said, I know, that if we had armed the President with this power of war, and supplied him with this grant of money, France would have taken it for such a proof of spirit on our part, that she would have paid the indemnity without further delay. This is the old story, and the old plea. It is the excuse of every one who desires more power than the Constitution or the laws give him, that if he had more power he could do more good. Power is always claimed for the good of the people; and dictators are always made, when made at all, for the good of the people. For my part, Sir, I was content, and am content, to show France that we are prepared to maintain our just rights against her by the exertion of our power, when need be, according to the forms of our own Constitution; that, if we make war, we will make it constitutionally; and that we will trust all our interests, both in peace and war, to what the intelligence and the strength of the country may do for them, without breaking down or endangering the fabric of our free institutions.

Mr. President, it is the misfortune of the Senate to have differed with the executive on many great questions during the last four or five years. I have regretted this state of things deeply, both on personal and on public accounts; but it has been unavoidable. It is no pleasant employment, it is no holiday business, to maintain opposition against power and against majorities, and to contend for stern and sturdy principle, against personal popularity, against a rushing and overwhelming confidence, that, by wave upon wave and cataract after cataract, seems to be bearing away and destroying whatsoever would withstand it. How much longer we may be able to support this opposition in any degree, or whether we can possibly hold out till the public intelligence and the public patriotism shall be awakened to a due sense of the public danger, it is not for me to foretell. I shall not despair to the last, if, in the mean time, we are true to our own principles. If there be a steadfast adherence to these principles, both here and elsewhere, if, one and all, they continue the rule of our conduct in the Senate, and the rallying-point of those who think with us and support us out of the Senate, I am content to hope on and to struggle on. While it remains a contest for the preservation of the Constitution, for the security of public liberty, for the ascendancy of principles over men, I am willing to bear my part of it. If we can maintain the Constitution, if we can preserve this security for liberty, if we can thus give to true principle its just superiority over party, over persons, over names, our labors will be richly rewarded. If we fail in all this, they are already among the living who will write the history of this government, from its commencement to its close.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

January 15, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 15th of 1st M 1836 / In the course of this Week I have recd interesting letters from my Friends Thos Thompson & Moses Brown Attended the funeral of my cousin Anne Gould - Hannah Dennis preached - the remains were carried to Middletown & interd in the family burying ground on the Paternal estate. - a part of which Still remains in regular descent in the Name of Gould from Jeremiah & Daniel Gould

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

January 17, Sunday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. participated in a small way in a society wedding in Santa Barbara.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

On the day appointed for the wedding, we took the captain ashore in the gig, and had orders to come for him at night, with leave to go up to the house and see the fandango. Returning on board, we found preparations making for a salute. Our guns were loaded and run out, men appointed to each, cartridges served out, matches lighted, and all the flags ready to be run up. I took my place at the starboard after gun, and we all waited for the signal from on shore. At ten o'clock the bride went up with her sister to the confessional, dressed in deep black. Nearly an hour intervened, when the great doors of the mission church opened, the bells rang out a loud, discordant peal, the private signal for us was run up by the captain ashore, the bride, dressed in complete white, came out of the church with the bridegroom, followed by a long procession. Just as she stepped from the church door, a small white cloud issued from the bows of our ship, which was full in sight, the loud report echoed among the surrounding hills and over the bay, and instantly the ship was dressed in flags and pennants from stem to stern. Twenty-three guns followed in regular succession, with an interval of fifteen seconds between each when the cloud cleared away, and the ship lay dressed in her colors, all day. At sun-down, another salute of the same number of guns was fired, and all the flags run down. This we thought was pretty well—a gun every fifteen seconds—for a merchantman with only four guns and a dozen or twenty men.

After supper, the gig's crew were called, and we rowed ashore, dressed in our uniform, beached the boat, and went up to the fandango. The bride's father's house was the principal one in the place, with a large court in front, upon which a tent was built, capable of containing several hundred people. As we drew near, we heard the accustomed sound of violins and guitars, and saw a great motion of the people within. Going in, we found nearly all the people of the town—men, women, and children—collected and crowded together, leaving barely room for the dancers; for on these occasions no invitations are given, but every one is expected to come, though there is always a private entertainment within the house for particular friends. The old women sat down in rows, clapping their hands to the music, and applauding the young ones. The music was lively, and among the tunes, we recognized several of our popular airs, which we, without doubt, have taken from the Spanish. In the dancing, I was much disappointed. The women stood upright, with their hands down by their sides, their eyes fixed upon the ground before them, and slid about without any perceptible means of motion; for their feet were invisible, the hem of their dresses forming a perfect circle about them, reaching to the ground. They looked as grave as though they were going through some religious ceremony, their faces as little excited as their limbs; and on the whole, instead of the spirited, fascinating Spanish dances which I had expected, I found the Californian fandango, on the part of the women at least, a lifeless affair. The men did better. They danced with grace and spirit, moving in circles round their nearly stationary partners, and showing their figures to great advantage.

A great deal was said about our friend Don Juan Bandini, and when he did appear, which was toward the close of the evening, he certainly gave us the most graceful dancing that I had ever seen. He was dressed in white pantaloons neatly made, a short jacket of dark silk, gaily figured, white stockings and thin morocco slippers upon his very small feet. His slight and graceful figure was well calculated for dancing, and he moved about with the grace and daintiness of a young fawn. An occasional touch of the toe to the ground, seemed all that was necessary to give him a long interval of motion in the air. At the same time he was not fantastic or flourishing, but appeared to be rather repressing a strong tendency to motion.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

THE REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR DANA, CONCLUDED:

He was loudly applauded, and danced frequently toward the close of the evening. After the supper, the waltzing began, which was confined to a very few of the “gente de razon,” and was considered a high accomplishment, and a mark of aristocracy. Here, too, Don Juan figured greatly, waltzing with the sister of the bride, (Donna Angustia, a handsome woman and a general favorite,) in a variety of beautiful, but, to me, offensive figures, which lasted as much as half an hour, no one else taking the floor. They were repeatedly and loudly applauded, the old men and women jumping out of their seats in admiration, and the young people waving their hats and handkerchiefs. Indeed among people of the character of these Mexicans, the waltz seemed to me to have found its right place. The great amusement of the evenings,— which I suppose was owing to its being carnival— was the breaking of eggs filled with cologne, or other essences, upon the heads of the company. One end of the egg is broken and the inside taken out, then it is partly filled with cologne, and the whole sealed up. The women bring a great number of these secretly about them, and the amusement is to break one upon the head of a gentleman when his back is turned. He is bound in gallantry to find out the lady and return the compliment, though it must not be done if the person sees you. A tall, stately Don, with immense grey whiskers, and a look of great importance, was standing before me, when I felt a light hand on my shoulder, and turning round, saw Donna Angustia, (whom we all knew, as she had been up to Monterey, and down again, in the Alert,) with her finger upon her lip, motioning me gently aside. I stepped back a little, when she went up behind the Don, and with one hand knocked off his huge sombrero, and at the same instant, with the other, broke the egg upon his head, and springing behind me, was out of sight in a moment. The Don turned slowly round, the cologne, running down his face, and over his clothes and a loud laugh breaking out from every quarter. He looked round in vain, for some time, until the direction of so many laughing eyes showed him the fair offender. She was his niece, and a great favorite with him, so old Don Domingo had to join in the laugh. A great many such tricks were played, and many a war of sharp manoeuvring was carried on between couples of the younger people, and at every successful exploit a general laugh was raised.

Another singular custom I was for some time at a loss about. A pretty young girl was dancing, named, after what would appear to us the sacrilegious custom of the country— Espiritu Santo, when a young man went behind her and placed his hat directly upon her head, letting it fall down over her eyes, and sprang back among the crowd. She danced for some time with the hat on, when she threw it off, which called forth a general shout; and the young man was obliged to go out upon the floor and pick it up. Some of the ladies, upon whose heads hats had been placed, threw them off at once, and a few kept them on throughout the dance, and took them off at the end, and held them out in their hands, when the owner stepped out, bowed, and took it from them. I soon began to suspect the meaning of the thing, and was afterwards told that it was a compliment, and an offer to become the lady’s gallant for the rest of the evening, and to wait upon her home. If the hat was thrown off, the offer was refused, and the gentleman was obliged to pick up his hat amid a general laugh. Much amusement was caused sometimes by gentlemen putting hats on the ladies’ heads, without permitting them to see whom it was done by. This obliged them to throw them off, or keep them on at a venture, and when they came to discover the owner, the laugh was often turned upon them.

The captain sent for us about ten o’clock, and we went aboard in high spirits, having enjoyed the new scene much, and were of great importance among the crew, from having so much to tell, and from the prospect of going every night until it was over; for these fandangos generally last three days. The next day, two of us were sent up to the town, and took care to come back by way of Capitan Noriego’s and take a look into the booth. The musicians were still there, upon their platform, scraping and twanging away, and a few people, apparently of the lower classes, were dancing. The dancing is kept up, at intervals, throughout the day, but the crowd, the spirit, and the elite, come in at night.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 17th of 1 M / Our friend John Wilbur came over from Narragansett Yesterday Afternoon & lodged at our house - he was a very acceptable guest & attended both our Meetings today - his testimonies were truly pertinent & acceptable, being sound in doctrine & well seasoned With that life & spirit, without which the most sound & orthodox Sermons are no more than Sounding brass or tinkling symbols - he took tea & lodged at Henry Goulds. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 18, Monday: Waldo Emerson probably delivered a lecture on this date in Salem, the first of a series at their lyceum, for the Salem Mechanics' Institute. Although dates are available for only five lectures, the payments records in Emerson's ms account books and on the books of the town Lyceum, which total up to $146, suggest that actually eight or ten lectures were delivered.

Richard Henry Dana, Jr. reported the Alert dealing with the weather off Santa Barbara, California.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

The next night, which was the last, we went ashore in the same manner, until we got almost tired of the monotonous twang of the instruments, the drawling sounds which the women kept up, as an accompaniment, and the slapping of the hands in time with the music, in place of castanets. We found ourselves as great objects of attention as any persons or anything at the place. Our sailor dresses— and we took great pains to have them neat and shipshape— were much admired, and we were invited, from every quarter, to give them an American sailor's dance; but after the ridiculous figure some of our countrymen cut, in dancing after the Spaniards, we thought it best to leave it to their imaginations. Our agent, with a tight, black, swallow-tailed coat, just imported from Boston, a high stiff cravat, looking as if he had been pinned and skewered, with only his feet and hands left free, took the floor just after Bandini; and we thought they had had enough of Yankee grace.

The last night they kept it up in great style, and were getting into a high-go, when the captain called us off to go aboard, for, it being south-easter season, he was afraid to remain on shore long; and it was well he did not, for that very night, we slipped our cables, as a crowner to our fun ashore, and stood off before a south-easter, which lasted twelve hours, and returned to our anchorage the next day.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 18 of 1 M / Our friend Jn Wilbur left us today & returned homewards to Hopkinton where he lives - it was a Snow Storm when hie went over the ferrys, but otherwise a favourable time, the Wind not being high. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 20, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 20th of 1st M / Rode in the Stage to Portsmouth to attend Our Select Meeting - The first was Silent & Portsmouth Preparative Meeting was also well conducted the Select Meeting

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

which followed the others was also a pretty good Meeting – Rode home with cousin Henry Gould who was alone in a Sleigh –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 January 21, Thursday: Waldo Emerson to his journal:

The Spartan is respectable and strong who speaks what must be spoken; but these gay Athenians that go up and down the world making all talk a Recitation, talking for display, disgust.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 21st of 1 M 1831 / Preparative Meeting In the first Father had a short testimony & in the last there was no buisness but the Queries & a report of the School Committee was read In the Afternoon took a walk on the Hill & went round across the fields & visited cousin Henry Gould at his Mill. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 January 24, Sunday: Waldo Emerson to his journal:

Cudworth is an armory for a poet to furnish himself withal. He should look at every writer in that light and read no poor book. Why should the poet bereave himself of the sweetest as well as grandest thoughts by yielding deference to the miserly, indigent unbelief of this age, and leaving God and moral nature out of his catalogue of beings? I know my soul is immortal if it were only by the sublime emotion I taste in reading these lines of Swedenborg: "The organical body with which the soul clothes itself is here compared to a garment, because a garment invests the body, and the soul also puts off the body and casts it away as old clothes (exuviae), when it emigrates by means of death from the natural world into its own spiritual world." Influx, p. 26.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 24th of 1 M 1836 / On 6th day last I recd letters & pamphlets from my Friend Thos Thompson which on various accounts were highly interesting & his account of the comfortable progress of our Friend Anna W Thorn among them. – Our Meetings today were well attended & comfortable – Father was exercised in both

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

In the evening our interesting young Cousin called & set some time with us. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 28, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 28th of 1 M / Before i went to meeting I was sitting by the side of the Stove & endeavouring to get down that the life might rise - I took the Bible & read the 24 Chap Luke and was particularly Struck with the first verse Vizt "Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the Morning they came unto the sepulchre, bringing the Spices which they had prepared." - It seemed to me necessary that we labour to center into the quiet & have our minds prepared for solemn worship that the spice thus prepared may shed a perfume & their preserving qualities to others around us - tho' I labourd for this was unable to realize all I desired but was favoured with a portion & could feel that there was a good degree of solemnity prevailed of which my mind partook & while I was thus getting along - our fr H Dennis rose as she said in the weakness & said she was sensible it was not a time of encouragement, but felt the language of encouragement to flow to those who was suffering under poverty - it ended a pretty good Meeting & in the last which was our Monthly Meeting - the buisness was well conducted & Thomas P Nichols was recd into membership. he is an hopeful young man & we do greatly desire his prosperity & establishment in the Truth -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 31, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 31 of 1 M 1836 / Attended Meetings, the weather being Stormy, the gathering Was Small but season of Some favour in Silence -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

February 1, Monday: James Henry Hammond of South Carolina declared “Slavery can never be abolished.”⁴⁰⁵ He lay out in graphic detail on the floor of the US House of Representatives, why it was that the federal government would never have it in its power to abolish slavery: “There are about 2,300,000 slaves at this moment in the United States, and their annual increase is about 60,000. Sir, even the British Government did not dare to emancipate its enslaved West India subjects without some compensation. They gave them [the slavemasters] about sixty percent of their value. It could scarcely be expected that this government would undertake to free our slaves without paying for them. Their value, at $400, average, (and they are now worth more than that) would amount to upwards of nine hundred millions. The value of their annual increase, alone, is twenty-four millions of dollars; so that to free them in one hundred years, without the expense of taking them from the country, would require an annual appropriation of between thirty-three and thirty-four millions of dollars. The thing is physically impossible.” We can bear in mind that this was being said in regard to a federal establishment which had enjoyed gross receipts in 1830 of but $24,844,000. Merely to purchase and manumit the slave babies as they were being born would have required the entire tax revenue upon which the entire government at that point depended. The only course open to the government therefore was confiscation, which of course would be something politically impossible in a system within which the interests of the enslaved were “represented” by their slavemasters.

MANUMISSION

Elsewhere in the world on this day, Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert were sailing from Santa Barbara toward a San Pedro anchorage:

Monday, Feb. 1st. After having been in port twenty-one days, we sailed for San Pedro, where we arrived on the following day, having gone “all fluking,” with the weather clew of the mainsail hauled up, the yards braced in a little, and the lower studding-sails just drawing; the wind hardly shifting a point during the passage.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 1 of 2 M 1836 / With my esteemed Cousin Thos B Gould Set out in the Stage for Providence to attend the Qrly Meeting -when we got to Bristol ferry the Ice had so accumulated that we were obliged to go along Shore South & be carted off in an Oxcart among the Cakes of Ice till we were in sufficient depth of Water for a Small boat to float & from thence were carried off to the Great Boat to get on the opposite shore This was great exposure to my dear neice Elizabeth Rodman who was with us on her way to 405. Of course, this legislator was only attempting to inform us of the simplest financial, calculational, quantitative reality and not struggling at all to inform us of the very ugliest moral truth about our soul condition. –For the complete absence in our legal system at the federal level of any formal definition for constructs such as “slave,” “slavery,” and “enslavement,” a void in our conceptual apparatus which persists even to the date of this writing (2013), may serve to remind us of what De Tocqueville, once attempted to point out to the obtuse Americans, “An abstract word is like a box with a false bottom; you may put in it what ideas you please and take them out again unobserved.” If slavery is, as it has been ever since the 1865 enactment of the XIIIth Amendment to the Constitution, just anything anyone wants to say it is—as long as they do not overlook to invoke the sacred formulation that whatever it may be, it is most assuredly prohibited and therefore entirely nonexistent and therefore not a problem needing to be addressed—then slavery is not anything at all and “slavery” is a word which, because it cannot function except as a signifier for something which must not exist, cannot be functioning as a word of the language but must be functioning, instead, as a box with a false bottom, a “gag rule” we have imposed upon our own minds.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

the YMBSchool where we arrived about 3 OC in the Afternoon after a cold ride from Bristol ferry in the Stage Sleigh - After introducing Elizabeth to the Superintendent & teachers of the School - Thos & I went down to Moses Brown - we found he had gone to Wm Almys on acct of his Birth day [Almy's birthday], having his family & friends around him on the occasion being 75 Years old. - early in the eveng - Moses returned & we took tea & took lodging with him, he being glad to see & entertain us. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 2, Tuesday: Franklin Pierce was born to Franklin Pierce and Jane Means Appleton Pierce (this infant would survive only four days).

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day was Sub committee Meeting & we passed the day at the

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

School House –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 3, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day Attended the Select Meeting which was a season of some favour - Divers testimonies were deliverd & a Supplication by Anna A Jenkins - The buisness was conducted in harmony In the Afternoon was the Meeting for sufferings which Wm Almy attended - Some conflict was experienced in the management of affairs but both the London General Epistle & the epistle of advice to their members was concluded to be printed & circulated among our Members

At the close of the Meeting a very Solid & reverend Silence took place - during which my mind glanced at the uncertainty of ever Meeting Our friend Moses Brown & Wm Almy in that way again -One very Aged & the other in advance life & very feeble from the effects of a fit which he had near a year ago - When it closed, a precious covering & much good feeling prevailed for which favour I was truly thankful

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 4, Thursday: Representative Henry Laurens Pinckney of South Carolina⁴⁰⁶ submitted a proposal regarding the bothersome and objectionable petitions that kept being forwarded to the federal legislature, in regard to human enslavement as it was being practiced in these United States of America. So many citizens thought there was something wrong with that! And, they were so persistent and bothersome! For God's sake, why couldn't they just let their representatives alone and allow them to tend to the nation's business?

SLAVERY

GAG RULE

ABOLITIONISM

At the Teatro La Fenice of Venice, Belisario, a tragedia lirica by Gaetano Donizetti to words of Cammarano after von Schenk translated by Marchionni, was performed for the initial time. The work was well received.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day Was the Quarterly Meeting at large. In the first our friend Thos Anthony was engaged in a truly Apostolical testimony & was followed by A A Jenkins & Rowland Greene & Mary B Allen in Supplication. - In the last Meeting the buisness was conducted in Harmony & Elizabeth Peckham from So Kingston Moy [Monthly] Meeting was acknowledged as a Minister - I returned

406. Note the famous patriotic name: Henry Laurens, a Huguenot, had been the biggest slavetrader in Charleston, and while we were establishing our freedom he had served in the Continental Congress.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

to Moses Browns & dined & lodged

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 5, Friday: Lieutenant Governor Sir Francis Bond Head had discovered, he informed Lord Glenelg, the colonial secretary, back in England, that the Whig policy of negotiation and compromise and accommodation with Canadian reformists was mistaken, because their actual objective was not reform. It was nothing less than to sever the imperial connection, and reconstitute Canada as an independent republic. He intended, by marshaling the support of the loyal, orderly, and prosperous general public, to destroy the invidious agenda of such "Republicans."

The Loyalist Royalist

The French Prime Minister, the Duc de Broglie, agreed to pay spoliation claims to the United States of America as required under an 1831 treaty.

Sam Houston was granted a furlough from the army to travel to an Indian parlay. There he met with Chief Bowl to arrange a treaty that would protect both the Cherokee and white residents of northern Texas.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day Was the Meeting of the Genl Committee which I attended - the buisness got along very well. - & just as the committee was gathering for the adjournment in the Afternoon - Information was brought that Wm Almy had departed this life about half an hour before being taken Ill about 6 OClock in the Mornng & lived about 8 hours Afterwards - his disorder was considerd to be an accumulation of Water on the heart. - The buisness of the committee was dispatched as soon as it could conveniently be done, as none of us felt like prolonging it under the circumstances of Wms sudden departure. - I lodged that night at the School House, feeling it to be my duty to spend a little time with them - which gave me an opportunity to discharge a duty I felt towards some that were there & I felt peace in my services - May peace & the God of

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

peace dwell with them. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 6, Saturday: The HMS Beagle and Charles Darwin reached Diemen's Land, also known as Tasmania, Australia.

The publication of John Field's Nocturnes nos.14-16 was advertised in BIBLIOGRAPHIE DE FRANCE.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day Morning I went to Town & after attending to some buisness their - took the Stage & came by the way of Slades ferry to Fall river where I dined at Wilders public House & from thence home, by the way of the Stone Bridge - finding our family & concerns, all well. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

February 7, Sunday: Charles Dickens's SKETCHES BY BOZ got good reviews. This was his initial book, compiled of journalistic pieces written from 1833, some of which had appeared in The Evening Chronicle, including a description of Newgate Prison.

While in Zwickau because of his mother's death, Robert Schumann secretly visited Clara Wieck to profess love. She reciprocated.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1st day 7 of 2 M 1836 / Our Meetings today were good ones –Father Rodman was engaged in short testimonies in each –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 14, Sunday: William Travis and Colonel James Bowie agreed to share command of the Alamo at San Antonio de B  xar, after Colonel Neill received a temporary leave of absence.

REMEMBERING THE ALAMO

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 14 of 2 M / Stormy day - Silent Meetings & pretty good ones. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 18, Thursday: In Hoogly, Bengal, India, Ramakrishna was born.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 18th of 2nd M / Father bore a short testimony at Meeting which was small, the weather was very cold & the walking slippery, which rendered it perilous for women to get there. – In the Preparative Meeting, the communication from the Yearly Meeting to the subordinate Meetings was read. – This evening I went up to cousin Henry Goulds, who has been to attend Sweet out on the Island to set several bones, particularly Ruth Chases - in the Ride the Chaise was turned over & they narrowly escaped being bodily hurt themselves Sweet set Cousin Hannah Goulds Hip last night which she put out about a Week ago - It is a favour that there is such a family as the Sweets, who seem by nature to possess so eminently the faculty of Setting bones. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

February 19, Friday: Joseph Fieschi, Pierre Morey, and Theodore Pepin were guillotined for their part in the attempted assassination of King Louis-Philippe of France during the previous July. Hours before his head was to be removed Pepin revealed his membership in a hitherto unknown radical republican group, the “Societe des Familles.”

HEADCHOPPING

Prime Minister Mendizabal ordered closure of all monasteries and convents in Spain.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 19th of 2 M 1836 / I have had this morning to look a little over my past life & to commemorate the goodness & many mercies of Kind Providence towards me – I hope I shall never distrust his power nor despair of his goodness & mercy – for many times when it looked as if all resources were coming to an end, something has opened, whereby I was enabled to look a little ways a head – I am now writing of temporal prospects, for tho' at this time I have nothing to elate, but rather to depress my feelings – yet as way has always singularly opened I can but feel a faith in the Power of God who has so wonderfully opened the way for me to live comfortably & even respectably among men – & even if I should be brought to more narrow limits – may I endure the privation as becomes a Man & a Christian – he knows what is best for us, & deals kindly even with his rebellious Sons – but I know it will not do – it is not safe to presume on his mercy, & yet continue in rebellion & disobedience – he requires a cheerful a willing & yet as pure offering & that of the Whole heart

My heart is humbled under a Sense of the many Mercies I have received while I write this – much much more presenting to view than I have mind to relate at this time –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 21, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 21st of 2nd M 1836 / Both Meeting were silent & Small – the walking was so bad – slippery & wet that but three females were there in the Morning & two in the Afternoon – Called at Father Rodmans in the evening & sat the rest of it at home

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULDSTEPHEN WANTON GOULDGO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

February 22, Monday: Be cautious not to underestimate the pervasiveness of American racism:

WEST INDIA NEGROES.
FROM THE NEW YORK SUNDAY NEWS.
Extract from a letter to the editor, dated Matanzas, Dec. 20, 1835.

The town of Matanzas is called healthy, which, I take it, means by comparison, for its location, being low, between two sluggish rivers, and surrounded by hills, must entail upon it an annual visitation of fevers of the worst description—to say nothing of the indolent, filthy habits of the people; low, damp dwellings, dirty streets, dreaming police, and a standing law and gospel to boot, against all improvement. But there is one thing that bigotry and despotism cannot mar, and even a New York corporation could not improve, and that is the climate. For two months the thermometer (Far.) has stood regularly, morning, noon, and night, 80, 82, 80, except a few days past it has been down to 60, and 58 in the morning and evening, which is the only cold weather I have experienced since leaving New York. A cool turn like this they call a north-east or of Medias, (the doctor) whether from its salubrity or the reverse, I am not quite sure, for many invalids die soon after a visit of this sort, but new cases of fever seldom occur during its continuance.

The slave part of the population, you know, is a great deal the most numerous, and you have only to see them to be satisfied that their condition, generally, cannot be bettered. I have often caused new comers from the coast and old slaves to be questioned about their country, and whether they would like to return; and scarcely one has expressed such a wish. "No, no!" they say, "no yam yammy," meaning nothing to eat, which with sleeping is the only enjoyment they comprehend. Whatever condition brings such beings in contact with the whites, from whom they may and must learn higher motives, is clearly more for their benefit than to remain stationary, perhaps go back, if possible, or, at best, make the slow advancement they must if left to themselves. The English abolitionists have accomplished for the unfortunate blacks, in their own colonies, the retrograde movement that the blacks of St. Domingo undertook for themselves. Since the glorious dawn of emancipation in these fertile and beautiful islands, every sort of occupation is abandoned, except such as are necessary to support life.

The miserable negro, thrown out from the restraints of his master's government and protection, cares only for the indulgence of appetites. Completely animal in their constitution and wants, the negroes could not have been more effectually thrown back from all means and hope of mental redemption, than by giving them up to themselves, and cutting them off from the government, and therefore from in-

Both the proslavery and the antislavery agendas of the period were being in large part fueled by white racism.

HDTWHAT?INDEXSTEPHEN WANTON GOULD*FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

It wasn't just the US president alone who was a racist:

INAUGURAL ADDRESS,
Delivered by Gen. ANDREW JACKSON, on being sworn into office as President of the United States, on the 4th of March, 1829.

Fellow Citizens—About to undertake the arduous duties that I have been appointed to perform, by the choice of a free people, I avail myself of this customary and solemn occasion, to express the gratitude which their confidence inspires, and to acknowledge the accountability which my situation enjoins. While the magnitude of their interests convinces me that no thanks can be adequate to the honour they have conferred, it admonishes me that the best return I can make, is the zealous dedication of my humble abilities to their service and their good.

As the instrument of the Federal Constitution, it will devolve on me, for a stated period, to execute the laws of the United States; to superintend their foreign and their confederate relations; to manage their revenue; to command their forces; and, by communications to the Legislature to watch over, and to promote their interests generally. And the principles of action by which I shall endeavor to accomplish this circle of duties, it is now proper for me briefly to explain.

In administering the laws of Congress, I shall keep steadily in view the limitations as well as the extent of the executive power, trusting thereby to discharge the functions of my office, without transcending its authority. With foreign nations it will be my study to preserve peace, and to cultivate friendship, on fair and honorable Marie Joseph Louis Adolphe Thiers replaced Achille Charles Leonce Victor, Duc de Broglie as prime minister of France.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*2nd day 22nd of 2 M / This Afternoon took a walk to cousin Henrys
- the Walking was exceedingly Muddy & wet - but nevertheless it was a pleasnt time. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

February 25, Thursday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert sailed for Santa Barbara, California.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Thursday, Feb. 25th. Set sail for Santa Barbara, where we arrived on Sunday, the 28th.

Samuel Colt received a US patent for a “revolver,” eventually to be colloquially referred to as a “sixshooter” (although some of them were capable only of five shots).

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 25 of 2nd M / With my young friend Thomas Nichols rode to Portsmouth & attended Monthly Meeting - It was a most Violent windy day, clouds & very uncomfortable riding being very cold & a part of the way muddy & heavy traveling - The First Meeting was silent & small & not a time of much life to me. - In the last we had but little buisness & the Meeting was not detained long. - We went with Henry & Thomas Gould to Josiah Chases & dined & got home before sunset. - I have of late felt my mind engaged to write our friend Robert Comfort of Wheatland State of NYork who attended our last Yearly Meeting, he was a true & honest friend & one with whom I felt much unity & Sympathy I have also in the course of the Week written to my friends Thos Evans of Philada. - It is a time of great streight in society, & it becomes necessary for those who can to commune together.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 29, Monday: At the Paris Opera, Les Huguenots, a grand opera by Giacomo Meyerbeer to words of Scribe and Deschamps, was performed for the initial time. This would be one of the most successful productions ever staged there, with 1,126 performances over the following century, breaking all box office records. It was to become Meyerbeer’s most performed work, with thousands of performances throughout the world.⁴⁰⁷ In the audience were Hector Berlioz and Harriet Smithson.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd M 29th 1836 - 2nd day / Yesterday our Meetings were Small & to me not seasons of that life & Spirit which I love to feel - Father Rodman was engaged in both in short testimonies. - With this day ends the winter & the Month. It has truly been a hard Winter & there has been considerable suffering among the poor - but the benevolent have been active & afforded much relief to those in distress - for my own part We have been comfortable. - Our wood has held out well, & I have had Money sufficient to supply all real wants - I desire to return thanks for my many favours thus far in my life, they certainly have been numerous, & way has many times opened where there has appeared to be no way a head - This is even now my state & condition I can see but little forward but still Faith & hope are alive & I do not

407. This opera is much superior to another often-performed songfest, Les Miserables (“miserable” has been said to be the French term for “audience”).

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

distrust the Ways of kind Providence. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 2, Wednesday: Waldo Emerson lectured in Salem. This was lecture Number 5 of the series, presumably about Martin Luther. He would receive $25.

THE LIST OF LECTURES

At San Antonio, in the northern province of Mejico, Tejas, General Antonio López de Santa Anna y Pérez de Lebrón and the Mexican army had staged a siege that finally, at some cost, had overwhelmed the 179 defenders of the Alamo fortification. Among those trapped there and eliminated, in what would eventually become known as “The Battle for Texas Independence” (see below), had been Davy Crockett, Jim Bowie, and Colonel Travis. General Santa Ana would later be defeated at San Jacinto in a battle against troops led by Sidney Sherman and Sam Houston, and the new Republic of Texas would be able to assert a claim to all the land between the Rio Grande and Nueces rivers. On this day a constituent assembly named David Burnet as president and Lorenzo de Zavala as vice-president and this northern province declared independence from Mejico.

READ THE FULL TEXT

General Houston celebrated his 43rd birthday as the republic declared its independence from Mexico. These were free white men, Texians with Kentucky squirrel rifles, and they could hold slaves if they wanted to — and no little brown greaser was going to come around and tell them they shouldn’t.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

March 4, Friday: Sam Houston was appointed Major General of the Army of the Republic of Texas — regular, volunteer, and militia. He was to take immediate command and organize the army.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3M 4 (6th day) 1836 / I can say in Truth, truly, that I am thankful for every tendering impression in my heart - because I consider it an evidence of the continued Mercy & kind dealing of my heavenly Father with me & This Morning I have been afresh touched with the arisings of life in my heart - attended with a sense of unworthiness for his many favours. - Yesterday I visited poor Aunt Stanton she is in a retched State of mind & while setting with her I endeavoured to settle down into a solid retired frame & was favoured in good measure so to do & thought I even reached her, so far at last that she talked less loud & was more still in her Chair.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

March 6, Sunday: In a predawn assault after an 11-day battle the garrison at the Alamo –an unfinished old Franciscan mission complex outside the pueblo of San Antonio in the “Texas” district of Mexico that had not been in use as a mission for a good deal of time and had been recycled as a fort of sorts– was eliminated by a Mexican army of 4,000 under General Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna.⁴⁰⁸ Davy Crockett, William Travis, Colonel James Bowie, and 143 other United States citizens and their slaves, led by William Travis, had through some inexplicable obtuseness stuck around to get killed.

James Bowie

Davy Crockett

A teacher on Long Island, Walt Whitman, himself not among the fallen, nevertheless found the Eastern

408. By this point the old mission of the Franciscans in the Mejian province of Tejas, the mission which had been founded under the name San Antonio de Valero, was being generally characterized as “the Alamo.” It had picked up this nickname because of a Spanish cavalry unit that had been using it as a headquarters, that having been the designation for this cavalry unit. (“Remember La Mission San Antonio de Valero!!” — well, it wouldn’t have worked very well as an Anglo-Saxon battle chant, would it?)

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

newspaper reports of this defeat to be of considerable interest (SONG OF MYSELF, 34):

REMEMBERING THE ALAMO

...I tell not the fall of Alamo,
Not one escaped to tell the fall of Alamo,
The hundred and fifty are dumb yet at Alamo,...

HDT

WHAT?

INDEX

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

At that time the fee for teaching an older child was usually about a shilling or 12¹/₂ cents and teaching, for a male teacher, usually brought in an income of about $200.⁰⁰ per year.⁴⁰⁹ Whitman was supplementing this teaching income by writing for various New-York papers:

“Specimen Days”

MY PASSION FOR FERRIES

Living in Brooklyn or New York city from this time forward, my life, then, and still more the following years, was curiously identified with Fulton ferry, already becoming the greatest of its sort in the world for general importance, volume, variety, rapidity, and picturesqueness. Almost daily, [Page 701] later, ('50 to '60,) I cross'd on the boats, often up in the pilot-houses where I could get a full sweep, absorbing shows, accompaniments, surroundings. What oceanic currents, eddies, underneath – the great tides of humanity also, with ever-shifting movements. Indeed, I have always had a passion for ferries; to me they afford inimitable, streaming, never-failing, living poems. The river and bay scenery, all about New York island, any time of a fine day – the hurrying, splashing sea-tides – the changing panorama of steamers, all sizes, often a string of big ones outward bound to distant ports – the myriads of white-sail'd schooners, sloops, skiffs, and the marvelously beautiful yachts – the majestic sound boats as they rounded the Battery and came along towards 5, afternoon, eastward bound – the prospect off towards Staten island, or down the Narrows, or the other way up the Hudson – what refreshment of spirit such sights and experiences gave me years ago (and many a time since.) My old pilot friends, the Balsirs, Johnny Cole, Ira Smith, William White, and my young ferry friend, Tom Gere – how well I remember them all.

409. To read a story of a teacher/student sex scandal which may or may not have had Walt Whitman as its principal, see Reynolds, David, WALT WHITMAN'S AMERICA (Knopf):

That I could forget the mockers and insults!
That I could forget the trickling tears and the blows of the bludgeons and hammers!

HDTWHAT?INDEXSTEPHEN WANTON GOULD*FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 6th of 3M 1836 / Our meeting this morning was indeed a very solid good one - tho' mostly in Silence - it Seemed to me there was scarcely an Idle or irreverend mind present - Father had a short testimony to bear - soon after which the Meeting closed. - Good meeting again in the Afternoon & Father had a

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

little to say –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 10, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 10th of 3rd M / Small meeting & rather a low time Father had short testimonies in each –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 14, Monday: The HMS Beagle with Charles Darwin left Australia.

Sam Houston continued his retreat (known now as the “Runaway Scrape”), moving eastward in a zig-zagging pattern (until April 20th).

TEXAS

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*2nd day 14th of 3rd M / This day 24 Years ago our only living son John was born. – I cannot pass over the event without noting it in commemoration of the Mercy & goodness of God which have followed us ever since – for tho' we have had to partake of some bitter cups, known to few but ourselves, – yet surely Mercy & Goodness have followed us & we have partaken of many good things – both in regard to his presence often Mercifully vouchsafed & interposed for our help & support, & also in our getting along in the affairs of this world – for tho' abounding in this respect was never Known by us yet we have been so favoured as to have sufficient for our needs & some to spare.
John has so far done well, lived respectably & I hope has known a growth in religion & we believe is blessed with a good wife –*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 17, Thursday: The Constitution of the Republic of Texas: enslavement was to be for life (with no possibility of manumission ever); whether or not it should be legal to breed local negro slaves for sale would be an issue to be determined from time to time by the legislature in their wisdom; however, engaging in the international slave trade was to be a capital crime.

§ 9. All persons of color who were slaves for life before coming to Texas shall remain so. “Congress shall pass no laws to prohibit emigrants from bringing their slaves into the republic with them, and holding them by the same tenure by which such slaves were held in the United States; ... the importation or admission of Africans or negroes into this republic, excepting from the United States of America, is forever prohibited, and declared to be piracy.” LAWS OF THE REPUBLIC OF TEXAS (Houston, 1838), I. 19.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

5th day 17th of 3rd M 1836 / Our meeting was small owing to its being Stormy – Father was not there having a bad cold – It was a silent but solid & to me comfortable Meeting

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 18, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 18th of 3 M / Our Friends Enoch Page & his wife Sophrona together with Sister Elizabeth R Nichols on a journey into Virginia Yearly Meeting intending to pay a religious visit to the Meetings constituting it & to attend the approaching Yearly Meeting there in the 5th Month - They arrived in the Steamboat from Providence this Afternoon & the Wind blowing a gale they continued at the head of Long Wharf thro' the rest of the day & evening - this gave me an opportunity to visit them in the Afternoon, & again in the evening & had unity & sweet fellowship with them - under a full belief that it is right for them to go & that they are put forth under the influence of the right Spirit, & in the right calling. - The wind blew so hard that it was not fit for them to come on shore or they would have been very glad to have spent an hour or two at Fathers & with us. Mary Merrett wife of Wilson Merrett of NYork was also on board having been to Providence to fetch her son James from the YMBSchool who has been there for some time & is now quite sick We were kindly entertained by them at their home in NYork as we passed through on our return from Hudson in the 5 M last. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 20, Sunday: David Henry Thoreau was back at Harvard College for the 3d term of his Junior year, enrolling in courses in Greek, Latin, English, Italian, mathematics, and possibly chemistry. (Thoreau would be enrolled in the study of Italian for a total of four terms, in the study of French for four terms, in the study of German for four terms, and in the study of Spanish for two terms under Francis Sales.) The Italian studies would, as always, be under the instructor Pietro Bachi. This term would continue for Thoreau only until about May 28th, when he would be obliged by illness to suspend his college studies.

THOREAU RESIDENCES

NEW “HARVARD MEN”

HARVARD 1836 REPORT

The University of Leipzig conferred an honorary Doctor of Philosophy degree on Felix Mendelssohn.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st 20th of 3 M / Our Meetings were both silent & very solid quiet opportunities - for which I was thankful Aunt Stanton fell this Afternoon & hurt her hip very badly, but it does not seem as if any bone is broken or out

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

March 21, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 21st of 3 M 1836 / Last night Mother Rodman was taken Sick but is better today – Aunt Stanton no better in any respect–

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 23, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 23 of 3 M 1836 / I have been today taking a view & things past present & prospectively – Truly I have had much to be thankful for – I desire to enjoy present good, & submit the future to My heavenly Father, who has dealt so kindly with me all my life long. – I have this Afternoon visited Aunt Stanton, whose state of body & mind is truly pitiable – She is quite confined to her bed with her lameness & her mind so deranged that she has no comfort herself & seems disposed not to let any one around her take any – when deprived of reason what poor miserable & forlorn objects we are.–

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 24, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 24th of 3rd M 1836 / The Snow of day before yesterday made very sloppy walking & there were but few at Meeting but there was a comfortable company of Male & female, & the preparative Meeting was honourably held. – It was silent in the first

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 27, Palm Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 27th of 3 M / Our Meetings were silent, but solid good seasons. Father yet confined with a very havy cold & lame back –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

In Kirtland, Ohio, the 1st Mormon temple began to be dedicated (this would be a drawn-out process).

At Fort Defiance (Presidio La Bahia) in the town of Goliad, General Jose de Urrea, acting reluctantly under repeated direct orders of President of Mexico Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, who considered these foreigners to have the same legal standing as pirates, had 303 Texian prisoners of war marched out in three columns in three different directions, and then gunned down. Of the 40 who had been unable to walk, 39 were killed inside the fort. The commanding officer, Colonel James W. Fannin, was the last to be executed, and asked the firing squad to shoot him in the heart rather than in the face — so of course they shot him in the face. Of the 303 men in the three columns, 28 were able to feign death and escape.⁴¹⁰

Now I tell what I know in Texas in my early youth,
(I tell not the fall of Alamo,
Not one escaped to tell the fall of Alamo,
The hundred and fifty are dumb yet at Alamo,)
'Tis the tale of the murder in cold blood of four hundred and twelve young men.

Retreating they had form'd in a hollow square with their baggage for breastworks,
Nine hundred lives out of the surrounding enemy's, nine times their number, was the price they took in advance,
Their colonel was wounded and their ammunition gone,
They treated for an honorable capitulation, receiv'd writing and seal, gave up their arms and march'd back prisoners of war.

They were the glory of the race of rangers,
Matchless with horse, rifle, song, supper, courtship,
Large, turbulent, generous, handsome, proud, and affectionate,
Bearded, sunburnt, drest in the free costume of hunters,
Not a single one over thirty years of age.

The second First-day morning they were brought out in squads and massacred, it was beautiful early summer,
The work commenced about five o'clock and was over by eight.

None obey'd the command to kneel,
Some made a mad and helpless rush, some stood stark and straight,

410. Some 100 others were also executed (by the way, at this point Halley's Comet was finally fading from being visible to the naked eye).

SKY EVENT

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

A few fell at once, shot in the temple or heart, the living and dead lay together,
The maim'd and mangled dug in the dirt, the new-comers saw them there,
Some half-kill'd attempted to crawl away,
These were despatch'd with bayonets or batter'd with the blunts of muskets.
A youth not seventeen years old seiz'd his assassin till two more came to release him,
The three were all torn and cover'd with the boy's blood.

At eleven o'clock began the burning of the bodies;
That is the tale of the murder of the four hundred and twelve young men.

— Walt Whitman, SONG OF MYSELF, 34

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

March 31, Thursday: The initial monthly installment of Charles Dickens's 1st novel appeared:
THE POSTHUMOUS PAPERS OF THE PICKWICK CLUB.

(This was going to extend to 20 monthly magazine issues.)

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 31 of 3 M / Our Moy [Monthly] Meeting this day held in Town was a good Meeting Hannah Dennis, I thought was favoured in testimony -After Meeting heard my dear friend Moses Brown was very Sick

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

In his Harvard College book report on William Howitt's THE BOOK OF THE SEASONS; OR, THE CALENDAR OF NATURE, David Henry Thoreau attempted to commit New England weather banter:

...see how familiarly that North-western plays with the coat-flaps of the traveller, or sends him over stone walls and rail fences to fish his beaver out of a pond-hole. This is indeed melancholy.

Thoreau reviewed Howitt's effort by opinioning that this was a "book calculated to do all that books can do to

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

excite a spirit of attachment to nature.”

THE BOOK OF THE SEASONS

In consideration of all the folks who have considered Thoreau to have been an early nature writer, albeit not a good one (not one who could stick to his topic but one who persisted in interlarding his nature descriptions with distractive side attempts to set up a new religion), would it be possible to characterize WALDEN thusly, as a “book calculated to do all that books can do to excite a spirit of attachment to nature”? No. Larry Buell’s sustained analysis in THE ENVIRONMENTAL IMAGINATION to the contrary notwithstanding, no.

Our budding author also referred humorously but quite pointlessly to Captain John Cleves Symmes’s

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

THEORY OF CONCENTRIC SPHERES:

The Greenlander, dwelling on the very brink of Symmes' hole, exposed to the rigorous cold of the northern latitudes, with the bear's flesh and train oil to solace him, an inhabitant of snow and ice not of earth, crawls into a snow-bank, and yet his heart is not so frozen but that he feels at home.

WALDEN

SYMMES HOLE

Thoreau cited Samuel Taylor Coleridge's "The Nightingale" in mockery of Howitt's association of the month of November with the affect of melancholy. Coleridge's poem went "'Most musical, most melancholy' bird!"

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

/ A melancholy bird? Oh! Idle thought! / In Nature there is nothing melancholy.” Thoreau’s citation of this was

“There is nothing melancholy in Nature.” If there is, where is it?... To the eye of the dyspeptic, to be sure, all is stamped with melancholy. Let him walk out into the fields....

Also, in this essay, Thoreau disparaged those “who are destitute of pure and elevated principle, whose sordid views extend no further than the profitable, who cannot contemplate the meandering brook, without, in imagination, polluting its waters with a mill-wheel.” He did this, however, by alleging that such white folks were “less enviable” than

The poor Indian! whose untutor’d mind
Sees God in clouds, or hears him the wind.

Here he was referring, of course, to Alexander Pope’s ESSAY ON MAN and its “Lo” figure who “hears him in the wind.” One wishes this youth had possessed the wit, even at that time in his college studies, to refrain from such phrases as “less enviable” which give the appearance of being complicit with the general mythos of the dominant cultures of America, that a native American is rather a poor sort of American.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

We may console ourselves, however, by noting that although Thoreau's word choice was inappropriate, indeed quite as inelegant as his having inadvertently omitted a word from the doggerel he quoted, nevertheless the mistake reveals no particular ill will and endorses no social policy of extermination of the inferior. It might prove useful for you to contrast this with a remark Waldo Emerson's would make a few years later in his journal, on September 10, 1840 , in which the same Popish term "poor Indian" would be mobilized merely to conclude that for us officiously to take the positive steps that would be necessary to exterminate these human-seeming nonhumans ("similar") before their time would be a moral error — in that it would have an unfortunate moral impact on ourselves.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

PEOPLE OF WALDEN

WALDEN: Yet we should oftener look over the taffarel of our craft, like curious passengers, and not make the voyage like stupid sailors picking oakum. The other side of the globe is but the home of our correspondent. Our voyaging is only great-circle sailing, and the doctors prescribe for diseases of the skin merely. One hastens to Southern Africa to chase the giraffe; but surely that is not the game he would be after. How long, pray, would a man hunt giraffes if he could? Snipes and woodcocks also may afford rare sort; but I trust it would be nobler game to shoot one's self.-

“Direct your eye sight inward, and you'll find
A thousand regions in your mind
Yet undiscovered. Travel them, and be Expert in home-cosmography.”

What does Africa, -what does the West stand for? Is not our own interior white on the chart? black though it may prove, like the coast, when discovered. Is it the source of the Nile, or the Niger, or the Mississippi, or a North-West Passage around this continent, that we would find? Are these the problems which most concern mankind? Is Franklin the only man who is lost, that his wife should be so earnest to find him? Does Mr. Grinnell know where he himself is? Be rather the Mungo Park, the Lewis and Clarke and Frobisher, of your own streams and oceans; explore your own higher latitudes, -with shiploads of preserved meats to support you, if they be necessary; and pile the empty cans sky-high for a sign. Were preserved meats invented to preserve meat merely? Nay, be a Columbus to whole new continents and worlds within you, opening new channels, not of trade, but of thought. Every man is the lord of a realm beside which the earthly empire of the Czar is but a petty state, a hummock left by the ice. Yet some can be patriotic who have no self-respect, and sacrifice the greater to the less. They love the soil which makes their graves, but have no sympathy with the spirit which may still animate their clay. Patriotism is a maggot in their heads. What was the meaning of that South-Sea Exploring Expedition, with all its parade and expense, but an indirect recognition of the fact, that there are continents and seas in the moral world, to which every man is an isthmus or an inlet, yet unexplored by him, but that it is easier to sail many thousand miles through cold and storm and cannibals, in a government ship, with five hundred men and boys to assist one, than it is to explore the private sea, the Atlantic and Pacific Ocean of one's being alone.-

“Erret, et extremos alter scrutetur Iberos.
Plus habet hic vitæ, plus habet ille viæ.”
Let them wander and scrutinize the outlandish Australians.
I have more of God, they more of the road.

It is not worth the while to go round the world to count the cats in Zanzibar. Yet do this even till you can do better, and you may perhaps find some “Symmes' Hole” by which to get at the inside at last. England and France, Spain and Portugal, Gold Coast and Slave Coast, all front on this private sea; but no bark from them has ventured out of sight of land, though it is without doubt the direct way to India. If you would learn to speak all tongues and conform to the customs of all nations, if you would travel farther than all travellers, be naturalized in all climes, and cause the Sphinx to dash her head against a stone, even obey the precept of the old philosopher, and Explore thyself. Herein are demanded the eye and the nerve. Only the defeated and deserters go to the wars, cowards that run away and enlist. Start now on that farthest western way, which does not pause at the Mississippi or the Pacific, nor conduct toward a worn-out China or Japan, but leads on direct a tangent to this sphere, summer and winter, day and night, sun down, moon down, and at last earth down too.

LEWIS AND CLARK

SYMMES HOLE

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

March 31, 1836

Review of [William Howitt's THE BOOK OF THE SEASONS; OR, THE CALENDAR OF NATURE, first published in 1951 by Professor Wendell Glick in the Huntington Library Quarterly. The "Advertisement" of the first edition (London, 1831) is dated Dec. 15, 1830. Besides the first, Harvard owns the following: (4th edition) London, 1836; (5th edition) London, 1837; (6th edition) London, 1839; (6th edition) London, 1840 (From the 6th London edition) Phila., 1842; (6th edition) London, 1856; (7th edition) London, 1846. Many others, doubtless, were in circulation. Thoreau's review, composed six months before the publication of Emerson's NATURE, probably introduced him to his lifelong quest for the objects and appearances peculiar to each month of the year. See Emerson's JOURNALS, III, 460-461 (Mar. 28, 1835.) See also Emerson the Essayist, I, 411, for a note on NATURE, 12.3.] [Copy in Concord Social Library before 1836.]

THE BOOK OF THE SEASONS; OR THE CALENDAR OF NATURE,
by William Howitt

1st edition, London, 1831. A rather popular work, this book went through three editions before 1850.

We have here a book calculated to do all that books can do to excite a spirit of attachment to Nature—one expressly adapted to the climate and customs of England, but none the less acceptable to the lovers of natural scenery of whatever clime or nation—neither too scientific, nor too much abounding in technical term and phrases to be comprehended by the general reader, nor yet of too miscellaneous and catch-penny a stamp for the would-be literate or blue stockings. "My plan has been" says the author, "to furnish an original article on the general appearances of Nature in each month, drawing entirely from my own regular observation through many seasons; and finally, to superadd a great variety of facts from the best sources, as well as such as occurred to myself after the principle [sic] article was written. To these a complete table of the Migrations of Birds; a copious list of Garden Plants which come into flower in the month; a Botanical Calendar and an Entomological catalogue; a notice of Rural occupations, and finally, one of Angling, are added."

(Ibid., pp. Vi-vii. I have not attempted to call attention to Thoreau's errors in transcription or to other than his most egregious slips in grammatical usage.)

See line 9. Howitt reads "regular observations."

T. abbreviated his quotations. Compare, for example, Howitt, ed. Princ., vii: "...a Botanical Calendar, including a select number of the most beautiful or interesting British plants, and an Entomological Catalogue of about three hundred of the most common or remarkable insects; a notice of Rural Occupations, and, finally, one of Angling, are added."

There are certain pure and substantial pleasures, pleasures springing from a never failing source, which are absolutely denied those who are destitute of pure and elevated principle, whose sordid views extend no further than the profitable, who cannot contemplate the meandering brook without, in imagination, polluting its waters with a mill-wheel⁸

"Mill-wheel." Cf. His theme, "Advantages and Disadvantages of Foreign Influence on American Literature" (April, before 6, 1836: "True, there are some amongst us who can contemplate the babbling brook without (in imagination) polluting its waters with a mill-wheel; but even they are prone to sing of skylarks...."

Far less enviable in my eyes, is their condition, than that of

"The poor Indian, whose untutor'd mind Sees God in clouds, or hears him [in] the wind."

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

No one, perhaps, possesses materials for happiness in such abundance, or has the sources of contentment and pure enjoyment so completely under his thumb, as the lover of Nature. Her devotee is never alone; the solitary vale is as the crowded city, even there may he "hold sweet converse" with nature; even, did I say? Here is she most garrulous, most communicative; this her home—her country-seat, where she resides all the year round. This love is universal, it is emphatically natural. The inhabitant of the desert talks of home—prized home—he leaves home and he returns home; to him there is nothing like home and her homely comforts. The desert, in his eyes, is blooming as the rose. The Greenlander, dwelling on the very brink of Symmes' hole exposed to the rigorous cold of the northern latitudes, with the bear's flesh and train oil to solace him, an inhabitant of snow and ice not of earth, crawls into a snow-bank, and yet his heart is not so frozen but that he feels at home. The tanned and dusky African realizes the delights of "de dear native land" in dancing a jog on (not under) the equator. We find that no region is so barren or so desolate as not to afford some human being a home. But Nature's home is everywhere, and in whatever clime, her devotee is at home with her. The attachment to his country which is manifested by the mariner, as he looses [sic] sight of "the blue hue of his native land," (as Irving has beautifully expressed it,) and which is at no time more strongly felt than when, on some distant strand his thoughts revert to the well-known steeple, the most conspicuous object in a country village, the slowly winding stream which flows at the foot of the hill where he netted in Autumn and coasted in Winter, the cart path that leads down to the great meadows where the grapes were as thick as blackberries and cranberries were to be had for the picking, this attachment, I say, this love of natural scenery, (for they are equivalent—which explains the truth of the observation, that no one is more fond of home than the traveller,) is so interwoven with the best feelings of our nature that it would seem obscure to suppose it associated with meaner and baser sentiments, or vice in any shape. The great and good of every age and nation have felt its influence. Poetry, from Chaucer's to the present time has teemed with it. The lost of his sight did not shut out Nature from the view of Milton; the rich store-house of his mind was a source of serene and elevated pleasure in his hours of darkness—the inmost recesses of the Garden of Eden were as plainly visible to him as the light of day could have made them. "Between the poet and nature," says Schlegel, "no less than between the poet and man, there is a sympathy of feeling. Not only in the song of the Nightingale, or in the melodies to which all men listen, but even in the roar of the stream, and the rushing of the forest, the poet thinks that he hears a kindred voice of sorrow or of gladness; as if spirits and feelings like our own were calling to use from afar, or seeking to sympathize and communicate with us from the utmost nearness to which their natures will allow them to approach us. It is for the purpose of listening to these tones, and of holding mysterious converse with the soul of nature, that every great poetry is a lover of solitude."⁹

So much for Germany; with how much more truth would these remarks apply to America; "America," in the words of the Novelist, "with her beautiful and stupendous scenes of nature; her immense lakes; her broad and sweeping rivers; her clime melting into all the variety of the globe; her cataraacts shaking the earth; her mountains kissing the heavens; her solitudes and forests, yet hushed in primeval silence."

January is derived from the Latin, Janus, door-keeper of heaven, and God of peace. Under this head is described a great storm which will serve as a specimen of the author's style, "Frost-keen biting frost is in the ground and in the air, a bitter scythe-edged, perforating wind from the north; or what is worse, the north-east, sweeps the descending snow along, whirling it from the open fields, and driving it against whatever opposes its course. People who are obliged to be passing to and fro muffle up their faces, and bow their heads to the blast. There is no loitering, no street-gossiping, no stopping to make recognition of each other; they shuffle along the most wintry objects of the scene, bearing on their fronts the tokens of the storm. Against every house, rock or bank the snow-drift accumulates. It curls over the tops of walls and hedges in fantastic wildness, forming often the most perfect curves, resembling the scrolls of Ionic capitals, and showing beneath romantic caves and canopies."¹⁰

February is so called from the Roman custom of burning expiatory sacrifices, Februalia. "Nothing can perhaps illustrate so livingly our idea of a spirit," says Howitt, "as a mighty wind—present in its amazing power and sublimity, yet seen only in its effects. We are whirled along with its careening torrent with irresistible [sic] power."¹¹ Who can stand on the verge of the forest, at the approach of nightfall, on the eve of a tempest, and hear it as it comes rushing and roaring in its mad career, without being influenced by overwhelming ideas of majesty, grandeur, and the awful power of the elements.

March, the first month in antiquity, was named so after Mars the god of War, because he was the father of their first prince. All Nature is now reviving; the earth throws off her snowy mantle and puts on the garb of spring; the squirrel comes forth from his subterranean abode to snuff the fresh air, and commences his sprightly gambols along the walls and hedges, or skip from tree to tree, seemingly in mere sport. The air is still too chilly for the feathered race, though the shrill and doleful note of the jay is heard in the orchards.

April is so called from the Latin, Aprilis, which is derived from Aperire, to open. The allusion is obvious. "April shows/Bring forth May flowers," is one of the old sayings which possess no intrinsic merit of their own, but derive all their interest from the association of ideas, as Stewart would say.

[Pope, Essay on Man, I, 99-100.]

[See Milton, Paradise Lost, IX, 909, and Shakespeare's Two Gentlemen of Verona, I, iii, 31.]

[Isaiah 35:1.]

[Symes' Hole is mentioned in the last chapter of Walden. For commentary on Capt. John Cleves Symmes and his belief that the earth was hollow and open at the poles (Theory of Concentric Spheres, 1826) see Joseph Jones, Index to Walden, Austin, [1955], p. 49]

Unidentified. The language resembles that of passages in Lydia Maria (Francis) Child's The Rebels; or, Boston before the Revolution (see esp. The "Preface") and in Irving's "The Author's Account of Himself" at the beginning of The Sketch Book.

Cf. Whittier's "Snow-Bound: A Winter Idyl" and Emerson's "The Snow-Storm." This much of Howitt the New Englander could fully appreciate.

¹⁰Ibid., pp. 4-5.

¹¹Ibid., p. 42

T. had recently completed Dugald Stewart's ELEMENTS OF THE PHILOSOPHY OF THE HUMAN MIND—required for the first term of the Junior year. Chap. V. deals with the association of ideas.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May is so called from the Goddess Maia. This is, perhaps, the pleasantest month of the 12. The Botanist may now commence his rambles without much fear of suffocating heat or intense cold. Now also commences the harvest of death, and woe be unto the unlucky squirrel[,] bob lincoln, or black bird that [ventures?] to approach the haunts of man, or sit within the range of an old French-piece or horse-pistol! Every stripling that can shoulder a musket, or can hold up one end while the other rests on a rail, or can muster courage to touch off a wooden cannon without shutting his eyes is up and stirring betimes. And then what a rattling of ramrods! What a demand for wadding paper with which to stuff the pockets of the ragged troop that one may see assembled around the instrument of death, ready to counsel and assist, nay, even to take charge of the weapon itself should the absence of its present proprietor make it necessary. And now if some stray sparrow should have the imprudence to perch upon a neighboring post, tree, or rock, or if a bob-lincoln holding in utter contempt the marksmanship of the musket-bearer, should approach within gunshot, then what a scateration takes place; some are seen to ensconce themselves behind a tree, others fall flat upon the ground, while some favored 2 or 3 boldly accompany their leader to the work of death. The barrel is slowly raised, the now diminished group satisfy themselves that the right angle of elevation is attained, and then the hero of the day, with the rest to back him pulls the trigger. Tick, goes the lock, and now succeeds a hissing noise which proves the success of the experiment, showing that the powder is subjected to the process of ignition; endued with the patience of Job our hero abides the result. The passerby will not probably have proceeded many rods before he is startled by the report, which reverberating through the surrounding forest produces a startling effect upon myriads of the smaller birds and quadrupeds, and, perhaps disturbs, for a moment, the calm, unruffled serenity of the victim. Then for the hurry, bustle, and confusion of the motley crew who are hastening to be in at the death. The victim is finally transmitted to the hands of the executioner as completely base and destitute of feathers, as the callow young who are piping anything but melody in the deserted nest.

June, probably from Juno, in honor of whom a festival was held at the beginning of this month. "June," says Howitt, "is the very carnival of Nature, and she is prodigal of her luxuries. It is luxury to walk abroad indulging every sense with sweetness, loveliness, and harmony. It is luxury to stand beneath the forest side, when all is still and basking at noon; and to see the landscape suddenly darken, the black and tumultuous clouds assemble as at a signal; to hear the awful thunder crash upon the listening air; and then to mark the glorious bow rise on the lurid rear of the tempest, the sun laugh jocundly abroad, and

Every bathed leaf and blossom fair
Pour out its soul to the delicious air.

It is luxury to plunge into the cool river; and, if we are tempted to turn angles, it must be now. To steal away into a quiet valley, by a winding stream, buried, completely buried, in fresh grass; the foam-like flower of the meadow sweet, the crimson loose-strife, and the large blue geranium nodding beside us; the dragon fly, the ephemera, and the kingfisher glancing to and fro; the trees above casting their flickering shadows on the stream; and one of our 10,000 volumes of delightful literature in our pockets—then indeed might one be a most patient angler though taking not a single fin."¹²

July, from J. Caesar. "Now is the general season of hay-making. There is a sound of tinkling teams and waggons rolling along lanes and fields the whole country over, ay, even at midnight, till at length, the fragrant ricks rise in the farmyard, and the pale, smooth shaven fields are left in solitary beauty."¹³

Honest old Isaak Walton has done much in his quaint style, to impart an interest to quiet haunts and streams—to cool and shady banks, which if they are ever interesting are peculiarly so this month. Nature has spread her flowering carpet over the earth, and a thousand ripening berries invite the wanderer to prolong his walks.

Howitt's discussion of May is literary and concerns the month of marriages. T. substitutes a memorable picture of New England boyhood in Concord village. Compare the opening pages of "Higher Laws" in Walden.

[Continued from p. 144.] See Outre-Mer, II, 245-247: "...amid these scenes and musings—amid all the novelties of the old world, and the quick succession of images...there were always fond regrets and longings after the land of my birth, lurking in the secret corners of my heart. When I stood by the seashore, and listened to the melancholy and familiar roar of its waves, it seemed but a step from the threshold of a foreign land to the fireside of home; and when I watched the out-bound sail, fading over the water's edge, and losing itself in the blue mists of the sea, my heart

¹²Outre-Mer, II, pp. 176-7. Should read: "176-178."

¹³Outre-Mer, II, pp. xxv. Should read: "224-225."

T. here summarizes Howitt's p. Xxv.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

August, from Augustus. The grand feature of this month is Corn Harvest. Berries of almost every description are now perfectly ripe; the sports-man may be seen, drenched with the morning dew,—rambling about the fields, or reconnoitering the hedges, in search of game; the orchards assume a rosy tint, which is a sign that the season for commencing depredations has already set in. A walk in any direction is delightful, but a quiet cart-path leading through the woods to some sylvan dell, some well known spot, a “Sleepy Hollow” for instance, is preferable. Sept. It is the height of enjoyment, reclined at length upon the turf, in the shade of a noble tree, to give reins to the imagination—to hearken to the audible silence that prevails around the hum of 10000 insects with which the air is filled—the materials, it would seem of which the atmosphere is composed. It is at such times that man realizes that he is indeed the Lord of Creation. What can be more majestic than a stately oak presiding with parental care over the surrounding fields, with arms outstretched, as it were, to protect the traveller! What an idea of independence it suggests! There it stands and there it has stood for ages; generation after generation has passed away, and still we talk of the oak; from year to year the birds have build their nests and carolled in its branches, and the squirrel frisked from bough to bough; The tired Indian, perchance, in times gone by, has sought shelter and refreshment in its shade. To use the words of a novelist, for novelists sometimes speak the truth, “The fruit of an insignificant seed, you were planted by accident, and grew in neglect; and now you appear flinging abroad your branches to heaven, striking your roots deep into the hearth, bending and groaning sometimes beneath the storm, but never yielding to its fury; and towering above the surrounding woods, till the remote revolutions of time and nature shall lay your lofty honors in the dust.” Oct. Nothing can be more pleasing to the eye than the appearance of the woods at this season. Green is allowed by most oculists [sic] to be the color which the eye may dwell upon with the least injury, as it is certainly that to which it is most accustomed. The trees have now thrown off their green costume and assumed a variegated dress of orange, red, brown, and yellow, a yellowish brown predominating. The waving surface of the forest, as from some height the eye runs over the sea of colors, invites the beholder to come down and stalk sat large over the undulating, but seemingly compact plane, to explore each nook and cranny, the haunts of hawks and ravens.

Nov. There is nothing melancholy in Nature.” If there is, where is it? It is in the op’ning bud of Spring—youthful boy-ant [sic] Spring, in the blooming flower of Summer, or the yellow harvest of Autumn? To the eye of the dyspeptic, to be sure, all is stamped with melancholy. Let him walk out into the fields—take no exercise, but get as much as he can—let him look at the butterfly pursuing its zigzag course from flower to flower, and from field to field, and then talk of Dyspepsia: why it would puzzle the Blue Devils to follow suite. Do you think they would feel at home by the side of its gaudy opinions? Oh no! They would ‘vanish into thin air.’ But some, in a doleful tone, will remind you of the fall of the leaf.

Every tree sends forth its thousands—away they go, flying hither and thither, up and down, in search of a resting place. Behold dame Partlet sailing up the avenue with feathers all erect, urged by rude Boreas to an unwonted pace; or see how familiarly that North-western plays with the coat-flaps of the traveller, or sends him over stone walls and rail fences to fish his beaver out of a pond-hole. This is indeed melancholy. The following are the words of one possessed of what he calls the golden abundance and profuse beauty of this magnificent globe, one who is ready to resign the true riches of this world to the uncivilised savage, and the poverty-stricken peasant.

“Those luscious ever-green valleys, those luxuriant hills, those rich slopes, clothed with the most gorgeous fruits and the tenderest and deepest verdure, and more than all, those gentle and transparent skies, seem beneficently designed for man in his more uncivilized state, or for the poor.” The so-called rich may enjoy all the honors that titled rank can confer, they may revel in luxury and dissipation [sic], and count their wealth by thousands and tens of thousands,—but if they reject or are denied those gifts which Nature alone can bestow,—they are poor indeed. Is it poverty to breathe [sic] the free air of heaven, to satisfy the cravings of hunger with the simple fruits of the soil, to quench the natural thirst from the running water of the brook, or to seek refreshment for the wearied limbs on the lap of our common mother Earth? Is it wealth to monopolise the confined air of a pleasure carriage, to wage continual war with Nature, to pore over the hues of a few home-sick and stinted [sic?] exotics to gratify the least intellectual of the 5 senses? Does it consist in the profession of one half this sunny little farm the Earth without enjoying a foot, or in the putting in jeopardy the health and spirits by swallowing the earliest green cucumber?

Concord had its “Sleepy Hollow.” The phrase also suggests Irving’s “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow” and “Rip Van Winkle.”

Probably T’s paraphrase of Coleridge’s famous line in “The Nightingale:”

‘Most musical, most melancholy’ bird! A melancholy bird? Oh! Idle thought! In Nature there is nothing melancholy.

Howitt begins his discussion of November with two pages on melancholy Ossian, whose harp is a “harp of sorrow.” “It breathes perpetually of melancholy tenderness.” (369) “...we are now surrounded by precisely the melancholy images in which he delight. We are in a month of darkness, storms, and mists.” (370). T. Laughs at the concept. As a Transcendentalist, he holds to Quantum sumus scimus. To the alert and happy person—to the God-directed—November can be a month of glee. T. Indulges in delightful irony at Howitt’s expense.

“Those luscious ever-green valleys...” Source?

“thousands and tens of thousands....” For this allusion, see 1 Samuel 18:7ff. T. Used it again in his theme, “Advantages and Disadvantages of Foreign Influence on American Literature,” April, [before 6], 1835: “The Press is daily sending forth its thousands and tens of thousands; for the publisher says ‘it is profitable.”

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

December. Nature is left in undisturbed possession of the country, while man resorts to his burrow the city.

March 31st 1836

1836, MARCH 31+ [HM945] [The following is appended to T's review of William Howitt and was possibly written shortly thereafter. His source might have been: Francis Parkman, "Salem Witchcraft," Christian Examiner, XI (n.s., VI) (1831-1832) pp. 240-259 (a review of Charles W. Upham's Lectures on Witchcraft. Parkman quotes from Cotton Mather's diary: "July 1, 1724. This day being our insipid, ill-contrived anniversary, which we call the commencement, I chose to spend it at home in supplications, partly on the behalf of the College, that it may not be foolishly thrown away, but that God may bestow such a President upon it as may prove a rich blessing unto it and unto all our churches." Mather has some where observed, "July 1, 1724. This day being our insipid, ill-contrived anniversary, which we call the commencement

April 3, Easter Sunday morning: Frederick Douglass was thrown into jail in Easton, the county seat, in Maryland, charged with complicity in a plan to escape from the labor gang of William Freeland.⁴¹¹ Douglass had used his laboriously acquired knowledge of language to compose passes or "protections" for himself and a number of other field laborers. Here Douglass later reconstructs the substance of what he had written in these "protections," despite the fact that upon the failure of the escape plan all copies of the "protections" had been destroyed by the slaves:

*"This is to certify that I, the undersigned, have given the bearer, my servant, full liberty to go to Baltimore, and spend the Easter holidays.
Written with mine own hand, &c., 1835.*

"WILLIAM HAMILTON,

"Near St. Michael's, in Talbot county, Maryland."

Quite possibly, one of the members of the group plotting this escape has informed on the others.

At the climax of the dedication of the temple of the Mormons in Kirtland, Ohio on this Easter Sunday, people were channeling not only Christ Jesus, but also Moses, and Elijah.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th M 3rd (1st day) 1836 / Meetings both silent & solid -While I fully believe a sound & living Gospel Ministry is a great blessing to a Meeting I am also as fully in the belief that is is not absolutely necessary to Make a good Meeting, for I have no doubt that many at our Meetings today were sensibly edified in Silent Waiting - While I was sensible that my own spirit could

411. Later, in his autobiography, Douglass would play on words in the Thoreauvian style:

Frederick Douglass's NARRATIVE

But, by this time, I began to want to live upon free land as well as with Freeland; and I was no longer content, therefore, to live with him or any other slaveholder.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

not impart much religious weight I was confirmed it was a season of refreshment to others. -

After Meeting in the Afternoon with Brother Isaac attended the funeral of Patience Lina a woman of colour who was the daughter of old Betty Dyre who with her Mother, who was known in the family as Mother Moll were the family Servants of my Great Grandfather Samuel Clarke of Connanicut, & we felt it due to Patience to pay her so much respectful remembrance as to attend her funeral - I well remember (from my childhood to the day of her death & attended her funeral) Betty Dyre & her Husband James Dyre - I have heard my Mother say James was the favorite servant of Sam Dyre & that when James & Betty were married - Grandfather Clarke made a wedding for them at his House & Saml Dyre attended it & them [then] Saml Dyre made another at his house which Grandfather Clarke came over to Saml Dyres & attended also - this was an uncommon occurrence in those days.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 5, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 5th of 4th M 1836 / As I have frequently done, I visited Aunt Stanton, who is truly a most Miserable object both in body & Mind, ever since uncles decease she has been loosing her reason & the greater part of the time quite frantic & full of the most unreasonable halucinations of Mind & a few weeks ago fell & hurt her hip which deprived her of walking - Last first Day her nurse & caretaker discovered she had a bad Sore come very suddenly on The lower part of her back & hips, which first appeard like a spot as black as a hat, at first it was about as big as the Palm of the hand, & when a thin black Scale came off it appeared inflamed & began to run very putrid matter - the sore is increasing & she is this Afternoon very weak & low, & how long she can remain in her present condition is uncertain - but it is very afflicting to see her under so much suffering in body & her mind also so distressed that no human effort can alleviate or soothe in any degree - I suggested to her this Afternoon that I was sorry to see her in such a State of mind, as it did not seem from present appearances that she could remain in this life much longer - But it did not seem to affect her in any way. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

April 7, Thursday: Death of William Godwin in London. The body would be interred next to Mary Wollstonecraft in the burial ground of Old St. Pancras Church (in 1851 both would be moved to Bournemouth Churchyard to be placed next to Mary Shelley).

Here is a fragment that by chance has been preserved, evidently of a Harvard College essay by David Henry Thoreau on Sir Henry Vane although we do not have a record of Professor Channing having made this one of his assignments. The fragmentary essay is now at the Huntington Library in Pasadena, California. At least a third of a page is missing at its center. At its end this fragment bears the marking "Concord, April 7th 1836." The "Clarendon" reference in the text would be to Edward Hyde, 1st Earl of Clarendon's 1717 HISTORY OF THE REBELLION AND CIVIL WARS IN ENGLAND: BEGUN IN THE YEAR 1641:

... The fact that he was no party man, the leader of no sect, but equally to be feared by the foes of freedom and religion every where, explains the circumstance of his being passed over, with little if any notice, by the historians of the day. The age in which he lived was not worthy of him, his contemporaries knew not how to appreciate his talents or his motives to action, the principles which he advanced, the great truths which he foretold were soon to shake the civilized world to its very center, and before which the bulwarks of tyranny and oppression were to crumble away, were to them absolutely unintelligible, unmeaning nonsense – opposed to that "clearness of ratiocination" which even Clarendon allowed him to possess in conversation. It was peculiarly the duty of America to brush away the dust of ages that had collected around his name – to clear off the cobwebs that prejudices and calumny had spun ... of argument in defence of liberty religious and political, were the captives that adorned his triumph – assembled multitudes formed the procession – the talent, wealth, and nobility of the kingdom were collected around his chariot, to wonder and admire. Thus fell Vane,

"Than whom", in the words of a kindred spirit,
"a better senator ne'er held
"The helm of Rome, when gowns, not arms, repelled"
"The fierce Epirot, and the African bold,"
"Whether to settle peace, or to unfold"
"The drift of hollow states hard to be spelled."
On whose "firm hand Religion leans"
"In peace, and reckons" -him- "her eldest son".

Equally the terror of evil-doers, and the praise of those who did well wherever and whoever they might be.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 7th of 4th M 1836 / Our Meeting was silent - but some of the few who met I trust were sensible & knew the Source from whence worship was performed - It was but a low time with me. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

 April 10, Sunday: Richard P. Robinson murdered famed New-York prostitute Helen Jewett. Because of her profession few would complain when a bribed jury would acquit Robinson and he would be set free.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 10th of 4th M / Our Meetings were both silent, but to me very solid seasons –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 April 12, Tuesday: Despite his serious injuries from being mauled by a Bengal tiger, John Adams got married with Cylena (“Selma” or “Cylie” or “Selena”) Drury (January 1, 1816-February 19, 1866) in Spencer, Massachusetts.⁴¹² For a period of about 15 years he would be working in the shoemaking business in the vicinity of Boston. The marriage would produce a daughter Arathusea Elizabeth Adams (1843-November 8, 1875) and a son Seymour Adams (December 25, 1845-July 23, 1865). Eventually there would be financial difficulty, occasioned by the loss by fire in St. Louis of a consignment of Adams’s shoes and boots.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 12th of 4th M / This Morning I recd a letter from my fr Joshua Lynch of Ohio – It mentioned his prospect of attending our approaching Y Meeting & that of NYork – In the evening Stephen A Chase called & set the evening with us – he has been to his Father James Robinsons & is on his way home to Salem in the Morning Steam Boat – Thos P Nichols also called in a little while in the evening. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

412. I bet you didn’t know Henry Thoreau lived within a few miles of Grizzly Adams!

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

April 14, Thursday: The brothers Friend William Henry Harvey and Friend Joseph Harvey embarked in Cape Town, South Africa for the journey back to the British Isles.

David Henry Thoreau's Harvard College essay on assignment "Literary Digressions." Under this date in Thoreau's literary notebook there is a detached fragment which appears to be the conclusion to a forensic which might have been titled something like "Do Digressions or Examples Destroy the Unity of a Literary Work?" This detached fragment, which Thoreau indicates that he wrote while in Concord town, evidently on vacation, rather than while in Cambridge town, reads as follows:

author may chance, here and there, to throw out, upon the characters and actions of his personages, and which are regarded by the majority of his readers as interrupting to the course of the narative [sic], and are generally passed over with little if any notice, for wherein, I would ask, do these differ from the admonitions and exhortations of the express moral teacher? Perhaps his interests in the work, like an accompanying sweet, may induce the reader to swallow the bitter potion. Physiologists, however, would say, "let the draught be swallowed voluntarily, if you would expect it to produce its full effect!" With regard to the "exemplification" business, it reminds me of the fable of the lion and the painter; — if lions had been painters it would have been otherwise. Examples may be divided into good and bad.

In exegesis of this fragment's "reminds me of the fable of the lion and the painter; — if lions had been painters it would have been otherwise," we may refer to the fables of Æsop⁴¹³.

413. Do not assume that you know the Æsop fables. Most editions are highly selective, and your experience may well be with a very partial and tendentious subset of the fables. For the Greek text, consult Ben Perry's AESOPICA (which can be ordered from amazon.com, shipped in 4-6 weeks), and for an English translation, consult Ben Perry's Loeb edition of BABRIUS AND PHAEDRUS (shipped within 2-3 days from amazon.com). This Loeb volume contains in addition English translations of 143 Greek verse fables by Babrius, 126 Latin verse fables by Phaedrus, 328 Greek fables not extant in Babrius, and 128 Latin fables not extant in Phaedrus (including some medieval materials) for a total of 725 fables.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Page 41 of the Ernest Rhys edition:⁴¹⁴

Once upon a time a Man and a Lion were journeying together, and came at length to high words which was the braver and stronger creature of the two. As the dispute waxed warmer they happened to pass by, on the road-side, a statue of a man strangling a lion. "See there," said the Man; "what more undeniable proof can you have of our superiority than that?" "That," said the Lion, "is your version of the story; let us be the sculptors, and for one lion under the feet of a man, you shall have twenty men under the paw of a lion." Men are but sorry witnesses in their own cause.

Steve Mailleaux's version:

A Man and a Lion traveled together through the forest. They soon began to boast of their respective superiority ⁴¹⁴. London, 1936.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

to each other in strength and prowess. As they were disputing, they passed a statue carved in stone, which represented “a Lion strangled by a Man.” The traveler pointed to it and said: “See there! How strong we are, and how we prevail over even the king of beasts.” The Lion replied: “This statue was made by one of you men. If we Lions knew how to erect statues, you would see the Man placed under the paw of the Lion.” One story is good, till another is told.

There is, however, an interesting cross-pollination here between the fables of [Æsop and the philosophical fragments of the Presocratic Eleatic Xenophanes. For three of his sentences as incidentally preserved for our eyes in the seven books of the MISCELLANIES (STROMATEIS) of St. Clement of Alexandria (but not elsewhere) read as follows:

#14: But mortals deem that the gods are begotten as they are, and have clothes like theirs, and voice and form. (5.109)

#15: Yes, and if oxen and horses or lions had hands, and could paint with their hands, and produce works of art as men do, horses would paint the forms of the gods like horses, and oxen like oxen, and make their bodies in the image of their several kinds. (5.110)

#16: The Ethiopians make their gods black and snub-nosed; the Thracians say theirs have blue eyes and red hair. (7.22)]

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

CAPE COD: It is remarkable that there is not in English any adequate or correct account of the French exploration of what is now the coast of New England, between 1604 and 1608, though it is conceded that they then made the first permanent European settlement on the continent of North America north of St. Augustine. If the lions had been the painters it would have been otherwise. This omission is probably to be accounted for partly by the fact that the early edition of Champlain's "Voyages" had not been consulted for this purpose. This contains by far the most particular, and, I think, the most interesting chapter of what we may call the Ante-Pilgrim history of New England, extending to one hundred and sixty pages quarto; but appears to be unknown equally to the historian and the orator on Plymouth Rock. Bancroft does not mention Champlain at all among the authorities for De Monts' expedition, nor does he say that he ever visited the coast of New England. Though he bore the title of pilot to De Monts, he was, in another sense, the leading spirit, as well as the historian of the expedition. Holmes, Hildreth, and Barry, and apparently all our historians who mention Champlain, refer to the edition of 1632, in which all the separate charts of our harbors, &c., and about one half the narrative, are omitted; for the author explored so many lands afterward that he could afford to forget a part of what he had done. Hildreth, speaking of De Monts's expedition, says that "he looked into the Penobscot [in 1605], which Pring had discovered two years before," saying nothing about Champlain's extensive exploration of it for De Monts in 1604 (Holmes says 1608, and refers to Purchas); also that he followed in the track of Pring along the coast "to Cape Cod, which he called Malabarre." (Haliburton had made the same statement before him in 1829. He called it Cap Blanc, and Malle Barre (the Bad Bar) was the name given to a harbor on the east side of the Cape.) Pring says nothing about a river there. Belknap says that Weymouth discovered it in 1605. Sir F. Gorges says, in his narration (Maine Hist. Coll., Vol. II. p. 19), 1658, that Pring in 1606 "made a perfect discovery of all the rivers and harbors." This is the most I can find. Bancroft makes Champlain to have discovered more western rivers in Maine, not naming the Penobscot; he, however, must have been the discoverer of distances on this river (see Belknap, p. 147). Pring was absent from England only about six months, and sailed by this part of Cape Cod (Malebarre) because it yielded no sassafras, while the French, who probably had not heard of Pring, were patiently for years exploring the coast in search of a place of settlement, sounding and surveying its harbors.

ÆSOP

XENOPHANES

CHAMPLAIN

WEBSTER

BANCROFT

HILDRETH

HOLMES

HALIBURTON

BELKNAP

GORGES

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

A WEEK: It is remarkable that Homer and a few Hebrews are the most Oriental names which modern Europe, whose literature has taken its rise since the decline of the Persian, has admitted into her list of Worthies, and perhaps the worthiest of mankind, and the fathers of modern thinking, – for the contemplations of those Indian sages have influenced, and still influence, the intellectual development of mankind, – whose works even yet survive in wonderful completeness, are, for the most part, not recognized as ever having existed. If the lions had been the painters it would have been otherwise. In every one's youthful dreams philosophy is still vaguely but inseparably, and with singular truth, associated with the East, nor do after years discover its local habitation in the Western world. In comparison with the philosophers of the East, we may say that modern Europe has yet given birth to none. Beside the vast and cosmogonical philosophy of the Bhagvat-Geeta, even our Shakespeare seems sometimes youthfully green and practical merely. Some of these sublime sentences, as the Chaldaean oracles of Zoroaster, still surviving after a thousand revolutions and translations, alone make us doubt if the poetic form and dress are not transitory, and not essential to the most effective and enduring expression of thought. Ex oriente lux may still be the motto of scholars, for the Western world has not yet derived from the East all the light which it is destined to receive thence. It would be worthy of the age to print together the collected Scriptures or Sacred Writings of the several nations, the Chinese, the Hindoos, the Persians, the Hebrews, and others, as the Scripture of mankind. The New Testament is still, perhaps, too much on the lips and in the hearts of men to be called a Scripture in this sense. Such a juxtaposition and comparison might help to liberalize the faith of men. This is a work which Time will surely edit, reserved to crown the labors of the printing-press. This would be the Bible, or Book of Books, which let the missionaries carry to the uttermost parts of the earth.

ÆSOP

XENOPHANES

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 14th of 4th M / Our Meeting was small & silent, but a good solid & favour'd season to me for which I feel thankful – Father Rodman was out & the first time he has been at Meeting since he was taken unwell. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 17, Sunday: At the Vienna Musikverein, Overture in D D.556 by Franz Schubert was performed publicly for the initial time.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 17th of 4 M / Father was out at Meeting this mornng & preached a little twice – both offerings I thought were Savory. – Silent Meeting in the Afternoon & I thought both were favoured Meetings

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

This evening a little before 10 OClock Benjamin Hadwen departed this life Aged 79 Years & almost three Months - After a long time of Infermity & weakness - He was the Son of our Worthy friend John Hadwen & Elizabeth his Wife. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 19, Tuesday: Caleb G. Forshey got married with Margaret Monroe, a 1st cousin. There would be a daughter Margaret Forshey, born during July 1838, but I have been unable to discover what happened to this initial child, and this wife would die during August 1843.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 19th of 4 M 1836 / Recd this Afternoon a letter from my dear Aged friend Moses Brown, which speaks of the state of Society in England as exhibited by documents he has lately received - It is afflicting to find that many in that land & some in our own, who have embraced doctrines divers from those of Fox Barclay Pennington & Penn & seem again to be merging into those of the Episcopal Church & of Calvin - but I trust the Seed of the Church & a true Quakerism will remain, & tho' it may be in but few, that few will continue to exist - Oh may I stand unshaken in the doctrines of hour dear Ancient Friends. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 20, Wednesday: Giuseppe Verdi signed a contract to be maestro di musica in Busseto, a position that would obligate him to reside in Busseto ten months of every year, give vocal, instrumental, counterpoint, and composition lessons, and conduct the Philharmonic Society.

Prince Johann I of Liechtenstein died and was succeeded by his son Alois II.

Antonio Jose de Sousa, Manuel e Meneses Severim de Noronha, duque de Terceira, marques e conde de Vila-Flor replaced Jose Jorge Loureiro as prime minister of Portugal.

Mikhail Ivanovich Glinka petitioned Alyeksandr Mikhailovich Gedeonov, Imperial Theater director, to accept A Life for the Tsar for production.

In St. Petersburg, an aria and chorus for Bakhturin's play The Moldavian Girl and the Gypsy Girl by Mikhail Ivanovich Glinka were performed for the initial time.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 20 of 4 M / This Afternoon attended the funeral of Benjamin Hadwen he was buried from the House now owned by the Widow Tew Corner of Marlborough & Meeting Streets - in this House I went several Years to School Kept by Nicholas Garrison & his wife we sat in the room where the School was kept - The Sitting was a very solid good little opportunity & Father was there & preached a very appropriate & Sweet little testimony which I

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

doubt not was acceptable to All & I trust was edifying to some -While sitting in this room the scenes of my childhood passed in review on to manhood to the present day & in prospective to the final close -- I also remembered that it was the house once owned by John Round & in which he lived & entertained his Brother in Law John Fothergil of which his speaks in his journal. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 21, Thursday: At 4PM, Sam Houston's army of 800 attacked General Antonio López de Santa Anna y Pérez de Lebrón's army of 1,400 at San Jacinto, and in 20 minutes the issue was decided. General Houston took a gunshot in the lower right leg. General Santa Anna was taken prisoner. The Americans lost 6 killed and 13 wounded while the Mexicans lost 630 killed and 208 wounded. At the beginning of the fight US Army Colonel Sidney Sherman had uttered a famous inspirational slogan, "Remember the Alamo," and it would appear that some of his audience had heard this slogan as a code for "Take no prisoners" — for some of the 630 Mexicans killed on this day had been attempting to surrender.⁴¹⁵

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 21st of 4th M 1836 / Our first meeting was a solid time of favour Father was twice engaged in testimony & Elizabeth Wing once - In the second which was preparative the queries were all answered, it being the Meeting previous to the Yearly Meeting -
After the Preparative Meeting Our Select Meeting for Ministers & Elders was also held at the close of the Preparative Meeting which was a time of some Searching & much favour, my mind was engaged to speak & I did it in a way which affords peace & an evidence that I am not forsaken or out of the right way in some respects at least - Elizabeth Wing bore a faithful testimony as did Father on several occasions in remarking on the Answers to the queries -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 24, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 24th of 4 M / Our Meetings were solid good seasons - Fathers communications in each I thought were seasonable & pertinent - Ann Hopkins was at meeting in the Afternoon, & in the eveng I visited her at Henry Goulds where she is spending a few days. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Richard Henry Dana, Jr. went aboard the California.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

415. To avoid misunderstanding we need to be careful what we say and how we say it (for instance, there appear to be some folks who suppose "Never forget the Holocaust" to mean "Let's kill all the Germans before they have a chance to start this stuff again").

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Sunday, April, 24th. We had now been nearly seven weeks in San Diego, and had taken in the greater part of our cargo, and were looking out, every day, for the arrival of the California, which had our agent on board; when, this afternoon, some Kanakas, who had been over the hill for rabbits and to fight rattlesnakes, came running down the path, singing out, singing out, “Kail ho!” with all their might. Mr. H., our third mate, was ashore, and asking them particularly about the size of the sail, etc., and learning that it was “Moku– Nui Moku,” hailed our ship, and said that the California was on the other side of the point. Instantly, all hands were turned up, the bow guns run out and loaded, the ensign and broad pennant set, the yards squared by lifts and braces, and everything got ready to make a good appearance. The instant she showed her nose round the point, we began our salute. She came in under top-gallant sails, clawed up and furled her sails in good order, and came-to, within good swinging distance of us. It being Sunday, and nothing to do, all hands were on the forecastle, criticising the new-comer. She was a good, substantial ship, not quite so long as the Alert, and wall-sided and kettle-bottomed, after the latest fashion of south-shore cotton and sugar wagons; strong, too, and tight, and a good average sailor, but with no pretensions to beauty, and nothing in the style of a “crack ship.” Upon the whole, we were perfectly satisfied that the Alert might hold up her head with a ship twice as smart as she.

At night, some of us got a boat and went on board, and found a large, roomy forecastle, (for she was squarer forward than the Alert,) and a crew of a dozen or fifteen men and boys, sitting around on their chests, smoking and talking, and ready to give a welcome to any of our ship’s company. It was just seven months since they left Boston, which seemed but yesterday to us. Accordingly, we had much to ask, for though we had seen the newspapers that she brought, yet these were the very men who had been in Boston and seen everything with their own eyes. One of the green-hands was a Boston boy, from one of the public schools, and, of course, knew many things which we wished to ask about, and on inquiring the names of our two Boston boys, found that they had been schoolmates of his. Our men had hundreds of questions to ask about Ann street, the boarding-houses, the ships in port, the rate of wages, and other matters.

Among her crew were two English man-of-war’s-men, so that, of course, we soon had music. They sang in the true sailor’s style, and the rest of the crew, which was a remarkably musical one, joined in the choruses. They had many of the latest sailor songs, which had not yet got about among our merchantmen, and which they were very choice of. They began soon after we came on board, and kept it up until after two bells, when the second mate came forward and called “the Alerts away!” Battle-songs, drinking-songs, boat-songs, love-songs, and everything else, they seemed to have a complete assortment of, and I was glad to find that “All in the Downs,” “Poor Tom Bowline,” “The Bay of Biscay,” “List, ye Landsmen!” and all those classical songs of the sea, still held their places. In addition to these, they had picked up at the theatres and other places a few songs of a little more genteel cast, which they were very proud of; and I shall never forget hearing an old salt, who had broken his voice by hard drinking on shore, and bellowing from the mast-head in a hundred north-westerns, with all manner of ungovernable trills and quavers– in the high notes, breaking into a rough falsetto– and in the low ones, growling along like the dying away of the boatswain’s “all hands ahoy!” down the hatch-way, singing, “Oh, no, we never mention him.”

“Perhaps, like me, he struggles with Each feeling of regret;
But if he’s loved as I have loved,
He never can forget!”

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The last line, being the conclusion, he roared out at the top of his voice, breaking each word up into half a dozen syllables. This was very popular, and Jack was called upon every night to give them his “sentimental song.” No one called for it more loudly than I, for the complete absurdity of the execution, and the sailors’ perfect satisfaction in it, were ludicrous beyond measure.

The next day, the California commenced unloading her cargo; and her boats’ crews, in coming and going, sang their boat-songs, keeping time with their oars. This they did all day long for several days, until their hides were all discharged, when a gang of them were sent on board the Alert, to help us steeve our hides.

This was a windfall for us, for they had a set of new songs for the capstan and fall, and ours had got nearly worn out by six weeks’ constant use. I have no doubt that this timely reinforcement of songs hastened our work several days.

Our cargo was now nearly all taken in; and my old friend, the Pilgrim, having completed her discharge, unmoored, to set sail the next morning on another long trip to windward. I was just thinking of her hard lot, and congratulating myself upon my escape from her, when I received a summons into the cabin. I went aft, and there found, seated round the cabin table, my own captain, Captain Faucon of the Pilgrim, and Mr. R_____, the agent. Captain T_____ turned to me and asked abruptly —

“D_____, do you want to go home in the ship?”

“Certainly, sir,” said I; “I expect to go home in the ship.”

“Then,” said he, “you must get some one to go in your place on board the Pilgrim.”

I was so completely “taken aback” by this sudden intimation, that for a moment I could make no reply. I knew that it would be hopeless to attempt to prevail upon any of the ship’s crew to take twelve months more upon the California in the brig. I knew, too, that Captain T_____ had received orders to bring me home in the Alert, and he had told me, when I was at the hide-house, that I was to go home in her; and even if this had not been so, it was cruel to give me no notice of the step they were going to take, until a few hours before the brig would sail. As soon as I had got my wits about me, I put on a bold front, and told him plainly that I had a letter in my chest informing me that he had been written to, by the owners in Boston, to bring me home in the ship, and moreover, that he had told me that I was to go in the ship.

To have this told him, and to be opposed in such a manner, was more than my lord paramount had been used to.

He turned fiercely upon me, and tried to look me down, and face me out of my statement; but finding that that wouldn’t do, and that I was entering upon my defence in such a way as would show to the other two that he was in the wrong,— he changed his ground, and pointed to the shipping papers of the Pilgrim, from which my name had never been erased, and said that there was my name,— that I belonged to her,— that he had an absolute discretionary power;— and, in short, that I must be on board the Pilgrim by the next morning with my chest and hammock, or have some one ready to go in my place, and that he would not hear another word from me. No court or star chamber could proceed more summarily with a poor devil, than this trio was about to do with me; condemning me to a punishment worse than a Botany Bay exile, and to a fate which would alter the whole current of my future life; for two years more in California would have made me a sailor for the rest of my days. I felt all this, and saw the necessity of being determined. I repeated what I had said, and insisted upon my right to return in the ship.

I “raised my arm, and tauld my crack,
Before them a’.”

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

But it would have all availed me nothing, had I been “some poor body,” before this absolute, domineering tribunal. But they saw that I would not go, unless “vi et armis,” and they knew that I had friends and interest enough at home to make them suffer for any injustice they might do me. It was probably this that turned the matter; for the captain changed his tone entirely, and asked me if, in case any one went in my place, I would give him the same sum that S_____ gave Harris to exchange with him. I told him that if any one was sent on board the brig, I should pity him, and be willing to help him to that, or almost any amount; but would not speak of it as an exchange.

“Very well,” said he. “Go forward about your business, and send English Ben here to me!”

I went forward with a light heart, but feeling as angry, and as much contempt as I could well contain between my teeth. English Ben was sent aft, and in a few moments came forward, looking as though he had received his sentence to be hung. The captain had told him to get his things ready to go on board the brig the next morning; and that I would give him thirty dollars and a suit of clothes.

The hands had “knocked off” for dinner, and were standing about the fore-castle, when Ben came forward and told his story. I could see plainly that it made a great excitement, and that, unless I explained the matter to them, the feeling would be turned against me. Ben was a poor English boy, a stranger in Boston, and without friends or money; and being an active, willing lad, and a good sailor for his years, was a general favorite. “Oh, yes!” said the crew, “the captain has let you off, because you are a gentleman’s son, and have got friends, and know the owners; and taken Ben, because he is poor, and has got nobody to say a word for him!” I knew that this was too true to be answered, but I excused myself from any blame, and told them that I had a right to go home, at all events. This pacified them a little, but Jack had got a notion that a poor lad was to be imposed upon, and did not distinguish very clearly; and though I knew that I was in no fault, and, in fact, had barely escaped the grossest injustice, yet I felt that my berth was getting to be a disagreeable one. The notion that I was not “one of them,” which, by a participation in all their labor and hardships, and having no favor shown me, had been laid asleep, was beginning to revive. But far stronger than any feeling for myself, was the pity I felt for the poor lad. He had depended upon going home in the ship; and from Boston, was going immediately to Liverpool, to see his friends. Beside this, having begun the voyage with very few clothes, he had taken up the greater part of his wages in the slop-chest, and it was every day a losing concern to him; and, like all the rest of the crew, he had a hearty hatred of California, and the prospect of eighteen months or two years more of hide-droghing seemed completely to break down his spirit. I had determined not to go myself, happen what would, and I knew that the captain would not dare to attempt to force me. I knew, too, that the two captains had agreed together to get some one, and that unless I could prevail upon somebody to go voluntarily, there would be no help for Ben. From this consideration, though I had said that I would have nothing to do with an exchange, I did my best to get some one to go voluntarily. I offered to give an order upon the owners in Boston for six months’ wages, and also all the clothes, books, and other matters, which I should not want upon the voyage home. When this offer was published in the ship, and the case of poor Ben was set forth in strong colors, several, who would not have dreamed of going themselves, were busy in talking it up to others, who, they thought, might be tempted to accept it; and, at length, one fellow, a harum-scarum lad, whom we called Harry Bluff, and who did not care what country or ship he was in, if he had clothes enough and money enough— partly from pity for Ben, and partly from the thought he should have “cruising money” for the rest of his stay,— came forward, and offered to go and “sling his hammock in the bloody hooker.” Lest his purpose should cool, I signed an order for the sum upon the owners in Boston, gave him all the clothes I could spare, and sent him aft to the captain, to let him know what had been done. The skipper accepted the exchange, and was, doubtless, glad to have it pass off so easily. At the same time he cashed the order, which was endorsed to him,⁴¹⁶ and the next morning, the lad went aboard the brig, apparently in good spirits, having shaken hands with each of us and wished us a 416. When the crew were paid off in Boston, the owners answered the order, but generously refused to deduct the amount from the pay-roll, saying that the exchange was made under compulsion. They also allowed S_____ his exchange money.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

pleasant passage home, jingling the money in his pockets, and calling out, “Never say die, while there’s a shot in the locker.” The same boat carried off Harris, my old watchmate, who had previously made an exchange with my friend S_____. I was sorry to part with Harris. Nearly two hundred hours (as we had calculated it) had we walked the ship’s deck together, at anchor watch, when all hands were below, and talked over and over every subject which came within the ken of either of us. He gave me a strong gripe with his hand; and I told him, if he came to Boston again, not to fail to find me out, and let me see an old watchmate. The same boat brought on board S_____, my friend, who had begun the voyage with me from Boston, and, like me, was going back to his family and to the society which we had been born and brought up in. We congratulated one another upon finding what we had long talked over and wished for, thus brought about; and none on board the ship were more glad than ourselves to see the old brig standing round the point, under full sail. As she passed abreast of us, we all collected in the waist, and gave her three loud, hearty cheers, waving our hats in the air. Her crew sprang into the rigging and chains, answered us with three as loud, to which we, after the nautical custom, gave one in return. I took my last look of their familiar faces as they got over the rail, and saw the old black cook put his head out of the galley, and wave his cap over his head. The crew flew aloft to loose the top-gallant sails and royals; the two captains waved their hands to one another; and, in ten minutes, we saw the last inch of her white canvas, as she rounded the point. Relieved as I was to see her well off, (and I felt like one who had just sprung from an iron trap which was closing upon him) I had yet a feeling of regret at taking the last look at the old craft in which I had spent a year, and the first year, of my sailor’s life— which had been my first home in the new world into which I had entered— and with which I had associated so many things,— my first leaving home, my first crossing the equator, Cape Horn, Juan Fernandez, death at sea, and other things, serious and common. Yet, with all this, and the feeling I had for my old shipmates, condemned to another term of California life, the thought that we were done with it, and that one week more would see us on our way to Boston, was a cure for everything.

April 28, Thursday: David Henry Thoreau checked out, from Harvard Library, John Hoole’s translation of Pietro “Metastasio” Trapassi (1698-1782)’s DRAMAS AND OTHER POEMS; OF THE ABBÈ PIETRO METASTASIO (London: Printed for Otridge and Son, 3 volumes, 1800).⁴¹⁷

417. Since he had already, in 1834, checked out the 1st volume of this edition, we may presume that this time he was checking out all three volumes.

HDTWHAT?INDEXSTEPHEN WANTON GOULD*FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Thoreau also checked out Thomas Hobbes's THE ILIADS AND ODYSSES OF HOMER / TRANSLATED OUT OF GREEK INTO ENGLISH BY THO. HOBBS OF MALMSBURY, WITH A LARGE PREF. CONCERNING THE VERTUES OF AN HEROICK POEM, WRITTEN BY THE TRANSLATOR.

"There is no Frigate like a Book
To take us Lands away"
— Emily Dickinson

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Thoreau also checked out LES NATCHEZ, the 6th volume of François Auguste René, vicomte de Chateaubriand's just issued ŒUVRES COMPLÈTES:

LES NATCHEZ

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 28th of 4 M / Took the Carryall & took My wife & Mary Williams to Moy [Monthly] Meeting - Hannah Dennis preached in the first Meeting - & tho' I thought she was favoured, yet it seemed to me as a rather dull & obstructed season - in the last Meeting we transacted the buisness pretty well -- We went to Benjamin Motts after Meeting & dined in his South room, in which G Fox once preached

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

le vicomte (1768-1848)

May 1, Sunday: Felix Mendelssohn departed from Leipzig on his way to direct the Niederrheinisches Musikfest in Dusseldorf.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 1 of 5th M 1836 / Our Meetings were silent & were very lean to me – they were well attended & seemed to quiet & solid – but my mind was poor
In the evening Thos B Gould & Thos P Nichols came to see us & passed the evening. –*

May 2, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 2nd of 5th M / This Afternoon met Sarah Babcock daughter of my cousin Avis Knowles in the Street who told me that her Mother deceased [-] of 3 Month & was buried the first day of this 4 M [April] 1836 Aged [-] Years -- She was first cousin to my Father - her maiden name was Avis Stanton, & Married Wm Knowles -she was a religious woman & one whom I loved - She visited much at our house when iI was a youth & was particularly intimate with my Aunts Martha Mary & Hannah After the death of her husband at Richmond She removed to this town & lived a number of years & from Newport she removed to Nantucket where she Died

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 3, Tuesday: David Henry Thoreau turned in his Harvard College essay on the assigned topic “SOME ACCOUNT OF THE LIFE AND WORKS OF SIR W. SCOTT by Allan Cunningham, FAMILIAR ANECDOTES OF SIR W. SCOTT BY JAMES HOGG, AND WITH A SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF THE SHEPHERD by S. Dewitt [Simeon De

HDT

WHAT?

INDEX

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Witt] Bloodgood.”

AT EVENING FALL, IN LONESOME DALE.
HE KEPT STRANGE CONVERSE WITH THE GALE:
HELD WORLDLY POMP IN HIGH DERISION.
AND WANDERED IN A WORLD OF VISION.

SOME ACCOUNT OF ...

FAMILIAR ANECDOTES

At the Exhibition Program that took place on this day, Jones Very presented a new version of his Bowdoin Prize Essay of July 1835, “The Practical Application in This Life, by Men as Social and Intellectual Beings,

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

of the Certainty of a Future State,” which he had for this occasion retitled simply “The Heroic Character.”

Our Literature is uncommonly rich in Biography. No sooner has a passing meteor, whose brilliance and length of train arrests the attention of the gaping multitudes of this nether world, sunk below the horizon, than the literary astronomers of the day set about tracing its orbit, and soon crowd a ponderous tome with the phenomena it presented. This is all very well as far as it goes, but, for my part, I am not satisfied with being acquainted with a man's actions merely. I want to be introduced to the man himself. “Biography,” says Fuseli, “however useful to man, or dear to art, is the unequivocal homage of inferiority offered to the majesty of genius.” This is not the character of the works before us; we here behold Scott in the capacity of a friend, and patron, free from all restraint.

Divested of all the mystery in which genius is usually enveloped, he appears for the moment to have put on mortality, he is no longer the “Author of Waverly” the eighth wonder of the world. While we imagine him snugly ensconced in his antique armchair, poring over the pages of a huge black-letter folio containing the marvellous deeds of some Sir Tristram or Sir Guy who figured in border warfare, or performing a pilgrimage a la Terre Sante, we find him, perchance, “leistering kippers in Tweed”, or seated on the river's bank, while Rob Fletcher is gone after another fiery peat, singing Hogg's ballad of “Gilman's-cleuch”. The account of the Life and Works of Scott is written in a frank and impartial style, though the author appears to be a little vain of his intimacy with Sir Walter. The same may be said of Hogg. The former winds up with these words, “No other genius ever exercised over the world so wide a rule: no one, perhaps ever united so many great – almost godlike qualities, and employed them so generously for the benefit of the living. It is not to us alone that he has spoken: his voice will delight thousands of generations unborn, and charm his country while wood grows and water runs.”

The Ettrick Shepherd was the second son of Robert Hogg and Margaret Laidlaw, and was born on the 25th of Jan'y, 1772, the anniversary of Burns' birth, who was born 1759. When 6 years of age he attended for a short time a neighboring school, and learned to read the Proverbs of Solomon and the Shorter Catechism, but at the age of 7 went to service as a cowherd, receiving for half a year's service, “a ewe lamb and a pair of shoes.”

It was in his 18th year that he first saw the “Life and Adventures of Sir W. Wallace”, and Ramsay's “Gentle Shepherd”. It was in 1796 that he first felt the inspiration of the Muse; he now for the first time had access to a valuable library, and his genius shone forth so conspicuously, that he was known as “Jamie the Poeter.” He could compose, but he could not write “and he wept to think, however fancy and inspiration might impart their influence, he could not ‘catch their shadows as they passed’.” The song commencing,

“My name it is Donald McDonald,”

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

written at the time England was threatened with invasion by Napoleon, was the first he published.
The following is a list of his works.

The Queen's Wake.
Pilgrims of the Sun.
The Hunting of Badlewe.
Mador of the Moor.
Poetic Mirror.
Dramatic Tales.
Brownie of Bodsbeck.
Winter Evening Tales
Sacred Melodies.
Border Garland.
Jacobite Relics of Scotland
The Spy.
Queen Hynde.
The Three Perils of Man.
The Three do. of Women.
Confessions of a Sinner.
The Shepherd's Calendar.
A Selection of Songs.
The Queer Book.
The Royal Jubilee.
The Mountain Bard.
The Forest Minstrel.
The Altrive Tales.

Now living, 1834.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 3 of 5 M / This Afternoon we found a ready conveyance to Greenwich direct in a Packet Cousins Henry & Thomas Gould, Thos Nichols & my wife & self went on board & in about two hours & three Quarters we arrived safely & pleasantly in Greenwich Our friend Thos Howland met us in the Street & took my wife our to his house & Henry & I walked on & got there before tea time - the two Thomas's stoping at Dr Eldredges.

May 4, Wednesday: In the Chiesa Collegiata di San Bartolomeo of Busseto, Giuseppe Verdi got married with Margherita Barezzi, daughter of Antonio Barezzi, a grocer and Verdi's patron.

When Felix Mendelssohn arrived in Frankfurt on his way to Dusseldorf to direct the Niederrheinisches Musikfest he was introduced to several people among whom was a young chorus member, Cecile Jeanrenaud, daughter of a Protestant minister (she would eventually become his wife).

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day we came in to attend the select Meeting - Dined at Susan Prouds - & I went to the Meeting for Sufferings in the Afternoon after which T Howland again took my wife to his House & I again

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISMwalked out to it –RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 5, Thursday: Having already checked out the 6th volume of François-Auguste-René, vicomte de Chateaubriand's just issued ŒUVRES COMPLÈTES, David Henry Thoreau checked out, from Harvard Library, the 7th volume of this set.

CHATEAUBRIAND, 7

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day Attended Meetings which were large & generally satisfactory – John Wilbur & Mary Card in testimony & Anna Macomber in supplication – After the last Meeting we dined at Abigail Prouds & Lodged & took tea at Dr Eldredges –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

François-René, vicomte de Chateaubriand (1768-1848)

May 6, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day spent the forenoon in walking about Greenwich in waiting for the Packet which got off about 1 OC & we arrived at home in about 4 hours altho the wind was entirely a head. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The New York State Legislature authorized construction of the Genesee Valley Canal.

The Alert, Richard Henry Dana, Jr. crewman, completed its cargo of California hides.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Friday, May 6th, completed the taking of our cargo, and was a memorable day in our calendar. The time when we were to take in our last hide, we had looked forward to, for sixteen months, as the first bright spot. When the last hide was stowed away, and the hatches calked down, the tarpaulins battened on to them, the longboat hoisted in and secured, and the decks swept down for the night,— the chief mate sprang upon the top of the long-boat, called all hands into the waist, and giving us a signal by swinging his cap over his head,— we gave three long, loud cheers, which came from the bottom of our hearts, and made the hills and valleys ring again. In a moment, we heard three, in answer, from the California's crew, who had seen us taking in our long-boat, and— “the cry they heard— its meaning knew.”

The last week, we had been occupied in taking in a supply of wood and water for the passage home, and bringing on board the spare spars, sails, etc. I was sent off with a party of Indians to fill the water-casks, at a spring, about three miles from the shipping, and near the town, and was absent three days, living at the town, and spending the daytime in filling the casks and transporting them on ox-carts to the landing-place, whence they were taken on board by the crew with boats. This being all done with, we gave one day to bending our sails; and at night, every sail, from the courses to the skysails, was bent, and every studding-sail ready for setting.

Before our sailing, an unsuccessful attempt was made by one of the crew of the California to effect an exchange with one of our number. It was a lad, between fifteen and sixteen years of age, who went by the name of the “reefer,” having been a midshipman in East India Company's ship. His singular character and story had excited our interest ever since the ship came into the port. He was a delicate, slender little fellow, with a beautiful pearly complexion, regular features, forehead as white as marble, black haired, curling beautifully, rounded, tapering, delicate fingers, small feet, soft voice, gentle manners, and, in fact, every sign of having been well born and bred. At the same time there was something in his expression which showed a slight deficiency of intellect. How great the deficiency was, or what it resulted from; whether he was born so; whether it was the result of disease or accident; or whether, as some said, it was brought on by his distress of mind, during the voyage, I cannot say. From his own account of himself, and from many circumstances which were known in connection with his story, he must have been the son of a man of wealth. His mother was an Italian woman. He was probably a natural son, for in scarcely any other way could the incidents of his early life be accounted for. He said that his parents did not live together, and he seemed to have been ill treated by his father. Though he had been delicately brought up, and indulged in every way, (and he had then with him trinkets which had been given him at home,) yet his education had been sadly neglected; and when only twelve years old, he was sent as midshipman in the Company's service. His own story was, that he afterwards ran away from home, upon a difficulty which he had with his father. and went to Liverpool, whence he sailed in the ship Rialto, Captain Holmes, for Boston. Captain Holmes endeavored to get him a passage back, but there being no vessel to sail for some time, the boy left him, and went to board at a common sailor's boarding-house, in Ann street, where he supported himself for a few weeks by selling some of his valuables. At length, according to his own account, being desirous of returning home, he went to a shipping-office, where the shipping articles of the California were open. Upon asking where the ship was going, he was told by the shipping-master that she was bound to California. Not knowing where that was, he told him that he wanted to go to Europe, and asked if California was in Europe. The shippingmaster answered him in a way which the boy did not understand, and advised him to ship. The boy signed the articles, received his advance, laid out a little of it in clothes, and spent the rest, and was ready to go on board, when, upon the morning of sailing, he heard that the ship was bound upon the North-west Coast, on a two or three years' voyage, and was not going to Europe. Frightened at this prospect, he slipped away when the crew was going aboard, wandered up into another part of the town, and spent all the forenoon in straying about the common, and the neighboring streets.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

THE REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR DANA, CONCLUDED:

Having no money, and all his clothes and other things being in the chest, on board, and being a stranger, he became tired and hungry, and ventured down toward the shipping, to see if the vessel had sailed. He was just turning the corner of a street, when the shippingmaster, who had been in search of him, popped upon him, seized him, and carried him on board. He cried and struggled, and said he did not wish to go in the ship, but the topsails were at the mast-head, the fasts just ready to be cast off, and everything in the hurry and confusion of departure, so that he was hardly noticed; and the few who did inquire about the matter were told that it was merely a boy who had spent his advance and tried to run away. Had the owners of the vessel known anything of the matter, they would have interfered at once; but they either knew nothing of it, or heard, like the rest, that it was only an unruly boy who was sick of his bargain. As soon as the boy found himself actually at sea, and upon a voyage of two or three years in length, his spirits failed him; he refused to work, and became so miserable, that Captain Arthur took him into the cabin, where he assisted the steward, and occasionally pulled and hauled about decks. He was in this capacity when we saw him; and though it was much better for him than the life in the forecabin, and the hard work, watching, and exposure, which his delicate frame could not have borne, yet, to be joined with a black fellow in waiting upon a man whom he probably looked upon as but little, in point of education and manners, above one of his father's servants, was almost too much for his spirit to bear. Had he entered upon his situation of his own free will, he could have endured it; but to have been deceived, and, in addition to that, forced into it, was intolerable. He made every effort to go home in our ship, but his captain refused to part with him except in the way of exchange, and that he could not effect. If this account of the whole matter, which we had from the boy, and which was confirmed by all the crew, be correct, I cannot understand why Captain Arthur should have refused to let him go, especially being a captain who had the name, not only with that crew, but with all whom he had ever commanded, of an unusually kind-hearted man. The truth is, the unlimited power which merchant captains have, upon long voyages on strange coasts, takes away a sense of responsibility, and too often, even in men otherwise well-disposed, substitutes a disregard for the rights and feelings of others. The lad was sent on shore to join the gang at the hide-house; from whence, I was afterwards rejoiced to hear, he effected his escape, and went down to Callao in a small Spanish schooner; and from Callao, he probably returned to England.

Soon after the arrival of the California, I spoke to Captain Arthur about Hope; and as he had known him on the voyage before, and was very fond of him, he immediately went to see him, gave him proper medicines, and, under such care, he began rapidly to recover. The Saturday night before our sailing, I spent an hour in the oven, and took leave of my Kanaka friends; and, really, this was the only thing connected with leaving California which was in any way unpleasant. I felt an interest and affection for many of these simple, true-hearted men, such as I never felt before but for a near relation. Hope shook me by the hand, said he should soon be well again, and ready to work for me when I came upon the coast, next voyage, as officer of the ship; and told me not to forget, when I became captain, how to be kind to the sick. Old "Mr. Bingham" and "King Mannini" went down to the boat with me, shook me heartily by the hand, wished us a good voyage, and went back to the oven, chanting one of their deep monotonous songs, the burden of which I gathered to be about us and our voyage.

May 8, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 8 of 5 M 1836 / Attended meetings & I must say they were seasons of much dryness to me but I have no doubt the fault was my own Father had short Service in both. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert sailed out of San Diego harbor, headed south. Aboard the vessel was Professor Thomas Nuttall of Harvard College, returning to Boston from his botanical expedition to the California coast:

This passenger ... was no one else than a gentleman whom I had known in my better days; and the last person I should have expected to have seen on the coast of California—Professor N_____, of Cambridge [Thomas Nuttall]. I had left him quietly seated in the chair of Botany and Ornithology, in Harvard University; and the next I saw of him, was strolling about San Diego beach, in a sailor's pea-jacket, with a wide straw hat, and barefooted, with his trowsers rolled up to his knees, picking up stones and shells. He had travelled overland to the North-west Coast, and come down in a small vessel to Monterey. There he learned that there was a ship at the leeward, about to sail for Boston; and, taking passage in the Pilgrim, which was then at Monterey, he came slowly down, visiting the intermediate ports, and examining the trees, plants, earths, birds, etc., and joined us at San Diego shortly before we sailed. The second mate of the Pilgrim told me that they had an old gentleman on board who knew me, and came from the college that I had been in. He could not recollect his name, but said he was a "sort of an oldish man," with white hair, and spent all his time in the bush, and along the beach, picking up flowers and shells, and such truck, and had a dozen boxes and barrels, full of them. I thought over everybody who would be likely to be there, but could fix upon no one; when, the next day, just as we were about to shove off from the beach, he came down to the boat, in the rig I have described, with his shoes in his hand, and his pockets full of specimens. I knew him at once, though I should not have been more surprised to have seen the Old South steeple shoot up from the hide-house. He probably had no less difficulty in recognizing me. As we left home about the same time, we had nothing to tell one another; and, owing to our different situations on board, I saw but little of him on the passage home. Sometimes, when I was at the wheel of a calm night, and the steering required no attention, and the officer of the watch was forward, he would come aft and hold a short yarn with me; but this was against the rules of the ship, as is, in fact, all intercourse between passengers and the crew.... The Pilgrim's crew christened Mr. N. "Old Curious." from his zeal for curiosities, and some of them said that he was crazy, and that his friends let him go about and amuse himself in this way. Why else a rich man (sailors call every man rich who does not work with his hands, and wears a long coat and cravat) should leave a Christian country, and come to such a place as California, to pick up shells and stones, they could not understand. One of them, however, an old salt, who had seen something more of the world ashore, set all to rights, as he thoughts— "Oh, 'vast there!— You don't know anything about them craft. I've seen them colleges, and know the ropes. They keep all such things for curiosities, and study 'em, and have men a' purpose to go and get 'em. This old chap knows what he's about. He a'n't the child you take him for. He'll carry all these things to the college, and if they are better than any that they have had before, he'll be head of the college. Then, by-and-by, somebody else will go after some more, and if they beat him, he'll have to go again, or else give up his berth. That's the way they do it. This old covey knows the ropes. He has worked a traverse over 'em, and come 'way out here, where nobody's ever been afore, and where they'll never think of coming." This explanation satisfied Jack; and as it raised Mr. N.'s credit for capacity, and was near enough to the truth for common purposes, I did not disturb it.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The Alert, for its homeward journey, was carrying in addition to the hides and its passenger a small quantity of gold dust which had been brought down to the ports from the interior by various persons, something not at all unusual which at that time was attracting little attention.⁴¹⁸

418. Not until 1841 would the first notable gold discovery be made in California, in San Feliciano Canyon near the Mission San Fernando.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, May 8th. This promised to be our last day in California. Our forty thousand hides, thirty thousand horns, besides several barrels of otter and beaver skins, were all stowed below, and the hatches calked down. All our spare spars were taken on board and lashed; our water-casks secured; and our live stock, consisting of four bullocks, a dozen sheep, a dozen or more pigs, and three or four dozen of poultry, were all stowed away in their different quarters: the bullocks in the long-boat, the sheep in a pen on the fore-hatch, and the pigs in a sty under the bows of the long-boat, and the poultry in their proper coop; and the jolly-boat was full of hay for the sheep and bullocks. Our unusually large cargo, together with the stores for a five months' voyage, brought the ship channels down into the water. In addition to this, she had been steved so thoroughly, and was so bound by the compression of her cargo, forced into her by so powerful machinery, that she was like a man in a straight-jacket, and would be but a dull sailer, until she had worked herself loose.

The California had finished discharging her cargo, and was to get under weigh at the same time with us. Having washed down decks and got our breakfast, the two vessels lay side by side, in complete readiness for sea, our ensigns hanging from the peaks, and our tall spars reflected from the glassy surface of the river, which, since sunrise, had been unbroken by a ripple. At length, a few whiffs came across the water, and, by eleven o'clock, the regular north-west wind set steadily in. There was no need of calling all hands, for we had all been hanging about the fore-castle the whole forenoon, and were ready for a start upon the first sign of a breeze. All eyes were aft upon the captain, who was walking the deck, with, every now and then, a look to windward. He made a sign to the mate, who came forward, took his station, deliberately between the knight-heads, cast a glance aloft, and called out, "All hands, lay aloft and loose the sails!" We were half in the rigging before the order came, and never since we left Boston were the gaskets off the yards, and the rigging overhauled, in a shorter time. "All ready forward, sir!"— "All ready the main!"— "Cross-jack yards all ready, sir!"— "Lay down, all hands but one on each yard!" The yard-arm and bunt gaskets were cast off; and each sail hung by the jigger, with one man standing by the tie to let it go. At the same moment that we sprang aloft, a dozen hands sprang into the rigging of the California, and in an instant were all over her yards; and her sails, too, were ready to be dropped at the word. In the mean time our bow gun had been loaded and run out, and its discharge was to be the signal for dropping sails. A cloud of smoke came out of our bows; the echoes of the gun rattled our farewell among the hills of California; and the two ships were covered, from head to foot, with their white canvas. For a few minutes, all was uproar and apparent confusion: men flying about like monkeys in the rigging; ropes and blocks flying; orders given and answered, and the confused noises of men singing out at the ropes. The top-sails came to the mast-heads with "Cheerily, men!" and, in a few minutes, every sail was set; for the wind was light. The head sails were backed, the windlass came round "slip—slap" to the cry of the sailors;— "Hove short, sir," said the mate;— "Up with him!"— "Aye, aye, sir."— A few hearty and long heaves, and the anchor showed its head. "Hook cat!"— The fall was stretched along the decks; all hands laid hold;— "Hurrah, for the last time," said the mate; and the anchor came to the cat-head to the tune of "Time for us to go," with a loud chorus. Everything was done quick, as though it were for the last time. The head yards were filled away, and our ship began to move through the water on her homeward-bound course.

The California had got under weigh at the same moment; and we sailed down the narrow bay abreast and were just off the mouth, and finding ourselves gradually shooting ahead of her, were on the point of giving her three parting cheers, when, suddenly, we found ourselves stopped short, and the California ranging fast ahead of us. A bar stretches across the mouth of the harbor, with water enough to float common vessels, but, being low in the water, and having kept well to leeward, as we were bound to the southward, we had stuck fast, while the California, being light, had floated over.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

THE REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR DANA, CONTINUED:

We kept all sail on, in the hope of forcing over, but failing in this, we hove aback, and lay waiting for the tide, which was on the flood, to take us back into the channel. This was somewhat of a damper to us, and the captain looked not a little mortified and vexed. "This is the same place where the Rosa got ashore," observed the redheaded second mate, most mal-a-propos. A malediction on the Rosa, and him too, was all the answer he got, and he slunk off to leeward. In a few minutes, the force of the wind and the rising of the tide backed us into the stream, and we were on our way to our old anchoring-place, the tide setting swiftly up, and the ship barely manageable, in the light breeze. We came-to, in our old berth, opposite the hide-house, whose inmates were not a little surprised to see us return. We felt as though we were tied to California; and some of the crew swore that they never should get clear of the bloody coast.

In about half an hour, which was near high water, the order was given to man the windlass, and again the anchor was catted; but not a word was said about the last time. The California had come back on finding that we had returned, and was hove-to, waiting for us, off the point. This time we passed the bar safely, and were soon up with the California, who filled away, and kept us company. She seemed desirous of a trial of speed, and our captain accepted the challenge, although we were loaded down to the bolts of our chain plates, as deep as a sand-barge, and bound so taught with our cargo that we were no more fit for a race than a man in fetters;— while our antagonist was in her best trim. Being clear of the point, the breeze became stiff, and the royal masts bent under our sails, but we would not take them in until we saw three boys spring aloft into the rigging of the California; when they were all furled at once, but with orders to stay aloft at the top-gallant mastheads, and loose them again at the word. It was my duty to furl the fore royal; and while standing by to loose it again, I had a fine view of the scene. From where I stood, the two vessels seemed nothing but spars and sails, while their narrow decks, far below, slanting over by the force of the wind aloft, appeared hardly capable of supporting the great fabrics raised upon them. The California was to windward of us, and had every advantage; yet, while the breeze was stiff, we held our own. As soon as it began to slacken, she ranged a little ahead, and the order was given to loose the royals. In an instant the gaskets were off and the bunt dropped. "Sheet home the fore royal!— Weather sheet's home!"— "Hoist away, sir!" is bawled from aloft. "Overhaul your clew-lines!" shouts the mate. "Aye, aye, sir, all clear!"— "Taught leech! belay! Well the lee brace; haul taught to windward"— and the royals are set. These brought us up again; but the wind continuing light, the California set hers, and it was soon evident that she was walking away from us. Our captain then hailed, and said that he should keep off to his course; adding— "She isn't the Alert now. If I had her in your trim, she would have been out of sight by this time." This was good-naturedly answered from the California, and she braced sharp up, and stood close upon the wind up the coast; while we squared away our yards, and stood before the wind to the south-southwest. The California's crew manned her weather rigging, waved their hats in the air, and gave up three hearty cheers, which we answered as heartily, and the customary single cheer came back to us from over the water. She stood on her way, doomed to eighteen months' or two years' hard service upon that hated coast, while we were making our way to our home, to which every hour and every mile was bringing us nearer.

As soon as we parted company with the California, all hands were sent aloft to set the studding-sails. Booms were rigged out, tacks and halyards rove, sail after sail packed upon her, until every available inch of canvas was spread, that we might not lose a breath of the fair wind. We could now see how much she was cramped and deadened by her cargo; for with a good breeze on her quarter, and every stitch of canvas spread, we could not get more than six knots out of her. She had no more life in her than if she were water-logged. The log was hove several times; but she was doing her best. We had hardly patience with her, but the older sailors said— "Stand by! you'll see her work herself loose in a week or two, and then she'll walk up to Cape Horn like a race-horse."

When all sail had been set, and the decks cleared up, the California was a speck in the horizon, and the coast lay like a low cloud along the north-east. At sunset they were both out of sight, and we were once more upon the ocean where sky and water meet.

At eight o'clock all hands were called aft, and the watches set for the voyage. Some changes were made; but I was glad to find myself still in the larboard watch. Our crew was somewhat diminished; for a man and a boy had gone the hide-house under the charge of Captain Arthur.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

THE REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR DANA, CONCLUDED:

The poor fellow wished very much to come home in the ship; and he ought to have been brought home in her. But a live dog is better than a dead lion, and a sick sailor belongs to nobody's mess; so he was sent ashore with the rest of the lumber, which was only in the way. By these diminutions, we were short-handed for a voyage round Cape Horn in the dead of winter. Besides S_____ and myself, there were only five in the fore-castle; who, together with four boys in the steerage, the sailmaker, carpenter, etc., composed the whole crew. In addition to this, we were only three or four days out, when the sailmaker, who was the oldest and best seaman on board, was taken with the palsy, and was useless for the rest of the voyage. The constant wading in the water, in all weathers, to take off hides, together with the other labors, is too much for old men, and for any who have not good constitutions. Beside these two men of ours, the second officer of the California and the carpenter of the Pilgrim broke down under the work, and the latter died at Santa Barbara. The young man, too, who came out with us from Boston in the Pilgrim, had to be taken from his berth before the mast and made clerk, on account of a fit of rheumatism which attacked him soon after he came upon the coast. By the loss of the sailmaker, our watch was reduced to five, of whom two were boys, who never steered but in fine weather, so that the other two and myself had to stand at the wheel four hours apiece out of every twenty-four; and the other watch had only four helmsmen. "Never mind— we're homeward bound!" was the answer to everything; and we should not have minded this, were it not for the thought that we should be off Cape Horn in the very dead of winter. It was now the first part of May; and two months would bring us off the cape in July, which is the worst month in the year there; when the sun rises at nine and sets at three, giving eighteen hours night, and there is snow and rain, gales and high seas, in abundance.

The prospect of meeting this in a ship half manned, and loaded so deep that every heavy sea must wash her fore and aft, was by no means pleasant. The Alert, in her passage out, doubled the Cape in the month of February, which is midsummer; and we came round in the Pilgrim in the latter part of October, which we thought was bad enough. There was only one of our crew who had been off there in the winter, and that was in a whaleship, much lighter and higher than our ship; yet he said they had man-killing weather for twenty days without intermission, and their decks were swept twice, and they were all glad enough to see the last of it. The Brandywine frigate, also, in her passage round, had sixty days off the Cape, and lost several boats by the heavy sea. All this was for our comfort; yet pass it we must; and all hands agreed to make the best of it.

During our watches below we overhauled our clothes, and made and mended everything for bad weather. Each of us had made for himself a suit of oil-cloth or tarpaulin, and these we got out, and gave thorough coatings of oil or tar, and hung upon the stays to dry. Our stout boots, too, we covered over with a thick mixture of melted grease and tar, and hung out to dry. Thus we took advantage of the warm sun and fine weather of the Pacific to prepare for its other face. In the forenoon watches below, our fore-castle looked like the workshop of what a sailor is— a Jack at all trades. Thick stockings and drawers were darned and patched; mittens dragged from the bottom of the chest and mended; comforters made for the neck and ears; old flannel shirts cut up to line monkey jackets; south-westerns lined with flannel, and a pot of paint smuggled forward to give them a coat on the outside; and everything turned to hand; so that, although two years had left us but a scanty wardrobe, yet the economy and invention which necessity teaches a sailor, soon put each of us in pretty good trim for bad weather, even before we had seen the last of the fine. Even the cobbler's art was not out of place. Several old shoes were very decently repaired, and with waxed ends, an awl, and the top of an old boot, I made me quite a respectable sheath for my knife.

There was one difficulty, however, which nothing that we could do would remedy; and that was the leaking of the fore-castle, which made it very uncomfortable in bad weather, rendered half of the berths tenantless. The tightest ships, in long voyage, from the constant strain which is upon the bowsprit, will leak, more or less, round the heel of the bowsprit, and the bitts, which come down into the fore-castle; but, in addition to this, we this, we had an unaccountable leak on the starboard bow, near the cat-head, which drove us from the forward berths on that side, and, indeed, when she was on the starboard tack, from all the forward berths. One of the after berths, too, leaked in very bad weather; so that in a ship which was in other respects as tight as a bottle, and brought her cargo to Boston perfectly dry, we had, after every effort made to prevent it, in the way of caulking and leading, a fore-castle with only three dry berths for seven of us. However, as there is never but one watch below at a time, by 'turning in and out,' we did pretty well. And there being, in our watch, but three of us who lived forward, we generally had a dry berth apiece in bad weather.¹

All this, however, was but anticipation. We were still in fine weather in the North Pacific, running down the north-east trades, which we took on the second day after leaving San Diego.

arriving at anchor, and which, accidentally, had not been plugged up when the cat-head was placed over them. This was sufficient to account for the leak, and for our not having been able to discover and stop it.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 11, Wednesday: Sam Houston sailed from Galveston Island for New Orleans to receive medical attention for the wounds he had received at the Battle of San Jacinto.

TEXAS

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 11 of 5 M / Aunt Stanton is very low today & it looks this Morning as if her time is very short in this world - it is truly painful to behold her leaving time so entirely distracted as she seems to be - her whole visage is now changed & while she seems sinking there is no abatement of the disorder of her Mind - I sat by her this morning & was pained to the heart to see her in the situation & state of Mind she was in - I suggested to her my desire that she would labour for the quiet, as I apprehended the time she would be with us was very Short, but she did not appear to Sense my remarks as I wished her to - My silent petition was that she might be more composed in her last Moments - but whether it will vouchsafe I know not -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 12, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 12th of 5 M 1836 / Before meeting I called in to see Aunt Stanton & found her very low & sinking fast - My wife concluded to Sit with her & I went to meeting - After Meeting I found her still weaker & the signs of approaching dissolution at hand - I was in frequently in the course of the Afternoon, & after tea I went in & remained in the room with her till she breathed her last which was at just a quarter before 8 OC in the evening, Aged 78 Years eleven Months & six days - being born the 6th day of 6 M AD One thousand seven hundred & fifty seven in Newport her parents were my Grandparents Stephen & Mary Wanton

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 15, Sunday: There was an annular eclipse of the sun (#7254) visible on this day at the tip of Florida. The astronomer Francis Bailey, viewing from southern Scotland where the eclipse was more total, witnessed light from the limb of the sun shining like a string of beads through the valleys on the limb of the moon — “Bailey’s Beads” was quite a sight.

1836 May 15 14:02 A 135 0.470 0.951 45.1N 44.4W 62 203 04m47s

Back in 1824 at Harvard College, Edward Bliss Emerson’s exercise in mathematics (25 $\frac{3}{4}$ x 38 $\frac{3}{4}$ in., Thesis #285, HUC 8782.514) had consisted of a calculation and projection predicting the path across the face of the earth of the shadow of a solar eclipse that would be occurring during May 1836. Question: was this the one? Another question: how accurate did this undergraduate’s mathematical projection turn out to be?

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 15th of 5th M 1836 / We did not attend Meeting this Morning as Aunt Stantons funeral was to be spoken of in my name -Attended the funeral at 1 OC at the house which was a silent & Serious setting the funeral was got through with in season, for us to attend the Afternoon Meeting which was silent & pretty good time. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 17, Tuesday: Joseph Norman Lockyer, who would discover the presence of helium in the sun, was born.

According to the Caledonian Mercury of Edinburgh, Scotland for May 30, Monday, 1836, the General Order issued on the 17th by General Evans of the British legion in Spain, the Military Order “Second Class of St Ferdinand,” a decoration in recognition of services rendered,⁴¹⁹ was issued among others to “P. Thoreau, artillery.”

CAPTAIN JOHN THOREAU

One is of course reminded of the recycling by Henry Thoreau of a poetic remainder (by Charles Wolfe) from England’s painful Peninsular campaign:

419. The 1st class of this medal was lowest, the 3d class highest, and this officer was being awarded the intermediate grade.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

“RESISTANCE TO CIVIL GOVERNMENT”: After all, the practical reason why, when the power is once in the hands of the people, a majority are permitted, and for a long period continue, to rule, is not because they are most likely to be in the right, nor because this seems fairest to the minority, but because they are physically the strongest. But a government in which the majority rule in all cases cannot be based on justice, even as far as men understand it. Can there not be a government in which majorities do not virtually decide right and wrong, but conscience? – in which majorities decide only those questions to which the rule of expediency is applicable? Must the citizen ever for a moment, or in the least degree, resign his conscience to the legislator? Why has every man a conscience, then? I think that we should be men first, and subjects afterward. It is not desirable to cultivate a respect for the law, so much as for the right. The only obligation which I have a right to assume is to do at any time what I think right. It is truly enough said that a corporation has no conscience; but a corporation of conscientious men is a corporation with a conscience. Law never made men a whit more just; and, by means of their respect for it, even the well-disposed are daily made the agents of injustice. A common and natural result of an undue respect for law is, that you may see a file of soldiers, colonel, captain, corporal, privates, powder-monkeys, and all, marching in admirable order over hill and dale to the wars, against their wills, ay, against their common sense and consciences, which makes it very steep marching indeed, and produces a palpitation of the heart. They have no doubt that it is a damnable business in which they are concerned; they are all peaceably inclined. Now, what are they? Men at all? or small movable forts and magazines, at the service of some unscrupulous man in power? Visit the Navy Yard, and behold a marine, such a man as an American government can make, or such as it can make a man with its black arts – a mere shadow and reminiscence of humanity, a man laid out alive and standing, and already, as one may say, buried under arms with funeral accompaniments, though it may be

“Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note,
As his corse to the rampart we hurried;
Not a soldier discharged his farewell shot
O’er the grave where our hero we buried.”

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The mass of men serve the state thus, not as men mainly, but as machines, with their bodies. They are the standing army, and the militia, jailers, constables, posse comitatus, etc. In most cases there is no free exercise whatever of the judgment or of the moral sense; but they put themselves on a level with wood and earth and stones; and wooden men can perhaps be manufactured that will serve the purpose as well. Such command no more respect than men of straw or a lump of dirt. They have the same sort of worth only as horses and dogs. Yet such as these even are commonly esteemed good citizens. Others, as most legislators, politicians, lawyers, ministers, and office-holders, serve the state chiefly with their heads; and, as they rarely make any moral distinctions, they are as likely to serve the devil, without intending it, as God. A very few, as heroes, patriots, martyrs, reformers in the great sense, and men, serve the state with their consciences also, and so necessarily resist it for the most part; and they are commonly treated as enemies by it. A wise man will only be useful as a man, and will not submit to be "clay," and "stop a hole to keep the wind away," but leave that office to his dust at least:-

"I am too high-born to be propertied,
To be a secondary at control,
Or useful serving-man and instrument
To any sovereign state throughout the world."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 17th of 5 M 1836 / This day I purchased a little Book which among other things contained the life of Our friend & my old acquaintance Thomas Watson of Bolton Massachusetts this little sketch of his life & some of his letters has indeed been a brook by the way - & refreshed my heart - all the circumstances it contains I have heard from his own Mouth, excepting the Anecdote of his going to Abel Noughtons house to warn him in the night - he used before I was married, for several years, to dine with me at my fathers house at least once in the course of the Yearly Meeting, & was always very communicative & interesting -he was rather tall, at least not far from the common height - his cloaths coarse & generally of a Sheeps grey colour & his whole appearance much of the rustic, quick spoken with considerable motion with his hands while speaking - his countenance hard & flushed, yet with all when favoured & under the right influence Divine grace Shone over all - he often said his natural disposition was rough & hard, & it required a constant Watch, to keep Nature in subjection - his religious communications, of which I have heard but few want not in Mans Wisdom - but the wisdom attended them & were often very reaching to individuals. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 19, Thursday: United States troops in Alabama began rounding up Creeks into concentration camps.⁴²⁰

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 19th of 5th M 1836 / Attended Meeting which tho' small was a favourable season in solid quiet Father bore a short testimony. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 22, Sunday: At the Niederrheinisches Musikfest in Dusseldorf, Felix Mendelssohn conducted his own St. Paul, an oratorio to words of Schubring after the Bible for the initial time (this and other performances at the festival would assure Mendelssohn's international stature).

Sam Houston landed in New Orleans, where he was met by a band and huzzahing crowds. I bring you tidings of great cheer — Texians are revolting!

The laying, in Concord, of the corner-stone for a Trinitarian Congregationalist Church.

Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert were approaching the equator.
After an equatorial rain squall, everyone was able to take a freshwater bath.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, May 22d. Lat. 5° 14' N., long. 166° 45' W. We were now a fortnight out, and within five degrees of the line, to which two days of good breeze would take us; but we had, for the most part, what sailors call “an Irishman's hurricane,— right up and down.” This day it rained nearly all day, and being Sunday, and nothing to do, we stopped up the scuppers and filled the decks with rain water, and bringing all our clothes on deck, had a grand wash, fore and aft. When this was through, we stripped to our drawers, and taking pieces of soap and strips of canvas for towels, we turned-to and soaped, washed, and scrubbed one another down, to get off, as we said, the California dust; for the common wash in salt water, which is all Jack can get, being on an allowance of fresh, had little efficacy, and was more for taste than utility. The captain was below all the afternoon, and we had something nearer to a Saturnalia than anything we had yet seen; for the mate came into the scuppers, with a couple of boys to scrub him, and got into a battle with them in heaving water. By unplugging the holes, we let the soapsuds off the decks, and in a short time had a new supply of rain water, in which we had a grand rinsing. It was surprising to see how much soap and fresh water did for the complexions of many of us; how much of what we supposed to be tan and sea-blackening, we got rid of. The next day, the sun rising clear, the ship was covered, fore and aft, with clothes of all sorts, hanging out to dry.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 22nd of 5 M 1836 / Father in both meetings today had short but I thought lively & well adapted testimonies to bear - but they were not very rich seasons to me. —
After tea I went to the head of the Long Wharf when the Steam Boat came down from Providence - there were many persons there but I did not know the cause of it till I got there - It seems*

420. “Oh, c'mon, concentration camps only happen in Europe — here they are sequestration facilities, right?”

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

the Company of soldiers on Fort Walcot were to embark to go to Georgia to Fight the Indians - after the boat had taken in her passengers at the Long Wharf she went over to the fort wharf where the poor fellows were arranged in Martial order & we saw them March down on board the boat to go off to be Shot at It was an affecting scene to see them leave a pleasant Island & healthy situation where their little gardens were made & their articles of Vegetables already come up & in good progress -to see them with heavy & very sorrowful & dismayed feelings leave all this, for an unhealthy climate, which of itself is almost certain death to a Northern constitution, & above all to be shot at & Killed or to Kill the Indians in their way It was a very affecting scene & reminded me of a scene I once saw in Providence of a Man who was going to the Gallows - It seemed nearly as awful when I saw these poor objects March down from the Barracks & go on board the boat - but over all & above all, when we reflect on the utter inconsistency & repugnance it is to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. How truly Awful.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 May 25, Wednesday: Waldo Emerson's 33d birthday.

Representative John Quincy Adams was gagged from being able to introduce his petition for the end of the practice of human enslavement in the United States of America.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 25th of 5th M 1836 / This evening Joseph Gifford of Dartmouth & Edmond Chase of Fall River called to see us, they have come to wait on our friends Mary Card & Anna Macomber to attend our Moy [Monthly] Meeting tomorrow - after spending a pleasant time with us - I walked with them to Henry Goulds where they lodge & where the women Friends are. - I sat there till 9 OClock very pleasantly & then came home. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 26, Thursday: The proposals made by Representative Henry Laurens Pinckney of South Carolina,⁴²¹ that the federal Congress had no authority to interfere in any way with slavery in the States and that it ought not to interfere with it in the District of Columbia, including his gag rule according to which any and all petitions about slavery were automatically to be “laid on the table” of the House of Representatives and thus denied further consideration, were enacted by a vote of 117 over 68. Meanwhile, in the Senate, Calhoun’s “Bill for excluding Papers written or printed, touching the subject of Slavery, from the U.S. Post-office,” a piece of criminal legislation which made it a penal offence for postmasters in any State, District, or Territory “knowingly to deliver, to any person whatever, any pamphlet, newspaper, handbill, or other printed paper or pictorial representation, touching the subject of slavery, where, by the laws of the said State, District, or Territory, their circulation was prohibited,” was being enacted.

In this circumstance, Friend John Greenleaf Whittier resorted to poetry:

A SUMMONS.

MEN of the North-land! where’s the manly spirit
Of the true-hearted and the unshackled gone?

Sons of old freemen, do we but inherit
Their names alone?

Is the old Pilgrim spirit quenched within us,
Stoops the strong manhood of our souls so low,
That Mammon’s lure or Party’s wile can win us
To silence now?

Now, when our land to ruin’s brink is verging,
In God’s name, let us speak while there is time!
Now, when the padlocks for our lips are forging,
Silence is crime!

What! shall we henceforth humbly ask as favors
Rights all our own? In madness shall we barter,
For treacherous peace, the freedom Nature gave us,
God and our charter?

Here shall the statesman forge his human fetters,
Here the false jurist human rights deny,
And in the church, their proud and skilled abettors.
Make truth a lie?

Torture the pages of the hallowed Bible,
To sanction crime, and robbery, and blood?
And, in Oppression’s hateful service, libel
Both man and God?

Shall our New England stand erect no longer,
But stoop in chains upon her downward way,
Thicker to gather on her limbs and stronger
Day after day?

Oh no; methinks from all her wild, green mountains;
From valleys where her slumbering fathers lie;
From her blue rivers and her welling fountains,
And clear, cold sky;

From her rough coast, and isles, which hungry Ocean
Gnaws with his surges; from the fisher’s skiff,

421. Note the famous name: Henry Laurens, like Whittier a Huguenot, had been the biggest slave trader in Charleston, and while we were establishing our freedom over here, had served in the Continental Congress.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

With white sail swaying to the billows' motion
Round rock and cliff;

From the free fireside of her unbought farmer;
From her free laborer at his loom and wheel;
From the brown smith-shop, where, beneath the hammer,
Rings the red steel;

From each and all, if God hath not forsaken
Our land, and left us to an evil choice,
Loud as the summer thunderbolt shall waken
A People's voice.

Startling and stern! the Northern winds shall bear it Over Potomac's to St. Mary's wave;
And buried Freedom shall awake to hear it Within her grave.

Oh, let that voice go forth! The bondman sighing
By Santee's wave, in Mississippi's cane,
Shall feel the hope, within his bosom dying,
Revive again.

Let it go forth! The millions who are gazing
Sadly upon us from afar shall smile,
And unto God devout thanksgiving raising,
Bless us the while.

Oh for your ancient freedom, pure and holy,
For the deliverance of a groaning earth,
For the wronged captive, bleeding, crushed, and lowly,
Let it go forth!

Sons of the best of fathers! will ye falter
With all they left ye perilled and at stake?
Ho! once again on Freedom's holy altar
The fire awake!

Prayer-strengthened for the trial, come together,
Put on the harness for the moral fight,
And, with the blessing of your Heavenly Father,
Maintain the right!

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5 day 26th of 5 M / Our Moy [Monthly] Meeting held in town was attended by Mary Card – Anna Macomber returned home this Morning with Joseph Gifford she being too unwell to prosecute her journey
Mary Hicks first appeared in testimony in a lively & well adapted communication, then Mary Card followed her in a lively & acceptable testimony & the Meeting concluded shortly after the Meeting broke – In the last meeting we had but little buisness & the Meeting did not sit long – – Mary Card expects to go to Connanicut tomorrow to visit the few families there. – Had a letter from our dear John in the Afternoon. –*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 27, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 27 of 5th M 1836 / The letter we had from John yesterday conveys no very favourable account of our dear Marys health - this is matter of much concern to us - She went the week before 60 miles to attend Stamford Qrly Meeting but soon after their return she was taken unwell again & tho' John says she is better it will prevent their attending NYork Yearly Meeting which they intended to do. - I hope & pray she may be restored to health. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 2, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 2nd of 6th M 1836 / Our meeting was rather small but a solid & pretty good one. - Father had a little testimony to bear - My mind this Afternoon has been in a solid quiet frame, for which I desire to be thankful. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 5, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 5 of 6 M / This morning our friend Sam Rhodes arrived in the Steam Boat & came to our house while we were eating breakfast he is from Pennsylvania near Philad. & is a Minister with a good certificate from the Meeting he belongs - he attended our Morning Meeting & had acceptable service - In the Afternoon he attended a Meeting appointed at Portsmouth, & expects to attend as many Meetings as he can before YMeeting. -Our Afternoon meeting was solid, & father had a short good testimony. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Richard Henry Dana, Jr. noted that the Alert had made 1,200 miles in seven days.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, June 5th, we were in lat. 19° 29' S., and long. 118° 01' W., having made twelve hundred miles in seven days, very nearly upon a taught bowline. Our good ship was getting to be herself again, had increased her rate of sailing more than one-third since leaving San Diego. The crew ceased complaining of her, and the officers hove the log every two hours with evident satisfaction. This was glorious sailing. A steady breeze; the light trade-wind clouds over our heads; the incomparable temperature of the Pacific,— neither hot nor cold; a clear sun every day, and clear moon and stars each night; and new constellations rising in the south, and the familiar ones sinking in the north, as we went on our course,— “stemming nightly toward the pole.” Already we had sunk the north star and the Great Bear in the northern horizon, and all hands looked out sharp to the southward for the Magellan Clouds, which, each succeeding night, we expected to make. “The next time we see the north star,” said one, “we shall be standing to the northward, the other side of the Horn.” This was true enough, and no doubt it would be a welcome sight; for sailors say that in coming home from round Cape Horn, and the Cape of Good Hope, the north star is the first land you make.

These trades were the same that, in the passage out in the Pilgrim, lasted nearly all the way from Juan Fernandez to the line; blowing steadily on our starboard quarter for three weeks, without our starting a brace, or even brailing down the skysails. Though we had now the same wind, and were in the same latitude with the Pilgrim on her passage out, yet we were nearly twelve hundred miles to the westward of her course; for the captain, depending upon the strong south-west winds which prevail in high southern latitudes during the winter months, took the full advantage of the trades, and stood well to the westward, so far that we passed within about two hundred miles of Ducie’s Island.

It was this weather and sailing that brought to my mind a little incident that occurred on board the Pilgrim, while we were in the same latitude. We were going along at a great rate, dead before the wind, with studding-sails out on both sides, aloft and aloft, on a dark night, just after midnight, and everything was as still as the grave, except the washing of the water by the vessel’s side; for, being before the wind, with a smooth sea, the little brig, covered with canvas, was doing great business, with very little noise. The other watch was below, and all our watch, except myself and the man at the wheel, were asleep under the lee of the boat. The second mate, who came out before the mast, and was always very thick with me, had been holding a yarn with me, and just gone aft to his place on the quarter-deck, and I had resumed my usual walk to and from the windlass-end, when, suddenly, we heard a loud scream coming from ahead, apparently directly from under the bows. The darkness, and complete stillness of the night, and the solitude of the ocean, gave to the sound a dreadful and almost supernatural effect. I stood perfectly still, and my heart beat quick. The sound woke up the rest of the watch, who stood looking at one another. “What, in the name of God, is that?” said the second mate, coming slowly forward. The first thought I had was, that it might be a boat, with the crew of some wrecked vessel, or perhaps the boat of some whaleship, out over night, and we had run them down in the darkness. Another scream, but less loud than the first. This started us, and we ran forward, and looked over the bows, and over the sides, to leeward, but nothing was to be seen or heard. What was to be done. Call the captain, and heave the ship aback? Just at this moment, in crossing the forecastle, one of the men saw a light below, and looking down the scuttle, saw the watch all out of their berths, and afoul of one poor fellow, dragging him out of his berth, and shaking him, to wake him out of a nightmare. They had been waked out of their sleep, and as much alarmed at the scream as we were, and were hesitating whether to come on deck, when the second sound, coming directly from one of the berths, revealed the cause of the alarm. The fellow got a good shaking for the trouble he had given. We made a joke of the matter and we could well laugh, for our minds were not a little relieved by its ridiculous termination.

We were now close upon the southern tropical line, and, with so fine a breeze, were daily leaving the sun behind us, and drawing nearer to Cape Horn, for which it behoved us to make every preparation. Our rigging was all examined and overhauled, and mended, or replaced with new, where it was necessary:

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

new and strong bobstays fitted in the place of the chain ones, which were worn out; the spritsail yard and martingale guys and back-ropes set well taught; bran new fore and main braces rove; top-gallant sheets, and wheel-ropes, made of green hide, laid up in the form of rope, were stretched and fitted; and new top-sail clewlines, etc., rove; new fore-topmast back-stays fitted; and other preparations made, in good season, that the ropes might have time to stretch and become limber before we got into cold weather.

June 7, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th M 7th (3rd of the Week) 1836 / We do not always know what is best for us - & some times that which looks the most favourable does not so prove - but as far as is to be seen by the natural eye - the circumstance of my being elected Town Treasurer this forenoon is a favourable one as to a living - I have been so mercuflly provided for from my youth to the present day - that I sometimes think of all Men I have the least reason to despond of the Mercies & goodness of God to me poor, unprofitable servant as I feel myself to be

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 9, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6M 9th 5th day 1836 / Our Meeting was small as it generally is the 5th day before Y Meeting - Father Rodman had a short good testimony. - This Afternoon Our friend Joshua Lynch & Saml Woolman from Ohio arrived at our house so that Yearly Meeting has commenced with us. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 10, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 6 M 10th / This Morning our friends Isaac Thorn & his companion John Boyce arrived in the Steam Boat & came to our house

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 11, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 6th M 11 / We went to Portsmouth to attend Select meeting - It was a good meeting, before the service of buisness commenced - Isaac Thorn was engaged in a Baptizing supplication & a Man friend offered a Short testimony whose name I do not know - The buisness was well conducted & the Meeting was not long, we dined at Asa Shermans. - My wife came home, taking Saml Bettles seat in the carriage he went in & I took him to Meeting for Sufferings - Some important subjects were before us but there was much solid weight evidently in & over the Meeting & we got along pretty satisfactorily. - After Meeting rode home with Saml Bettle & had much interesting conversation with him on the Road. - When I got

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

home I found a very pleasant & Intersting letter from Our dear friend Ann M Thorn dated Dublin 22 of 4th M 1836 which was very greatful, particularly as her husband was present & had an opportunity of hearing it read as soon as it came. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 12, Sunday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert experienced a week of intermittent winds.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, June 12th. Lat. 26° 04' S., 116° 31' W. We had now lost the regular trades, and had the winds variable, principally from the westward, and kept on, in a southerly course, sailing very nearly upon a meridian, and at the end of the week,

Hearing reports that the Texas government was in chaos, Sam Houston began a difficult journey back.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 12 of 6 M 1836 / Our Morning Meeting was a season of remarkable solemnity & favour - Father Rodman opened the service in a short lively testimony & was followed in a powerful living gospel communication by Saml Bettle, Supplication by Hannah Evans - after a time of very solid waiting Saml was engaged in another Supplication after which the Meeting closed. In the Afternoon the Meeting was very large & the weight of the Service lay on Isaac Thorn his testimony was powerful & prevalent & considering the great concourse present the Meeting was as quiet as I ever knew it in the Afternoon. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 13, Monday: The US House of Representatives voted to admit the new states of Arkansas and Michigan to the federal union, preserving of course the necessary political balance by admitting the one as a slave state and the other as a free state.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 13th of 6 M 1836 / The silent part of the Meeting was attended with a precious covering under which Saml Bettle was engaged in testimony much to the consolation of Friends followed by a living prayer by Isaac Thorn when we proceeded to buisness - & the usual buisness was proceeded in for three hours - when our friend Benj. Freeborn was taken in a fit & carried our of Meeting - which unsettled the Minds of Friends that after he was removed to the door, buisness could not be proceeded in under the same settlement & quiet that we were in before & the Meeting adjourned to 4 OC in the Afternoon - It was a very favoured time all looseness & spirit was remarkable kept down & things went on in the true Spirit of Quakerism. -

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

At 4 OC the Meeting gathered & again proceeded to buisness - there was not so much of the preciius covering as we were favoured with in the Morning - but on the whole the right weight predominated the committee on epistles was appointed, the report of the boarding School committee was read & the committee reappointed

In the Afternoon we had the company of our intimate & beloved friend Mary Ann Barker in addition to our family, who consists of Joshua Lynch, Saml Woolman, Isaac Thorn & John Boyce Elizabeth Barker & her daughter Mary Ann - Clarke Shove & wife, and Thomas Howland. -[that's a total of nine houseguests]

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 14, Tuesday: On this day or the following one, Waldo Emerson wrote in his journal:

Power is one great lesson which Nature teaches Man. The secret that he can not only reduce under his will, that is, conform to his character, particular events but classes of events & so harmonize all the outward occurrences with the states of mind, that must he learn. Worship, must he learn.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 14th of 6 M 1836 / Select Meeting met at 8 OClock this Morning - Our friend John Warren returned the certificates he recd two years ago to visit Friends in England & Ireland & produced very lively & satisfactory - The queries & Answers were read & the subjects before treated in a weighty manner. - The Meeting at large in the Afternoon was also a season of favour - In the eveng a committee met at our house which has been the case each evening, including first Day which has made hard service for us. -

I find my time is so much occupied that I must neglect a daily entry of events & must defer to the close of the Meeting any further attempts at writing in my diary & then insert a general clause according to my remembrance & feeling of what occurred. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 18, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 18th of 6 M - Our friends have now left us - our family have all gone & tho' still under the pressure of fatigue wish to commit to writing that it has through out, been a season of

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

much good feeling & divine favour & great harmony has been experienced. – yet we have had some difficulty in coming to a few decisions, particularly in the testimony given fourth against false doctrines circulated in many unauthorized pamphlets issued in England – This testimony was agreed to by the Meeting for Sufferings & accepted by the Yearly Meeting, tho' it was very desirable to have had a few of the objectionable works specified & a little more full acknowledgement of the opposition of the spirit of Truth & of its being paramount to the Scriptures as a great attempt is now making to Set the Scriptures above the Spirit – but for the hurried manner in which it was written & the little time we had to digest it, the testimony was a pretty good one & it was my sense & judgement that it will do some good tho' perhaps not as much as it might have done. – The Subject of the removal of Yearly Meeting was reported to by the committee who have had charge of it four years & their opinions being favourable to a change – Another committee was appointed to consider of what place it was best to remove to, in case it was removed, & to report their prospects next year. – In all our sittings there was much drawing together among the weighty part of the society & altho' there was some appearance of the New views which now is agitating Friends in England Yet Truth the everlasting Truth went over all & we have reason to believe that the Great Name was honoured – The public Ministers who were with us were instruments of good & gave evidence that there are yet Seers in Israel & that the Scripture has not departed from Judah

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 19, Sunday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert began to enter the waters off Cape Horn.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, June 19th, were in lat. 34° 15' S., and long. 116° 38' W.

There now began to be a decided change in the appearance of things. The days became shorter and shorter; the sun running lower in its course each day, and giving less and less heat; and the nights so cold as to prevent our sleeping on deck; the Magellan Clouds in sight, of a clear night; the skies looking cold and angry; and, at times, a long, heavy, ugly sea, setting in from the southward, told us what we were coming to. Still, however, we had a fine, strong breeze, and kept on our way, under as much sail as our ship would bear. Toward the middle of the week, the wind hauled to the southward, which brought us upon a taught bowline, made the ship meet, nearly head on, the heavy swell which rolled from that direction; and there was something not at all encouraging in the manner in which she met it. Being so deep and heavy, she wanted the buoyancy which should have carried her over the seas, and she dropped heavily into them, the water washing over the decks; and every now and then, when an unusually large sea met her fairly upon the bows, she struck it with a sound as dead and heavy as that with which a sledge-hammer falls upon the pile, and took the whole of it in upon the forecastle, and rising, carried it aft in the scuppers, washing the rigging off the pins, and carrying along with it everything which was loose on deck. She had been acting in this way all of our forenoon watch below; as we could tell by the washing of the water over our heads, and the heavy breaking of the seas against her bows, (with a sound as though she were striking against a rock,) only the thickness of the plank from our heads, as we lay in our berths, which are directly against the bows. At eight bells, the watch was called, and we came on deck, one hand going aft to take the wheel, and another and another going to the galley to get the grub for dinner. I stood on the fore-castle, looking at the seas, which were rolling high, as far as the eye could reach, their tops white with foam, and the body of them of a deep indigo blue, reflecting the bright rays of the sun. Our ship rose slowly over a few of the largest of them, until one immense fellow came rolling on, threatening to cover her, and which I was sailor enough to know, by “the feeling of her” under my feet, she would not rise over. I sprang upon the knight-heads, and seizing hold of the fore-stay with my hands, drew myself upon it. My feet were just off the stanchion, when she struck fairly into the middle of the sea, and it washed her fore and aft, burying her in the water. As soon as she rose out of it, I looked aft, and everything forward of the main-mast, except the long-boat, which was gripped and doublelashed down to the ring-bolts, was swept off clear. The galley, the pig-sty, the hen-coop, and a large sheep-pen which had been built upon the fore-hatch, were all gone, in the twinkling of an eye— leaving the deck as clean as a chin new-reaped— and not a stick left, to show where they had stood. In the scuppers lay the galley, bottom up, and a few boards floating about, the wreck of the sheep-pen— and half a dozen miserable sheep floating among them, wet through, and not a little frightened at the sudden change that had come upon them. As soon as the sea had washed by, all hands sprung out of the fore-castle to see what had become of the ship and in a few moments the cook and old Bill crawled out from under the galley, where they had been lying in the water, nearly smothered, with the galley over them. Fortunately, it rested against the bulwarks, or it would have broken some of their bones. When the water ran off, we picked the sheep up, and put them in the long-boat, got the long-boat, got the galley back in its place, and set things a little to rights; but, had not our ship had uncommonly high bulwarks and rail, everything must have been washed overboard, not excepting Old Bill and the cook. Bill had been standing at the galley-door, with the kid of beef in his hand for the fore-castle mess, when, away he went, kid, beef, and all. He held on to the kid till the last, like a good fellow, but the beef was gone, and when the water had run off, we saw it lying high and dry, like a rock at low tide— nothing could hurt that. We took the loss of our beef very easily, consoling ourselves with the recollection that the cabin had more to lose than we; and chuckled not a little at seeing the remains of the chicken-pie and pan-cakes floating in the scuppers. “This will never do!” was what some said, and every one felt. Here we were, not yet within a thousand miles of the latitude of Cape Horn, and our decks swept by a sea not one half so high as we must expect to find there. Some blamed the captain for loading his ship so deep, when he knew what he must expect; while others said that the wind was always southwest, off the Cape, in the winter; and that, running before it, we should not mind the seas so much. When we got down into the fore-castle, Old Bill, who was somewhat of a croaker,— having met with a great many accidents at sea— said that if that was the way she was going to act, we might as well make our wills, and balance the books at once, and put on a clean shirt. “Vast there, you bloody old owl! You’re always hanging out blue lights! You’re frightened by the ducking you got in the scuppers, and can’t take a joke! What’s the use in being always on the look-out for Davy Jones?” “Stand by!” says another, “and we’ll get an afternoon watch below, by this scrape;” but in this they were disappointed, for at two bells, all hands were called and set to work, getting lashings upon everything on deck; and the captain talked of sending down the long top-gallant masts; but, as the sea went down toward night, and the wind hauled abeam we left them standing, and set the studding-sails.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 19th of 6th M 1836 / Our fr Joshua Lynch & his companion Joel Woolman staid last night at David Buffums, being engaged in looking for a horse to go the journey they have in propect. — They returned to Meeting with us in the forenoon & went to an appt Meeting at Portsmouth at 4 OC this Afternoon intending to go from thence to Edw Wings in Tiverton & stay tonight — Joshua had a good testimony with us in the Morning & in the Afternoon

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Meeting Father Rodman was concerned in lively testimony

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 23, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 23 of 6 M / This PM I called to see my dear Neice Martha Cozzens who was confined the first day of this Month with their first child whose name they have concluded to call James Gould Cozzens - My mind was affected with many considerations while sitting with her & my desires were hearty & ardent for their welfare. —

Our Meeting today was smaller than usual - Father preached a little very good but it was not a lively time with me - Edw & Elizabeth Wing were at Meeting & came home with us & Dined

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 24, Friday: Waldo Emerson completed his draft of NATURE, which he recognized to be hardly enough to offer as a decent book.

My design is to follow it by and by with another essay, "Spirit"; and the two shall make a decent volume.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 24th of 6th M / This eveng between 9 & 10 OC Died Redwood Hazard. Aged 75 Years & 6 Days - he had been for many years partially deranged & taken care of by Society at the house of David Buffum in Middletown - he was mostly pleasant & was always remarkable for his retentive memory & careful attendance of Meetings when of ability to attend—

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 26, Sunday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert were within 1,800 miles of Cape Horn.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, June 26th, when, having a fine, clear day, the captain got a lunar observation, as well as his meridian altitude, which made us in lat. 47° 50' S., long. 113° 49' W.; Cape Horn bearing, according to my calculation, E. S. E. 1/2 E., and distant eighteen hundred miles.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 26th of 6th M 1836 / The remains of Redwood Hazard was brought into Town, & buried after Meeting - Father Rodman was engaged in testimony as were Hannah Dennis & Anna D Wing - the latter also appeared in supplication - it appeared to me the Meeting was preserved, & a good degree of solemnity was spread over it. —

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

In the Afternoon Anna was again concerned to preach –Father also said a few word.– In the evening I met Hannah & Anna at Fathers.

—

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 30, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 30 of 6 M / Went to Portsmouth in a Carriage with My wife & Mary Williams to attend the Moy [Monthly] Meeting - In the first Meeting Mary Hicks preached very much to my satisfaction & comfort Anna D Wing then preached - then Hannah Dennis in a few words satisfactorily, then HAnnah Hall was engaged to bear testimony to the Mercy & goodness of God to her soul, but she was so far from me that I could hear but little she said - Then A D Wing prayed - In this Meeting I said in my heat, Oh the need there is of care & watchfulness over the Ministry.

We had but very little buisness in the Moy [Monthly] Meeting & it closed sooner than usual.

We dined & spent the Afternoon with my Cousin Shadrach Chase - it was very pleasant & a renewal of Ancient love & friendship, having been long intimate with him & the family & spent many happy hours at his house in the Days of his father & Mother Zacheus & Elizabeth Chase

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

July 2, Saturday: Fromental Halevy was elected to the French Institute.

Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert entered the region of drifting ice.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Saturday, July 2nd. This day the sun rose fair, but it ran too low in the heavens to give any heat, or thaw out our sails and rigging; yet the sight of it was pleasant; and we had a steady "reef topsail breeze" from the westward. The atmosphere, which had previously been clear and cold, for the last few hours grew damp, and had a disagreeable, wet chilliness in it; and the man who came from the wheel said he heard the captain tell "the passenger" that the thermometer had fallen several degrees since morning, which he could not account for in any other way than by supposing that there must be ice near us; though such a thing had never been heard of in this latitude, at this season of the year. At twelve o'clock we went below, and had just got through dinner, when the cook put his head down the scuttle and told us to come on deck and see the finest sight that we had ever seen. "Where away, cook?" asked the first man who was up. "On the larboard bow." And there lay, floating in the ocean, several miles off, an immense, irregular mass, its top and points covered with snow, and its center of a deep indigo color. This was an iceberg, and of the largest size, as one of our men said who had been in the Northern ocean. As far as the eye could reach, the sea in every direction was of a deep blue color, the waves running high and fresh, and sparkling in the light, and in the midst lay this immense mountain-island, its cavities and valleys thrown into deep shade, and its points and pinnacles glittering in the sun. All hands were soon on deck, looking at it, and admiring in various ways its beauty and grandeur. But no description can give any idea of the strangeness, splendor, and, really, the sublimity, of the sight. Its great size;— for it must have been from two to three miles in circumference, and several hundred feet in height;— its slow motion, as its base rose and sank in the water, and its high points nodded against the clouds; the dashing of the waves upon it, which, breaking high with foam, lined its base with a white crust; and the thundering sound of the cracking of the mass, and the breaking and tumbling down of huge pieces; together with its nearness and approach, which added a slight element of fear,— all combined to give to it the character of true sublimity. The main body of the mass was, as I have said, of an indigo color, its base crusted with frozen foam; and as it grew thin and transparent toward the edges and top, its color shaded off from a deep blue to the whiteness of snow. It seemed to be drifting slowly toward the north, so that we kept away and avoided it. It was in sight all the afternoon; and when we got to leeward of it, the wind died away, so that we lay-to quite near it for a greater part of the night. Unfortunately, there was no moon, but it was a clear night, and we could plainly mark the long, regular heaving of the stupendous mass, as its edges moved slowly against the stars. Several times in our watch loud cracks were heard, which sounded as though they must have run through the whole length of the iceberg, and several pieces fell down with a thundering crash, plunging heavily into the sea.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 2nd of 7th M 1836 / It seems as if I have constantly something to be thankful for, & the language of my heart has often of late been "What shall I render to the Lord for all his blessings." What I am now alluding to particularly is that I have acted as Town Treasurer for the last Year & today the Audit has been to our house & made a satisfactory settlement of my accounts with the Town - which places me at ease on account of them & I find all the Money in my hands that appears due to the Town by the settlement of the Books

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

July 3, Sunday: Richard Henry Dana, Jr. and the Alert sailed on through drifting, shifting archipelago of islands of ice.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Toward morning, a strong breeze sprang up, and we filled away, and left it astern, and at daylight it was out of sight. The next day, which was

Sunday, July 3d, the breeze continued strong, the air exceedingly chilly, and the thermometer low. In the course of the day we saw several icebergs, of different sizes, but none so near as the one which we saw the day before. Some of them, as well as we could judge, at the distance at which we were, must have been as large as that, if not larger. At noon we were in latitude 55° 12' south, and supposed longitude 89° 5' west. Toward night the wind hauled to the southward, and headed us off our course a little, and blew a tremendous gale; but this we did not mind, as there was no rain nor snow, and we were already under close sail.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 3rd of 7 M / In our morning Meeting Father Rodman was engaged in testimony^supplication – & also in testimony in the Afternoon much to satisfaction

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 5, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 5 of 7 M / This Morning I went on board the Steam Boat & got to Providence in season to attend the Meeting of the Sub-committee & Spent the day at the School House Lodged at my dear fr Moses Browns

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

David Henry Thoreau wrote from Concord to Henry Vose, a classmate at Harvard College and fellow Concordian who would eventually sit on the Superior Court of Massachusetts.

Concord, July 5.th 1836.

Dear Vose.

You will probably recognise in the following dialogue a part which you yourself acted.

Act 1st. Scene 1st.

T. Come, Vose, let's hear from a fellow now and then.

V. We—ll, I certainly will, but you must write first.

T. No, confound you, I shall have my hands full, and moreover shall have nothing to say, while you will have bonfires, gunpowder plots, and deviltry enough to back you.

V. Well, I'll write first, and in the course of our correspondence we can settle a certain other matter.

Now 'tis to this "certain other matter" alone that you are indebted for this epistle. The length and breadth, the height and depth, the sum & substance, of what I have to say, is this. Your humble servant

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

will endeavor to enter the Senior Class of Harvard University next term, and if you intend taking a room in College, and it should be consistent with your pleasure, will joyfully sign himself your lawful and proper "Chum".

Should the case be otherwise, you will oblige him much if you will request that sage doughface of a Wheeler to secure me one of the following rooms. Agreeably to his polite offer.

H. 23

St. do

H. 27

St. do

St 28

H. do

Look well to the order.

I shall expect to hear from you forthwith. I leave it to you to obtain a room, should it be necessary.

Yrs

Matter-of-factly

D H Thoreau

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Until Friday, aboard the Alert, Richard Henry Dana, Jr. would be sick in his hammock.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

I went below and turned-in, covering myself over with blankets and jackets, and lay in my berth nearly twenty-four hours, half asleep and half awake, stupid, from the dull pain. I heard the watch called, and the men going up and down, and sometimes a noise on deck, and a cry of “ice,” but I gave little attention to anything. At the end of twenty-four hours the pain went down, and I had a long sleep, which brought me back to my proper state; yet my face was so swollen and tender, that I was obliged to keep to my berth for two or three days longer. During the two days I had been below, the weather was much the same that it had been, head winds, and snow and rain; or, if the wind came fair, too foggy, and the ice too thick, to run. At the end of the third day the ice was very thick; a complete fog-bank covered the ship. It blew a tremendous gale from the eastward, with sleet and snow, and there was every promise of a dangerous and fatiguing night. At dark, the captain called all hands aft, and told them that not a man was to leave the deck that night; that the ship was in the greatest danger; any cake of ice might knock a hole in her, or she might run on an island and go to pieces. No one could tell whether she would be a ship the next morning. The look-outs were then set, and every man was put in his station. When I heard what was the state of things, I began to put on my clothes to stand it out with the rest of them, when the mate came below, and looking at my face, ordered me back to my berth, saying that if we went down, we should all go down together, but if I went on deck I might lay myself up for life. This was the first word I had heard from aft; for the captain had done nothing, nor inquired how I was, since I went below.

In obedience to the mate’s orders, I went back to my berth; but a more miserable night I never wish to spend. I never felt the curse of sickness so keenly in my life. If I could only have been on deck with the rest, where something was to be done, and seen, and heard; where there were fellow-beings for companions in duty and danger— but to be cooped up alone in a black hole, in equal danger, but without the power to do, was the hardest trial. Several times, in the course of the night, I got up, determined to go on deck; but the silence which showed that there was nothing doing, and the knowledge that I might make myself seriously ill, for nothing, kept me back. It was not easy to sleep, lying, as I did, with my head directly against the bows, which might be dashed in by an island of ice, brought down by the very next sea that struck her. This was the only time I had been ill since I left Boston, and it was the worst time it could have happened. I felt almost willing to bear the plagues of Egypt for the rest of the voyage, if I could but be well and strong for that one night. Yet it was a dreadful night for those on deck. A watch of eighteen hours, with wet, and cold, and constant anxiety, nearly wore them out; and when they came below at nine o’clock for breakfast, they almost dropped asleep on their chests, and some of them were so stiff that they could with difficulty sit down. Not a drop of anything had been given them during the whole time, (though the captain, as on the night that I was on deck, had his coffee every four hours,) except that the mate stole a potful of coffee for two men to drink behind the galley, while he kept a look-out for the captain. Every man had his station, and was not allowed to leave it; and nothing happened to break the monotony of the night, except once setting the main topsails to run clear of a large island to leeward, which they were drifting fast upon. Some of the boys got so sleepy and stupefied, that they actually fell asleep at their posts; and the young third mate, whose station was the exposed one of standing on the fore scuttle, was so stiff, when he was relieved, that he could not bend his knees to get down. By a constant look-out, and a quick shifting of the helm, as the islands and pieces came in sight, the ship went clear of everything but a few small pieces, though daylight showed the ocean covered for miles.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

July 6, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 6th of 7th M 1836 / Still at Providence engaged with others by appointment from the Yearly Meeting in transferring the School fund from Moses Brown the old treasurer resigned to Wm Jenkins who was appointed in the 6 M to succeed him - We were engaged all this forenoon in receiving the fund from Moses Brown & receipting to him for the same & giving him a discharge from his long & arduous duties for the space of 50 Years - After dining at the house of our Venerable friend we went to Wm Jenkins Store & Paid the effects over to him amounting to $94, 999 or thereabout & took his receipt for the same. - I went with Thos Howland to the School House & lodged there. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 7, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day after attending to a little buisness of my own I attended the Week day Meeting in Providence which was held in Silence Dined at William Jenkins's, who at 4 OC carried me to the Steam Boat & I came home. - This is the first time the treasury of the School fund was ever transfered - Moses Brown having held it from its first commencement - My visit was a pleasant one & I left my friends there under a good degree of encouragement & good feelings. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 10, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 10th of 7th M 1836 / Father was engaged in testimony forenoon & Afternoon - the Morning Meeting was attended as usual tho' I thought both were rather thinner than at some times - yet there were several present who were new commers & have not in times past been in the practice of attending our Meetings - But for my own part both Meetings were to me seasons of but little access to divine favour & rather dry & hard Seasons. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

The Alert and Richard Henry Dana, Jr. made an initial run at the Cape.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, July 10th. Lat. 54° 10', long. 79° 07'. This was our position at noon. The sun was out bright; the ice was all left behind, and things had quite a cheering appearance. We brought our wet pea-jackets and trousers on deck, and hung them up in the rigging, that the breeze and the few hours of sun might dry them a little; and, by the permission of the cook, the galley was nearly filled with stockings and mittens, hung round to be dried. Boots, too, were brought up; and having got a little tar and slush from below, we gave them a thick coat. After dinner, all hands were turned-to, to get the anchors over the bows, bend on the chains, etc. fishtackle was got up, fish-davit rigged out, and after two or three hours of hard and cold work, both the anchors were ready for instant use, a couple of kedges got up, a hawser coiled away upon the fore-hatch, and the deep-sea-lead-line overhauled and got ready. Our spirits returned with having something to do; and when the tackle was manned to bowse the anchor home, notwithstanding the desolation of the scene, we struck up “Cheerily ho!” in full chorus. This pleased the mate, who rubbed his hands and cried out—“That’s right, my boys; never say die! That sounds like the old crew!” and the captain came up, on hearing the song, and said to the passenger, within hearing of the man at the wheel,—“That sounds like a lively crew. They’ll have their song so long as there’re enough left for a chorus!”

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

This preparation of the cable and anchors was for the passage of the straits; for, being very crooked, and with a variety of currents, it is necessary to come frequently to anchor. This was not, by any means, a pleasant prospect, for, of all the work that a sailor is called upon to do in cold weather, there is none so bad as working the ground-tackle. The heavy chain cables to be hauled and pulled about the decks with bare hands; wet hawsers, slip-ropes, and buoyropes to be hauled aboard, dripping in water, which is running up your sleeves, and freezing; clearing hawse under the bows; getting under weigh and coming-to, at all hours of the night and day, and a constant look-out for rocks and sands and turns of tides;— these are some of the disagreeables of such a navigation to a common sailor. Fair or foul, he wants to have nothing to do with the ground, tackle between port and port. One of our hands, too, had unluckily fallen upon a half of an old newspaper which contained an account of the passage, through the straits, of a Boston brig, called, I think, the Peruvian, in which she lost every cable and anchor she had, got aground twice, and arrived at Valparaiso in distress. This was set off against the account of the A.J. Donelson, and led us to look forward with less confidence to the passage, especially as no one on board had ever been through, and the captain had no very perfect charts. However, we were spared any further experience on the point; for the next day, when we must have been near the Cape of Pillars, which is the south-west point of the mouth of the straits, a gale set in from the eastward, with a heavy fog, so that we could not see half of the ship’s length ahead. This, of course, put an end to the project, for the present; for a thick fog and a gale blowing dead ahead are not the most favorable circumstances for the passage of difficult and dangerous straits. This weather, too, seemed likely to last for some time, and we could not think of beating about the mouth of the straits for a week or two, waiting for a favorable opportunity; so we braced up on the larboard tack, put the ship’s head due south, and struck her off for Cape Horn again.

Our watches below were no more varied than the watch on deck. All washing, sewing, and reading was given up; and we did nothing but eat, sleep, and stand our watch, leading what might be called a Cape Horn life. The fore-castle was too uncomfortable to sit up in; and whenever we were below, we were in our berths. To prevent the rain, and the sea-water which broke over the bows, from washing down, we were obliged to keep the scuttle closed, so that the fore-castle was nearly air-tight. In this little, wet, leaky hole, we were all quartered, in an atmosphere so bad that our lamp, which swung in the middle from the beams, sometimes actually burned blue, with a large circle of foul air about it. Still I was never in better health than after three weeks of this life. I gained a great deal of flesh, and we all ate like horses. At every watch, when we came below, before turning-in, the bread barge and beef kid were overhauled. Each man drank his quart of hot tea night and morning; and glad enough we were to get it, for no nectar and ambrosia were sweeter to the lazy immortals, than was a pot of hot tea, a hard biscuit, and a slice of cold salt beef, to us after a watch on deck. To be sure, we were mere animals and had this life lasted a year instead of a month we should have been little better than the ropes in the ship. Not a razor, nor a brush, nor a drop of water, except the rain and the spray, had come near us all the time; for we were on an allowance of fresh water; and who would strip and wash himself in salt water on deck, in the snow and ice, with the thermometer at zero?

After about eight days of constant easterly gales, the wind hauled occasionally a little to the southward, and blew hard, which, as we were well to the southward, allowed us to brace in a little and stand on, under all

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

the sail we could carry. These turns lasted but a short while, and sooner or later it set again from the old quarter; yet each time we made something, and were gradually edging along to the eastward. One night, after one of these shifts of the wind, and when all hands had been up a great part of the time, our watch was left on deck, with the mainsail hanging in the buntlines, ready to be set if necessary. It came on to blow worse and worse, with hail and snow beating like so many furies upon the ship, it being as dark and thick as night could make it. The mainsail was blowing and slatting with a noise like thunder, when the captain came on deck, and ordered it to be furled. The mate was about to call all hands, when the captain stopped him, and said that the men would be beaten out if they were called up so often; that as our watch must stay on deck, it might as well be doing that as anything else. Accordingly, we went upon the yard; and never shall I forget that piece of work. Our watch had been so reduced by sickness, and by some having been left in California, that, with one man at the wheel, we had only the third mate and three beside myself to go aloft; so that at most, we could only attempt to furl one yard-arm at a time. We manned the weather yard-arm, and set to work to make a furl of it. Our lower masts being short, and our yards very square, the sail had a head of nearly fifty feet, and a short leach, made still shorter by the deep reef which was in it, which brought the clew away out on the quarters of the yard, and made a bunt nearly as square as the mizen royal-yard. Beside this difficulty, the yard over which we lay was cased with ice, the gaskets and rope of the foot and leach of the sail as stiff and hard as a piece of suctionhose, and the sail itself about as pliable as though it had been made of sheets of sheathing copper. It blew a perfect hurricane, with alternate blasts of snow, hail, and rain. We had to fist the sail with bare hands. No one could trust himself to mittens, for if he slipped, he was a gone man. All the boats were hoisted in on deck, and there was nothing to be lowered for him. We had need of every finger God had given us. Several times we got the sail upon the yard, but it blew away again before we could secure it. It required men to lie over the yard to pass each turn of the gaskets, and when they were passed, it was almost impossible to knot them so that they would hold. Frequently we were obliged to leave off altogether and take to beating our hands upon the sail, to keep them from freezing. After some time,—which seemed forever,—we got the weather side stowed after a fashion, and went over to leeward for another trial. This was still worse, for the body of the sail had been blown over to leeward, and as the yard was a-cock-bill by the lying over of the vessel, we had to light it all up to windward. When the yard-arms were furled, the bunt was all adrift again, which made more work for us. We got all secure at last, but we had been nearly an hour and a half upon the yard, and it seemed an age. It just struck five bells when we went up, and eight were struck soon after we came down. This may seem slow work, but considering the state of everything, and that we had only five men to a sail with just half as many square yards of canvas in it as the mainsail of the Independence, sixty-gun ship, which musters seven hundred men at her quarters, it is not wonderful that we were no quicker about it. We were glad enough to get on deck, and still more, to go below. The oldest sailor in the watch said, as he went down,—“I shall never forget that main yard;— it beats all my going a fishing. Fun is fun, but furling one yard-arm of a course, at a time, off Cape Horn, is no better than man-killing.”

Few words were spoken between the watches as they shifted, the wheel was relieved, the mate took his place on the quarter-deck, the look-outs in the bows; and each man had his narrow space to walk fore and aft in, or, rather, to swing himself forward and back in, from one belaying pin to another,— for the decks were too slippery with ice and water to allow of much walking. To make a walk, which is absolutely necessary to pass away the time, one of us hit upon the expedient of sanding the deck; and afterwards, whenever the rain was not so violent as to wash it off, the weatherside of the quarterdeck and a part of the waist and forecastle were sprinkled with the sand which we had on board for holystoning; and thus we made a good promenade, where we walked fore and aft, two and two, hour after hour, in our long, dull, and comfortless watches. The bells seemed to be an hour or two apart, instead of half an hour, and an age to elapse before the welcome sound of eight bells. The sole object was to make the time pass on. Any chance was sought for, which would break the monotony of the time; and even the two hours' trick at the wheel, which came round to each of us, in turn, once in every other watch, was looked upon as a relief. Even the never-failing resource of long yarns, which eke out many a watch, seemed to have failed us now; for we had been so long together that we had heard each other's stories told over and over again, till we had them by heart; each one knew the whole history of each of the others, and we were fairly and literally talked out. Singing and joking, we were in no humor for, and, in fact, any sound of mirth or laughter would have struck strangely upon our ears, and would not have been tolerated, any more than whistling, or a wind instrument. The last resort, that of speculating upon the future, seemed now to fail us, for our discouraging situation, and the danger we were really in, (as we expected every day to find ourselves drifted back among the ice) "clapped a stopper" upon all that. From saying— "when we get home"— we began insensibly to alter it to— "if we get home"— and at last the subject was dropped by a tacit consent.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

In this state of things, a new light was struck out, and a new field opened, by a change in the watch. One of our watch was laid up for two or three days by a bad hand, (for in cold weather the least cut or bruise ripens into a sore,) and his place was supplied by the carpenter. This was a windfall, and there was quite a contest, who should have the carpenter to walk with him. As "Chips" was a man of some little education, and he and I had had a good deal of intercourse with each other, he fell in with me in my walk. He was a Fin, but spoke English very well, and gave me long accounts of his country;— the customs, the trade, the towns, what little he knew of the government, (I found he was no friend of Russia), his voyages, his first arrival in America, his marriage and courtship;— he had married a countrywoman of his, a dress-maker, whom he met with in Boston. I had very little to tell him of my quiet, sedentary life at home; and, in spite of our best efforts, which had protracted these yarns through five or six watches, we fairly talked one another out, and I turned him over to another man in the watch, and put myself upon my own resources.

I commenced a deliberate system of time-killing, which united some profit with a cheering up of the heavy hours. As soon as I came on deck, and took my place and regular walk, I began with repeating over to myself a string of matters which I had in my memory, in regular order. First, the multiplication table and the tables of weights and measures; then the states of the union, with their capitals; the counties of England, with their shire towns; the kings of England in their order; and a large part of the peerage, which I committed from an almanac that we had on board; and then the Kanaka numerals. This carried me through my facts, and, being repeated deliberately, with long intervals, often eked out the two first bells. Then came the ten commandments; the thirty-ninth chapter of Job, and a few other passages from Scripture. The next in the order, that I never varied from, came Cowper's Castaway, which was a great favorite with me; the solemn measure and gloomy character of which, as well as the incident that it was founded upon, made it well suited to a lonely watch at sea. Then his lines to Mary, his address to the jackdaw, and a short extract from Table Talk; (I abounded in Cowper, for I happened to have a volume of his poems in my chest;) "Ille et nefasto" from Horace, and Goethe's Erl King. After I had got through these, I allowed myself a more general range among everything that I could remember, both in prose and verse. In this way, with an occasional break by relieving the wheel, heaving the log, and going to the scuttle-butt for a drink of water, the longest watch was passed away; and I was so regular in my silent recitations, that if there was no interruption by ship's duty, I could tell very nearly the number of bells by my progress.

Besides the pleasure of seeing a ship and human beings in so desolate a place, it was important for us to speak a vessel, to learn whether there was ice to the eastward, and to ascertain the longitude; for we had no chronometer, and had been drifting about so long that we had nearly lost our reckoning, and opportunities for lunar observations are not frequent or sure in such a place as Cape Horn. For these various reasons, the excitement in our little community was running high, and conjectures were made, and everything thought of for which the captain would hail, when the man aloft sung out— "Another sail, large on the weather bow!" This was a little odd, but so much the better, and did not shake our faith in their being sails. At length the man in the top hailed, and said he believed it was land, after all. "Land in your eye!" said the mate, who was looking through a telescope; "they are ice islands, if I can see a hole through a ladder;" and a few moments showed the mate to be right and all our expectations fled; and instead of what we most wished to see, we had what we most dreaded, and what we hoped we had seen the last of. We soon, however, left these astern,

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

having passed within about two miles of them; and at sundown the horizon was clear in all directions. Having a fine wind, we were soon up with and passed the latitude of the Cape, and having stood far enough to the southward to give it a wide berth, we began to stand to the eastward, with a good prospect of being round and steering to the northward on the other side, in a very few days.

But ill luck seemed to have lighted upon us. Not four hours had we been standing on in this course, before it fell dead calm; and in half an hour it clouded up; a few straggling blasts, with spits of snow and sleet, came from the eastward; and in an hour more, we lay hove-to under a close-reefed main topsail, drifting bodily off to leeward before the fiercest storm that we had yet felt, blowing dead ahead, from the eastward. It seemed as though the genius of the place had been roused at finding that we had nearly slipped through his fingers, and had come down upon us with tenfold fury. The sailors said that every blast, as it shook the shrouds, and whistled through the rigging, said to the old ship, “No, you don’t!”— “No, you don’t!”

For eight days we lay drifting about in this manner. Sometimes,— generally towards noons,— it fell calm; once or twice a round copper ball showed itself for a few moments in the place where the sun ought to have been; and a puff or two came from the westward, giving some hope that a fair wind had come at last. During the first two days, we made sail for these puffs, shaking the reefs out of the topsails and boarding the tacks of the courses; but finding that it only made work for us when the gale set in again, it was soon given up, and we lay-to under our close-reefs.

We had less snow and hail than when we were farther to the westward, but we had an abundance of what is worse to a sailor in cold weather— drenching rain. Snow is blinding, and very bad when coming upon a coast, but, for genuine discomfort, give me rain with freezing weather. A snow-storm is exciting, and it does not wet through the clothes (which is important to a sailor); but a constant rain there is no escaping from. It wets to the skin, and makes all protection vain. We had long ago run through all our dry clothes, and as sailors have no other way of drying them than by the sun, we had nothing to do but to put on those which were the least wet. At the end of each watch, when we came below, we took off our clothes and wrung them out; two taking hold of a pair of trowsers,— one at each end,— and jackets in the same way. Stockings, mittens, and all, were wrung out also and then hung up to drain and chafe dry against the bulk-heads. Then, feeling of all our clothes, we picked out those which were the least wet, and put them on, so as to be ready for a call, and turned-in, covered ourselves up with blankets, and slept until three knocks on the scuttle and the dismal sound of “All starboardlines ahoy! Eight bells, there below! Do you hear the news?” drawled out from on deck, and the sulky answer of “Aye, aye!” from below, sent us up again.

On deck, all was as dark as a pocket, and either a dead calm, with the rain pouring steadily down, or, more generally, a violent gale dead ahead, with rain pelting horizontally, and occasional variations of hail and sleet;— decks afloat with water swashing from side to side, and constantly wet feet; for boots could not be wrung out like drawers, and no composition could stand the constant soaking. In fact, wet and cold feet are inevitable in such weather, and are not the least of those little items which go to make up the grand total of the discomforts of a winter passage round the Cape.

In our first attempt to double the Cape, when we came up to the latitude of it, we were nearly seventeen hundred miles to the westward, but, in running for the straits of Magellan, we stood so far to the eastward, that we made our second attempt at a distance of not more than four or five hundred miles; and we had great hopes, by this means, to run clear of the ice; thinking that the easterly gales, which had prevailed for a long time, would have driven it to the westward. With the wind about two points free, the yards braced in a little, and two close-reefed topsails and a reefed foresail on the ship, we made great way toward the southward and, almost every watch, when we came on deck, the air seemed to grow colder, and the sea to run higher. Still, we saw no ice, and had great hopes of going clear of it altogether, when, one afternoon, about three o’clock, while we were taking a siesta during our watch below, “All hands!” was called in a loud and fearful voice. “Tumble up here, men!— tumble up!— don’t stop for your clothes— before we’re upon it!” We sprang out of our berths and hurried upon deck. The loud, sharp voice of the captain was heard giving orders, as though for life or death, and we ran aft to the braces, not waiting to look ahead, for not a moment was to be lost. The helm was hard up, the after yards shaking, and the ship in the act of wearing. Slowly, with stiff ropes and iced rigging, we swung the yards round, everything coming hard, and with a creaking and rending sound, like pulling up a plank which had been frozen into the ice. The ship wore round fairly, the yards were steadied, and we stood off on the other tack, leaving behind us, directly under our larboard quarter, a large ice island, peering out of the mist, and reaching high above our tops, while astern; and on either side of the island, large tracts of field-ice were dimly seen, heaving and rolling in the sea. We were now safe, and standing to the northward; but, in a few minutes more, had it not been for the sharp look-out of the watch, we should have been fairly upon the ice, and left our ship's old bones adrift in the Southern ocean. After standing to the northward a few hours, we wore ship, and the wind having hauled, we stood to the southward and eastward. All night long, a bright lookout was kept from every part of the deck; and whenever ice was seen on the one bow or the other, the helm was shifted and the yards braced, and by quick working of the ship she was kept clear. The accustomed cry of "Ice ahead!"—"Ice on the lee bow!"—"Another island!" in the same tones, and with the same orders following them, seemed to bring us directly back to our old position of the week before. During our watch on deck, which was from twelve to four, the wind came out ahead, with a pelting storm of hail and sleet, and we lay hove-to, under a close-reefed main topsail, the whole watch. During the next watch it fell calm, with a drenching rain, until daybreak, when the wind came out to the westward, and the weather cleared up, and showed us the whole ocean, in the course which we should have steered, had it not been for the head wind and calm, completely blocked up with ice. Here then our progress was stopped, and we wore ship, and once more stood to the northward and eastward; not for the straits of Magellan, but to make another attempt to double the Cape, still farther to the eastward; for the captain was determined to get round if perseverance could do it; and the third time, he said, never failed.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

With a fair wind we soon ran clear of the field-ice, and by noon had only the stray islands floating far and near upon the ocean. The sun was out bright, the sea of a deep blue, fringed with the white foam of the waves which ran high before a strong southwester; our solitary ship tore on through the water, as though glad to be out of her confinement; and the ice islands lay scattered upon the ocean here and there, of various sizes and shapes, reflecting the bright rays of the sun, and drifting slowly northward before the gale. It was a contrast to much that we had lately seen, and a spectacle not only of beauty, but of life; for it required but little fancy to imagine these islands to be animate masses which had broken loose from the "thrilling regions of thick-ribbed ice," and were working their way, by wind and current, some alone, and some in fleets, to milder climes. No pencil has ever yet given anything like the true effect of an iceberg. In a picture, they are huge, uncouth masses, stuck in the sea, while their chief beauty and grandeur,—their slow, stately motion; the whirling of the snow about their summits, and the fearful groaning and cracking of their parts,—the picture cannot give. This is the large iceberg; while the small and distant islands, floating on the smooth sea, in the light of a clear day, look like little floating fairy isles of sapphire.

From a north-east course we gradually hauled to the eastward, and after sailing about two hundred miles, which brought us as near to the western coast of Terra del Fuego as was safe, and having lost sight of the ice altogether,—for the third time we put the ship's head to the southward, to try the passage of the Cape. The weather continued clear and cold, with a strong gale from the westward, and we were fast getting up with the latitude of the Cape, with a prospect of soon being round. One fine afternoon, a man who had gone into the fore-top to shift the rolling tackles, sung out, at the top of his voice, and with evident glees—"Sail ho!" Neither land nor sail had we seen since leaving San Diego; and any one who has traversed the length of a whole ocean alone, can imagine what an excitement such an announcement produced on board. "Sail ho!" shouted the cook, jumping out of his galley; "Sail ho!" shouted a man, throwing back the slide of the scuttle, to the watch below, who were soon out of their berths and on deck; and "Sail ho!" shouted the captain down the companion-way to the passenger in the cabin.

After about eight days of constant easterly gales, the wind hauled occasionally a little to the southward, and blew hard, which, as we were well to the southward, allowed us to brace in a little and stand on, under all

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

the sail we could carry. These turns lasted but a short while, and sooner or later it set again from the old quarter; yet each time we made something, and were gradually edging along to the eastward. One night, after one of these shifts of the wind, and when all hands had been up a great part of the time, our watch was left on deck, with the mainsail hanging in the buntlines, ready to be set if necessary. It came on to blow worse and worse, with hail and snow beating like so many furies upon the ship, it being as dark and thick as night could make it. The mainsail was blowing and slatting with a noise like thunder, when the captain came on deck, and ordered it to be furled. The mate was about to call all hands, when the captain stopped him, and said that the men would be beaten out if they were called up so often; that as our watch must stay on deck, it might as well be doing that as anything else. Accordingly, we went upon the yard; and never shall I forget that piece of work. Our watch had been so reduced by sickness, and by some having been left in California, that, with one man at the wheel, we had only the third mate and three beside myself to go aloft; so that at most, we could only attempt to furl one yard-arm at a time. We manned the weather yard-arm, and set to work to make a furl of it. Our lower masts being short, and our yards very square, the sail had a head of nearly fifty feet, and a short leach, made still shorter by the deep reef which was in it, which brought the clew away out on the quarters of the yard, and made a bunt nearly as square as the mizen royal-yard. Beside this difficulty, the yard over which we lay was cased with ice, the gaskets and rope of the foot and leach of the sail as stiff and hard as a piece of suctionhose, and the sail itself about as pliable as though it had been made of sheets of sheathing copper. It blew a perfect hurricane, with alternate blasts of snow, hail, and rain. We had to fist the sail with bare hands. No one could trust himself to mittens, for if he slipped, he was a gone man. All the boats were hoisted in on deck, and there was nothing to be lowered for him. We had need of every finger God had given us. Several times we got the sail upon the yard, but it blew away again before we could secure it. It required men to lie over the yard to pass each turn of the gaskets, and when they were passed, it was almost impossible to knot them so that they would hold. Frequently we were obliged to leave off altogether and take to beating our hands upon the sail, to keep them from freezing. After some time,—which seemed forever,—we got the weather side stowed after a fashion, and went over to leeward for another trial. This was still worse, for the body of the sail had been blown over to leeward, and as the yard was a-cock-bill by the lying over of the vessel, we had to light it all up to windward. When the yard-arms were furled, the bunt was all adrift again, which made more work for us. We got all secure at last, but we had been nearly an hour and a half upon the yard, and it seemed an age. It just struck five bells when we went up, and eight were struck soon after we came down. This may seem slow work, but considering the state of everything, and that we had only five men to a sail with just half as many square yards of canvas in it as the mainsail of the Independence, sixty-gun ship, which musters seven hundred men at her quarters, it is not wonderful that we were no quicker about it. We were glad enough to get on deck, and still more, to go below. The oldest sailor in the watch said, as he went down,—“I shall never forget that main yard;—it beats all my going a fishing. Fun is fun, but furling one yard-arm of a course, at a time, off Cape Horn, is no better than man-killing.”

During the greater part of the next two days, the wind was pretty steady from the southward. We had evidently made great progress, and had good hope of being soon up with the Cape, if we were not there already. We could put but little confidence in our reckoning, as there had been no opportunities for an observation, and we had drifted too much to allow of our dead reckoning being anywhere near the mark. If it would clear off enough to give a chance for an observation, or if we could make land, we should know where we were; and upon these, and the chances of falling in with a sail from the eastward, we depended almost entirely.

July 14, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 14th of 7th M / We had a Small but comfortable Meeting
- Father Rodman bore a short lively, acceptable, & I thought*

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

very pertinent testimony

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 15, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 15th of 7th M / The appraisers have been this Afternoon engaged in taking an Inventory of the effects of Uncle Stantons estate - & I have been with them. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 16, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 16th of 7th M / This evening Gilbert Congdon Charles Jenkins, a Son of Saml Bettle & a Young man by the name of Collins called to see us, the two latter from Philad. - I was out but returned just as they were going - I was glad to see them as I am any of our young friends who will call on us. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

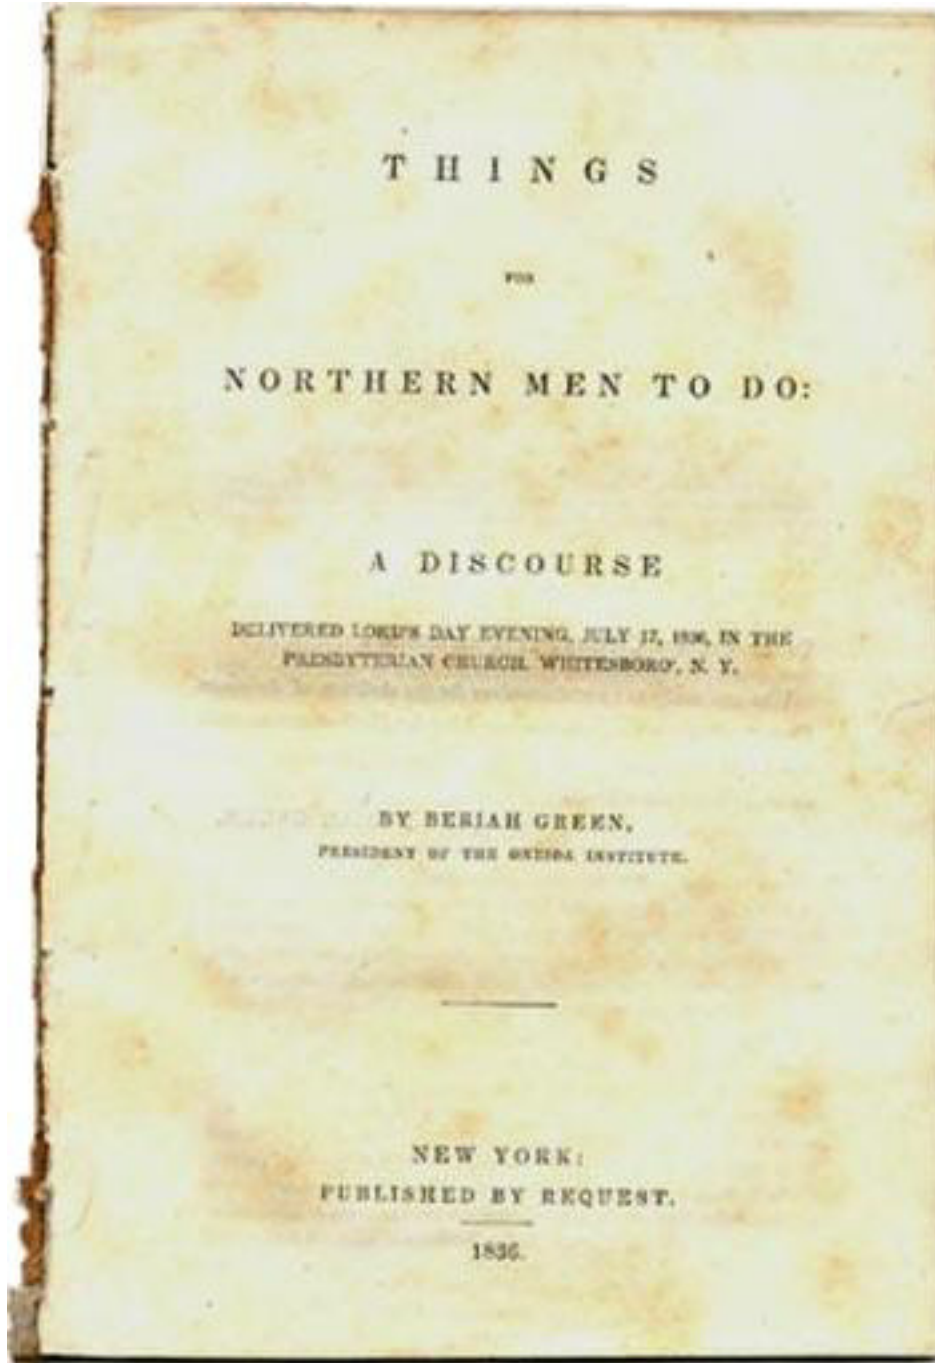

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

July 17, Sunday evening: The Reverend Beriah Green delivered the sermon that would become his pamphlet THINGS FOR NORTHERN MEN TO DO; A DISCOURSE DELIVERED LORD'S DAY EVENING, JULY 17, 1836, IN THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, WHITESBORO', N.Y.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1st day 17 of 7 M 1836 / Our morning Meeting was a painful season owing to a communication out of the right spirit & in no way adapted to the state of the Meeting. – In the Afternoon it was a more pleasant time. – A number of Strangers were at Meeting today chiefly Philadelphians who are here on a visit for their health & to enjoy our cool fresh air. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 20, Wednesday: Charles Darwin climbed Green Hill on Ascension Island.

British settlement of South Australia began with the establishment of a colony on Kangaroo Island.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 20th of 7 M 1836 / With my dear Wife rode to Portsmouth to attend Our Select Meeting – The first was Silent & but little life so also was the Preparative & Select Meeting which followed – We dined at Susanna Hathaways & spent the Afternoon very pleasantly with them her two daughters were Scholars at the YMBSchool while we were there & intimate acquaintances of ours. – We took a pleasant Ride home thro' by Thos Potters & then turned into the Middle Road & came out into the West opposite S T Northams Farm – This Road we had not been for many years before & it was new & looked pleasant to us

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 21, Thursday: The Champlain and Saint Lawrence Railroad opened between La Prairie on the St. Lawrence River and St-Jean on the Richelieu River (this was the 1st railway in Canada).

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 21st of 7th M / Our Meeting today was small tho' a number of the Strangers were present Tho' our meetings of late have been attended with some pain & ample Scope afforded for the exercise of patience – today it was not very comfortable. We had but little buisness in the Preparative Meeting which followed & it soon closed. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 26, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3th day 26th of 7 M / Finding a direct opportunity by Jacob M Weaver to write to my fr Abel W Townsend of Falston, Bever County Penns. last eveng I commenced a letter & finished it this Morning, wherein I endeavoured to open my mind to him on the State of Society in a way that I hope may be of some use to him & his Wife who are rather remotely situated from the body of Friends in Ohio & not so much in the way of intercourse with them & consequently not as well informed of the State of things – It is indeed a time of trial to the honest hearted in Israel, & who will be found to stand we know not. I felt it to be my duty to write to these dear Friends & my desire is they may avoid the shoals, the quick sands & the rocks that lay in our way. -5th day 4th of 8th M 1836 / Yesterday my dear H & I rode to Portsmouth to attend the Select Quarterly Meeting & after dining with Aunt Hannah Almy we came home. -

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Today we went again to Portsmouth to attend the Quarterly Meeting at large & was engaged in a well Authorised Gospel testimony under which I have no doubt many present were brought to feel the power of it in their own hearts. - Hannah Dennis & Saml Newett also had short but good communications - In the last Meeting we had but little buisness, tho' our friend Elizabeth Wing to pay a religious visit to the Qrty Meetings of Nine Partners & Cornwall in the State of NYork - After Meeting Sister Rebecca Rodman being with us & she desirous to get home as soon as she could to her family - we consequently rode home before dinner.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 7, Sunday: The Alert and Richard Henry Dana, Jr. encountered the English bark Mary-Catherine, out of Bahia bound for Calcutta.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, August 7th. Lat. 25° 59' S., long. 27° 0' W., Spoke the English bark Mary-Catherine, from Bahia, bound to Calcutta. This was the first sail we had fallen in with, and the first time we had seen a human form or heard the human voice, except of our own number, for nearly a hundred days. The very yo-ho-ing of the sailors at the ropes sounded sociably upon the ear. She was an old, damaged-looking craft, with a high poop and top-gallant forecastle, and sawed off square, stem and stern, like a true English "tea-wagon," and with a run like a sugar-box. She had studding-sails out alow and aloft, with a light but steady breeze, and her captain said he could not get more than four knots out of her and thought he should have a long passage. We were going six on an easy bowline.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 7 of 8th M 1836 / Our Morning meeting was a good solid one held in Silence - divers strangers were present from Philad. & other places. - In the Afternoon again silent - but it was a good solid Meeting. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

To Amos Bronson Alcott
August 7th 1836
Dear Sir:

The very day after my letter to you I received a communication from a friend; by which I learn that much more extensive than either you or I were aware of is the discussion of such subjects as it is known were discussed in connection with the birth of Christ censured even by friends of your system and of yourself, and that something of an impression was gratuitously taken tip that I left the School on that account -

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

and impression for which I can in no ways account, except it was thought I ought to leave it. For I have been very wary what I said about it generally leading off from the subject when it was mentioned, but turning attention upon your purity of association being so much like that of children. For I always wanted the plan to succeed in this particular of it especially, so sure I am that it is impossible to keep children ignorant and that it is better to lead their imaginations than to leave them to be directed by idle curiosity. And yet I do not think I should ever have ventured so far myself. And a great many questions I thought were quite superfluous, and what was to be gained by them was not worth the risk of having them repeated and misunderstood abroad. A great deal is repeated, I find, and many persons, liking the school in every other respect, think it is decisive against putting female children to it especially.

I have told you this in the spirit of friendship, and hope you will not despise it. I am conscious of the effect of a few week's freedom from the excitement of being a part of the School, or taking down that exaggerated feeling which made every detail of it seem so very important to the great course of Spiritual Culture; and I never was under half the illusion in this respect that you were.

But with respect to the Record: whatever may be said of the wisdom of pursuing your plan as you have hitherto done in the schoolroom, where you always command the spirits of those around you (only subject to the risk of having your mere words repeated or misinterpreted) I feel more and more that these questionable parts ought not to go into the printed book, at least that they must be entirely disconnected with me.

In the first place, in all these conversations where I have spoken, I should like to have that part of the conversation omitted, so that it may be felt that I was entirely passive. And I would go a little farther: there is a remark of Josiah Quincy's about the formation of the body out of "the naughtiness of other people" which is very remarkable. Please to correct that in my record. But if you wish to retain it, you can add a note in the margin saying: "the Recorder omitted Josiah's answer in this place, which was &c &c." putting Josiah's answer in your note. There are many places where this might be done, and thus the whole responsibility rest upon you. I should like, too, to have the remarks I made on the Circumcision omitted. I do not wish to appear as an interlocutor in that conversation either.

Besides this, I must desire you to put a preface of your own before mine, and express in it, in so many words, that on you rests all the responsibility of introducing the subjects, and that your Recorder did not entirely sympathize or agree with you with respect to the course taken, adding (for I have not the slightest objection), that this disagreement or want of sympathy often prevented your views from being done full justice to, as she herself freely acknowledges. In this matter yourself also is concerned.

Why did prophets and apostles veil this subject in fables and

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

emblems if there was not a reason for avoiding physiological inquiries &c? This is worth thinking of. However, you as a man can say anything; but I am a woman, and have feelings that I dare not distrust, however little I can understand them or give an account of them.

Yours, etc.

E.P. PEABODY

August 8, Monday: The Alert and Richard Henry Dana, Jr. encountered a large corvette-built English ship.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

The next day, about three P.M., passed a large corvette-built ship, close upon the wind, with royals and skysails set fore and aft, under English colors. She was standing south-by-east, probably bound round Cape Horn. She had men in her tops, and black mast-heads; heavily sparred, with sails cut to a t, and other marks of a man-of war. She sailed well, and presented a fine appearance; the proud, aristocratic-looking banner of St. George, the cross in a blood-red field, waving from the mizen. We probably were as fine a sight, with our studding-sails spread far out beyond the ship on either side, and rising in a pyramid to royal studding-sails and sky-sails, burying the hull in canvas, and looking like what the whale-men on the Banks under their stump top-gallant masts, call "a Cape Horner under a cloud of sail."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 11th of 8 M / I rose this morning dressed & prepared myself for Meeting - but some of my friends of the Historical order called me & I forgot Meeting till half an hour after the time. - A Sad Mortification to me. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 14, Sunday: The Ebenezer Emmons/William G. Redfield party arrived at the Clear Pond home of sawmill innovator Israel Johnson.

Spanish Conservative leader General Quesada was murdered in Madrid. Jose Maria Calatrava replaced Francisco Xavier Isturiz y Montero as Prime Minister of Spain.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 14th of 8th M 1836 / Father Rodman had short acceptable testimonies in both Meetings & they were good seasons

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 15, Monday: The climbing party of Ebenezer Emmons/William G. Redfield, led by Adirondack guides John Cheney and Harvey Holt, departed from Clear Pond and headed uphill.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 15 of 8th M / Being on an appointment from the Yearly

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Meeting regarding the Removal of it to some other place, & they agreeing to Meet at Lynn at the time of holding their Quarterly Meeting, I got into the Stage this Morning, & rode to Boston. - put up for the Night at the Marlborough Hotel - the Ride was a pleasant one, tho' I was considerably fatigued when I got there - Sleep well thro' the night -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 16, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day Morning after breakfast I got into the Stage & rode to Salem - arrived sometime before dinner at Brother Jonathon Nichols found them all glad to see me & truly I was so, to see them - Spent the rest of the day there, excepting in the evening I called to see Ichabod Nichols & family

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 17, Wednesday: Bad weather forced the climbing party of Ebenezer Emmons/William G. Redfield to abandon their project for the time being.

The HMS Beagle and Charles Darwin left South American waters for the final time.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*4th day - This Morning rode to Lynn with David Buffum in his carriage - attended Select Meeting & tho' the Answers to the Queries were pretty clear & favourable - I found it to be my duty to call the attention of Friends to the necessity of Watchfulness, it being a day of much trouble in our Society & the Watchmen ought to be on the Alert to arrest & detect whatever may be wrong, however refined it may be presented - Much Similar was expressed by Several others -
In the Afternoon (after dining at Isaac Bassetts) we attended the committee & had a long & rather laborious Sitting concluding to Meet again next Morning - I called to Brother D Rodmans & not finding Cassandra Nichols there with whom I was to return to Salem I went to James Breeds & took tea & returned to Salem having a pleasant ride thro' Danvers where Cassandra pointed out to me the Spot where her kins woman Cassandra Southwick lived who in ancient times was so cruelly whiped in Boston -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

August 18, Thursday: The presence of a young slave named Med had been discovered in a home on Pinkney Street in Boston. The girl was alleged to be the property of a New Orleans relative of the occupants. The attorney for the slavemaster actually burst into tears at the prospect that little Med might be set free by the judge and thus severed from her mama, a slave in New Orleans. The judge, however, Chief Justice Lemuel Shaw, was less impressed by the crocodile's tears, and by the accusation "mistaken benevolence" which this crocodile managed to blurt out, than by documentary evidence available to the court that it was their intention to sell this child Med once they had her safely back home in the Deep South.

The Alert and Richard Henry Dana, Jr. the island of Fernando Naronha.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Thursday, August 18th. At three P.M., made the island of Fernando Naronha, lying in lat. 3° 55' S., long. 32° 35' W.; and ...

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day Morning returned to Lynn to attend the Qrly Meeting - it was a large Meeting but not as large as I expected - Thos Anthony was much favoured in testimony after which James Emmons a person not a Member preached & I thought for a thing wholly wrong there was considerable good in his communication - & as this may be read by some who may not take my meaning where I may not be here to explain it may just say I believe it was wrong for him to impose his testimony on the Meeting yet most of his observations were pretty good & did not disturb the Meeting as much as I have known such offerings to do - Then Hannah Robinson appeared pretty well & then Thos Jones after which the Meeting closed - the part for buisness was pretty well conducted - I dined at Micajah C Pratt's after which I returned to the Meeting House to another Sitting of the committee - & then went back to Micajah's to tea, & to Isaac Bassetts to Lodge.-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 19, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day Morning rose early & went to Nathan Breeds to breakfast after which I rode with Edw Wing to Boston - he went on homewards & I staid to take the Rail Road to Providence & got home by the Steam Boat before Night - While in Boston I went to look at Friends New meeting house in Milton place - This is the first time I was ever at Boston Lynn or Salem & I may acknowledge it has been an interesting journey to me. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

On this day and the following one the Alert and Richard Henry Dana, Jr. crossed the equator.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

... between twelve o'clock Friday night and one o'clock Saturday morning, crossed the equator, for the fourth time since leaving Boston, in long. 35° W.; having been twenty-seven days from Staten Land— a distance, by the courses we had made, of more than four thousand miles.

We were now to the northward of the line, and every day added to our latitude. The Magellan Clouds, the last sign of South latitude, were sunk in the horizon, and the north star, the Great Bear, and the familiar signs of northern latitudes, were rising in the heavens. Next to seeing land, there is no sight which makes one realize more that he is drawing near home, than to see the same heavens, under which he was born, shining at night over his head. The weather was extremely hot, with the usual tropical alternations of a scorching sun and squalls of rain; yet not a word was said in complaint of the heat, for we all remembered that only three or four weeks before we would have given nearly our all to have been where we now were. We had plenty of water, too, which we caught by spreading an awning, with shot thrown in to make hollows. These rain squalls came up in the manner usual between the tropics.— A clear sky; burning, vertical sun; work going lazily on, and men about decks with nothing but duck trowsers, checked shirts, and straw hats; the ship moving as lazily through the water; the man at the helm resting against the wheel, with his hat drawn over his eyes; the captain below, taking an afternoon nap; the passenger leaning over the taffrail, watching a dolphin following slowly in our wake; the sailmaker mending an old topsail on the lee side of the quarterdeck; the carpenter working at his bench, in the waist; the boys making sinnet; the spun-yarn winch whizzing round and round, and the men walking slowly fore and aft with their yarns.— A cloud rises to windward, looking a little black; the sky-sails are brailed down; the captain puts his head out of the companion-way, looks at the cloud, comes up, and begins to walk the deck.— The cloud spreads and comes on;— the tub of yarns, the sail, and other matters, are thrown below, and the sky-light and booby-hatch put on, and the slide drawn over the forecabin.— “Stand by the royal halyards;”— the man at the wheel keeps a good weather helm, so as not to be taken aback. The squall strikes her. If it is light, the royal yards are clewed down, and the ship keeps on her way; but if the squall takes strong hold, the royals are clewed up, fore and aft; light hands lay aloft and furl them; top-gallant yards clewed down, flying-jib hauled down, and the ship kept off before it,— the man at the helm laying out his strength to heave the wheel up to windward. At the same time a drenching rain, which soaks one through in an instant. Yet no one puts on a jacket or cap; for if it is only warm, a sailor does not mind a ducking; and the sun will soon be out again. As soon as the force of the squall has passed, though to a common eye the ship would seem to be in the midst of it— “Keep her up to her course, again!”— “Keep her up, sir,” (answer);— “Hoist away the top-gallant yards!”— “Run up the flying jib!”— “Lay aloft, you boys, and loose the royals!”— and all sail is on her again before she is fairly out of the squall; and she is going on in her course. The sun comes out once more, hotter than ever, dries up the decks and the sailors' clothes; the hatches are taken off; the sail got up and spread on the quarter-deck; spun-yarn winch set a whirling again; rigging coiled up; captain goes below; and every sign of an interruption is removed.

These scenes, with occasional dead calms, lasting for hours, and sometimes for days, are fair specimens of the Atlantic tropics. The nights were fine; and as we had all hands all day, the watch were allowed to sleep on deck at night, except the man at the wheel, and one look-out on the forecabin. This was not so much expressly allowed, as winked at. We could do it if we did not ask leave. If the look-out was caught napping, the whole watch was kept awake. We made the most of this permission, and stowed ourselves away upon the rigging, under the weather rail, on the spars, under the windlass, and in all the snug corners; and frequently slept out the watch, unless we had a wheel or a look-out. And we were glad enough to get this

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

rest; for under the “all hands” system, out of every other thirty-six hours, we had only four below; and even an hour’s sleep was a gain not to be neglected. One would have thought so, to have seen our watch, some nights, sleeping through a heavy rain. And often have we come on deck, and finding a dead calm and a light, steady rain, and determined not to lose our sleep, have laid a coil of rigging down so as to keep us out of the water which was washing about decks, and stowed ourselves away upon it, covering a jacket over us, and slept as soundly as a Dutchman between two feather beds.

For a week or ten days after crossing the line, we had the usual variety of calms, squalls, head winds, and fair winds;— at one time braced sharp upon the wind, with a taught bowline, and in an hour after, slipping quietly along, with a light breeze over the taffrail, and studding-sails out on both sides;— until we fell in with the north-east trade-winds; which we did on the afternoon of ...

August 21, Sunday: In the Teatro Nuovo of Naples, Betly, ossia La capanna svizzera, a dramma giocosa by Gaetano Donizetti to his own words after Scribe and Melesville, was performed for the initial time.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 21 of 8 m 1836 / We had good solid Meetings & I thought Father Rodman was favourd in testimony in both Meetings. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 25, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 25th of 8M / With my wife & Mary Williams Rode to Portsmouth to attend our Monthly Meeting - Hannah Dennis & Mary Hicks were favourd in testimony - I thought Marys testimony was as near the right thing as any testimony I have heard in some time
We dined at Shadrach Chases & came home to tea. —*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

August 28, Sunday: The balloon of the intrepid master Boston goldbeater and aeronaut Louis Lauriat again graced the skies from beautiful Castle Garden, the battery at the toe of Manhattan Island. Meanwhile, out on the Atlantic Ocean, the Alert and its intrepid crew inclusive of the young Harvard College man Richard Henry Dana, Jr., decidedly on their way home, began to catch the cool, steady north-east trade winds.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, August 28th, in lat. 12° N. The trade-wind clouds had been in sight for a day or two previously, and we expected to take them every hour. The light southerly breeze, which had been blowing languidly during the first part of the day, died away toward noon, and in its place came puffs from the north-east, which caused us to take our studding-sails in and brace up; and in a couple of hours more, we were bowling gloriously along, dashing the spray far ahead and to leeward, with the cool, steady north-east trades, freshening up the sea, and giving us as much as we could carry our royals to. These winds blew strong and steady, keeping us generally upon a bowline, as our course was about north-northwest; and sometimes, as they veered a little to the eastward, giving us a chance at a main top-gallant studding-sail; and sending us well to the northward, until—

The Reverend Convers Francis of Watertown exchanged pulpits for the day with the Reverend Ezra Ripley of Concord. His proof-text for the Concord morning service was Luke 34:52 and his topic was “Why Seek Ye the Living among the Dead?”

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 28th of 8th M 1836 / Our Meetings were pretty good seasons Father Rodman had short & accepable testimonies in each We had Several Strangers at Meeting with us among them were Jos Estes & Christer Davis from Fall River two young men who came on purpose to attend our Meeting – I invited them to Dinner with is & Christie being an old Scholar at the YMB School while we were there we were particularly glad to see him & pleased with a renewal of our acquaintance
When I began this No 15 of my Diary it was not my prospect to have written frequently in it – but it seems that within less than three years it is so large that another has become necessary – Altho I may not have been very diffinite in my allusions I can now say that some of the keenest trials of my life occurr in the latter part of No 14 & the forepart of this present No 15 of my Diary – There is also many seasons of Rejoicings occurr in the space of the Same time – Thanks giving & praise is therefore due from me to the Authhor of all good for the many blessings &*

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Mercies recd at his hand

[signed large] Stephen Gould

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

[two pages of nearly illegible genealogical chart follows, not in his hand]

September 1, Thursday: When the Paris police captured eleven members of a cell of the Societe des Familles, a radical republican group, they discovered that the group had a cache of ammunition and 13 daggers. Oh, this is starting to look not good.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 1st of 9th M 1836 / Our friend Rowland Greene & Perez
Peck attended our Meeting Rowland had good & acceptable service & we were glad of his company*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 2, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*6th day 2 of 9 M / I went to Connanicut to be at an appointed Meeting with Rowalnd Greene who went over yesterday Afternoon
The Meeting was not as large as some I have attended there – buit it was a time of favour Rowland was much favoured & it seemed to me it was among the best Meetings I had ever attended at that place – After dining at my cousin Joseph Greenes we returned home he attended a Meeting for People of colour this evening*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 3, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 3 of 9 M / Our friend Rowland Greene Paid several social & religious visits about Town this Morning & in the Afternoon he went to Coasters Harbour & attended a Meeting with the inmates of the Assylum – he was engaged in a Most impressive testimony & solemn supplication, both which were powerful & prevalent – & the Meeting was held much to the edification & satisfaction of many & I believe some good was done. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 4, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 4th of 9 M / Rowland was at our Meeting this forenoon & was engaged in Testimony, much to satisfaction & comfort – In the Afternoon he attended an appointed Meeting at Portsmouth
In the Afternoon Father bore a short but good testimony in our*

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Meeting. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

The Alert and Richard Henry Dana, Jr. had reached the doldrums of the Horse latitudes and sailing was slow.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, Sept. 4th, when they left us, in lat. 22° N., long. 51° W., directly under the tropic of Cancer. For several days we lay “humbugging about” in the Horse latitudes, with all sorts of winds and weather, and occasionally, as we were in the latitude of the West Indies— a thunder storm. It was hurricane month, too, and we were just in the track of the tremendous hurricane of 1830, which swept the North Atlantic, destroying almost everything before it. The first night after the tradewinds left us, while we were in the latitude of the island of Cuba, we had a specimen of a true tropical thunder storm. A light breeze had been blowing directly from aft during the first part of the night which gradually died away, and before midnight it was dead calm, and a heavy black cloud had shrouded the whole sky. When our watch came on deck at twelve o’clock, it was as black as Erebus; the studding-sails were all taken in, and the royals furled; not a breath was stirring; the sails hung heavy and motionless from the yards; and the perfect stillness, and the darkness, which was almost palpable, were truly appalling. Not a word was spoken, but every one stood as though waiting for something to happen. In a few minutes the mate came forward, and in a low tone, which was almost a whisper, told us to haul down the jib. The fore and mizen top-gallant sails were taken in, in the same silent manner; and we lay motionless upon the water, with an uneasy expectation, which, from the long suspense, became actually painful. We could hear the captain walking the deck, but it was too dark to see anything more than one’s hand before the face. Soon the mate came forward again, and gave an order, in a low tone, to clew up the main top-gallant sail; and so infectious was the awe and silence, that the clewlines and buntlines were hauled up without any of the customary singing out at the ropes. An English lad and myself went up to furl it; and we had just got the bunt up, when the mate called out to us, something, we did not hear what,— but supposing it to be an order to bear-a-hand, we hurried, and made all fast, and came down, feeling our way among the rigging. When we got down we found all hands looking aloft, and there, directly over where we had been standing, upon the main top-gallant-mast-head, was a ball of light, which the sailors name a corposant (corpus sancti), and which the mate had called out to us to look at. They were all watching it carefully, for sailors have a notion that if the corposant rises in the rigging, it is a sign of fair weather, but if it comes lower down, there will be a storm. Unfortunately, as an omen, it came down, and showed itself on the top-gallant yard-arm. We were off the yard in good season, for it is held a fatal sign to have the pale light of the corposant thrown upon one’s face. As it was, the English lad did not feel comfortably at having had it so near him, and directly over his head. In a few minutes it disappeared, and showed itself again on the fore top-gallant yard; and after playing about for some time, disappeared again; when the man on the forecastle pointed to it upon the flying-jib-boom-end. But our attention was drawn from watching this, by the falling of some drops of rain and by a perceptible increase of the darkness, which seemed suddenly to add a new shade of blackness to the night. In a few minutes, low, grumbling thunder was heard, and some random flashes of lightning came from the south-west. Every sail was taken in but the topsails, still, no squall appeared to be coming. A few puffs lifted the topsails, but they fell again to the mast, and all was as stiff as ever. A moment more, and a terrific flash and peal broke simultaneously upon us, and a cloud appeared to open directly over our heads and let down the water in one body, like a falling ocean. We stood motionless, and almost stupefied; yet nothing had been struck. Peal after peal rattled over our heads, with a sound which seemed actually to stop the breath in the body, and the “speedy gleams” kept the whole ocean in a glare of light. The violent fall of rain lasted but a few minutes, and was succeeded by occasional drops and showers; but the lightning continued incessant for several hours, breaking the midnight darkness with irregular and blinding flashes. During all which time there was not a breath stirring,

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

and we lay motionless, like a mark to be shot at, probably the only object on the surface of the ocean for miles and miles. We stood hour after hour, until our watch was out, and we were relieved, at four o'clock. During all this time, hardly a word was spoken; no bells were struck, and the wheel was silently relieved. The rain fell at intervals in heavy showers, and we stood drenched through and blinded by the flashes, which broke the Egyptian darkness with a brightness which seemed almost malignant; while the thunder rolled in peals, the concussion of which appeared to shake the very ocean. A ship is not often injured by lightning, for the electricity is separated by the great number of points she presents, and the quantity of iron which she has scattered in various parts.

The electric fluid ran over our anchors, top-sail sheets and ties; yet no harm was done to us. We went below at four o'clock, leaving things in the same state. It is not easy to sleep, when the very next flash may tear the ship in two, or set her on fire; or where the deathlike calm may be broken by the blast of a hurricane, taking the masts out of the ship. But a man is no sailor if he cannot sleep when he turns-in, and turn out when he's called. And when, at seven bells, the customary "All the larboard watch, ahoy!" brought us on deck, it was a fine, clear, sunny morning, the ship going leisurely along, with a good breeze and all sail set. From the latitude of the West Indies, until we got inside the Bermudas, where we took the westerly and south-westerly winds, which blow steadily off the coast of the United States early in the autumn, we had every variety of weather, and two or three moderate gales, or, as sailors call them, double-reef-topsail breezes, which came on in the usual manner, and of which one is a specimen of all.— A fine afternoon; all hands at work, some in the rigging, and others on deck; a stiff breeze, and ship close upon the wind, and skysails brailed down.— Latter part of the afternoon, breeze increases, ship lies over to it, and clouds look windy. Spray begins to fly over the forecastle, and wets the yarns the boys are knotting;— ball them up and put them below.— Mate knocks off work and clears up decks earlier than usual, and orders a man who has been employed aloft to send the royal halyards over to windward, as he comes down. Breast backstays hauled taught, and tackle got upon the martingale back-rope.— One of the boys furls the mizen royal.— Cook thinks there is going to be "nasty work," and has supper ready early.— Mate gives orders to get supper by the watch, instead of all hands, as usual.— While eating supper, hear the watch on deck taking in the royals.— Coming on deck, find it is blowing harder, and an ugly head sea is running.— Instead of having all hands on the forecastle in the dog watch, smoking, singing, and telling yarns, one watch goes below and turns-in, saying that it's going to be an ugly night, and two hours' sleep is not to be lost. Clouds look black and wild; wind rising, and ship working hard against a heavy sea, which breaks over the forecastle, and washes aft through the scuppers. Still, no more sail is taken in, for the captain is a driver, and, like all drivers, very partial to his top-gallant sails. A top-gallant sail, too, makes the difference between a breeze and a gale. When a top-gallant sail is on a ship, it is only a breeze, though I have seen ours set over a reefed topsail, when half the bowsprit was under water, and it was up to a man's knees in the scuppers. At eight bells, nothing is said about reefing the topsails, and the watch go below, with orders to "stand by for a call."

We turn-in, growling at the "old man" for not reefing the topsails when the watch was changed, but putting it off so as to call all hands, and break up a whole watch below. Turn-in "all standing," and keep ourselves awake, saying there is no use in going asleep to be waked up again.— Wind whistles on deck, and ship works hard, groaning and creaking, and pitching into a heavy head sea, which strikes against the bows, with a noise like knocking upon a rock.— The dim lamp in the forecastle swings to and fro, and things "fetch away" and go over to leeward.— "Doesn't that booby of a second mate ever mean to take in his top-gallant sails?— He'll have the sticks out of her soon," says old Bill, who was always growling, and, like most old sailors, did not like to see a ship abused.— By-and-by an order is given— "Aye, aye, sir!" from the forecastle;— rigging is heaved down on deck;— the noise of a sail is heard fluttering aloft, and the short, quick cry which sailors make when hauling upon clewlines.— "Here comes his fore-top-gallant sail in!"— We are wide awake, and know all that's going on as well as if we were on deck.— A well-known voice is heard from the mast-head singing out the officer of the watch to haul taught the weather brace.— "Hallo! There's S_____ aloft to furl the sail!"— Next thing, rigging is heaved down directly over our heads, and a long-drawn cry and a rattling of hanks announce that the flying-jib has come in.— The second mate holds on to the main top-gallant sail until a heavy sea is shipped, and washes over the forecastle as though the whole ocean had come aboard; when a noise further aft shows that that sail, too, is taking in. After this, the ship is more easy for a time; two bells are struck, and we try to get a little sleep. By-and-by,—bang, bang, bang, on the scuttle— “All ha-a-ands, a ho-o-y!”— We spring out of our berths, clap on a monkey-jacket and south-wester, and tumble up the ladder.— Mate up before us, and on the forecastle, singing out like a roaring bull; the captain singing out on the quarter-deck, and the second mate yelling, like a hyena, in the waist. The ship is lying over half upon her beam-ends; lee scuppers under water, and forecastle all in a smother of foam.— Rigging all let go, and washing about decks; topsail yards down upon the caps, and sails flapping and beating against the masts; and starboard watch hauling out the reef-tackles of the main topsail. Our watch haul out the fore, and lay aloft and put two reefs into it, and reef the foresail, and race with the starboard watch, to see which will mast-head its topsail first.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

All hands tally-on to the main tack, and while some are furling the jib, and hoisting the staysail, we mizen-topmen double-reef the mizen topsail and hoist it up. All being made fast— “Go below, the watch!” and we turn-in to sleep out the rest of the time, which is perhaps an hour and a half. During all the middle, and for the first part of the morning watch, it blows as hard as ever, but toward daybreak it moderates considerably, and we shake a reef out of each topsail, and set the top-gallant sails over them and when the watch come up, at seven bells, for breakfast, shake the other reefs out, turn all hands to upon the halyards, get the watch-tackle upon the top-gallant sheets and halyards, set the flying-jib, and crack on to her again.

Our captain had been married only a few weeks before he left Boston; and, after an absence of over two years, it may be supposed he was not slow in carrying sail. The mate, too, was not to be beaten by anybody; and the second mate, though he was afraid to press sail, was afraid as death of the captain, and being between two fears, sometimes carried on longer than any of them. We snapped off three flying-jib booms in twenty-four hours, as fast as they could be fitted and rigged out; sprung the spritsail yard; and made nothing of studding-sail booms. Beside the natural desire to get home, we had another reason for urging the ship on. The scurvy had begun to show itself on board. One man had it so badly as to be disabled and off duty, and the English lad, Ben, was in a dreadful state, and was daily growing worse. His legs swelled and pained him so that he could not walk; his flesh lost its elasticity, so that if it was pressed in, it would not return to its shape; and his gums swelled until he could not open his mouth. His breath, too, became very offensive; he lost all strength and spirit; could eat nothing; grew worse every day; and, in fact, unless something was done for him, would be a dead man in a week, at the rate at which he was sinking. The medicines were all, or nearly all, gone; and if we had had a chest-full, they would have been of no use; for nothing but fresh provisions and terra firma has any effect upon the scurvy. This disease is not so common now as formerly; and is attributed generally to salt provisions, want of cleanliness, the free use of grease and fat (which is the reason of its prevalence among whalemens,) and, last of all, to laziness. It never could have been from the latter cause on board our ship; nor from the second, for we were a very cleanly crew, kept our forecastle in neat order, and were more particular about washing and changing clothes than many better-dressed people on shore. It was probably from having none but salt provisions, and possibly from our having run very rapidly into hot weather, after having been so long in the extremest cold.

Depending upon the westerly winds, which prevail off the coast in the autumn, the captain stood well to the westward, to run inside of the Bermudas, and in the hope of falling in with some vessel bound to the West Indies or the Southern States. The scurvy had spread no farther among the crew, but there was danger that it might; and these cases were bad ones.

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 5, Monday: David Henry Thoreau checked out, from Harvard Library, Jean-Baptiste Bourguignon d'Anville (July 11, 1697-January 28, 1782)'s COMPLETE BODY OF ANCIENT GEOGRAPHY that had been printed in London by R. Laurie and J. Whittle in 1802.

ANCIENT GEOGRAPHY

Sam Houston was elected President of the Republic of Texas, receiving 5,119 votes to 743 for Henry Smith and 587 for Stephen F. Austin. Mirabeau B. Lamar was elected Vice-President.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Thoreau also checked out the 1st volume of Karl Wilhelm Friedrich von Schlegel (1772-1829)'s LECTURES ON THE HISTORY OF LITERATURE: ANCIENT AND MODERN. FROM THE GERMAN OF FREDERICK SCHLEGEL (1818).

Thoreau also checked out for a 2d time a local topical volume he had already had a chance to peruse in the previous year, Harvard College librarian Benjamin Peirce's A HISTORY OF HARVARD UNIVERSITY FROM ITS FOUNDATION IN THE YEAR 1636 TO THE PERIOD OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION, as issued posthumously by John Pickering with a sketch of the life and work of this librarian (Boston, 1833).

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 6: Having lived a long and productive life despite the most severe and debilitating attacks of vertigo, Friend Moses Brown died just before his 98th birthday.

This would go into Quaker records as: “Moses Brown was born in Providence the 12th day of the Ninth month 1738 old Stile now recond the 23 day of the 9th m^o 1738. Moses Brown died the 6th day of 9th m^o 1836.”

He bequeathed $15,000 and two acres of land to the Yearly Meeting School in Providence, Rhode Island, in addition to his library. We now have, at the Rhode Island Historical Society, eight boxes of books said to have been in the joint library of Obadiah and Moses Brown. Here is the list of the books that are now in those eight boxes:

OBADIAH AND MOSES BROWN'S LIBRARY

TITLE	AUTHOR	PUBLISHER		DATE	NOTES
An Account of the Gospel Labours and Christian Experiences of John Churchman	John Churchman?	Philadelphia: Benj. & Tho. Kite		1818
A Journey Through Albania	J.C. Hobhouse	Philadelphia: M. Carey and Son		1817	Volumes I and II
The Domestic Encyclopedia	AFM Willich, MD	Philadelphia: Wllm Young, Birch and Abraham Small		1804	(loose boards) Volume V of V (only)
Elements of Chemistry	James Woodhouse, MD	Philadelphia: Benj. & Thos. Kite		1807	Volumes I and II
Italy by Lady Morgan	Lady Morgan	New York: J. Seymour		1821	Volumes I and II
Junius	?	?: T. Bentley		1797	Volumes I and II (rebound)
The Substance of some letters by an Englishman written during the reign of Emperor Napoleon	?	Philadelphia: M. Thomas		1816
Universal Biography	J. Lempriere, DD	New York: 86 Broadway, New York, F. Sargent		1810	Volume II
Varieties of Literature		London:	J. Debrett	MDC-CXCV (1795)	Volumes I and II
Voyages and Travels	Pinkerton	Philadelphia:	Kimber and Conrad	1810	Six Volumes

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

OBADIAH AND MOSES BROWN'S LIBRARY

TITLE	AUTHOR	PUBLISHER		DATE	NOTES
Brown's Answer to Nocutt, An Examination of Wllm Notcutt's Reply to H.B.'s vindication etc.	H.B.	London:	J. Sowle	1735
A Collection of the Works of Thomas Chalkley	Thomas Chalkley	London:	Luke Hinde	1766
An Answer to the Speech of Declaration by the Great Turk	?	London:	A. Sowle	1688
The Modern Practice of Physic	Robert Thomas, MD	New York:	Collins and Co.	1811
Brief Narrative of Life and Death of Gilbert Latey	?	London:	J. Sowle	170 (?)
A Collection of the Christian Writings, Labours ... of Roger Haydock	Roger Haydock	London:	T. Sowle	1700
Lawson's Works	Lawson?	London:	T. Sowle	1703
Truth Exalted, Writings of John Burnyeat	John Burnyeat	London:	Thomas Northcott	1691
The New Testament		Boston:	F. Ingraham and J. Putnam	1827
The Book of Martyrs (abridged)		New York:	Sam'l Wood	1810
The Design of Christianity, epistles and manuscripts of John Crook	John Crook?	London:	T. Sowle	1701
Guthries Grammar	Guthrie?	?:	?	1782
Life and Posthumous Works of Richard Claridge, collected by Jo. Besse	Richard Claridge?	London:	J. Sowle	1726	two copies
Edmundson's Journal	Edmundson?	London:	sold and printed by Mary Hinde	1774
Journals and Travels of Samuel Bownas and John Richardson	?	London, reprinted in Philadelphia:	Wllm Dunlap	1759
Kerseys Treatise	?	Concord:	Dan'l Coolege	1818	three copies

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

OBADIAH AND MOSES BROWN'S LIBRARY

TITLE	AUTHOR	PUBLISHER		DATE	NOTES
Keith's Works	Keith?	?:	?	1678
Ellwood's Sacred History	Ellwood?	London:	James Phillips	1783	Volumes I and II
An Account of the Gospel Labours etc. of John Churchman	?	Philadelphia:	Jos. Cruickshank	1729
Hints on Scriptural Instruction	?	Philadelphia:	T. Kite	1831
Thorp's Letters	Thorpe?	Liverpool:	Printed by James & Johnathon Smith	1820
The Way to Bromley on the Sabbath		London/Germantown:	?	1759
Popery Exposed	Henry Mollineux	London:	T. Sowle	1718
Life and Labours of Samuel Neale	?	Philadelphia:	James Parke	1806
Law's Address	Law?	New Bedford:	Benj. Lindsey, printer	1818
Memoirs	William Lewis	Philadelphia:	B & T Kite	1821
Catalogue of books printed and sold by James Phillips	?	London:	James Phillips?	?	Pamphlet
Memoirs, Isaac Penington	Isaac Penington, and Joseph Gurney Bevan	London:	Wllm B. Sewell	1807	includes review by Joseph Gurney Bevan
The Friend	?	Philadelphia:	J. Richardson	1829
Holy Bible		Philadelphia:	Bible Association of America	1831	Volumes I, II, and III?
Life of William Reckitt	?	Philadelphia:	Joseph Cruickshank	1783
Life of Ambrose Riggs	?	London:	T. Sowle	1710
The Centaur not fabulous		London:	A. Millar	1755
The Book of Disciplines	?	Providence:	John Carter	1785

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

OBADIAH AND MOSES BROWN'S LIBRARY

TITLE	AUTHOR	PUBLISHER		DATE	NOTES
Bevans Defence of Friends	?	London:	Phillips and Far-don	1805
Memoirs and Life of Sarah Stephenson	Sarah Stephen-son?	Philadelphia:	Kimber, Conrad	1805
History of the New York African Free Schools	?	New York:	Mahlon Day	1830
Memoirs of Isaac Penington	William Gro-ver	Philadelphia:	Thomas Kite	1831	Friends Family Library, Volume I
Prynne on Plays	?	?:	?	1776
Means of Preserving Health ...	Shadrach Ricketson, Physician in New York	New York:	Collins and Per-kins and Sons	1806
An Apology for the True Christian Divinity...	Robert Barclay	London:	J. Phillips	1780
An Essay on Slavery	Granville Sharp	Burlington:	Isaac Collins	1773
A Confutation of the Charge of Deism wherein the Christian and Orthodox Sentiments of William Penn are ... demonstrated	Joseph Besse	London:	J. Sowle	1734
An Introduction into the making of Latin	John Clarke	London:	Strahan, Living-ton, et al	1780
The Anthology of Religion	Jos. Butler, Bishop of Dur-ham	?:	?	printed 1754
Collection of some papers of William Crouch		London:	T. Sowle	1712
John Churchman, Gospel Labours	John Church-man?	Philadelphia:	Skerret	1818
Lux Evangelica ... A reply to George Keith's Cen-sure	Richard Clar-idge	London:	T. Sowle	1701
Gospel Labours, etc.	Stephen Crisp	Philadelphia:	Benj. and Thos. Kite	1822
Elwood's Life	?	London:	Luke Hinde	1765

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

OBADIAH AND MOSES BROWN'S LIBRARY

TITLE	AUTHOR	PUBLISHER		DATE	NOTES
Cotton's Reply to Williams, 1647-1652	?	?:	?	?
The Life of David, a sacred poem	Thomas Elwood	London:	Luke Hinde	1763
The Foundation of Tythes Shaken	Thomas Ellwood	London:	T. Sowle	1720
Dictionary of the Bible		London:	Beecroft and Strahan et al	1759	Volumes I?, II?, III?
A letter to a Friend	Joseph John Gurney	Philadelphia:	Benj. and Thos. Kite	1824
Statutes of Connecticut		Hartford:	Elisha Babcock	1786
A Faithful Testimony ...		London:	Andrew Sowle	1689
Works of William Dell	William Dell?	London:	John Kendall	1773
Treatise concerning the Fear of God	John Field	London:	T. Sowle	1713
Treatise concerning Baptism	?	London:	T. Sowle	1695
Life of Joseph Coale	?	London:	T. Sowle	1706
An Account of ... Richard Davies	?	London, Philadelphia:	Jos. Cruckshank	1770
Principles and Precepts	Samuel Fuller	Newport:	S. Southwick	1769
Necessity of a life of purity...	Samuel Fothergill	Philadelphia:	Cruckshank	1780	Pamphlet included
Of Religious Declention	Andrew Fuller?	Manchester?:	?	1829
Reflections	George Dillwyn	Burlington, New Jersey:	David Allison	1815
Sermons by Dewsberry, Barclay etc.		Philadelphia:	Benj. and Thos. Kite	1825
Home's Principles: The Principles of Agriculture and Vegetation	Francis Home	London:	A. Millar	1762
Degge's Law of Tythes	?	London:	Richard and Edw. Aytkins	1695

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

OBADIAH AND MOSES BROWN'S LIBRARY

TITLE	AUTHOR	PUBLISHER		DATE	NOTES
The Trials of the Spirit	William Dell	London:	Mary Hinde	1770
Treatise on Baptism and the Lord's Supper		London:	T. Sowle	1695
Brief Memorials of Davidworth, being sketches of his character; Life and Death of Hannah Logan Smith by her daughter Rebecca		Philadelphia:	Sherman?	1847
Friends' Tracts, Volume I: Memoirs and Essays		Philadelphia:	Kite, published by the Tract Association of Friends	n.d.
Testimony concerning Sufferings and Death of James Parnel	Ellis Hookes	London:	?	1695	three volumes in one
Miscellaneous Repository	Elisha Bates	Mount Pleasant, Ohio:	?	1829	Volume 2 and 3
Compendium of the Impending Crisis in the South	Hinton R. Helper	New York:	Burdick	1860	Clearly, this has crept into the boxes while in storage
No Cross, No Crown	William Penn	Philadelphia:	Kinber, Conrad and Company?	1807
The Correspondence between committee of the Yearly Meeting of Friends and Isaac Crowdson		London:	Hamilton	1836
A History of the People Called Quakers, in four volumes	John Gough	Dublin:	?	1789
AN INTRODUCTION TO PHYSIOLOGICAL AND SYSTEMATICAL BOTANY, with notes by Jacob Bigelow	James Edward Smith	Boston:	Bradford and Ready?	1814
ESSAYS	Joseph John Gurney	Philadelphia:	Kite	1829
IMMEDIATE REVELATION	George Keith	?:	?	1676	2d Edition
EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS OF JONATHAN HUTCHINSON, LATE OF GEDNEY, WITH A BRIEF NOTICE OF HIS LIFE AND CHARACTER		London:	Phillips	1835
SOME BRIEF MEMOIRS OF THE LIFE OF DAVID HALL		London:	Hinde	1758

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

OBADIAH AND MOSES BROWN'S LIBRARY

TITLE	AUTHOR	PUBLISHER		DATE	NOTES
LETTERS OF WILLIAM GROVER		London:	Harvey and Danton	1828
Catalog of the Books Belonging to the Library of the three Monthly Meetings ...		Philadelphia:		1813
A CLASSIC TOUR THROUGH ITALY	Reverend John Chetwode Eustace	Philadelphia:	M. Curry	1816
A VIEW OF THE PROPHECY BY THE REVEREND GEORGE STANLEY FABER		Boston:	William Andrews	1809
THE PUBLIC LAWS OF THE STATE OF RHODE ISLAND		Providence:	Miller and Dutchers	1822
THE PUBLIC LAWS OF THE STATE OF RHODE ISLAND		Providence:	Carter and Wilkinson	1798	MB stamp
SOME ACCOUNT OF THE LIFE AND GOSPEL LABOURS OF WILLIAM RICKETT ... ALSO, MEMOIRS OF THE LIFE ... OF JAMES GOUGH		Philadelphia:	Joseph Crukshank	1783	Mary Brown signature, MB stamp
LECTURES ON SCHOOL-KEEPING, with advertisements for school books sold by A. Shearman.	Samuel R. Hall	Boston	Richardson, Lord and Holbrook	1829	MB stamp
OBSERVATIONS ON THE RELIGIOUS PECULIARITIES OF THE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS	Joseph John Gurney	Philadelphia	S. Potter and Co.	1825
OBSERVATIONS ON THE RELIGIOUS PECULIARITIES OF THE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS	Joseph John Gurney	London		1824	2d Edition
AN INQUIRY INTO THE ACCORDANCY OF WAR WITH CHRISTIANITY	Jonathan Dymond	Philadelphia	I. Ashmead and Co.	1834
ELEGANT EXTRACTS		Dublin	P. Byrne	1793	Second Edition
A COLLECTION OF MEMORIALS CONCERNING ... DECEASED ... QUAKERS		Philadelphia	Joseph Crukshank	1787
A COLLECTION OF THE EPISTLES OF THE YEARLY MEETING IN LONDON TO QUARTERLY MEETINGS AND MONTHLY MEETINGS ... 1675-1820		New York	Samuel Wood and sons	1821
EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS BY MARGARET JACKSON		Philadelphia	B. and T. Kite	1825

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

OBADIAH AND MOSES BROWN'S LIBRARY

TITLE	AUTHOR	PUBLISHER		DATE	NOTES
AN EPITOME OF THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD	John Hoyland	Philadelphia	B. and T. Kite	1816	Two Volumes
AN ... ADDRESS TO THE CLERGY	William Law	New Bedford	B. Lindsey	1816
EXTRACTS FROM THE WRITINGS OF FRANCIS FENELON , ARCHBISHOP OF CAMBRAY		Philadelphia	Kimber, Conrod and Co.	1804	edited by John Kendall
EXTRACTS FROM THE MINUTES AND ADVICES OF THE YEARLY MEETING IN LONDON		London	James Phillips	1783
THE CHRISTIAN OBSERVER, CONDUCTED BY THE MEMBERS OF THE ESTABLISHED CHURCH FOR THE YEAR 1804		New York	T.B. Wait and Sond	1814	Volume 3
A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON THE HOLY SPIRIT	Reverend G.S. Faber	New York	Eastburn, Kirk and Co.	1814
ON THE DIFFICULTIES OF INFIDELITY	George Stanley Faber	New York	D. Cooledge	1829
SERMONS PREACHED BY SEVERAL OF THE PEOPLE KNOWN AS QUAKERS		London	Mary Heade	1775
WORKS	Isaac Penington	London	James Phillips	1775
MAGNALIA CHRISTI AMERICANA	Cotton Mather	Hartford	Silas Andrews		two volumes
Collected Writings by various authors		London	?	1690?
A NARRATIVE OF EVENTS THAT HAVE LATELY TAKEN PLACE IN IRELAND	?	London	?	1804
HISTORY OF THE LATE WAR	John Entick			1766	Volumes 1-5
A DEFENSE OF THE CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE OF THE FRIENDS	Elias Hicks	Philadelphia	?	1825
LETTERS BY ISAAC PENINGTON	Isaac Penington	London	Holdsworth and Ball	1829
THE GREAT CASE OF TITHES	Anthony Pearson	London	?	1730

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

OBADIAH AND MOSES BROWN'S LIBRARY

TITLE	AUTHOR	PUBLISHER		DATE	NOTES
A BRIEF VIEW OF THE DOCTRINES OF FRIENDS	John Bevans	Philadelphia	Kimber and Con-rod	1810
MISCELLANIES, MORAL AND INSTRUCTIVE ... FOR SCHOOLS AND ... YOUNG PERSONS	?	Philadelphia	Henry Sweitzer	1802
AN ACCOUNT OF THE LIFE OF MARY ROWLAND-SON ...	Oliver Sanson	London	J. Sowle	1710
A BRIEF JOURNAL	Thomas Wil-son	London	James Phillips	1784	two copies
THE DOCTRINE OF THE PASSIONS EXPLAINED AND IMPROVED	Isaac Watts	London	J. Phillips?	1770
STRENGTH IN WEAKNESS MANIFEST IN THE LIFE	Elizabeth Stirredge	Philadelphia	B. and T. Kite	1810
A SCRIPTURE CATECHISM FOR CHILDREN	Ambrose Rigge	London	?	1772
HINTS, CHIEFLY SCRIPTURAL ... RESPECTING REGENERATION	Richard Phil-lips	Philadelphia	B. and T. Kite	1810
ESSAYS ON PEACE AND WAR	Philanthropus	Exeter, New Hampshire	J. Burnham	1827
AN ABSTRACT OF ... THE SPIRITUAL GUIDE	Michael de Molinos	London	?	1774
SION'S TRAVELLERS COMFORTED	Charles Mar-shal	London	T. Soule	1704
TWO DISCOURSES AND A PRAYER		Bristol	S. Farley	1768	5th edition
THE GREAT AUDIT, OR GOOD STEWARD	Matthew Hale	London	John Kendell	1775
A JOURNAL OF THE LIFE	John Gratton	London	James Phillips	1779
A BRIEF COLLECTION OF REMARKABLE PASSAGES ...	Margaret Fox	London	J. Somes	1710

At his home in Newport, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 6th of 9 M 1836 / This forenoon I went down town with a view of attending to some buisness but being disappointed I walked further on till I came to the street which leads to the place where Harrisons Mill used to stand Walked thro' it, & across the fields till I came to the Ocean & so round to the

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Beech & while there stood & had many serious recollections on my ramble to that place when a child & in younger life - from the Beech I walked across the fields to Thos B Goulds Mill where I sat a while & then returned home.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 7, Wednesday: The Emperor Ferdinand of Austria became King Ferdinand V of Bohemia.

Prime Minister of France Marie Joseph Louis Adolphe Thiers proposed that the French invade Spain in support of the liberal Queen Maria Cristina, and resigned. He was succeeded as Prime Minister by Louis Matthieu, Comte Mole.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 7th of 9th M / We had heard for a Week or two past that Our friend Moses Brown was sick & thought to be failing - When the first Steam Boat came down I went to the Long Wharf to inquire but seeing no person I knew, returned home where I found two letters one from Dr Tobey & one from Gilbert Congdon announcing his Decease He Died yesterday the 6th of 9th M 1836 about five Minutes after 12 OClock Noon

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 8, Thursday: Some 1,100 to 1,300 alums attended Harvard College's Bicentennial, and heard a professional choir offer the very original of "Fair Harvard." Although the very oldest living alumnus, 96-year-old Judge Paine Wingate (Class of 1759, of New Hampshire) was, unfortunately, unable to be present, 86-year-old Samuel Emery (Class of 1774, of Philadelphia) was able to march in the parade. Word arrived that President Josiah Quincy, Sr. had, while researching for a "History of Harvard University" in the College Archives, located in filed-and-forgotten records of an Overseers meeting on January 6, 1644 the first rough sketch for the shield with the Latin motto "VE RI TAS" ("Verity" or "Truth") and three open books, which was to become the College's arms. This is how it looks today, as a refrigerator magnet:

During this Bicentennial, a white banner atop a large tent in the Yard for the 1st time publicly displayed this design, which in 1843 would become the basis of the seal officially adopted by the Harvard Corporation, and then in 1847 would be dropped in favor of another seal, and then in 1885 would be readopted.

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Some of the alums had an interestingly historic discussion:

(following screen)

In September 1836,  on the day of the second centennial anniversary of Harvard College, Mr. Emerson, George Ripley, and myself [Frederic Henry Hedge], with one other who was this fourth person: would it have been an unnamed woman, an unnamed wife, specifically [Sophia Ripley??], chanced to confer together on the state of current opinion in theology and philosophy, which we agreed in thinking was very unsatisfactory. Could anything be done in the way of protest and introduction of deeper and broader views? What we strongly felt was dissatisfaction with the reigning sensuous philosophy, dating from John Locke, on which our Christian theology was based. The writings of Samuel Taylor Coleridge, recently edited by Marsh [Henry Nelson Coleridge had only at this point initiated publication of THE LITERARY REMAINS OF SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE], and some of Thomas Carlyle's earlier essays, especially the "Characteristics" and "SIGNS OF THE TIMES," had created a ferment in the minds of some of the young clergy of that day. There was a promise in the air of a new era of intellectual life. We four concluded to call a few like-minded seekers together in the following week.  Some dozen of us met in Boston, in the house, I believe, of Mr. Ripley. Among them I recall the name of Orestes Augustus Brownson (not yet turned Romanist), Cyrus Augustus Bartol, Theodore Parker, and Charles Stearns Wheeler and Robert Bartlett, tutors in Harvard College. There was some discussion, but no conclusion reached, on the question whether it were best to start a new journal as the organ of our views, or to work through those already existing. The next meeting, in the same month, was held by invitation of Emerson, at his house in Concord. A large number assembled; besides some of those who met at Boston, I remember Mr. Alcott, [Bronson Alcott] John Sullivan Dwight, Ephraim Peabody, Dr. Convers Francis, Mrs. Sarah Alden Bradford Ripley, Miss Elizabeth Palmer Peabody, Margaret Fuller, Caleb Stetson, James Freeman Clarke. These were the earliest of a series of meetings held from time to time, as occasion prompted, for seven or eight years. Jones Very was one of those who occasionally attended; H.D. Thoreau another. There was no club, properly speaking; no organization, no presiding officer, no vote ever taken. How the name "Transcendental," given to these gatherings and the set of persons who took part in them, originated, I cannot say. It certainly was never assumed by the persons so called. I suppose I was the only one who had any first-hand acquaintance with German transcendental philosophy, at the start. THE DIAL was the product of the movement, and in some sort its organ.

CAMBRIDGE HISTORY OF ENGLISH AND AMERICAN LITERATURE

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

At the wrap-up of the day, guest speaker Josiah Quincy, Jr. (Class of 1821) made a motion “that this assembly of the Alumni be adjourned to meet at this place on the 8th of September, 1936” — and the motion was unanimously adopted.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 8th of 9 M / Our meeting was small but very quietly solid – I missed father Rodman at my right hand being confined at home with a lame back –
Thro’ the day my mind has been much at Providence where I have concluded to go tomorrow (if the Steam Boat get in in season) to attend the funeral of my ancient & much beloved friend Moses Brown*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 9, Friday: Abraham Lincoln received his Illinois law license.

Waldo Emerson's NATURE was self-published in Boston, 1,000 copies that cost him a little over $100.⁰⁰, or 10¢ the copy. The first advertisements for this small volume appeared.

This 1st edition contained not the pseudoevolutionionistic epigraph on the worm aspiring to be man with which we are now so familiar, but in its place a quote from Plotinus:

Nature is but an image or imitation of wisdom, the last thing of the soul; Nature being a thing which doth only do, but not know.

Jones Very, having completed his undergraduate education at Harvard College, preparing for his entry into the Harvard Divinity School (where he was planning to make quite a splash on account of his principled repudiation of all deliberation and “taking thought” in favor of what he was terming “conversing with Heaven,” in a state of artlessness and immediacy and spontaneity), would purchase this little volume on nature and naturalness and heavily mark it up. Courtesy of Parkman D. Howe of Needham, we know how he marked it up. We can note that almost half his markings, including all but two of his marginal comments, were confined to the chapter on “Idealism.” We can also know that he responded quite idiosyncratically to Emerson’s trope on infancy, “Infancy is the perpetual Messiah, which come into the arms of fallen men, and pleads with them to return to paradise,” in a manner which prefigured his later mental collapse.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The most comprehensive explanation, however is to be found in his personal copy of a small blue book with covers decorated by tree-like vines. Mr. Tutor Very purchased it in September 1836, only a few days after it was published. The timing of its acquisition at once suggests that he was already familiar with the latest modes of nonconformity, and perhaps was even anticipating the book's publication. At the end of August, in his Commencement Address, had he not expressed his confidence in the power of "new principles of action" to resist the "mechanical spirit" of the times, which he felt was suppressing the more heroic and precious forms of individuality? Now the opportunity arose for him to study the detailed grounds of another man's affirmations and dissents, a man somewhat older than he, and more knowing in the ways of spiritual heroism, about which the Divinity School evidently could teach him nothing. He may have first learned of Ralph Waldo Emerson during the winter of 1835-1836, when the latter delivered a series of ten lectures on English literature, from Geoffrey Chaucer to William Shakespeare, to Byron and Coleridge, at Boston's Masonic Temple. Or, as was perhaps more likely, when Very visited Boston that winter to listen to sermons (as he must have done, following his change of heart and recent choice of a ministerial career), he may have heard Emerson in one of his church appearances, since he preached usually twice a week during the run of his lecture course. Or, between January and May 1836, after walking the seventeen miles of turnpike linking Cambridge with his home, he may have attended one of the approximately fifteen lectures on biography and English literature Emerson delivered at the Salem Lyceum in two series. (In view of the attitudes Very was cultivating at the time, the Martin Luther, John Milton, and George Fox lectures might well have tempted him.) But whatever the way he discovered Emerson -and there were sufficient opportunities for him to have at least heard about him as early as 1835- it is certain he read NATURE eagerly in 1836, with pencil in hand, scoring margins, underlining sentences, and making written comments.

[CONTINUED ON NEXT SCREEN]

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

[CONTINUED FROM PREVIOUS SCREEN]

Most striking about Very's markings and marginalia is that they indicate he was not at all surprised by Emerson's aerial prose poem; instead, he apparently found what he expected – and this neither confounded nor offended him, as it did most readers. Several times he questioned what he read, but never did he challenge Emerson: his mood seemed respectful throughout. It was as if his reading confirmed suspicions that the author was a thoughtful man whose reflections repaid close scrutiny. (Though a minor aspect of Very's use of NATURE it is indicative of his attitude toward it that he treated it incidentally as a source book for the compatible ideas of others, of Coleridge for example, and of William Shakespeare, Michaelangelo, George Herbert, and even of the unnamed "orphanic poet.") He read NATURE then as a literal rather than figurative testament about the nature of God, and about the relationship between God and man. He read it as if it were a conduct-book filled with supernal imperatives. While certainly not a usual approach to the book, it still was a valid one, given the disposition of the reader in September 1836. He was looking for certain information, and believed it might be found here rather than in the Divinity School. Very was particularly curious about the effects of nature upon Emerson, about his emotional and artistic responses to the natural world. Moreover, Very seemed interested in external nature as the basis for communion with God, and this accorded well with the viewpoint Emerson developed. (The professors would have shouted Very down had he suggested such an idea in the classroom.) He was concerned too with the relationship between personal morals and the morality of art, and specifically of literary art. But he seemed not so interested as Emerson in attempting to explore the philosophical middle ground between idealism and materialism. Several of the statements recalled to him verses from the Book of Revelation, and several others reminded him of the corrosive powers of sin. Emerson's book therefore generally served to stimulate his own distinctive thoughts in an original way, one which at times was inconsistent with Emerson's intentions; that is, from the marginalia in his copy, Very's NATURE seems not quite the book that Emerson wrote. But this does not mean that his comments and markings conformed to any viewpoint even remotely acceptable to the provincial orthodoxy maintained by Andrews Norton and

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Since many scholars have assumed that this manifesto NATURE must have influenced Henry David Thoreau in one way or another, and since such an assumption has always seemed to me to be presumptuous, I will insert here the short synopsis Catherine Albanese used to introduce the work in her THE SPIRITUALITY OF THE AMERICAN TRANSCENDENTALISTS:

When Emerson published his slim volume NATURE in 1836, he had produced a manifesto for the emerging transcendental movement. Seen in juxtaposition to his farewell sermon at the Second Church, NATURE offers Emerson's spiritual alternative to the inherited forms of the church. Throughout the work he stands in the Platonic lineage and, especially, that lineage as read through a revived metaphysical tradition in the West. Hence, in NATURE the world of the "not-me" that Emerson celebrates is seen ultimately as a reflection of the one Mind or Spirit present in the human soul and in the realm of the Ideas. Refracted through the Neoplatonic teaching of the One (the Soul) and the Many (Nature), Emerson articulates a Swedenborgian doctrine of correspondence, expresses enthusiasm for magic and miracle, and speaks prophetically of human powers that seem, indeed, god-like. The while he employs the Kantian-Coleridgean distinction between the Reason and the Understanding (as he understands it) to contrast true and deceptive visions of the world. He sees in a hieroglyphic of symbols the means for the Reason to discern the secret message of Spirit encoded in matter. The metaphysical tradition that Emerson embraces in NATURE would enjoy a considerable following in the nineteenth century. Even as Emerson owed a debt to Emmanuel Swedenborg and the Swedenborgian Church of the New Jerusalem, others –like the followers of Mary Baker Eddy (1821-1910) in Christian Science and followers of forms of mind cure in New Thought– would owe a debt to Emerson. In the twentieth century the "positive thinking" of Norman Vincent Peale (b. 1898) and others also had its roots in Emerson's teaching. Beyond that, in NATURE Emerson gives voice to a characteristic American millennialism, a sense that a new age with new powers and energies has dawned or is about to dawn. Despite his idealism, he exalts a landscape that will form the earthly paradise for a later wilderness preservation movement. He speaks with a largeness of vision and a confidence in human capacity that, in a host of different ways, finds expression in the culture of the era. Situated in a new space, Emerson and other Americans concluded that they were also living in a new time and that, as Gods, they should stretch their spirits to the demands of the age.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

(This, it seems to me, is a reductio ad absurdum, for no-one but a fool would attempt to send Henry Thoreau sailing away in the same tub with a threesome such as Emmanuel Swedenborg, Mary Baker Eddy, and Norman Vincent Peale.)

At the Krontal spa north of Frankfurt, Felix Mendelssohn proposed to Cecile Jeanrenaud. She accepted.

In Dresden, Frédéric François Chopin may have proposed to Maria Wodzinska, sister of his boyhood friends, and he may have been offered some grounds for hope (on the other hand it is possible that nothing like this actually happened).

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 9th of 9th M 1836 / Rose early this Morning & got in readiness for the boat which arrived at the Long Wharf at 6 OC & I was there in season to get on board - we arrived in season for me to get to the House of my late dear friend Moses Brown nearly an hour & an half before the time appointed for his funeral to Meet at the House which was 10 OClock, & 11 O C at the Meeting House - I had a good opportunity for reflection & feel that it was the last time I should ever see his remains in his own house & in the parlour where I have spent so many & so pleasant & interesting hours with him - His corpse was singularly natural, he lay in his coffin with the same solid reverent & retired countenance as I have often seen upon him, when sitting in religious opportunities & his Mind gathering up to say something - very Many came into the room to view his remains for the last time, & after a few moments quiet Rowland Greene called the attention of the Audience to the solemnity of the occasion & the very great loss we had sustained in the removal of this our Ancient Father in the Church who had walked so long & so pleasantly affectionately & usefully among us. - The funeral then proceeded to the Meeting House - The Governor of the State [John Brown Francis] - ex- Gov Fenner Some of the Senators & Representatives of the Assembly, the Secretary of our State - Judges of our State Courts & the Judge of the United States Court - The President of Brown University & the Officers of it - President of the R I Historical Society & many of the Officers of it, together with many people of the first Standing in Providence were present - but none of these were as intersting to me as to see the teachers & Schollars of the YMB School walk in, in a solid manner, & go into the galery - as I saw them come in the Muscles of my face were affected, my eyes filled with tears & my whole frame so affected that it was with great difficulty that I could refrain from loud weeping - when it rushed on my mind that they had been the objects of his peculiar care & regard for many years, & that this was the last office to be performed - my mind has seldom been so much affected. -

Rowland Greene was first engaged in testimony to the valuable life of the deceased & the accordancy of it with the christian principles which he professed - Then Thos Anthony to the same effect - then Mary B Allen in supplication - then John Wilbur -

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

then Anna A Jenkins in Supplication - the Meeting closed & we proceeded to the place of internment which was in the burying ground which he gave to friends

The pause at the grave after the remains was laid over it was unusually long, not far from 15 minutes in which Rowland Greene was engaged in supplication, the the remains was lowered down & covered up to be Seen of Men no more. -

I went the the School House & dined & after dinner rode into Town & attended to a little buisness I had there & returned to the School House & Lodged.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 September 10, Saturday: The Reverend Leonard Withington's account of huckleberrying appeared, in a briefer form, in the Concord, Massachusetts Yeoman's Gazette.

Jose Manuel Inacio da Cunha Faro Meneses Portugal da Gama Carneiro e Sousa, conde de Luminares replaced Antonio Jose de Sousa, Manuel e Meneses Severim de Noronha, duque de Terceira, marques e conde de Vila-Flor as prime minister of Portugal.

Frédéric François Chopin departed from Marienbad (Marianske Lazne) where he had visited Maria Wodzinska and her mother, his destination being Leipzig. He may or may not have proposed to Maria, but in any event, he would never see her again.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 10th of 9 M 1836 / After breakfasting at the School House I walked down to the late residence of my late dear friend Moses Brown spent a little time with those that remained & in particular with dear Avis Harris who has been his faithful House Keeper & Nurse for many years, & for her faithfulness & Kindness to him as well as many acts of kindness towards me in my visits at the House, is entitled to my love & good esteem. --

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

While here, I had an opportunity of discharging my duty towards a friend who I thought needed the care & caution of an Elder & was favoured to do it to my own satisfaction; & I hope the help of the individual

I then went into town & finished my business Dined with Dr Tobey & at 4 OC PM got on board the Steam Boat & returned home very glad & thankful that I had had an opportunity to attend the funeral of my friend of whom much more may be written – Some incidents of his last sickness may be inserted but which I have not yet collected with sufficient precision to commit to writing in the manner I could wish – I understand his expressions regarding the final change were not numerous – they were not necessary – his whole life was a practical comment on the principles which he professed. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 11, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 11th of 9th M 1836 / Silent & solid Meetings tho' rather fewer in Number than common Father Rodman has been confined with a lame back for some days.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

The Alert and Richard Henry Dana, Jr. encountered the brig Solon, of Plymouth, from the Connecticut River, and last from New York, bound to the Spanish Main with a cargo of fresh provisions, and managed to trade for some of those fresh provisions.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Sunday, Sept. 11th. Lat. 30° 04' N., long. 63° 23' W.; the Bermudas bearing north-northwest, distant one hundred and fifty miles. The next morning, about ten o'clock, "Sail ho!" was cried on deck; and all hands turned up to see the stranger. As she drew nearer, she proved to be an ordinary-looking hermaphrodite brig, standing south-southeast; and probably bound out, from the Northern States, to the West Indies; and was just the thing we wished to see. She hove-to for us, seeing that we wished to speak her; and we ran down to her; boom-ended our studding-sails; backed our main topsail, and hailed her– "Brig, ahoy!"– "Hallo!"– "Where are you from, pray?"– "From New York, bound to Curacoa."– "Have you any fresh provisions to spare?"– "Aye, aye! plenty of them!" We lowered away the quarter-boat, instantly; and the captain and four hands sprang in, and were soon dancing over the water, and alongside the brig. In about half an hour, they returned with half a boat-load of potatoes and onions, and each vessel filled away, and kept on her course. She proved to be the brig Solon, of Plymouth, from the Connecticut river, and last from New York, bound to the Spanish Main, with a cargo of fresh provisions, mules, tin bake-pans, and other notions. The onions were genuine and fresh; and the mate of the brig told the men in the boat, as he passed the bunches over the side, that the girls had strung them on purpose for us the day he sailed. We had supposed, on board, that a new president had been chosen, the last winter, and, just as we filled away, the captain hailed and asked who was president of the United States. They answered, Andrew Jackson; but thinking that the old General could not have been elected for a third time, we hailed again, and they answered– Jack Downing; and left us to correct the mistake at our leisure.

It was just dinner-time when we filled away; and the steward, taking a few bunches of onions for the cabin, gave the rest to us, with a bottle of vinegar. We carried them forward, stowed them away in the forecabin,

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

refusing to have them cooked, and ate them raw, with our beef and bread. And a glorious treat they were. The freshness and crispness of the raw onion, with the earthy taste, give it a great relish to one who has been a long time on salt provisions. We were perfectly ravenous after them. It was like a scent of blood to a hound. We ate them at every meal, by the dozen; and filled our pockets with them, to eat in our watch on deck; and the bunches, rising in the form of a cone, from the largest at the bottom, to the smallest, no larger than a strawberry, at the top, soon disappeared. The chief use, however, of the fresh provisions, was for the men with the scurvy. One of them was able to eat, and he soon brought himself to, by gnawing upon raw potatoes; but the other, by this time, was hardly able to open his mouth; and the cook took the potatoes raw, pounded them in a mortar, and gave him the juice to drink. This he swallowed, by the tea-spoonful at a time, and rinsed it about his gums and throat. The strong earthy taste and smell of this extract of the raw potato at first produced a shuddering through his whole frame, and after drinking it, an acute pain, which ran through all parts of his body; but knowing, by this, that it was taking strong hold, he persevered, drinking a spoonful every hour or so, and holding it a long time in his mouth; until, by the effect of this drink, and of his own restored hope, (for he had nearly given up, in despair) he became so well as to be able to move about, and open his mouth enough to eat the raw potatoes and onions pounded into a soft pulp. This course soon restored his appetite and strength; and in ten days after we spoke the Solon, so rapid was his recovery, that, from lying helpless and almost hopeless in his berth, he was at the mast-head, furling a royal. With a fine south-west wind, we passed inside of the Bermudas; and notwithstanding the old couplet, which was quoted again and again by those who thought we should have one more touch of a storm before our voyage was up, —

“If the Bermudas let you pass,
You must beware of Hatteras-”

we were to the northward of Hatteras, with good weather, and beginning to count, not the days, but the hours, to the time when we should be at anchor in Boston harbor. Our ship was in fine order, all hands having been hard at work upon her from daylight to dark, every day but Sunday, from the time we got into warm weather on this side the Cape. It is a common notion with landsmen that a ship is in her finest condition when she leaves port to enter upon her voyage; and that she comes home, after a long absence, “With over-weathered ribs and ragged sails;

Lean, rent and beggared by the strumpet wind.”

But so far from that, unless a ship meets with some accident, or comes upon the coast in the dead of winter, when work cannot be done upon the rigging, she is in her finest order at the end of the voyage. When she sails from port, her rigging is generally slack; the masts need staying; the decks and sides are black and dirty from taking in cargo; riggers' seizings and overhand knots in place of nice seamanlike work; and everything, to a sailor's eye, adrift. But on the passage home, the fine weather between the tropics is spent in putting the ship into the neatest order. No merchant vessel looks better than an Indiaman, or a Cape Horner, after a long voyage; and many captains and mates will stake their reputation for seamanship upon the appearance of their ship when she hauls into the dock. All our standing rigging, fore and aft, was set up and tarred; the masts stayed; the lower and top-mast rigging rattled down, (or up, as the fashion now is;) and so careful were our officers to keep the rattlins taught and straight, that we were obliged to go aloft upon the ropes and shearpoles with which the rigging was swifted in; and these were used as jury rattlins until we got close upon the coast. After this, the ship was scraped, inside and out, decks, masts, booms and all; a stage being rigged outside, upon which we scraped her down to the water-line; pounding the rust off the chains, bolts and fastenings. Then, taking two days of calm under the line, we painted her on the outside, giving her open ports in her streak, and finishing off the nice work upon the stern, where sat Neptune in his car, holding his trident, drawn by sea-horses; and re-touched the gilding and coloring of the cornucopia which ornamented her billet-head. The inside was then painted, from the skysail truck to the waterways—the yards black; mast-heads and tops, white; monkey-rail, black, white, and yellow; bulwarks, green; plank-shear, white; waterways, lead color, etc., etc. The anchors and ring-bolts, and other iron work, were blackened with coal-tar; and the steward kept at work, polishing the brass of the wheel, bell, capstan, etc. The cabin, too, was scraped, varnished, and painted; and the forecastle scraped and scrubbed; there being no need of paint and varnish for Jack's quarters. The decks were then scraped and varnished, and everything useless thrown overboard; among which the empty tar barrels were set on fire and thrown overboard, on a dark night, and left blazing astern, lighting up the ocean for miles. Add to all this labor, the neat work upon the rigging;— the knots, flemish-eyes, splices, seizings, coverings, pointings, and graffings, which show a ship in crack order. The last preparation, and which looked still more like coming into port, was getting the anchors over the bows, bending the cables, rowing the hawsers up from between decks, and overhauling the deep-sea-lead-line.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 13, Tuesday: Waldo Emerson to his journal:

I went to the College Jubilee on the 8th instant.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 13 of 9M / I had thought till this Morning that I should have been at Providence with the committee, an adjournment of which meet today - but on looking the subject over it seemed to me it was rather best to stay at home. - I sometimes think my services at the School is nearly over - but then again in taking another view of the subject I hardly know how to relax my care for an Institution I have loved so well

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 15, Thursday: The Alert and Richard Henry Dana, Jr. reached the Gulf Stream.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Thursday, September 15th. This morning the temperature and peculiar appearance of the water, the quantities of gulf-weed floating about, and a bank of clouds lying directly before us, showed that we were on the border of the Gulf Stream. This remarkable current, running north-east, nearly across the ocean, is almost constantly shrouded in clouds, and is the region of storms and heavy seas. Vessels often run from a clear sky and light wind, with all sail, at once into a heavy sea and cloudy sky, with doublereefed topsails. A sailor told me that on a passage from Gibraltar to Boston, his vessel neared the Gulf Stream with a light breeze, clear sky, and studding-sails out, aloft and aloft; while, before it, was along line of heavy, black clouds, lying like a bank upon the water, and a vessel coming out of it, under double-reefed topsails, and with royal yards sent down. As they drew near, they began to take in sail after sail, until they were reduced to the same condition; and, after twelve or fourteen hours of rolling and pitching in a heavy sea, before a smart gale, they ran out of the bank on the other side, and were in fine weather again, and under their royals and skysails. As we drew into it, the sky became cloudy, the sea high, and everything had the appearance of the going off, or the coming on, of a storm. It was blowing no more than a stiff breeze; yet the wind, being north-east, which is directly against the course of the current, made an ugly, chopping sea, which heaved and pitched the vessel about, so that we were obliged to send down the royal yards, and to take in our light sails. At noon, the thermometer, which had been repeatedly lowered into the water, showed the temperature to be seventy; which was considerably above that of the air,—as is always the case in the centre of the Stream. A lad who had been at work at the royal mast-head, came down upon the deck, and took a turn round the long-boat; and looking very pale, said he was so sick that he could stay aloft no longer, but was ashamed to acknowledge it to the officer. He went up again, but soon gave out and came down, and leaned over the rail, “as sick as a lady passenger.” He had been to sea several years, and had, he said, never been sick before. He was made so by the irregular, pitching motion of the vessel, increased by the height to which he had been above the hull, which is like the fulcrum of the lever. An old sailor, who was at work on the top-gallant yard, said he felt disagreeably all the time, and was glad, when his job was done, to get down into the top, or upon the deck. Another hand was sent to the royal masthead, who staid nearly an hour, but gave up. The work must be done, and the mate sent me. I did very well for some time, but began at length to feel very unpleasantly, though I had never been sick since the first two days from Boston, and had been in all sorts of weather and situations. Still, I kept my place, and did not come down, until I had got through my work, which was more than two hours. The ship certainly never acted so badly before. She was pitched and jerked about in all manner of ways; the sails seeming to have no steadying power over her. The tapering points of the masts made various curves and angles against the sky overhead, and sometimes, in one sweep of an instant, described an arc of more than forty-five degrees, bringing up with a sudden jerk which made it necessary to hold on with both hands, and then sweeping off, in another long, irregular curve. I was not positively sick, and came down with a look of indifference, yet was not unwilling to get upon the comparative terra firma of the deck. A few hours more carried us through, and when we saw the sun go down, upon our larboard beam, in the direction of the continent of North America, we had left the bank of dark, stormy clouds astern, in the twilight.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 15 of 9 M / Our meeting was small but solid - Father was at Meeting & bore a short testimony -
Recd a letter from our Dear John dated the 4th inst giving an acct of the decease of Phebe D Leach a friend of their Moy [Monthly] Meeting - and also that Saml Rhodes had recently*

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

*visited them & attended their Meeting & also PDLs funeral
I had just before receiving Johns letter had closed & sealed one to him giving an acct of the Decease & funeral of our fr Moses
Brown
I also finished a letter & closed a parcell to Thos Thompson & sent it to NYork by David Sherman to be forwarded to Liverpool*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 16, Friday: Treaty of peace between the United States and Morocco.

READ THE FULL TEXT

The Alert and Richard Henry Dana, Jr. sailed under strong winds directly for Boston Harbor and home, with everyone in the best of spirits.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

Friday, Sept. 16th. Lat. 38° N., long. 69° 00' W. A fine south-west wind; every hour carrying us nearer in toward land. All hands on deck at the dog watch, and nothing talked about, but our getting in; where we should make the land; whether we should arrive before Sunday; going to church; how Boston would look; friends; wages paid;— and the like. Every one was in the best of spirits; and, the voyage being nearly at an end, the strictness of discipline was relaxed; for it was not necessary to order in a cross tone, what every one was ready to do with a will. The little differences and quarrels which a long voyage breeds on board a ship, were forgotten, and every one was friendly; and two men, who had been on the eve of a battle half the voyage, were laying out a plan together for a cruise on shore. When the mate came forward, he talked to the men, and said we should be on George's Bank before to-morrow noon; and joked with the boys, promising to go and see them, and to take them down to Marblehead in a coach.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 16th of 9 M / Wrote to Abel Townsend & of Fallston Penns. giving him an acct of Moses Browns decease & funeral

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 17, Saturday: Birth in New-York of Lawrence Kip, first child of Maria Elizabeth Lawrence Kip and Deacon William Ingraham Kip.

Waldo Emerson wrote to Thomas Carlyle that “the five hundred copies of the SARTOR are all sold, and read with great delight by many persons.”

“Regular book publication of SARTOR did not take place until 1836, when Emerson arranged for publication in Boston and wrote an enthusiastic preface.”

SARTOR RESARTUS

STUDY THIS STRANGENESS

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 17th of 9 M 1836 / Recd a letter & parcell from my friend Thos Thompson 8 M 6 1836 – The state of Society in England is such as to call for Mourning & lamentation – The ways of Zion Mourn & the Curtains of Middean tremble –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 18, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 18th of 9 M / In both Meetings father has a few words to offer, but to me both Meetings were rather low times. – Henry Gould absent at Connanicut. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The Alert and Richard Henry Dana, Jr. sailed along some 15 miles off Block Island, but could catch no glimpse of the land.

AND NOW, FOR SOMETHING ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, A REPORT FROM OUR SAILOR:

At noon of Sunday, 18th, Block Island bore, by calculation, N.W. 1-4 W. fifteen miles; but the fog was so thick all day that we could see nothing.

Having got through the ship's duty, and washed and shaved, we went below, and had a fine time overhauling our chests, laying aside the clothes we meant to go ashore in and throwing overboard all that were worn out and good for nothing. Away went the woollen caps in which we had carried hides upon our heads, for sixteen months, on the coast of California; the duck frocks, for tarring down rigging; worn-out and darned mittens and patched woollen trowsers which had stood the tug of Cape Horn. We hove them overboard with a good will; for there is nothing like being quit of the very last appendages and remnants of our evil fortune. We got our chests all ready for going ashore, ate the last "duff" we expected to have on board the ship Alert; and talked as confidently about matters on shore as though our anchor were on the bottom.

"Who'll go to church with me a week from to-day?"

"I will," says Jack; who said aye to everything.

"Go away, salt water!" says Tom. "As soon as I get both legs ashore, I'm going to shoe my heels, and button my ears behind me, and start off into the bush, a straight course, and not stop till I'm out of the sight of salt water!"

"Oh! belay that! Spin that yarn where nobody knows your filling! If you get once moored, stem and stern, in old B_____'s grog-shop, with a coal fire ahead and the bar under your lee, you won't see daylight for three weeks!"

"No!" says Tom, "I'm going to knock off grog, and go and board at the Home, and see if they won't ship me for a deacon!"

"And I," says Bill, "am going to buy a quadrant and ship for navigator of a Hingham packet!"

These and the like jokes served to pass the time while we were lying waiting for a breeze to clear up the fog and send us on our way.

Toward night a moderate breeze sprang up; the fog however continuing as thick as before; and we kept on to the eastward. About the middle of the first watch, a man on the fore-castle sang out, in a tone which showed that there was not a moment to be lost,— "Hard up the helm!" and a great ship loomed up out of the fog, coming directly down upon us. She luffed at the same moment, and we just passed one another; our spanker boom grazing over her quarter. The officer of the deck had only time to hail, and she answered, as she went into the fog again, something about Bristol— Probably, a whaleman from Bristol, Rhode Island, bound out. The fog continued through the night, with a very light breeze, before which we ran to the eastward, literally feeling our way along. The lead was heaved every two hours, and the gradual change from black mud to sand, showed that we were approaching Nantucket South Shoals.

September 22, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

5th day 22nd of 9 M / Our Meeting was a comfortable sitting Uncle Benjamin Freeborn was in town & at Meeting & called to see us in the Morning. Benjamin Luther a blind man & his wife were at Meeting & he was so unwell as to go out – & after Meeting a friend led him home – They are pretty dutiful attenders of our Meeting – Seldom one occurs but they are present. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 23, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*6th day 23 of 9 M / Seventeen days ago my dear & valued Friend Moses Brown Died – had he have lived till this day he would have been 98 years old, but he has gone to reap the reward of a life well spent & has beyond any doubt with me joined the society of Saints & Angels & of just men made perfect in the realms of endless felicity – May I, may all, so live, as to leave to survivors as well grounded a life that it is as well with us in the After State
My friend Daniel B Smith of Phildelphia called & set an hour with us this Afternoon, his company was interesting, he appears to be a friend of the true Stamp much engaged for the good of Society. –*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 24, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 24th of 9 M 1836 / My wife recd a letter from Abrhm Sherman Jr inclosing the womens London Epistles for the present Year – in which he gave her some account of his recent joiurney & attendance of the Quarterly Meetings of Falmouth & Vassalborough, together with a pleasant account of Friends in that country. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 25, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 25th of 9 M / Our Meetings were pretty good ones tho' rather to short, especially in the Morning, but I could not keep it longer – Father being anxious to separate on acct of his health. – he had a little to say in each. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 29, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 29th of 9 M / Monthly Meeting in Town – it was a very Stormy day & but few attended – life was low tho' in the first Hannah Dennis had pretty good service but little buisness in the

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

last Meeting. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 1, Saturday: David Henry Thoreau's Harvard College essay on assignment "INTRODUCTION TO THE STUDY OF THE GREEK CLASSIC POETS by Henry Nelson Coleridge, Part I."

Lowell Mason signed a new contract with the Boston Handel and Haydn Society. Mason would receive all profits from the church music collection after $2,000 for two years. For the following two years he was to receive a third of the profits, the society the other two-thirds.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 1st of 10 M 1836 / Of late I have had many reflections in reference to the final change which awaits us all, & is hastening on apace.- I feel that tho the largest part of my glass is run, & can truly say that my desires are, that my last days may be tranquil & that nothing may occur to mar or stain my life in declining years, but that I may evince that my profession of religion is not fatuous, but founded on the Eternal Truth as it is in Jesus Christ, & as it was believed in & practiced by original Quakers who I have no doubt saw things as they really are & not as thro' a glass darkly - as a System of Religion I do firmly believe in the principles of Barclay & the experience related in many of their Journals accord with my experience, the perusal of which has many times strengthened & confirmed my soul in the belief of them. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

➡ October 2, Sunday: The survey ship HMS Beagle returned to its home port in England after a 4½-year voyage around the earth of zoological, botanical, and geological discovery that included the Cape Verde islands, both coasts of South America, island groups such as the Galápagos, and the coastal waters of Australia.⁴²²

For many years Charles Darwin (who was not the ship's naturalist but supercargo, a companion for the ship's captain FitzRoy, sent along for the explicit purpose of keeping this captain sane despite his long enforced isolation from human contact as the man in command) would have nightmares about the cruel abuse of black slaves which he had witnessed along the east coast of the South American continent.

Salmon Brown was born in Hudson, Ohio to John Brown and Mary Ann Day Brown.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould in his journal:

1st day 2nd of 10th M 1836 / Our Morning Meeting was silent & the weather being rainy was small, but to me a good solid meeting. — In the Afternoon it was larger than usual & a pretty good meeting but to me not equal to the Morning — which confirmed me that numbers does no always make weight not even with preaching added to it. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

422. What would eventually become of HMS Beagle? It would be used as a training ship in Japan until 1889, and would then be broken up. For a time, part of its rib cage would be used as a stand for stones piled up near the temple of Suitengu, near the Okai shipyards.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

October 4, Tuesday: Lewis Cass was appointed as the US ambassador to France.

The Quakers who were being “misled” by Friend Elias Hicks were out of favor with the Quakers of Rhode Island, to the extent that when they presented their certificates of public ministry, these certificates were being refused and they were not being allowed use of the local meetinghouse facilities. Our local Quakers then –like local Quakers now– were allowing freedom of belief and freedom of speech only to those visitors who were favored to know exactly the same Truth that was known locally.

3rd day 4th of 10th M / This Morning as I was standing in the Door of the printing office I saw a couple of Friends walk down as if they had just landed from the Steam Boat - after casting in my mind for a Moment as to what Manner of Men they were I says to myself they are Hixites - & seeing Daniel Smith on the other side of the Street crossed over & asked him if he knew who those men were who had just passed - he said he did & that the one with the white hat was George Truman an Hixite [Hicksite] Preacher - About 11 OC in the Morning Robt Lee called at our house & introduced them as Friends who had brought letters of introduction to him from a friend of his in NYork - After sitting down awhile George opened his buisness by informing me that he & his companion [-] Longstreth was here on a religious account & were desirous of having a public Meeting with Friends & others, to which I was silent for a time, & after a short pause he said he had a certificate from The Meeting he came from - I told him I should like to look at the document, on which he handed it to me - I read both the Minute from the Moy [Monthly] Meeting & the endorsement by the Quarterly Meeting - I replied this looks like a regular proceeding, but neither this Monthly nor Quarterly Meeting, are in unity with the Meetings in N England & we cannot recognize thee as one of us - it is a pittty that one who carries so much of the exterior of a Quaker cannot be acknowlegded by the body, & I told him it was Streightening to my mind to fall in with such & feel obliged to let them know that we could not further their views, that he knew there was a difference between us - to this he said he supposed those they fell in with were streightened but he did not feel streightened towards us - I told him I apprehended he felt different from what he would if we acknowledged him, & could take him by the hand & further his views - then he said under these circumstances we could not have the use of the meeting House - I told him, no, he could not, - we could not do any thing about it - I had considerable other conversation with him when he rose to go but Daniel Smith coming in at the Moment, he sat a little longer till I had dispatched the buisness Daniel came in upon, pretty soon after Daniel went out - they rose again to go when I parted with them & I told them both, I wished them well, to which the companion replied It is our Wish to do so. -

George Truman above Mentioned had a Meeting at 1/2 past 7 OC this eveng at the Court House - I am inform'd there were about 60 in attendance & that he preached Quaker doctrine - this I had not doubt he intended to do, for he knew the doctrine of Elias

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Hicks would not go down with the people

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 October 7, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 7 of 10 M 1836 / Recd a letter from my old friend John Heald of Ohio with whom I have recd many letters in former times with much satisfaction & Interest – for a number of years he has been in feeble health & very tremulous in his nerves that his writing Showed a very weak hand – the last letter I recd from him was while I was at Providence in which he took leave & I never expected to have had another effort of his Pen, but he has written again & it seems much like one arrived from the dead.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 October 9, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 9th of 10th M / Our Morning Meeting was pretty well attended & so was the Afternoon In each Father Rodman bore short testimonies

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 October 13, Thursday: The balloon of the intrepid master Boston goldbeater and aeronaut Louis Lauriat again graced the skies from beautiful Castle Garden, the battery at the toe of Manhattan Island.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 13 of 10 M / Small & I may say poor Meetings, life was low, tho' some favour experienced – It is always a favour to set in the quiet. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 October 16, Sunday: Franz Liszt, Marie d'Agoult, and their daughter Blandine returned to Paris from Geneva, taking up residence in the Hotel de France.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 16th of 10th M / I hardly know what to record of our Meeting today – It however was much as they usually are –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

October 27, Thursday: David Henry Thoreau checked out, from Harvard Library, the 1st, 5th, and 6th volumes of the 6-volume edition by the Reverend Henry John Todd (1763-1845), THE POETICAL WORKS OF JOHN MILTON: WITH NOTES OF VARIOUS AUTHORS. TO WHICH ARE ADDED ILLUSTRATIONS, AND SOME ACCOUNT OF THE LIFE AND WRITINGS OF MILTON, BY THE REV. HENRY J. TODD (probably the 3d edition, London: Rivington, Cuthell, Nunn, et. al., 1826), and also an unidentified volume labeled NOTES ON MILTON and numbered "B.11.5."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 27th of 10 M / Since the last date I have been much engaged in some buisness which required attention -- Today with my dear wife rode to Portsmouth to attend our Moy [Monthly] Meeting - it was not a very lively time to me thio' II felt it right to attend to the buisness before us We came directly home after Meeting without stoping to Dine.-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 31, Monday: Elizabeth Wells Cummings Cheney was born to John Milton Cheney and Louisa Hosmer Cheney.

Waldo Emerson gave birth to a son:

Last night at 11 o'clock, a son was born to me.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 31 of 10 M / Attended the funeral of Mary Hazard the divorced wife of Dr Enoch Hazard & daughter of old Nicholas Easton - she was buried near the parental homestead near Seschuest Beach -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 1, Tuesday: To resist a forced removal, Seminoles in Florida under Osceola began armed struggle.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 11th M 1st, 1836 / Set out this PM for Qrty Meeting the day clear & pleasant Arrived at Fall River a little after Dark & lodged at Clarke Shoves -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 2, Wednesday: The Imperial censors approved of Mikhail Ivanovich Glinka's "A Life for the Tsar."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day - after walking round Fall River in the Mornng we crossed the ferry to Sommerset & attended the Select meeting Dined at Daniel Braytons & lodged at our old quarters at Nathan Chases. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 3, Thursday: From the log of the lightkeeper on Matinicus Rock: "Rainstorm N.E. waves washed into well and salted the water."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day was exceedingly stormy high Wind & hard rain so that we could go but a short distance without getting wet & but very few could cross Heids ferry from Fall River - the Meeting however was pretty large & would have been very full but for the Storm - It was a solid good Meeting - Divers good testimonies were bourne but Thos Anthony had the weight of the service
The Storm abating after Meeting we rode to Providence & lodged at our old Quarters the residence of our late Ancient & dear friend M Brown & was kindly received by Avis Harris who is his last wifes Granddaughter & to whom he has given liberally of his estate*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 4, Friday: Jose Bernardino de Portugal e Castro, marques de Valenca, conde de Vimioso replaced Jose Manuel Inacio da Cunha Faro Meneses Portugal da Gama Carneiro e Sousa, conde de Luminares as prime minister of Portugal.

Giacomo Meyerbeer's opera "Robert le Diable" was produced in Calcutta, in French.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

6th day attended the School committee at the School House -A Meeting of the Trustees of O Brown Bt [Benevolent] Fund & in the evening met in the School Room with many there to organize a Tract Society which had been gotten up by our young friends & it seemed like a duty for old friends to join with them in a work which with proper Management may prove so beneficial - in its present state it looks encouraging. We lodged at the School House

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 5, Saturday: Bernardo de Sa Nogueira de Figueiredo, visconde e barao de Sa da Bandeira replaced Jose Bernardino de Portugal e Castro, marques de Valenca, conde de Vimioso as Prime Minister of Portugal.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day Attended the Meeting for Sufferings in the forenoon & in the Afternoon rode Home after dining at Jonathon Congdons We reached home sometime after dark. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 6, Sunday: Francis Ellingwood Abbot was born in Boston, son of the teacher Joseph Hale Abbot (1802-1873) and Fanny Ellingwood Larcom Abbot (1807-1883). His early education would be obtained at home from his mother, and at Boston Latin School under Head Master Epes Sargent Dixwell.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 6th of 11th M 1836 / Attended Meetings at home In both Father Rodman had offerings, but to me they were far from seasons of life & spiritual enjoyment. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 10, Thursday: Louis Napoleon was banished to America.

David Henry Thoreau checked out, from Harvard Library, the 3rd volume of THE WORKS OF THE LATE WILLIAM COWPER, ESQ. OF THE INNER TEMPLE. [EDITED BY JOHN JOHNSON. WITH PORTRAITS.] (a 10-volume series published at London by Baldwin, Cradock, & Joy in 1817).⁴²³

WILLIAM COWPER, III

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 10 of 11 M / This morning when I first rose & all thro' the Morning & in our Meeting I was favoured with remarkable sweetness & clearness of mind & a confirmation was afforded that I was yet in some good degree under the right influence at least that in some recent religious efforts I had not been out of place – Father was engaged in testimony & altho' the current of his communication was very close upon religious professors I did not feel as if it belonged to me, in this instance having so remarkably felt the sweetness of peace to attend my Mind this Morning – yet it may sense as a caution to a faithful discharge of duty. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 13, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 13th of 11th M / Meetings both silent & very quiet & to me rather heavy – Cousin Henry & Abby Gould set the evening with us – Father Rodman confined with a lame back. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

423. Eventually Thoreau would have his own copy of Cowper's THE TASK.

COWPER'S "THE TASK"

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

An illustration from "The Task"

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 19, Saturday: David Henry Thoreau supplemented his borrowings from the Harvard Library by checking out, from the library of the "Institute of 1770." George W. Haven's translation of Heinrich Heine's LETTERS AUXILIARY TO THE HISTORY OF MODERN POLITE LITERATURE IN GERMANY (Boston: J. Munroe, 1836).

MODERN POLITE GERMAN ...

At the Teatro San Carlo of Naples, Gaetano Donizetti's dramma lirico L'assedio di Calais to words of Cammarano after DuBelloy was performed for the initial time. The work, produced for the nameday of the Neapolitan queen mother, was well received.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

7th day 19th of 11 M / More than a week ago I heard transiently that Elisha Bates had been Baptized in Water – today it is confirmed - Dr Tobey having sent me a copy of a letter from him to some person in England wherein he acknowledges the fact & undertakes an explanation of his conduct - but had he have been a thorough Quaker & stable minded man he would never have resorted to the beggarly elements, which was never designed for any thing but a Sign & to fulfill the Law for all righteousness – all which we hold & I do most assuredly believe was fulfilled in the coming of Christ & who by his appearance in the flesh put an end to all Shadows & introduced the Gospel in a more spiritual manner than it was before known, & it is also my unshaken faith that Jesus Christ is still known in spirit & that we, of this day know nothing more of him that will be of saving virtue – We read of him in The Scriptures, & it is a great favour, that record is preserved to us, but we may read them, & read them again, & know nothing of him that will save us, & it is by & thro' him, by the operation of his spirit in our hearts that we are saved with an everlasting Salvation.

Our young friend Gilbert Congdon from Providence called & set the evening with us – he gave us much information of our friends in Providence, & his visit to us was pleasant & interesting – he seems to be a young man well engaged & I hope will be of use in Society - & greatly do I desire there were a great many More such than there is. –

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 20, Sunday: One of the ways in which the Underground Railroad has been feel-good exaggerated is that only the seemly stuff, such as successful trips toward the north and freedom, has as yet been taken into consideration. In fact, however, the Underground Railroad ran in both directions, there having most definitely been in addition a reverse underground railroad, and we do not yet have data to corroborate that in any given month of any given antebellum year there were more black slave passengers who were shaking themselves free of their chains and were headed north into a new life of freedom than free black passengers who had been handcuffed and gagged and were headed south into a new life of slavery:

A NORTHERN FREEMAN ENSLAVED BY NORTHERN HANDS.

Nov. 20, 1836, (Sunday,) Peter John Lee, a free colored man of Westchester Co., N. Y., was kidnapped by Tobias Boudinot, E. K. Waddy, John Lyon, and Daniel D. Nash, of N. Y., city, and hurried away from his wife and children into slavery. One went up to shake hands with him, while the others were ready to use the gag and chain. See Emancipator, March 16, and May 4, 1837. This is

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 20 11 M 1836 / Father was at Meeting in the Morning & preached – Silent in the Afternoon pretty solid good Meetings.–

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 24, Thursday: David Henry Thoreau supplemented his borrowings from the Harvard Library by checking out, from the library of the “Institute of 1770”, SHAKSPEARE’S ROMANCES COLLECTED AND ARRANGED BY SHAKSPEARE II (two volumes, London, 1825 — there is a copy of this rare pseudonymous work in the British Museum), as well as Volume 93 of the North American Review — the volume which contains:

- a survey of Greek folk lyrics entitled “Romaic Popular Poetry”
- a survey of works on education by the Reverend Joseph Emerson of Malden (a great-grandfather of Waldo Emerson who had prayed every night that no descendant of his might ever be rich), Dr. Timothy Dwight, and Warren Burton entitled “Principle of Emulation,” including an account of German universities
- an article “Lives of Pinckney, Ellery, and Mather”
- a review of Volume VI of the Reverend Jared Sparks’s LIBRARY OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY (LIFE OF WILLIAM PINKNEY, by Henry Wheaton; LIFE OF WILLIAM ELLERY, by Edward T. Channing; LIFE OF COTTON MATHER, by William B.O. Peabody.)

LIBRARY OF AM. BIOG. VI

- a critical notice of the Reverend John Snelling Popkin’s THREE LECTURES ON LIBERAL EDUCATION (which was a book, published during this year, which Harvard College students would be needing to deal with in taking that professor’s course in “Greek Literature” and the “good taste of the ancients”)

Richard Wagner got married with Christine Wilhelmine (Minna) Planer, an actress, in Tragheim near Konigsberg (Kaliningrad).

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 24th of 11th M / Our first Meeting was a very remarkably favourd one. Father was favourd to exceed almost any thing I ever heard from him then Hannah Dennis, & then Mary Hicks in a well Authorised & truly Gospel testimony - We had considerable buisness in the last & prety well resulted - Benjn. Mott & Jonathon & Hannah Dennis dined with us When I returned home I found two parcells & a letter from my friend Thos Thompson of Liverpool.- Cousin Henry Gould & Thos Nichols called & sat most of the evening with us. - When we returned from Meeting we were shocked with the information that our dear little neighbour Sam Bailey about an hour before had by some means at the Coal grate got shockingly burned & the case was very doubtful as to his living - his stomach, Arm, face & Neck was sad to behold so that he could talk but not sensing his pains - his feet was cold & she rubbed them he asked who it was that rubbed him, some of the by standers told him it was Miss Gould & asked him if he did not know her, he said I cant see her, something is in my eye” he is a little boy not quite three years old grandson for our neighbour Faisneay & came in to see us nearly every day & was a sweet little interesting fellow He died about twelve hours after it happened. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 27, Sunday: Elias Harlow Russell was born in Sanbornton, New Hampshire, son of Elias Russell and Comfort Rundlett Russell.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 27th of 11 M 1836 / It was a favourd time in both Meetings today – In the Morning father appeared in testimony & supplication & in the Afternoon in testimony – Between Meetings was the funeral of dear little Saml Bailey which we attended - he came in to see us almost every day & was truly an endearing little object - but it is a Mercy he is taken & I desire none of us may grieve for him, for if he had lived he must have been a poor object with probably but one eye & most likely the uise of one hand – frequently last summer he would come in & ask for a book to see the pictures & after he had looked at them & amused himself for a while would lay down on the Settee, ask to be covered over with my silk pocket handkerchief & go to sleep & lay for an hour or two - so that we shall miss him exceedingly. – In the evening Thos Gould & Thos Nichols set a while with us

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 29, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

11th M 29th 1836 (3rd day) / This Morning I got into the Stage & rode to New Bedford & arrived there before dinner time & dined at Francis Tabers - spent the Afternoon in making a few calls - Lodged at Joseph Tillinghasts –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 30, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 30th of 11 M 1836 Attended the Select Qry Meeting - Previous to entering on the buisness Mary Battey & Hannah Dennis preached & I considered Marys testimony of no common cast She is a friend who can neither read nor write but the Power attends her – The buisness was weightily conducted. - Spent the Afternoon in calling on Some of my friends & in the evening in company with my cousin Thos B Gould had an opportunity with two Sons of Benjn. Pearce of Portsmouth by appointment from the Monthly Meeting, who seem to have departed from Society by attending with other persuations, we laboured ardently & affectionately with them & tho' they seemed to be tenderd particularly one of them, yet it did not appear that their minds were disposed to retract the course they had taken -we had the satisfaction of labouring faithfully with them & apprehended we did no hurt & probably left them in a State which will not easily be forgotten by them – I again Dined with F Taber, & took tea & lodged with Jos Tillinghast.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 December 1, Thursday: Anna Ricketson was born.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 1st of 12th M 1836 Our Quarterly Meeting at large was well attended & a considerable number of young people were present –

Mary Battey was again much favoured in testimony & Hannah Dennis in a short testimony the rest of the time was occupied by Lindley M Hoag – he is a young man & needs to be very careful of his Stepping along – there was also a prayer by a young woman not recommended by the Select Meeting – Dined at Joseph Tillinghast & occupied the rest of the time in calling on some of the old Schollars with whom I was acquainted when at the School

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 December 4, Sunday: The manifesto for the Democratic Society in Poland was published. It called for an independent, democratic republic.

Daniel Read died in New Haven, Connecticut at the age of 79.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 4th of 12M / Our Meetings both forenoon & Afternoon were remarkably solid & rather solemn opportunities – Father Rodman was engaged in short testimonies in each. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 December 11, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 11th of 12 M / Our Meetings today were solid & I thought lively seasons – the Weather was pleasant & they were larger than usual

It would seem as if we were not left but that we are still owned by the head of the Church, Christ Jesus, who Still deigns to be with is in our assemblies – tho' very often poverty & a sense of lowness prevails –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 December 14, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 14th of 12 M / In taking a little survey of the present state of our Society & of my past life, as I was sitting after breakfast this Morning It seemed to me that in consequence of some sad & appalling departures from the principles of Quakerism

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

*particularly E B, that great hurt might arise & many fair luminaries be Swept away - yet I have some faith the true Seed will remain & come up with greenness & shoot fourth with vigor in many places to the honor of God & the Glory of his Name
I have been afresh thankful that my mind has been preserved from following after every new light & fire that has been kindled up, but that I have been favoured to wait & see what it was to what it directed*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 15, Thursday: In a benefit for the actor Frederic Lemaitre at the Theatre des Varietes, Harriet Smithson played Ophelia in the mad scene from Hamlet. It was her final performance before a paying audience.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 15th of 12th M 1836 / Our Meeting was nearly silent & a pretty solid good time. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 17, Saturday: An advertisement appeared, that was signed by the Reverend Joseph W. Cross as the secretary of the Middlesex County Anti-Slavery Society. (Does anyone have information about him?)

MIDDLESEX CO. ANTI-SLAVERY SOCIETY.

THE Middlesex County Anti-Slavery Society will hold its annual Meeting, the 4th Tuesday of January (24th) in the Rev. Dr. Ripley's Meeting-house in Concord. The Society will meet for business at Wesson's Hotel at 11 o'clock A.M. Public services in the meeting-house at 2 and at 6 o'clock, P.M. Abolitionists generally, and friends of the cause in the County are particularly and respectfully invited to attend. Local Societies will please send large delegations.

J.W. CROSS, Sec'y.
Dec. 17, 1836.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 17th of 12th M / This evening had two good letters one from John & one from Saml B Tobey - I was comforted in them both

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 18, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 18th of 12th M / Our Morning meeting was a pretty good one & tho' Fathers services were not clear thro' what I would

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

have wished they might have been, Yet it did not Seem to me much if any burt was done, & I rather thought some good may be the result. –

In the Afternoon, Father was engaged to pray for the conversion of infidels & the more plentiful effusion of the Holy Spirit than we have experienced for many Years past. – I thought it was a Solid meeting. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 22, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 22 of 12 M / This morning in straping my Razor to Shave it accidentally slipped & took off the tip of my little finger, it bleed so much & was so painful that I did not go to Meeting. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Bronson Alcott self-published, through James Munroe and Company of Boston, the 1st volume of CONVERSATIONS WITH CHILDREN ON THE GOSPEL (264 pages). This, and the 2nd volume (Boston MA:

CONVERSATIONS, VOL. I

Russell, Shattuck and Company, February 1837, 198 pages), would cost the author $741.⁰⁰ he did not have,

CONVERSATIONS, VOL. II

and buy him an incredible amount of trouble. These conversations had been transcribed by Elizabeth Palmer Peabody. However, the original title page, which in accordance with the convention of the time did not list the name of the author, was preceded by a page that read

CONVERSATIONS WITH CHILDREN ON THE GOSPELS CONDUCTED AND EDITED BY A. BRONSON ALCOTT

rather than “transcribed by Elizabeth Peabody,” and evidently resulted from the desire of others who had been involved in the generation of this material that they not be implicated in the folly of its dissemination. Elizabeth Peabody and the new teacher at the school, Margaret Fuller, could see what was coming — the self-convicted supersalesman and self-convinced enthusiast could not. Abba Alcott the faithful wife could not help but sympathize with her husband rather than with the helper who wanted no share of the repercussions: in the family record, she altered the name of her third child from Elizabeth Peabody Alcott to Elizabeth Sewall Alcott.

MR. ALCOTT. Do you think these conversations are of any use to you?

CHARLES. Yes; they teach us a great deal.

MR. ALCOTT. What do they teach you?

GEORGE K. To know ourselves.

...

HDT

WHAT?

INDEX

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

Go To MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

MR. ALCOTT. Now, does your spirit differ in any sense from God's spirit? Each may answer.

CHARLES. (10-12 years old). God made our spirits.

MR. ALCOTT. They differ from His then in being derived?

GEORGE K. (7-10). They are not so good.

WILLIAM B. (10-12). They have not so much power.

AUGUSTINE (7-10). I don't think our spirit does differ much.

CHARLES. God is spirit, we are spirit and body.

JOSIAH (5 years old). He differs from us, as a king's body differs from ours. A king's body is arrayed with more goodness than ours.

EDWARD B. (10-12) God's spirit is a million times larger than ours, and comes out of him as the drops of the ocean.

MR. ALCOTT. Jesus said he was the son - the child of God.

Are we also God's sons?

WILLIAM B. Oh! before I was born - I think I was a part of God himself.

MANY OTHERS. So do I.

MR. ALCOTT Who thinks his own spirit is the child of God?

(All held up hands).

Now, is God your Father in the same sense that he is the Father of Jesus? (Most held up hands).

MR. ALCOTT. Does Father and Son mean God and Jesus?

CHARLES. No; it means God and any man.

MR. ALCOTT. Do you think that were you to use all that is in your spirit, you might also be prophets?

SEVERAL. If we had faith enough.

WILLIAM B. If we had love enough.

CHARLES. A prophet first has a little love, and that gives the impulse to more, and so on, until he becomes so full of love, he knows everything.

MR. ALCOTT. Why did the angel say to Mary,

"The Lord is with thee"?

GEORGE K. I don't know. The Lord is always with us.

ARNOLD (?). The Lord is with us when we are good.

AUGUSTINE. The Lord is with us when we are bad, or we could not live.

ELLEN (10-12). [mentions Judgment Day]

MR. ALCOTT. What do you mean by Judgment Day?

ELLEN. The last day, the day when the world is to be destroyed.

CHARLES. The day of Judgment is not any more at the end of the world than now.

It is the Judgment of conscience at every moment.

MR. ALCOTT Where did Jesus get his knowledge?

MARTHA (7-10) He went into his own soul.

AUGUSTINE. Heaven is in our spirits - in God.

It is in no particular place. It is not material.

It is wherever people are good.

CHARLES. Heaven is everywhere - Eternity. It stops where there is anything bad.

It means peace and love. High and white are emblems of it.

ANDREW (7-10). Heaven is like a cloud, and God and Jesus and the

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

angels sit on it.

MR. ALCOTT Where is it?

ANDREW Everywhere. Every person that is good,
God looks at and takes care of.

FREDERIC (10-12). Wherever there is good.

SAMUEL R. (10-12) But in no place.

FRANKLIN (10-12). Heaven is the spirit's truth and goodness.
It is in everybody; but mostly in the good.

MR. ALCOTT. Can you say to yourself, I can remove this mountain?

[Now comes an astonishing rhapsody by the five-year-old Josiah Quincy.]

JOSIAH (bursts out). Yes, Mr. Alcott! I do not mean that with my body can lift up a mountain - with my hand; but I can feel; and I know that my conscience is greater than the mountain, for it can feel and do; and the mountain cannot. There is the mountain, there! It was made, and that is all. But my conscience can grow. It is the same kind of spirit as made the mountain be, in the first place. I do not know what it may be and do. The body is a mountain, and the spirit says, be moved, it is moved into another place. Mr. Alcott, we think too much about clay. We should think of spirit. I think we should love spirit, not clay. I should think a mother now would love her baby's spirit; and suppose it should die, that is only the spirit bursting away out of the body. It is alive; it is perfectly happy; I really do not know why people mourn when their friends die. I should think it would be a matter of rejoicing. For instance, now, if we should go into the street and find a box, an old dusty box, and should put into it some very fine pearls, and bye and bye the box should grow old and break, why, we should not even think about the box; but if the pearls were safe, we should think of them and nothing else. So it is with the soul and body. I cannot see why people mourn for bodies.

MR. ALCOTT. Yes, Josiah; that is all true, and we are glad to hear it. Shall someone else now speak beside you? [But Josiah's eloquence is like a mighty river; its momentum is such that he can barely restrain himself, and he is quiet only on condition.]

JOSIAH. Oh, Mr. Alcott! then I will stay in at recess and talk.

December 25, Sunday: The throne of Austria was placed in regency of a Ministers of State Conference because of the mental illness of Emperor Ferdinand I.

At a dinner to honor Mikhail Ivanovich Glinka, Alyeksandr Pushkin improvised a stanza on the honoree. Glinka later set it and others performed this evening to music.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 25 of 12th M 1836 / This is the last first day in the year & what is called Christmas Day. - It appears to me to celebrate the Birth of our Blessed Saviour as some are doing, in rich feasting, gaudily dressing up their Meeting houses to please the eye &c is not a consistent course - The Religion which

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

Go To MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Jesus Christ came to introduce, was plain simple & to the heart -he was born in a Manger & the whole course which he persued while walking with us in the flesh, was in simplicity & deep humility & so far as it fails to produce this effect in the hearts of its followers in this day when he walks with us in spirit & is known & felt by the true believer, so far it fails to be of that saving benefit which it was intended to bestow in mankind -in thus celebrating this day we seek the living among the Dead Christ is not there but risin in Glory with the Father & all who seek him from external & perverted sources will seek in vain - by his Spirit he still visits the mind, & in those who receive him in the way of his coming, he will reveal himself with an Saving & everlasting Salvation

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 29, Thursday: Johann Baptist Schenk died in Vienna at the age of 83.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 29th of 12 M / Rode in the Stage to Portsmouth to attend Out Moy [Monthly] Meeting Thos Nichols & Job Sherman were with me -The first meeting was silent & the buisness in the last was mostly refered. - After Meeting Thos. Nichols & I walked homeward, & Henry & Thos Gould took Thos into their carriage & D Buffum Brot me as far as John Mitchells & I walked the rest of the Distance to Town & feel comfortable this evening

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 30, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*6th day 30 of 12 M 1836 / I am this day 55 Years Old - The day has passed with no remarkable incident - it has not been observed or even mentioned in the family, but it has frequently passed my mind with a degree of seriousness
I feel thankful for past favours & mercies, of which I have enjoyed & been blessed with many & now when I feel myself on the down Hill of time & perhaps not far from the bottom, am still favourd with health so as to be free from most of the Achs & pains incident to declining Years & withall at present in a comfortable way of living & should no accident occur have a prospect of a sufficiency to carry me on for Some years to come, even if my sources of income should considerably fail. - under these considerations, my heart is often fraught with gratitude to HIM, the giver of all blessings both spiritual & temporal & may I render unto HIM the humble tribute of thanksgiving & praise, with increased devotion in his Cause*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 31, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

7th day 31 of 12 M 1836 / In closing the year I can but afresh commemorate the goodness of God for all his Blessings bestowed on me –

This has been a Year remarkable in my life – a number of very interesting Friends & acquaintances have been removed by death & no one more beloved than my dear friend Moses Brown whose memory I shall continue to love & revere having enjoyed a long & intimate personal acquaintance with him as well as an interesting correspondence

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

“NARRATIVE HISTORY” IS FABULATION, HISTORY IS CHRONOLOGY

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1837

 January 1, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal about a sad state of religion division and falling away among the English Quakers:

1st day 1st of 1st M 1837 / Good silent Meetings to begin the Year with — Times rolls on & new things we see. — My mind has been solemnized under the consideration of passing events - Today I have recd letters from England which mention Sad defection which exists there among Members of our society Some who have stood & shone as Stars of the first Magnitude have fallen & become enemies to the Truth as preached by G Fox & others of his day⁴²⁴

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 January 5, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 5th of 1st M / A solid Meeting - Father was there & had a few words to offer. - Since the above date I have recd another Letter from my kind & very attentive correspondent Thos Thompson of Liverpool, by which it appears troubles continue in Society, & that Elisha Bates once beloved & respected as a useful writer & very considerable Minister has become an Apostate to Quaker faith & Doctrine, having while in England been Baptized or Sprinkled with Water & written Several Wicked pamphlets & the one which he calls "An appeal to the Society" I consider the Most foul, as in that he has held up the leadings & teaching of Christ within & G Fox & our Early friends to derision & ridicule. [see p. 198, vol XI, 7th day 19th of 11 M 1836]

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 January 8, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 8th of 1st M 1837 / Father was at Meeting & engaged in testimony forenoon & Afternoon & it seemed to me his communication in the Afternoon was unusually lively & pertinent - Meetings were solid & I thought favourd -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

424. Stephen Wanton Gould Diary, 1836-1838: The Gould family papers are stored under control number 2033 at the Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections of Cornell University Library, Box 9 Folder 16: September 1, 1836-September 20, 1838; also on microfilm, see Series 7

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

January 12, Thursday: David Henry Thoreau again checked out, from Harvard Library, a volume he had checked out in 1833, Ross Cox's ADVENTURES ON THE COLUMBIA RIVER, INCLUDING THE NARRATIVE OF A RESIDENCE OF SIX YEARS ON THE WESTERN SIDE OF THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS, AMONG VARIOUS TRIBES OF INDIANS HITHERTO UNKNOWN: TOGETHER WITH A JOURNEY ACROSS THE AMERICAN CONTINENT (New-York: J. & J. Harper, 1832).

TRAVELS OF ROSS COX

"There is no Frigate like a Book
To take us Lands away"
— Emily Dickinson

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 12 of 1st M / Silent meeting, solid & good Recd a parcell from my kind friend Thomas Thompson of Liverpool.-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 15, Sunday: David Henry Thoreau's Harvard College essay on assignment "All Men Are Mad."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 15th of 1 M / Good Solid silent Meetings
This evening Israel Buffinton & Thomas Gifford of Fall River with Thos B. Gould & Thomas P Nichols called & set with Walter Nichols also called a little while which made a very pleasant & interesting circle of young Men, with their company we were grateful & comforted. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 18, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*4th day 18th of 1 M / My wife & I rode to Portsmouth to attend the Select Meeting. Elizabeth Wing & Hannah Dennis were engaged in testimony -
In our Select Meeting E Wing bore a very acceptable testimony -
It was a season of favour - but after all to me individually it was rather a hard time. - We dined at cousin Shadrach Chases & rode home - The day was cold but the riding was as good & the day as pleasant (excepting the cold) as it could be in summer time-
This Morning Mary Easton daughter of James Easton decd. was found dead in her bed She had long been deranged & wasting away.-*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 19: Austin Steward began his journey back with his family from the black settlement of Wilberforce in Canada to Rochester, New York.

Having closed my business in Wilberforce, I prepared to leave on the expiration of my term of office as township clerk, which was now near at hand. Notwithstanding, I ever felt a sensation of relief and pleasure, when I thought of returning to my old home and friends in the States, yet as often as I look abroad over the settlement and remember all my glowing hopes, - all my delightful anticipations of a prosperous future for those poor, struggling colonists; when I recollected with what zeal and honest purpose, with what sincerity and sacrifice I had prosecuted my labor among them, - a dark shadow of disappointment would flit across my mind, however welcome it might be. That I had firm and tried friends in the colony, I had never the least reason to doubt, not to suppose their number

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

less after a five years residence with them; but our expectations had not been realized. Our hope of settling a township, to be represented in Parliament by one of our own people, was now forever blasted. I remembered too, that many of the colonists had been unjustly incited against my course; but in the retrospect my heart did not condemn me. Errors many, no doubt I had committed; but I was grateful, when reviewing the whole ground, for a conscience void of offence toward God and man; and I finally took my leave of all, craving the choicest blessings of Heaven to rest upon that infant colony and its interests.

On the nineteenth day of January, 1837, I left Wilberforce, passing through Brantford, Hamilton, Queenston, Lewiston, and from thence to Rochester. During my journey, I could not avoid feeling sad and despondent, as my mind incessantly returned to the review of my mission, upon which I could look with no other decision than that of an entire failure. I had spent my time, wasted my substance for naught, and was now returning to my dependant family, - that, with myself, had been stripped of nearly every means of comfort and support.

What would my Rochester friends think of my conduct? Notwithstanding all my despondency and evil foreboding at that time, I am now well satisfied that my labor was not all in vain, but that some good did result from it.

As I drew near the city, a gloom like thick darkness overshadowed me: I thought of the unfavorable transactions which had occurred between the directors of the colony and my friends in Rochester, and fell to wondering how they would receive me.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 19th of 1 M 1837 [error] / Our Meeting was pretty well attended & Father had a few words to deliver at the close - In that which followed (Preparative) Geo. Carr of Connanicut appeared & requested to be received into membership - which was referd to a committee for consideration & examination. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 20: David Henry Thoreau's Harvard College essay on assignment "Point out particulars in the speeches of Moloch & the rest [in PARADISE LOST, II] which appear to you characteristic."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 20th of 1 M 1837 / Attended the funeral of Mary Easton who was a Member of Society & died at her brother in laws E P Faisneau - She was a poor helpless woman subject for many years of her life to Fits & had but little sense. her release I hope is comfortable to herself as it must be to her friends - She was 69 Years old lacking about a Month & was the last of James Eastons family that stands as a member, who lives in Newport. -

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

*At the funeral Father had a few words to deliver very satisfactory & I thought seasonable & savory
This evening I attended to a Lecture delivered by [-] Walker on the first peopling of this country – he considered the Indians were from the Tartar race & not Jews.
We met at his house & only a few were invited of his acquaintance & friends - he evinced much research & learning in his discourse, but after all most of his positions rested very much on speculation & every thing must rest regarding time so long past & where there is no direct written record. –*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 22, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 22nd of 1st M 1837 / This day Stormy & Meetings small & silent but pretty good seasons

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 26, Thursday: Michigan became the 26th state.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 26th of 1 M / Our Moy [Monthly] Meeting in Town was attended by as many as 12 or 13 who were not Members & several who I never saw at our Meeting before - There was but little preaching, but it was a time of some favour. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 29, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 29 of 1st M / This morning I went in the Steam Boat to Providence & arrived there about 1 / 2 past 11 OC too late to attend meeting & went immediately to the School House where I attended Meeting in the Afternoon - The Meeting seemed natural & I thought was favoured with a good degree of solemnity – I found many old scholars that I knew were glad to see me & I them Staid the night –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 30, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day went into Town & spent the day in attending to some buisness & visiting some of my old acquaintance Dined at Dr Tobey's & returned to the School House to lodge –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

David Henry Thoreau checked out, from Harvard Library, Volume 5 of the New Series of The Gentleman's Magazine, dealing with that magazine's 1836 content.⁴²⁵

THE GENTLEMAN'S MAG.

- [iii]-iv. S.: "Preface." the Reverend John Mitford [Originator: "Sylvanus Urban"]
- pages 2. S.: Note re Robert Montgomery Martin's History of the British Colonies. Thomas Fisher
- pages 2. L.: Remarks re the Abbé de la Rue. Thomas Wright [Originator: "Gaulois"]
- pages 2. L.: Genealogical note on Sacheverell family. Charles Edward Long [Originator: "L."]
- pages 3-10. Review: Thomas Frognall Dibdin's Reminiscences of a Literary Life. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 10-13. Article: "Diary of a Lover of Literature [by Thomas Green; abridged by Mitford (cont.).]" the Reverend John Mitford
- pages 14-15. Article: "Royal Porcelain Works, Worcester." Martin Barr [Originator: "B."]
- pages 15-16. Article: "St. Olave's Grammar School, Southwark." George Richard Corner [Originator: "G.R.C."]
- pages 16. Article: "Quaestiones Venusinae.—No. VII [conc.]" the Reverend James Tate [Originator: "The Author of Horatius Restitutus"]
- pages 17-27. Article: "Records of the Exchequer." John Bruce
- pages 32. L.: "Our Lord's Miracles on the Maimed." Dr. Samuel Merriman the Younger [Originator: "Ilaranthropos" {in Greek}]
- pages 33-36. Article: "St. Stephen's Chapel, Westminster." John Gough Nichols [Originator: "J.G.N."]
- pages 36-43. Article: "Scandinavia and the British Isles." Nicholas Carlisle
- pages 49-51. Review: James Davidson's The History of Axminster Church. John Gough Nichols
- pages 51-52. Review: William Caveller's Select Specimens of Gothic Architecture. Edward John Carlos
- pages 52-53. Review: Samuel Tymms's The Family Topographer, vol. 5. Edward John Carlos
- pages 53-55. Review: Spiritual Despotism. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 55-57. Review: A. James Augustus St. John's Egypt and Mohammed Ali. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 57-58. Review: Harry Chester's The Lay of the Lady Ellen. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 58-59. Review: England and Russia; A Statement of Facts. By a Resident at Constantinople; Edward Stirling's Some Considerations on the Political State of the intermediate Country between Persia and India. Thomas Fisher
- pages 59-60. Review: Annual Reports of the American Anti-Slavery Society; Anti-Slavery Record; Société Française pour l'Abolition de l'Esclavage. Thomas Fisher
- pages 60. Review: The British and Foreign Temperance Advocate, vol. 2; The British and Foreign Temperance Herald, vol. 4. Thomas Fisher
- pages 60-64. Review: John Holland's Cruciana. Illustrations of the most striking aspects under which the Cross of Christ, and symbols derived from it, have been contemplated by Piety, Superstition, Imagination, and Taste. John Gough Nichols
- pages 64-67. Review: First Annual Report of the Poor Law Commissioners for England and Wales. Thomas Fisher [Originator: "T.F."]
- pages 68. Review: E. Churton's Oriental Annual for 1836. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 68. Review: Mrs. Alaric Watts's The New Year's Gift and Juvenile Souvenir. The Reverend John Mitford

425. We really have no idea why Thoreau checked this out, but I will note in passing that the volume does contain information pertaining to the town of Saffron Walden in England.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

- pages 69. Review: Jennings's Landscape Annual for 1836 (text by Thomas Roscoe and drawings by David Roberts). The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 69. Review: Smith and Elder's Friendship's Offering and Winter's Wreath for 1836. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 69. Review: William Darton's The New Year's Token for 1836. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 69-70. Review: P. Fisher [William Andrew Chatto]'s The Angler's Souvenir. The Reverend John Mitford

THE ANGLER'S SOUVENIR

- pages 70. Review: Frederick Shoberl's The Forget Me Not. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 70-71. Review: The Christian Keepsake, and Missionary Annual (ed. William Ellis). The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 71. Review: The Cabinet of Modern Art, and Literary Souvenir (ed. Alaric Alexander Watts). The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 71. Review: Fisher's Drawing-room Scrap-Book, 1836. With Poetical Illustrations by L.E.L. [Letitia Elizabeth Landon]. John Gough Nichols
- pages 71-72. Review: Flowers of Loveliness. John Gough Nichols
- pages 72. Review: Tilt's Comic Almanac for 1836. John Gough Nichols
- pages 72. Review: William Beattie's Scotland. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 72. Review: C.R. Bond's Truth's Triumph, a poem on the Reformation. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 72. Review: John Graham's A Vision of fair Spirits. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 77-78. S.: "Catalogue of the 11th Part of Mr. [Richard] Heber's Library (Manuscripts)." the Reverend John Mitford
- pages 80-82. S.: "Society of Antiquaries." John Gough Nichols
- pages 87-88. Obituary: Henry Charles Somerset, 6th Duke of Beaufort. John Gough Nichols
- pages 88-90. Obituary: Lord Robert Manners. John Gough Nichols
- pages 90-91. Obituary: Sir Thomas Elmsley Croft. Sir Nicholas Harris Nicolas
- pages 93-94. Obituary: The Reverend Luke Booker. The Reverend — Booker, son of the Reverend Luke Booker
- pages 94-98. Obituary: James Hogg, the Ettrick Shepherd. W.B. Morgan
- pages 99. Obituary: Charles Perkins Gwilt. Joseph Gwilt
- pages 100. Obituary: Letitia Matilda Hawkins. — Hawkins, brother of deceased
- pages 106. S.: Remarks on the inscription "IHS." John Gough Nichols
- pages 106. L.: Query re parish registers. John Southerden Burn [Originator: "J.S.B."]
- pages 106. S.: Note on the unicorn emblem. Henry Gwyn
- pages 107-118. Article: Thomas Frognall Dibdin's Reminiscences of a Literary Life (cont.). The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 121-125. Review: "State of the Church Missionaries in the East India Josiah Pratt's Sermon preached in the Chapel of Lambeth Palace... at the Consecration of the Right the Reverend Daniel Corrie, LL.D. Lord Bishop of Madras; Alexander Duff's The Church of Scotland's [India Mission]." Thomas Fisher [Originator: "T.F."]
- pages 129-132. Review: William Thomas Brande's Characters of Philosophers. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 132-135. L.: "On the Migration of Birds." the Reverend John Mitford [Originator: "J.M."]
- pages 135-137. L.: "Londiniana, No. III [Roman Antiquities in Eastcheap and Newgate-street]." Alfred John Kempe [Originator: "A.J.K."]

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

- pages 137-144. Article: "Grammar School of St. Olave's Southwark [cont.]." George Richard Corner [Originator: "G.R.C."]
- pages 146-147. L.: "Mr. [Charles] Richardson's Dictionary." the Reverend Joseph Hunter [Originator: "A Correspondent"]
- pages 147-154. Article: "Account of Theobalds Palace, Herts." John Gough Nichols [Originator: "J.G.N."]
- pages 154-157. V.: "The Ipswich Ball, described in a Letter from Miss Julia Mandeville, at Ipswich, to her Mother the Hon. Mrs. Mandeville, at Roehampton." the Reverend John Mitford [Originator: "J. Mandeville"]
- pages 157-160. Review: Joseph Beaumont's Original Poems in English and Latin. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 161-164. Review: Matthew Gregory Lewis's Journal of a West India Proprietor. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 164-165. Review: William Carus Wilson's Helps to the Building of Churches and Parsonage-houses. Edward John Carlos
- pages 165-167. Review: Joseph Mendham's The Life and Pontificate of St. Pius V. The Reverend Joseph Mendham (reviewing his own work)
- pages 167-168. Review: William Rae Wilson's Records of a Route through France and Italy. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 168-169. Review: The Prometheus of Aeschylus, and the Electra of Sophocles (trans. George Croker Fox). The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 169-171. Review: William Dansey's Horae Decanicae Rurales. John Bruce
- pages 172-173. Review: The Architectural Magazine (ed. John Claudius Loudon), vol. 2, nos. 18-22. Edward John Carlos
- pages 173-174. Review: Samuel Thomas Bloomfield's The Greek Testament (2nd ed.). Thomas Hartwell Horne
- pages 174-180. Review: William Phelps's The History and Antiquities of Somersetshire. Alfred John Kempe
- pages 180-181. Review: William Lisle Bowles's Scenes and Shadows of Days departed. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 181. Review: Joshua Wilson's An historical Inquiry concerning the Principles, Opinions, and Usages of the English Presbyterians. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 182. Review: Child's History of Women. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 182. Review: J. G. Seymer's The Romance of Ancient Egypt. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 182-183. Review: Chart of Britannia Romana. Alfred John Kempe
- pages 183. Review: An Introduction to the Study of Birds. John Britton
- pages 183. Review: Anne Rodwell's The Juvenile Pianist. Mary Anne Iliffe Nichols
- pages 183. Review: The Sentiment of Flowers. Mary Anne Iliffe Nichols
- pages 183. Review: A Voyage of Discovery. Mary Anne Iliffe Nichols
- pages 184. Review: Thomas Kibble Hervey's The Book of Christmas. John Gough Nichols
- pages 184-185. Review: The Clerical Guide, and Ecclesiastical Directory. John Gough Nichols
- pages 185. Review: Harmony of the Gospels. John Gough Nichols
- pages 185. Review: The Four Gospels, arranged in a Series of Tabular Parallels. John Gough Nichols
- pages 185. Review: The Companion to the Almanac. John Gough Nichols
- pages 185. Review: Samuel Butler's A Sketch of Ancient and Modern Geography. Mary Anne Iliffe Nichols

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

- pages 185. Review: Jane Kinderley Stanford's A Lady's Gift, or Woman as she ought to be. Mary Anne Iliffe Nichols
- pages 185-186. S.: "The Lawrence Gallery." W. B. Morgan
- pages 187. S.: "St. George's Church, Shrewsbury." Henry Pidgeon
- pages 187. Review: Richard Westall and John Martin. Illustrations to the BIBLE. John Gough Nichols
- pages 187-188. Review: Thomas Roscoe's Wanderings through North Wales, pts. 5-10. John Gough Nichols
- pages 188. Review: Clarkson Stanfield's Coast Scenery, pts. 3-6. John Gough Nichols
- pages 188. Review: William Finden's Byron Beauties. Mary Anne Iliffe Nichols
- pages 193-194. S.: "Society of Antiquaries." John Gough Nichols
- pages 200. Obituary: Mary Amelia, Marchioness of Salisbury. John Gough Nichols
- pages 200-201. Obituary: William Humble Ward, 10th Lord Ward. John Gough Nichols
- pages 201. Obituary: George Charles Venables Vernon, 4th Lord Vernon. John Gough Nichols
- pages 201. Obituary: Lieut.-Gen. Thomas Mahon, 2nd Lord Hartland. John Gough Nichols
- pages 201-202. Obituary: John Crewe, 2nd Lord Crewe. John Gough Nichols
- pages 202. Obituary: Charles Robert Lindsay. Thomas Fisher
- pages 202. Obituary: Major-Gen. George Prole (partially using text of a printed obituary). Thomas Fisher
- pages 202-203. Obituary: Colonel Sweney Toone. Thomas Fisher
- pages 203. Obituary: Col. Thomas Duer Broughten (partially using text of Athenaeum obituary). Thomas Fisher
- pages 204-205. Obituary: Major David Price. Thomas Fisher
- pages 207. Obituary: Thomas Brooke. Thomas Fisher
- pages 207. Obituary: William Fraser. Thomas Fisher
- pages 218. L.: Query re the location of drawings by Cowper. The Reverend George Cornelius Gorham [Originator: "G.C.G."]
- pages 218. S.: Editorial response to query by "C.H." re the Anglo-Saxon oath. John Bruce
- pages 218. L.: Query re genealogical information on Chaplin family. Henry Gwyn [Originator: "H.G."]
- pages 219-228. Review: Nathaniel Parker Willis's Pencillings by the Way. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 228-237. Article: "New Record Commission. No. IV [the Chancellor's Roll of 3 John]." John Bruce
- pages 237-240. Article: "The Gate-House, Westminster." John Gough Nichols [Originator: "J.G.N."]
- pages 242-244. Article: "Letter of the late S.T. Coleridge [to Marten; dated 1794; printed with no editorial comment]." the Reverend William Lisle Bowles [the transmitter of the letter]
- pages 245. Article: "Portrait of Dr. [Samuel] Parr presented to Harrow School." Dr. John Johnstone
- pages 254. L.: "Wace's Roll of the Norman Chiefs." Edgar Taylor [Originator: "T.P.B."]
- 254n. S.: Note on Wace's Roll of the Norman chiefs. John Gough Nichols [Originator: "Edit."]
- pages 256-259. Article: "Church of St. Bene't Fink, London." Henry Gwyn [Originator: "H.G."]
- pages 261-264. L.: "Letters of John George Graevius." John Holmes [Originator: "J.H."]
- pages 265-271. Review: Andrew Ure's Philosophy of Manufactures. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 271-272. Review: Memorials of Oxford (ed. James Ingram), nos. 33-38. Edward John Carlos
- pages 273-275. Review: John Innes's Letter to Lord Glenelg... on the working of the new system in the British West India Colonies. Thomas Fisher [Originator: "T.F."]

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

- pages 275-279. Review: Report of the Select Committee on Agriculture and Report of Proceedings of the Agricultural Meetings in London. Samuel Solly
- pages 279-280. Review: The World, a Poem. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 280-281. Review: Edward Moxon's Sonnets, pt. 2. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 282-286. Review: John Greenwood's A Picturesque Tour to Thornton Monastery. John Gough Nichols
- pages 286-287. Review: James Holman's Voyage around the World. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 287. Review: Deacon's Analysis of the Parliamentary Proceedings of the Session 1835. John Gough Nichols
- pages 288. S.: "St. Saviour's Church, Southwark." Alfred John Kempe
- pages 289. Review: Landscape-Historical Illustrations of Scotland, and the Waverley Novels, from drawings by J.M.W. Turner. John Gough Nichols
- pages 289. Review: William Finden's Portrait and Landscape Illustrations of Lord Byron's Life and Works [by Thomas Moore]. John Gough Nichols
- pages 289. Review: Charles John Smith's Facsimiles of Historical and Literary Curiosities. John Gough Nichols
- pages 289. Review: J. Sainsbury's Thirty Fac-similes of the different Signatures of the Emperor Napoleon. John Gough Nichols
- pages 293-296. S.: "Society of Antiquaries." John Gough Nichols
- pages 306. Obituary: Henry Hood, 2nd Viscount Hood. John Gough Nichols
- pages 306. Obituary: William Gustavus Frederick, Count Bentinck Rhoon. John Gough Nichols
- pages 306-307. Obituary: Col. William John Gore. John Gough Nichols
- pages 310-312. Obituary: The Reverend Edward Burton (text from Oxford Herald). Dr. Philip Bliss [?]
- pages 312. Obituary: Sir Henry Philip Hoghton. John Gough Nichols
- pages 312-313. Obituary: Sir George Cornewall. John Gough Nichols
- pages 313. Obituary: Sir John Ely Parker. John Gough Nichols
- pages 313-314. Obituary: Sir John Kennaway (based on obituary in Exeter newspaper). John Gough Nichols
- pages 314. Obituary: Sir Thomas Harvie Farquhar. John Gough Nichols
- pages 314. Obituary: Sir William Henry Cooper. John Gough Nichols
- pages 314. Obituary: Capt. Sir James Dunbar. John Gough Nichols
- pages 314-315. Obituary: Sir Robert Dundas. John Gough Nichols
- pages 315. Obituary: Lt.-Gen. Sir John Hamilton. John Gough Nichols
- pages 321-322. Obituary: John Phillips. The Reverend James Ingram
- pages 323-324. Obituary: Hugh Leycester. John Gough Nichols
- pages 324. Obituary: Jabez Henry. John Gough Nichols
- pages 324-326. Obituary: Thomas Walker. W. B. Morgan
- pages 326. Obituary: Henry Humphrey Goodhall. Thomas Fisher
- pages 327. Obituary: Robert Bickerstaff. John Bowyer Nichols
- pages 327-328. Obituary: Robert Davies. Henry Pidgeon
- pages 338. L.: Note re a work in progress by James Boaden re the Theatres Royal of England. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 338. L.: Note on errata in his recent article. Edgar Taylor [Originator: "T.P.B."]
- pages 339-350. Article: "Notes to Boswell's Life of Dr. Johnson, Vol. II [cont.]." the Reverend John Mitford
- pages 358-361. Article: "Memoir of Richard Pearson, M.D." the Reverend Richard Pearson

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

- pages 361-365. Review: John Claudius Loudon's Arboretum Britannicum, nos. 8-14. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 369. Article: "Reliquary at Shipley, Sussex." John Gough Nichols
- pages 369-372. Article: "Londiniana, No. IV." Alfred John Kempe [Originator: "A.J.K."]
- pages 376-377. L.: "Families of Nicoll and Hedges." Charles Edward Long [Originator: "I."]
- pages 377-378. L.: "Putney Church and Bishop West's Chapel." Edward John Carlos [Originator: "E.I.C."]
- pages 385-394. Review: George Henry Law, Bishop of Bath and Wells, Remarks on the present Distresses of the Poor. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 394-395. Review: Debrett's Peerage (21st ed.). John Gough Nichols
- pages 395-396. Review: Japhet in Search of his Father. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 396-397. Review: James Augustus St. John's Margaret Ravenscroft. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 397-398. Review: My Aunt Pontypool. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 398-399. Review: Lady Emily Stuart Wortley's Travelling Sketches. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 399-400. Review: Robert Montgomery Martin's History of the British Colonies, vol. 4: Possessions in Africa and Austral-Asia. Thomas Fisher
- pages 401-402. Review: A Guide through the Town of Shrewsbury. John Gough Nichols
- pages 402-403. Peter Austin Nuttall's Juvenal's Satires.... Three Editions:— 1. With a Linear Verbal Translation; 2. Translated into English Verse, by W [illiam] Gifford; and 3. With a Linear Verbal Translation and Gifford's Poetical Version. Dr. Peter Austin Nuttall
- pages 403-404. Review: Memoirs of Mirabeau, vols. 3 and 4. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 404. Review: Lancelot Sharpe's Nomenclator Poeticus. The Reverend James Tate [Originator: "C.P.M."]
- pages 404-405. Review: John Hobart Caunter's Romance of History: India. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 405. Review: Henry Thomas de la Beche's How to Observe — Geology. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 405-406. Review: William Yate's Account of New Zealand. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 406. Review: George Payne Rainsford James's On the Educational Institutions of Germany. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 406. Review: Alexander Smith's The Philosophy of Morals. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 406. Review: Land and Sea Tales. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 406. Review: Mahmoud. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 406-407. Review: George Robert Gleig's The Soldier's Help to the Knowledge of Divine Truths. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 407. Review: Thoughts in the Cloister and the Crowd. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 407. Review: The Parables explained to a Child. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 407. Review: Oswald Charles Wood's The History of the Assassins. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 407. Review: Piers Edmund Butler's The Rationality of Revealed Religion. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 407. Review: Hewett Cottrell Watson's The New Botanist's Guide, vol. 1: England and Wales. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 407. Review: Alexander Negriz's Xenophontis Anabasis. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 407. Review: William Hull's The Consolations of Christianity. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 407. Review: William Edward Trenchard's Sermons. The Reverend John Mitford

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

- pages 407. Review: Leonard Jenyns [Blomefield]'s Manual of British Vertebrated Animals. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 407-408. Review: Posthumous Records of a London Clergyman (ed. John Hobart Caunter). The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 408. Review: Cerceau's Life and Times of Rienzi. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 408. Review: The Parricide. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 408. Review: Plebeians and Patricians. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 408. Review: The English Boy at the Cape. Mary Anne Iliffe Nichols
- pages 408-409. Review: John Yonge Akerman's Coins of the Romans relating to Britain. John Gough Nichols
- pages 412-413. S.: "Bibliotheca Heberiana [re Richard Heber's library]." Samuel Leigh Sotheby
- pages 414-415. S.: "Society of Antiquaries." John Gough Nichols
- pages 425. Obituary: John Perceval, 4th Earl of Egmont. John Gough Nichols
- pages 425-427. Obituary: William Van Mildert, Bishop of Durham. John Gough Nichols
- pages 427-430. Obituary: William Scott, Baron Stowell. John Gough Nichols
- pages 430-431. Obituary: Lady Frances Wright-Wilson. John Gough Nichols
- pages 433. Obituary: Sir James Colquhoun. John Gough Nichols
- pages 433. Obituary: Sir John James Scott Douglas. John Gough Nichols
- pages 433-435. Obituary: Lieut.-Gen. Sir William Inglis. John Gough Nichols
- pages 436-437. Obituary: John Gillies. The Reverend William Dealtry
- pages 437-438. Obituary: Elizabeth Kemble Whitlock (sister of Sarah Siddons). W. B. Morgan
- pages 441. Obituary: Barak Longmate the Younger. John Gough Nichols
- pages 450. L.: Re supposed MS. of Philo Byblius. William Henry Black [Originator: "W.H.B."]
- pages 451-459. Review: E. G. Wilkinson's Topography of Thebes, and General View of Egypt. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 477-481. Article: "On Norman and Early Poetry. No. I. The Romances of Tristan, and the Norman Metrical Chronicles." Thomas Wright
- pages 485. Article: "Robert Wilson, the Botanist." the Reverend John Hodgson [Originator: "V.H."]
- pages 485-488. L.: "The Celtic Language." Duncan Forbes [Originator: "Fior-Ghael"]
- pages 488. L.: "Emendations to Shakespeare." F. Wrangton [Originator: "F.W."]
- pages 489. Article: "Ancient Mansion in South Petherton, Somersetshire." John Chessell Buckler [Originator: "J.C.B."]
- pages 493-497. Article: "Mr. [Edmond] Malone's Library at Oxford." John Payne Collier
- pages 497-498. L.: "Account of Aldfield, near Ripon." John Richard Walbran [Originator: "R.d.C."]
- pages 501. V.: "The Aldine Anchor." the Reverend John Mitford
- pages 501-504. Article: "Retrospective Review. Chaucer.—No. I. Introductory." Thomas Wright
- pages 505-509. Review: Thomas Noon Talfourd's Ion, a Tragedy. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 509-511. Review: Sir Richard Colt Hoare's A History of Modern Wiltshire (cont.): William Henry Black's Hundred of South Damerham, George Matcham's Hundred of Downton, and Sir Richard Colt Hoare's Hundred of Cawden. The Reverend Joseph Hunter
- pages 511-512. Review: Joseph Mendham's Index Librorum Prohibitorum a Sixto V. The Reverend Joseph Mendham (reviewing his own work)
- pages 512-513. Review: "Biographies of the House of Commons [Random Recollections of the House of Commons, from the year 1830 to the close of 1835; The Parliamentary Pocket Companion for 1836; Richard B. Mosse's The Parliamentary Guide; The Parliamentary Test Book for 1835; Richard [?] Gooch's Parliamentary Pledge Book; Richard [?] Gooch's Parliamentary

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

- Vote-Book, 1836; The Assembled Commons, 1836; Thomas Brittain Vacher's Parliamentary Companion for 1836].” John Gough Nichols
- pages 514-515. Review: John MacGregor's My Note Book. The Reverend — [William Langstaff (?)] Weddall
 - pages 515-518. Review: William Wallen's History and Antiquities of the Round Church at Little Maplestead, Essex. Edward John Carlos
 - pages 518-519. Review: John Stockdale Hardy's An Attempt to appropriate a Monument... to the memory of Mary de Bohun, Countess of Derby. John Gough Nichols
 - pages 519-520. Review: Anna Eliza Bray's A Description of that part of Devonshire lying between the Tamar and the Tavy, in a series of Letters to R [obert] Southey. The Reverend John Mitford [Originator: “Syl. Urban”]
 - pages 521. Review: Henry Sewell Stokes's Vale of Lanherne. The Reverend John Mitford
 - pages 521. Review: [Henry?] Colman's Views in Normandy, Picardy, &c., pt. 2. John Gough Nichols
 - pages 521. Review: Eupaedia: or Letters to a Mother on the watchful care of her infant. Eliza Baker Nichols
 - pages 521-522. Review: A Turbulent Spirit unreasonable, wicked, and dangerous; What is the use of these Friendly Societies?; Pray, which is the way to the Savings' Bank; The nature and design of the New Poor Laws explained; The Neglect and Profanation of the Sabbath, their own Punishment. Thomas Hartwell Horne
 - pages 522. Review: Life of Talleyrand, vol. 3. The Reverend John Mitford
 - pages 522. Review: William Jowett's The Christian Visitor. The Reverend John Mitford
 - pages 522. Review: Caroline Bowles's Summer Visits to Cottages in a Country Village. The Reverend John Mitford
 - pages 522. Review: John Edward Nassau Molesworth's The Penny Sunday Reader. John Gough Nichols
 - pages 522. Review: Graphic Illustrations of the Life and Times of Samuel Johnson. John Gough Nichols
 - pages 522. Review: C. Knight's The Pictorial Bible. John Gough Nichols
 - pages 523-527. S.: “Exhibition of Designs offered for the New Houses of Parliament.” Edward John Carlos
 - pages 528. Review: Engravings from the Works of the late Sir Thomas Lawrence, pt. 1. John Gough Nichols
 - pages 528. Review: Charles Heath's Drawing-room Portfolio. John Gough Nichols
 - pages 528. L.: Allan Cunningham's Gallery of Pictures of English and Foreign Masters. John Bowyer Nichols
 - pages 528. Review: Louisa Corboux's Studies of Heads from Nature. John Gough Nichols
 - pages 528. Review: H. Winkles and B. Winkles, Cathedrals, pts. 4-16. John Gough Nichols
 - pages 529. Review: H. Winkles and B. Winkles, Continental Cathedrals, pts. 1-4. John Gough Nichols
 - pages 534. S.: “Society of Antiquaries.” John Gough Nichols
 - pages 545-546. Obituary: Admiral John Ferrier. W. B. Morgan [?]
 - pages 553. Obituary: Henry Roscoe. J. A. Morgan
 - pages 553-555. Obituary: The Reverend Richard Valpy. Henry Prater
 - pages 555-556. Obituary: The Reverend George Rogers. The Reverend John Ford
 - pages 570. L.: Genealogical remarks and queries re the Paisley family. J. B. Gardiner [Originator: “J.B.G.”]
 - pages 570. S.: Response to “J.M.”'s comments on the inscription “IHS.” John Gough Nichols

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

- pages 570. S.: Editorial comments on a drawing (submitted by “A Constant Reader”) of a cross-bow. Alfred John Kempe
- pages 571-583. Article: “On the Antiquity of Trees, (from Professor Alphonse Louis Pierre Pyramus de Candolle,) in a Letter to Edward Jesse, Esq.” the Reverend John Mitford [Originator: “J.M.”]
- pages 594-595. L.: “Origin of ‘God save the King.’” J.R. Wilson of Newcastle-upon-Tyne [Originator: “J.R.W.”]
- pages 595-601. Review: Reginaldi Monachi Dunelmensis Libellus de Admirandis Beati Cuthberti Virtutibus quae Novellis patratae sunt Temporibus Reginald of Durham on the Miracles of St. Cuthbert (Surtees Society, vol. 1). John Bruce.
- pages 605-606. L.: “Monument at Britford, Wilts.” John Gough Nichols [Originator: “D.H.”]
- pages 611-613. Review: John Eliot’s Poems, consisting of Epistles and Epigrams, Satyrs, Epitaphs and Elegies, Songs and Sonnets, 1658. The Reverend John Mitford [Originator: “J.M.”]
- pages 614-616. Article: “On Early Norman and French Poetry. No. II. The Mysteries and Miracle Plays.” Thomas Wright
- pages 617-618. Review: Robert Southey’s The Works of Cowper. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 618-619. Review: Edward Osler’s The Life of Lord Exmouth. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 619-621. Review of volume that eventually Henry Thoreau would own: Henry Hart Milman’s NALA AND DAMAYANTI, AND OTHER POEMS, FROM THE SANSCRIT. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 621-622. Review: Edward Lytton Bulwer-Lytton’s RIENZI. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 622-626. Review: Richard Griffin Neville, 3rd Baron Braybrooke, The History of Audley End [Saffron Walden]. John Gough Nichols
- pages 626-627. Review: Thomas Maude’s The Schoolboy. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 627-628. Review: John Kaye, Bishop of Lincoln, Some account of the Life and Writings of Clement, Bishop of Alexandria. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 628-630. Review: Charles Richard Sumner, Bishop of Winchester, The Free Course of the Word. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 631-632. Review: Thomas Keightley’s The History of Rome. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 632. Review: Thucydides de Bello Peloponnesiaco (ed. Franz Joseph Goeller). The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 632. Review: Edward Johnstone’s The Life of Christ, a Manual of Elementary Religious Knowledge, intended chiefly for the Young. The Reverend John Mitford
- pages 632-633. Review: William Caveler’s Select Specimens of Gothic Architecture. Edward John Carlos
- pages 633-639. S.: “Exhibition of Designs for the New Houses of Parliament.” Edward John Carlos
- pages 639. Review: Henry Shaw’s The Encyclopedia of Ornament, no. 1. John Gough Nichols
- pages 647-648. S.: “Society of Antiquaries.” John Gough Nichols
- pages 654-655. Review: “Theatrical Register. Covent Garden.” W. B. Morgan
- pages 657-658. Obituary: Bowyer Edward Sparke, Bishop of Ely. John Gough Nichols
- pages 658-659. Obituary: Henry Ryder, Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry. John Gough Nichols
- pages 659. Obituary: Christopher Butson, Bishop of Killaloe and Clonfert. John Gough Nichols
- pages 663-664. Obituary: William Morton Pitt. John Gough Nichols
- pages 666-670. Obituary: William Godwin. W. B. Morgan
- pages 670-671. Obituary: John Bell. John Bruce and —
- page 671. Obituary: Charles Millard. Thomas Amyot

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

 January 31, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day Attended the sub-committee & spent the day at the School House & lodged there

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 February 1, Wednesday: The Reverend Barzillai Frost was ordained as a teacher and as a colleague for the Reverend Ezra Ripley in the Concord church. The prayer of consecration was offered by the Reverend Convers Francis of Watertown.

According to the recollections of young John Shepard Keyes, the Reverend Frost would be at least at first uninspiring:

[He] had been a mathematics tutor at Cambridge and ought never to have been anything else. He was a very old, dried up, cast iron conservative cold critter, that suited the old fashioned notions of some of his parishioners, and never interested any of the live young people. I began to recite to him while he lived at Dr Ripleys, and the dull gloomy Old Manse only increased his dulness and dyspesia It was almost too much for my spirits and if it had lasted much longer might have made a minister or worse of even me – But in June Mr Frost married a very rosy bright agreeable lady a Miss Stone of Framingham and they took east side of the double brick house on Main St. and began housekeeping Col Whiting had built this house a year or two before bringing the bricks in canal boats from Lowell up the river to the bottom of the lot, a feat of navigation that greatly interested us boys—also that same season 1836 the monument at the battleground had been teamed from Carlise by Mr Wilkins and set up, where it could be seen from the windows of the Parsons study when I recited to him. But he had got settled and waked up by his new wife and home and lessons were more interesting and better after this vacation and I made some progress towards being fitted during that summer.

J.S. KEYES AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 1st of 2nd M Attended the Select Qrly Meeting –It was a

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

time of some searching but on the whole a pretty good Meeting – we had the company of our friends John Meader & wife Moses Beedie & Daniel Clapp & Susan Howland, who with the exception of Moses Beedie are out with minutes from their Meetings Dined at Wm Jenkins's – lodged at Jonathon Congdons

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 2, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 2nd 2nd M 1837 / Our Qry Meeting was large & the weather pleasant – Elizabeth Meader was first in Supplication followed by Susan Howland in testimony – then Mary B Allen, & then John Meader – It was a good Meeting tho' not a very full & open time as to preaching. – The last Meeting was well conducted – Greenwich Moy [Monthly] Meeting had appointed Daniel Anthony to the Station of an Elder which was freely united with by the Qry Meeting. –Dined at Jonathon Congdons & lodged there again – the walking being so slippery & wet that I could not walk out to the Mansion of my late friend Moses Brown where I wished to pass a night again before the family was broken up & other occupants live there, which I understand is likely to be the case, the coming Spring –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 3, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day Attended the School Committee which was large & the Affairs of the School resulted with a good deal of harmony – In the evening attended an adjourned Meeting of the Tract Association held in the Meeting room Lodged at the Institution. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 4, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*7th day – after going to Town & called on some of my friends & spending the forenoon in finishing my buisness – I came home in the Steam Boat & got here by 3 Clock
I was glad I was at Providence & felt it to be a season of some encouragement. –*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 5, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1st day 5th of 2nd M 1837 / The walking bad & our Meetings rather small & silent, but good solid seasons to me & I trust to others Several of our young friends called in the evening & sat with us

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 8, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 8th of 2nd M 1838 / This Morning about 5 Minutes past 2 OClock our Aged & venerable Mother Abigail Rodman quietly departed this life, Aged 85 Years 3 Months & about 16 days – My wife sat with her thro' the night when she went in the evening she was asleep in which state she continued till 1 OC when she awoke, knew Hannah & told her she was not aware of her being there, but was glad she was – she had a little spell of distress from which she was released & fell into a sleeping state in which she continued breathing shorter & shorter till she died at the time abovementioned –I attended our Meeting today & the rest of the time been much occupied in arranging for the funeral, which is concluded to be on 7th day next, at 2 OClock at the House

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 9, Thursday: David Henry Thoreau checked out, from Harvard Library, the 7th and final volume of Charles Symmons's THE PROSE WORKS OF JOHN MILTON (London: T. Bensley for J. Johnson et al., 1806).

Representative John Quincy Adams attempted to defend his conduct on the floor of the US House of Representatives, in offering to that august assembly petitions to bring to an end the endemic practices of human enslavement which afflicted this land of the free and home of the brave.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 9th of 2nd M 1837 / Meeting silent & rather small Snow fell last night which prevented the women from turning out as usual

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

February 12, Sunday: The US House of Representatives denied the right of petition of slaves.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 12th of 2nd M / Attended the funeral of Joseph Martin a respectable man of this Town & Collector of Taxes - Aged 48 years- In our forenoon Meeting father Rodman was engaged in testimony more lengthy than usual & to satisfaction, tho' I do not know but his feelings was a little too much excited from the circumstances of the Death of his friend Joseph Martin who he has several times visited during his illness & adverted to his Death in his testimony this Morning The Meeting was silent in the Afternoon solid & quiet tho' I thought not quite so lively as at sometimes. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 16, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 16th of 2nd M / Preparative Meeting - The first was a burdensome Meeting to me from a communication with which I had no unity - In the last Meeting Thos B Gould the Clerk was absent & Thos P. Nichols was for the first time called on to serve & did well - It is encouraging to find there are some helps coming up in society. - Joseph Tillinghast called before Meeting & set some time & gave me some account of the decease of his Brother William whose funeral he has been to Providence to attend, he died on 7th day last the 11th instant In the 40 Year of his Age When I was last in Providence attending the Qry Meeting he sent for Joseph Anthony & me to visit him which we did in the eveng of 5th day - We found him cool & collected lookgin for the final change & did not seem alarmed at the prospect - we imparted to him such council & advice as Seemed to present which was very kindly recd - he expressing much love for us & mentioned the satisfaction he had recd in attending Friends Meeting - tho' he was not a constant but an occasional attender. The visit to me was a remarkable & Memorable one. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 19, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 19th of 2nd M 1837 / Meetings nearly silent & to me seasons of poverty - yet a little favour was experienced. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 2, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

3m M 2nd 1837 / Being 5th day I attended Meeting which was silent. - Father in going to Meeting fell & hurt himself & was obliged to return home & is quite poorly this PM

At Dinner we had the company of Canute Halvorson & Samuel Chase of Fall River - Canute embarked this Afternoon in the Steam Boat for NYork on his way to Liverpool & from thence to Christina in Norway to bring the rest of his family remaining in Norway to this Country where he has settled at Fall River - Canutes History is an interesting one. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 5, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 5th of 3rd M 1837 / Our Meeting silent & a sense of lowness in my feelings -
I have not much to journalize weakness is Mine & my health been poor the last week My head much out of order so that I have taken physic & been bled - & yet not much better. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 8, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 8th of 3rd M 1837 / This is the day Canute Halvorson expected to embark from NYork for Liverpool - I sent by him a letter to my friend Thos Thompson also a walking Stick with an Ivory head made after the form of what is called a Nantucket certificate, this I engaged to send him by the first opportunity, more than a Year or two ago & Canute is the first person I have met with bound directly to Liverpool & he being willing to take it along, I was glad to avail myself of the chance to convey it to him

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 10, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 10th 3rd M / This Morning Died Benjamin Luther a blind man, who with his wife were for the last two or three years dilligent attenders of Our Meeting - he was taken ill some days ago with a kind of cold & fever & lived but a short time - This evening I called to see his widow they lived in the same House with old Captain Ezeikel Luther who with his wife have long been diligent attenders of our Meetings - On going in I found Ezekeel Luther very sick & low & glad of my call. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

March 12, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 12th of 3rd M 1837 / Our Meetings were silent but solid & even solemn opportunities - but I was unwell in body & unable to enter into the feeling, as I did most earnestly desire.

In both Meetings I was tried but in the Afternoon especially with sleep - I laboured had to overcome it & was favoured not to go to sleep - I prayed to be favoured to resist it & did resist it, but the trial continued till it was time to close the Meeting - After Meeting attended the funeral of Benjamin Luther

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 16, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5h day 16 of 3 M / Our Meeting was Small & silent but a season of some favour for which I desire to be thankful - Divers of our friends who usually meet with us were not in their seats with us at Meeting, some from one cause & some from another. it however appears on inquiry that several were indisposed - it is a time of much indisposition from colds &c & some have died suddenly among them was George Dennis of Portsmouth who last week on 4th day was at Meeting & died on 6th day night following from the apparant effects of a heavy cold -

This Morning a Man on board the Revenue Cutter was found dead in his bed. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 19, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 19 of 3 M / Hannah Dennis attended our Meeting, in the forenoon she was acceptably engaged in testimony - Silent in the Afternoon - she came home from Meeting with us & took tea & set the evening. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 2, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 2nd of 4 M 1837 / Our Meetings were silent but very solid. The Morning was quite large & well attended - the Afternoon was small

This Morning Recd a parcell & letter from my very kind & interesting correspondent Thos Thompson of Liverpool. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

April 6, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 6 of 4th M 1837 / Father was at meeting & had a little to communicate. it was nevertheless to me a dull hard Meeting.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 9, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 9th of 4th M / Father was at meeting in the forenoon & had some thing to communicate to pretty good satisfaction – Silent Meeting in the Afternoon & tho' it was a very solid quiet Meeting & a degree of reverance was apparantly on the countenances of Most present, yet to me & in my spirit there was great leanness & poverty. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 13, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 13th of 4th M / Meeting nearly silent – towards the close Father Rodman had a few words to offer but to me all was under a sense of weakness & me. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 14, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 14th of 4 M / When the Steam Boat came from Providence this Afternoon I met my friend Pliny Earle on the Wharf bound to England & France to complete his Medical studies – I felt much interest in Pliny leaving us he is a young man I much esteem having been several years associated with him while we were Sojourners at Providence YMB School & besides he was an intimate friend of our Johns – I furnished him with a letter of introduction to Thomas Thompson of Liverpool & also wrote an Epistle of advice to him exhorting him to circumspection & care during his Absence in Europe –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 16, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 16th of 4th M 1837 / Our Meetings were smaller than usual owing somewhat to the weather which was not pleasant & it Rained in the Afternoon Father attended in the Morning & had a few words to offer – Nicholas Greene a man not a Member, but one who loves Truth & Friends was there. – Today I expect dear Pliny Earle has sailed for England – I feel

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

interested for him & desire a good & speedy passage for him & if he has a quick run, he may reach England in time to attend London Yearly Meeting, which I understand from him was his desire to Do.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 20, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 20th of 4 M / Father had a short testimony in the first Meeting – In the Preparative Meeting we had a rather closer time of examination than common in answering the queries – as we answer the whole but once in a year it seems necessary to be more critical than on other occasions. –

In the Select Meeting which followed, we also had a free examination & rather more communication than usual – I thought it was rather a time of favour particularly as regarded my own States. -- Aunt Hannah Almy dined with us. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 23, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 23rd of 4 M / Our Meetings were both Silent & quite Solid opportunities – In the evening Cousin Thos B Gould called to see & sit with us a little while. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 26, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 26th of 4th M 1837 / Today Wm Jenkins a young man from Berwick, son of Joshua Jenkins a friend I am well acquainted with – called to see us Dined & took tea – he went to Henry Goulds to lodge – He appears to be under religious exercise, & the object of his journey from home we could not seem to develope. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 2, Tuesday: From George Templeton Strong's New-York diary:

Workmen thrown out of employ by the hundred daily. Business at a stand; the coal mines in Pennsylvania stopped and no fuel in prospect for next winter – delightful prospects, these.

Henry Martyn Robert, who would author “Robert’s Rules of Order,” was born.

William B. Ogden, brother-in-law of New York investor Charles Butler, was elected Mayor of Chicago. Isaac N. Arnold became the clerk, and Hiram Pearsons the treasurer.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 2nd of 5th M 1837 / In the Afternoon took the Boat to Wickford & from thence by Chaise went to Greenwich & arrived at my friend Thos Howland in about three hours & a half & lodged there

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 3, Wednesday: From George Templeton Strong's New-York diary:

Went up to the office at six. Fresh failures, Talbot Olyphant & Co., among them. So they go – smash, crash. Where in the name of wonder is there to be an end of it? Near two hundred and fifty failures thus far!... Locofoco meeting in the Park this morning – and such a meeting! It looked like a convention of loafers from all quarters of the world.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day Attended Our Select Quartlery Meeting in Greenwich which I thought was a good solid Meeting, but not as lively as some I have experienced – In the Afternoon attended the Meeting for Sufferings (dining at Susan Prouds) – after the buisness of which I returned to Thos Howland & lodged. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 4, Thursday: From George Templeton Strong's New-York diary:

Terrible news in Wall Street. [John] Fleming, late president of the Mechanics Bank, found dead in his bed this morning. Some say prussic acid; others (and the coroner's jury) say "mental excitement" and apoplexy. Anyhow there's a run on the bank - street crowded - more feeling of alarm and despondency in Wall Street than has appeared yet....

In Hungary, Lajos Kossuth, no longer protected by diplomatic immunity, was arrested on account of his "subversive" journalism.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day In the first meeting Our friends Joseph Davis & John Meader were favoured in testimony & it was a good Meeting -the Buisness in the last Satisfactorily conducted I dined at Updikes tavern & went on board the New Steam Boat Kingston & went to Providence & lodged at Jonathon Congdons & there lodged.-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 5, Friday: In Providence Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day Attended the School Committee, the Meeting of OB Trustees & also a committee of the Meeting for Sufferings in the evening to prepare an address on Slavery to be circulated among our Members & people at large lodged at the School House -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

David Henry Thoreau's essay on his Harvard College assignment "Paley in his NATURAL THEOLOGY, Chap. 23 — speaks of minds utterly averse to 'the flatness of being content with common reasons' — and considers the highest minds 'most liable to this repugnancy.' See the passage, and explain the moral or intellectual defect."

WILLIAM PALEY

Turgot has said, "He that has never doubted the existence of matter, may be assured he has no aptitude for metaphysical inquiries." It would seem as if doubt and uncertainty grew with the growth of the intellect, and strengthened with its strength. The giant intellect, it is true, is for a season borne along with the tide, the opinions and prejudices of the mass are silently acquiesced in, the senses are, for awhile, the supreme arbiters from whose decisions there is no appeal - mystery is yet afar off, it is but a cloud in the distance, whose shadow, as it flits across the landscape, gives a pleasing variety to the scene. But as the perfect day approaches, its morning light discovers the dark and straggling clouds, which at first skirted the horizon, assembling as at a signal, and, as they

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

expand and multiply, rolling slowly onward to the zenith, till at last the whole heavens, if we except a faint glimmering in the east, are overshadowed. The earth was once firm beneath the feet, but it now affords but a frail support, – its solid surface is as yielding and elastic as air. The grass grew and the water ran, and who is so blind as to question their reality? A feeling of loneliness comes over the soul, for these things are of the past.

This is the season of probation, but the time approaches, and is now at hand, when the glorious bow shall "rise on the lurid rear of the tempest, the sun laugh jocundly abroad, and

*Every bathed leaf and blossom fair
Pour out its soul to the delicious air."*

The embryo philosopher seeks the sunny side of the hill, or the grateful coolness of the grove – he instinctively bares his bosom to the zephyr, that he may with the least inconvenience discuss the reality of outward existences. No proposition is so self-evident as to escape his suspicion, nor yet so obscure as to withstand his scrutiny. He acknowledges but two distinct existences, Nature and Spirit; all things else which his obstinate and self-willed senses present to him, are plainly, though unaccountably, absurd. He laughs through his tears at the very mention of a mathematical demonstration. There is a flatness about what is common that at once excites his ridicule or disgust. He goes abroad into the world, and hears men assert and deny in positive terms, and he is astounded – he is shocked – he perceives no meaning in their words or their actions. He recognizes no axioms, he smiles at reason and common sense, and sees truth only in the dreams and superstitions of mankind. And yet he but carries out principles which men practically admit every day of their lives. Most, nay all, acknowledge a few mysteries; some things, they admit, are hard to understand; but these are comparatively few, and could they but refer them back one link in the chain of causes and effects, the difficulty would at once be removed.

Our philosopher has a reasonable respect for the opinions of men, but this respect has not power to blind his judgment; taking as he does an original view of things, he innocently confounds the manifest with the mysterious.

That such is the common reason, was properly enough, in the first place, no recommendation with him, and is now a positive objection. What is more common than error? Some seeming truths he has clung to as the strongholds of certainty, till a closer investigation induced mistrust. His confidence in the infallibility of reason is shaken, – his very existence becomes problematical. He has been sadly deceived, and experience has taught him to doubt, to question even the most palpable truths. He feels that he is not secure till he has gone back to their primitive elements, and taken a fresh and unprejudiced view of things. He builds for himself, in fact, a new world. The opinions of the few, the persecuted, the dreamers of this world, he has a peculiar respect for – he is prepossessed in their favor. Man does not wantonly rend the meanest tie that binds him to his fellow; he would not stand aloof, even in his prejudices, did not the stern demands of truth, backed by conviction, require it. He is ready enough to float with the tide, and when he does stem the current of popular opinion, sincerity, at least, must nerve his arm. He has not only the burden of proof, but that of reproof, to support. We may call him a fanatic – an enthusiast – but these are titles of honor, they signify the devotion and entire surrendering of himself to his cause. Where there is sincerity there is truth also. So far as my experience goes, man never seriously maintained an objectionable principle, doctrine, or theory. Error never had a sincere defender; her disciples were never enthusiasts. This is strong language, I confess, but I do not rashly make use of it. We are told that "to err is human," but I would rather call it inhuman, if I may use the word in this sense. I speak not of those errors that have to do with facts and occurrences, but rather errors of judgment. Words, too, I would regard as mere signs of ideas.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

That passage in the Vicar of Wakefield which Johnson pronounced fine, but which Goldsmith was wise enough to strike out, previous to publication, must be taken in a very limited sense. "When I was a young man," he writes, "I was perpetually starting new propositions; but I soon gave this over; for I found that generally what was new was false."

At best, we can but say of a common reason, that men do not dispute it. True, they defend it when attacked, for if they did not, Reason never would. This is well explained by Gray, when he undertakes to account for the popularity of Shaftesbury. "Men are very prone," says he, "to believe what they do not understand; – they will believe anything at all, provided they are under no obligation to believe it; – they love to take a new road even when that road leads nowhere."

May 6, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day Attended to some buisness I had in the Town of Providence & towards night returned home in the Steam Boat Rhode Island. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 7, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 7th of 5th M 1837 / This Morning Father was engaged in Supplication & testimony – I thought his testimony was rather

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

remarkable In the Afternoon he was concerned in a short'd
testimony

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 9, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3d day 9th of 5th M 1837 / The times as to the outward particularly as regards Money concerns is Awfully gloomy - the countenances of buisness men are in Cypress, not knowing what may befall them. -

In NYork & Boston Providence & all places of buisness it seems as if all confidence is lost Many who have been accounted great & powerful in Wealth, are breaking to pieces for great & enormous amounts of Money - Those who are in trade fear they shall break & those who have any things in their hands fear they shall loose it & confidence in Banks is much shaken that well may it be said
"Confusion dwells in every face & fear in every heart" - People have been so anxious for the World that they have over traded & having been fictiously successful have been lead into great extravagance in living, & thus gone on till things have arrived to the State they are in. & where it will end, or what it will end in, is exceedingly uncertain. There is only one resource for the mind & that is to labour for patience to bear what we have to bear, in humble reliance on Him who rules in the Kingdoms & hearts of men, & will support those who in sincerity & humility place their trust in him - I am not under pressure for Money myself at present, but I do deeply sympathise with those who are. - No person in Newport has yet failed in payment & I know of none who are Newport too, but it will be a near Miracle if we escape without some occurrence of the kind. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 11, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 11th of 5M 1837 / Our Meeting today was small, but very solid & quiet - Father had a short but very solid offering. -
I was thankful to feel & in measure be made sensible that there is a place of quite & safety to the mind amid all the trial & tumult & terror which we hear by the Steam Boat this Morning is now prevailing in the City of New York on account of Money matters The accounts are that So great is the agitation which now prevails on account of the Banks stoping species payments that a patrole is called out who keep guards with Arms Night & day. - This is an Awful state of things & the result greatly to be feared

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 13, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 13th of 5th M 1837 / Yesterday the Banks in this Town Stopped Specie payments - it does not seem to have excited as much, the public mind, as might have been expected, & things now seem as quiet as usual, but the state of things must produce great inconvenience & loss - I do not suffer my mind to dwell much upon it, & retire as much as possible to that which is alone, a place of safety -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 14, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 14th of 5th M / Silent Meetings all day - In the Morning it was pretty full & in the Afternoon thin as usual -both solid seasons

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 16, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 16 of 5 M / This Morning about 8 OClock my wifes Uncle JOHN LAWTON departed this life of a cancer on his lip of which he had long suffered - he was a few days over 87 Years of age. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 18, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 18th of 5 M / The remains of Uncle John Lawton was this day inter'd in the upper burying ground in Friend Medow field - The funeral went to the Meeting house - Our friend John Wilbur being here on a religious visit was engaged in testimony solid & weighty & Hannah Dennis in supplication. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 19, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 19th of 5th M 1837 / Our friend John Wilbur appointed a Meeting this Morning over on the East side of the Island at a place called the Swamp & another in the Afternoon in the West Road at the School House near Stephen T Northrup [?] farm - By Some that attended I learn both were satisfactory & highly favoured seasons those who attended were chiefly Baptists & the Doctrines of the Gospel was opened freely & livingly before them

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

— some who had recently Baptized in Water were deeply affected & wept all were serious & their hearts evidently reached by the Truth they had heard Declared —
Being under other engagements & a little unwell I did not attend.
—

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 20, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 20 of 6th M / Our friend John Wilbur appointed a Meeting this Afternoon at the Union Meeting House in Portsmouth which with Sister Mary Rodman I attended there were a considerable gathering of people, & the Gospel of our Lord & Saviour Jesus Christ was freely preached to them — I trust that Truth lost no ground, but that some were brought to see & feel it in a manner which they had not seen or felt it before, so as to understand what it was which operated upon them — The Longer I live & the more I experience, the More my mind is confirmed that the Lord will prepare an offering for himself, & that it is not the outward blood of Goats or of Bulls or the Ashes of an heffer that is to do the work for us, but the blood of Jesus Christ (which is his life) Sprinkled on our hearts, & faithfulness to what is thereby manifested as our Duty. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 25, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th M 25th (5th day) 1837 / Our Moy [Monthly] Meeting was small in consequence of Rain — Isaac Wilbur from Little Compton was there & preached, & at a second rising a friend requested him to be silent which I fear did more hurt than his preaching did, tho' I was fully impressed with the belief that his offering was in the mixture & his fruit unripe, but still in the state he was in, the rebuke was an hazardous one. Oh how true Wisdom & good Skill is wanting even among Elders —
We had but little buisness in the last Meeting, but the buisness was pretty well conducted, & the Meeting was short — No friend came home to dine with us. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 28, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 28th of 5 M / Father Rodman had offerings in both Meetings -- Our Morning Meeting was a season of some favour, indeed my mind was solemnized & life rose in a comfortable degree, affording an evidence of the continuance love yet

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

extended.

Visited cousin Henry Gould who for some days has been very ill of a Spasmodic affection in his Back kindneys [kidneys] & Neck attended with alarming symptoms, but he seems better today & we are in hopes he well get through, & be restored to usefulness.—

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 30, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 30th of 5th M 1837 / This Morning My Nephew David J Gould was Married to Eliza Little daughter of Edw Little of Marshfield Mass. — They came immediately off & arrived in the Steam Boat from Providence the Afternoon about 6 OClock — May peace & prosperity await them thro life. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 1, Thursday: Having already checked out the 1st volume of Henri Benjamin Constant de Rebecque's DE LA RELIGION CONSIDÉRÉE DANS SA SOURCE, SES FORMES ET SES DÉVELOPPEMENTS, David Henry Thoreau checked out the 2d and 3rd volumes.

DE LA RELIGION, 2

DE LA RELIGION, 3

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 1st of 6 M 1837 / Our Meeting was small but solid & comfortable — Father had a few words to offer acceptably. —

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

June 3, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 3rd of 6 M / My feelings have often in the course of this day been tendered in a remembrance of my many favours, long vouchsafed & still continued – I hope our approaching Yearly Meeting which commences a week from this day - may prove a season of favour - We know not who may live to see it – but those who do I hope may be watered to gather & refreshed & strengthened for the conflicts which await them the rest of their journey through life. – My feelings have been long alive to the proved & afflicting state of our society, but a hope is underneath that it will be sustained -- Things in England weare a more encouraging Aspect than they have done, & tho' many have falled, lamentably fallen, from the right foundation, there is encouragement to Trust that many will remain who will stand as Pillars not to be shaken or removed by the Storms that may & does assail them. -- I have not had particular accounts from Ohio but learn that Elisha Bates has either left the Society or been disowned from it, & that the Number who adhere to him are very few to what was expected might have been carried off my him. –

Oh Sorrowful! O Lamentable defection! I once loved him dearly & now greatly desire his restoration.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 4, Sunday: Abiel Holmes died.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 6th M 4th 1837 / A number of Friends landed in the Steam Boat from NYork this Morning, expecting to attend our Yearly Meeting – Some of them went on to New Bedford – Matthew Barker & wife & daughter staid in Town & Joseph Tripp & wife & Jesse Eddy went to Portsmouth.

In the forenoon Meeting Father Rodman appeared in supplication & in Testimony – he also said a little in the Afternoon – Cousin Henry Gould got out to Meeting in the Morning, the first time since his illness, I was glad to have him with us. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 6, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day M 6 1837 / Today I was appointed by the Town – Town Treasurer for the third time which makes an addition to my income, & renders me very easy in my income, & renders me very easy in my outward circumstances – Truly God is good & kind & has followed me all my life long in various acts of mercy, which

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

*often excites gratitude, accompanied with the language "What shall I render for all thy Favours."
My mind has been favoured with the renewal of life & favour, for which I am also thankful. – It is comfortable to feel an evidence, that first love remains. – That we are not, & have not been so absorbed with the things of the World & lived in rebellion as to cause the Lords face to be Veiled, or his Mercy & goodness with drawn. –*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 8, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 8th of 6 M 1837 / This Morning our friend Wm Kennard & his companion Thos Hall from Ohio arrived in the Steam Boat from NYork & came to our house to breakfast & took Quarters for Yearly Meeting. –

Wm Kennard was very lively & acceptable at our meeting today The Huldah Hoag arrived from Providence & came to our house to lodge.

–

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 9, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 9 of 6 M / Friends have begun to come to Yearly Meeting & to our family, Thos Howland has been added

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 10, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 10 of 6 M / Rode to Portsmouth & Huldah Hoag with us attended the Select Yearly Meeting which was rather a low time some obstruction evidently existed, to a free flow of the Ministry but divers short acceptable testimonies were bourn by Wm Evans, Rowland Greene & several others & a Prayer by Susan R Mott in the forepart & Octava Hubbs at the close of the Meeting. – Things ended comfortably, & we dined at Susanna Hathaways – I attended the Meeting for Sufferings in the Afternoon – When we got home we found Isaac & Anna M Thorn had arrived who did not get along in season to attend Meetings today

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 11, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day [Sunday] 11th of 6 M 1837 / Our Yearly Meeting today

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

was very large - the Morning Meeting was evidently owned by the divine presence to a degree seldom known among us - Anne M Thorn was first engaged - her testimony had a remarkably settling tendency over the Multitude - her husband Isaac Thorn followed in a remarkably Baptizing testimony which was Powerfully prevalent over the great assembly so that no disturbance or hardly a Motion seen. When he sat down Anna appeared in a Baptizing supplication after which the Meeting again settled & after a few minutes closed in a Solemn & impressive Manner - In the Afternoon the Meeting was more crowded & rather less settled but I have never known a more solemn Afternoon Meeting at Y Meeting time - but the current of the Ministry was not quite as free as in the Morning Meeting - Anna M Thorn was first then Anna A Jenkins in supplication, then Rebecca Hubbs in testimony then Susan R Smith in Supplication & William Evans in a solid weighty testimony, after which the Meeting closed in a more solid manner than common, as when there is such a Multitude the people get uneasy & are apt to leave before we can come to a solid close but this was not the case today.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 12, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day [Monday] 12th of 6th M 1837 / Meeting opened under a solemn Covering - Thos Jones broke silence in a few appropriate & lively remarks - then Father Rodman advised us to Mind our Calling in a few well adapted remarks - The Isaac Thorn in a Short testimony & after a Supplication by Lindley M Hoag the Meeting proceeded to buisness - The usual rotine of reading the Public friends & companions certificates, reading the Epistles appointing the usual commititees &c was gone thro' in the close solid remarks were made relative to the deportment of friends during the Yearly Meeting by John D Lang, followed on the same subject by Isaac Thorn & Wm Kennard. - In the Afternoon the Meeting was again, collected under favourable feelings The Report of the YMB School was read & acted upon, & finally submitted to the care of a committee. -Isaac Thorn was favourd several times in testimony - The subject of the admission of those who are not Members at the School was fully discussed, but no way opened to exclude such wholly, & I hope will not

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 13, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 13 of 6 M The Meeting assembled at 9 OC Am & the buisness again persued under divine favour - The subject of Slavery was a little opened by the reading of an address prepared by the

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Meeting for Sufferings to the Members of Society & people at large & was fully united with under an evidence that the Motive [Motion?] was correct - The State of the Society as appeared by the answers to the queries was enter'd into & gone through with - In the Afternoon the State of the School was considered, the report of the General Committee having been considered by a committee was approved with one small exception & was adopted by the Meeting --at the close of our friend Wm Evans introduced the subject of lectures being delivered in our Meeting houses, it appearing that they had been used for the purpose, a committee was appointed to consider the subject & report their sense & judgement of what was best to be done in such cases - The committee appointed last year to consider of the removal of the Yearly Meeting reported that they were of opinion the time had not come to report definitely on the subject & requested it might be refered another year which has put that matter at rest for a season as it is not probable the committee will meet again before next Yearly Meeting

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 14, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*4th day 14th 6 M 1837 / No Meeting at large & the Select Met this Morning & went thro' the unfinished buisness & closed its sittings - divine favour being eminently experienced in this as well as all the preceeding Meetings both at large & Select - In the Afternoon the Meeting at large was again convened under a solemn covering
In the course of it there was a disposition Manifested to get up some excitement on what is called the Anti Slavery question, but such was the Power & Authority of Truth that All loose spirits was held down in a Manner very remarkable & confirming to Most that the Ancient Authority of Truth was yet in dominion & crowned the Assemblies of the people who gather in the Name of the Lord - The Meeting was again adjourned to hold the Public Meeting at the usual time tomorrow forenoon. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 15, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 15th of 6th M / The Public Meeting this Morning was large the Service fell I think wholly to the Women & our friend Anna M Thorn had the weight of it. Rebecca Hubbs & Lydia Halleck had a part, all acceptable, & the meeting concluded after Prayer by R Hubbs -
At 4 OC PM the Meeting again convened by adjournment & proceeded to buisness - some excitement again appeared on the Slavery question but the Same Power & Authority again rose & spread over*

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

the Meeting & all went well & the Meeting again adjourned to 9 OC tomorrow Morning as it was evident the buisness could not be finished at this sitting. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 16, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day - The Meeting Met this Morning & by Noon the essays to the epistles were all finished & after a favourd testimony by Isaac Thorn & Prayer by Wm Kennard - we closed under a solemn covering & sense of divine favour.-

There is much to render this Yearly Meeting very Memorable as a Season of divine favour & remarkable preservation - There has been much afloat that is wrong, tho' perhaps not with wrong intentions or desires - but the Spirit of Truth has gone over & governed all this, & kept the Ark steady, altho' the road was rough over which it had to pass. - I question whether the Removal of the Yearly Meeting is very soon acted on again - The all absorbing question of Anti Slavery is at rest at present but much trouble may be expected from it at some time or other -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 17, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 17th of 6th M 1837 / Our friends have in the course of the day generally gone Joseph & Huldah Hoag is still here & have spent most of the Day & will lodge with us, & attend Meeting tomorrow

Jonathon Nichols & wife are also with us & have Dined & spent most of the day - Yearly Meeting begun well & continued to wind up Well & under good feelings. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 18, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 18 of 6 M / Joseph & Huldah Hoag were at meeting this forenoon & had acceptable service - they have appointed a Meeting at Portsmouth this Afternoon at 4 OClock & left on their way thither after the close of the Meeting here.--

In the Afternoon Father Rodman was engaged in testimmony. - Jonathon Slocum lodged with us, it was pleasant to have an interview with him, as we had satisfactory acquaintance with him while we resided at the School, he being a teacher there for several Years & previously a Schollar - he is now going to N Carolina to open the New Yearly Meeting Boarding School to be commenced there in the 8th M next - I have no doubt he will be

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

an ornament among them, & if he keeps his place in the Truth will do much good among the Youth who may attend at that place. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 19, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 19th of 6th M 1837 / This forenoon I received a short letter from our son Jn S Gould announcing the Birth of his first Child a daughter on 5th day last the 15th inst at half past 10 OC Am This was very interesting information. May the Lord bless the parents & their Child.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 21, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 21st of 6 M / Yesterday (3rd day) we had another letter from John announcing that his wife & child were comfortable & doing well & that they proposed to name their child Sarah. – In sitting silently alone this Morning my mind was solemnized & a sense of thanksgiving arose for the many favours & blessings vouchsafed unto me – May there be suitable returns to the great Giver

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 23, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 23rd of 6th M / Our friend Wm Evans was at a meeting on Connanicut this forenoon, & came over with his Companion J S Snowden & set a while with us & called to see father Rodman They took the Boat at 6 OC for NYork on their way home

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

June 24, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 24th of 6th M 1837 / Today we have had another letter from John, which is the third since the birth of his child, announcing the well doing of both the Mother & child – We are glad to hear it & also of his attention in informing us – I hope we shall all remember & bear constantly in mind that our treasure is in earthen vessels. – I feel desirous that he may be made duly sensible of this & not place too much dependence on any earthly or mortal things – he has been greatly blessed thro' life & may he increase in devotion to the Holy cause of Truth

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

June 29, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 29th of 6 M / With my wife Rode to Portsmouth & attended our Moy [Monthly] Meeting - In the first Meeting Mary Hicks was engaged in a sound lively & well adapted testimony, & my spirit rejoiced in this evidence of the continuance of Divine favour We dined & made a pleasant visit to my cousin Shadrack Chases & then rode home

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 1, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 1 of 7 M 1837 / Today we recd another letter from John announcing the welfare of himself Wife & their little daughter Sarah Ashby who we wish may grow & prosper. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 2, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 2nd of 7th M 1837 / Both Meetings Silent & to me both seasons of dullness, tho' I apprehend favour was experienced by some Father Rodman was unwell & not at Meeting. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 5, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 5th of 7th M / Our friend Joanna Meader & her companion Ann Pope appointed a Meeting in Town this Afternoon at 5 OClock - they are from China in Vassalborough Quarterly Meeting We had but short notice to give out the Meeting, but there were a clever tho small number collected & it was a favourd time Joanna in Supplication first then A Pope in testimony - then Joanna in testimony all was lively & acceptable & the Meeting closed under a precious solemn covering - the effect was a renewed evidence that it is not to the great or the Swift, but those who dwell in the little & keep to the right openings may be as acceptable & do as much good as those who are more extensively gifted

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 6, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 6th of 7 M / Our Meeting was rather small & Silent but

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

some favour was experienced tho' dullness was apparant

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 July 8, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 8th of 7 M / Many Strangers have arrived in Town & this may quicken some kinds of buisness a little but the times are very depressing to those who have little or no Money –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 July 9, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 9th of 7th M 1837 / Our Morning Meeting was well attended Father Rodman was engaged in testimony & supplication & I thought it was a good Meeting – In the Afternoon Abigail R Hoag from Vermont was at Meeting & was acceptable in testimony -She is daughter of Thomas Robinson of Vermont & formerly of this Town & now the wife of Nathan Hoag - I remember her many years ago, when an inmate in the family of her Grandfather & Mother Thos & Sarah Robinson of this Town & under the particular care of her Aunt Abigail Robinson – I was comforted to find some of the associates of my youth have come up in the way of Truth & supporting those testimonies dear to the Ancients who were our Predecessors in Society

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 July 13, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 13th of 7 M / Our Meeting was small & Silent but to me it was more than a common good solid feeling meeting - I desire to be thankful for the favour & ascribe it, not to any merits of my own, but to the Mercy & Goodness of Him who dealeth Mercifully to the workmanship of his hands

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 July 16, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 16 of 7 M / Our Morning meeting was a very good lively & fresh Meeting to me – Father Rodman had a short testimony - We were silent in the Afternoon & to me it was a very good Meeting – Towards night took a pleasant reflective walk round the Hill

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

July 20, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 20 of 7 M / The Winter part of our Meeting house is New shingling, & tho' we sat in considerable noise of the Hammer &c to me it was a good quiet Meeting - father had a short testimony -
In the Preparative Meeting we had the usual buisness of Answering the queries -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 21, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*6th day 21st of 7th M 1837 / To day I met with a young woman daughter of old Charles Comstock who when quite young was dilligent in the attendance of Friends Meetings but has since been baptized in Water, & married a Man by the Name of Gifford. She appeared to be in great distress of Mind, under an apprehension she had been so wicked as to resist & quench the spirit of God in her Soul until there was no hope for her that she had followed her own vain immagination, when she had ought to have been Still & been taught by the inward teachings of Christ in her heart She said the first religious sensations she ever remembered to have felt was in a Silent Meeting among friends when quite a child -& wanted to know if I thought there was any mercy for her - I assured her that I fully believed there was & that if she would resist the Devil he would flee from her, & that thro' Jesus Christ she would be favoured to experience a quiet settlement in the Truth
My mind was much opened to speak comfortably to her from a full conviction that things were not really with her, as she immagined them, but that by an effort in her own mind Assisted with divine help she might yet be freed from the thraldom in which her mind was now unhappily involved
But I fear the consequences will be very bad unless she can gain a place of quiet & know an establishment in the Truth as it is in Jesus Christ. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 23, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 23rd of 7th M 1837 / It was rainy & our Morning Meeting was smaller than usual, but a very solid good Meeting to me. - In the Afternoon Father was there & had a little to offer this was also a good Meeting to me. -
John Farnum came home with us from Meeting, took tea & set part of the evening - John is one of our old acquaintances in*

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Providence he now lives in Philad, & is here on a visit for his health. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 24, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 24 of 7 M / Recd a letter from Abm. Sherman Jr in reply to some buisness I wrote him on – in which he mentioned that Joseph John Gurney & Elizabeth Fry his sister expected to embark from England about the 8th of this M on a religious visit to this Country. –

This forenoon recd another call from Elizabeth Gifford late Comstock – She seemed to be much more comfortable in her mind & her countenance more settled – I hope & pray she may be Sustained thro' Holy help & enabled to Run the race set before her in consistency & in the Truth. I felt much for her on 6th & 7th days when I saw the agitated State of mind she was in

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 26, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 26th of 7 M / It has been a day of favour to me for which evidence of divine Regard I trust my spirit is humble & thankful – This afternoon Recd a very acceptable letter from Eric Stratton a friend of Salem Columbiana County Ohio. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 27, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 7thM 27th 1837 / Our Moy [Monthly] Meeting held in Town was a pretty good time, nothing out of the common course in the way of buisness – A living testimony by Mary Hicks – The other appearances might have been right, but did not savor to me like Marys
John Farnum dined with us. –*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 29, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*7th day 29th of 7 M / Rode with John Farnum to Tiverton, Dined at Edw Wings & spent the Afternoon till 4 OClock, very pleasantly, then rode home to Tea
This was a pleasant excursion, one I have long wished to take but was sorry to find Edward had gone to New Bedford – Wm*

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Shotwell & his wife were there which made an agreeable addition to the rest of the family. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 30, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 30 of 7 M / Our Meetings pretty well attended & some good degree of Solemnity & favour extended

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 2, Wednesday: Waldo Emerson wrote in his journal:

An enchanting night of south wind and clouds; mercury at 73°; all the trees are wind-harps; blessed be light and darkness; ebb and flow, cold and heat; these restless of pulsations of nature which by and by will throb no more.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 2nd of 8th M 1837 / Rode with my wife to Portsmouth & attended the Select Quarterly Meeting which was a solid good season. Dined at Susan Hathaways & on our way home, called & set a while with Aunt Hannah Almy Wm & Anna Jenkins being there

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 3, Thursday: The balloon of the intrepid master goldbeater and aeronaut Louis Lauriat again graced the skies above his home town of Boston.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 2 [sic] of 8 M / Went again to Portsmouth & attended the Quarterly Meeting at large - Dear Old Joseph Hoag was favoured & gave renew'd evidence of Gospel Authority - And A A Jenkins in supplication - The last Meeting was favoured to get along with the buisness comfortably. After which we went on towards Providence & while at Bristol ferry there came up a very heavy gust of Thunder & lightening & much Rain which detained us so long that we lodged at Jeremiah Giffords, Edw Wing & wife & Joseph Anthony & wife - Thos & Anne Howland & Rowland Greene & his daughter Freelove also

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 4, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 4th of 8th M 1837 / We all rose early, got breakfast & was across Bristol ferry by half past 6 OClock & arrived at the

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

*School House in Providence in very good season to attend the Meeting of the School Committee & spent the day at the School House in the buisness of the Institution & lodged there – Attended the Meeting for Sufferings held at the Meeting house in Providence – After dining at the School House we rode home in the Afternoon
This has been a pleasant excursion, & I may acknowledge, to me, it has been a season of enlargement & some improvement – on retrospection I do not feel much if any thing that I did nor said which gives me any uneasiness & rather more activety than common fell to my lot both in the School committee & Meeting for Sufferings–*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 6, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 6 of 8 M / Our Meetings were favoured but it was thro' sufferings – A Stranger was there in the Morning & Spoke who was evidently not a Member – he was spoken to or rather spoken at by a friend who had better have left the concern for others to manage – In the afternoon we had bothersome preaching from another source. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 10, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 10th of 8 M / Our Meeting was rather smaller than usual, but I thought was a solid good opportunity – Towards the close Father prayed & after spoke a few words. – John Farnum, Marmaduke Cope & his wife & Sister sat the evening with us. – it was a pleasant interview – they are Philadelphians.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 11, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 11th of 8th M 1837 / Today Augusta Deshon an old Scholar at the YMB School & a relation of mine by the Wanton connection from New London called to see us & spent the day – She is an innocent girl & very sweet spirited – We were very glad to have her company– We had Eliza & Mary Gould with us at tea. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 13, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1st day 13th of 8 M / Our Meeting pretty well attended in the Morning & to me a lively good meeting tho' there was some preaching which streightened me -

In the Afternoon it was a heavy time as to the body, having caught a cold & felt quite unwell - again streightened with the preaching, but see no way to labour, every attempt to labour makes the case worse, hence we are subject to occasional suffering.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 15, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 15th of 8th M / I expected to have been on my way to Lynn & Salem to attend the Qry Meeting to be held there & if I feel pretty well tomorrow Morning & I can get ready in time to go in the Steam Boat to Providence, I dont know but I may try to get there tomorrow - Yesterday was a very poor Day with me - My head much out of order am better but it did not seem best to set out this Morning. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 16, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould was having second thoughts about the advisability of Quakers, all of whom were white and, therefore, all of whom were free, involving themselves in the ongoing antislavery struggle. It should be enough, for them to keep themselves personally pure within the Quaker Close, not themselves owning any slaves, not themselves purchasing any of the products of slavery such as cane sugar or cotton cloth, and therefore entirely separated from the wicked practices of the non-Quaker world. Clearly, over the years since the death of his friend of color Paul Cuffe, he had come to consider that it was not any of their business to remedy all the ills of the outside world:

4th day 16th of 8 M / I am still at home, having given up the prospect of Lynn & Salem. - Tho' I felt tolerably in the Morning it looked doubtful whether I should have got to Lynn in season for the Select Meeting & on looking at it felt as if the journey had better be omitted at present - In the course of the forenoon I wrote a letter to Sister Elizabeth [Rodman] Nichols which has very much relieved my mind of the concern to be at Lynn & Salem. After giving her the reason of my not coming I wrote the following "I hope we shall not all run wild with Abolitionism, it is a worthy cause to be zealous in but not intemperate. I am afraid some will not only injure the cause they wish to promote but themselves also, by forcing measures which to move much in at present, would be of no more avail than to cast pearls before Swine, & I am clear it would be giving that which is holy to be sacrificed, trampled on & devoured by the dogish natures, there is a way for every right thing to be rightly moved in, & if way does not open for this, patient waiting is the best resort - David Buffum once told us in our Yearly Meeting at a time when a very difficult case was before it, & it looked as if it was necessary something should be done, yet there was a streight

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

[difference of opinion] in the Meeting as to what ought to be done -
He rose & said it was not only necessary to see that something needed to be done, but before we moved we ought to see, what to do, & how to do it" -- It is my opinion that Slavery is a most crying sin & evil in our land, & that if it does not go out in mercy it will in Judgement, & I hope the experiment of Mercy will be fully tried by poor erring & frail mortals, & the Judgement left to Him who judgeth right, & will execute in his own due & appointed time, in such way & manner as he pleases. - I am clear that the excitement raised on Slavery, & is still increasing, is not wholly the Lords work.- it might have had a right beginning, but now it has run into passion, which has carried, & is carrying many far beyond that prudence & sound discession which marked the course of such men in former days as Woolman, Brown, Buffum, & may I not add the honorable names of the Rotch & Arnold, of the days when the Abolition of the Slave trade was effected. - I do not wish to say much more about it, but to express something of this kind to my dear friends Sophrona Page & Avis Keene was very much the drift I felt towards Lynn & Salem & if thou think proper I am willing thou should make them acquainted with my concern. - I am seriously affraid that more hurt will arise from the present excitement regarding Slavery to the Members of this Yearly Meeting, than has ever been done by all the Hixism the protests and outrages of the [Hicksite followers of Friend Elias Hicks] & Beaconism that has been encountered else where. - I much desire that those who are looked up to as the Way Marks in our Society, may give a certain sound & right direction to those who follow after them.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

August 17, Thursday: John Downes took his daughter Frances, Edmund Quincy Sewall, Jr., Ellen Devereux Sewall and her friend Sarah Cole, and their aunt (Miss Prudence Ward?) to the beach at Scituate. In his journal Edmund reported that:

Mr D[ownes] lost his [hand glass] but did not go back [to the beach] to look for it. He sent to father a bottle of sea water with animals in it on some pieces of rock weed....

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 17th of 8 M / Our Meeting today was rather small & tho' it was attended with one trying circumstance It was nevertheless a good solid Meeting & my own mind favoured with the Arisings of life.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 20, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 20th of 8th M 1837 / Our Meetings were comfortable Father had short offerings in each. - When we can get thro' a Meeting & feel that no hurt is done it is cause of thanksgiving. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 21, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 21 of 8 M / This Afternoon I unexpectedly met with the Widow of Wm Shotwell who recently died at Edw Wings in Tiverton. I was glad to fall in with her & spend a few moments in sympathy with her & her children tho' it was on the Head of the Long Wharf while they were waiting for the Steam Boat to come from Providence to take them in -

Wm Shotwell & his wife came from NYork some weeks ago on a visit to his brother in Law Edw Wing & wife in Tiverton & after spending some time Pleasantly, he was taken sick of Cholera Morbus, which was corrected by Medicine after which he was soon taken in a fit & died & was buried on 5th day last the 17th in Friends burying ground at Fall River.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 24, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 24th of 8 M / Our Meeting tho' small was a pretty solid good one - In the Preparative Meeting A Clerk was appointed, Overseers & Overseers of the poor were proposed to the Moy [Monthly] Meeting & a young Man reported by the Overseers for

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Marrying out.—

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 August 27, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 27 of 8 M / Both Meetings were solid good comfortable ones - father Rodman had short offerings in each. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 August 31, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 31st of 8th M 1837 / Took a Carryall & rode to Portsmouth with my wife & Mary Williams to attend the Monthly Meeting — Mary Hicks & Hannah Hale preached — To me both Meetings were hard uncomfortable seasons — We dined at Shadrach Chases & it being Rainy came home early.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 August 20, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 20th of 8th M 1837 / Our Meetings were comfortable Father had short offerings in each. — When we can get thro' a Meeting & feel that no hurt is done it is cause of thanksgiving. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 August 24, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 24th of 8 M / Our Meeting tho' small was a pretty solid good one — In the Preparative Meeting A Clerk was appointed, Overseers & Overseers of the poor were preposed to the Moy [Monthly] Meeting & a young Man reported by the Overseers for Marrying out.—

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 September 1, Friday: Boston's volunteer fire brigades having proved in the recent riots pertaining to the Irish to be a source of rowdiness as well as a source of political cronyism, Mayor Samuel Eliot decided it was high time that his city transited a full-time professional fire department.

The "Hedge Club" met again, this time at the home of Waldo Emerson in Concord. 17 transcendental souls attended (counting female transcendental souls).

In a dense fog at 7AM, John Shepard Keyes had clambered atop Deacon Brown's accommodation stage in Concord, with black leather trunk and carpet bag — he was on his way to become a Harvard Man!

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Real homesick I was till the fog lifted as we drove over the Lexington hills and changed horses there, and drove on to Cambridge by the foot of the locks, now 'Arlington Heights' and Menotomy, or West Cambridge now Arlington by Porters just beginning as a cattle market, down North Avenue then a solitary country road, till the college buildings came in sight, grey with age, but the yard gay with students and the life of the opening term. Stopping at the posts in the old wooden fence behind Holworthy the grumbling Deacon helped me in with my trunk to my room N^o. 9 lower floor middle entry of Holworthy Hall, then a much despised, now a much coveted apartment. Here I began my college course, with a bed and washstand in my sleeping room, a small bureau and table two chairs and a locker a pail, lamp, and washbowl, and naught else, save a pine bookcase and standing desk so cheap and cumbrous that some Concord boy of former generations had left them as transmittendences to Concord students of whom I was then the only representative. These were duly welcomed and inscribed and I in turn transmitted them to my successors but they have long since departed, split up I guess for kindlings, or sold for a pittance by the more luxurious denizens of later years. At any rate when my son, who inquired for them in his college life, no trace or memory of them could be found. Here and thus I settled myself for what was to come—My chum, a tall lank red haired uncouth fellow from Scituate, Ephraim Otis by name, soon made his appearance, even more meagrely fitted out than I and as much greener as he was older and as different as Concord from Scituate. How soon after I thoroughly hated and despised him I wont undertake to say. I believe it was before supper that night if it wasnt before dinner. What his miserly curmudgeon of a father, and my polished and courtly but anxious parent were thinking of when they yoked up such an unlike pair, I never understood. Mine I suppose went on the Concord rule of getting an old sedate and studious chum for the wild fellows that were sent from that county seat. My class only numbered forty five on entering and had as its numbers showed come in at the lowest ebb of the tide in the college life of the nineteenth century. Josiah Quincy was the President, and almost in his dotage, the Professors Channing Ware Beck Sales were nearly or quite in the same state, and the younger ones Fellow Pierce Longfellow Webster, Bowen and Lovering had none of their subsequent fame or reputation The scholarship and instruction were poorer, and inferior than ever before or since, so that it was at this beginning of its second century at the turning point of slack water. We had that to find out and to me certainly no student it didnt occur till I came in after years to look back on it and discover the fact. Of course I was then much more interested in the football game with the sophs and the anticipated hazing night than in lessons or text books. The first I had practised much on the common at home and could run well, and kick a fair bit and though I helped considerably we I believe were beaten in all or nearly all of our three games with the sophomores though when the juniors came to our aid and the seniors to theirs, we beat them, thanks to Baker's prowess and Ganson's knocks and Austins speed and Kings height all of them junior heroes to us that night. The hazing was mild and merciful to me who bought my peace with a bowl of punch from Willards, but my chum who refused to share the expense, was worse treated. It was rather horseplay without malice & not at all up to the raw head and bloody bones of which I have heard both before and since. Of my class whom I soon came to know every member as we recited together in nearly all our studies, there were but few who made much impression early. Sedgwick facile primus, a rosy cheeked handsome nephew of Miss Sedgwick the authoress, soon showed to the front in both lessons and class meetings, Higginson the youngest member, from Cambridge where his family lived on intimate terms with all the professors, was soon prominent while the Boston, New York, and other city boys for a time carried off the honors by their better dress and greater fitness for display I think I took kindly to college life at any rate before the Christmas vacation I had got to know every one in college by sight and name had built a bonfire or two in the yard simply because it was prohibited had joined Mr. Simmons Sunday class, and learned the way to the race track and stables beyond Porters, had on the night of November election in a big snow storm, had my first spree in H'y 18. Tuckerman's room, of boiled sweet potatoes &c with something to wash it down, and though coming very near to it had not lost my matriculation— As to studies I did as little as I could but had ransacked the library for books I had heard of but never read, and as then we had free access to the alcoves had learned where to find the treasures. I had some privates, but hadn't got to a public admonition and thoroughly hated professors and tutors, & mildly even proctors, while for my elbow neighbours and the Worcester boys I had formed quite a friendship, and I might add the Portsmouth also. I remember nothing else in especial save a Sunday at home once a month, on one or two of which I walked up to save the stage fare, for money was short in the panic of 37, and on other Saturdays exploring Boston very thoroughly taking supper at the Parkers and walking up the lonely road from East Cambridge with my classmate Hall of that locality.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

J.S. KEYES AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 1st of 9th M 1837 / Attended this PM the funeral of Henry Goddards wife, he being a descendent from friends & once a member of Society She was buried in Friends Ground in the Medow field. — This Afternoon David Buffum read me a letter he had received from Philad. announcing the Arrival in this Country of Joseph John Gurney from England on a religious visit to friends in this country. — he Arrived in Philadelphia on 6th day the 25th of 7th M 1837 after a long passage of about seven Weeks. — After staying some days in Philadelphia he set out for Ohio Yearly Meeting

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

accompanied by John Paul. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 September 3: When freed from the ice in July, George Back had turned homeward. On this day his ship arrived in a sinking condition at Lough Swilly in Ireland.

THE FROZEN NORTH

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 3rd of 9th M / Both our meetings were good Solid seasons to me -Father had offerings in both - Recd a letter this morning from Nathan Kite of Philad. giving some acct of J J Gurneys arrival &c

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 September 5, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 5th of 9th M / This Morning rose early & got on Board the Steam Boat & went to Providence & attended the sub School committee - Mary Ann Barker left the School & went in the Boat this PM with her Brother Josiah & Sister Martha to Louisiana - The School was left in the charge Emeline Aldrich & Mary Osborn untill the next Meeting of the Genl Committee - returned home in the Afternoon

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 September 8, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 8th of 9th M 1837 / Our Meeting was small & tho' very quiet was not a season of that life & spirit which I desired - Father had short offerings. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 September 9, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 9th of 9 M / This Afternoon Our much esteemed & very kind young friend Avis Harris came down from Providence in the Steam Boat to See us we were very glad to have an opportunity to repay some of her kind attention to us at the house of her late venerable grandfather Moses Brown where I in particularly as well as our son John have been kindly treated by her. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 September 10, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1st day 10 of 9 M / Our Meetings were seasons of not much life to me, but heavy & depressed – they were about as well attended for numbers as they usually are tho' a number who usually attend were absent. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 16, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 16th of 9 M / After spending the week with us very agreeably on our part Our friend Avis Harris left us by the NYork Steam Boat this Morng & returned to her home in Providence - her company was very agreeable & I was glad to have an opportunity to repay some of her former attention to me –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 17, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 17th of 9 M / Our Meeting this morning was a good solid time. But Oh how low & depressed I felt on viewing the state o& condition of our Society. – The Meeting this Afternoon was also very solid & quiet. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 19, Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 19th of 9th M 1837 / On 1st day [Sunday] the 10th of this Month Father Rodman was at Meeting in the forenoon & after sitting it about half through & delivering a short testimony he complained of being unwell & left the Meeting - Since which he has been mostly confined to the house & seems to be failing with a hard cough & great weakness of body. – but may however gain strength again - if however he does not mend soon it now looks as if he is fast runing down – I visited him this Afternoon when he told me he did not know that this sickness was unto death, the event was hid from him, & he felt resigned to whatever might be his lot, & did not wish his time protracted in life

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 20, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 20th of 9th M 1837 / Went this Morning by Steam Boat to Providence to attend with the Committee appointed to examine the State of the Schools & Institution generally - We spent the day in inspecting the literary acquirements of the Scholars which we found to be good & satisfactory & also attended the Meeting of the Institution in which Thos Anthony & Moses Beedie were

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

engaged in testimony –

Lodged at the Institution & on 5th day persued the investigation of the Schools - Lodged again at the Institution & on 6th day finished our buisness & in a very solemn Sitting in both Schools took leave of the Scholars & teachers which I think will prove a very Satisfactory & encouraging season to them all as it really was to the committee – After attending a committee on Indian affairs & a Meeting of the Trustees of O Brown Fund held at the School House - I parted with very pleasant feelings from my friends & went into Town, where finding that I could not accomplish the buisness which I wished to there Took the Steam Boat at 4 OClock & came home. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 24, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 24th of 9th M 1837 / Our Morning Meeting was well attended very solid Silent & quiet & [to] me a Sweet & precious Meeting Silent again in the Afternoon & not quite as lively as in the Morning but a good solid Meeting. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 27, Wednesday: Felix Mendelssohn arrived in Frankfurt from London where he joined his wife to return to Leipzig.

Charles Dickens dedicated his 1st novel, THE POSTHUMOUS PAPERS OF THE PICKWICK CLUB IN LONDON.

Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon left Kirtland, Ohio to travel to Missouri to scout out safe areas for Mormon settlement, leaving Oliver Granger with power of attorney to manage business affairs during their absence.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 27th of 9th M 1837 / We had a remarkably & Awful Sudden death in Town last evening of Doctor William Turner he was attending the wife of Joseph Weaver who it was anticipated would need him before morning he went there about 9 OClock & expressed a wish to lay down, as his services was not then needed in the Sick room, but before he had laid many Minutes, he was called & went into the room & took his seat by the bed side, soon it was preceived his head dropped foward & almost in an instant he proved to be Dead - it was a most affecting scene he had been well thro' the day for anything that was known or observed, & attended the funeral of Doctor Mann in the Afternoon

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 28, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

5th day 28th of 9 M 1837 / Monthly Meeting held in Town - The first meeting was a precious good one, solemn & quiet in which Our friend Mary Hicks was engaged in a short but weighty testimony - We had but little or no buisness before us in the last meeting - Uncle Peter Lawton from Nine Partners & Stephen Chase of Portsmouth dined with us. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 29, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6 day 29 of 9 M / Attend the funeral of Doctor Turner - he was said to be 65 Years of Age & was buried in the common burying ground

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 1, Sunday: Waldo Emerson to his journal:

Lidian grieves aloud about the wretched negro in the horrors of the middle passage; and they are bad enough. But to such as she, these crucifixions do not come. They come to the obtuse & barbarous to whom they are not horrid but only a little worse than the old sufferings. They exchange a cannibal war for a stinking hold. They have gratifications which would be none to Lidian.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 1st of 10th M 1837 / Our Morning Meeting was a good solid silent one -
In the Afternoon after Meeting had been gathered about a quarter of an hour a friend came looking very plain whom I did not recognize at all & made his way for the high seat & took his seat on the first rising after he had sat some time he rose & preached a very good lively & Spiritual sermon & soon after kneeled in solemn supplication much to our satisfaction & comfort - It proved to be our friend William Gifford from Falmouth on Cape Cod, who was bound in a vessel to NYork but the Wind being a head put into Newport & arrived here so as to be at Meeting rather late but very Satisfactory to all.- he drank tea with Job Sherman & after coming in & sitting with us a while, I gave him some books, & waited on him to the Wharf where he took a boat & went on board his vessel which lay in the harbour

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

➡ October 8, Sunday: Waldo Emerson to his journal:

The young Southerner comes here a spoiled child with graceful manners, excellent self command, very good to be spoiled more, but good for nothing else, a mere parader. He has conversed so much with rifles, horses, & dogs that he is become himself a rifle, a horse, & a dog and in civil educated company where anything human is going forward he is dumb & unhappy; like an Indian in a church. Treat them with great deference as we often do, and they accept it all as their due without misgiving. Give them an inch & they take a mile. They are mere bladders of conceit.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 8th of 10th M / Went to Meeting this Morning Which was a very solid reverend sitting, but finding myself under the necessity to come out before it was quite time to conclude, I did so & found on coming out I was in much pain from a Stricture on the Bladder & did not return - I was so much unwell that I did not attend the Afternoon Meeting -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

➡ October 10, Tuesday: Charles Fourier died in Paris. Well, he would be gone but he would not be forgotten — especially by faithful ideologues such as Horace Greeley.

➡ October 19, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

19th of 10 M 1837 / Our Preparative & Select Meeting was attended with some trying exercises, but got thro' as well as we could expect. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

➡ October 20, Friday: A funeral was held in memory of Johann Nepomuk Hummel in Weimar in the presence of the Grand Ducal court. His mortal remains were laid to rest near those of the ruling family, Goethe, and Schiller.

➡ October 22, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

22nd of 10th M / Father Rodman was at Meeting forenoon & Afternoon & is the first time he has attended in about six weeks - He appeared in Both Meetings satisfactorily, & we were glad to

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

have him with us again - his health is much better than it was, tho' his body is very feeble.-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 26, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 26th of 10 M / With my Wife & Mary Williams Rode to Portsmouth & attended Moy [Monthly] Meeting - In the First Meeting Ruth Davis Mary Hicks & Hannah Hall preached & Ruth Davis prayed

In the last Meeting it was an exercising & to me distressing Season in that there seemed to be a disposition in some to lay waste our excellent discipline in a manner that I could not unite with -

We dined at Susanna Hathaways & then rode home -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 29, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 29th of 10 M / Our Morning Meeting was silent & solid -
In the Afternoon we had unexpectedly the Company of Abijah Johnson & his companion Moses Greene from Ware N Hampshire who we had not heard were out on religious service - Abijah had a short but good little testimony, & his service was acceptable -
They took tea at Henry Goulds, & after tea I went up to Henrys & set a whie with them - having for some Years been acquainted with Abijah*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

October 31 Tuesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*3rd day 31st of 10th M 1837 / Notwithstanding the Wind blew a gale, so that it was with difficulty the horse could Carry the Chaise - My wife & I rode to Fall River where we arrived in good season to tea & put up at Clarke Shoves. In the evening I called on Canute Halvorson & his family recently arrived from Norway - we also called on Edmund Chase & family a little while & returning to Clarke Shoves set the evening in company & council with Divers friends on the Subject of Canute Halvorson & family who appear to be Member of Society & the remnants of an extinct Monthly Meeting established there and the Notice of Friends in England by Wm Allen with whom [Paul Cuffe stayed in 1811]
& Stephen Grellett when on a religious visit in that country it appears that Canute brought divers testimonials of his being a friend & Member, but how he is to be united to society here is a question not readily to be decided, as there is no Moy*

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

[Monthly] Meeting give him a certificate - he being the last Member of the one to which he belonged at Christina in Norway & has brought the whole records of the Monthly Meeting with him in the Language of the country, which his son Halvor read & translated to us. - He has also the Certificate of his Marriage which reads much as ours & was witnessed by many individuals as ours is - & there is a Man from Norway lately come over & is now in Fall River who was present at the Marriage & signed the Certificate - He has various testimonies from individuals, & one from our Ancient friend Wm Rickman mentioning him to be in profession with Friends & also one from the Government of the City from Whence he came signifying that he was a "Quaker" & of reputable life & conversation - his case is an interesting one & advice was given to Friends to wait & hear from Friends in London to see if there is no regular channell by which they can be joined to friends in this country - & if there is not it is my opinion they ought to be received by request -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 1, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 1st of 11 M 1837 / The day was very pleasant - we went over to Somersett to attend the Select Qry Meeting which was a time of some favour & also much exercise but I was favoured to relieve my own mind & feel peace there in - Dined at the Widow Eunice Braytons & went to Nathan Chases & lodged -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 2, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 2nd of 11th M 1837 / Our Qry Meeting at Somersett was well attended & the Public Meeting favoured - Joseph Davis & Ruth Davis were favoured in testimony & Abijah Johnson in testimony & supplication -

In the last meeting John Wilbur recd an endorsement on the Certificate of his Moy [Monthly] Meeting to travel in the Ministry in Connecticut & the Southern Qry Meetings in NYork Yearly Meeting, which was the only buisness out of the usual course - After meeting we took our carriage & without dinner rode to Providence & lodged at the School House. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Waldo Emerson to his journal:

Immense curiosity in Boston to see the delegation of the Sacs & the Ioways. I saw the Sacs & Foxes at the Statehouse on Monday – about 30 in number. Edward Everett addressed them & they replied. One chief said "They had no land to put their words upon, but they were nevertheless true." One chief wore the skin of a buffaloe's [sic] head with the horns attached, on his head, others birds with outspread wings. Immense breadth of shoulder & very muscular persons. Our Picts were so savage in their headdress & nakedness that it seemed as if the bears & catamounts had sent a deputation. They danced a war-dance on the Common, in the center of the greatest crowd ever seen on that area. The Governor cautioned us of the gravity of the tribe & that we should beware of any expression of the ridiculous; and the people all seemed to treat their guests gingerly as the keepers of lions & jaguars do those creatures whose taming is not quite yet trustworthy. Certainly it is right & natural that the Indian should come & see the civil White man, but this was hardly genuine but a show so we were not parties but spectators.... At Faneuil Hall they built a partition between the two tribes because the tribes are at war.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Emerson wrote to Walter Savage Landor:

Dear Sir,
You will hardly remember my name, & I will remind you that in the Spring of the year 1833, I was indebted to your hospitality & courtesy at Florence, as I had already been & shall always be to your wisdom. It was my design as soon as I returned home, to send you one or two books, which, I then thought, might give you a good hope of New England. But I found the opportunities of direct communication between Florence & Boston so rare & uncertain, that I feared my packet might come to you charged with some expense; and I have waited until one of the books is out of print, & with regard to the other, I have changed my mind. You are now in England, as I learn by your recent paragraphs in the papers. My friend, Mr Summer, offers to take charge of letters to Paris & London, & I venture to send you a pamphlet & a little book of my own. [Presumably this would have been Nature and the Phi Beta Kappa address.] They can have little value to you except as an acknowledgement of the delight & instruction I have found in the Imaginary Conversations.
With great respect,
Your humble servant,
R. Waldo Emerson.

When Landor would receive the above he would respond that he considered himself “highly honored,” and indicate that it would gratify him very much to “see you” at Bath — he noted that he would be able to offer Emerson a bed, and indicated that customarily he dined at the old-fashioned hour of four.

November 3, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 3rd of 11 M Attended the sittings of the School committee — after which we went to our friend Doctor Tobey's & lodged — 7th day 4th of 11th M Attended the Meeting for Sufferings & a Meeting of the Trustees of O Browns Fund — After Dining at Dr Tobey's we rode home & reached it between 7 & 8 O'clock in the evening. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 5, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 5th of 11th M 1837 / The day being Stormy Our Meetings were Small but solid & good In the Morning Eliza Chase had a short offering. — I took tea with my cousin Henry Gould & family —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 9, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

5th day 9th of 11th M / Our Meeting small - Father & Eliza Chase both had small offerings. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 12, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 12 of 11 M / The Morning was Rainy & our Meeting small & silent - In the Afternoon It was pleasant & larger than usual for the Afternoon Meeting - Father had a short testimony & I thought bothe Meetings were solid & pretty good. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 15, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 15 of 11 M / Our Meeting was a pretty solid good time - small we are, & our course as a society attended with discouragement, yet not without hope that Zion may yet Arise. when I think of the goodly number who once assembled twice a Week in our Meeting house who are now removed from time & I hope in a far better State of existance & also many dear friends with whom I used daily to meet in the Streets & at my own home & join in Social & religious concerns, I now indeed feel striped & alone - Oh how many of my dear associates are removed & how few remain that are like them - I feel it sensibly. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 19, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 19th of 11th M 1837 / Both our Meetings were silent but to me seasons of some solid weight
This evening soon after sunset my cousin Hannah Gould of Middletown daughter of the late John Gould having been to her neighbour Joseph Rogers dec returned home & after undressing herself for the evening, was taken in a fit & died in half an hour - She was a respectable single woman & a Member of Society & was also a very dilligent attender of Meetings - - She was Aged 69 Years & about 22 day [Monday]s - being born 29 of 10 M 1768*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 20, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd 20th 11 M / Attended the funeral of John Earle who died at George Enges house - on the 6th day the 17th of this Month he

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

was buried in friends Burying ground by the side of his Mother Dorcas Earle & had he have lived till the 15th of 1st M Next he would have been 68 Years Old -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 22, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 22nd of 11 M / Attended the funeral of my cousin Hannah Gould at Middletown - My Brother Isaac & I went together - She was the last occupant of her father & Grandfathers house who was a member of Society which till now has always been owned & occupied by Friends She was buried in the family burying ground on the farm. -

Her death was awfully sudden, but she was a woman of an Innocent life & very dilligent attender of Meetings, & I have no doubt had experience in religion & thro' Redeeming love it may be presumed is in a State of happiness -

While sitting at the funeral, a good degree of solemnity was felt to cover the assembly - My mind was lead to reflect on the uncertainty of time & the many changes we are subject to in passing thro' it - I remembered & adverted to the first time I ever set my foot in that house, which according to my recollection is about 51 Years ago when I was between 4 & 5 years old with my Aunt Martha Gould who carried me there to see her Aged Uncle & Aunt Thos. & Sarah Gould - I well remember the looks of Uncle Thomas & Aunt Sarah, he died in the course of that Year, between 80 & 90 years old & it was the first & last time I ever saw him which was sitting his Chair in the kitchen a sleep, & Aunt Sarah took hold of his sleeve & waked him up I remember his pleasant smile when he found who we were that called to see him Aunt Sarah lived about 10 or 12 Years after & died over one hundred years of Age

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 23, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 23rd of 11th M 1837 / Attended Meeting, Father was there & preached a little acceptably - Our Preparative Meeting was short, no buisness out of the common course occurring.

Halvor Halvorsen a young man from Norway was at Meeting, he came home with us & dined

His Father & family live in Fall River, & are respectable friends members of an extinct Moy [Monthly] Meeting at Christina in Norway.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

November 26, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 26 of 11 M / Silent In the forenoon In the Afternoon
Father had a short testimony & both solid Meetings*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

November 30, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 30th of 11 M / Our Moy [Monthly] Meeting held in Town - In the first Wm Gifford (from Falmouth Cape Cod being here in his vessel wind bound for NYork) attended & was very acceptable in testimony. Father Rodman Hannah Dennis & Hannah Hall Preached a little. -
In the last Meeting we had some Trial, but the right thing prevailed & some of us rejoiced in it. -
After Meeting the wind being favoured Wm Gifford went immediately on board his vessel & set sail - his company was very comfortable to some of us -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 3, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 3rd of 12 M 1837 / Our Morning Meeting was well attended and a very solid weighty Meeting - Father was engaged in testimony
In the Afternoon Father was again at Meeting & had a short testimony to offer
Ann Rodman came home with me to tea & set the evening - My wife being unwell was not at Meeting today -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 4, Monday: Opening of the 2d (long) session of the 25th US Congress.

On this night in Upper Canada, Mackenzie attempted an armed coup. Wakened, Lieutenant Governor Sir Francis Bond Head began to behave in an alarmingly erratic and indecisive manner.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 4th of 12 M / Took the Stage for Providence & at Bristol ferry got on board the Steam Boat King Philip & went the remaining distance by water arrived about two OC PM & went to Doctor Tobey's & lodged - next day 3rd day attended the Sub School Committee - & the Meeting for Sufferings in the Afternoon - lodged at the School House & on 4th day by appointment from the Meeting for Sufferings attended to the examination of the

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

contents of the Yearly Meetings chest of Books & papers containing the records & papers which were collected & Kept by our late friend Moses Brown for about 50 Years - Lodged at Bales Harris's his daughter Avis being a particular & much esteemed, friend & acquaintance of mine, she having from her Childhood been brought up in the family of Moses Brown & whenever I went to his house was kindly received & entertained by both himself & Avis. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 7, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day returned to Service of examining the Yearly Meeting chest which is now at the Store of Almy & Brown in the City - I attended their Week day Meeting & dined with Jonathon Freeborn & in the Afternoon proceeded in the examination & lodged at Doctor Tobeys - On 6th day forenoon We finished the examination & made report to the Meeting for Sufferings, after dining at Dr Tobeys - went to the Steam Boat in hopes to have returned that evening but she being out of order was disappointed & returned to Wm Jenkins - & spent the evening & lodged & staid there till 3 O'clock on 7th day when I took the Steam Boat & returned home. -At Wm Jenkins I found our friend Thomas Howland who had returned from NYork in a very feeble state of health - The time spent with him was very agreeable & indeed I can truly say my visit was very agreeable throughout I had an opportunity of assimilating with friends whom I love & was very kindly received & entertained by them

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 10, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 10th of 12 M / The day was Stormy & Meeting rather Small, but larger than could have been expected both in the Morning & Afternoon - both were Solid & I thought those assembled knew how to enjoy a Silent Meeting, tho' many present were not in membership with us. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 17, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 17th of 12th M 1837 / The weather again Stormy & our Meetings small & silent but solid & Quiet -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

December 24, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 24th of 12th M / Another stormy 1st day - It snowed last night & being some Rain today, made the walking had, so that but few were at meeting, especially the Women, but it was pretty Solid seasons, tho' my mind was weak & poor most of the time - both were Silent -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 28, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 28th of 12 M / Went in the Stage to Portsmouth to attend Moy [Monthly] Meeting -- I considered we were favoured because things went right - Hannah Dennis & Elizabeth Wing preached in the first Meeting, but I have not much to say of the effects - indeed I fear they were both out of their places - I took the Stage home which came along from Bristol ferry soon after the Meeting broke. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 30, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 30 of 12 M 1837 / This day finishes my 56th Year. It has been remarkably clear Warm & pleasant weather & I took a Walk down Spring Street quite to Coggeshalls Beach & so round to Rocky Farm by Lilley Pond up Thames Street home - My reflections were of a serious but pleasant cast & on the way I stopped & took a look into the Coggeshall burying ground where lays John Coggeshall who was Father to my Great Great Grandmother Wait Gould -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

December 31, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 31 of 12 M 1837 / We have had good Meetings today, solid quiet & well attended
In the Morning Father Rodman was engaged in testimony & in the Afternoon Our friends John D Lang from Berwick Maine attended & was engaged in a very pertinent & well Authorized testimony - On the whole we have had a good day & I am thankful for the favour, here ends the Year & the end crowns all. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

“NARRATIVE HISTORY” IS FABULATION, HISTORY IS CHRONOLOGY

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1838

January 1, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 1st of 1st M 1838 / I have been favoured today with quiet & feelings of spiritual life & favour, & surely my outward blessings ought to be numbered, for I have received them —⁴²⁶

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 4, Thursday: Charles Stratton (AKA General Tom Thumb and as Tiny Tim — the dwarf who would be made famous by P.T. Barnum) was born.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 4th of 1st M 1838 / Our meeting was small but the Silence was favoured - A young man from Little Compton was there & preached - I thought he was concerned to do good, but unskilled in his administration - Father also had a short offering -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 7, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 7th of 1 M / Our meetings were well attended In Both Father Rodman had short testimonies & I thought was favoured - particularly, in the Afternoon Wrote a letter this eveng to John Heald in Ans to his recd 30 ult

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

426. Stephen Wanton Gould Diary, 1836-1838: The Gould family papers are stored under control number 2033 at the Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections of Cornell University Library, Box 9 Folder 16: September 1, 1836-September 20, 1838; also on microfilm, see Series 7

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

January 8, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 8 of 1 M / This Afternoon attended the funeral of Abigail Barker who died on 7th day last the 6th inst she was Aged 72 11 Months & 9 days - daughter of Matthew Barker. - She was buried in the upper burying ground.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 11, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 11th 1st M 1838 / Father Rodman spoke a little twice in our Meeting today, & tho the Number assembled was small it seemed to me that there were minds present solemnized & under a degree of proffitable reflection. -

If my health & other circumstances permit I think to set off on 2nd or 3rd day next for Salem to attend the Quarterly Meeting to be held there 4th & 5th days of next week & also to meet with the Yearly Meetings committee to confer on the State of Society.

-
This Afternoon I recd a printed copy of the Minutes & doings of the Yearly Meeting held in the 9th Month in Ohio. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 14, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 14th of 1st M / In the forenoon Father Rodman had a short testimony & in the Afternoon our Meeting was silent - but both were quiet solid meetings.

Brayton Slade dined with us - he is from Fall River & is about to settle in this Town

I have for sometime thought of attending the approaching Quarterly Meeting at Salem & to Meet with the Yearly Meetings committee who expect to be there, & within a few days have concluded to go & nothing occuring to prevent I propose to set out in the Stage tomorrow morning - My own health however has of late been so precarious that I feel affraid to be from home in the Winter, & Mother Rodmans is so very weak & feeble that I feel this evening under no small discouragement.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 15, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 15th of 1st M 1838 / Having for sometime felt my mind engaged to attend the approaching Quarterly Meeting at Salem &

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

being on the Yearly Meetings committee appointed to Visit Meetings as Truth may open the way & several of the committee expecting to be there I set out this Morning by Stage thro' Fall River to Tanton from whence I went on the Rail Road to Boston & put up at the Marlborough House lodged & breakfasted next Morning – After Breakfast took the Stage for Salem - having on Board Benj. U Crowninshield a man of Note in the World who was very pleasant & conversant with all & me in particular - We arrived after a pleasant Journey at a place called Buffums corner in Salem & from thence I walked up to Jonathon Nichols & got to his house some time before dinner & found them glad to see me & very loving & kind - In the Afternoon Brother Jonathon took me up to Enoch Pages in Danvers where We spent most of the Afternoon returning to tea

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 17, Wednesday: Reuben Crandall died in Jamaica — of consumption or tuberculosis which he had contracted during his lengthy incarceration in the Washington DC lockup on charges of having attempted to persuade the citizens of our nation's capital to give up on human enslavement.

On this same day, at the Quarterly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends in Salem, Massachusetts, Friend Stephen Wanton Gould was struggling with the spiritual error of those Quakers who, like the Hicksites of 1827, were allowing themselves to become over-preoccupied with the ongoing antislavery crusade to the detriment of their religion. None of your hyperventilation, please — we are white people here, and this “being enslaved” situation isn’t a problem that we need concern ourselves with. He approved a motion by the Yearly Meeting barring the abolition societies from use of Friends meetinghouses for their inciting gatherings in precisely the same mode in which the abolition societies had been barred in Washington DC from distributing their inciting pamphlets.

4th day / attended Select meeting which was a time of favour the[n?] attended with a sense of weight & some distress things not being all right among them – Dined at Abijah Chases & met in the Afternoon with the Yearly Meeting committee & endeavoured to feel after the mind of Truth & I believe we were favoured with a right sense & right movements, which resulted in private & tender council to a few who appeared to be much involved the spirit of Anti Slavery, or are at least by their heated zeal injuring a good & right cause by intemperate movements, & in some instances injuring themselves, & society in persuing wrong, or at least unseasonable Measures - We thought some good was done & that we went at present as far as Wisdom dictated - Returned to Brother J R & lodged.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 18, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day / Attended the Meeting at large which like the Meeting yesterday was under a sense of distress, but the Truth broke through in a powerful testimony by John Meader & supplication from his Wife Elizabeth Meader – In the last Meeting Jonathon

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Nichols was approved as an Elder, which was all the buisness excepting from the Monthly Meeting the Queries - But the subject of Slavery was in my apprehension injudiciously introduced which brought fourth some intemperate zeal & one mans communication reminded me of the Spirit which I saw among the Hixites [Hicksite followers of Friend Elias Hicks] in NYork in 1827 when David Buffum & I attended the Y [Yearly] meeting there - but things were pretty well got over & left for the present - Dined at Jona. Nichols spent the evening & lodged - calling in the evening to visit Jonathons Mother a sweet spirit old friend in the [XX]nd Year of her Age -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

It strikes me that the attitude exemplified above by Friend Gould is precisely the attitude toward human enslavement that Henry David Thoreau criticized, and the attitude exemplified by Friend Elias and his “Hixites” is precisely the attitude that Henry embraced, by way of the influence on him of Friend Lucretia Mott. Here is how Henry would take a flying dig at this not-so-Friendly aberration, in his lecture “A Plea for Captain John Brown”:

What sort of violence is that which is encouraged, not by soldiers but by peaceable citizens, not so much by laymen as by ministers of the gospel, not so much by the fighting sects as by the Quakers, and not so much by the Quaker men as by the Quaker women?

January 21, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 21st of 1st M 1838 / Both Meeting well attended & Silent - it did not seem to me to be held for naught as there was some good degree of serious solemnity over the gathering - But Oh the weight & responsibility which rests on those who have the charge of such meetings resting upon them - Cousin Thomas B Gould called & sat a while with us in the evening
—

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Man is the artificer of his own happiness. Let him beware how he complains of the disposition of circumstances for it is his own disposition he blames. If this is sour or that rough, or the other steep — let him think if it be not his work. If his look curdles all hearts, let him not complain of a sour reception — if he hobble in his gait, let him not grumble at the roughness of the way — if he is weak in the knees — let him not call the hill steep. This was the pith of the inscription on the wall of the Swedish inn— “You will find at Trolhate

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

excellent bread, meat, and wine, provided you bring them with you!"

The country round Trollhätte is beautiful. The village contains only a few houses, and the only inn in the place has no more than two or three rooms for strangers. We got a tolerable dinner, and were much amused by looking over a book kept at the inn, where all strangers write down their names, and make any additional remarks they think proper. We found remarks in various languages, Swedish, German, French, and English. The English remarks were usually sarcastic, and often improperly so. I shall quote one which struck me on account of its originality. It was as follows: "You will find at Trollhätte excellent wine, meat, bread, and indeed every thing, provided you bring it along with you."

THOMAS THOMSON'S SWEDEN

DR. THOMAS THOMSON

This would seem to have been an inaccurate rendering of Dr. Thomas Thomson's text — however, Thoreau was not copying from that text and presumably had not seen it. Our guy had been perusing, instead, the essay "On Self-Controul" in the 3d edition of Richard "Conversation" Sharp's LETTERS AND ESSAYS IN PROSE AND VERSE (London: Edward Moxon, Dover Street, 1834):

Madame De Lambert said to her son "Mon ammi, ne vous permettez que les sottises qui vous feront un grand plaisir" and the advice is often needed. It is surprising how much trouble is sometimes taken by the weak and wicked to defeat their own purposes in wrong-doing. He that seeks too impetuously his own sensual gratification, forgetting that moderation is the indispensable condition of enjoyment, often blunts or altogether destroys the appetite itself, or finds it to be the source of pain instead of pleasure. An inordinate lover of money gets pilloried in the gazette as a bankrupt. An ambitious man, thirsting for power, becomes a mere slave to constituents or to ministers, and a vain man, sighing for applause, and even willing to be envied, makes himself so ridiculous as to be laughed at, instead of being admired.

These are vices that blunder in their calculations, but there are others, that spring from a malicious disposition, whose victims are disinterested, in a bad sense, and actually take a sort of insane pleasure from hurting themselves as well as others. They break their neighbours' windows, but 'tis with their own guineas. Cardan in one of his letters, or in his own life, confesses that it was not unusual with him to drop burning wax on his arm, seeking for excitement even in bodily pain. There is perhaps a superficial resemblance in this strange propensity to the delight that we take in tragedy, and to our sympathy with the afflictions of others; but they are wholly different, both in their origin, and in their nature. In our taste for aesthetic fictions there is no belief that the incidents are real, and our compassion is a kind fellow-feeling that leads to friendly services, and derives its satisfaction from the sufferings of those whom we console or relieve. It is the good emotion and not the bad event that gratifies. The outward circumstance only calls forth the inborn sensibility. At an inn in Sweden there was the following inscription, in English, on the wall "You will find, at Trollhatte, excellent bread, meat and wine, provided you bring them with you" and this will almost serve for a description of human life, so much depends upon the temper that events are met with, and on the prudence that foresees and provides against them. What pleasure can he expect who must always travel with a fretful, discontented, suspicious companion, with whom his dissatisfaction must be perpetual, inasmuch as he cannot be ignorant that the evils infesting him are well-deserved? And the case is much worse should he have the sad advantage of being at once silly and self-satisfied, criminal and tranquil: for this implies the extinction of all that could assuage the suffering, or remove the disease. Fortunately this deadly quiet must be rare, for all men regret the good qualities that they have lost, and the very worst of us like good humour and generosity – in others.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

RICHARD SHARP'S ESSAYS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

WALK: As we went on our way late in the afternoon, we refreshed ourselves by bathing our feet in every rill that crossed the road, and anon, as we were able to walk in the shadows of the hills, recovered our morning elasticity. Passing through Sterling, we reached the banks of the Stillwater, in the western part of the town, at evening, where is a small village collected. We fancied that there was already a certain western look about this place, a smell of pines and roar of water, recently confined by dams, belying its name, which were exceedingly grateful. When the first inroad has been made, a few acres leveled, and a few houses erected, the forest looks wilder than ever. Left to herself, nature is always more or less civilized, and delights in a certain refinement; but where the axe has encroached upon the edge of the forest, the dead and unsightly limbs of the pine, which she had concealed with green banks of verdure, are exposed to sight. This village had, as yet, no post-office, nor any settled name. In the small villages which we entered, the villagers gazed after us, with a complacent, almost compassionate look, as if we were just making our début in the world at a late hour. "Nevertheless," did they seem to say, "come and study us, and learn men and manners." So is each one's world but a clearing in the forest, so much open and inclosed ground. The landlord had not yet returned from the field with his men, and the cows had yet to be milked. But we remembered the inscription on the wall of the Swedish inn, "You will find at Trolhate excellent bread, meat, and wine, provided you bring them with you," and were contented. But I must confess it did somewhat disturb our pleasure, in this withdrawn spot, to have our own village newspaper handed us by our host, as if the greatest charm the country offered to the traveler was the facility of communication with the town. Let it recline on its Own everlasting hills, and not be looking out from their summits for some petty Boston or New York in the horizon.

January 24, Wednesday: The American Anti-Slavery Society put out the 6th issue of its "omnibus" entitled The Anti-Slavery Examiner, incautiously presenting a "Narrative of James Williams, an American Slave" that had been narrated to Friend John Greenleaf Whittier by a black man (this was also appearing in book form as NARRATIVE OF JAMES WILLIAMS, AN AMERICAN SLAVE; WHO WAS FOR SEVERAL YEARS A DRIVER ON A COTTON PLANTATION IN ALABAMA). The authenticity of what Friend John had produced would immediately be challenged and suddenly this Williams dude, native informant — would be nowhere to be found. —The book would need to be withdrawn from the bookstores. It would come to appear that "Williams" had been a free black American who had culled stories from neighbors, and invented others, for a little ready cash. (The antislavery press of the period is full of warnings against such bogus fugitives, a fact of life which may help us understand how, when Thoreau would make reference to helping "escaping slaves," he would need to include the telling modifier "real.").

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 25th of 1st M 1838 / In our first Meeting Father Rodman was engaged in a few words which I thought well adapted – In the last Meeting the buisness that came before us got along with some rubbing but things did as well as I expected – We had several friends to dine with us. Mother Rodman remains weak & low, & it does not seem as if she can remain long –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

January 28, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 28th of 1st M 1838 / Our Meetings were both silent -but I thought both were solemn & very quiet seasons. – Recd a kind letter from my friend John Farnum now in Philad. accompnaying a Book oriation[?] which was very acceptable – In the evening we had a short call from our young friends Thomas Nichols, Thos Gould & Thos B Buffum & have in the course of the Day & remainder of the eveng written an Answer to a letter recd some days ago from Ephriam M Huntington respecting a periodical he proposes publishing – my views are that the time has not yet come for him to proceed in it –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 1, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day Attended the Qry Meeting at large the weight of the Service was on Moses H Beede & it seemed to me Truth was over all tho' under oppression – Buinsess was well conducted in the last Meeting, tho' we had a trying case in the appeal of a female from Swanzey Moy [Monthly] Meeting – took tea & spent the evening at Dr Tobeys in intersting conversation

6th day Attended the School committee & the Trustees of O Browns Fund – In the Afternoon the committee Visited the Schools & had good opportunites in both Male & female departments. – In the evening met with the Yearly Meetings committee at Wm Jenkins in which some distressing disclosures were made respecting the State of Society at Lynn, & after labouring after the council of best Wisdom it seemed most advisable to wait a few weeks before the committee visited them to see if some adjustment could not be had amongst themselves –

This Morning again took the Stage & came home, having a cold ride, but do not find I have taken Much cold by the exposure

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

 February 4, Sunday: In this day's issue of Revue et Gazette Musicale, Heinrich Heine termed Frédéric François Chopin "a poet of sound."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 4th of 2nd M 1838 / Attended Meetings, in the forenoon Father Rodman was there & had satisfactory offerings – Silent in the Afternoon

Mother Rodman seems very low this evening – & it looks as if the time of her probation is nearly closed – She seems nearly worn out, tho' she may last some time longer –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 February 8, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 8th of 2nd M 1838 / This Morning about 5 Minutes past
2 OClock our Aged & venerable Mother Abigail Rodman quietly departed this life, Aged 85 Years 3 Months & about 16 days –
My wife sat with her thro' the night when she went in the evening she was asleep in which state she continued till 1 OC when she awoke, knew Hannah & told her she was not aware of her being there, but was glad she was – she had a little spell of distress from which she was released & fell into a sleeping state in which she continued breathing shorter & shorter till she died at the time abovementioned – I attended our Meeting today & the rest of the time been much occupied in arranging for the funeral, which is concluded to be on 7th day next, at 2 OClock at the House*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

February 9, Friday: Waldo Emerson to his journal:

In Boston, Wednesday Night, I read at the Masonic Temple the tenth & last lecture of my Course on Human Culture....

The Pecuniary advantage of the Course has been considerable.

Season tickets sold 319 for $620

Single tickets sold 373 for 186

—
806 deduct error somewhere 13

793 deduct expenses 225

—
$568.net profit

The attendance on this course adding to the above list 85 tickets distributed by me to friends, will be about 439 persons on the average of an evening – & as it was much larger at the close than at the beginning I think 500 persons at the closing lectures.

A very gratifying interest on the part of the audience was evinced in the views offered – which were drawn chiefly out of the materials already collected in this Journal. The ten lectures were read on ten pleasant winter evenings on consecutive Wednesdays. Thanks to the Teacher of me & of all, the Upholder, the Health giver; thanks & lowliest wondering acknowledgment.

Henry Thoreau wrote to David Greene Haskins from Concord.⁴²⁷

Concord. Feb. 9th 1838.

Dear Classmate,

I wrote to Mr Hawkins on Monday last, but not knowing the gentleman's terms, was unable to say whether I would accept or not. But since I have heard from friend Hayward that you have given up all thoughts of going south, and are moreover empowered to procure a substitute, I have thought it would be better to ascertain those terms from you, so that I might close with that gentleman at once.

427. A relative of Ruth Haskins Emerson, and therefore of Waldo Emerson.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

I do not quite understand Hayward's letter, that part at least relating to a larger school in the "building."

Will you take the trouble to write me immediately, as definitely as possible on this point, so that one more letter to Mr Hawkins may suffice?

Please inform me what are the expenses of the journey, and also what prospect there is of obtaining scholars.

Should you meet H—, please thank him for me for his kind letters, and friendly exertions in my behalf, not forgetting to appropriate a share to yourself.

That you are located, in all respects, to your mind, is the wish of your friend and classmate Thoreau.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 9 of 2 M / Attended the funeral of Benjamin Cornell Aged about 87 Years - he died on the 6th inst & was buried in Friends burying ground by his particiular request tho' his family have been buried in the Common burying ground - he was not a Member of Society but for many years a very dilligent attender of our Meetings both on 1st days & in the Middle of the Week - he was a descendent from Govr. Walter Clarke by his daughter Deliverance who Married a Cornell - It appeared to me I have seldom known a man the aspects of whose nature was more humbled. - from being cours in his nature, he became tender & sweet in his mind & attended Friends Meetings as long as he was able to go out, which was only about two weeks before he died-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

February 10: Henry Thoreau wrote from Concord responding to a question from John Thoreau, Jr. as to how “flints” are made:

Dost expect to elicit a spark from so dull a steel as myself, by that flinty subject of thine? Truly, one of your copper percussion caps would have fitted this nail-head better.

Unfortunately, the "Americana" has hardly two words on the subject. The process is very simple. The stone is struck with a mallet so as to produce pieces sharp at one end, and blunt at the other. These are laid upon a steel line (probably a chisel's edge), and again struck with the mallet, and flints of the required size are broken off. A skilled workman may make a thousand a day.

So much for the "Americana." Dr. Jacob Bigelow in his "Technology" says, "Gunflints are formed by a skillful workman, who breaks them out with a hammer, a roller, and small chisel, with small repeated strokes."

Thoreau would here be referring to Professor Jacob Bigelow, the Rumsford Chair in Application of Sciences to the useful arts at Harvard College, and to his ELEMENTS OF TECHNOLOGY, published in 1829.

ELEMENTS OF TECHNOLOGY

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 10th of 2nd M 1838 / Mother Rodmans funeral was largely attended by friends & others - the sitting at the House was a solid season & Father had a short lively & feeling testimony to bear she was interred by the side of her son Caleb C Rodman who died about 29 Years ago in the upper burying ground in friends Medow field. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

February 11, Sunday: The Reverend Waldo Emerson preached his sermon number XLIII in Concord, and in the afternoon took a walk with Henry Thoreau. When he came to his journal, he recounted this and also told about a meeting of Sunday-school teachers at which he had been present on the previous evening with Thoreau and with Edmund Hosmer:

At the "teacher's meeting" last night ... as any I have ever met. He told me as we walked this afternoon a good story about a boy who went to school with him, Wentworth, who resisted the school mistress' command that the children should bow to Dr Heywood & other gentlemen as they went by, and when Dr Heywood stood waiting & cleared his throat with a Hem! Wentworth said, "You need not Hem, Doctor; I shan't bow."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 11th of 2nd M / Our Morning Meeting was well attended & a good solemn Meeting Father attended & had a good solid & pertinent testimony
In the Afternoon we were silent. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

February 15, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 15th of 2nd M / Our Meeting was small owing to the smart snow storm, falling when gathering - It was a low time both in the first & last Meeting - No buisness presented in the Preparative Meeting but the appointment of representatives
My mind was more than commonly affected just after dinner that dear Catherine D Bowen wife of George Bowen had departed this life about half an hour before - she was near the age of our John. They were playmates together, & a lovely interesting woman - very near & dear to us all. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 12, Monday: Waldo Emerson presented "War" to the American Peace Society in the Odeon Hall of Boston. Here is the lecture, as it was later reprocessed for printing in ÆSTHETIC PAPERS:

It has been a favorite study of modern philosophy, to indicate the steps of human progress, to watch the rising of a thought in one man's mind, the communication of it to a few, to a small minority, its expansion and general reception, until it publishes itself to the world by destroying the existing laws and institutions, and the generation of new. Looked at in this general and historical way, many things wear a very different face from that they show near by, and one at a time, - and, particularly, war. War, which, to sane men at the present day, begins to look like an epidemic insanity, breaking out here and

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

there like the cholera or influenza, infecting men's brains instead of their bowels, – when seen in the remote past, in the infancy of society, appears a part of the connection of events, and, in its place, necessary.

As far as history has preserved to us the slow unfoldings of any savage tribe, it is not easy to see how war could be avoided by such wild, passionate, needy, ungoverned, strong-bodied creatures. For in the infancy of society, when a thin population and providence make the supply of food and of shelter insufficient and very precarious, and when hunger, thirst, ague, and frozen limbs universally take precedence of the wants of the mind and the heart, the necessities of the strong will certainly be satisfied at the cost of the weak, at whatever peril of future revenge. It is plain, too, that, in the first dawns of the religious sentiment, that blends itself with their passions, and is oil to the fire. Not only every tribe has war-gods, religious festivals in victory, but religious wars.

The student of history acquiesces the more readily in this copious bloodshed of the early annals, bloodshed in God's name too, when he learns that it is a temporary and preparatory state, and does actively forward the culture of man. War educates the senses, calls into action the will, perfects the physical constitution, brings men into such swift and close collision in critical moments that man measures man. On its own scale, on the virtues it loves, it endures no counterfeit, but shakes the whole society, until every atom falls into the place its specific gravity assigns it. It presently finds the value of good sense and of foresight, and Ulysses takes rank next to Achilles. The leaders, picked men of a courage and vigor tried and augmented in fifty battles, are emulous to distinguish themselves above each other by new merits, as clemency, hospitality, splendor of living. The people imitate the chiefs. The strong tribe, in which war has become an art, attack and conquer their neighbours, and teach them their arts and virtues. New territory, augmented numbers, and extended interests call out new virtues and abilities, and the tribe makes long strides. And, finally, when much progress has been made, all its secrets of wisdom and art are disseminated by its invasions. Plutarch, in his essay "On the Fortune of Alexander," considers the invasion and conquest of the East by Alexander as one of the most bright and pleasing pages in history; and it must be owned, he gives sound reason for his opinion. It had the effect of uniting into one great interest the divided commonwealths of Greece, and infusing a new and more enlarged public spirit into the councils of their statesmen. It carried the arts and language and philosophy of the Greeks into the sluggish and barbarous nations of Persia, Assyria, and India. It introduced the arts of husbandry among tribes of hunters and shepherds. It weaned the Scythians and Persians from some cruel and licentious practices, to a more civil way of life. It introduced the sacredness of marriage among them. It built seventy cities, and sowed the Greek customs and humane laws over Asia, and united hostile nations under one code. It brought different families of the human race together,—to blows at first, but afterwards to truce, to trade, and to intermarriage. It would be very easy to show analogous benefits that have resulted from military movements of later ages.

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Considerations of this kind lead us to a true view of the nature and office of war. We see, it is the subject of all history; that it has been the principal employment of the most conspicuous men; that it is at this moment the delight of half the world, of almost all young and ignorant persons; that it is exhibited to us continually in the dumb show of brute nature, where war between tribes, and between individuals of the same tribe, perpetually rages. The microscope reveals miniature butchery in atomies and infinitely small biters, that swim and fight in an illuminated drop of water; and the little globe is but a too faithful miniature of the large.

What does all this war, beginning from the lowest races and

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

reaching up to man, signify? Is it not manifest that it covers a great and beneficent principle, which nature had deeply at heart? What is that principle?—It is self-help. Nature implants with life the instinct of self-help, perpetual struggle to be, to resist opposition, to attain to freedom, to attain to a mastery, and the security of a permanent, self-defended being; and to each creature these objects are made so dear, that it risks its life continually in the struggle for these ends. But whilst this principle, necessarily, is inwrought into the fabric of every creature, yet it is but one instinct; and though a primary one, or we may say the very first, yet the appearance of the other instincts immediately modifies and controls this; turns its energies into harmless, useful, and high courses, showing thereby what was its ultimate design; and, finally, takes out its fangs. The instinct of self-help is very early unfolded in the coarse and merely brute form of war, only in the childhood and imbecility of the other instincts, and remains in that form, only until their development. It is the ignorant and childish part of mankind that is the fighting part. Idle and vacant minds want excitement, as all boys kill cats. Bull-baiting, cockpits, and the boxer's ring, are the enjoyment of the part of society whose animal nature alone has been developed. In some parts of this country, where the intellectual and moral faculties have as yet scarcely any culture, the absorbing topic of all conversation is whipping; who fought, and which whipped? Of man, boy, or beast, the only trait that much interests the speakers is the pugnacity. And why? Because the speaker has as yet no other image of manly activity and virtue, none of endurance, none of perseverance, none of charity, none of the attainment of truth. Put him into a circle of cultivated men, where the conversation broaches the great questions that besiege the human reason, and he would be dumb and unhappy, as an Indian in church.

To men of a sedate and mature spirit, in whom is any knowledge or mental activity, the detail of battle becomes insupportably tedious and revolting. It is like the talk of one of those monomaniacs, whom we sometimes meet in society, — who converse on horses; and Fontenelle expressed a volume of meaning, when he said, "I hate war, for it spoils conversation."

Nothing is plainer than that the sympathy with war is a juvenile and temporary state. Not only the moral sentiment, but trade, learning, and whatever makes intercourse, conspire to put it down. Trade, as all men know, is the antagonist of war. Wherever there is no property, the people will put on the knapsack for bread; but trade is instantly endangered and destroyed. And, moreover, trade brings men to look each other in the face, and gives the parties the knowledge that these enemies over sea or over the mountain are such men as we; who laugh and grieve, who love and fear, as we do. And learning and art, and especially religion, weave ties that make war look like fratricide, as it is. And as all history is the picture of war, as we have said, so it is no less true that it is the record of the mitigation

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

and decline of war. Early in the eleventh and twelfth centuries, the Italian cities had grown so populous and strong, that they forced the rural nobility to dismantle their castles, which were dens of cruelty, and come and reside in the towns. The Popes, to their eternal honor, declared religious jubilees, during which all hostilities were suspended throughout Christendom, and man had a breathing space. The increase of civility has abolished the use of poison and of torture, once supposed as necessary as navies now. And, finally, the art of war—what with gunpowder and tactics—has made, as all men know, battles less frequent and less murderous.

By all these means, war has been steadily on the decline; and we read with astonishment of the beastly fighting of the old times. Only in Elizabeth's time, out of the European waters, piracy was all but universal. The proverb was, — "No peace beyond the line;" and the seamen shipped on the buccaneer's bargain, "No prey, no pay." In 1588, the celebrated Cavendish, who was thought in his times a good Christian man, wrote thus to Lord Hunsdon, on his return from a voyage round the world: — "Sept. 1588. It hath pleased Almighty God to suffer me to circumpass the whole globe of the world, entering in at the Strait of Magellan, and returning by the Cape of Buena Esperanca; in which voyage, I have either discovered or brought certain intelligence of all the rich places of the world, which were ever discovered by any Christian. I navigated along the coast of Chili, Peru, and New Spain, where I made great spoils. I burnt and sunk nineteen sail of ships, small and great. All the villages and towns that ever I landed at, I burned and spoiled. And had I not been discovered upon the coast, I had taken great quantity of treasure. The matter of most profit to me was a great ship of the king's, which I took at California," &c. and the good Cavendish piously begins this statement, — "It hath pleased Almighty God."

Indeed, our American annals have preserved the vestiges of barbarous warfare down to more recent times. I read in Williams's History of Maine, that "Assacombuit, the Sagamore of the Anagunticook tribe, was remarkable for his turpitude and ferocity above all other known Indians; that, in 1705, Vaudreuil sent him to France, where he was introduced to the king, When he appeared at court, he lifted up his hand, and said, 'This hand has slain a hundred and fifty of your majesty's enemies within the territories of New England.' This so pleased the king, that he knighted him, and ordered a pension of eight livres a day to be paid him during life." This valuable person, on his return to America, took to killing his own neighbors and kindred with such appetite, that his tribe combined against him, and would have killed him, had he not fled his country for ever.

The scandal which we feel in such facts certainly shows, that we have got on a little. All history is the decline of war, though the slow decline. All that society has yet gained is mitigation: the doctrine of the right of war still remains.

For ages (for ideas work in ages, and animate vast societies of men) the human race has gone on under the tyranny—shall I so call it?—of this first brutish form of their effort to be men; that is, for ages they have shared so much of the nature of the lower animals, the tiger and the shark, and the savages of the water-drop. They have nearly exhausted all the good and all the evil of this form: they have held as fast to this degradation, as their worst enemy could desire; but all things have an end, and so has this. The eternal germination of the better has unfolded new powers, new instincts, which were really concealed under this rough and base rind. The sublime question has startled one and another happy soul in different quarters of the globe. Cannot love be, as well as hate? Would not love answer the same end, or even a better? Cannot peace be, as well as war? This thought is no man's invention, neither St. Pierre's nor Rousseau's, but the rising of the general tide in the human soul,—and rising highest, and first made visible, in the most simple and pure souls, who have therefore announced it to us beforehand; but presently we all see it. It has now become so distinct as to be a social thought: societies can be formed on it. It is expounded, illustrated, defined, with different degrees of clearness; and its actualization, or the measures it should inspire, predicted according to the light of each seer. The idea itself is the epoch; the fact that it has become so distinct to any small number of persons as to become a subject of prayer and hope, of concert and discussion,—that is the commanding fact. This having come, much more will follow. Revolutions go not backward. The star once risen, though only one man in the hemisphere has yet seen its upper limb in the horizon, will mount and mount, until it becomes visible to other men, to multitudes, and climbs the zenith of all eyes. And so, it is not a great matter how long men refuse to believe the advent of peace: war is on its last legs; and a universal peace is as sure as is the prevalence of civilization over barbarism, of liberal governments over feudal forms. The question for us is only, How soon?

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

That the project of peace should appear visionary to great numbers of sensible men; should appear laughable, even, to numbers; should appear to the grave and good-natured to be embarrassed with extreme practical difficulties, — is very natural. "This is a poor, tedious society of yours," they say: "we do not see what good can come of it. Peace! why, we are all at peace now. But if a foreign nation should wantonly insult or plunder our commerce, or, worse yet, should land on our shores to rob and kill, you would not have us sit, and be robbed and killed? You mistake the times; you overestimate the virtue of men. You forget, that the quiet which now sleeps in cities and in farms, which lets the wagon go unguarded and the farm-house unbolted, rests on the perfect understanding of all men; that the musket, the halter, and the jail stand behind there, perfectly ready to punish any disturber of it. All admit, that this would be the best policy, if the world were all a church, if all men were the best men, if all would agree to accept this rule. But it is absurd for one nation to attempt it alone.”

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

In the first place, we answer, that we never make much account of objections which merely respect the actual state of the world at this moment, but which admit the general expediency and permanent excellence of the project. What is the best must be the true; and what is true -that is, what is at bottom fit and agreeable to the constitution of man- must at last prevail over all obstruction and all opposition. There is no good now enjoyed by society, that was not once as problematical and visionary as this. It is the tendency of the true interest of man to become his desire and steadfast aim.

But, farther, it is a lesson, which all history teaches wise men, to put trust in ideas, and not in circumstances. We have all grown up in the sight of frigates and navy yards, of armed forts and islands, of arsenals and militia. The reference to any foreign register will inform us of the number of thousand or million men that are now under arms in the vast colonial system of the British empire, of Russia, Austria, and France; and one is scared to find at what a cost the peace of the globe is kept. This vast apparatus of artillery, of fleets, of stone bastions and trenches and embankments; this incessant patrolling of sentinels; this waving of national flags; this reveillée and evening gun; this martial music, and endless playing of marches, and singing of military and naval songs, seem to us to constitute an imposing actual, which will not yield, in centuries, to the feeble, deprecatory voices of a handful of friends of peace.

Thus always we are daunted by the appearances; not seeing that their whole value lies at bottom in the state of mind. It is really a thought that built this portentous war-establishment, and a thought shall also melt it away. Every nation and every man instantly surround themselves with a material apparatus which exactly corresponds to their moral state, or their state of thought. Observe how every truth and every error, each a thought of some man's mind, clothes itself with societies, houses, cities, language, ceremonies, newspapers. Observe how every truth and every error, each a thought of some man's mind, clothes itself with societies, houses, cities, language, ceremonies, newspapers. Observe the ideas of the present day,- orthodoxy, skepticism, missions, popular education, temperance, anti-masonry, anti-slavery; see how each of these abstractions has embodied itself in an imposing apparatus in the community; and how timber, brick, lime, and stone have flown into convenient shape, obedient to the master-idea reigning in the minds of many persons.

You shall hear, some day, of a wild fancy, which some man has in his brain, of the mischief of secret oaths. Come again, one or two years afterwards, and you shall see it has built great houses of solid wood and brick and mortar. You shall see an hundred presses printing a million sheets; you shall see men and horses and wheels made to walk, run, and roll for it: this great body of matter thus executing that one man's wild thought. This happens daily, yearly about us, with half thoughts, often with

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

flimsy lies, pieces of policy and speculation. With good nursing, they will last three or four years, before they will come to nothing. But when a truth appears,—as, for instance, a perception in the wit of one Columbus, that there is land in the Western Sea; though he alone of all men has that thought, and they all jeer,—it will build ships; it will build fleets; it will carry over half Spain and half England; it will plant a colony, a state, nations, and half a globe full of men.

We surround ourselves always, according to our freedom and ability, with true images of ourselves in things, whether it be ships or books, or cannons or churches. The standing army, the arsenal, the camp, and the gibbet do not appertain to man. They only serve as an index to show where man is now; what a bad, ungoverned temper he has; what an ugly neighbor he is; how his affections halt; how low his hope lies. He who loves the bristle of bayonets, only sees in their glitter what beforehand he feels in his heart. It is avarice and hatred; it is that quivering lip, that cold, hating eye, which builded magazines and powder-houses.

It follows, of course, that the least change in the man will change his circumstances; the least enlargement of his ideas, the least mitigation of his feelings, in respect to other men; if, for example, he could be inspired with a tender kindness to the souls of men, and should come to feel that every man was another self, with whom he might come to join, as left hand works with right. Every degree of the ascendancy of this feeling would cause the most striking changes of external things: the tents would be struck; the men-of-war would rot ashore; the arms rust; the cannon would become street-posts; the pikes, a fisher's harpoon; the marching regiment would be a caravan of emigrants, peaceful pioneers at the fountains of the Wabash and the Missouri. And so it must and will be: bayonet and sword must first retreat a little from their present ostentatious prominence; then quite hide themselves, as the sheriff's halter does now, inviting the attendance only of relations and friends; and then, lastly, will be transferred to the museums of the curious, as poisoning and torturing tools are at this day.

War and peace thus resolve themselves into a mercury of the state of cultivation. At a certain stage of his progress, the man fights, if he be of a sound body and mind. At a certain higher stage, he makes no offensive demonstration, but is alert to repel injury, and of an unconquerable heart. At a still higher stage, he comes into the region of holiness; passion has passed away from him; his warlike nature is all converted into an active medicinal principle; he sacrifices himself, and accepts with alacrity wearisome tasks of denial and charity; but, being attacked, he bears it, and turns the other cheek, as one engaged, throughout his being, no longer to the service of an individual, but to the common soul of all men.

Since the peace question has been before the public mind, those who affirm its right and expediency have naturally been met with objections more or less weighty. There are cases frequently put

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

by the curious,—moral problems, like those problems in arithmetic, which in long winter evenings the rustics try the hardness of their heads in ciphering out. And chiefly it is said, — Either accept this principle for better, for worse, carry it out to the end, and meet its absurd consequences; or else, if you pretend to set an arbitrary limit, a "Thus far, no farther," then give up the principle, and take that limit which the common sense of all mankind has set, and which distinguishes offensive war as criminal, defensive war as just. Otherwise, if you go for no way, then be consistent, and give up self-defence in the highway, in your own house. Will you push it thus far? Will you stick to your principle of non-resistance, when your strong-box is broken open, when your wife and babes are insulted and slaughtered in your sight? If you say yes, you only invite the robber and assassin; and a few bloody-minded desperadoes would soon butcher the good.

In reply to this charge of absurdity on the extreme peace doctrine, as shown in the supposed consequences, I wish to say, that such deductions consider only one half of the fact. They look only at the passive side of the friend of peace, only at his passivity; they quite omit to consider his activity. But no man, it may be presumed, ever embraced the cause of peace and philanthropy, for the sole end and satisfaction of being plundered and slain. A man does not come the length of the spirit of martyrdom, without some active purpose, some equal motive, some flaming love. If you have a nation of men who have risen to that height of moral cultivation that they will not declare war or carry arms, for they have not so much madness left in their brains, you have a nation of lovers, of benefactors, of true, great, and able, men. Let me know more of that nation; I shall not find them defenceless, with idle hands springing at their sides. I shall find them men of love, honor, and truth; men of an immense industry; men whose influence is felt to the end of the earth; men whose very look and voice carry the sentence of honor and shame; and all forces yield to their energy and persuasion. Whenever we see the doctrine of peace embraced by a nation, we may be assured it will not be one that invites injury; but one, on the contrary, which has a friend in the bottom of the heart of every man, even of the violent and the base; one against which no weapon can prosper; one which is looked upon as the asylum of the human race, and has the tears and the blessings of mankind.

In the second place, as far as it respects individual action in difficult and extreme cases, I will say, such cases seldom or never occur to the good and just man; nor are we careful to say, or even to know, what in such crises is to be done. A wise man will never impawn his future being and action, and decide beforehand what he shall do in a given extreme event. Nature and God will instruct him in that hour.

The question naturally arises, How is this new aspiration of the human mind to be made visible and real? How is it to pass out of thoughts into things?

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Not, certainly, in the first place, in the way of routine and mere forms, – the universal specific of modern politics; not by organizing a society, and going through a course of resolutions and public manifestoes, and being thus formally accredited to the public, and to the civility of the newspapers. We have played this game to tediousness. In some of our cities, they choose noted duellists as presidents and officers of antiduelling societies. Men who love that bloated vanity called public opinion, think all is well if they have once got their bantling through a sufficient course of speeches and cheerings, of one, two, or three public meetings, as if they could do any thing: they vote and vote, cry hurrah on both sides, no man responsible, no man caring a pin. The next season, an Indian war, or an aggression on our commerce by Malays; or the party this man votes with, have an appropriation to carry through Congress: instantly he wags his head the other way, and cries, Havoc and war!

This is not to be carried by public opinion, but by private opinion, by private conviction, by private, dear, and earnest love. For the only hope of this cause is in the increased insight, and it is to be accomplished by the spontaneous teaching, of the cultivated soul, in its secret experience and meditation, – that it is now time that it should pass out of the state of beast into the state of man; it is to hear the voice of God, which bids the devils, that have rended and torn him, come out of him, and let him now be clothed and walk forth in his right mind.

Nor, in the next place, is the peace principle to be carried into effect by fear. It can never be defended, it can never be executed, by cowards. Every thing great must be done in the spirit of greatness. The manhood that has been in wax must be transferred to the cause of peace, before war can lose its charm, and peace be venerable to men.

The attractiveness of war shows one thing through all the throats of artillery, the thunders of so many sieges, the sack of towns, the jousts of chivalry, the shock of hosts, – this namely, the conviction of man universally, that a man should be himself responsible, with goods, health, and life, for his behaviour; that he should not ask of the State, protection; should ask nothing of the State; should be himself a kingdom and a state; fearing no man; quite willing to use the opportunities and advantages that good government throw in his way, but nothing daunted, and not really the poorer if government, law, and order went by the board; because in himself reside infinite resources; because he is sure of himself, and never needs to ask another what in any crisis it behoves him to do.

What makes to us the attractiveness of the Greek heroes? of the Roman? What makes the attractiveness of that romantic style of living, which is the material of ten thousand plays and romances, from Shakspeare to Scott; the feudal baron, the French, the English nobility, the Warwicks, Plantagenets? It is their absolute self-dependence. I do not wonder at the dislike some of the friends of peace have expressed at Shakspeare. The

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

veriest churl and Jacobin cannot resist the influence of the style and manners of these haughty lords. We are affected, as boys and barbarians are, by the appearance of a few rich and wilful gentlemen, who take their honor into their own keeping, defy the world, so confident are they of their courage and strength, and whose appearance is the arrival of so much life and virtue. In dangerous times, they are presently tried, and therefore their name is a flourish of trumpets. They, at least, affect us as a reality. They are not shams, but the substance of which that age and world is made. They are true heroes for their time. They make what is in their minds the greatest sacrifice. They will, for an injurious word, peril all their state and wealth, and go to the field. Take away that principle of responsibility, and they become pirates and ruffians.

This self-subsistency is the charm of war; for this self-subsistency is essential to our idea of man. But another age comes, a truer religion and ethics open, and a man puts himself under the dominion of principles. I see him to be the servant of truth, of love, and of freedom, and immovable in the waves of the crowd. The man of principle, that is, the man who, without any flourish of trumpets, titles of lordship, or train of guards, without any notice of his action abroad, expecting none, takes in solitude the right step uniformly, on his private choice, and disdaining consequences, – does not yield, in my imagination, to any man. He is willing to be hanged at his own gate, rather than consent to any compromise of his freedom, or the suppression of his conviction. I regard no longer those names that so tingled in my ear. This is a baron of a better nobility and a stouter stomach.

The cause of peace is not the cause of cowardice. If peace is sought to be defended or preserved for the safety of the luxurious and the timid, it is a sham, and the peace will be base. War is better, and the peace will be broken. If peace is to be maintained, it must be by brave men, who have come up to the same height as the hero, namely, the will to carry their life in their hand, and stake it at any instant for their principle, but who have gone one step beyond the hero, and will not seek another man's life; – men who have, by their intellectual insight, or else by their moral elevation, attained such a perception of their own intrinsic worth, that they do not think property or their own body a sufficient good to be saved by such dereliction of principle as treating a man like a sheep. If the universal cry for reform of so many inveterate abuses, with which society rings, – if the desire of a large class of young men for a faith and hope, intellectual and religious, such as they have not yet found, be an omen to be trusted; if the disposition to rely more in study, and in action on the unexplored riches of the human constitution, – if the search of the sublime laws of morals and the sources of hope and trust in man, and not in books, – in the present, and not in the past, – proceed; if the rising generation can be provoked to think it unworthy to nestle into every abomination of the past, and shall feel the generous darings of austerity and virtue; then war has a short day, and human blood will cease to flow. It is of little consequence in what manner, through what organs, this purpose of mercy and holiness is effected. The proposition of the Congress of Nations is undoubtedly that at which the present fabric of our society and the present course of events do point. But the mind, once prepared for the reign of principles, will easily find modes of expressing its will. There is the highest fitness in the place and time in which this enterprise is begun. Not in an obscure corner, not in a feudal Europe, not in an antiquated appanage where no onward step can be taken without rebellion, is this seed of benevolence laid in the furrow, with tears of hope; but in this broad America of God and man, where the forest is only now falling, or yet to fall, and the green earth opened to the inundation of emigrant men from all quarters of oppression and guilt; here, where not a family, not a few men, but mankind, shall say what shall be; here, we ask, Shall it be War, or shall it be Peace?

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

On the floor of the US Senate, Senator Daniel Webster of Massachusetts delivered a speech on “The Credit System and the Labor of the United States.”⁴²⁸

Now, Mr. President, what I understand by the credit system is, that which thus connects labor and capital, by giving to labor the use of capital. In other words, intelligence, good character, and good morals bestow on those who have not capital a power, a trust, a confidence, which enables them to obtain it, and to employ it usefully for themselves and others. These active men of business build their hopes of success on their attentiveness, their economy, and their integrity. A wider theatre for useful activity is under their feet, and around them, than was ever open to the young and enterprising generations of men, on any other spot enlightened by the sun. Before them is the ocean. Every thing in that direction invites them to efforts of enterprise and industry in the pursuits of commerce and the fisheries. Around them, on all hands, are thriving and prosperous manufactures, an improving agriculture, and the daily presentation of new objects of internal improvement; while behind them is almost half a continent of the richest land, at the cheapest prices, under healthful climates, and washed by the most magnificent rivers that on any part of the globe pay their homage to the sea. In the midst of all these glowing and glorious prospects, they are neither restrained by ignorance, nor smitten down by the penury of personal circumstances. They are not compelled to contemplate, in hopelessness and despair, all the advantages thus bestowed on their condition by Providence. Capital they may have little or none, but CREDIT supplies its place; not as the refuge of the prodigal and the reckless; not as gratifying present wants with the certainty of future absolute ruin; but as the genius of

428. Edwin P. Whipple's THE GREAT SPEECHES AND ORATIONS OF DANIEL WEBSTER WITH AN ESSAY ON DANIEL WEBSTER AS A MASTER OF ENGLISH STYLE (Boston: Little, Brown, 1879).

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

honorable trust and confidence; as the blessing voluntarily offered to good character and to good conduct as the beneficent agent, which assists honesty and enterprise in obtaining comfort and independence.

Mr. President, take away this credit, and what remains? I do not ask what remains to the few, but to the many? Take away this system of credit, and then tell me what is left for labor and industry, but mere manual toil and daily drudgery? If we adopt a system that withdraws capital from active employment, do we not diminish the rate of wages? If we curtail the general business of society, does not every laboring man find his condition grow daily worse? In the politics of the day, Sir, we hear much said about divorcing the government from the banks; but when we abolish credit, we shall divorce labor from capital; and depend upon it, Sir, when we divorce labor from capital, capital is hoarded, and labor starves.

The declaration so often quoted, that "all who trade on borrowed capital ought to break," is the most aristocratic sentiment ever uttered in this country. It is a sentiment which, if carried out by political arrangement, would condemn the great majority of mankind to the perpetual condition of mere day-laborers. It tends to take away from them all that solace and hope which arise from possessing something which they can call their own. A man loves his own; it is fit and natural that he should do so; and he will love his country and its institutions, if he have some stake in that country, although it be but a very small part of the general mass of property. If it be but a cottage, an acre, a garden, its possession raises him, gives him self-respect, and strengthens his attachment to his native land. It is our happy condition, by the blessing of Providence, that almost every man of sound health, industrious habits, and good morals, can ordinarily attain, at least, to this degree of comfort and respectability; and it is a result devoutly to be wished, both for its individual and its general consequences.

But even to this degree of acquisition that credit of which I have already said so much is highly important, since its general effect is to raise the price of wages, and render industry productive. There is no condition so low, if it be attended with industry and economy, that it is not benefited by credit, as any one will find, if he will examine and follow out its operations. Sir, if there be any aristocrats in Massachusetts, the people are all aristocrats; because I do not believe there is on earth, in a highly civilized society, a greater equality in the condition of men than exists there. If there be a man in the State who maintains what is called an equipage, has servants in livery, or drives four horses in his coach, I am not acquainted with him. On the other hand, there are few who are not able to carry their wives and daughters to church in some decent conveyance. It is no matter of regret or sorrow to us that few are very rich; but it is our pride and glory that few are very poor. It is our still higher pride, and our just boast, as I think, that all her citizens possess means of intelligence and education, and that, of all her productions, she reckons among the very chiefest those which spring from the culture of the mind and the heart.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Mr. President, one of the most striking characteristics of this age in the extraordinary progress which it has witnessed in popular knowledge. A new and powerful impulse has been acting in the social system of late, producing this effect in a most remarkable degree. In morals, in politics, in art, in literature, there is a vast accession to the number of readers and to the number of proficient. The present state of popular knowledge is not the result of a slow and uniform progress, proceeding through a lapse of years, with the same regular degree of motion. It is evidently the result of some new causes, brought into powerful action, and producing their consequences rapidly and strikingly. What, Sir, are these causes?

This is not an occasion, Sir, for discussing such a question at length; allow me to say, however, that the improved state of popular knowledge is but the necessary result of the improved condition of the great mass of the people. Knowledge is not one of our merely physical wants. Life may be sustained without it. But, in order to live, men must be fed and clothed and sheltered; and in a state of things in which one's whole labor can do no more than procure clothes, food, and shelter, he can have no time nor means for mental improvement. Knowledge, therefore, is not attained, and cannot be attained, till there is some degree of respite from daily manual toil and never-ending drudgery. Whenever a less degree of labor will produce the absolute necessities of life, then there come leisure and means both to teach and to learn.

If this great and wonderful extension of popular knowledge be the result of an improved condition, it may, in the next place, well be asked, What are the causes which have thus suddenly produced that great improvement? How is it that the means of food, clothing, and shelter are now so much more cheaply and abundantly procured than formerly? Sir, the main cause I take to be the progress of scientific art, or a new extension of the application of science to art. This it is which has so much distinguished the last half-century in Europe and in America, and its effects are everywhere visible, and especially among us. Man has found new allies and auxiliaries in the powers of nature and in the inventions of mechanism.

The general doctrine of political economy is, that wealth consists in whatever is useful or convenient to man, and that labor is the producing cause of all this wealth. This is very true. But, then, what is labor? In the sense of political writers, and in common language, it means human industry; in a philosophical view, it may receive a much more comprehensive meaning. It is not, in that view, human toil only, the mere action of the arms and muscles; but it is any active agency which, working upon the materials with which the world is supplied, brings forth products useful or convenient to man. The materials of wealth are in the earth, in the seas, and in their natural and unaided productions. Labor obtains these materials, works upon them, and fashions them to human use. Now it has been the object of scientific art, or of the application of science to art, to increase this active agency, to augment its power, by creating millions of laborers in the form of machines all but automatic, all to be diligently employed and kept at work by the force of natural powers. To this end these natural powers, principally those of steam and falling water, are subsidized and taken into human employment. Spinning-machines, power-looms, and all the mechanical devices, acting, among other operatives, in the factories and workshops, are but so many laborers. They are usually denominated labor-saving machines, but it would be more just to call them labor-doing machines. They are made to be active agents; to have motion, and to produce effect; and though without intelligence, they are guided by laws of science, which are exact and perfect, and they produce results, therefore, in general, more accurate than the human hand is capable of producing. When we look upon one of these, we behold a mute fellow-laborer, of immense power, of mathematical exactness, and of ever-during and unwearied effort. And while he is thus a most skilful and productive laborer, he is a non-consumer, at least beyond the wants of his mechanical being. He is not clamorous for food, raiment, or shelter, and makes no demands for the expenses of education. The eating and drinking, the reading and writing, and the clothes-wearing world, are benefited by the labors of these co-operatives, in the same way as if Providence had provided for their service millions of beings, like ourselves in external appearance, able to labor and to toil, and yet requiring little or nothing for their own consumption or subsistence; or rather, as if Providence had created a race of giants, each of whom, demanding no more for his support and consumption than a common laborer, should yet be able to perform the work of a hundred.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Now, Sir, turn back to the Massachusetts tables of production, and you will see that it is these automatic allies and co-operators, and these powers of nature, thus employed and placed under human direction, which have come, with such prodigious effect, to man's aid, in the great business of procuring the means of living, of comfort, and of wealth, and which have so swollen the products of her skilful industry. Look at these tables once more, Sir, and you will see the effects of labor, united with and acting upon capital. Look yet again, and you will see that credit, mutual trust, prompt and punctual dealings, and commercial confidence, are all mixed up as indispensable elements in the general system.

I will ask you to look yet once more, Sir, and you will perceive that general competence, great equality in human condition, a degree of popular knowledge and intelligence nowhere surpassed, if anywhere equalled, the prevalence of good moral sentiment, and extraordinary general prosperity, are the result of the whole. Sir, I have done with Massachusetts. I do not praise the old "Bay State" of the Revolution; I only present her as she is.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Mr. President, such is the state of things actually existing in the country, and of which I have now given you a sample. And yet there are persons who constantly clamor against this state of things. They call it aristocracy. They excite the poor to make war upon the rich, while in truth they know not who are either rich or poor. They complain of oppression, speculation, and the pernicious influence of accumulated wealth. They cry out loudly against all banks and corporations, and all the means by which small capitals become united, in order to produce important and beneficial results. They carry on a mad hostility against all established institutions. They would choke up the fountains of industry, and dry all its streams.

In a country of unbounded liberty, they clamor against oppression. In a country of perfect equality, they would move heaven and earth against privilege and monopoly. In a country where property is more equally divided than anywhere else, they rend the air with the shouting of agrarian doctrines. In a country where the wages of labor are high beyond all parallel, and where lands are cheap, and the means of living low, they would teach the laborer that he is but an oppressed slave. Sir, what can such men want? What do they mean? They can want nothing, Sir, but to enjoy the fruits of other men's labor. They can mean nothing but disturbance and disorder, the diffusion of corrupt principles, and the destruction of the moral sentiments and moral habits of society. A licentiousness of feeling and of action is sometimes produced by prosperity itself. Men cannot always resist the temptation to which they are exposed by the very abundance of the bounties of Providence, and the very happiness of their own condition; as the steed, full of the pasture, will sometimes throw himself against its enclosures, break away from its confinement, and, feeling now free from needless restraint, betake himself to the moors and barrens, where want, erelong, brings him to his senses, and starvation and death close his career.

Senator Webster also made remarks on the political course of Senator Calhoun:

Having had occasion, Mr. President, to speak of nullification and the nullifiers, I beg leave to say that I have not done so for any purpose of reproach. Certainly, Sir, I see no possible connection, myself, between their principles or opinions, and the support of this measure [The Sub-Treasury]. They, however, must speak for themselves. They may have intrusted the bearing of their standard, for aught I know, to the hands of the honorable member from South Carolina; and I perceived last session what I perceive now, that in his opinion there is a connection between these projects of government and the doctrines of nullification. I can only say, Sir, that it will be marvellous to me, if that banner, though it be said to be tattered and torn, shall yet be lowered in obeisance, and laid at the footstool of executive power. To the sustaining of that power, the passage of this bill is of the utmost importance. The administration will regard its success as being to them, what Cromwell said the battle of Worcester was to him, "a crowning mercy." Whether gentlemen, who have distinguished themselves so much by their extreme jealousy of this government, shall now find it consistent with their principles to give their aid in effecting this consummation, remains to be seen.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The next exposition of the honorable gentleman's sentiments and opinions is in his letter of the 3d of November.

This letter, Sir, is a curiosity. As a paper describing political operations, and exhibiting political opinions, it is without a parallel. Its phrase is altogether military. It reads like a despatch, or a bulletin from head-quarters. It is full of attacks, assaults, and repulses. It recounts movements and counter-movements; speaks of occupying one position, falling back upon another, and advancing to a third; it has positions to cover enemies, and positions to hold allies in check. Meantime, the celerity of all these operations reminds one of the rapidity of the military actions of the king of Prussia, in the Seven Years' war. Yesterday, he was in the South, giving battle to the Austrian; to-day he is in Saxony, or Silesia. Instantly he is found to have traversed the Electorate, and is facing the Russian and the Swede on his northern frontier. If you look for his place on the map, before you find it he has quitted it. He is always marching, flying, falling back, wheeling, attacking, defending, surprising; fighting everywhere, and fighting all the time. In one particular, however, the campaigns described in this letter are conducted in a different manner from those of the great Frederick. I think we nowhere read, in the narrative of Frederick's achievements, of his taking a position to cover an enemy, or a position to hold an ally in check. These refinements in the science of tactics and of war are of more recent discovery.

Mr. President, public men must certainly be allowed to change their opinions, and their associations, whenever they see fit. No one doubts this. Men may have grown wiser; they may have attained to better and more correct views of great public subjects. It would be unfortunate, if there were any code which should oblige men, in public or private life, to adhere to opinions once entertained, in spite of experience and better knowledge, and against their own convictions of their erroneous character. Nevertheless, Sir, it must be acknowledged, that what appears to be a sudden, as well as a great change, naturally produces a shock. I confess that, for one, I was shocked when the honorable gentleman, at the last session, espoused this bill of the administration. And when I first read this letter of November, and, in the short space of a column and a half, ran through such a succession of political movements, all terminating in placing the honorable member in the ranks of our opponents, and entitling him to take his seat, as he has done, among them, if not at their head, I confess I felt still greater surprise. All this seemed a good deal too abrupt. Sudden movements of the affections, whether personal or political, are a little out of nature.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Several years ago, Sir, some of the wits of England wrote a mock play, intended to ridicule the unnatural and false feeling, the sentimentality of a certain German school of literature. In this play, two strangers are brought together at an inn. While they are warming themselves at the fire, and before their acquaintance is yet five minutes old, one springs up and exclaims to the other, "A sudden thought strikes me! Let us swear an eternal friendship!" This affectionate offer was instantly accepted, and the friendship duly sworn, unchangeable and eternal! Now, Sir, how long this eternal friendship lasted, or in what manner it ended, those who wish to know may learn by referring to the play.

But it seems to me, Sir, that the honorable member has carried his political sentimentality a good deal higher than the flight of the German school: for he appears to have fallen suddenly in love, not with strangers, but with opponents. Here we all had been, Sir, contending against the progress of executive power, and more particularly, and most strenuously, against the projects and experiments of the administration upon the currency. The honorable member stood among us, not only as an associate, but as a leader. We thought we were making some headway. The people appeared to be coming to our support and our assistance. The country had been roused, every successive election weakening the strength of the adversary, and increasing our own. We were in this career of success carried strongly forward by the current of public opinion, and only needed to hear the cheering voice of the honorable member, and we should have prostrated for ever this anti-constitutional, anti-commercial, anti-republican, and anti-American policy of the administration. But instead of these encouraging and animating accents, behold! in the very crisis of our affairs, on the very eve of victory, the honorable member cries out to the enemy,—not to us, his allies, but to the enemy: "Hollo! A sudden thought strikes me! I abandon my allies! Now I think of it, they have always been my oppressors! I abandon them, and now let you and me swear an eternal friendship!" Such a proposition, from such a quarter, Sir, was not likely to be long withstood. The other party was a little coy, but, upon the whole, nothing loath. After proper hesitation, and a little decorous blushing, it owned the soft impeachment, admitted an equally sudden sympathetic impulse on its own side; and, since few words are wanted where hearts are already known, the honorable gentleman takes his place among his new friends amidst greetings and caresses, and is already enjoying the sweets of an eternal friendship.

"Once more unto the breach, dear friends, once more!"

In this letter, Mr. President, the writer says, in substance, that he saw, at the commencement of the last session, that affairs had reached the point when he and his friends, according to the course they should take, would reap the full harvest of their long and arduous struggle against the encroachments and abuses of the general government, or lose the fruits of all their labors. At that time, he says, State interposition (viz. Nullification) had overthrown the protective tariff and the American system, and put a stop to Congressional usurpation; that he had previously been united with the National Republicans; but that, in joining such allies, he was not insensible to the embarrassment of his position; that with them victory itself was dangerous, and that therefore he had been waiting for events; that now (that is to say, in September last) the joint attacks of the allies had brought down executive power; that the administration had become divested of power and influence, and that it was now clear that the combined attacks of the allied forces would utterly overthrow and demolish it. All this he saw. But he saw, too, as he says, that in that case the victory would inure, not to him or his cause, but to his allies and their cause. I do not mean to say that he spoke of personal victories, or alluded to personal objects, at all. He spoke of his cause.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

He proceeds to say, then, that never was there before, and never, probably, will there be again, so fair an opportunity for himself and his friends to carry out their own principles and policy, and to reap the fruits of their long and arduous struggle. These principles and this policy, Sir, be it remembered, he represents, all along, as identified with the principles and policy of nullification. And he makes use of this glorious opportunity by refusing to join his late allies in any further attack on those in power, and rallying anew the old State-rights party to hold in check their old opponents, the National Republican party. This, he says, would enable him to prevent the complete ascendancy of his allies, and to compel the Southern division of the administration party to occupy the ground of which he proposes to take possession, to wit, the ground of the old State-rights party. They will have, he says, no other alternative.

Mr. President, stripped of its military language, what is the amount of all this, but that, finding the administration weak, and likely to be overthrown, if the opposition continued with undiminished force, he went over to it, he joined it; intending to act, himself, upon nullification principles, and to compel the Southern members of the administration to meet him on those principles?—in other words, to make a nullification administration, and to take such part in it as should belong to him and his friends. He confesses, Sir, that in thus abandoning his allies, and taking a position to cover those in power, he perceived a shock would be created which would require some degree of resolution and firmness. In this he was right. A shock, Sir, has been created; yet there he is.

This administration, Sir, is represented as succeeding to the last, by an inheritance of principle. It professes to tread in the footsteps of its illustrious predecessor. It adopts, generally, the sentiments, principles, and opinions of General

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Jackson, proclamation and all; and yet, though he be the very prince of nullifiers, and but lately regarded as the chiefest of sinners, it receives the honorable gentleman with the utmost complacency. To all appearance, the delight is mutual; they find him an able leader, he finds them complying followers. But, Sir, in all this movement he understands himself. He means to go ahead, and to take them along. He is in the engine-car; he controls the locomotive. His hand regulates the steam, to increase or retard the speed at his discretion. And as to the occupants of the passenger-cars, Sir, they are as happy a set of gentlemen as one might desire to see of a summer's day. They feel that they are in progress; they hope they shall not be run off the track; and when they reach the end of their journey, they desire to be thankful!

The arduous struggle is now all over. Its richest fruits are all reaped; nullification embraces the sub-treasuries, and oppression and usurpation will be heard of no more.

On the broad surface of the country, Sir, there is a spot called "the Hermitage." In that residence is an occupant very well known, and not a little remarkable both in person and character. Suppose, Sir, the occupant of the Hermitage were now to open that door, enter the Senate, walk forward, and look over the chamber to the seats on the other side. Be not frightened, gentlemen; it is but fancy's sketch. Suppose he should thus come in among us, Sir, and see into whose hands has fallen the chief support of that administration, which was, in so great a degree, appointed by himself, and which he fondly relied on to maintain the principles of his own. If gentlemen were now to see his steady military step, his erect posture, his compressed lips, his firmly-knitted brow, and his eye full of fire, I cannot help thinking, Sir, they would all feel somewhat queer. There would be, I imagine, not a little awkward moving and shifting in their seats. They would expect soon to hear the roar of the lion, even if they did not feel his paw.

Sir, the spirit of union is particularly liable to temptation and seduction in moments of peace and prosperity. In war, this spirit is strengthened by a sense of common danger, and by a thousand recollections of ancient efforts and ancient glory in a common cause. But in the calms of a long peace, and in the absence of all apparent causes of alarm, things near gain an ascendancy over things remote. Local interests and feelings overshadow national sentiments. Our attention, our regard, and our attachment are every moment solicited to what touches us closest, and we feel less and less the attraction of a distant orb. Such tendencies we are bound by true patriotism and by our love of union to resist. This is our duty; and the moment, in my judgment, has arrived when that duty should be performed. We hear, every day, sentiments and arguments which would become a meeting of envoys, employed by separate governments, more than they become the common legislature of a united country. Constant appeals are made to local interests, to geographical distinctions, and to the policy and the pride of particular

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

States. It would sometimes appear as if it were a settled purpose to convince the people that our Union is nothing but a jumble of different and discordant interests, which must, ere long, be all resolved into their original state of separate existence; as if, therefore, it was of no great value while it should last, and was not likely to last long. The process of disintegration begins by urging as a fact the existence of different interests. Sir, is not the end to which all this leads us obvious? Who does not see that, if convictions of this kind take possession of the public mind, our Union can hereafter be nothing, while it remains, but a connection without harmony; a bond without affection; a theatre for the angry contests of local feelings, local objects, and local jealousies? Even while it continues to exist in name, it may by these means become nothing but the mere form of a united government. My children, and the children of those who sit around me, may meet, perhaps, in this chamber, in the next generation; but if tendencies now but too obvious be not checked, they will meet as strangers and aliens. They will feel no sense of common interest or common country; they will cherish no common object of patriotic love. If the same Saxon language shall fall from their lips, it may be the chief proof that they belong to the same nation. Its vital principle exhausted and gone, its power of doing good terminated, the Union itself, become productive only of strife and contention, must ultimately fall, dishonored and unlamented.

The honorable member from Carolina himself habitually indulges in charges of usurpation and oppression against the government of his country. He daily denounces its important measures, in the language in which our Revolutionary fathers spoke of the oppressions of the mother country. Not merely against executive usurpation, either real or supposed, does he utter these sentiments, but against laws of Congress, laws passed by large majorities, laws sanctioned for a course of years by the people. These laws he proclaims, every hour, to be but a series of acts of oppression. He speaks of them as if it were an admitted fact, that such is their true character. This is the language he utters, these are the sentiments he expresses, to the rising generation around him. Are they sentiments and language which are likely to inspire our children with the love of union, to enlarge their patriotism, or to teach them, and to make them feel, that their destiny has made them common citizens of one great and glorious republic? A principal object in his late political movements, the gentleman himself tells us, was to unite the entire South; and against whom, or against what, does he wish to unite the entire South? Is not this the very essence of local feeling and local regard? Is it not the acknowledgment of a wish and object to create political strength by uniting political opinions geographically? While the gentleman thus wishes to unite the entire South, I pray to know, Sir, if he expects me to turn toward the polar star, and, acting on the same principle, to utter a cry of Rally! to the whole North? Heaven forbid! To the day of my death, neither he nor others

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

shall hear such a cry from me.

Finally, the honorable member declares that he shall now march off, under the banner of State rights! March off from whom? March off from what? We have been contending for great principles. We have been struggling to maintain the liberty and to restore the prosperity of the country; we have made these struggles here, in the national councils, with the old flag, the true American flag, the Eagle, and the Stars and Stripes, waving over the chamber in which we sit. He now tells us, however, that he marches off under the State-rights banner!

Let him go. I remain. I am where I ever have been, and ever mean to be. Here, standing on the platform of the general Constitution, a platform broad enough and firm enough to uphold every interest of the whole country, I shall still be found. Intrusted with some part in the administration of that Constitution, I intend to act in its spirit, and in the spirit of those who framed it. Yes, Sir, I would act as if our fathers, who formed it for us and who bequeathed it to us, were looking on me; as if I could see their venerable forms bending down to behold us from the abodes above. I would act, too, as if the eye of posterity was gazing on me.

Standing thus, as in the full gaze of our ancestors and our posterity, having received this inheritance from the former, to be transmitted to the latter, and feeling that, if I am born for any good, in my day and generation, it is for the good of the whole country, no local policy or local feeling, no temporary impulse, shall induce me to yield my foothold on the Constitution of the Union. I move off under no banner not known to the whole American people, and to their Constitution and laws. No, Sir; these walls, these columns,

“shall fly

From their firm base as soon as I.”

I came into public life, Sir, in the service of the United States. On that broad altar, my earliest, and all my public vows, have been made. I propose to serve no other master. So far as depends on any agency of mine, they shall continue united States; united in interest and in affection; united in every thing in regard to which the Constitution has decreed their union; united in war, for the common defence, the common renown, and the common glory; and united, compacted, knit firmly together in peace, for the common prosperity and happiness of ourselves and our children.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3 M 12 1838 / It is now about 25 days that I have been confined mostly to the house & much of the time to my bed with a fever attended with a stopage of Water & an affection of the Piles which has been very serious upon me with much weakness & pain – It has been much the most severe illness I ever had & of far the longest continuance – I find by being weighed today that I have lost about 20 lbs of flesh, my usual weight being a little rising 200 & I find by being weighed today that I now weigh about 191 Pounds - this change may be favourable as my flesh has allways been greater & my habit fuller than was even safe.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

During my confinement I have taken a full survey of myself my affairs &c

While I have to acknowledge that Merit does not belong to me - I was thankful to find my mind so tranquil & settled in contemplating the event of Death - I was fully confirmed that in Religion I had followed no cunningly devised fable, but that Quakerism as professed by our Ancient friends was the Truth as it stands in Jesus Christ our Lord & those who follow his leadings & teachings by his Holy spirit will find something as an Anchor sure & steadfast to depend upon -

My outward affairs being generally snug I found nothing but what might be easily settled & perhaps enough left to make my dear wife comfortable - I have been up to Father Rodmans today the first time since my confinement - tho I have been twice out a little way before

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 18, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd M 18th (1st day) 1838 / I was well enough today to have attended Meetings but it was a Severe Snow & rain Storm all day which prevented me - I wanted to meet with my brethren again, but the state of the weather rendered it imprudent -I have had a long & tedious confinement but have been favoured with a good degree of Patience & resignation - I am yet far from being entirely well, but so much better as not to be under severe suffering, for which I am desirous to feel thankful & believe I am favoured to to feel.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 19, Monday: Senator Morris submitted a number of thorny issues in regard to the slave-trade to the US Senate.

"Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be instructed to inquire whether the present laws of the United States, on the subject of the slave trade, will prohibit that trade being carried on between citizens of the United States and citizens of the Republic of Texas, either by land or by sea; and whether it would be lawful in vessels owned by citizens of that Republic, and not lawful in vessels owned by citizens of this, or lawful in both, and by citizens of both countries; and also whether a slave carried from the United States into a foreign country, and brought back, on returning into the United States, is considered a free person, or is liable to be sent back, if demanded, as a slave, into that country from which he or she last came; and also whether any additional legislation by Congress is necessary on any of these subjects."

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 19th of 3rd M 1838 / We recd a kind & very acceptable letter from our daughter Mary A Gould by which we learn the family are well tho' there are a number Sick around them. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 22, Thursday: Senator Calhoun of South Carolina spoke in the US Senate in response to the speech that Senator Daniel Webster of Massachusetts had delivered on March 12th. When he had concluded, Webster rose and responded as follows:⁴²⁹

Mr. President,—I came rather late to the Senate this morning, and, happening to meet a friend on the Avenue, I was admonished to hasten my steps, as "the war was to be carried into Africa," and I was expected to be annihilated. I lost no time in following the advice, Sir, since it would be awkward for one to be annihilated without knowing any thing about it.

Well, Sir, the war has been carried into Africa. The honorable member has made an expedition into regions as remote from the subject of this debate as the orb of Jupiter from that of our earth. He has spoken of the tariff, of slavery, and of the late war. Of all this I do not complain. On the contrary, if it be his pleasure to allude to all or any of these topics, for any purpose whatever, I am ready at all times to hear him.

Sir, this carrying the war into Africa, which has become so common a phrase among us, is, indeed, imitating a great example; but it is an example which is not always followed with success. In the first place, every man, though he be a man of talent and genius, is not a Scipio; and in the next place, as I recollect this part of Roman and Carthaginian history,—the gentleman may be more accurate, but, as I recollect it, when Scipio resolved upon carrying the war into Africa, Hannibal was not at home. Now, Sir, I am very little like Hannibal, but I am at home; and when Scipio Africanus South-Caroliniensis brings the war into my territories, I shall not leave their defence to Asdrubal, nor Syphax, nor anybody else. I meet him on the shore, at his landing, and propose but one contest.

"Concurritur; horae Momento cita mors venit, aut victoria laeta."

Mr. President, I had made up my mind that, if the honorable gentleman should confine himself to a reply in the ordinary way, I would not say another syllable. But he has not done so. He has gone off into topics quite remote from all connection with revenue, commerce, finance, or sub-treasuries, and invites to a discussion which, however uninteresting to the public at the present moment, is too personal to be declined by me.

He says, Sir, that I undertook to compare my political character and conduct with his. Far from it. I attempted no such thing. I

429. Edwin P. Whipple's THE GREAT SPEECHES AND ORATIONS OF DANIEL WEBSTER WITH AN ESSAY ON DANIEL WEBSTER AS A MASTER OF ENGLISH STYLE (Boston: Little, Brown, 1879).

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

compared the gentleman's political opinions at different times with one another, and expressed decided opposition to those which he now holds. And I did, certainly, advert to the general tone and drift of the gentleman's sentiments and expressions for some years past, in their bearing on the Union, with such remarks as I thought they deserved; but I instituted no comparison between him and myself. He may institute one if he pleases, and when he pleases. Seeking nothing of this kind, I avoid nothing. Let it be remembered, that the gentleman began the debate, by attempting to exhibit a contrast between the present opinions and conduct of my friends and myself, and our recent opinions and conduct. Here is the first charge of inconsistency; let the public judge whether he has made it good. He says, Sir, that on several questions I have taken different sides, at different times; let him show it. If he shows any change of opinion, I shall be called on to give a reason, and to account for it. I leave it to the country to say whether, as yet, he has shown any such thing.

But, Sir, before attempting that, he has something else to say. He had prepared, it seems, to draw comparisons himself. He had intended to say something, if time had allowed, upon our respective opinions and conduct in regard to the war. If time had allowed! Sir, time does allow, time must allow. A general remark of that kind ought not to be, cannot be, left to produce its effect, when that effect is obviously intended to be unfavorable. Why did the gentleman allude to my votes or my opinions respecting the war at all, unless he had something to say? Does he wish to leave an undefined impression that something was done, or something said, by me, not now capable of defence or justification? something not reconcilable with true patriotism? He means that, or nothing. And now, Sir, let him bring the matter forth; let him take the responsibility of the accusation; let him state his facts. I am here to answer; I am here, this day, to answer. Now is the time, and now the hour. I think we read, Sir, that one of the good spirits would not bring against the Arch-enemy of mankind a railing accusation; and what is railing but general reproach, an imputation without fact, time, or circumstance? Sir, I call for particulars. The gentleman knows my whole conduct well; indeed, the journals show it all, from the moment I came into Congress till the peace. If I have done, then, Sir, any thing unpatriotic, any thing which, as far as love to country goes, will not bear comparison with his or any man's conduct, let it now be stated. Give me the fact, the time, the manner. He speaks of the war; that which we call the late war, though it is now twenty-five years since it terminated. He would leave an impression that I opposed it. How? I was not in Congress when war was declared, nor in public life anywhere. I was pursuing my profession, keeping company with judges and jurors, and plaintiffs and defendants. If I had been in Congress, and had enjoyed the benefit of hearing the honorable gentleman's speeches, for aught I can say, I might have concurred with him. But I was not in public life. I never had been, for a single hour; and was in no situation, therefore, to oppose or to support the declaration of war. I am speaking to the fact, Sir; and if the gentleman has any fact, let us know it. Well, Sir, I came into Congress during the war. I found it waged, and raging. And what did I do here to oppose it? Look to the journals. Let the honorable gentleman tax his memory. Bring up any thing, if there be any thing to bring up, not showing error of opinion, but showing want of loyalty or fidelity to the country. I did not agree to all that was proposed, nor did the honorable member. I did not approve of every measure, nor did he. The war had been preceded by the restrictive system and the embargo. As a private individual, I certainly did not think well of these measures. It appeared to me that the embargo annoyed ourselves as much as our enemies, while it destroyed the business and cramped the spirits of the people. In this opinion I may have been right or wrong, but the gentleman was himself of the same opinion. He told us the other day, as a proof of his independence of party on great questions, that he differed with his friends on the subject of the embargo. He was decidedly and unalterably opposed to it. It furnishes in his judgment, therefore, no imputation either on my patriotism, or on the soundness of my political opinions, that I was opposed to it also. I mean opposed in opinion; for I was not in Congress, and had nothing to do with the act creating the embargo. And as to opposition to measures for carrying on the war, after I came into Congress, I again say, let the gentleman specify; let him lay his finger on any thing calling for an answer, and he shall have an answer.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Mr. President, you were yourself in the House during a considerable part of this time. The honorable gentleman may make a witness of you. He may make a witness of anybody else. He may be his own witness. Give us but some fact, some charge, something capable in itself either of being proved or disproved. Prove any thing, state any thing, not consistent with honorable and patriotic conduct, and I am ready to answer it. Sir, I am glad this subject has been alluded to in a manner which justifies me in taking public notice of it; because I am well aware that, for ten years past, infinite pains has been taken to find something, in the range of these topics, which might create prejudice against me in the country. The journals have all been pored over, and the reports ransacked, and scraps of paragraphs and half-sentences have been collected, fraudulently put together, and then made to flare out as if there had been some discovery. But all this failed. The next resort was to supposed correspondence. My letters were sought for, to learn if, in the confidence of private friendship, I had ever said any thing which an enemy could make use of. With this view, the vicinity of my former residence has been searched, as with a lighted candle. New Hampshire has been explored, from the mouth of the Merrimack to the White Hills. In one instance a gentleman had left the State, gone five hundred miles off, and died. His papers were examined; a letter was found, and I have understood it was brought to

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Washington; a conclave was held to consider it, and the result was, that, if there was nothing else against Mr. Webster, the matter had better be let alone. Sir, I hope to make everybody of that opinion who brings against me a charge of want of patriotism. Errors of opinion can be found, doubtless, on many subjects; but as conduct flows from the feelings which animate the heart, I know that no act of my life has had its origin in the want of ardent love of country.

Sir, when I came to Congress, I found the honorable gentleman a leading member of the House of Representatives. Well, Sir, in what did we differ? One of the first measures of magnitude, after I came here, was Mr. Dallas's [The Secretary of the Treasury] proposition for a bank. It was a war measure. It was urged as being absolutely necessary to enable government to carry on the war. Government wanted revenue; such a bank, it was hoped, would furnish it; and on that account it was most warmly pressed and urged on Congress. You remember all this, Mr. President. You remember how much some persons supposed the success of the war and the salvation of the country depended on carrying that measure. Yet the honorable member from South Carolina opposed this bill. He now takes to himself a good deal of merit, none too much, but still a good deal of merit, for having defeated it. Well, Sir, I agreed with him. It was a mere paper bank; a machine for fabricating irredeemable paper. It was a new form for paper money; and instead of benefiting the country, I thought it would plunge it deeper and deeper in difficulty. I made a speech on the subject; it has often been quoted. There it is; let whoever pleases read and examine it. I am not proud of it for any ability it exhibits; on the other hand, I am not ashamed of it for the spirit which it manifests. But, Sir, I say again that the gentleman himself took the lead against this measure, this darling measure of the administration. I followed him; if I was seduced into error, or into unjustifiable opposition, there sits my seducer.

What, Sir, were other leading sentiments or leading measures of that day? On what other subjects did men differ? The gentleman has adverted to one, and that a most important one; I mean the navy. He says, and says truly, that at the commencement of the war the navy was unpopular. It was unpopular with his friends, who then controlled the politics of the country. But he says he differed with his friends; in this respect he resisted party influence and party connection, and was the friend and advocate of the navy. Sir, I commend him for it. He showed his wisdom. That gallant little navy soon fought itself into favor, and showed that no man who had placed reliance on it had been disappointed.

Well, Sir, in all this I was exactly of the opinion of the honorable gentleman.

Sir, I do not know when my opinion of the importance of a naval force to the United States had its origin. I can give no date to my present sentiments on this subject, because I never entertained different sentiments. I remember, Sir, that immediately after coming into my profession, at a period when the navy was most unpopular, when it was called by all sorts of hard names and designated by many coarse epithets, on one of those occasions on which young men address their neighbors, I ventured to put forth a boy's hand in defence of the navy. I insisted on its importance, its adaptation to our circumstances and to our national character, and its indispensable necessity, if we intended to maintain and extend our commerce. These opinions and sentiments I brought into Congress; and the first time in which I presumed to speak on the topics of the day, I attempted to urge on the House a greater attention to the naval service. There were divers modes of prosecuting the war. On these modes, or on the degree of attention and expense which should be bestowed on each, different men held different opinions. I confess I looked with most hope to the results of naval warfare, and therefore I invoked government to invigorate and strengthen that arm of the national defence. I invoked it to seek its enemy upon the seas, to go where every auspicious indication pointed, and where the whole heart and soul of the country would go with it.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Sir, we were at war with the greatest maritime power on earth. England had gained an ascendancy on the seas over all the combined powers of Europe. She had been at war twenty years. She had tried her fortunes on the Continent, but generally with no success. At one time the whole Continent had been closed against her. A long line of armed exterior, an unbroken hostile array, frowned upon her from the Gulf of Archangel, round the promontory of Spain and Portugal, to the extreme point of Italy. There was not a port which an English ship could enter. Everywhere on the land the genius of her great enemy had triumphed. He had defeated armies, crushed coalitions, and overturned thrones; but, like the fabled giant, he was unconquerable only while he touched the land. On the ocean he was powerless. That field of fame was his adversary's, and her meteor flag was streaming in triumph over its whole extent. To her maritime ascendancy England owed every thing, and we were now at war with her. One of the most charming of her poets had said of her,—

"Her march is o'er the mountain waves,
Her home is on the deep."

Now, Sir, since we were at war with her, I was for intercepting this march; I was for calling upon her, and paying our respects to her, at home; I was for giving her to know that we, too, had a right of way over the seas, and that our marine officers and our sailors were not entire strangers on the bosom of the deep. I was for doing something more with our navy than keeping it on our own shores, for the protection of our coasts and harbors; I was for giving play to its gallant and burning spirit; for allowing it to go forth upon the seas, and to encounter, on an open and an equal field, whatever the proudest or the bravest of the enemy could bring against it. I knew the character of its officers and the spirit of its seamen; and I knew that, in their hands, though the flag of the country might go down to the bottom, yet, while defended by them, that it could never be dishonored or disgraced.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Since she was our enemy, and a most powerful enemy, I was for touching her, if we could, in the very apple of her eye; for reaching the highest feather in her cap; for clutching at the very brightest jewel in her crown. There seemed to me to be a peculiar propriety in all this, as the war was undertaken for the redress of maritime injuries alone. It was a war declared for free trade and sailors' rights. The ocean, therefore, was the proper theatre for deciding this controversy with our enemy, and on that theatre it was my ardent wish that our own power should be concentrated to the utmost.

So much, Sir, for the war, and for my conduct and opinions as connected with it. And, as I do not mean to recur to this subject often, nor ever, unless indispensably necessary, I repeat the demand for any charge, any accusation, any allegation whatever, that throws me behind the honorable gentleman, or behind any other man, in honor, in fidelity, in devoted love to that country in which I was born, which has honored me, and which I serve. I, who seldom deal in defiance, now, here, in my place, boldly defy the honorable member to put his insinuation in the form of a charge, and to support that charge by any proof whatever.

The gentleman has adverted to the subject of slavery. On this subject, he says, I have not proved myself a friend to the South. Why, Sir, the only proof is, that I did not vote for his resolutions.

Sir, this is a very grave matter; it is a subject very exciting and inflammable. I take, of course, all the responsibility belonging to my opinions; but I desire these opinions to be understood, and fairly stated. If I am to be regarded as an enemy to the South, because I could not support the gentleman's resolutions, be it so. I cannot purchase favor from any quarter, by the sacrifice of clear and conscientious convictions. The principal resolution declared that Congress had plighted its faith not to interfere either with slavery or the slave trade in the District of Columbia.

Now, Sir, this is quite a new idea. I never heard it advanced until this session. I have heard gentlemen contend that no such power was in the Constitution; but the notion, that, though the Constitution contained the power, yet Congress had plighted its faith not to exercise such a power, is an entire novelty, so far as I know. I must say, Sir, it appeared to me little else than an attempt to put a prohibition into the Constitution, because there was none there already. For this supposed plighting of the public faith, or the faith of Congress, I saw no ground, either in the history of the government, or in any one fact, or in any argument. I therefore could not vote for the proposition.

Sir, it is now several years since I took care to make my opinion known, that this government has, constitutionally, nothing to do with slavery, as it exists in the States. That opinion is entirely unchanged. I stand steadily by the resolution of the

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

House of Representatives, adopted, after much consideration, at the commencement of the government, which was, that Congress has no authority to interfere in the emancipation of slaves, or in the treatment of them, within any of the States; it remaining with the several States alone to provide any regulations therein, which humanity and true policy may require. This, in my opinion, is the Constitution and the law. I feel bound by it. I have quoted the resolution often. It expresses the judgment of men of all parts of the country, deliberately and coolly formed; and it expresses my judgment, and I shall adhere to it. But this has nothing to do with the other constitutional question; that is to say, the mere constitutional question whether Congress has the power to regulate slavery and the slave trade in the District of Columbia.

On such a question, Sir, when I am asked what the Constitution is, or whether any power granted by it has been compromised away, or, indeed, could be compromised away, I must express my honest opinion, and always shall express it, if I say any thing, notwithstanding it may not meet concurrence either in the South, or the North, or the East, or the West. I cannot express by my vote what I do not believe. The gentleman has chosen to bring that subject into this debate, with which it has no concern; but he may make the most of it, if he thinks he can produce unfavorable impressions against me at the South from my negative to his fifth resolution. As to the rest of them, they were commonplaces, generally, or abstractions; in regard to which, one may well feel himself not called on to vote at all.

And now, Sir, in regard to the tariff. That is a long chapter, but I am quite ready to go over it with the honorable member. He charges me with inconsistency. That may depend on deciding what inconsistency is, in respect to such subjects, and how it is to be proved. I will state the facts, for I have them in my mind somewhat more fully than the honorable member has himself presented them. Let us begin at the beginning. In 1816 I voted against the tariff law which then passed. In 1824 I again voted against the tariff law which was then proposed, and which passed. A majority of New England votes, in 1824, were against the tariff system. The bill received but one vote from Massachusetts; but it passed. The policy was established. New England acquiesced in it; conformed her business and pursuits to it; embarked her capital, and employed her labor, in manufactures; and I certainly admit that, from that time, I have felt bound to support interests thus called into being, and into importance, by the settled policy of the government. I have stated this often here, and often elsewhere. The ground is defensible, and I maintain it.

As to the resolutions adopted in Boston in 1820, and which resolutions he has caused to be read, and which he says he presumes I prepared, I have no recollection of having drawn the resolutions, and do not believe I did. But I was at the meeting, and addressed the meeting, and what I said on that occasion was produced here, and read in the Senate, years ago.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The resolutions, Sir, were opposed to the commencing of a high tariff policy. I was opposed to it, and spoke against it; the city of Boston was opposed to it; the Commonwealth of Massachusetts was opposed to it. Remember, Sir, that this was in 1820. This opposition continued till 1824. The votes all show this. But in 1824 the question was decided; the government entered upon the policy; it invited men to embark their property and their means of living in it. Individuals thus encouraged have done this to a great extent; and therefore I say, so long as the manufactures shall need reasonable and just protection from government, I shall be disposed to give it to them. What is there, Sir, in all this, for the gentleman to complain of? Would he have us always oppose the policy adopted by the country on a great question? Would he have minorities never submit to the will of majorities?

I remember to have said, Sir, at the meeting in Faneuil Hall, that protection appeared to be regarded as incidental to revenue, and that the incident could not be carried fairly above the principal; in other words, that duties ought not to be laid for the mere object of protection. I believe that proposition to be substantially correct. I believe that, if the power of protection be inferred only from the revenue power, the protection could only be incidental.

But I have said in this place before, and I repeat it now, that Mr. Madison's publication after that period, and his declaration that the Convention did intend to grant the power of protection under the commercial clause, placed the subject in a new and a clear light. I will add, Sir, that a paper drawn up apparently with the sanction of Dr. Franklin, and read to a circle of friends at his house, on the eve of the assembling of the Convention, respecting the powers which the proposed new government ought to possess, shows plainly that, in regulating commerce, it was expected that Congress would adopt a course which should protect the manufactures of the North. He certainly went into the Convention himself under that conviction.

Well, Sir, and now what does the gentleman make out against me in relation to the tariff? What laurels does he gather in this part of Africa? I opposed the policy of the tariff, until it had become the settled and established policy of the country. I have never questioned the constitutional power of Congress to grant protection, except so far as the remark made in Faneuil Hall goes, which remark respects only the length to which protection might properly be carried, so far as the power is derived from the authority to lay duties on imports. But the policy being established, and a great part of the country having placed vast interests at stake in it, I have not disturbed it; on the contrary, I have insisted that it ought not to be disturbed. If there be inconsistency in all this, the gentleman is at liberty to blazon it forth; let him see what he can make of it.

Here, Sir, I cease to speak of myself; and respectfully ask pardon of the Senate for having so long detained it upon any thing so unimportant as what relates merely to my own public

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

conduct and opinions.

Sir, the honorable member is pleased to suppose that our spleen is excited, because he has interfered to snatch from us a victory over the administration. If he means by this any personal disappointment, I shall not think it worth while to make a remark upon it. If he means a disappointment at his quitting us while we were endeavoring to arrest the present policy of the administration, why then I admit, Sir, that I, for one, felt that disappointment deeply. It is the policy of the administration, its principles, and its measures, which I oppose. It is not persons, but things; not men, but measures. I do wish most fervently to put an end to this anti-commercial policy; and if the overthrow of the policy shall be followed by the political defeat of its authors, why, Sir, it is a result which I shall endeavor to meet with equanimity.

Sir, as to the honorable member's wresting the victory from us, or as to his ability to sustain the administration in this policy, there may be some doubt about that. I trust the citadel will yet be stormed, and carried, by the force of public opinion, and that no Hector will be able to defend its walls.

But now, Sir, I must advert to a declaration of the honorable member, which, I confess, did surprise me. The honorable member says, that, personally, he and myself have been on friendly terms, but that we always differed on great constitutional questions. Sir, this is astounding. And yet I was partly prepared for it; for I sat here the other day, and held my breath, while the honorable gentleman declared, and repeated, that he had always belonged to the State-rights party. And he means, by what he has declared to-day, that he has always given to the Constitution a construction more limited, better guarded, less favorable to the extension of the powers of this government, than that which I have given to it. He has always interpreted it according to the strict doctrines of the school of State rights! Sir, if the honorable member ever belonged, until very lately, to the State-rights party, the connection was very much like a secret marriage. And never was secret better kept. Not only were the espousals not acknowledged, but all suspicion was avoided. There was no known familiarity, or even kindness, between them. On the contrary, they acted like parties who were not at all fond of each other's company.

Sir, is there a man in my hearing, among all the gentlemen now surrounding us, many of whom, of both houses, have been here many years, and know the gentleman and myself perfectly,—is there one who ever heard, supposed, or dreamed that the honorable member belonged to the State-rights party before the year 1825? Can any such connection be proved upon him, can he prove it upon himself, before that time?

Sir, I will show you, before I resume my seat, that it was not until after the gentleman took his seat in the chair which you now occupy, that any public manifestation, or intimation, was ever given by him of his having embraced the peculiar doctrines of the State-rights party. The truth is, Sir, the honorable gentleman had acted a very important and useful part during the war. But the war terminated. Toward the end of the session of 1814-15, we received the news of peace. This closed the Thirteenth Congress. In the fall of 1815, the Fourteenth Congress assembled. It was full of ability, and the honorable gentleman stood high among its distinguished members. He remained in the House, Sir, through the whole of that Congress; and now, Sir, it is easy to show that, during those two years, the honorable gentleman took a decided lead in all those great measures which he has since so often denounced as unconstitutional and oppressive, the bank, the tariff, and internal improvements. The war being terminated, the gentleman's mind turned itself toward internal administration and improvement. He surveyed the whole country, contemplated its resources, saw what it was capable of becoming, and held a political faith not so narrow and contracted as to restrain him from useful and efficient action. He was, therefore, at once a full length ahead of all others in measures which were national, and which required a broad and liberal construction of the Constitution. This is historic truth. Of his agency in the bank, and other measures connected with the currency, I have already spoken, and I do not understand him to deny any thing I have said, in that particular. Indeed, I have said nothing capable of denial.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Now allow me a few words upon the tariff. The tariff of 1816 was distinctly a South Carolina measure. Look at the votes, and you will see it. It was a tariff for the benefit of South Carolina interests, and carried through Congress by South Carolina votes and South Carolina influence. Even the minimum, Sir, the so-much-reproached, the abominable minimum, that subject of angry indignation and wrathful rhetoric, is of Southern origin, and has a South Carolina parentage.

Sir, the contest on that occasion was chiefly between the cotton-growers at home, and the importers of cotton fabrics from India. These India fabrics were made from the cotton of that country. The people of this country were using cotton fabrics not made of American cotton, and, so far, they were diminishing the demand for such cotton. The importation of India cottons was then very large, and this bill was designed to put an end to it, and, with the help of the minimum, it did put an end to it. The cotton manufactures of the North were then in their infancy. They had some friends in Congress, but, if I recollect, the majority of Massachusetts members and of New England members were against this cotton tariff of 1816. I remember well, that the main debate was between the importers of India cottons, in the North, and the cotton-growers of the South. The gentleman cannot deny the truth of this, or any part of it. Boston opposed this tariff, and Salem opposed it, warmly and vigorously. But the honorable member supported it, and the law passed. And now be it always remembered, Sir, that that act passed on the professed ground of protection; that it had in it the minimum principle, and that the honorable member, and other leading

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

gentlemen from his own State, supported it, voted for it, and carried it through Congress.

And now, Sir, we come to the doctrine of internal improvement, that other usurpation, that other oppression, which has come so near to justifying violent disruption of the government, and scattering the fragments of the Union to the four winds. Have the gentleman's State-rights opinions always kept him aloof from such unhallowed infringements of the Constitution? He says he always differed with me on constitutional questions. How was it in this most important particular? Has he here stood on the ramparts, brandishing his glittering sword against assailants, and holding out a banner of defiance? Sir, it is an indisputable truth, that he is himself the man, the ipse that first brought forward in Congress a scheme of general internal improvement, at the expense and under the authority of this government. He, Sir, is the very man, the ipsissimus ipse, who considerately, and on a settled system, began these unconstitutional measures, if they be unconstitutional. And now for the proof.

The act incorporating the Bank of the United States was passed in April, 1816. For the privileges of the charter, the proprietors of the bank were to pay to government a bonus, as it was called, of one million five hundred thousand dollars, in certain instalments. Government also took seven millions in the stock of the bank. Early in the next session of Congress, that is, in December, 1816, the honorable member moved, in the House of Representatives, that a committee be appointed to consider the propriety of setting apart this bonus, and also the dividends on the stock belonging to the United States, as a permanent fund for internal improvement. The committee was appointed, and the honorable member was made its chairman. He thus originated the plan, and took the lead in its execution. Shortly afterwards, he reported a bill carrying out the objects for which the committee had been appointed. This bill provided that the dividends on the seven millions of bank stock belonging to government, and also the whole of the bonus, should be permanently pledged as a fund for constructing roads and canals; and that this fund should be subject to such specific appropriations as Congress might subsequently make.

This was the bill; and this was the first project ever brought forward in Congress for a system of internal improvements. The bill goes the whole doctrine at a single jump. The Cumberland Road, it is true, was already in progress; and for that the gentleman had also voted. But there were, and are now, peculiarities about that particular expenditure which sometimes satisfy scrupulous consciences; but this bill of the gentleman's, without equivocation or saving clause, without if, or and, or but, occupied the whole ground at once, and announced internal improvement as one of the objects of this government, on a grand and systematic plan. The bill, Sir, seemed indeed too strong. It was thought by persons not esteemed extremely jealous of State rights to evince too little regard to the will of the States. Several gentlemen opposed the measure in that shape, on that account; and among them Colonel Pickering, then one of the Representatives from Massachusetts. Even Timothy Pickering could not quite sanction, or concur in, the honorable gentleman's doctrines to their full extent, although he favored the measure in its general character. He therefore prepared an amendment, as a substitute; and his substitute provided for two very important things not embraced in the original bill:—

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

First, that the proportion of the fund to be expended in each State, respectively, should be in proportion to the number of its inhabitants.

Second, that the money should be applied in constructing such roads, canals, and so forth, in the several States, as Congress might direct, with the assent of the State.

This, Sir, was Timothy Pickering's amendment to the gentleman's bill. And now, Sir, how did the honorable gentleman, who has always belonged to the State-rights party,—how did he treat this amendment, or this substitute? Which way do you think his State-rights doctrine led him? Why, Sir, I will tell you. He immediately rose, and moved to strike out the words "with the assent of the State"! Here is the journal under my hand, Sir; and here is the gentleman's motion. And certainly, Sir, it will be admitted that this motion was not of a nature to intimate that he was wedded to State rights. But the words were not struck out. The motion did not prevail. Mr. Pickering's substitute was adopted, and the bill passed the House in that form.

In committee of the whole on this bill, Sir, the honorable member made a very able speech both on the policy of internal improvements and the power of Congress over the subject. These points were fully argued by him. He spoke of the importance of the system, the vast good it would produce, and its favorable effect on the union of the States. "Let us, then," said he, "bind the republic together with a perfect system of roads and canals. Let us conquer space. It is thus the most distant parts of the republic will be brought within a few days' travel of the centre; it is thus that a citizen of the West will read the news of Boston still moist from the press."

But on the power of Congress to make internal improvements, ay, Sir, on the power of Congress, hear him! What were then his rules of construction and interpretation? How did he at that time read and understand the Constitution? Why, Sir, he said that "he was no advocate for refined arguments on the Constitution. The instrument was not intended as a thesis for the logician to exercise his ingenuity on. It ought to be construed with plain good-sense." This is all very just, I think, Sir; and he said much more in the same strain. He quoted many instances of laws passed, as he contended, on similar principles, and then added, that "he introduced these instances to prove the uniform sense of Congress and of the country (for they had not been objected to) as to our powers; and surely," said he, "they furnish better evidence of the true interpretation of the Constitution than the most refined and subtle arguments."

Here you see, Mr. President, how little original I am. You have

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

heard me again and again contending in my place here for the stability of that which has been long settled; you have heard me, till I dare say you have been tired, insisting that the sense of Congress, so often expressed, and the sense of the country, so fully shown and so firmly established, ought to be regarded as having decided finally certain constitutional questions. You see now, Sir, what authority I have for this mode of argument. But while the scholar is learning, the teacher renounces. Will he apply his old doctrine now—I sincerely wish he would—to the question of the bank, to the question of the receiving of bank-notes by government, to the power of Congress over the paper currency? Will he admit that these questions ought to be regarded as decided by the settled sense of Congress and of the country? O, no! Far otherwise. From these rules of judgment, and from the influence of all considerations of this practical nature, the honorable member now takes these questions with him into the upper heights of metaphysics, into the regions of those refinements and subtile arguments which he rejected with so much decision in 1817, as appears by this speech. He quits his old ground of common-sense, experience, and the general understanding of the country, for a flight among theories and ethereal abstractions.

And now, Sir, let me ask, when did the honorable member relinquish these early opinions and principles of his? When did he make known his adhesion to the doctrines of the State-rights party? We have been speaking of transactions in 1816 and 1817. What the gentleman's opinions then were, we have seen. When did he announce himself a State-rights man? I have already said, Sir, that nobody knew of his claiming that character until after the commencement of 1825; and I have said so, because I have before me an address of his to his neighbors at Abbeville, in May of that year, in which he recounts, very properly, the principal incidents in his career as a member of Congress, and as head of a department; and in which he says that, as a member of Congress, he had given his zealous efforts in favor of a restoration of specie currency, of a due protection of those manufactures which had taken root during the war, and, finally, of a system for connecting the various parts of the country by a judicious system of internal improvement. He adds, that it afterwards became his duty, as a member of the administration, to aid in sustaining against the boldest assaults those very measures which, as a member of Congress, he had contributed to establish.

And now, Sir, since the honorable gentleman says he has differed with me on constitutional questions, will he be pleased to say what constitutional opinion I have ever avowed for which I have not his express authority? Is it on the bank power? the tariff power? the power of internal improvement? I have shown his votes, his speeches, and his conduct, on all these subjects, up to the time when General Jackson became a candidate for the Presidency. From that time, Sir, I know we have differed; but if there was any difference before that time, I call upon him to point it out, to declare what was the occasion, what the question, and what the difference. And if before that period, Sir, by any speech, any vote, any public proceeding, or by any mode of announcement whatever, he gave the world to know that he belonged to the State-rights party, I hope he will now be kind enough to produce it, or to refer to it, or to tell us where we may look for it.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Sir, I will pursue this topic no farther. I would not have pursued it so far, I would not have entered upon it at all, had it not been for the astonishment I felt, mingled, I confess, with something of warmer feeling, when the honorable gentleman declared that he had always differed with me on constitutional questions. Sir, the honorable member read a quotation or two from a speech of mine in 1816, on the currency or bank question. With what intent, or to what end? What inconsistency does he show? Speaking of the legal currency of the country, that is, the coin, I then said it was in a good state. Was not that true? I was speaking of the legal currency; of that which the law made a tender. And how is that inconsistent with any thing said by me now, or ever said by me? I declared then, he says, that the framers of this government were hard-money men. Certainly they were. But are not the friends of a convertible paper hard-money men, in every practical and sensible meaning of the term? Did I, in that speech, or any other, insist on excluding all convertible paper from the uses of society? Most assuredly I did not. I never quite so far lost my wits, I think. There is but a single sentence in that speech which I should qualify if I were to deliver it again, and that the honorable member has not noticed. It is a paragraph respecting the power of Congress over the circulation of State banks, which might perhaps need explanation or correction. Understanding it as applicable to the case then before Congress, all the rest is perfectly accordant with my present opinions. It is well known that I never doubted the power of Congress to create a bank; that I was always in favor of a bank, constituted on proper principles; that I voted for the bank bill of 1815; and that I opposed that of 1816 only on account of one or two of its provisions, which I and others hoped to be able to strike out. I am a hard-money man, and always have been, and always shall be. But I know the great use of such bank paper as is convertible into hard money on demand; which may be called specie paper, and which is equivalent to specie in value, and much more convenient and useful for common purposes. On the other hand, I abhor all irredeemable paper; all old-fashioned paper money; all deceptive promises; every thing, indeed, in the shape of paper issued for circulation, whether by government or individuals, which cannot be turned into gold and silver at the will of the holder.

But, Sir, I have insisted that government is bound to protect and regulate the means of commerce, to see that there is a sound currency for the use of the people. The honorable gentleman asks, What then is the limit? Must Congress also furnish all means of commerce? Must it furnish weights and scales and steelyards? Most undoubtedly, Sir, it must regulate weights and measures, and it does so. But the answer to the general question is very obvious. Government must furnish all that which none but government can furnish. Government must do that for individuals which individuals cannot do for themselves. That is the very end of government. Why else have we a government? Can individuals make a currency? Can individuals regulate money? The distinction is as broad and plain as the Pennsylvania Avenue. No man can mistake it, or well blunder out of it. The gentleman asks if government must furnish for the people ships, and boats, and wagons. Certainly not. The gentleman here only recites the President's message of September. These things, and all such things, the people can furnish for themselves; but they cannot make a currency; they cannot, individually, decide what shall be the money of the country. That, everybody knows, is one of the prerogatives, and one of the duties, of government; and a duty which I think we are most unwisely and improperly neglecting. We may as well leave the people to make war and to make peace, each man for himself, as to leave to individuals the regulation of commerce and currency.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Mr. President, there are other remarks of the gentleman of which I might take notice. But should I do so, I could only repeat what I have already said, either now or heretofore. I shall, therefore, not now allude to them. My principal purpose in what I have said has been to defend myself; that was my first object; and next, as the honorable member has attempted to take to himself the character of a strict constructionist, and a State-rights man, and on that basis to show a difference, not favorable to me, between his constitutional opinions and my own, heretofore, it has been my intention to show that the power to create a bank, the power to regulate the currency by other and direct means, the power to enact a protective tariff, and the power of internal improvement, in its broadest sense, are all powers which the honorable gentleman himself has supported, has acted on, and in the exercise of which, indeed, he has taken a distinguished lead in the counsels of Congress.

If this has been done, my purpose is answered. I do not wish to prolong the discussion, nor to spin it out into a colloquy. If the honorable member has any thing new to bring forward; if he has any charge to make, any proof, or any specification; if he has any thing to advance against my opinions or my conduct, my honor or patriotism, I am still at home. I am here. If not, then, so far as I am concerned, this discussion will here terminate. I will say a few words, before I resume my seat, on the motion now pending. That motion is to strike out the specie-paying part of the bill. I have a suspicion, Sir, that the motion will prevail. If it should, it will leave a great vacuum; and how shall that vacuum be filled?

The part proposed to be struck out is that which requires all debts to government to be paid in specie. It makes a good provision for government, and for public men, through all classes. The Secretary of the Treasury, in his letter at the last session, was still more watchful of the interests of the holders of office. He assured us, that, bad as the times were, and notwithstanding the floods of bad paper which deluged the country, members of Congress should get gold and silver. In my opinion, Sir, this is beginning the use of good money in payments at the wrong end of the list. If there be bad money in the country, I think that Secretaries and other executive officers, and especially members of Congress, should be the last to receive any good money; because they have the power, if they will do their duty, and exercise it, of making the money of the country good for all. I think, Sir, it was a leading feature in Mr. Burke's famous bill for economical reform, that he provided, first of all, for those who are least able to secure themselves. Everybody else was to be well paid all they were entitled to, before the ministers of the crown, and other political characters, should have any thing. This seems to me very right. But we have a precedent, Sir, in our own country, more directly to the purpose; and as that which we now hope to strike out is the part of the bill furnished or proposed originally by the honorable member from South Carolina, it will naturally devolve on him to supply its place. I wish, therefore, to draw his particular attention to this precedent, which I am now about to produce.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Most members of the Senate will remember, that before the establishment of this government, and before or about the time that the territory which now constitutes the State of Tennessee was ceded to Congress, the inhabitants of the eastern part of that territory established a government for themselves, and called it the State of Franklin. They adopted a very good constitution, providing for the usual branches of legislative, executive, and judicial power. They laid and collected taxes, and performed other usual acts of legislation. They had, for the present, it is true, no maritime possessions, yet they followed the common forms in constituting high officers; and their governor was not only captain-general and commander-in-chief, but admiral also, so that the navy might have a commander when there should be a navy.

Well, Sir, the currency in this State of Franklin became very much deranged. Specie was scarce, and equally scarce were the notes of specie-paying banks. But the legislature did not propose any divorce of government and people; they did not seek to establish two currencies, one for men in office, and one for the rest of the community. They were content with neighbor's fare. It became necessary to pass what we should call now-a-days the civil-list appropriation bill. They passed such a bill; and when we shall have made a void in the bill now before us by striking out specie payments for government, I recommend to its friends to fill the gap, by inserting, if not the same provisions as were in the law of the State of Franklin, at least something in the same spirit.

The preamble of that law, Sir, begins by reciting, that the collection of taxes in specie had become very oppressive to the good people of the commonwealth, for the want of a circulating medium. A parallel case to ours, Sir, exactly. It recites further, that it is the duty of the legislature to hear, at all times, the prayer of their constituents, and apply as speedy a remedy as lies in their power. These sentiments are very just, and I sincerely wish there was a thorough disposition here to adopt the like.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Acting under the influence of these sound opinions, Sir, the legislature of Franklin passed a law for the support of the civil list, which, as it is short, I will beg permission to read. It is as follows:—

"Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Franklin, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That, from the first day of January, A.D. 1789, the salaries of the civil officers of this commonwealth be as follows, to wit:

"His excellency, the governor, per annum, one thousand deer-skins; his honor, the chief justice, five hundred do. do.; the attorney-general, five hundred do. do.; secretary to his excellency the governor, five hundred raccoon do.; the treasurer of the State, four hundred and fifty otter do.; each county clerk, three hundred beaver do.; clerk of the house of commons, two hundred raccoon do.; members of assembly, per diem, three do. do.; justice's fee for signing a warrant, one muskrat do.; to the constable, for serving a warrant, one mink do.

"Enacted into a law this 18th day of October, 1788, under the great seal of the State.

"Witness his excellency, &c.

"Governor, captain-general, commander-in-chief, and admiral in and over said State."

This, Sir, is the law, the spirit of which I commend to gentlemen. I will not speak of the appropriateness of these several allowances for the civil list. But the example is good, and I am of opinion that, until Congress shall perform its duty, by seeing that the country enjoys a good currency, the same medium which the people are obliged to use, whether it be skins or rags, is good enough for its own members.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 22 of 3M / I think I have omitted Nine Meetings in succession, it is the greatest absence that has occurred in my life on account of sickness, & I believe that has occurred at all

—

Today I attended, tho' it did not seem as if I was quite well enough, yet I got thro' the Meeting much more comfortably than I expected & do not find that I am the worse for it in the evening — I believe I am sensible of the favour, & desire to be thankful

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

for it. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 25, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 25 of 3rd M 1838 / Attend Meeting this Morning & set quite comfortably - but I was too unwell to go in the Afternoon & have been quite unwell this evening. – Gilbert Congdon from Providence called last evening & spent the night with us - he left us this Morning by the Steam Boat for home - We were glad to have his company & indeed our Providence friends in general are acceptable to us.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 28, Wednesday: The black community of Wilberforce in Canada was having problems with a confidence man named Israel Lewis who was apparently making the rounds soliciting contributions for their survival, and then simply pocketing most if not all of these gifts:

ISRAEL LEWIS.

MUMPERY

Wilberforce, U.C., March 28th, 1836.

The board of managers of the Wilberforce settlement, met and passed unanimously the following resolutions – Present, Austin Steward, Philip Harris, Peter Butler, William Bell, John Whitehead, Samuel Peters.

Resolved, 1st. That we deeply regret the manner in which our friends in the States have been imposed upon by Israel Lewis; and that we hereby inform them, as a board of managers or otherwise, that we have received less than one hundred dollars of all the money borrowed and collected in the States.

Resolved, 2d. That although we have not received one hundred dollars from said Lewis, yet, when we shall have received the funds collected by our agent, the Rev. Nathan Paul, in England, we will refund as far as our abilities will allow and our friends may require, the money contributed for our supposed benefit, by them in the States.

Resolved, 3d. That we tender our sincere thanks to our beloved friends, Arthur Tappan and others, who have taken such deep interest in the welfare of our little colony.

Resolved, 4th. That the foregoing resolutions be signed by the whole board, and sent to the States to be published in the New York Observer and other papers.

AUSTIN STEWARD, President,

PETER BUTLER, Treasurer,

JOHN HALMES, Secretary.

PHILIP HARRIS, }

WILLIAM BELL, }

JOHN WHITEHEAD, } Managers.

SAMUEL PETERS, }

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Just prior to the election that had taken place in Rhode Island, Oliver Johnson, the Corresponding Secretary of the Rhode Island Anti-Slavery Society, had written to each of the candidates for governor and lieutenant-governor expressing the views of the abolitionists by posing a series of questions. Mr. Sprague, who was elected governor, had responded from Warwick in the following vein (the answer received from Mr. Childs, who was elected lieutenant-governor, was in a similar vein):

DEAR SIR,—

Your favor of the 19th inst. requesting of me, in conformity to a resolution of the Executive Committee of the Rhode Island Anti-Slavery Society, an expression of my opinions on certain topics, was duly received. I have no motive whatever for withholding my opinions on any subject which is interesting to any portion of my fellow-citizens. I will, therefore, cheerfully proceed to reply to the interrogatories proposed, and in the order in which they are submitted.

1. Among the powers vested by the Constitution in Congress, is the power to exercise exclusive legislation, 'in all cases whatsoever,' over the District of Columbia? 'All cases' must, of course, include the case of slavery and the slave-trade. I am, therefore, clearly of opinion, that the Constitution does confer upon Congress the power to abolish slavery and the slave-trade in that District; and, as they are great moral and political evils, the principles of justice and humanity demand the exercise of that power.

2. The traffic in slaves, whether foreign or domestic, is equally obnoxious to every principle of justice and humanity; and, as Congress has exercised its powers to suppress the slave-trade between this country and foreign nations, it ought, as a matter of consistency and justice, to exercise the same powers to suppress the slave-trade between the states of this Union. The slave-trade within the states is, undoubtedly, beyond the control of Congress; as the 'sovereignty of each state, to legislate exclusively on the subject of slavery, which is tolerated within its limits,' is, I believe, universally conceded. The Constitution unquestionably recognises the sovereign power of each state to legislate on the subject within its limits; but it imposes on us no obligation to add to the evils of the system by countenancing the traffic between the states. That which our laws have solemnly pronounced to be piracy in our foreign intercourse, no sophistry can make honorable or justifiable in a domestic form. For a proof of the feelings which this traffic naturally inspires, we need but refer to the universal execration in which the slave-dealer is held in those portions of the country where the institution of slavery is guarded with the most jealous vigilance.

3. Congress has no power to abridge the right of petition. The right of the people of the non-slaveholding states to petition Congress for the abolition of slavery and the slave-trade in the District of Columbia, and the traffic of human beings among the states, is as undoubted as any right guaranteed by the Constitution; and I regard the Resolution which was adopted by the House of Representatives on the 21st of December last as a virtual denial of that right, inasmuch as it disposed of all such petitions, as might be presented thereafter, in advance of presentation and reception. If it was right thus to dispose of petitions on one subject, it would be equally right to dispose of them in the same manner on all subjects, and thus cut of all communication, by petition between the people and their representatives. Nothing can be more clearly a violation of the spirit of the Constitution, as it rendered utterly nugatory a right which was considered of such vast importance as to be specially guarantied in that sacred instrument. A similar Resolution passed the House of Representatives at the first session of the last Congress, and as I then entertained the same views which I have now expressed, I recorded my vote against it.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

4. I fully concur in the sentiment, that 'every principle of justice and humanity requires, that every human being, when personal freedom is at stake, should have the benefit of a jury trial;' and I have no hesitation in saying, that the laws of this state ought to secure that benefit, so far as they can, to persons claimed as fugitives from 'service or labor,' without interfering with the laws of the United States. The course pursued in relation to this subject by the Legislature of Massachusetts meets my approbation.

5. I am opposed to all attempts to abridge or restrain the freedom of speech and the press, or to forbid any portion of the people peaceably to assemble to discuss any subject – moral, political, or religious.

6. I am opposed to the annexation of Texas to the United States.

7. It is undoubtedly inconsistent with the principles of a free state, professing to be governed in its legislation by the principles of freedom, to sanction slavery, in any form, within its jurisdiction. If we have laws in this state which bear this construction, they ought to be repealed. We should extend to our southern brethren, whenever they may have occasion to come among us, all the privileges and immunities enjoyed by our own citizens, and all the rights and privileges guarantied to them by the Constitution of the United States; but they cannot expect of us to depart from the fundamental principles of civil liberty for the purpose of obviating any temporal inconvenience which they may experience.

These are my views upon the topics proposed for my consideration. They are the views which I have always entertained, (at least ever since I have been awakened to their vast importance,) and which I have always supported, so far as I could, by my vote in Congress; and if, in any respect, my answers have not been sufficiently explicit, it will afford me pleasure to reply to any other questions which you may think proper to propose.

I am, Sir, very respectfully,
Your friend and fellow citizen,

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

WILLIAM SPRAGUE."

APPENDIX F.

The following is believed to be a correct exhibit of the legislative resolutions against the annexation of Texas – of the times at which they were passed, and of the votes by which they were passed:–

1. VERMONT.

"1. Resolved, By the Senate and House of Representatives, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives requested, to use their influence in that body to prevent the annexation of Texas to the Union.

2. Resolved, That representing, as we do, the people of Vermont, we do hereby, in their name, SOLEMNLY PROTEST against such annexation in any form."

[Passed unanimously, Nov. 1, 1837.]

2. RHODE ISLAND.

(In General Assembly, October Session, A. D. 1837.)

"Whereas the compact of the Union between these states was entered into by the people thereof in their respective states, 'in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, ensure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to themselves and their posterity;' and, therefore, a Representative Government was instituted by them, with certain limited powers, clearly specified and defined in the Constitution – all other powers, not therein expressly relinquished, being 'reserved to the states respectively, or to the people.'

And whereas this limited government possesses no power to extend its jurisdiction over any foreign nation, and no foreign nation, country, or people, can be admitted into this Union but by the sovereign will and act of the free people of all and each of these United States, nor without the formation of a new compact of Union – and another frame of government radically different, in objects, principles, and powers, from that which was framed for our own self-government, and deemed to be adequate to all the exigencies of our own free republic:–

Therefore, Resolved, That we have witnessed, with deep concern, the indications of a disposition to bring into this Union, as a constituent member thereof, the foreign province or territory of Texas.

Resolved, That, although we are fully aware of the consequences which must follow the accomplishment of such a project, could it be accomplished – aware that it would lead speedily to the conquest and annexation of Mexico itself, and its fourteen remaining provinces or intendencias – which, together with the revolted province of Texas, would furnish foreign territories

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

and foreign people for at least twenty members of the new Union; that the government of a nation so extended and so constructed would soon become radically [changed] in character, if not in form – would unavoidably become a military government; and, under the plea of necessity, would free itself from the restraints of the Constitution and from its accountability to the people. That the ties of kindred, common origin and common interests, which have so long bound this people together, and would still continue to bind them: these ties, which ought to be held sacred by all true Americans, would be angrily dissolved, and sectional political combinations would be formed with the newly admitted foreign states, unnatural and adverse to the peace and prosperity of the country. The civil government, with all the arbitrary powers it might assume, would be unable to control the storm. The usurper would find himself in his proper element; and, after acting the patriot and the hero for a due season, as the only means of rescuing the country from the ruin which he had chiefly contributed to bring upon it, would reluctantly and modestly allow himself to be declared 'Protector of the Commonwealth.'

We are now fully aware of the deep degradation into which the republic would sink itself in the eyes of the whole world, should it annex to its own vast territories other and foreign territories of immense though unknown extent, for the purpose of encouraging the propagation of slavery, and giving aid to the raising of slaves within its own bosom, the very bosom of freedom, to be esported and sold in those unhallowed regions. Although we are fully aware of these fearful evils, and numberless others which would come in their train, yet we do not here dwell upon them; because we are here firmly convinced that the free people of most, and we trust of all these states, will never suffer the admission of the foreign territory of Texas into this Union as a constituent member thereof – will never suffer the integrity of this Republic to be violated, either by the introduction and addition to it of foreign nations or territories, one or many, or by dismemberment of it by the transfer of any one or more of its members to a foreign nation. The people will be aware, that should one foreign state or country be introduced, another and another may be, without end, whether situated in South America, in the West India islands, or in any other part of the world; and that a single foreign state, thus admitted, might have in its power, by holding the balance between contending parties, to wrest their own government from the hands and control of the people, by whom it was established for their own benefit and self-government. We are firmly convinced, that the free people of these states will look upon any attempt to introduce the foreign territory of Texas, or any other foreign territory or nation into this Union, as a constituent member or members thereof, as manifesting a willingness to prostrate the Constitution and dissolve the Union.

Resolved, That His Excellency, the Governor, be requested to

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

forward a copy of the foregoing resolutions to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress, and to each of the Executives of the several states, with a request that the same may be laid before the respective Legislatures of said states."

[The Preamble and Resolutions were unanimously adopted, Nov. 3, 1837.]

3. OHIO.

"Resolved, by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, That in the name, and on behalf of the people of the State of Ohio, we do hereby SOLEMNLY PROTEST against the annexation of Texas to the Union of these United States.

And be it further resolved, That the Governor be requested to transmit to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress, and to the Governors of each of the States, a copy of the foregoing resolution, with a statement of the votes by which it was passed in each branch of the Legislature."

[Passed by 64 out of 72, the whole number in the House of Representatives – unanomously in the Senate. Feb. 24, 1838.]

4. MASSACHUSETTS.

"Resolves against the annexation of Texas to the United States. Whereas a proposition to admit into the United States as a constituent member thereof, the foreign nation of Texas, has been recommended by the legislative resolutions of several States, and brought before Congress for its approval and sanction; and whereas such a measure would involve great wrong to Mexico, and otherwise be of evil precedent, injurious to the interests and dishonorable to the character of this country; and whereas its avowed objects are doubly fraught with peril to the prosperity and permanence of this Union, as tending to disturb and destroy the conditions of those compromises and concessions, entered into at the formation of the Constitution, by which the relative weights of different sections and interests were adjusted, and to strengthen and extend the evils of a system which is unjust in itself, in striking contrast with the theory of our institutions, and condemned by the moral sentiment of mankind; and whereas the people of these United States have not granted to any or all of the departments of their Government, but have retained in themselves, the only power adequate to the admission of a foreign nation into this confederacy; therefore, Resolved, That we, the Senate and House of Representatives, in General Court assembled, do in the name of the people of Massachusetts, earnestly and solemnly protest against the incorporation of Texas into this Union, and declare, that no act done or compact made, for such purpose by the government of the United States, will be binding on the States or the People.

Resolved, That his Excellency the Governor be requested to forward a copy of these resolutions and the accompanying report to the Executive of the United States, and the Executive of each State and also to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress, with a request that they present the resolves to both

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Houses of Congress."

[Passed MARCH 16, 1838, UNANIMOUSLY, in both Houses.]

* * * * *

5. MICHIGAN.

Whereas, propositions have been made for the annexation of Texas to the United States, with a view to its ultimate incorporation into the Union:

"And whereas, the extension of this General Government over so large a country on the south-west, between which and that of the original states, there is little affinity, and less identity of interest, would tend, in the opinion of this Legislature, greatly to disturb the safe and harmonious operations of the Government of the United States, and put in imminent danger the continuance of this happy Union: Therefore,

Be it resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, That in behalf, and in the name of the State of Michigan, this Legislature doth hereby dissent from, and solemnly protest against the annexation, for any purpose, to this Union, of Texas, or of any other territory or district of country, heretofore constituting a part of the dominions of Spain in America, lying west or south-west of Louisiana.

And be it further Resolved, by the Authority aforesaid, That the Governor of this State be requested to transmit a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolve, under the great seal of this state, to the President of the United States; also, that he transmit one copy thereof, authenticated in manner aforesaid, to the President of the Senate of the United States, with the respectful request of this Legislature, that the same may be laid before the Senate; also, that he transmit one copy thereof to the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States, authenticated in like manner, with the respectful request of this Legislature, that the same may be laid before the House of Representatives; and also, that he transmit to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress, one copy thereof, together with the Report adopted by this Legislature, and which accompanies said preamble and resolves."

[Passed nearly if not quite unanimously, April 2, 1838].

* * * * *

6. CONNECTICUT.

"Resolved, That we, the Senate and House of Representatives in General Assembly convened, do, in the name of the people of this State, solemnly protest against the annexation of Texas to this Union."

[Passed, it is believed, unanimously in both houses.]

* * * * *

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

(Those which follow were passed by but one branch of the respective Legislatures in which they were introduced.)

7. PENNSYLVANIA.

Resolutions relative to the admission of Texas into the Union.

"Whereas the annexation of Texas to the United States has been advocated and strongly urged by many of our fellow-citizens, particularly in the southern part of our country, and the president of Texas has received authority to open a correspondence with, and appoint, a commissioner to our government to accomplish the object; – And whereas such a measure would bring to us a dangerous extension of territory, with a population generally not desirable, and would probably involve us in war; – And whereas the subject is now pressed upon and agitated in Congress; therefore,
Resolved, &c, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives requested, to use their influence and vote against the annexation of Texas to the territory of the united States.

Resolved, That the Governor transmit to each of our Senators and Representatives a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions."

[Passed the Senate March 9, 1835, by 22 to 6. Postponed indefinitely in the House of Representatives, April 13, by 41 to 39.]

* * * * *

8. MAINE.

"Resolved, That the Legislature of the State of Maine, on behalf of the people of said state, do earnestly and solemnly protest against the annexation of the Republic of Texas to these United States; and that our Senators and Representatives in Congress be, and they hereby are, requested to exert their utmost influence to prevent the adoption of a measure at once so clearly unconstitutional, and so directly calculated to disturb our foreign relations, to destroy our domestic peace, and to dismember our blessed Union."

[Passed in the House of Representatives, March 22, 1838, by 85 to 30. Senate (same day) refused to concur by 11 to 10.]

* * * * *

9. NEW-YORK.

"Resolved, (if the Senate concur,) That the admission of the Republic of Texas into this Union would be entirely repugnant to the will of the people of this state, and would endanger the union of these United States.

Resolved, (if the Senate concur,) That this Legislature do, in the name of the people of the State of New York, solemnly protest against the admission of the Republic of Texas into this Union.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Resolved, (if the Senate concur.) That his Excellency the Governor be requested to transmit a copy of the foregoing resolutions to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress, and also to the governors of each of the United States, with a request that the same be laid before their respective Legislatures."

[These resolutions passed the House of Representatives in April, by a large majority – the newspapers say, 83 to 13. They were indefinitely postponed in the Senate, by a vote of 21 to 9.]

APPENDIX G.

The number of petitioners for abolition in the District of Columbia, and on other subjects allied to it, have been ascertained (in the House of Representatives) to be as follows:—

	Men.	Women.	Total.
For abolition in the District,	51,366	78,882	130,248
Against the annexation of Texas,	104,973	77,419	182,392
Rescinding the gag resolution,	21,015	10,821	31,836
Against admitting any new slave state,	11,770	10,391	22,161
For abolition of the slave-trade between the states,	11,864	11,541	23,405
For abolition of slavery in the territories,	9,129	12,083	21,212
At the extra session for rescinding the gag resolution of Jan. 21, 1837,	3,377		3,377
Total,	213,494	201,137	414,631

The number in the Senate, where some difficulty was interposed that prevented its being taken, is estimated to have been about two-thirds as great as that in the House.

APPENDIX H.

[On the 1st of December, one of the secretaries of the American Anti-Slavery Society addressed a note to each of the Governors of the slave states, in which he informed them, in courteous and respectful terms, that he had directed the Publishing Agent of this society, thereafter regularly to transmit to them, free of charge, the periodical publications issued from the office of the society. To this offer the following replies were received:—]

GOVERNOR CAMPBELL'S LETTER.

JAMES G. BIRNEY, Esq., New York
"RICHMOND, Dec. 4, 1837.

SIR, — I received, by yesterday's mail, your letter of the 1st instant, in which you state that you had directed the publishing

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

agent of the American Anti-Slavery Society, hereafter, regularly to transmit, free of charge, by mail, to all the governors of the slave states, the periodical publications issued from that office.

Regarding your society as highly mischievous, I decline receiving any communications from it, and must request that no publications from your office be transmitted to me.

I am, &c,
DAVID CAMPBELL."

* * * * *

GOVERNOR BAGBY'S LETTER.

"TUSCALOOSA, Jan. 6, 1838

SIR, — I received, by due course of mail, your favor of the 1st of December, informing me that you had directed the publishing agent of the American Anti-Slavery Society to forward to the governors of the slaveholding states the periodicals issued from that office. Taking it for granted, that the only object which the society or yourself could have in view, in adopting this course, is, the dissemination of the opinions and principles of the society — having made up my own opinion, unalterably, in relation to the whole question of slavery, as it exists in a portion of the United States, and feeling confident that, in the correctness of this opinion, I am sustained by the entire free white population of Alabama, as well as the great body of the people of this Union, I must, with the greatest respect for yourself, personally but not for the opinions or principles advocated by the society — positively decline receiving said publications, or any others of a similar character, either personally or officially. Indeed, it is presuming a little too much, to expect that the chief magistrate of a free people, elected by themselves, would hold correspondence or give currency to the publications of an organized society, openly engaged in a scheme fraught with more mischievous consequences to their interest and repose, than any that the wit or folly of mankind has heretofore devised.

I am, very respectfully,

Your ob't servant,

A.P. BAGBY"

JAMES G. BIRNEY, Esq., New York.

* * * * *

GOVERNOR CANNON'S LETTER.

[This letter required so many alterations to bring it up to the ordinary standard of epistolary, grammatical, and orthographical accuracy, that it is thought best to give it in word and letter, precisely as it was received at the office.]

"EXECUTIVE DEPT.—

NASHVILLE. Dec. 12th, 1837.

Sir

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

I have rec'd yours of the 1st Inst notifying me, that you had directed, your periodical publications, on the subject of Slavery to be sent to me free of charge &c – and you are correct, if sincere, in your views, in supposing that we widely differ, on this subject, we do indeed widely differ, on it, if the publications said to have emanated from you, are honest and sincere, which, I admit, is possible.

My opinions are fix'd and settled, and I seldom Look into or examine, the, different vague notions of others who write and theorise on that subject. Hence I trust you will not expect me to examine, what you have printed on this subject, or cause to have printed. If you or any other man are influenced by feelings of humanity, and are laboring to relieve the sufferings, of the human race, you may find objects enough immediately around you, where you are, in any nonslaveholding State, to engage your, attention, and all your exertions, in that good cause.

But if your aim is to make a flourish on the subject, before the world, and to gain yourself some notoriety, or distinction, without, doing good to any, and evil to many, of the human race, you are, pursuing the course calculated to effect. Such an object, in which no honest man need envy. Your honours, thus gaind, I know there are many such in our country, but would fain hope, you are not one of them. If you have Lived, as you state forty years in a Slave holding State, you know that, that class of its population, are not the most, miserable, degraded, or unhappy, either in their feelings or habits, You know they are generally governd, and provided for by men of information and understanding sufficient to guard them against the most odious vices and habits of the country, from which, you know the slaves are in a far greater degree exempt than are other portions of the population. That the slaves are the most happy, moral and contented generally, and free from suffering of any kind, having, each full confidence, in his masters, skill means and disposition to provide well for him, knowing also at the same time that it is his interest to do it. Hence in this State of Society more than any other, Superior intelligence has the ascendancy, in governing and provideing, for the wants of those inferior, also in giveing direction to their Labour, and industry, as should be the case, superior intelligence Should govern, when united with Virtue, and interest, that great predominating principle in all human affairs. It is my rule of Life, when I see any man labouring to produce effects, at a distance from him, while neglecting the objects immediately around him, (in doing good) to suspect his sincerity, to suspect him for some selfish, or sinister motive, all is not gold that glitters, and every man is not what he, endeavours to appear to be, is too well known. It is the duty of masters to take care of there slaves and provide for them, and this duty I believe is as generally and as fully complyd with as any other duty enjoind on the human family, for next to their children their own offspring, their slaves stand next foremost in their care and attention, there are indeed very few instances of a contrary character.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

You can find around you, I doubt not a large number of persons intemix'd, in your society, who are entirely destitute of that care, and attention, towards them that is enjoyed by our slaves, and who are destitute of that deep feeling of interest, in guarding their morals and habits, and directing them through Life in all things, which is here enjoyed by our slaves, to those let your efforts be directed immediately around you and do not trouble with your vague speculations those who are contented and happy, at a distance from you.

Very respectfully yours,

N. CANNON."

Mr. JAS. G. BIRNEY, Cor. Sec. &c.

* * * * *

[The letter of the Secretary to the governor of South Carolina was not answered, but was so inverted and folded as to present the subscribed name of the secretary, as the superscription of the same letter to be returned. The addition of New York to the address brought it back to this office.

Whilst governor Butler was thus refusing the information that was proffered to him in the most respectful terms from this office, he was engaged in another affair, having connection with the anti-slavery movement, as indiscreet, as it was unbecoming the dignity of the office he holds. The following account of it is from one of the Boston papers:—]

"Hoaxing a Governor.— The National Aegis says, that Hollis Parker, who was sentenced to the state prison at the late term of the criminal court for Worcester county, for endeavoring to extort money from governor Everett, had opened an extensive correspondence, previous to his arrest, with similar intent, with other distinguished men of the country. Besides several individuals in New York, governor Butler, of South Carolina, was honored with his notice. A letter from that gentleman, directed to Parker, was lately received at the post office in a town near Worcester, enclosing a check for fifty dollars. So far as the character of Parker's letter can be inferred from the reply of governor Butler, it would appear, that Parker informed the governor, that the design was entertained by some of our citizens, of transmitting to South Carolina a quantity of 'incendiary publications,' and that with the aid of a little money, he (Parker) would be able to unravel the plot, and furnish full information concerning it to his excellency. The bait took, and the money was forwarded, with earnest appeals to Parker to be vigilant and active in thoroughly investigating the supposed conspiracy against the peace and happiness of the South.

The Aegis has the following very just remarks touching this case:— 'Governor Butler belongs to a state loud in its professions of regard for state rights and state sovereignty. We, also, are sincere advocates of that good old republican doctrine. It strikes us, that it would have comported better

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

with the spirit of that doctrine, the dignity, of his own station and character, the respect and courtesy due to a sovereign and independent state, if governor Butler had made the proper representation, if the subject was deserving of such notice, to the acknowledged head and constituted authorities of that state, instead of holding official correspondence with a citizen of a foreign jurisdiction, and employing a secret agent and informer, whose very offer of such service was proof of the base and irresponsible character of him who made it.'"

* * * * *

GOVERNOR CONWAY'S LETTER.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, LITTLE ROCK, ARKANSAS, March 1, 1838.

Sir — A newspaper, headed 'The Emancipator,' in which you are announced the 'publishing agent,' has, for some weeks past, arrived at the post office in this city, to my address. Not having subscribed, or authorized any individual to give my name as a subscriber, for that or any such paper, it is entirely gratuitous on the part of its publishers to send me a copy; and not having a favorable opinion of the intentions of the authors and founders of the 'American Anti-Slavery Society;' I have to request a discontinuance of 'The Emancipator.'

Your ob't servant, "J.S. CONWAY."

R. G. WILLIAMS, Esq., New York.

* * * * *

[NOTE.— The following extract of a letter, from the late Chief Justice Jay to the late venerable Elias Boudinot, dated Nov. 17, 1819, might well have formed part of Appendix E. Its existence, however, was not known till it was too late to insert it in its most appropriate place. It shows the view taken of some of the constitutional questions by a distinguished jurist, — one of the purest patriots too, by whom our early history was illustrated.]

"Little can be added to what has been said and written on the subject of slavery. I concur in the opinion, that it ought not to be introduced, nor permitted in any of the new states; and that it ought to be gradually diminished, and finally, abolished, in all of them.

To me, the constitutional authority of the Congress to prohibit the migration and importation of slaves into any of the states, does not appear questionable.

The first article of the Constitution specifics the legislative powers committed to Congress. The ninth section of that article has these words:— 'The migration or importation of such persons as any of the now existing states shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year 1808 — but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation not exceeding ten dollars for each person.'

I understand the sense and meaning of this clause to be, That the power of the Congress, although competent to prohibit such migration and importation, was not to be exercised with respect to the THEN existing states, and them only, until the year 1808; but that Congress were at liberty to make such prohibition as to any new state which might in the meantime be established. And further, that from and after that period, they were authorized to make such prohibition as to all the states, whether new or old.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Slaves were the persons intended. The word slaves was avoided, on account of the existing toleration of slavery, and its discordancy with the principles of the Revolution; and from a consciousness of its being repugnant to those propositions to the Declaration of Independence:- 'We hold these truths to be self-evident - that all men are created equal - that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights - and that, among these, are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.'

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 28th of 3 M 1838 / I am still poorly as to bodily health there are Mitigations of the disorder under which I have suffered & no extremity as some weeks ago, yet I am not clear from it, & find myself unable to be much about - I am favoured with quietness of mind - I have some outward concerns which might be closer settled, but nothing that would give much trouble were they settled by others

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 29, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 29th of 3 M / Today was Moy [Monthly] Meeting - Mary Shove & Hannah Dennis preached - the buisness or some of it which was before us was exercising & trying - I hope however things will work together for good & come right, but whether they will without greater proving I do not foresee - It is a discouraging time

Mary Shove brought a Minute from Swansey Moy [Monthly] Meeting to attend ours, & visit family - she is to commence tomorrow in the Service. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

March 30, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 30 of 3rd M 1838 / Mary Shove accompanied by Anna Shove of her own Meeting & David Buffum of ours commenced visiting families this Morning & begun with us - She recommended to us Watchfulness, Watchfulness unto prayer, which accorded with our view & concern so that I thought I felt unity with her exercise -But while setting in silence my mind was introduced into the

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

necessity of digging to know our foundation sure & searching so as to come to a conclusion & right understanding in the Truth - This seemed to me peculiarly necessary for Mary, being a young Minister & rather new in experience in visiting families - & before the sitting closed I did not feel easy to omit mentioning my concern to her, & to encourage her to search close that she might be favoured with a right understanding, in passing about in the different families she might sit down with - I believe it is the duty of Elders to be faithful & help & encourage Ministers where that is due, & to discourage where it is necessary - & for this judgement they are as accountable as Ministers are for the right exercise of their gift

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 1, Sunday: Waldo Emerson discoursed on theism to some half dozen of Harvard's Divinity School students. They invited him to address them again, in the Harvard Divinity School chapel, upon their graduation:

Cool or cold windy clear day. The Divinity School youths wished to talk with me concerning theism. I went rather heavyhearted for I always find that my views chill or shock people at the first opening. But the conversation went well & I came away cheered. I told them that the preacher should be a poet smit with love of the harmonies of moral nature.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 1st of 4th M 1838 / Attended both meetings, but sat rather uncomfortable in the Afternoon, but was not obliged to leave my seat - Father Rodman had short offerings in both Meetings.-

Yesterday we had an intersting call from our fr H Dannis -it was interesting to me in that it afforded an opportunity for me to discharge my duty in great plainness, as to what I apprehended to be her State & the State of society, & particualry of our Monthly Meeting. & of an existing case before it, which is a very trying one - I endeavoured to be plain & honest, & feel satisfaction in my labours. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

April 4: Jones Very delivered a lecture, his “Epic Poetry” lecture from Salem Lyceum repeated at the Concord Lyceum, after, as was the custom, taking dinner with the Emersons. (In the first week of May, this piece would appear in the Christian Examiner.) He had brought his marked-up copy of NATURE with him to Concord, and Waldo Emerson inscribed it in a penciled scribble with “Har[mony] Of Man With Nature Must Be Reconciled With God,” a restriction on the allowable scope of mystical self-interrogation in regard to which he was expecting that he and Very, as a result of their deliberations together on that day, had come to be able to agree.

Also present at the meal were Henry Thoreau, Professor Cornelius Conway Felton, Ebenezer Rockwood Hoar, and the Reverend Barzillai Frost.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 4 of 4th M / According to new Stile it is now just 200 years since the Settlement of this Island & just that time since the Deed from the Natives was signed to the first purchasers - A Sermon is now delivering in the 2nd Baptist Meeting House by Author A Ross the Minister of the 1st British Society in commemoration of the event & while I do not approve of the Manner, I can but feel an interest in having some of the events of the last Centiury embodied. it has been an Hundred Years Big with great events in Church & in State. - Many good folkd have lived & died - Many who have been dear to me in life are now in Death, & their remembrance is sweet & may we who remain prepare to meet them - I have lived more than half of the last Century & probaly not much more of the coming half will be occupied by me.-

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 5, Thursday: In the morning, Waldo Emerson wrote to Miss Elizabeth Palmer Peabody to thank her for forwarding “such wise men as Mr. Very.” Edwin Gittleman’s take on this is “To hear a Harvard divinity student sounding so unlike a student of Harvard Divinity was reassuring.”

JONES VERY

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 5th of 4th M 1838 / Attended meeting, which tho’ small was a pleasant comfortable season
Father had a little offering to make*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

April 12, Thursday: Henry Thoreau was written to by Josiah Quincy, Sr., President of Harvard College, in Cambridge. Thoreau was applying for a teaching position in Alexandria, Virginia which he would not get.

Sir.

The school is at Alexandria the students are said to be young men well advanced in y^e knowledge of y^e Latin & Greek Classics — the requisitions are qualification & a person, who has had experience in schoolkeeping—

Salary $600 a year besides washing & Board duties to be entered on y^e 5th or 7th. of May.

If you choose to apply I will write as soon as I am informed of it — State to me your experience in schoolkeeping

Ys

Josiah Quincy Cambridge

12. April 1838.

WHAT?

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

Go To MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

With a significant percentage of Canada's leadership in prison and with prison ships rotting on mud flats visible from American soil, the British began to hang rebel leaders and bury their bodies in unmarked graves. The total would be 10 executions and 58 transportations before they succeeded in stabilizing the situation.

After they succeeded in stabilizing the situation by this small number of dramatic executions and transportations of key figures, of course, the mass exile of ordinary suspect citizens began.

Escapees From Canada

TV "Quebec"

Hung Up in a Port

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 12 of 4 M / Ruth Davis & Abigail Davis with Zeno Kelley & wife on their way to Philada. Yearly Meeting were at our Meeting today, both had good & acceptable testimonies - A friend was also at Meeting from Indiana by the name of Aaron White, he is brother to Daniel Tisdales wife & a very good looking man - he & the young man with him called this Afternoon & made a pleasant visit to us - he gave me much interesting information of friends in Indiana. - Thomas B Gould went in the Steam Boat this Afternoon for Philada.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

to attend the Yearly Meeting there. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 13, Friday: Miss Prudence Ward wrote more to her sister, Mrs. Edmund Quincy Sewall, Sr. of Scituate:

...To-day, April 13, Henry has had a letter from President Quincy, of Harvard, speaking of a school in Alexandria, Virginia, to be opened the 5th of May. He is willing to take it, and if accepted, this may alter or delay their journey....

What is missing here is an awareness that a guy who has just gotten fired as a schoolteacher and has standards of personal honesty is not going to get hired to a schoolteaching job that requires him to recount his previous schoolteaching experience.

HENRY THOREAU

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 13 of 4 M / Aaron White & Francis Fletcher a young man with Aarons daughter & a daughter of Daniel Tisdale spent the forenoon with us their company was interesting & we were glad of further acquaintance with them

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 15, Easter Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 15th of 4th M 1838 / Our Morning Meeting was a good solid one – Father's offering was to me (& I apprehend the Meeting generally) a seasonable & satisfactory one. – In the Afternoon we were solid & silent. – My own health tho' much better, still continues poor – I seldom pass a day without pain & difficulty – yet it looks as if my disorder was gradually diminishing

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

CONVERSATION

April 15. Thomas Fuller relates that "in Merionethshire, in Wales, there are high mountains, whose hanging tops come so close together that shepherds on the tops of several hills may audibly talk together, yet will it be a day's journey for their bodies to meet, so vast is the hollowness of the valleys betwixt them." As much may be said in a moral sense of our intercourse in the plains, for, though we may audibly converse together, yet is there so vast a gulf of hollowness between that we are actually many days' journey from a veritable communication.

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISMHistorical Applications.* 63

had been chapmen for all three at the first.

III.

IN Merionethshire* in Wales there be many mountains whose hanging tops come so close together that shepherds sitting on several mountains may audibly discourse one with another. And yet they must go many miles before their bodies can meet together, by the reason of the vast hollow valleys which are betwixt them. Our sovereign and the members of his Parliament at London seem very near agreed in their general and public professions; both are for the Protestant religion; can they draw nearer? Both are for the privileges of Parliament; can they come closer? Both are for the liberty of the subject; can they meet evener? And yet, alas, there is a great gulf and vast distance betwixt them which

* Giraldus Cambrensis, and Camden in the description of that shire.

GOOD THOUGHTS IN BAD TIMES

April 19, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 19th of 4th M / Our Public & Preparative Meeting got along pretty well T B Goulds the Clerk being absent Thos P Nichols served well in his place
The Select Meeting held after the Preparative Meeting was a time of search & close exercise, & tho' things were plainly stated as to some defects among us - I hope some good was done, at any rate some of us felt as if we had discharged our Duty & am willing to leave the result. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 22, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1st day 22nd of 4th M / Attended Meetings - in both Father had short offerings - a day of not much life within

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 26, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 26th of 4th M / The weather being unfavourable in the Morning & my health being such as not to permit of exposure - neither my wife nor I attended the Moy [Monthly] Meeting this Day held at Portsmouth. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

April 29, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 29th of 4th M 1838 / Between 1 & 2 OClock this morning our Dear Friend Benjamin Freeborn Died at His House at Portsmouth, & information was given our in Meeting today that his funeral is to be on 3rd day next at 1 OClock at Friends Meeting house in Portsmouth.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 1, Tuesday: The Reverend Ezra Ripley wrote a letter of introduction for Henry David Thoreau as the young man set out to try to find a teaching job in Maine:

The undersigned very cheerfully hereby introduces to public notice, the bearer, Mr. David Henry Thoreau, as a Teacher in the higher branches of useful literature. He is a native of this town, & a graduate of Harvard University. He is well disposed & well qualified to instruct the rising generation. His scholarship & moral character will bear the strictest scrutiny. He is modest & mild in his disposition & government, but not wanting in energy of character & fidelity in the duties of his profession. It is presumed, his character & usefulness will be appreciated more highly as an acquaintance with him shall be cultivated. Cordial wishes for his success, reputation, & usefulness attend him, as an instructor & gentleman.

When he left for his tour of Maine in search of a teaching position (at a private school where he would have more freedom) he would also carry with him a reference from Emerson:

I cordially recommend Mr. Henry D. Thoreau, a graduate of Harvard University in August, 1837, to the confidence of such parents or guardians as may propose to employ him as an instructor. I have the highest confidence in Mr. Thoreau's moral character and in his intellectual ability. He is an excellent Scholar, a man of energy & kindness, & I shall esteem the town fortunate that secures his Services. [Harding, DAYS, page 65]

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 5 M 1st 1838 / After dinner In company with Henry Gould, Isaac Mitchell & Thos P Nichols, with Lydia Ann Gould & Rebecca Mitchell Sat out for Greenwich by way of Wickford & arrived there in season to get land conveyance to Greenwich by Sunsett - We took Quarters at Updikes Tavern & staid there during the Quarterly Meeting on 4th day I attended Select & the Meeting for Sufferings - on 5th day the Meeting at large which was a time of some favour thro' the Instrumentality of our friend John Meader After dining at Updikes we took the Steam Boat Kingston with the Most riotous & Drunk company I ever Met with who had been down to Newport to the Genl Election. & went to Providence & lodged at Wm Jenkins

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 2, Tuesday: From George Templeton Strong's New-York diary:

Workmen thrown out of employ by the hundred daily. Business at a stand; the coal mines in Pennsylvania stopped and no fuel in prospect for next winter - delightful prospects, these.

Henry Martyn Robert, who would author "Robert's Rules of Order," was born.

William B. Ogden, brother-in-law of New York investor Charles Butler, was elected Mayor of Chicago. Isaac N. Arnold became the clerk, and Hiram Pearsons the treasurer.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

3rd day 2nd of 5th M 1837 / In the Afternoon took the Boat to Wickford & from thence by Chaise went to Greenwich & arrived at my friend Thos Howland in about three hours & a half & lodged there

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 3, Wednesday: From George Templeton Strong's New-York diary:

Went up to the office at six. Fresh failures, Talbot Olyphant & Co., among them. So they go - smash, crash. Where in the name of wonder is there to be an end of it? Near two hundred and fifty failures thus far!... Locofoco meeting in the Park this morning - and such a meeting! It looked like a convention of loafers from all quarters of the world.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

4th day Attended Our Select Quartlery Meeting in Greenwich which I thought was a good solid Meeting, but not as lively as some I have experienced – In the Afternoon attended the Meeting for Sufferings (dining at Susan Prouds) – after the buisness of which I returned to Thos Howland & lodged. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 4, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day attended the School committee & an adjourned Meeting of the Meeting for Sufferings & also a Meeting of the Trustees of O Browns Fund all held at the Meeting House – We returned to Wm Jenkins & lodged –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 5, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day at 8 OC in the Morning took the Steam Boat Kingston again & returned home – My health tho' not good, was such that I was pretty comfortable most of the time during my Absence – & we found our family concerns had gone on pretty well, excepting that Polly McClish had not been very well tho' able to keep about & do what was necessary in family concerns. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Boston began the first police force in the nation to employ regular officers. However, “Irish need not apply” — the Irish were part of the problem, not the solution to the problem, since the main task which has always faced the police forces of every US town and city has ever been the bending of the law toward the protection of the decent local “us” against the insolent importunity of transients, vagrants, lowlife, in general the “them.”

“WASHINGTON, May 5, 1838.

To JAMES G. BIRNEY, Esq., Cor. Sec. A.A.S.S.

SIR, – I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st instant, in which you again refer to the publication of the Correspondence between us, in relation to the measures and designs of the abolitionists. I would have certainly answered yours of the 2d ult., on the same subject, more fully before this, had it not escaped my recollection, in consequence [of] having been more engaged than usual in the business before the House. I hope the delay has been productive of no inconvenience. If I correctly understand your letters above referred to, the control of these papers, and the decision as to their publication, have passed into the 'Executive Committee of the American Anti-Slavery Society;' and, from their tenor, I infer that their determination is so far made, that nothing I could object would prevent it, if I desired to do so. I was certainly not apprised, when I entered into this Correspondence, that its disposition was to depend on any other will than yours and mine, – but that matters nothing now, – you had the power, and I am not disposed to question the right or propriety of its exercise.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

I heard of you as a man of intelligence, sincerity, and truth, — who, although laboring in a bad cause, did it with ability, and from a mistaken conviction of its justice. As one of the Representatives of a slave-holding constituency, and one of a committee raised by the Representatives of the slave-holding States, to ascertain the intentions and progress of your associations, I availed myself of the opportunity offered by your character and situation, to propose to you inquiries as to facts, which would make those developments so important to be known by our people. My inquiries were framed to draw out full and authentic details of the organization, numbers, resources, and designs of the abolitionists, of the means they resorted to for the accomplishment of their ends, and the progress made, and making, in their dangerous work, that all such information might be laid before the four millions and a half of white inhabitants in the slave States, whose lives and property are menaced and endangered by this ill-considered, misnamed, and disorganizing philanthropy. They should be informed of the full length and breadth and depth of this storm which is gathering over their heads, before it breaks in its desolating fury. Christians and civilized, they are now industrious, prosperous, and happy; but should your schemes of abolition prevail, it will bring upon them overwhelming ruin, and misery unutterable. The two races cannot exist together upon terms of equality — the extirpation of one and the ruin of the other would be inevitable. This humanity, conceived in wrong and born in civil strife, would be baptized in a people's blood. It was, that our people might know, in time to guard against the mad onset, the full extent of this gigantic conspiracy and crusade against their institutions; and of necessity upon their lives with which they must sustain them; and their fortunes and prosperity, which exist only while these institutions exist, that I was induced to enter into a correspondence with you, who by your official station and intelligence were known to be well informed on these points, and from your well established character for candor and fairness, would make no statements of facts which were not known or believed by you to be true. To a great extent, my end has been accomplished by your replies to my inquiries. How far, or whether at all, your answers have run, beyond the facts inquired for, into theories, arguments, and dissertations, as erroneous as mischievous, is not a matter of present consideration. We differed no wider than I expected, but that difference has been exhibited courteously, and has nothing to do with the question of publication. Your object, or rather the object of your Committee, is to publish; and I, having no reason to desire it, as you have put me in possession of the facts I wished, and no reason not to desire it, as there is nothing to conceal, will leave yourself and the Committee to take your own course, neither assenting nor dissenting, in what you may finally decide to do.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

F.H. Elmore."

May 6, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 6th of 5th M 1838 / Our Meetings were both comfortable – Father had short offerings in both & in the Afternoon, particularly, I thought we favoured.–

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

May 10, Thursday: John Wilkes Booth was born in a log cabin, in the woods of northern Maryland near the Pennsylvania border.

Waldo Emerson wrote to Thomas Carlyle informing him that Henry Swasey McKean had volunteered to correct the proofs of his “Miscellanies” and that McKean had been handed “your Errata” to use during this task. After McKean had left Cambridge for New Hampshire, this editing would be completed by Charles Stearns Wheeler. The result was to be the initial American edition of Carlyle’s CRITICAL AND MISCELLANEOUS ESSAYS:

MISC. ESSAYS, VOL. I

MISC. ESSAYS, VOL. II

MISC. ESSAYS, VOL. III

MISC. ESSAYS, VOL. IV

Copies of these volumes would of course be in Henry Thoreau’s personal library.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 10th of 5th M / Meeting nearly silent - small, but some solemnity, & a little life - I feel much on account of Society - Oh that there may be more raised up to bear the burden & stand cloathed upon to move forward in support of the precious cause of Truth, which now suffers much, as Geo Fox used to say "The

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Seed suffers" & Oh may we have cause to exclaim with him, on the other hand, "The Seed reigneth.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 12, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 12th of 5th M 1838 / This Afternoon I took a walk round the Hill & called to see Fanny Davis a sick coloured woman - from there I went into the Clifton Burying ground & visited the Graves of several of my Ancestors of the Wanton Clarke & Rodman family -tho' they all passed out of time before I was in existance yet I love to see their resting place on earth - Many of their Names are familiar to me by the Records of the Monthly Meeting & by anecdotes of many ancient people who remembered some of them, their Devotion too the good cause is yet in remembrance, & I have no doubt their Spirits are in heaven singing Halilujah to the Lord God & the Lamb, whom they served with their whole heart & while on earth. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 13, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 13 of 5 M / Our Meetings were remarkably good solid & nearly silent seasons - In the Morning particularly, I thought I had seldom Known a more reverend quiet setting, it seemed as if the people were sensible what they came to Meeting for & when the Meeting broke they were not in a hurry to leave their seats. Father had a short communication toward the close.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 17, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*5th day 17th of 5th M 1838 / Nearly a Silent Meeting but pretty solid -
I am thinking of late much of our approaching Yearly Meeting - It looks as if it may be a season of some trial & in short what will be the result of the State of things in our Society as they now generally exist I do not foresee - Our great & ancient leaders in this Yearly Meeting are gone, that is David Buffum, Moses Brown & some others - the burthen & management now devolves on a few who have not the weight & Standing which they had but I cannot but hope strength will be afforded in the needful time.*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 19, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 19th of 5th M / This Afternoon took a walk up to cousin

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Henry Goulds & on my return stoped to see our Aged brother Nathan Monro who has been some time confined to the house by sickness & unable to get to Meetings - he seemed very loving & Sweet, & tender in Spirit - my visit was as comfortable as any I have made in some time. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 27, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 27th of 5th M / Our Morning Meeting as soon as I took my seat seemed to me to be a season of favour & so it proved for I have not had a Meeting of better feelings, & when it seemed as if solemnity pervaded the whole, in sometem[?] Father was engaged in a few sentences - Silent & solid in the Afternoon - Surely we are not forsaken - Divine goodness & help is near

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

May 31, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 31st of 5 M 1838 / Our Monthly Meeting held this day in Town was a season of deep trial & close conflict Father Rodman was concerned to express a few words & as Meeting closed he requested that those who were not Members might withdraw & leave the Members Male & female together after which he expressed his views of a trying case which was expected to come before the Monthly Meeting - I had unity with his remarks & glad of his services -

In the last Meeting the trying case was brought up & after much trial concluded, which for the last Nine Months, as been on our Minutes to the great grief & affliction of many concerned Members. -

John Weeden, Hannah Almy & her daughter, the wife of Jacob Chase, Dined with us.

After dinner I attended the Friend of Ezekial Luther who was with his wife a dilligent attender of our Meetings for many Years, & requested to be buried in Friends Ground & according to our Mode & Manner -

He was an inoffensive Man & much beloved & respected by all who knew him tho' he was not much know, being of very retired turn of Mind.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

 July 1, Sunday: Representative John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts continued his speech before the US House of Representatives on the expansive topic of Texas for a 17th day.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 1st of 7th M 1838 / Both our Meetings were seasons of exercise & some distress from unsavory & in my opinion unauthorised preaching from one who stands in the Station of a Minister from a Neighbouring Quarterly Meeting - Some care was taken by the Elders. - In the evening a couple of young friends called to see us - it is evident they need care from over heated zeal in a good cause, & I am affraid they will hurt themselves & injure society We endeavoured to extend such care as we thought prudent but it was evident the season of their help has not yet come, they are both too strong to admit of much being done for them. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

 Our national birthday, the 4th of July, Wednesday: This was Nathaniel Hawthorne's 34th birthday.

The balloon of the intrepid master Boston goldbeater and aeronaut Louis Lauriat graced the skies above historic Salem MA, and a good time was had by all.

In Providence (Moshasuck), Rhode Island, a procession included 29 veterans of the revolution.

The White House was closed to the public because "the President has lately lost, by death, a near relative."

In Charlottesville, Virginia, the Declaration of Independence was read from an "original draft, in the handwriting of Mr. Jefferson."

THOMAS JEFFERSON

At Fort Madison, Iowa, headman Black Hawk delivered a 4th-of-July address.

CELEBRATING OUR B-DAY

At the US House of Representatives, Representative John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts continued his speech on the expansive topic of Texas for a 20th day.

Sidney Rigdon preached another sermon to the Mormons of a similar nature to his "Salt Sermon," stating "And that mob that comes on us to disturb us; it shall be between us and them a war of extermination; for we will follow them till the last drop of their blood is spilled, or else they will have to exterminate us."

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 4th of 7th M 1838 / This has been a day of much stir in Town as it always is - My mind & feelings however has been

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

preserved in the quiet --

This morning our Friend Joseph Bowne came to town from Portsmouth where he had an appointed a Meeting yesterday - finding it not a Suitable day to appoint a Meeting here he concluded to spent the day at D Buffums in resting & writing home to his friends - to be at our Meeting tomorrow & the appointment has been forwarded accordingly. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 5, Thursday: Representative John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts continued his speech before the US House of Representatives on the expansive topic of Texas for a 21st day.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 5 of 7 M 1838 / Our friend Joseph Bowne attended our Meeting which was a time of Divine favour - he was largely engaged in testimony much to our satisfation edification & comfort. -

In the Afternoon I attended a Meeting with him on Connanicut appointed at 5 OC in the Afternoon which was a time of Watering indeed I never saw more of the prevalence of Divine Authority & an audience more generally affected. -

On our way to the Meeting we stoped at Joseph Greenes & visited Anne & Mary who were truly glad to see us. - We came directly to the Ferry from the Meeting house & arrived at home before sun set.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 6, Friday: Representative John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts continued his speech before the US House of Representatives on the expansive topic of Texas for a 22nd day.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 6th of 7th M 1838 / This Morning we rose early & took the New York boat for Providence & got to Wm Jenkins by their breakfast time, but as we breakfasted on board the Boat we did not need any - After assisting in making some appointments for our friend Joseph Bowne I left him at Wm Jenkins's & Attended to some buisness I had in Town - returned to Wm Jenkins to Dine & took the Afternoon Boat & returned home after spending about 10 hours in Providence -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

July 8, Sunday: Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin was born.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 8th of 7 M / Our friend Richard Mott attended Our Meeting in Newport this Morning in which he was favoured to get hold of our State & administer comfort to some who were heavy hearted - at the close of the Meeting he requested the Afternoon Meeting should be deferred till 5 O'clock & a general invitation given to the people of the Town - which was done. a very large meeting gathered, it was rather long in getting together but it consisted of the most respectable inhabitants of the Town who were very attentive to a truly gospel testimony, in which our friend was much favoured - a number of the Ministers of the Town were present as well as some of the Most religious & well informed of their persuasions - West the Minister of the New episcopal Church gave out the Meeting at the close of his afternoon Meeting, & deferred his evening Meeting on the occasion - This is a view of liberality never before done by that persuasion - it was once asked but refused - Richard took tea & lodged at Mary Williams but our friend Abraham Sherman Jr who came with him from New Bedford returned home with us, again lodged & took tea

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Henry Thoreau wrote to John Thoreau, Jr. about the prospect of teaching private school there in Concord.

*Concord July 8th 38—
Dear John,
[We] heard from Helen today and she informs us that you are coming home by the first of August, now I wish you to write, and let me know exactly when your vacation take[] place, that I may take one at the same time. I am in school from 8 to 12 in the morning, and [from] 2 to 4 in the afternoo[n]; after that I read a little Greek or English, or for variety, take a stroll in the fields. We have not had such a year for berries this long time—the earth is actually [b]lue with them. High blubberies, three kinds of low—thimble and*

HELEN LOUISA THOREAU

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Page 2

rasp-berries constitute my [diet] at present. (Take notice—I only diet between meals.) Among my deeds of charity I may reckon the picking of a cherry tree for two helpless single ladies who live under the hill[-]—but i'faith it was robbing Pet[er] to pay Paul—for while I was exalted in charity towards them, I had no mercy on my own [stomach]. Be advised, my love for currants continues.

*The only addition that I have made of late to my stock of ornithological information—is in the shape, not of a Fring. [M]elod. but surely a melodious Fringilla--the F. [J]uncorum, or rush sparrow. I had long know him by his note but never by name.
Report says that Elijah Stearn[s] is going to take the town school.*

Page 3

*I have four [scholars], and one more engaged. Mr. [Fenner] left town [yest-] terday. Among occurrences of ill omen, may be mentioned the ~~era~~ falling out and cracking of the inscription stone of Concord monument. Mrs Lowell and children are at Aunt's.
Peabody walked up last Wednesday—spen[t] the night, and took a stroll in the woods. Sophia says I mu[] leave off and pen a few lines for her to Helen. S Good bye.
Love from all and among them yr aff brother
H D T*

Postmark: CONCORD

Jul

10

Address: John Thoreau

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

*West Roxbury Mass.
Postage: 6*

July 9, Monday: Completion of the 2d (long) session of the 25th federal Congress.
Human enslavement was still legal in these United States of America, the land of the free and home of the brave.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 9 of 7 M / R Mott came & took breakfast with us -after which A Sherman returned home by Stage to New Bedford -Richard called to see his cousins Martha Carpenter & Avis C Howland in the forenoon - went over to the Point & dined at Mary Williams's & at 3 OC PM took the Steam Boat Kingston for Providence intending to have a few Meetings thereaway & go to Greenwich on his way home. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

July 15, Sunday: The Reverend Waldo Emerson addressed a small audience in the chapel of the Harvard Divinity School, on problems that would face graduating students as new Unitarian ministers. This would be printed by James Munroe in Boston (and we may note in the copy of this that has been preserved at the Harvard library, that it was inscribed to Henry Thoreau by Emerson):

DIVINITY SCHOOL ADDRESS

Although he actually said little that had not been said before, there would be a storm of protest. One educator who believed in the conductivity of cowhide (Harvard College's Dexter Lecturer in Biblical Literature Andrews Norton) would write to a public newspaper (the Boston Daily Advertiser) and suggest that the "people" should "whip that naughty heretic." Nathaniel Hawthorne, however, decided that Waldo was the greatest man that ever lived.

Emerson himself would ascertain that the Reverend Professor Norton was feminine.⁴³⁰

The feminine vehemence with which the Andrews Norton of the Daily Advertiser beseeches the dear people to whip that naughty heretic

John Quincy Adams would write in his diary about this "crazy address and oration," and so we know that he considered "An Address" to have displayed for all to see that Emerson was "ambitious of becoming the founder of a sect, and thinks there is an urgent necessity for a new revelation." Picking up on this a century and a half later, in his 1992 book on the American Religion and the emergence of the US as a post-Christian nation, Harold Bloom has quoted the "An Address" of this date in support of his contention that it is Emerson who is at the source of the deepest idiocy of our American character, our self-worship which amounts to a heathen idolatry and a turning away from God:

430. Precisely how Waldo Emerson obtained this information as to the Reverend Professor Andrews Norton's genitalia has not become a matter of historical record.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Jesus Christ belonged to the true race of prophets. He saw with open eye the mystery of the soul. Drawn by its severe harmony, ravished with its beauty, he lived in it, and had his being there. Alone in all history he estimated the greatness of man. One man was true to what is in you and me. He saw that God incarnates himself in man, and evermore goes forth anew to take possession of his World. He said, in this jubilee of sublime emotion, "I am divine. Through me, God acts; through me, speaks. Would you see God, see me; or see thee, when thou also thinkest as I now think." But what a distortion did his doctrine and memory suffer in the same, in the next, and the following ages! There is no doctrine of the Reason which will bear to be taught by the Understanding. The understanding caught this high chant from the poet's lips, and said, in the next age, "This was Jehovah come down out of heaven. I will kill you, if you say he was a man." The idioms of his language and the figures of his rhetoric have usurped the place of his truth; and churches are not built on his principles, but on his tropes. Christianity became a Mythus, as the poetic teaching of Greece and of Egypt, before. He spoke of miracles; for he felt that man's life was a miracle, and all that man doth, and he knew that this daily miracle shines as the character ascends. But the word Miracle, as pronounced by Christian churches, gives a false impression; it is Monster. It is not one with the blowing clover and the fallen rain.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

In this Divinity School Address Emerson employed words such as “routine,” “extinct,” and “famine” in characterization of the state of preaching and worship in Unitarian churches of the time. He started with generalities: “Whenever a pulpit is usurped by a formalist, then is the worshipper defrauded and disconsolate. We shrink as soon as the prayers begin, which do not uplift, but smite and offend us.” But then he went on to very, very specific deployment of frosty imagery, suggesting that frost outside the church inspired him more than the Reverend Frost inside: “I once heard a preacher who sorely tempted me to say I would go to church no more.... A snow-storm was falling around us. The snow-storm was real, the preacher merely spectral, and the eye felt the sad contrast in looking at him, and then out of the window behind him into the beautiful meteor of the snow. He had lived in vain. He had no one word intimating that he had laughed or wept, was married or in love, had been commended, or cheated, or chagrined. If he had ever lived and acted, we were none the wiser for it. The capital secret of his profession, namely to convert life into truth, he had not learned.” We do now know how the Reverend Barzillai Frost reacted when he heard of this — but he must have heard of it from many pairs of lips.

THE LIST OF LECTURES

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 15th of 7 M / Our Meetings both today & last 5th day were silent - rather small tho' there were a number of Philadelphians here who are spending a little time for the advantages of our cool breezes - It is a low time, but some favour experienced -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 19, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 19 of 7 M / Meetings small but solid & comfortable. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 20, Friday: Pardon Crandall died at Canterbury, Connecticut.

Construction began on the Clinton-Kalamazoo Canal.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 20 of 7 M / After calling to See Father Rodman this Afternoon, who is quite weak & feeble - I walked up to Cousin Henry Goulds, where I found our frineds Seth & Mary Davis who are bound on a Religious Visit to some parts of the State of NYork -took tea & waited on them to the Steam Boat on their way.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 22, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*1st day 22nd of 7 M 1838 / Our Meetings pretty well attended tho' silent & I thought there was a labour to get down to the experience of life, but was sensible both were low times. - Oh that we were more in the profession of that spirit which give life & animation to the soul
I feel the need of it in my self, & on setting down in our Meetings today my head craved help, to go in & out before the people with consistency, & a censer of insence in my hand, & leanness was not wholly mine. -*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 26, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 26th of 7 M / Today was our Monthly Meeting held in Newport - the part for worship was held in silence - The usual queries were Answered, & the usual buisness preparatory to the Quarterly Meeting -- Joshua Shove & Ruth Dennis published their intentions of Marriage with each other & were referred to next Monthly Meeting

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

*for an answer, which it is most likely will be favourable to a final consumation
Our friends Job Anthony & Stephen Chase & Ruth his wife dined with us. –*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

July 29, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 29th of 7 M / In our Morning Meeting Eliza Chase offered a few words by way of testimony - Both Morning & Afternoon were solid good Meetings & I am sometimes led to admire how still & reverent the people sit when there is so little oral testimony given - Marmaduke Cope came home & took tea with us & set the evening, very interstingly to us. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

August 1, Wednesday: Completion of the process of emancipation of all slaves in the British West Indies under six years of age, and the binding of all other slaves there as apprentices for the term of 5 to 7 years (later this would be reduced to 2 years) to be followed by emancipation, which had begun on August 1, 1834 under conditions of the Abolition Act of August 28, 1833. As a condition of their cooperation the white “owners” of these black and red “slaves” had received some £20,000,000 in compensation.

“EMANCIPATION IN THE ... INDIES...”: Parliament was compelled to pass additional laws for the defence and security of the negro, and in ill humor at these acts, the great island of Jamaica, with a population of half a million, and 300,000 negroes, early in 1838, resolved to throw up the two remaining years of apprenticeship, and to emancipate absolutely on the 1st August, 1838. In British Guiana, in Dominica, the same resolution had been earlier taken with more good will; and the other islands fell into the measure; so that on the 1st August, 1838, the shackles dropped from every British slave. The accounts which we have from all parties, both from the planters, and those too who were originally most opposed to the measure, and from the new freemen, are of the most satisfactory kind. The manner in which the new festival was celebrated, brings tears to the eyes. The First of August, 1838, was observed in Jamaica as a day of thanksgiving and prayer. Sir Lionel Smith, the governor, writes to the British Ministry, “It is impossible for me to do justice to the good order, decorum, and gratitude, which the whole laboring population manifested on that happy occasion. Though joy beamed on every countenance, it was throughout tempered with solemn thankfulness to God, and the churches and chapels were everywhere filled with these happy people in humble offering of praise.”

Therefore, David Lee Child had issued a handbill calling upon his neighbors in Northampton — to celebrate with him this freeing of the slaves of the British West Indies. On this morning he found a copy of his handbill nailed to his own door, with the word “persons” struck out and replaced by the word “NIGGERS.” Locally, support was stronger for the American Colonization Society, which believed that although blacks were inherently inferior and should forever be refused citizenship, “we” should find a way to kindly ship them all back where they came from — this sort of repulsive attitude represented, not the right nor the center, but the extreme far left of acceptable political opinion. As an expression of this sort of attitude toward race, even the town tax list itself was racially segregated, with the names and assessed taxes of black residents listed only after all names and assessments of white residents had been listed.

In New Bedford, on this anniversary of the emancipation of the slaves of the British West Indies, there was an ad trumpeting a “commemoration of the anniversary of the abolishment of slavery in the British West Indies.” On that occasion, the Reverend Orange Scott addressed the group at the Methodist Chapel on Elm Street in Fairhaven; the meeting being sponsored by the Young Men’s Anti-Slavery Society.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 1st of 8th M 1838 / We rode to Portsmouth & attended the Select Quarterly which was a time of Some favour tho’ the life was low in the forepart of it – Mary Shove opened the service

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

in a short lively & I thought pertinent testimony - She was followed by John Meader powerfully & pertinently - & Elizabeth Wing in supplication

This buisness was gone thro' & pretty well conducted & some feeling remarks were made on the State of the Church on reading the Answers to the Queries. -

We dined at Susanna Hathaways after which we went down to the Farm where Uncle Stanton lived on a little buisness & then came home before dark. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 2, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5 day 2nd of 8th M / Went again to Portsmouth & attended the Quarterly Meeting at large - Our Friend Thomas Anthony was favoured in an excellent & well adapted testimony followed by our dear Aged friend Benjamin Buffington whose voice seemed as much like a voice from Canaan as any I ever heard & was I believe the first time I ever heard him in a Public Quarterly Meeting - John Meader followed in testimony, but I ought to have mentioned that after T Anthony our beloved young brother Saml B Tobey appeared acceptably & pertinently to the feelings of Many present. -

The buisness of the last Meeting was well conducted - Our friend John Meader returned the certificate granted him sometime ago to perform religious visit in some parts of the State of Connecticut & also some parts of NYork -

Certificates were granted to John & Elizabeth Meader, to pay a religious visit in some parts of Pennsylvania, & to attend Baltimore Yearly Meeting. -

We dined at Stephen Chases & returned home. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 3, Friday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

6th day 3rd of 8th M 1838 / Took the Steam Boat this Mornng & went to Providence, got there in season to attend the School committee - Several other conferences were also had of other committees from the Yearly Meeting & had a Meeting of the General Tract Society in the evening - It was a day of very close occupancy of time that at night I was pretty much exhausted - Lodged at the School House. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 4, Saturday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day Took breakfast at Jon Congdons - Attended the Meeting for Sufferings, & an adjournment of the Trustees of O Browns

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Fund - Dined at Dr Tobeys & spent the Afternoon in attending to a little buisness & calling on some of my old friends. At 5 OC took the Steam Boat Massachusetts & came home, having a pleasant & interesting passage down the river, a number of my friends & acquaintances being on board, & among others my brother Isaac & wife who left home this morning she having spent the day with her relations in Providence & he in Boston, returning in season to take the Steam boat home with his wife -this was rapid traveling & would not have been credited in less time than 30 Years ago. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 5, Sunday: Henry Thoreau made a distinction between an inferior kind of sound and a superior kind, earthbound sounds seeming to “reverberate along the plain, and then settle to earth again like dust” while “sphere music” seems to bounce off the steeples and hill-slopes up into the skies. He also made a distinction between the written and the preached word, or between words from dark places and from dungeons and from the Harvard academy-hall within which is “weeping, and wailing, and gnashing of teeth — without, grain fields and grasshoppers, which give those the lie direct.”:

August 5th. Sphere music Some sounds seem to reverberate along the plain, and then settle to earth again like dust; such are Noise — Discord — Jargon. But such only as spring heavenward, and I may catch from steeples and hill tops in their upward course, which are the more refined parts of the former —are the true sphere music —pure, unmixed music —in which no wail mingles.

Divine Service in the Academy-Hall. In dark places and dungeons these words might perhaps strike root and grow —but utter them in the day light and their dusky hues are apparent. From this window I can compare the written with the preached word —within is weeping, and wailing, and gnashing of teeth — without, grain fields and grasshoppers, which give those the lie direct.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 5th of 8th M 1838 / Our Meetings were both Silent but very solid good seasons — We have in Town several Philadelphians members of Society who attend Meetings - The solid sitting of some of them is very satisfactory & their presence in our Meetings feels helpful - I particularly esteem Marmaduke Cope & wife & Henry Longstreth there are divers others whom I am not so well acquainted with, but I love to see them come to Meeting.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 9, Thursday: The 1st Perseid meteor shower to have been correctly anticipated and predicted, showed up exactly on schedule. Edward Claudius Herrick had deduced the autumnal nature of this phenomenon from reports of August showers in the years 1781, 1798, 1823, 1833, and 1836, and had inferred that the showers were annual from the fact that Irish peasants had fallen into the habit of referring to these meteors as the burning tears of St. Lawrence, whose annual festival is on the 10th of August.

ASTRONOMY

SKY EVENT

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

5 day 9 of 8th M / Our Meeting was small but a pretty solid & very quiet season. Father Rodman was at Meeting, the first he has attended in several Weeks & had a few words to offer – It is a privilege to set down with our friends in solemn silence & labour for the arisings of Divine life in the soul, & though the seed seemed to lay low, it seemed to me our Meeting was not in vain. -7th day 11th of 8th M / This morning by the Steam Boat, Clarke Shove & several others returned from Saratoga Springs who were there at the death of Charles Jenkins & attended his funeral – I did not see them being out when they called at our house. The account they left with my Wife of Charles removal, renew'd the feelings I had when I first received the Intelligence - He died on 1st day the 29th of 7th Month In the 21st year of his Age & was interred on 3rd day the 31st After a Solemn meeting

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 12, Sunday: Frederick Douglass resolved to escape on September 3d. Anna Marie Murray,⁴³¹ his betrothed, sold one of her two featherbeds to obtain money for his train ticket, and prepared for him a sailor costume. The all-important seaman's protection papers he would need for his cover story, papers ordinarily used by American merchantmen abroad, he borrowed from a retired free friend.⁴³²

UNDERGROUND RAILROAD

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 12th of 8 M 1838 / Our meetings today were both Silent, but solid good Seasons. – I hope we shall not all perish for want of food, there is that to be met with & experienced in solemn Silence which norishes the soul & Oh that we may find a true place of waiting whereby the true seed & the kingdom may

431. The Hortons say, on their page 227, "with the help of a free black woman named Anna and contacts in the underground railroad...." Had Douglass had any such contacts in the Underground Railroad organization he would not have wound up sleeping on the streets in New-York, ridiculously vulnerable to recapture.

432. This man, whoever he was, was, it seems, on the basis of mere fellow-feeling, taking a truly enormous risk. What if Douglass had been detected during his escape, and these papers seized? Would not the white retribution against this man have been instant and magnificent? Anna could always have claimed that she had no idea what that Freddy Bailey had been up to, and anyway, she had personal motivation for rendering assistance as her life prospects were directly and intimately tied up with Douglass's life prospects. But what could this man have claimed that would have taken the rope from around his neck, and would have saved him from enslavement in Douglass's place? I believe it has repeatedly been noticed that in Douglass's NARRATIVE he very much failed to give proper recognition to his betrothed for her necessary assistance during his escape, but I believe it has not been noticed that the necessary assistance rendered by this anonymous retired black sailor was even more risky — and in the narrative would go, equivalently, almost unrecognized.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

be witnessed – I feel, I do solemnly feel of sitting at the head of such a Meeting as ours, which tho' far smaller than it was long since my remembrance is nevertheless what may now be called a large Meeting - often mixed with those who are looking for words, & I have often been surprised to find, how much solemnity & quiet is spread over us & seems to reach even those who are unacquainted with our mode of Worship. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 15, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 15th of 8th M / Polly McClish who lived in this house with Aunt Nancy Carpenter, has for sometime been expecting to go to NYork to live with her son & the time has now come when she expects to leave, having remained with us since Aunt Nancys decease - By her Will she gave Polly a Legacy of $100 & various Articles of house hold furniture - I have this day Paid her the Money & taken her receipt for the whole bequest, which is a considerable weight from my mind

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 16, Thursday: The hulk of the Temaire was sold at auction to John Beatson, a ship breaker of Rotherhilde, for £5,530. The age of sail was over.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 16th of 8 M 1838 / Our meeting was unusually small, a number who usually attend were absent & I hope it was necessarily, or rather justifiably so – I know there are occasions which justify absence from Meeting but it certainly is our duty to guard against their occurence & to do all dilligence to let our light shine that, those disposed may take no advantage of our example - We Sat in Silence - Father is increasingly unwell & whether it will ever be, that he sits with us again, is uncertain. I visited him this Afternoon & found him very poorly, & his infermity & weakness increasing upon him. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 19, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 19th of 8th M 1838 / We had a comfortable silent Meeting this Morning – In the Afternoon Eliza Chase had a short offering,

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

which savored with me & it seems to me that both our Meetings today were solemn favoured seasons – certainly many come & sit with us who do not appear to be desirous of Words, but know the value of true silence

I felt so much for a young man (JW) who is generally in attendance with us on 1st days that I felt disposed to speak with him after Meeting & encourage him to hold on his way & that tho' his outward vision was dim being nearly blind from his birth, Yet I told him I believe that thro' the Power of Truth his inward sight might be made clear, so that he might walk & not stumble –he received my remarks with much feeling, & I was glad I attended to this little pointing of duty

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 23, Thursday: Mount Holyoke Female Seminary in South Hadley, Massachusetts, one of the 1st colleges for women in the USA, graduated its 1st students.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 23rd of 8th M / Our Meeting was small, but comfortable & good – a number was absent in consequence of Sickness either of themselves or families & some were our of Town. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 26, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 26th of 8th M / Our Meetings were both rather small, but solid & good Seasons. & it seemed to me the Solemnity was rather remarkably over the Morning – NO preaching – At the close in the Morning the funeral of Lydia Cornell was spoken of to be from the House of her Husband Walter Cornell in Portsmouth tomorrow at 1 OC at the house to proceed to this Town & the remains to be interred in Friends burying ground Near the Meeting house Father Rodman continues very feeble & low – Sits up but a few Minutes at a time & Seems to be gradually sinking – He said today I know it is an Awful thing to Die but I am willing to go whenever it please the Lord to take me. –

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Henry Thoreau wrote in his journal:

EVENING SOUNDS

August 26. How strangely sounds of revelry strike the ear from over cultivated fields by the woodside, while the sun is declining in the west. It is a world we had not known before. We listen and are capable of no mean act or thought. We tread on Olympus and participate in the councils of the gods.

a noble sentiment in the oldest books, — in Homer, the Zendavesta, or Confucius! It is a strain of music wafted down to us on the breeze of time, through the aisles of innumerable ages. By its very nobleness it is made near and audible to us.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

August 29, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th day 8th M 29 1838 / Information came to Town this Morning of the decease of our Friend Benjamin Mott, after he had eaten his breakfast & walked out round the door soon [he] came in leaning his head on a Chair Died immediately - A solemn Warning to all He was an Elder in Society & had been very useful. It seemed as if his concern for Truth & the Welfare of our Society, as the last time I was at his house he expressed much anxiety for its welfare & particularly that Ancient Quakerism should be supported adverting to Seasons of Early life when his mind had been affected by that spirit which visits the Youthful Mind. he particualry spoke of family opportunities which his Father Jacob Mott used to encourage & spent the time in sitting solidly together & in reading the Scriptures & writings of Friends he was Aged 80 Years 7 Months & two Days This Afternoon Nephew Thos D Rodman set some time with us & took tea, his visit was truly interesting

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 30, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 8 M 30th 1838 / Today is our Moy [Monthly] Meeting held at Portsmouth. I was unable to attend it, & consequently my wife did not go - I have had many callers in a friendly way & some of them interesting tho' I have felt quite feeble - In the Afternoon Cousiin Henry Gould called & informed me they had a good Moy [Monthly] Meeting that Mary Hicks appeared in Supplication & that our frd Benj. Buffungton from Fall River was there & was favourd in a lively testimony - he said also things went well in the last Meeting. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

August 31, Friday: Waldo Emerson to his journal:

Yesterday at ΦBK anniversary. Steady, steady. I am convinced that if a man will be a true scholar, he shall have perfect freedom. The young people & the mature hint at odium, & aversion of faces to be presently encountered in society. I say no: I fear it not. No scholar need fear it.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

6th day 8th M 31st 1838 / Today Our friend Benjamin Mott was interred in the burying ground at our Meeting House in Portsmouth He was in the 81 Year of his Age - He was son of Jacob Mott & Hannah his wife & the last Male of a long & Noble line of Ancestors who have been ornaments in our Monthly Meeting on Rhode Island from its commencement - & tho' he is the last of much standing being himself an Elder in society - yet there is some reason to hope the respectability will or may not, be lost in his son Jacob & his family who I hope may come up in the line of usefulness -

And altho' Benjamin has not appeared to be so deeply baptized as some of his predecessors, yet he has been concerned for the welfare of our Society & that the principles of it may be kept pure as professed by the primitive Quakers - This he manifested on various occasions, particularly to me when I returned with my wife to his House after our Select Meeting 18th of 7th M last when we had an interesting visit at his house - He was out at Meeting Several times afterwards & attended our Qry Meeting held at Portsmouth 4th & 5th of this Month & the Morning he died he went out & walked round his House attending to some little business, on returning to his house went in & set down on which he family perceived him to be in some difficulty & went to him, but found him quite gone before they could lay him on a Couch which stood handy - I have no doubt his last days were his best days & that his end was in Peace. -

Sister E R Nichols & Br D Rodman arrived last evening from Salem & Lynn on a visit To Father Rodman, who is evidently wearing out & sinking fast

This evening Br David called to see us we were glad to see him. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 2, Sunday: Queen Liliuokalani (last queen of Hawaii) was born.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 2nd of 9 M 1838 / Our Meetings both silent but pretty well attended - They were solid good Meetings & I was instructed with the solid reverend sitting of the people & to me it is wonderful how quiet & retired, how settled the Minds of Most or all who attend are, & how little thirst there is after words. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 4, Tuesday: Frederick Douglass, on his escape from the border American South, arrived in the only relative security of New-York:

On the morning of the fourth of that month, after an anxious and most perilous but safe journey, I found myself in the big city of New York, a FREE MAN— one more added to the mighty throng which, like the confused waves of the troubled sea, surged to and fro between the lofty walls of Broadway. Though dazzled with the wonders which met me on every hand, my thoughts could not be much withdrawn from my strange situation. For the moment, the dreams of my youth and the hopes of my manhood were completely fulfilled. The bonds that had held me to "old master" were broken. No man now had a right to call me his slave or assert mastery over me. I was in the rough and tumble of an outdoor world, to take my chance with the rest of its busy number. I have often been asked how I felt when first I found myself on free soil. There is scarcely anything in my experience about which I could not give a more satisfactory answer. A new world had opened upon me. If life is more than breath and the "quick round of blood," I lived more in that one day than in a year of my slave life. It was a time of joyous excitement which words can but tamely describe. In a letter written to a friend soon after reaching New York, I said: "I felt as one might feel upon escape from a den of hungry lions." Anguish and grief, like darkness and rain, may be depicted; but gladness and joy, like the rainbow, defy the skill of pen or pencil. During ten or fifteen years I had been, as it were, dragging a heavy chain which no strength of mine could break; I was not only a slave, but a slave for life. I might become a husband, a father, an aged man, but through all, from birth to death, from the cradle to the grave, I had felt myself doomed. All efforts I had previously made to secure my freedom had not only failed, but had seemed only to rivet my fetters the more firmly, and to render my escape more difficult. Baffled, entangled, and discouraged, I had at times asked myself the question, May not my condition after all be God's work, and ordered for a wise purpose, and if so, Is not submission my duty? A contest had in fact been going on in my mind for a long time, between the clear consciousness of right and the plausible make- shifts of theology and superstition. The one held me an abject slave—a prisoner for life, punished for some transgression in which I had no lot nor part; and the other counseled me to manly endeavor to secure my freedom. This contest was now ended; my chains were broken, and the victory brought me unspeakable joy.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

But my gladness was short-lived, for I was not yet out of the reach and power of the slave-holders. I soon found that New York was not quite so free or so safe a refuge as I had supposed, and a sense of loneliness and insecurity again oppressed me most sadly. I chanced to meet on the street, a few hours after my landing, a fugitive slave whom I had once known well in slavery. The information received from him alarmed me. The fugitive in question was known in Baltimore as "Allender's Jake," but in New York he wore the more respectable name of "William Dixon." Jake, in law, was the property of Doctor Allender, and Tolly Allender, the son of the doctor, had once made an effort to recapture MR. DIXON, but had failed for want of evidence to support his claim. Jake told me the circumstances of this attempt, and how narrowly he escaped being sent back to slavery and torture. He told me that New York was then full of Southerners returning from the Northern watering-places; that the colored people of New York were not to be trusted; that there were hired men of my own color who would betray me for a few dollars; that there were hired men ever on the lookout for fugitives; that I must trust no man with my secret; that I must not think of going either upon the wharves or into any colored boarding-house, for all such places were closely watched; that he was himself unable to help me; and, in fact, he seemed while speaking to me to fear lest I myself might be a spy and a betrayer. Under this apprehension, as I suppose, he showed signs of wishing to be rid of me, and with whitewash brush in hand, in search of work, he soon disappeared.

This picture, given by poor "Jake," of New York, was a damper to my enthusiasm. My little store of money would soon be exhausted, and since it would be unsafe for me to go on the wharves for work, and I had no introductions elsewhere, the prospect for me was far from cheerful. I saw the wisdom of keeping away from the ship-yards, for, if pursued, as I felt certain I should be, Mr. Auld, my "master," would naturally seek me there among the calkers. Every door seemed closed against me. I was in the midst of an ocean of my fellow-men, and yet a perfect stranger to every one. I was without home, without acquaintance, without money, without credit, without work, and without any definite knowledge as to what course to take, or where to look for succor. In such an extremity, a man had something besides his new-born freedom to think of. While wandering about the streets of New York, and lodging at least one night among the barrels on one of the wharves, I was indeed free—from slavery, but free from food and shelter as well....

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

The last point of imminent danger, and the one I dreaded most, was Wilmington. Here we left the train and took the steam-boat for Philadelphia. In making the change here I again apprehended arrest, but no one disturbed me, and I was soon on the broad and beautiful Delaware, speeding away to the Quaker City. On reaching Philadelphia in the afternoon, I inquired of a colored man how I could get on to New York. He directed me to the William-street depot, and thither I went, taking the train that night. I reached New York Tuesday morning, having completed the journey in less than twenty-four hours.

My free life began on the third of September, 1838....

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

*3rd day 4th of 9 m 1838 / I was aware that Polly McClish's leaving us would occasion a blank & be a loss in our family - but really today it has been more lonesome than I could have anticipated. it is now after tea & there is no doubt if nothing has happened to them they are at their home in West Chester where I desire them may be all peaceful & happy together
My Wife has got along with the buisness of the day with as much ease & facility as can be expected, but the care & confinement as well as the labour is far more than I desire or intend shall fall upon her, as soon as we can find some suitable person to employ, we shall embrace the opportunity, tho' I do not expect that Pollys place will be easily filled, for she has been general caretaker in this house & family for over 30 Years & knew the ways & peculiarities of it beyond any that will come after her*

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 6, Thursday/7, Friday: A steamer, the SS Forfarshire, being wrecked on one of the Farne Islands on it voyage from Hull to Dundee, Grace Horsley Darling, daughter of the keeper of the lighthouse, induced her father William Darling to assist her in rowing a small boat through the heavy seas in the rescue of nine persons.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 6th of 9th M 1838 / Our Meeting was quite small & Silent, but it was nevertheless to me & I doubt not to others a good Meeting. - I know not that our numbers will ever be increased, & it sometimes feels discouraging to look at this Meeting, when I was a boy & now at the present time When I first remember it all three of the high seats were filled with Ancient Men & now there are but four on the 2nd & about 6 on the 1st rising seat & our numbers at times quite small. - tho' we usually on first day forenoon have a pretty large gathering. -7th day 8 of 9 M

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

1838 / This Afternoon attended the Funeral of Anne Barker daughter of the late Matthew & Mary Barker. - She was in the 63 Year of her Age & all that time to tend like a child being not only Idiotic but helpless in body & unable to help herself in any way - she had been taken care of by Friends ever since her parents died - It is honorable to our society that they take care of their own Poor never suffering any to be chargeable to the Town & This poor woman has cost society probably more than $2000 in the time Friends have taken Charge of her

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 9, Sunday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 9th of 9th M 1838 / I awoke early this Morning by day light & as I lay in Bed saw the Steam Boat Richmond pass, & as the carriages returned heard one Stop at our door & a hard knock on the door & who should it be but our dear children & grandchild from Hudson, whom we were truly glad to see - indeed we were rejoiced to see them, there arrival was unexpected, but not the less pleasing - Before Meeting John went up to see his Grandfather Rodman who is very low, but knew his voice & was glad he came, tho' his eye sight is so gone as not to be able to distinguish countenances

Our Meetings were both silent & very Solid good seasons. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 10, Monday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

2nd day 9th M 10th 1838 / On calling to see Father Rodman this Afternoon, I found him increasingly weak & feeble - on asking him how he did he told me he was in a poor weak condition, but hoped he should be favoured with patience to the end - that he felt resigned to the event of death & trusted he should be favoured to meet it in quiet resignatiion - I told him I had no doubt he would be favoured at the last & that I was sensible that the Religion which he had professed in his youth would continue with him - he said he trusted it would & had boun[d] him up thro' a long life fraught with many trials, & if it had not have been for religion he must have sunk under his many trials, hence he was confident he had not trusted in vain, that the religion which he had experienced & been made partaker of was no cunningly devised fable but the Truth as it is in Jesus Christ

He remarked that however necessary good works were, they were not to be trusted in for salvation - but all was thro' the Mercy & mediation of Jesus Christ - At this time he told me that John had been up to see him & had brought his child but that the child was so young she would not come near him, but that he had felt a blessing in his mind for her from the time he heard of her

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

birth. —

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 15, Saturday: Jones Very's brother Washington, a Freshman, was asked to escort him home to Salem. Very wanted to go through Concord and speak with Waldo Emerson, but was disregarded. His younger brother allowed him, however, to post a letter to Emerson with a promised manuscript on William Shakespeare:

My Brother

I am glad at last to be able to transmit what has been told me of Shakespeare 'tis the faint echo of that which speaks to you now. That was the utterance of the soul still in its travail but the hour is past of which I have often spoken to you and you hear not mine own words but the teachings of the Holy Spirit. Rejoice with me my brother and give thanks with me to the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ who have now taken me to themselves and will not let me go any more from them. I feel that the day now is when "the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people." The gathering time has come and the harvest is now reaping from the wide plains of earth. Here, even here the will of the Father begins to be done as in heaven. My friend I tell you these things as they are told me and hope soon for a day or two of leisure perhaps in two or three weeks when I may speak with you face to face as I now write....

Edwin Gittleman glosses Very's "Shakespeare" of the December 1837-September 1838 period as a "Poetics of Revelation" and as an "omnium-gatherum of his basic attitudes ... both a spiritual autobiography and a blueprint for action." He characterizes both Very's "Shakespeare" and his "Hamlet" as "more revealing as

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

autobiography than as literary criticism.” I will attempt the feat of glossing Gittleman’s gloss:

In [“Shakespeare”] Very contrasted the man of [mere] genius (exemplified by Shakespeare) with the man of virtue (clearly Very himself, but figured as Christ).... Very [had] once told Emerson that if he could first “move Shakespeare” he could then “move the world.”... Shakespeare’s mind functioned spontaneously, without deliberate control. Its actions were not willed but reflexive and automatic ... in harmony with Nature ... childlike.... The child, like Nature, just is and automatically loves whatever else is. The man of genius, with his undifferentiated love of activity and existence, is thus a child-man, retaining his prelapsarian heritage through unwitting obedience to the Divine Will.... [However, b]ecause the obedience of the virtuous man is conscious, his greatness is superior to that of genius[,] ... moral rather than [merely] innocent.... Since man’s mind is so constituted by nature that it is not his own, he sins whenever he acts as if it were. He must therefore learn from genius and revelation that his “highest glory” consists of “conscious submission” to the Divine Will.... If ... the poet ... depicts “what ought to be,” his teaching is false and ineffectual; it is then merely the handiwork of his own mind. But if “what is” is seen and understood “with a spirit more nearly allied to Him who sees all things as they are,” then poetry will exhibit God’s presence.... The only proper subject ... is “what is” – the “ever new, ever changing aspect of nature and of man.” ... [V]irtue need not be “brightened” nor vice “darkened” by the poet’s independent judgment.

Evidently, at about this point, although the promise was not publicized, Very was pledging to his mother and siblings that whatever the outcome of this Jesus-Christ venture of his, he would “come out of it” before a year had passed.

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

7th day 15th of 9th M / This evening Steam Boat bore away our dear Son & daughter with our interesting & truly lovely grandchild, we regretted they could not stay to the funeral of their Grandfather Clarke Rodman, which is to be tomorrow After Meeting in the Afternoon but their child not being well, & having staid one day longer than they expected to, they were anxious to return to their home, & under the considerations we were reconciled to their going being truly thankful for their company as long as we have had it, & in particular that they came while

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

their Grandfather was living & could know they were with him.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

September 16, Sunday: Frederick Douglass and Anna Murray Douglass, as Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Johnson, were put by David Ruggles aboard the steamer John W. Richmond from New-York to Aquidneck Island⁴³³ in Rhode Island and there boarded a stagecoach headed toward the whaling port of New Bedford in the company of Friend Joseph Ricketson, Junior and Friend William C. Taber.⁴³⁴

In New Bedford, known as a liberal town, the outlaw bridegroom would be seeking (but not finding, due to race prejudice) employment as a caulker — and would be put to work on the docks as a stevedore.

433. There is possible irony here, that might be looked into. What is the probability that Anna's and Frederick's black ancestors had been brought to this continent in ships owned by the international slavetraders of Newport?

434. Although Frederick Douglass's various narratives all make the encounter in Newport seem quite accidental, it is rather more likely that David Ruggles had passed the word to the local anti-slavery society, and that Friends William C. Taber and Ricketson had been expectantly waiting for them to disembark from the steamer.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

ANNA MURRAY DOUGLASS

FREDERICK DOUGLASS

We arrived at Newport the next morning, and soon after an old fashioned stage-coach, with "New Bedford" in large yellow letters on its sides, came down to the wharf. I had not money enough to pay our fare, and stood hesitating what to do. Fortunately for us, there were two Quaker gentlemen who were about to take passage on the stage,— Friends William C. Taber and Joseph Ricketson, —who at once discerned our true situation, and, in a peculiarly quiet way, addressing me, Mr. Taber said: "Thee get in." I never obeyed an order with more alacrity, and we were soon on our way to our new home. When we reached "Stone Bridge" the passengers alighted for breakfast, and paid their fares to the driver. We took no breakfast, and, when asked for our fares, I told the driver I would make it right with him when we reached New Bedford.

WILLIAM C. TABER

JOSEPH RICKETSON

"The capacity to get free is nothing; the capacity to be free, that is the task."

— André Gide, THE IMMORALIST

translation Richard Howard

NY: Alfred A. Knopf, 1970, page 7

Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

1st day 16th of 9 M 1838 / I was so unwell for several days past that I could go out but little & have not attended Meetings today, but felt Able to be at the funeral of my Venerable Father in law Clarke Rodman, which was after the Afternoon Meeting - It was very numerously attended by people of all persuasions, & the sitting at the house was a very solemn Season leaving an evidence that words are not necessary to produce an evidence to the Truth but that it may be experienced in solemn Silence The only expressions were from Hannah Dennis simply the expression of the Scripture passage "Mark the perfect Man & behold the upright, for the end of that Man is peace."- this simply expressed, without enlargement, left a precious savor & I never felt more unity with Hannah on any occasion. -- At the grave we had a Silent Solemn pause & the countenances of the people exhibited a reverence & respect not usually discoverable to the same extent on such occasions -

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 19, Wednesday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

4th da 19 of 9th M 1838 / Today I Mailed a letter to Br David Rodman giving some account of Fathers last Moments &c. -

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

September 20, Thursday: Friend Stephen Wanton Gould wrote in his journal:

5th day 20th of 9th M 1838 / Our Meeting today was small, & silent, but to me a season of feeling - I could but reflect that we should never see Father Rodman in his seat again, & how poorly it was now to be occupied - We are now reduced to three who are to Sit at the head of the Meeting & Oh the weight & responsibility which devolved upon us - Our poor Society what is it coming to - I can but feel a hope it will be sustained - that the Great Shepherd of the Flock will extend his gathering Crook & feed his tender lambs - But Oh the weakness which surrounds us

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

HDTWHAT?INDEXFRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD*STEPHEN WANTON GOULDGo To MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

October 1, Monday: Lord Auckland ordered into existence a British force for service across the Indus River.

AFGHANISTAN

Stephen Wanton Gould died in Newport, Rhode Island at the age of 57.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

“NARRATIVE HISTORY” IS FABULATION, HISTORY IS CHRONOLOGY

COPYRIGHT NOTICE: In addition to the property of others, such as extensive quotations and reproductions of images, this “read-only” computer file contains a great deal of special work product of Austin Meredith, copyright ©2014. Access to these interim materials will eventually be offered for a fee in order to recoup some of the costs of preparation. My hypercontext button invention which, instead of creating a hypertext leap through hyperspace –resulting in navigation problems– allows for an utter alteration of the context within which one is experiencing a specific content already being viewed, is claimed as proprietary to Austin Meredith – and therefore freely available for use by all. Limited permission to copy such files, or any material from such files, must be obtained in advance in writing from the “Stack of the Artist of Kouroo” Project, 833 Berkeley St., Durham NC 27705. Please contact the project at <Kouroo@kouroo.info>.

“It’s all now you see. Yesterday won’t be over until tomorrow and tomorrow began ten thousand years ago.”

– Remark by character “Garin Stevens” in William Faulkner’s INTRUDER IN THE DUST

Prepared: January 3, 2014

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

ARRGH AUTOMATED RESearch REPORT

GENERATION HOTLINE

This stuff presumably looks to you as if it were generated by a human. Such is not the case. Instead, someone has requested that we pull it out of the hat of a pirate who has grown out of the shoulder of our pet parrot "Laura" (as above). What these chronological lists are: they are research reports compiled by ARRGH algorithms out of a database of modules which we term the Kouroo Contexture (this is data mining). To respond to such a request for information we merely push a button.

FRIEND STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

STEPHEN WANTON GOULD

GO TO MASTER HISTORY OF QUAKERISM

Commonly, the first output of the algorithm has obvious deficiencies and we need to go back into the modules stored in the contexture and do a minor amount of tweaking, and then we need to punch that button again and recompile the chronology – but there is nothing here that remotely resembles the ordinary “writerly” process you know and love. As the contents of this originating contexture improve, and as the programming improves, and as funding becomes available (to date no funding whatever has been needed in the creation of this facility, the entire operation being run out of pocket change) we expect a diminished need to do such tweaking and recompiling, and we fully expect to achieve a simulation of a generous and untiring robotic research librarian. Onward and upward in this brave new world.

First come first serve. There is no charge.
Place requests with <Kouroo@kouroo.info>. Arrgh.