Bhagavadgita. English 0 mahabharata, Tshagaradgeta ? BHĂGVĂT-GĒĒTĀ,

OR

DIALOGUES

OF

KRĔĔSHNĂ AND ĂRJŎŎN.

TRANSLATED BY

CHARLES WILKINS.

3,

NEW YORK:

REPRINTED FOR GEO. P. PHILES, New York University.

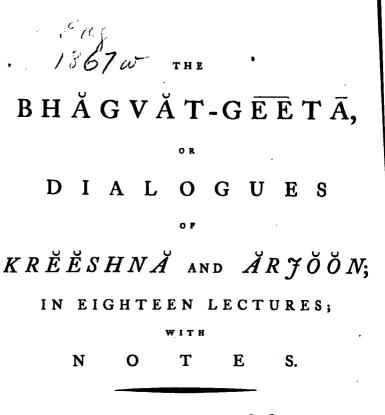

M.D.CCC.LXVII.

[261 COPIES PRINTED FOR SUBSCRIBERS.]

BL 1130 .A4 W5 1867a

1.

BRADSTREET PRESS.

TRANSLATED FROM THE ORIGINAL, IN THE San/kreet, OR ANCIENT LANGUAGE OF THE Brahmans,

ВY

CHARLES WILKINS,

SENIOR MERCHANT IN THE SERVICE OF THE HONOURABLE THE EAST INDIA COMPANY, ON THEIR BENGAL ESTABLISHMENT.

LONDON:

PRINTED FOR C. NOURSE, OPPOSITE CATHARINE-STREET, IN THE STRAND.

M.DCC.LXXXV.

MAY 30th, 1785.

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE following Work is published under the authority of the Court of Directors of the East India Company, by the particular defire and recommendation of the Governor General of India; whose letter to the Chairman of the Company will sufficiently explain the motives for its publication, and furnish the best testimony of the fidelity, accuracy, and merit of the Translator.

The antiquity of the original, and the veneration in which it bath been held for fo many ages, by a very confiderable portion of the buman race, must render it one of the greatest curiosities ever presented to the literary world.

ТΟ

NATHANIEL SMITH, Efquire.

Banaris, 4th October 1784.

SIR,

TO you, as to the first member of the first commercial body, not only of the prefent age, but of all the known generations of mankind, I prefume to offer, and to recommend through you, for an offering to the public, a very curious specimen of the Literature, the Mythology, and Morality of the ancient Hindoos. It is an episodical extract from the "Mahabharat," a most voluminous poem, affirmed to have been written upwards of four thousand years ago, by Kreeshna Dwypayen Veiâs, a learned Bramin; to whom is also attributed the compilation of "The Four "Vêdes, or Bêdes," the only existing original scriptures of the religion of Brahmâ; and the composition of all the Poorâns, which are to this day taught in their schools, and venerated as poems of divine infpiration. Among thefe, and of fuperior effimation to the reft, is ranked the Mahabharat. But if the feveral books here enumerated be really the productions of their reputed author, which is greatly to be doubted, many arguments may be adduced to afcribe to the fame fource the invention of the religion itfelf, as well as its promulgation : and he muft, at all events, claim the merit of having first reduced the gross and scattered tenets of their former faith into a scientific and allegorical system.

The Mahabharat contains the genealogy and general hiftory of the house of Bhaurut, so called from Bhurrut, its founder; the epithet Mahâ, or Great, being prefixed in token of distinction: but its its more particular object is to relate the diffentions and wars of the two great collateral branches of it, called Kooroos and Pandoos; both lineally defcended in the fecond degree from Veecheetraveerya, their common anceftor, by their respective fathers Dreetrarashtra and Pandoo.

The Kooroos, which indeed is fometimes used as a term comprehending the whole family, but most frequently applied as the patronymic of the elder branch alone, are faid to have been one hundred in number, of whom Dooryodun was efteemed the head and representative even during the life of his father, who was incapacitated by blindmess. The fons of Pandoo were five; Yoodhistiteer, Bheem, Arjoon, Nekool, and Sehadeo; who, through the artifices of Dooryodun, were banished, by their uncle and guardian Dreetrarashtra, from Hastenapoor, at that time the seat of government of Hindostan.

The exiles, after a feries of adventures, worked up with a wonderful fertility of genius and pomp of language into a thousand fublime descriptions, returned with a powerful army to avenge their wrongs, and affert their pretensions to the empire in right of their father; by whom, though the younger brother, it had been held while he lived, on account of the disqualification already mentioned of Dreetrarashtra.

In this ftate the epifode opens, and is called "The Geeta of "Bhagvat," which is one of the names of Kreefhna. Arjoon is reprefented as the favorite and pupil of Kreefhna, here taken for God himfelf, in his laft Ootâr, or descent to earth in a mortal form.

The Preface of the Translator will render any further explanation of the Work unneceffary. Yet fomething it may be allowable for me to add refpecting my own judgment of a Work which I have thus informally obtruded on your attention, as it is the only ground on which I can defend the liberty which I have taken.

Might I, an unlettered man, venture to prefcribe bounds to the latitude of criticifm, I fhould exclude, in effimating the merit of fuch a production, all rules drawn from the ancient or modern literature of Europe, all references to fuch fentiments or manners as are become the ftandards of propriety for opinion and action in our own modes of life, and equally all appeals to our revealed tenets of religion and moral duty. I fhould exclude them, as by no means applicable to the language, fentiments, manners, or morality rality appertaining to a fystem of fociety with which we have been for ages unconnected, and of an antiquity preceding even the first efforts of civilization in our own quarter of the globe, which, in respect to the general diffusion and common participation of arts and fciences, may be now confidered as one community.

I would exact from every reader the allowance of obscurity, abfurdity, barbarous habits, and a perverted morality. Where the reverse appears, I would have him receive it (to use a familiar phrase) as so much clear gain, and allow it a merit proportioned to the disappointment of a different expectation.

In effect, without befpeaking this kind of indulgence, I could hardly venture to perfift in my recommendation of this production for public notice.

Many paffages will be found obfcure, many will feem redundant; others will be found cloathed with ornaments of fancy unfuited to our tafte, and fome elevated to a track of fublimity into which our habits of judgment will find it difficult to purfue them; but few which will thock either our religious faith or moral fenti-Something too must be allowed to the subject itself, which ments. is highly metaphyfical, to the extreme difficulty of rendering abftract terms by others exactly corresponding with them in another language, to the arbitrary combination of ideas, in words expreffing unfubstantial qualities, and more, to the errors of interpreta-The modefty of the Translator would induce him to defend tion. the credit of his work, by laying all its apparent defects to his own charge, under the article last enumerated; but neither does his accuracy merit, nor the work itfelf require that conceffion.

It is also to be observed, in illustration of what I have premised, that the Brahmans are enjoined to perform a kind of spiritual difcipline, not, I believe, unknown to some of the religious orders of Christians in the Romish Church. This confists in devoting a certain period of time to the contemplation of the Deity, his attributes, and the moral duties of this life. It is required of those who practife this exercise, not only that they dives their minds of all sense define, but that their attention be abstracted from every external object, and absorbed, with every fense, in the prescribed subject of their meditation. I myself was once a witness of a man employed in this species of devotion, at the principal temple of Banaris. His right hand and arm were enclosed in a loose fleeve or bag of red cloth, within which he passed the beads of his rofary, fary, one after another, through his fingers, repeating with the touch of each (as I was informed) one of the names of God, while his mind laboured to catch and dwell on the idea of the quality which appertained to it, and fhewed the violence of its exertion to attain this purpofe by the convulfive movements of all his features, his eyes being at the fame time closed, doubtlefs to affift the abftraction. The importance of this duty cannot be better illuftrated, nor ftronger marked, than by the laft fentence with which Kreefhna closes his inftruction to Arjoon, and which is properly the conclusion of the Geeta: "Hath what I have been "fpeaking, O Arjoon, been heard with thy mind fixed to one point? "Is the diftraction of thought, which arole from thy ignorance, re-"moved?"

To those who have never been accustomed to this separation of the mind from the notices of the fenfes, it may not be eafy to conceive by what means fuch a power is to be attained; fince even the most studious men of our hemisphere will find it difficult so to reftrain their attention but that it will wander to fome object of prefent fenfe or recollection; and even the buzzing of a fly will fometimes have the power to diffurb it. But if we are told that there have been men who were fucceffively, for ages paft, in the daily habit of abstracted contemplation, begun in the earliest period of youth, and continued in many to the maturity of age, each adding fome portion of knowledge to the ftore accumulated by his predeceffors; it is not affuming too much to conclude, that, as the mind ever gathers ftrength, like the body, by exercise, so in such an exercife it may in each have acquired the faculty to which they afpired, and that their collective fludies may have led them to the difcovery of new tracks and combinations of fentiment, totally different from the doctrines with which the learned of other nations are acquainted : doctrines, which however speculative and subtle, still, as they poffers the advantage of being derived from a fource to free from every adventitious mixture, may be equally founded in truth with the most fimple of our own. But as they must differ, yet more than the most abstrufe of ours, from the common modes of thinking, fo they will require confonant modes of expression, which it may be impossible to render by any of the known terms of science in our language, or even to make them intelligible by definition. This is probably the cafe with fome of the English phrases, as those of "Action," "Application," "Practice," &c. which occur in Mr.

Mr. Wilkins's translation; and others, for the reafons which I have recited, he has left with the fame founds in which he found them. When the text is rendered obfcure from fuch caufes, candor requires that credit be given to it for fome accurate meaning, though we may not be able to difcover it; and that we afcribe their obfcurity to the incompetency of our own perceptions, on fo novel an application of them, rather than to the lefs probable want of perfpicuity in the original composition.

With the deductions, or rather qualifications, which I have thus premifed, I hefitate not to pronounce the Geeta a performance of great originality; of a fublimity of conception, reafoning, and diction, almost unequalled; and a fingle exception, among all the known religions of mankind, of a theology accurately corresponding with that of the Christian dispensation, and most powerfully illustrating its fundamental doctrines.

It will not be fair to try its relative worth by a comparison with the original text of the first standards of European composition; but let these be taken even in the most esteemed of their profe translations; and in that equal scale let their merits be weighed. I should not fear to place, in opposition to the best French versions of the most admired passages of the Iliad or Odyssey, or of the 1st and 6th Books of our own Milton, highly as I venerate the latter, the English translation of the Mahabharat.

One blemish will be found in it, which will scarcely fail to make its own impression on every correct mind; and which for that reafon I anticipate. I mean, the attempt to defcribe fpiritual existences by terms and images which appertain to corporeal forms. Yet even in this respect it will appear less faulty than other works with which I have placed it in competition; and, defective as it may at first appear, I know not whether a doctrine to elevated above common perception did not require to be introduced by fuch ideas as were familiar to the mind, to lead it by a gradual advance to the pure and abstract comprehension of the subject. This will seen to have been, whether intentionally or accidentally, the order which is followed by the author of the Geeta; and fo far at least he foars far beyond all competitors in this fpecies of composition. Even the frequent recurrence of the fame fentiment, in a variety of drefs, may have been owing to the fame confideration of the extreme intricacy of the fubject, and the confequent necessity of trying different kinds of exemplification and argument, to impress it with due conviction conviction on the understanding. Yet I believe it will appear, to an attentive reader, neither deficient in method, nor in perspicuity. On the contrary, I thought it at the first reading, and more so at the second, clear beyond what I could have reasonably expected, in a difcussion of points so far removed beyond the reach of the senses, and explained through so foreign a medium.

It now remains to fay fomething of the Translator, Mr. Charles This Gentleman, to whofe ingenuity, unaided by mo-Wilkins. dels for imitation, and by artifts for his direction, your government is indebted for its printing-office, and for many official purpofes to which it has been profitably applied, with an extent unknown in Europe, has united to an early and fuccefsful attainment of the Perfian and Bengal languages, the fludy of the Sanskreet. To this he devoted himfelf with a perfeverance of which there are few examples, and with a fuccefs which encouraged him to undertake the translation of the Mahabharat. This book is faid to confift of more than one hundred thousand metrical stanzas, of which he has at this time translated more than a third; and, if I may trust to the imperfect tefts by which I myfelf have tried a very fmall portion of it, through the medium of another language, he has rendered it with great accuracy and fidelity. Of its elegance, and the skill with which he has familiarized (if I may fo express it) his own native language to fo foreign an original, I may not fpeak, as from the fpecimen herewith prefented, whoever reads it, will judge for himfelf.

Mr. Wilkins's health having fuffered a decline from the fatigues of bufinefs, from which his gratuitous labors allowed him no relaxation, he was advifed to try a change of air for his recovery. I myfelf recommended that of Banaris, for the fake of the additional advantage which he might derive from a refidence in a place which is confidered as the first feminary of Hindoo learning; and I promoted his application to the Board, for their permisfion to repair thither, without forfeiting his official appointments during the term of his abfence.

I have always regarded the encouragement of every fpecies of ufeful diligence, in the fervants of the Company, as a duty appertaining to my office; and have feverely regretted that I have polfeffed fuch fcanty means of exercifing it, effecially to fuch as required an exemption from official attendance; there being few emoluments in this this fervice but fuch as are annexed to official employment, and few offices without employment. Yet I believe I may take it upon me to pronounce, that the fervice has at no period more abounded with men of cultivated talents, of capacity for bufinefs, and liberal knowledge; qualities which reflect the greater luftre on their poffeffors by having been the fruit of long and laboured application, at a feafon of life, and with a licence of conduct, more apt to produce diffipation than excite the defire of improvement.

Such studies, independently of their utility, tend, especially when the pursuit of them is general, to diffuse a generosity of sentiment, and a distain of the meaner occupations of such minds as are left nearer to the state of uncultivated nature; and you, Sir, will believe me, when I assure you, that it is on the virtue, not the ability of their servants, that the Company must rely for the permanency of their dominion.

Nor is the cultivation of language and fcience, for fuch are the ftudies to which I allude, useful only in forming the moral character and habits of the fervice. Every accumulation of knowledge. and efpecially fuch as is obtained by focial communication with people over whom we exercise a dominion founded on the right of conquest, is useful to the state: it is the gain of humanity: in the specific instance which I have stated, it attracts and conciliates diftant affections; it leffens the weight of the chain by which the natives are held in fubjection; and it imprints on the hearts of our own countrymen the fenfe and obligation of benevolence. Even in England, this effect of it is greatly wanting. It is not very long fince the inhabitants of India were confidered by many, as creatures fcarce elevated above the degree of favage life; nor, I fear, is that prejudice yet wholly eradicated, though furely abated. Every instance which brings their real character home to observation will imprefs us with a more generous fense of feeling for their natural rights, and teach us to estimate them by the measure of our own. But fuch inftances can only be obtained in their writings: and thefe will furvive when the British dominion in India shall have long ceafed to exift, and when the fources which it once yielded of wealth and power are loft to remembrance.

If you, Sir, on the perusal of Mr. Wilkins's performance, shall judge it worthy of so honorable a patronage, may I take the further liberty to request that you will be pleased to present it to the Court of Directors, for publication by their authority, and to use your your interest to obtain it? Its public reception will be the test of its real merit, and determine Mr. Wilkins in the profecution or ceffation of his prefent laborious studies. It may, in the first event, clear the way to a wide and unexplored field of fruitful knowledge; and fuggeft, to the generofity of his honorable employers, a defire to encourage the first perfevering adventurer in a fervice in which his example will have few followers, and most probably none, if it is to be performed with the gratuitous labor of years loft to the provision of future subfistence: for the study of the Sanskreet cannot, like the Persian language, be applied to official profit, and improved with the official exercise of it. It can only derive its reward, beyond the breath of fame, in a fixed endowment. Such has been the fate of his predecessor, Mr. Halhed, whose labors and incomparable genius, in two useful productions, have been crowned with every fuccess that the public estimation could give them; nor will it detract from the no lefs original merit of Mr. Wilkins, that I afcribe to another the title of having led the way, when I add, that this example held out to him no incitement to emulate it, but the profpect of barren applause. To fay more, would be difrefpect; and I believe that I address myfelf to a gentleman who pollelles talents congenial with those which I am fo anxious to encourage, and a mind too liberal to confine its beneficence to fuch arts alone as contribute to the immediate and fubstantial advantages of the state.

I think it proper to affure you, that the fubject of this addrefs, and its defign, were equally unknown to the perfon who is the object of it; from whom I originally obtained the translation for another purpofe, which on a fecond revifal of the work I changed, from a belief that it merited a better defination.

A mind rendered fusceptible by the daily experience of unmerited reproach, may be excused if it anticipates even unreasonable or improbable objections. This must be my plea for any apparent futility in the following observation. I have seen an extract from a foreign work of great literary credit, in which my name is mentioned, with very undeferved applause, for an attempt to introduce the knowledge of Hindoo literature into the European world, by forcing or corrupting the religious conficiences of the Pundits, or professors of their facred doctrines. This reflection was produced by the publication of Mr. Halhed's translation of the Poottee, or code of Hindoo laws; and is totally devoid of foundation. For myself I can declare truly, that if the acquifition could not have been obtained but by fuch means as have been fuppofed, I fhould never have fought it. It was contributed both cheerfully and gratuitoufly, by men of the most respectable characters for fanctity and learning in Bengal, who refused to accept more than the moderate daily subfistence of one rupee each, during the term that they were employed on the compilation; nor will it much redound to my credit, when I add, that they have yet received no other reward for their meritorious labors. Very natural caufes may be afcribed for their reluctance to communicate the mysteries of their learning to strangers, as those to whom they have been for some centuries in . fubjection, never enquired into them, but to turn their religion into derifion, or deduce from them arguments to support the intolerant principles of their own. From our nation they have received a different treatment, and are no lefs eager to impart their knowledge than we are to receive it. I could fay much more in proof of this fact, but that it might look too much like felfcommendation.

I have the honor to be, with respect,

S I R, Your most obedient, and Most humble Servant, WARREN HASTINGS.

Calcutta, 3d Decr 1784.

P. S. Since the above was written, Mr. Wilkins has transmitted to me a corrected copy of his Translation, with the Preface and Notes much enlarged and improved. In the former, I meet with fome complimentary passages, which are certainly improper for a work published at my own folicitation. But he is at too great a distance to allow of their being fent back to him for correction, without losing the opportunity, which I am unwilling to lose, of the prefent dispatch; nor could they be omitted, if I thought myself at liberty to expunge them, without requiring confiderable alterations in the context. They must therefore stand; and I hope that this explanation will be admitted as a valid excuse for me in passing them.

W. H. THE

[13]

BHĂGVĂT-GĒĒTĀ, ^* DIALOGUES ^7

KRĔĔSHNĂ AND ĂRJŎŎN.

•

.

. .

THE

TO THE HONORABLE

WARREN HASTINGS, ESQ.

GOVERNOR GENERAL, &C. &C.

HONORABLE SIR,

NCONSCIOUS of the liberal purpose for which you intended the Geeta, when, at your request, I had the honor to prefent you with a copy of the manufcript, I was the lefs folicitous about its imperfections, becaufe I knew that your extensive acquaintance with the cuftoms and religious tenets of the Hindoos would elucidate every passage that was obscure, and I had so often experienced approbation from your partiality, and correction from your pen: It was the theme of a pupil to his preceptor and patron. But fince I received your commands to prepare it for the public view, I feel all that anxiety which must be inseparable from one who, for the first time, is about to appear before that awful tribunal; and I should dread the event, were I not convinced that the liberal fentiments expressed in the letter you have done me the honor to write, in recommendation of the work, to the Chairman of the Direction, if permitted to accompany it to the prefs, would fcreen me, under its own intrinsic merit, from all censure.

3

The

The world, Sir, is fo well acquainted with your boundlefs patronage in general, and of the perfonal encouragement you have conftantly given to my fellow-fervants in particular, to render themfelves more capable of performing their duty in the various branches of commerce, revenue, and policy, by the fludy of the languages, with the laws and cuftoms of the natives, that it must deem the first fruit of every genius you have raifed a tribute juftly due to the fource from which it fprang. As that perfonal encouragement alone first excited emulation in my breast, and urged me to profecute my particular fludies, even beyond the line of pecuniary reward, I humbly request you will permit me, in token of my gratitude, to lay the Geeta publicly at your feet.

I have the honor to fubscribe myself, with great respect,

Honorable Sir,

Your most obedient, and Most humble Servant,

Banaris, 19th November, 1784.

CHA^s WILKINS.

тне

TRANSLATOR'S PREFACE.

THE following work, forming part of the Mahabharat, an ancient Hindoo poem, is a dialogue fuppofed to have paffed between Kree/bna, an incarnation of the Deity, and his pupil and favorite Arjoon, one of the five fons of Pandoo, who is faid to have reigned about five thousand years ago, just before the commencement of a famous battle fought on the plains of Koorook/hetra, near Debly, at the beginning of the Kalee-Yoog, or fourth and prefent age of the world, for the empire of Bharat-ver/h, which, at that time, included all the countries that, in the prefent divifion of the globe, are called India, extending from the borders of Perfia to the extremity of China; and from the fnowy mountains to the fouthern promontory.

The Brahmans effeem this work to contain all the grand myfteries of their religion; and fo careful are they to conceal it from the knowledge of those of a different perfuasion, and even the vulgar of their own, that the Translator might have fought in vain for affistance, had not the liberal treatment they have of late years experienced from the mildness of our government, the tolerating principles of our faith, and, above all, the perfonal attention paid to the learned men of their order by him under whose auspicious administration they have so long enjoyed, in the midst of surrounding troubles, the blessings of internal peace, and his exemplary encouragement, at length happily created in their breasts a confidence in his countrymen sufficient to remove almost every jealous prejudice from their minds.

It feems as if the principal defign of thefe dialogues was to unite all the prevailing modes of worfhip of thofe days; and, by fetting up the doctrine of the unity of the Godhead, in opposition to idolatrous trous facrifices, and the worfhip of images, to undermine the tenets inculcated by the Veds; for although the author dared not make a direct attack, either upon the prevailing prejudices of the people, or the divine authority of those ancient books; yet, by offering eternal happines to such as worfhip Brabm, the Almighty, whils the declares the reward of such as follow other Gods shall be but a temporary enjoyment of an inferior heaven, for a period measured by the extent of their virtues, his design was to bring about the downfall of Polytheism; or, at least, to induce men to believe God present in every image before which they bent, and the object of all their ceremonies and facrifices.

The most learned Brahmans of the present times are Unitarians according to the doctrines of Kreefhna; but, at the same time that they believe but in one God, an universal spirit, they so far comply with the prejudices of the vulgar, as outwardly to perform all the ceremonies inculcated by the Veds, such as facrifices, ablutions, &c. They do this, probably, more for the support of their own consequence, which could only arise from the great ignorance of the people, than in compliance with the dictates of Kreefhna: indeed, this ignorance, and these ceremonies, are as much the bread of the Brahmans, as the superstition of the vulgar is the support of the priesthood in many other countries.

The reader will have the liberality to excufe the obfcurity of many paffages, and the confusion of fentiments which runs through the whole, in its prefent form. It was the Translator's business to remove as much of this obfcurity and confusion as his knowledge and abilities would permit. This he hath attempted in his Notes; but as he is confcious they are still infufficient to remove the veil of mystery, he begs leave to remark, in his own justification, that the text is but imperfectly understood by the most learned Brahmans of the prefent times; and that, Imall as the work may appear, it has had more comments than the Revelations. These have not been totally diffegarded; but, as they were frequently found more obfcure than the original they were intended to elucidate, it was thought better to leave many of the most difficult passages for the exercise of the reader's own judgment, than to misse for the wild opinions as no one fyllable of the text could authorize.

Some apology is also due for a few original words and proper names that are left untranslated and unexplained. The Translator was frequently too diffident of his own abilities to hazard a term that that did but nearly approach the fense of the original, and too ignorant, at present, of the mythology of this ancient people, to venture any very particular account, in his Notes, of such Deities, Saints, and Heroes, whose names are but barely mentioned in the text. But should the same Genius, whose approbation first kindled emulation in his breast, and who alone hath urged him to undertake, and supported him through the execution of far more laborious tasks than this, find no cause to withdraw his countenance, the Translator may be encouraged to prosecute the study of the theology and mythology of the Hindoos, for the future entertainment of the curious.

It is worthy to be noted, that Kree/hna, throughout the whole, mentions only three of the four books of the Veds, the most ancient fcriptures of the Hindoos, and those the first three, according to the present order. This is a very curious circumstance, as it is the present belief that the whole four were promulgated by Brahma at the creation. The proof then of there having been but three before his time, is more than presumptive, and that so many actually existed before his appearance; and as the fourth mentions the name of Kree/hna, it is equally proved that it is a posterior work. This observation has escaped all the commentators, and was received with great astonishment by the Pandeet who was consulted in the translation.

The Translator has not as yet had leifure to read any part of those ancient fcriptures. He is told, that a very few of the original number of chapters are now to be found, and that the fludy of these is fo difficult, that there are but few men in Banaris who understand any part of them. If we may believe the Mababharat, they were almost loss five thousand years ago; when Vyas, fo named from having superintended the compilation of them, collected the fcattered leaves, and, by the assistance of his disciples, collated and preferved them in four books.

тне

тне

BHĂGVĂT-GĒĒTĀ,

DIALOGUES

O F

OR

KRĔĔSHNĂ AND ĂRJŎŎN.

LECTURE I.

THE GRIEF OF ARJOON.

DHREETARASHTRA faid,

"TELL me, O Sanjay, what the people of my own party, and those of the Pandoos, who are affembled at Kooroo-k/hetra resolved for war, have been doing.

SANJAY replied,

"Dooryodhan having feen the army of the Pandoos drawn up for battle, went to his Preceptor, and addreffed him in the following words:"

"Behold! O maîter, faid he, the mighty army of the fons of Pandoo drawn forth by thy pupil, the experienced enced fon of Droopad. In it are heroes, fuch as Bbeem or Arjoon: there is Yooyoodhana, and Veerat, and Droopad, and Dhreeshtaketoo, and Chekeetana, and the valiant prince of Kase, and Pooroojeet, and Koonteebhoja, and Sivya a mighty chief, and Yoodhamanyoo-Veekranta, and the daring Ootamowja; fo the fon of Soobhadra, and the fons of Kreefhna, the daughter of Droopad, all of them great in arms. Be acquainted also with the names of those of our party who are the most distinguished. I will mention a few of those who are amongst my generals, by way of example. There is thyfelf, my Preceptor, and Bhee/hma, and Kreepa the conqueror in battle, and A/watthama, and Veekarna, and the fon of Sama-datta, with others in vast numbers who for my fervice have forfaken the love of life. They are all of them practifed in the use of arms, and experienced in every mode of fight. Our innumerable forces are commanded by Bheefhma, and the inconfiderable army of our foes is led by Bheem. Let all the generals, according to their respective divisions, ftand in their pofts, and one and all refolve Bheefhma to fupport."

The ancient chief', and brother of the grandfire of the Kooroos, then, fhouting with a voice like a roaring lion, blew his shell * to raise the spirits of the Kooroo chief; and inftantly innumerable shells, and other warlike instruments, were ftruck up on all fides, fo that the clangour was excessive. At this time Kreeshna' and Arjoon 4 were standing in a splendid chariot drawn by white They also founded their shells, which were of horfes. celestial form: the name of the one which was blown by Kree/hna, was Panchajanya, and that of Arjoon was called Deva-datta. Bheem, of dreadful deeds, blew his capacious shell Powndra, and Yoodheeshteer, the royal fon of Koontee, founded Ananta-Veejay. Nakool and Sahadeva blew their shells also; the one called Soogosha, the other other Maneepoofhpaka. The prince of Kafee of the mighty bow, Seekhandee, Dhreefhtadhocmna, Veerata, Satyakee of invincible arm, Droopad and the fons of his royal daughter Kreefhna, with the fon of Soobhadra, and all the other chiefs and nobles, blew alfo their refpective fhells; fo that their fhrill founding voices pierced the hearts of the Kooroos, and re-echoed with a dreadful noife from heaven to earth.

In the mean time Arjoon, perceiving that the fons of Dhreetara/hira flood ready to begin the fight, and that the weapons began to fly abroad, having taken up his bow, addreffed Kree/hna in the following words:

Arjoon.

"I pray thee, Kreefnna, caufe my chariot to be driven and placed between the two armies, that I may behold who are the men that ftand ready, anxious to commence the bloody fight; and with whom it is that I am to fight in this ready field; and who they are that are here affembled to fupport the vindictive fon of Dhreetarafhtra in the battle."

Kree/hna being thus addreffed by Arjoon, drove the chariot; and, having caufed it to halt in the midft of the space in front of the two armies, bad Arjoon caft his eyes towards the ranks of the Kooroos, and behold where stood the aged Bhee/hma, and Dron, with all the chief nobles of their party. He looked at both the armies, and beheld, on either side, none but grandfires, uncles, cousins, tutors, fons, and brothers, near relations, or bosom friends; and when he had gazed for a while, and beheld such friends as these prepared for the fight, he was seized with extreme pity and compunction, and uttered his forrow in the following words:

ARJOON.

"Having beheld, O Kreefhna! my kindred thus standing anxious for the fight, my members fail me, my countenance withereth, the hair standeth an end upon my body, and all my frame trembleth with horror! Even Gandeev my bow escapeth from my hand, and my skin is parched and dried up. I am not able to ftand; for my understanding, as it were, turneth round, and I behold inaufpicious omens on all fides. When I shall have deftroyed my kindred, fhall I longer look for happinefs? I wish not for victory, Kreefhna; I want not dominion; I want not pleasure; for what is dominion, and the enjoyments of life, or even life itself, when those, for whom dominion, pleasure, and enjoyment were to be coveted, have abandoned life and fortune, and ftand here in the field ready for the battle? Tutors, fons and fathers, grandfires and grandfons, uncles and nephews, coufins, kindred, and friends! Although they would kill me, I wifh not to fight them; no not even for the dominion of the three regions of the univerfe, much lefs for this little earth! Having killed the fons of Dhreetarashtra, what pleasure, O Kreefhna, can we enjoy? Should we destroy them, tyrants as they are, fin would take refuge with us. It therefore behoveth us not to kill fuch near relations as How, O Kree/hna, can we be happy hereafter, thefe. when we have been the murderers of our race? What if they, whole minds are depraved by the luft of power, fee no fin in the extirpation of their race, no crime in the murder of their friends, is that a reason why we should not refolve to turn away from fuch a crime, we who abhor the fin of extirpating the kindred of our blood! In the deftruction of a family, the ancient virtue of the family is loft. Upon the lofs of virtue, vice and impiety overwhelm the whole of a race. From the influence of impiety the females of a family grow vicious; and from women that are become vicious are born the fpurious brood called Varna-fankar. The Sankar provideth Hell³ both for those which are slain and those which furvive:

tenance

furvive; and their forefathers⁶, being deprived of the ceremonies of cakes and water offered to their manes, fink into the infernal regions. By the crimes of those who murder their own relations, fore caufe of contamination and birth of Varna-Jankars, the family virtue, and the virtue of a whole tribe is for ever done away; and we have been told, O Kreefhna, that the habitation of those mortals whofe generation hath loft its virtue, shall be in Hell. Woe is me! what a great crime are we prepared to commit! Alas! that for the luft of the enjoyments of dominion we stand here ready to murder the kindred of our own blood! I would rather patiently fuffer that the fons of Dhreetarashtra, with their weapons in their hands, fhould come upon me, and, unoppofed, kill me unguarded in the field."

When Arjoon had ceased to speak, he fat down in the chariot between the two armies; and having put away his bow and arrows, his heart was overwhelmed with affliction.

LECTURE

[28] .

LECTURE II.

OF THE NATURE OF THE SOUL, AND SPECULATIVE DOCTRINES.

KREESHNA beholding him thus influenced by compunction, his eyes overflowing with a flood of tears, and his heart opprefied with deep affliction, addreffed him in the following words:

Kreeshna.

"Whence, O Arjoon, cometh unto thee, thus ftanding in the field of battle, this folly and unmanly weakness? It is difgraceful, contrary to duty⁷, and the foundation of difhonour. Yield not thus to unmanlinefs, for it ill becometh one like thee. Abandon this defpicable weaknefs of thy heart, and ftand up."

Arjoon.

"How, O Kree/hna, fhall I refolve to fight with my arrows in the field againft fuch as Bhee/hma and Dron, who, of all men, are most worthy of my refpect? I would rather beg my bread about the world, than be the murderer of my preceptors, to whom fuch awful reverence is due. Should I deftroy fuch friends as thefe, I fhould partake of poffessions, wealth, and pleasures, polluted with their blood. We know not whether it would be better that we should defeat them, or they us; for those, whom having killed, I should not wish to live, are even the fons and people of Dhreetara/htra who are here drawn up before us. My compassionate nature is overcome by the dread of fin.

Tell me truly what may be beft for me to do. I am thy difciple, wherefore inftruct me in my duty, who am under thy tuition; for my understanding is confounded by by the dictates of my duty⁸, and I fee nothing that may affuage the grief which drieth up my faculties, although I were to obtain a kingdom without a rival upon earth, or dominion over the hofts of heaven."

Arjoon having thus fpoken to Kreefhna, and declared that he would not fight, was filent. Kreefhna fmiling, addreffed the afflicted prince, ftanding in the midft of the two armies, in the following words:

Kreeshna.

"Thou grievest for those who are unworthy to be lamented, whilft thy fentiments are those of the wife men?. The wife neither grieve for the dead nor for the living. I myfelf never was not, nor thou, nor all the princes of the earth; nor shall we ever hereafter cease to be. As the foul in this mortal frame findeth infancy, youth, and old age; fo, in fome future frame, will it find the like. One who is confirmed in this belief, is not diffurbed by any thing that may come to pass. The fensibility of the faculties giveth heat and cold, pleafure and pain; which come and go, and are transfient and inconstant. Bear them with patience, O fon of Bharat; for the wife man, whom these disturb not, and to whom pain and pleasure are the fame, is formed for immortality. A thing imaginary hath no existence, whilst that which is true is a stranger to non-entity. By those who look into the principles of things, the defign of each is feen. Learn that he by whom all things were formed is incorruptible, and that no one is able to effect the destruction of this thing which is inexhaustible. These bodies, which envelope the fouls which inhabit them, which are eternal, incorruptible, and furpaffing all conception, are declared to be finite beings; wherefore, O Arjoon, refolve to fight. The man who believeth that it is the foul which killeth, and he who thinketh that the foul may be deftroyed, are both alike deceived; for it neither killeth, nor is it killed. It is is not a thing of which a man may fay, it hath been, it is about to be, or is to be hereafter; for it is a thing without birth; it is ancient, conftant, and eternal, and is not to be deftroyed in this its mortal frame. How can the man, who believeth that this thing is incorruptible, eternal, inexhaustible, and without birth, think that he can either kill or caufe it to be killed?. As a man throweth away old garments, and putteth on new, even fo the foul, having quitted its old mortal frames, entereth into others which are new. The weapon divideth it not, the fire burneth it not, the water corrupteth it not, the wind drieth it not away; for it is indivifible, inconfumable, incorruptible, and is not to be dried away : it is eternal, univerfal, permanent, immoveable; it is invifible, inconceivable, and unalterable; therefore, believing it to be thus, thou fhould ft not grieve. But whether thou believest it of eternal birth and duration, or that it dieth with the body, still thou hast no cause to lament it. Death is certain to all things which are fubject to birth, and regeneration to all things which are mortal; wherefore it doth not behave thee to grieve about that which is inevitable. The former state of beings is unknown; the middle state is evident, and their future state is not to be difcovered. Why then fhould thou trouble thyfelf about fuch things as thefe? Some regard the foul as a wonder, whilft fome fpeak, and others hear of it with aftonifhment; but no one knoweth it, although he may have heard it defcribed. This fpirit being never to be deftroyed in the mortal frame which it inhabiteth, it is unworthy for thee to be troubled for all these mortals. Caft but thy eyes towards the duties of thy particular tribe, and it will ill become thee to tremble. A foldier of the K/hatree tribe hath no duty fuperior to fighting. Just to thy wish the door of heaven is found open before thee. Such foldiers only as are the favorites of Heaven obtain obtain fuch a glorious fight as this. But, if thou wilt not perform the duty of thy calling, and fight out the field, thou wilt abandon thy duty and thy honor, and be guilty of a crime. Mankind speak of thy renown as infinite and inexhaustible. The fame of one who hath been respected in the world is extended even beyond the diffolution of the body. The generals of the armies will think that thy retirement from the field arole from fear, and thou wilt become defpicable, even amongft those by whom thou wert wont to be respected. Thy enemies will fpeak of thee in words which are unworthy to be fpoken, and depreciate thy courage and abilities: what can be more dreadful than this! If thou art flain thou wilt obtain heaven; if thou art victorious thou wilt enjoy a world for thy reward; wherefore, fon of Koontee, arife and be determined for the battle. Make pleafure and pain, gain and lofs, victory and defeat, the fame, and then prepare for battle; or if thou doft not, thou wilt be criminal in a high degree. Let thy reafon be thus applied in the field of battle.

-71

€-

This thy judgment is formed upon the fpeculative doctrines of the Sankhya fastra; hear what it is in the practical, with which being endued thou shalt forfake the bonds of action¹⁰. A very small portion of this duty delivereth a man from great fear. In this there is but one judgment; but that is of a definite nature, whils the judgments of those of indefinite principles are infinite and of many branches.

Men of confined notions, delighting in the controverfies of the Veds, tainted with worldly lufts, and preferring a transient enjoyment of heaven to eternal absorption, whilf they declare there is no other reward, pronounce, for the attainment of worldly riches and enjoyments, flowery fentences, ordaining innumerable and manifold ceremonies, and promising rewards for the actions of this life.

• 1

life. The determined judgment of fuch as are attached to riches and enjoyment, and whofe reafon is led aftray by this doctrine, is not formed upon mature confideration and meditation. The objects of the Veds are of a threefold nature". Be thou free from a threefold nature; be free from duplicity, and stand firm in the path of truth; be free from care and trouble, and turn thy mind to things which are fpiritual. The knowing divine findeth as many uses in the whole Veds collectively, as in a refervoir full flowing with water.

Let the motive be in the deed, and not in the event. Be not one whole motive for action is the hope of reward. Let not thy life be spent in inaction. Depend upon application, perform thy duty, abandon all thought of the confequence, and make the event equal, whether it terminate in good or evil; for fuch an equality is called Yog¹². The action flands at a diffance inferior to the application of wifdom. Seek an afylum then in wifdom¹³ alone; for the miferable and unhappy are fo on account of the event of things. Men who are endued with true wifdom are unmindful of good or evil in this world. Study then to obtain this application of thy understanding, for fuch application in bufinefs is a precious art.

Wife men, who have abandoned all thought of the fruit which is produced from their actions, are freed from the chains of birth, and go to the regions of eternal happinefs.

When thy reafon shall get the better of the gloomy weakness of thy heart, then shalt thou have attained all knowledge which hath been or is worthy to be taught. When thy understanding, by study brought to maturity, shall be fixed immoveably in contemplation, then shall it obtain true wifdom."

Arjoon.

What, O Kreefhna, is the diffinction of that wife and fteady fteady man who is fixed in contemplation? What may fuch a fage declare? Where may he dwell? How may he act?

Kreeshna.

A man is faid to be confirmed in wifdom, when he forfaketh every defire which entereth into his heart, and of himself is happy, and contented in himself. His mind is undifturbed in adverfity, he is happy and contented in prosperity, and he is a stranger to anxiety, fear, and anger. Such a wife man is called a Moonee. The wifdom of that man is established, who in all things is without affection; and, having received good or evil, neither rejoiceth at the one, nor is caft down by the other. His wildom is confirmed, when, like the tortoife, he can draw in all his members, and reftrain them from their wonted purposes. The hungry man loseth every other object but the gratification of his appetite, and when he is become acquainted with the Supreme, he lofeth even that. The tumultuous fenfes hurry away, by force, the heart even of the wife man who striveth to reftrain them. The infpired man, trufting in me, may quell them and be happy. The man who hath his paffions in subjection, is possessed of true wildom.

The man who attendeth to the inclinations of the fenfes, in them hath a concern; from this concern is created paffion, from paffion anger, from anger is produced folly¹⁴, from folly a depravation of the memory, from the lofs of memory the lofs of reafon, and from the loss of reason the loss of all! A man of a governable mind, enjoying the objects of his fenfes, with all his faculties rendered obedient to his will, and freed from pride and malice, obtaineth happines supreme. In this happines is born to him an exemption from all his troubles; and his mind being thus at eafe, wifdom. prefently floweth to him from all fides. The man who attendeth attendeth not to this, is without wifdom or the power of contemplation. The man who is incapable of thinking, hath no reft. What happine's can he enjoy who hath no reft? The heart, which followeth the dictates of the moving paffions, carrieth away his reason, as the ftorm the bark in the raging ocean. The man, therefore, who can reftrain all his paffions from their inordinate defires, is endued with true wifdom. Such a one walketh but in that night when all things go to reft, the night of time. The contemplative Moonee fleepeth but in the day of time, when all things wake.

•

The man whole paffions enter his heart as waters run into the unswelling paffive ocean, obtaineth happiness; not he who lusteth in his lusts. The man who, having abandoned all lusts of the flesh, walketh without inordinate defires, unassuming, and free from pride, obtaineth happines. This is divine dependence. A man being possesses of this confidence in the Supreme, goeth not aftray: even at the hour of death, should he attain it, he shall mix with the incorporeal nature of Brahm.

LECTURE

[35]

LECTURE III.

OF WORKS.

Arjoon.

I F, according to thy opinion, the ufe of the underftanding be fuperior to the practice of deeds", why then doft thou urge me to engage in an undertaking fo dreadful as this? Thou, as it were, confoundeft my reafon with a mixture of fentiments; wherefore choofe one amongft them, by which I may obtain happinefs, and explain it unto me.

Kreeshna.

It hath before been obferved by me, that in this world there are two inftitutes: That of those who follow the Sankbya, or speculative science, which is the exercise of reason in contemplation; and the practical, or exercise of the moral and religious duties.

The man enjoyeth not freedom from action, from the non-commencement of that which he hath to do; nor doth he obtain happiness from a total inactivity. No Every man is one ever resteth a moment inactive. involuntarily urged to act by those principles which are inherent in his nature. The man who reftraineth his active faculties, and fitteth down with his mind attentive to the objects of his fenfes, is called one of an astrayed foul, and the practifer of deceit. So the man is praifed, who, having fubdued all his paffions, performeth with his active faculties all the functions of life. unconcerned about the event. Perform the fettled functions: action is preferable to inaction. The journey of thy mortal frame may not fucceed from inaction. This bufy world is engaged from other motives than the worship worship of the Deity. Abandon then, O son of Koontee, all felfish motives, and perform thy duty for him alone.

When in ancient days Brabma¹⁶, the lord of the creation, had formed mankind, and, at the fame time, appointed his worship, he spoke and said : "With this "worship pray for increase, and let it be that on which "ye shall depend for the accomplishment of all your "wifhes. With this remember the Gods, that the "Gods may remember you. Remember one another, "and ye shall obtain supreme happines. The Gods "being remembered in worfhip, will grant you the "enjoyment of your wishes. He who enjoyeth what "hath been given unto him by them, and offereth not "a portion unto them, is even as a thief. Those who "eat not but what is left of the offerings, shall be "purified of all their transgreffions. Those who dress "their meat but for themselves, eat the bread of fin. "All things which have life are generated from the " bread which they eat. Bread is generated from rain; "rain from divine worship, and divine worship from "good works. Know that good works come from "Brabm, whofe nature is incorruptible; wherefore the "omniprefent Brabm is prefent in the worfhip."

The finful mortal, who delighteth in the gratification of his passions, and followeth not the wheel, thus revolving in the world, liveth but in vain.

But the man who may be felf-delighted and felffatisfied, and who may be happy in his own foul, hath no occafion¹⁷. He hath no intereft either in that which is done, or that which is not done; and there is not, in all things which have been created, any object on which he may place dependence. Wherefore, perform thou that which thou haft to do, at all times, unmindful of the event; for the man that doeth that which he hath to do, without affection, obtaineth the Supreme. Janaka Janaka and others have attained perfection¹⁸ even by works. Thou fhouldft also observe what is the practice of mankind, and act accordingly. The man of low degree followeth the example of him who is above him, and doeth that which he doeth. I myfelf, Arjoon, have not, in the three regions of the universe, any thing which is neceffary for me to perform, nor any thing to obtain which is not obtained; and yet I live in the exercise of the moral duties. If I were not vigilantly to attend to these duties, all men would presently follow my example. If I were not to perform the moral actions, this world would fail in their duty; I should be the cause of fpurious births, and fhould drive the people from the right way. As the ignorant perform the duties of life from the hope of reward, fo the wife man, out of respect to the opinions and prejudices of mankind, should perform the fame without motives of interest. He fhould not create a division in the understandings of the ignorant, who are inclined to outward works. The learned man, by industriously performing all the duties of life, fhould induce the vulgar to attend to them.

The man whofe mind is led aftray by the pride of felf-fufficiency, thinketh that he himfelf is the executor of all thofe actions which are performed by the principles of his conflictution. But the man who is acquainted with the nature of the two diffinctions of caufe and effect, having confidered that principles will act according to their natures, giveth himfelf no trouble. Men who are led aftray by the principles of their natures, are interested in the works of the faculties. The man who is acquainted with the whole, should not drive those from their works who are flow of comprehension, and lefs experienced than himfelf.

Throw every deed on me, and with a heart, over which which the foul prefideth, be free from hope, be unprefuming, be free from trouble, and refolve to fight.

Those who with a firm belief, and without reproach, shall constantly follow this my doctrine, shall be faved even by works; and know that those who, holding it in contempt, follow not this my counsel, are astrayed from all wisdom, deprived of reason, and are lost.

But the wife man alfo feeketh for that which is homogeneous to his own nature. All things act according to their natures, what then will reftraint effect? In every purpole of the fenfes are fixed affection and diflike. A wife man fhould not put himfelf in their power, for both of them are his opponents. A man's own religion, though contrary to, is better than the faith of another, let it be ever fo well followed. It is good to die in one's own faith, for another's faith beareth fear.

Arjoon.

By what, O Kree/hna, is man compelled to commit offences? He feems as if, contrary to his wifhes, he was impelled by fome fecret force.

Kreeshna.

Know that it is the enemy luft, or passion, offspring of the carnal principle, infatiable and full of fin, by which this world is covered as the flame by the smoke, as the mirror by ruft, or as the fœtus by its membrane. The understanding of the wife man is obscured by this inveterate foe, in the shape of defire¹⁹, who rageth like fire, and is hard to be appeased. It is faid that the sentences of the sentence of the understanding are the places where he delighteth most to rule. By the affistance of these he overwhelmeth reason, and stupesieth the foul. Thou shoulds, therefore, first subdue thy passions, and get the better of this finful destroyer of wisdom and knowledge.

The organs are efteemed great, but the mind is greater than han they. The refolution²⁰ is greater than the mind, and who is fuperior to the refolution is be^{21} . When thou haft refolved what is fuperior to the refolution, and fixed thyfelf by thyfelf, determine to abandon the enemy in the fhape of defire, whose objects are hard to be accomplified.

LECTURE

[40]

LECTURE IV.

OF THE FORSAKING OF WORKS.

Kreeshna.

THIS never-failing difcipline I formerly taught unto Veeva/wat, and Veeva/wat communicated it to Manoo, and Manoo made it known unto Eek/hwakoo; and being delivered down from one unto another, it was fludied by the Rajar/hees; until at length, in the courfe of time, the mighty art was loft. It is even the fame difcipline which I have this day communicated unto thee, becaufe thou art my fervant and my friend. It is an ancient and a fupreme myftery.

Arjoon.

Seeing thy birth is posterior to the life of Eek/hwakoo, how am I to understand that thou hadst been formerly the teacher of this doctrine?

Kreeshna.

Both I and thou have paffed many births. Mine are known unto me; but thou knowest not of thine.

Although I am not in my nature fubject to birth or decay, and am the lord of all created beings; yet, having command over my own nature, I am made evident by my own power; and as often as there is a decline of virtue, and an infurrection of vice and injuftice, in the world, I make myfelf evident; and thus I appear, from age to age, for the prefervation of the juft, the deftruction of the wicked, and the eftablifhment of virtue.

He, O Arjoon, who, from conviction, acknowledgeth my divine birth and actions to be even fo, doth not, upon his quitting his mortal frame, enter into another, for he entereth into me. Many who were free from affection, affection, fear, and anger, and, filled with my fpirit, depended upon me, having been purified by the power of wifdom, have entered into me. I affift those men who in all things walk in my path, even as they ferve me.

Those who wish for success to their works in this life, worship the Devatas²². That which is achieved in this life, from works, fpeedily cometh to pafs.

Mankind was created by me of four kinds, diffinct in their principles, and in their duties. Know me then to be the creator of mankind, uncreated, and without decay.

Works affect not me, nor have I any expectations from the fruits of works. He who believeth me to be even fo, is not bound by works. The ancients, who longed for eternal falvation, having difcovered this, ftill performed works. Wherefore perform thou works, even as they were performed by the ancients in former The learned even are puzzled to determine times. what is work, and what is not. I will tell thee what that work is, by knowing which thou wilt be delivered from misfortune. It may be defined-action, improper action, and inaction. The path of action is full of darknefs.

He who may behold, as it were, inaction in action, and action in inaction, is wife amongst mankind. He is a perfect performer of all duty.

Wife men call him a Pandeet, whofe every undertaking is free from the idea of defire, and whofe actions are confumed by the fire of wifdom. He abandoneth the defire of a reward of his actions; he is always contented and independent; and although he may be He engaged in a work, he, as it were, doeth nothing. is unfolicitous, of a fubdued mind and fpirit, and exempt from every perception; and, as he doeth only the offices offices of the body, he committeth no offence. He is pleafed with whatever he may by chance obtain; he hath gotten the better of duplicity, and he is free from envy. He is the fame in profperity and adverfity; and although he acteth, he is not confined in the action. The work of him, who hath loft all anxiety for the event, who is freed from the bonds of action, and ftandeth with his mind fubdued by fpiritual wifdom, and who performeth it for the fake of worfhip, cometh altogether unto nothing. God is the gift of charity; God is the offering; God is in the fire of the altar; by God is the facrifice performed; and God is to be obtained by him who maketh God alone the object of his works.

Some of the devout attend to the worship of the Devatas, or angels; others, with offerings, direct their worship unto God in the fire; others facrifice their ears, and other organs, in the fire of constraint; whilst some facrifice found, and the like, in the fire of their organs. Some again facrifice the actions of all their organs and faculties in the fire of felf-conftraint, lighted up by the fpark of infpired wifdom. There are also the worshippers with offerings, and the worfhippers with mortifications; and again the worfhippers with enthusiastic devotion; fo there are those, the wifdom of whose reading is their worship, men of fubdued passions and severe Some there are who facrifice their breathing manners. fpirit, and force it downwards from its natural courfe; whilft others force the fpirit which is below back with the breath; and a few, with whom these two faculties are held in great efteem, clofe up the door of each; and there are fome, who eat but by rule, who sacrifice their lives in their lives. All these different kinds of worshippers are, by their particular modes of worship, purified from their offences. He who enjoyeth but the Amreeta which is left of his offerings, obtaineth the eternal spirit of of Brabm, the fupreme. This world is not for him who doeth not worship; and where, O Arjoon, is there another²³?

A great variety of modes of worship like these are difplayed in the mouth of God. Learn that they are all the offsprings of action. Being convinced of this, thou shalt obtain an eternal release; for know that the worship of fpiritual wildom is far better than the worship with offerings of things. In wifdom is to be found every work without exception. Seek then this wifdom with prostrations, with questions, and with attention, that those learned men who see its principles may instruct thee in its rules; which having learnt, thou shalt not again, O fon of Pandoo, fall into folly; by which thou shalt behold all nature in the spirit; that is, in me⁴⁴. Although thou wert the greatest of all offenders, thou fhalt be able to crofs the gulf of fin with the bark of wif-As the natural fire, O Arjoon, reduceth the wood dom. to ashes, so may the fire of wisdom reduce all moral actions to ashes. There is not any thing in this world to be compared with wifdom for purity. He who is perfected by practice, in due time findeth it in his own foul. He who hath faith findeth wifdom; and, above all, he who hath gotten the better of his paffions; and having obtained this spiritual wisdom, he shortly enjoyeth superior happines; whilf the ignorant, and the man without faith, whole spirit is full of doubt, is lost. Neither this world, nor that which is above, nor happiness, can be enjoyed by the man of a doubting mind. The human actions have no power to confine" the fpiritual mind, which, by study, hath forfaken works, and which, by wifdom, hath cut afunder the bonds of doubt. Wherefore, O fon of Bharat, refolve to cut afunder this doubt, offfpring of ignorance, which hath taken pofferfion of thy mind, with the edge of the wifdom of thy own foul, and arife and attach thyfelf to the difcipline.

LECTURE V.

OF FORSAKING THE FRUITS OF WORKS.

ARIOON.

THOU now speakest, O Kreefhna, of the forfaking of works, and now again of performing them. Tell me positively which of the two is best.

Kreeshna.

Both the defertion and the practice of works are equally the means of extreme happines; but of the two the practice of works is to be diffinguished above the defertion. The perpetual reclufe, who neither longeth nor complaineth, is worthy to be known. Such a one is free from duplicity, and is happily freed from the bond of action. Children only, and not the learned, fpeak of the fpeculative and the practical doctrines as two. They are but one, for both obtain the felf-fame end, and the place which is gained by the followers of the one, is gained by the followers of the other. That man feeth, who feeth that the fpeculative doctrines and the practical are but one. To be a Sannyasee, or recluse, without application, is to obtain pain and trouble; whilft the Moonee, who is employed in the practice of his duty, prefently obtaineth Brahm, the Almighty. The man who, employed in the practice of works, is of a purified foul, a fubdued fpirit, and reftrained paffions, and whole foul is the universal foul, is not affected by fo being. The attentive man, who is acquainted with the principles of things, in seeing, hearing, touching, smelling, eating, moving, sleeping, breathing, talking, quitting, taking, opening and clofing his eyes, thinketh that he doeth nothing; but that the faculties are only employed ployed in their feveral objects. The man who, performing the duties of life, and quitting all intereft in them, placeth them upon Brahm, the Supreme, is not tainted by fin; but remaineth like the leaf of the lotus unaffected by the waters. Practical men, who perform the offices of life but with their bodies, their minds, their underftandings, and their fenfes, and forfake the confequence for the purification of their fouls; and, although employed, forfake the fruit of action, obtain infinite happinefs; whilft the man who is unemployed, being attached to the fruit by the agent defire, is in the bonds of confinement. The man who hath his paffions in fubjection, and with his mind forfaketh all works, his foul fitteth at reft in the nine-gate city of its abode²⁶, neither acting nor caufing to act.

The Almighty createth neither the powers nor the deeds of mankind²⁷, nor the application of the fruits of action: nature prevaileth. The Almighty receiveth neither the vices nor the virtues of any one. Mankind are led aftray by their reafons being obfcured by ignorance; but when that ignorance of their fouls is deftroyed by the force of reafon, their wifdom fhineth forth again with the glory of the fun, and caufeth the Deity to appear. Thofe whofe underftandings are in him, whofe fouls are in him, are by wifdom purified from all their offences, and go from whence they fhall never return.

The learned behold him alike in the reverend Brahman perfected in knowledge, in the ox, and in the elephant; in the dog, and in him who eateth of the flefh of dogs. Those whose minds are fixed on this equality, gain eternity even in this world. They put their truft in Brahm, the Eternal, because he is every where alike, free from fault.

The man who knoweth Brabm, and confideth in Brabm, Brabm, and whole mind is fleady and free from folly, fhould neither rejoice in prosperity, nor complain in adverfity. He whole foul is unaffected by the impressions made upon the outward feelings, obtaineth what is pleafure in his own mind. Such an one, whofe foul is thus fixed upon the study of Brabm, enjoyeth pleasure without decline. The enjoyments which proceed from the feelings are as the wombs of future pain. The wife man, who is acquainted with the beginning and the end of things, delighteth not in thefe. He who can bear up against the violence which is produced from lust and anger in this mortal life, is properly employed and a happy man. The man who is happy in his heart, at reft in his mind, and enlightened within, is a Yogee, or one devoted to God, and of a godly fpirit; and obtaineth the immaterial nature of Brahm, the Supreme. Such Reeshees as are purified from their offences, freed from doubt, of fubdued minds, and interested in the good of all mankind, obtain the incorporeal Brahm. The incorporeal Brahm is prepared, from the beginning, for fuch as are free from luft and anger, of humble minds and fubdued fpirits, and who are acquainted with their own fouls.

The man who keepeth the outward accidents from entering his mind, and his eyes fixed in contemplation between his brows; who maketh the breath to pafs through both his noftrils alike in expiration and infpiration; who is of fubdued faculties, mind, and underftanding, and hath fet his heart upon falvation; and who is free from luft, fear, and anger, is for ever bleffed in this life; and, being convinced that I am the cherifher of religious zeal, the lord of all worlds, and the friend of all nature, he fhall obtain me and be bleffed.

[47]

LECTURE VI.

OF THE EXERCISE OF SOUL.

Kreeshna.

H E is both a Yogee and a Sannyasee who performeth that which he hath to do independent of the fruit thereof; not he who liveth without the facrificial fire and without action. Learn, O fon of Pandoo, that what they call Sannyas, or a forfaking of the world, is the fame with Yog or the practice of devotion. He cannot be a Yogee, who, in his actions, hath not abandoned all intentions. Works are faid to be the means by which a man who wifheth, may attain devotion; fo reft is called the means for him who hath attained devotion. When the all-contemplative Sannyasee is not engaged in the objects of the fenfes, nor in works, then he is called one who hath attained devotion. He should raise himself by himfelf: he fhould not fuffer his foul to be depreffed. Self is the friend of felf; and, in like manner, felf is its Self is the friend of him by whom the own enemy. spirit is subdued with the spirit; so felf, like a foe, delighteth in the enmity of him who hath no foul. The foul of the placid conquered spirit is the same collected in heat and cold, in pain and pleasure, in honor and difgrace. The man whofe mind is replete with divine wifdom and learning, who ftandeth upon the pinnacle, and hath fubdued his paffions, is faid to be devout. Τo the Yogee, gold, iron, and stones, are the same. The man is diftinguished whose resolutions, whether amongst his companions and friends; in the midst of enemies, or those who stand aloof or go between; with those who love and those who hate; in the company of faints or finners, is the fame.

The

The Togee constantly exerciseth the spirit in private. He is recluse, of a subdued mind and spirit; free from hope, and free from perception. He planteth his own feat firmly on a fpot that is undefiled, neither too high nor too low, and fitteth upon the facred grafs which is called Koos, covered with a fkin and a cloth. There he, whole businels is the reftraining of his passions, should fit, with his mind fixed on one object alone, in the exercife of his devotion for the purification of his foul, keeping his head, his neck, and body, fleady without motion, his eyes fixed on the point of his nofe, looking at no other place around. The peaceful foul, releafed from fear, who would keep in the path of one who followeth God, should restrain the mind, and, fixing it on me, depend on me alone. The Togee of an humbled mind, who thus conftantly exercifeth his foul, obtaineth happiness incorporeal and supreme in me.

This divine discipline, Arjoon, is not to be attained by him who eateth more than enough, or lefs than enough; neither by him who hath a habit of fleeping much, nor by him who fleepeth not at all. The difcipline which deftroyeth pain belongeth to him who is moderate in eating and in recreation, whofe inclinations are moderate in action, and who is moderate in fleep. A man is called devout when his mind remaineth thus regulated within himfelf, and he is exempt from every lust and inordinate defire. The Yogee of a subdued mind, thus employed in the exercise of his devotion, is compared to a lamp, flanding in a place without wind, which waveth not. He delighteth in his own foul, where the mind, regulated by the fervice of devotion, is pleafed to dwell, and where, by the affiftance of the fpirit, he beholdeth the foul. He becometh acquainted with that boundless pleasure which is far more worthy of the understanding than that which arifeth from the fenses; depending depending upon which, the mind moveth not from its principles; which having obtained, he respecteth no other acquisition fo great as it; in which depending, he is not moved by the feverest pain. This difunion from the conjunction of pain may be diffinguished by the appellation Υ_{og} , fpiritual union or devotion. It is to be attained by refolution, by the man who knoweth his own mind. When he hath abandoned every defire that arifeth from the imagination, and fubdued with his mind every inclination of the fenfes, he may, by degrees, find reft; and having, by a fleady refolution, fixed his mind within himfelf, he fhould think of nothing elfe. Wherefoever the unfteady mind roameth, he fhould fubdue it, bring it back, and place it in his own breaft. Supreme happines attendeth the man whose mind is thus at peace; whofe carnal affections and paffions are thus fubdued; who is thus in God, and free from fin. The man who is thus conftantly in the exercise of the foul, and free from fin, enjoyeth eternal happines, united with Brabm the Supreme. The man whofe mind is endued with this devotion, and looketh on all things alike, beholdeth the fupreme foul in all things, and all things in the fupreme foul. He who beholdeth me in all things, and beholdeth all things in me, I forfake not him, and he forfaketh not me. The Yogee who believeth in unity, and worshippeth me present in all things, dwelleth in me in all refpects, even whilft he liveth. The man, O Arjoon, who, from what paffeth in his own breaft, whether it be pain or pleafure, beholdeth the fame in others, is efteemed a fupreme Yogee.

ARJOON.

From the reftleffnefs of our natures, I conceive not the permanent duration of this doctrine of equality which thou haft told me. The mind, O Kree/hna, is naturally.

7

naturally unsteady, turbulent, strong, and stubborn. I effeem it as difficult to restrain as the wind.

Kreeshna.

The mind, O valiant youth, is undoubtedly unfteady, and difficult to be confined; yet, I think it may be reftrained by practice and temperance. In my opinion, this divine difcipline which is called Υog is hard to be attained by him who hath not his foul in fubjection; but it may be acquired by him who taketh pains, and hath his foul in his own power.

ARJOON.

Whither, O Kreefhna, doth the man go after death, who, although he be endued with faith, hath not obtained perfection in his devotion, because his unfubdued mind wandered from the discipline? Doth not the fool who is found not standing in the path of Brabm, and is thus, as it were, fallen between good and evil, like a broken cloud, come to nothing? Thou, Kreefhna, canft entirely clear up these my doubts; and there is no other perfon to be found able to remove these difficulties.

Kreeshna.

His deftruction is found neither here nor in the world above. No man who hath done good goeth unto an evil place. A man whofe devotions have been broken off by death, having enjoyed for an immenfity of years the rewards of his virtues in the regions above, at length is born again in fome holy and refpectable family; or perhaps in the houfe of fome learned Yogee. But fuch a regeneration into this life is the most difficult to attain. Being thus born again, he is endued with the fame degree of application and advancement of his understanding that he held in his former body; and here he begins again to labour for perfection in devotion. The man²⁸ who is defirous of learning this devotion, this fpiritual application of the foul, exceedeth even the word word of Brabm. The Yogee, who, labouring with all his might, is purified of his offences, and, after many births, made perfect, at length goeth to the fupreme abode. The Yogee is more exalted than Tapafwees, those zealots who harafs themfelves in performing penances, respected above the learned in science, and superior to those who are attached to moral works; wherefore, O Arjoon, resolve thou to become a Yogee. Of all Yogees, I respect him as the most devout, who hath faith in me, and who ferveth me with a foul poffession of my spirit.

[52]

LECTURE VII.

OF THE PRINCIPLES OF NATURE, AND THE VITAL SPIRIT.

Kreeshna.

H EAR, O Arjoon, how having thy mind attached to me, being in the exercise of devotion, and making me alone thy afylum, thou wilt, at once, and without doubt, become acquainted with me. I will instruct thee in this wisdom and learning without referve; which having learnt, there is not in this life any other that is taught worthy to be known.

A few amongst ten thousand mortals strive for perfection; and but a few of those who strive and become perfect, know me according to my nature. My principle is divided into eight diffinctions : earth, water, fire, air, and æther (Kbang); together with mind, underftanding, and Abang-kar, (felf-confcioufnefs): but befides this, know that I have another principle diffinct from this, and fuperior, which is of a vital nature²⁹, and by which this world is fupported. Learn that thefe two are the womb of all nature. I am the creation and the diffolution of the whole universe. There is not any thing greater than I; and all things hang on me, even as precious gems upon a string. I am moisture in the water, light in the fun and moon, invocation in the Veds, found in the firmament, human nature in mankind, fweetfmelling favor in the earth, glory in the fource of light; in all things I am life, and I am zeal in the zealous; and know, O Arjoon, that I am the eternal feed of all nature. I am the understanding of the wife, the glory of the proud, the ftrength of the ftrong, free from luft and and anger; and in animals I am defire regulated by moral fitnes. But know that I am not in those natures which are of the three qualities called Satwa, Raja, and Tama³⁰, although they proceed from me: yet they are in me. The whole of this world being bewildered by the influence of these three-fold qualities, knoweth not that I am diftinct from these and without decline. This my divine and fupernatural power, endued with these principles and properties, is hard to be overcome. They who come unto me get the better of this fupernatural influence. The wicked, the foolifh, and the low-minded come not unto me, becaufe their understandings, being bewildered by the fupernatural power, they truft in the principles of evil fpirits.

I am, O Arjoon, ferved by four kinds of people who are good : the diftreffed, the inquisitive, the wishers after wealth", and the wife. But of all these the wife man, who is conftantly engaged in my fervice, and is a fervant but of one, is the most diffinguished. I am extremely dear to the wife man, and he is dear unto me. All these are exalted; but I esteem the wife man even as myself, because his devout spirit dependeth upon me alone as his ultimate refource. The wife man proceedeth not unto me until after many births; for the exalted mind, who believeth that the fon of Vasoodev is all, is hard to be found. Those whose understandings are drawn away by this and that purfuit, go unto other They depend upon this and that rule of Devatas. conduct, and are governed by their own principles³⁴. Whatever image any fupplicant is defirous of worfhipping in faith, it is I alone who infpire him with that fteady faith; with which being endued, he endeavoureth to render that image propitious, and at length he obtaineth the object of his wifnes as it is appointed by But the reward of fuch short-sighted men is finite. me. Thofe

Those who worship the Devatas go unto them, and those who worship me alone go unto me. The ignorant, being unacquainted with my fupreme nature, which is fuperior to all things, and exempt from decay, believe me, who am invisible, to exist in the visible form under which they fee me. I am not visible to all, becaufe I am concealed by the fupernatural power that is in me. The ignorant world do not difcover this, that I am not fubject to birth or decay. I know, O Arjoon, all the beings that have passed, all that are prefent, and all that shall hereafter be; but there is not one amongst them who knoweth me. All beings in birth find their reason fascinated and perplexed by the wiles of contrary fenfations, arifing from love and hatred. Those men of regular lives, whole fins are done away, being freed from the fascination arising from those contending pasfions, enjoy me. They who put their truft in me, and labour for a deliverance from decay and death, know Brahm, the whole Adbee-atma, and every Karma. The devout fouls who know me to be the Adbee-bboot, the Adbee-diva, and the Adbee-yagna, know me also in the time of their departure.

[55]

LECTURE VIII.

OF POOROOSH.

Arjoon.

What is that Brabm? What is Adbee-atma? What is Karma, O first of men? What also is Adbee-bboot called? What Adbee-diva? How is Adheeyagna, and who is here in this body? How art thou to be known in the hour of departure by men of fubdued minds?

Kreeshna.

Brabm is that which is fupreme and without corruption; Adbee-atma " is Swa-bbab or particular conftitution, disposition, quality, or nature; Karma is that emanation from which proceedeth the generation of natural beings; Adbee-bboot is the deftroying nature; Adbee-diva is Pooroosh; and Adbee-yagna, or superintendent of worship, is myself in this body. At the end of time, he, who having abandoned his mortal frame, departeth thinking only of me, without doubt goeth unto me; or elfe, whatever other nature he shall call upon, at the end of life, when he shall quit his mortal shape, he shall ever go unto it. Wherefore at all times think of me alone and fight. Let thy mind and understanding be placed in me alone, and thou shalt, without doubt, go unto me. The man who longeth after the Divine and Supreme Being, with his mind intent upon the practice of devotion, goeth unto him. The man who shall in the last hour call upon the ancient Prophet, the prime director, the most minute atom, the preferver of all things, whole countenance is like the fun, and who is diftinct from darkness, with a steady mind attached tached to his fervice, with the force of devotion, and his whole foul fixed between his brows, goeth unto that divine Supreme Being, who is called Param-Pooroofh.

I will now fummarily make thee acquainted with that path which the doctors of the Veds call never-failing; which the men of fubdued minds and conquered paffions enter; and which, defirous of knowing, they live the lives of Brahma-charees or godly pilgrims. He who, having closed up all the doors of his faculties, locked up his mind in his own breaft, and fixed his fpirit in his head, flanding firm in the exercise of devotion, repeating in filence Z Om ³⁴! the mystic fign of Brahm, thence called "Ekak/har," fhall, on his quitting this mortal frame calling upon me, without doubt go the journey of supreme happines. He who thinketh confantly of me, his mind undiverted by another object, I will at all times be eafily found by that constant adherent to devotion; and those elevated fouls, who have thus attained supreme perfection, come unto me, and are no more born in the finite manfion of pain and forrow. Know, O Arjoon, that all the regions between this and the abode of Brahm afford but a transient refidence; but he who findeth me, returneth not again to mortal birth.

They who are acquainted with day and night, know that the day of Brahma is as a thousand revolutions of the *Yoogs*³³, and that his night extendeth for a thousand more. On the coming of that day, all things proceed from invisibility to visibility; so, on the approach of night, they are all diffolved away in that which is called invisible. The universe, even, having existed, is again diffolved; and now again, on the approach of day, by divine necessity, it is reproduced. That which, upon the diffolution of all things else, is not destroyed, is superior and of another nature from that visibility: it is invisible [57] invifible and eternal. He who is thus called invifible and incorruptible, is even he who is called the Supreme Abode; which men having once obtained, they never more return to earth: that is my manfion. That Supreme Being is to be obtained by him who worfhippeth no other Gods. In him is included all nature; by him all things are fpread abroad.

I will now fpeak to thee of that time in which, fhould a devout man die, he will never return; and of that time, in which dying, he fhall return again upon the earth.

Those holy men who are acquainted with Brahm, departing this life in the fiery light of day, in the bright feafon of the moon, within the fix months of the fun's northern course, go unto him; but those who depart in the gloomy night of the moon's dark feafon, and whilft the fun is yet within the fouthern path of his journey, afcend for a while into the regions of the moon, and again return to mortal birth. Thefe two, light and darkne/s, are effected the world's eternal ways : he who walketh in the former path returneth not; whilft he who walketh in the latter cometh back again upon the A Yogee, who is acquainted with these two paths earth. of action, will never be perplexed; wherefore, O Arjoon, be thou at all times employed in devotion. The fruit of this furpaffeth all the rewards of virtue pointed out in the Veds, in worshippings, in mortifications, and even in the gifts of charity. The devout Yogee, who knoweth all this, shall obtain a supreme and prior place.

LECTURE

8

[58]

LECTURE IX.

OF THE CHIEF OF SECRETS AND PRINCE OF SCIENCE.

Kreeshna.

I WILL now make known unto thee, who findeft no fault, a moft myfterious fecret, accompanied by profound learning, which having fludied thou fhalt be delivered from misfortune. It is a fovereign art, a fovereign myftery, fublime and immaculate; clear unto the fight, virtuous, inexhauftible, and eafy to be performed. Those who are infidels to this faith, not finding me, return again into this world, the manfion of death.

This whole world was fpread abroad by me in my invisible form. All things are dependent on me, and I am not dependent on them; and all things are not dependent on me³⁶. Behold my divine connection! My creative fpirit is the keeper of all things, not the depend-Understand that all things rest in me, as the ent. mighty air, which passeth every where, resteth for ever in the ætherial space. At the end of the period Kalp³⁷ all things, O fon of Koontee, return into my primordial fource, and at the beginning of another Kalp I create them all again. I plant myfelf on my own nature, and create, again and again, this affemblage of beings, the whole, from the power of nature, without power³⁸. Those works confine not me, because I am like one who fitteth aloof uninterested in those works. By my supervision nature produceth both the moveable and the immovea-It is from this fource³⁹, O Arjoon, that the unible. verfe refolveth.

The foolifh, being unacquainted with my fupreme and divine nature, as lord of all things, defpife me in this human form, trufting to the evil, diabolic, and deceitful principle principle within them. They are of vain hope, of vain endeavours, of vain wifdom, and void of reafon; whilft men of great minds, trufting to their divine natures, difcover that I am before all things and incorruptible, and ferve me with their hearts undiverted by other Gods⁴⁰.

Men of rigid and laborious lives come before me humbly bowing down, for ever glorifying my name; and they are constantly employed in my fervice; but others ferve me, worfhipping me, whofe face is turned on all fides, with the worship of wisdom, unitedly, separately, in various shapes. I am the facrifice; I am the worship; I am the spices; I am the invocation; I am the ceremony to the manes of the anceftors; I am the provisions; I am the fire, and I am the victim: I am the father and the mother of this world, the grandfire, and the preferver. I am the holy one worthy to be known; the mystic figure Om; the Reek, the Sam, and Yajoor Veds⁴¹. I am the journey of the good; the comforter; the creator; the witnefs; the refting-place; the afylum, and the friend. I am generation and diffolution, the place where all things are reposited, and the inexhauftible feed of all nature. I am funshine, and I am rain; I now draw in, and now let forth. 1 am death and immortality: I am entity and non-entity.

The followers of the three Veds, who drink of the juice of the Som⁴³, being purified of their offences, addrefs me in facrifices, and petition for heaven. Thefe obtain the regions of *Eendra*⁴³, the prince of celeftial beings, in which heaven they feaft upon celeftial food and divine enjoyments; and when they have partaken of that fpacious heaven for a while, in proportion to their virtues, they fink again into this mortal life, as foon as their flock of virtue is expended. In this manner thofe, who, longing for the accomplifhment of their wifhes, follow the religion pointed out by the three Veds, obtain a transient reward. But thofe who, thinking ing of no other, ferve me alone, I bear the burthen of the devotion of thofe who are thus conftantly engaged in my fervice. They alfo who ferve other Gods with a firm belief, in doing fo, involuntarily worfhip even me. I am he who partaketh of all worfhip, and I am their reward. Becaufe mankind are unacquainted with my nature they fall again from heaven. Thofe who worfhip the Devatas go unto the Devatas; the worfhippers of the Peetrees, or patriarchs, go unto the Peetrees; the fervants of the Bboots, or fpirits, go unto the Bboots; and they who worfhip me go unto me.

I accept and enjoy the holy offerings of the humble foul, who in his worship prefenteth leaves and flowers, and fruit and water unto me. Whatever thou doeft, O Arjoon, whatever thou eateft, whatever thou facrificeft, whatever thou givest, whatever thou shalt be zealous about, make each an offering unto me. Thou shalt thus be delivered with good and evil fruits, and with the bonds of works. Thy mind being joined in the practice of a Sannyasee⁴⁴, thou shalt come unto me. Ι am the fame to all mankind: there is not one who is worthy of my love or hatred. They who ferve me with adoration, I am in them, and they in me. If one, whofe ways are ever to evil, ferve me alone, he is as refpectable as the just man; he is altogether well employed; he foon becometh of a virtuous spirit, and obtaineth eternal happines. Recollect, O fon of Koontee, that my fervant doth not perifh. Those even who may be of the womb of fin; women⁴⁵; the tribes of Vilya and Soodra; shall go the supreme journey, if they take sanctuary with me; how much more my holy fervants the Brahmans and the Rajar/hees⁴⁶! Confider this world as a finite and joyles place, and serve me. Be of my mind, my fervant, my adorer, and bow down before me. Unite thy foul, as it were, unto me, make me thy afylum, and thou shalt go unto me.

[61]

LECTURE X.

OF THE DIVERSITY OF THE DIVINE NATURE.

Kreeshna.

H EAR again, O valiant youth, my fupreme words, which I will fpeak unto thee, who art well pleafed, becaufe I am anxious for thy welfare.

Neither the hofts of Soors47, nor the Mabarshees48, know of my birth; because I am before all the Devatas and Maharshees. Whofo, free from folly, knoweth me to be without birth, before all things, and the mighty ruler of the universe, he shall, amongst mortals, be faved with all his transgressions. The various qualities incident to natural beings, fuch as reason, knowledge, unembarrassed judgment, patience, truth, humility, meeknes, pleafure and pain; birth and death, fear and courage; mercy, equality, gladnefs, charity, zeal, renown and infamy, all diffinctly come from me. So in former days the feven Maharshees and the four Manoos⁴⁹ who are of my nature, were born of my mind, of whom are defcended all the inhabitants of the earth. He who knoweth this my diffinction and my connection, according to their principles, is without doubt endued with an unerring devotion. I am the creator of all things, and all things proceed from me. Those who are endued with spiritual wisdom, believe this and worship me: their very hearts and minds are in me; they rejoice amongst themselves, and delight in speaking of my name, and teaching one another my doctrine. I gladly infpire those, who are constantly employed in my fervice, with that use of reason, by which they come unto me; and, and, in compassion, I stand in my own nature, and dislipate the darkness of their ignorance with the light of the lamp of wisdom.

Arjoon.

All the Ree/hees⁵⁰, the Devar/hees⁵¹, and the prophet Narad³³, call thee the fupreme Brahm; the fupreme abode; the most holy; the most high God; the eternal Pooroofh, the divine being before all other Gods, without birth, the mighty Lord! Thus fay Aseeta, Devala, Vyas, and thou thyfelf haft told me fo; and I firmly believe, O Kesava, all thou telleft me. Neither the Dews nor the Danoos " are acquainted, O Lord, with thy appearance. Thou alone, O first of men³⁴! knowest thy own fpirit; thou, who art the production of all nature, the ruler of all things, the God of Gods, and the univerfal Lord! Thou art now able to make me acquainted with those divine portions of thyself, by which thou poffeffeft and dwelleft in this world. How shall I, although I constantly think of thee, be able to know thee? In what particular natures art thou to be found? Tell me again in full what is thy connection, and what thy diffinction; for I am not yet fatisfied with drinking of the living water of thy words.

Kreeshna.

Bleffings be upon thee! I will make thee acquainted with the chief of my divine diffinctions, as the extent of my nature is infinite.

I am the foul which ftandeth in the bodies of all beings. I am the beginning, the middle, and the end of all things. Amongft the *Adeetyas*⁵⁵ I am *Veefnoo*⁵⁶, and the radiant *Ravee*⁵⁷ amongft the ftars; I am *Mareecbee*⁵⁸ amongft the *Maroots*⁵⁹, and *Sasee*⁶⁰ amongft the *Nakfhatras*⁶¹; amongft the Veds I am the *Sam*⁶², and I am *Vasava*⁶³ amongft the Dews. Amongft the faculties I am the mind, and amongft animals I am reafon. I am am Sankar⁶⁴ amongst the Roodras⁶⁵, and Veettesa⁶⁶ amongst the Yak/has and the Rak/has. I am Pavak⁶⁷ amongst the Vasoos⁶⁸ and Meroo⁶⁹ amongst the aspiring mountains. Amongst teachers know that I am their chief Vreeha/patee⁷⁰; amongft warriors I am Skanda⁷¹; and amongft floods I am the ocean. I am Bbreegoo⁷² amongft the Mabar shees, and I am the monofyllable⁷³ amongst words. I am amongst worships the Yap⁷⁴ or filent worship, and amongst immoveables the mountain *Heemalay*⁷⁵. Of all the trees of the foreft I am the $A/wattba^{76}$, and of all the Devarshees I am Narad. I am Cheetra-rath amongst Gandbarvs^{π} and the Moonee Kapeel amongst the faints. Know that amongst horses I am Oochi/rava, who arose with the Amreeta from out the ocean⁷⁸. Amongft elephants I am Iravat, and the fovereign amongst men. Amongst weapons I am the Vajra or thunderbolt, and amongft cattle the cow Kama-dbook⁷⁹. I am the prolific Kandarp the God of love; and amongst ferpents I am Vasookee their chief. I am Ananta amongst the Nags⁸⁰, and Varoon¹¹ amongst the inhabitants of the waters. I am Aryama amongst the Peetrees, and I am Yam⁸² amongst all those who rule. Amongst the Dityas (evil fpirits) I am Prablad⁸³, and Kal (time) amongft computations. Amongst beasts I am the king of beasts, and Vinateya⁸⁴ amongst the feathered tribe. Amongst purifiers I am Pavan the air, and Ram amongst those who carry arms. Amongst fishes I am the Makar⁸⁵, and amongst rivers I am Ganga⁸⁶ the daughter of Jahnoo. Of things transient I am the beginning, the middle, and the end. Of all fcience I am the knowledge of the ruling spirit, and of all speaking I am the oration. Amongst letters I am the vowel a, and of all compound words I am the Dwandwa⁸⁷. I am alfo never-failing time; the preferver, whofe face is turned on all fides. I am all-grafping death; and I am the refurrection of thofe those who are about to be. Amongst forminines I am fame, fortune, eloquence, memory, understanding, fortitude, patience. Amongst harmonious measures I am the Gayatree, and amongst Sams I am the Vreebat Sam. Amongst the months I am the month Marga-seer/ha⁸⁸, and amongst seafons the seafon Koosoomakara⁸⁹, (spring.) Amongst frauds I am gaming; and of all things glorious I am the glory. I am victory, I am industry, and I am the effence of all qualities. Of the race of Vree-Innee I am the fon of Vasoodev, and amongst the Pandoos Arjoon-Dhananjay. I am Vyas 91 amongst the Moonees, and amongst the Bards⁹² I am the prophet Oo/ana⁹³. Amongst rulers I am the rod, and amongst those who feek for conquest I am policy. Amongst the secret I am filence, and amongst the wife I am wifdom. I am, in like manner, O Arjoon, that which is the feed of all things in nature; and there is not any thing, whether animate or inanimate, that is without me. My divine diffinctions are without end, and the many which I have mentioned are by way of example. And learn, O Arjoon, that every being which is worthy of diffinction and pre-eminence, is the produce of the portion of my glory. But what, O Arjoon, haft thou to do with this manifold wifdom? I planted this whole univerfe with a fingle portion and flood ftill.

[65]

LECTURE XI.

DISPLAY OF THE DIVINE NATURE IN THE FORM OF THE UNIVERSE.

THIS fupreme mystery, distinguished by the name of the Adhee-atma or miling finite of the Adhee-atma or ruling spirit, which, out of loving-kindnefs, thou haft made known unto me, hath diffipated my ignorance and perplexity. I have heard from thee a full account of the creation and deftruction of all things, and also of the mightiness of thy inexhaustible spirit. It is even as thou hast described thyfelf, O mighty Lord! I am now, O most elevated of men, anxious to behold thy divine countenance; wherefore, if thou thinkeft it may be beheld by me, shew me thy never-failing fpirit.

Kreeshna.

Behold, O Arjoon, my million forms divine, of various fpecies, and diverse shapes and colours. Behold the Adeetyas, and the Vasoos, and the Roodras, and the Maroots, and the twins A/ween and Koomar⁹⁴. Behold things wonderful, never feen before. Behold, in this my body, the whole world animate and inanimate, and all things elfe thou haft a mind to fee. But as thou art unable to fee with thefe thy natural eyes, I will give thee a heavenly eye, with which behold my divine connection.

SANJAY.

The mighty compound and divine being Haree, having, O Raja, thus spoken, made evident unto Arjoon his supreme and heavenly form; of many a mouth and eye; many a wondrous fight; many a heavenly ornament;

ment; many an up-raifed weapon; adorned with celeftial robes and chaplets; anointed with heavenly effence; covered with every marvellous thing; the eternal God, whofe countenance is turned on every fide! The glory and amazing splendour of this mighty being may be likened to the fun rifing at once into the heavens, with a thoufand times more than ufual brightnefs. The fon of Pandoo then beheld within the body of the God of Gods, ftanding together, the whole univerfe divided forth into its vaft variety. He was overwhelmed with wonder, and every hair was raifed an end. He bowed down his head before the God, and thus addreffed him with joined hands.

ARJOON.

I behold, O God! within thy breaft, the Dews affembled, and every specific tribe of beings. I see Brahma, that Deity fitting on his lotus-throne; all the Reefhees and heavenly Ooragass. I fee thyfelf, on all fides, of infinite shape, formed with abundant arms, and bellies, and mouths, and eyes; but I can neither difcover thy beginning, thy middle, nor again thy end, O universal Lord, form of the universe! I see thee with a crown, and armed with club and Chakra⁵⁶, a mass of glory, darting refulgent beams around. I fee thee, difficult to be feen, fhining on all fides with light immeafurable, like the ardent fire or glorious fun. Thou art the Supreme Being, incorruptible, worthy to be known! Thou art prime supporter of the universal orb! Thou art the never-failing and eternal guardian of religion! Thou art from all beginning, and I effect the Pooroo/h⁹⁷. I fee thee without beginning, without middle, and without end; of valour infinite; of arms innumerable; the fun and moon thy eyes; thy mouth a flaming fire, and the whole world fhining with thy reflected glory! The fpace between the heavens and the the earth is poffeffed by thee alone, and every point around: the three regions of the universe, O mighty fpirit! behold the wonders of thy awful countenance with troubled minds. Of the celeftial bands, fome I fee fly to thee for refuge; whilft fome, afraid, with joined hands fing forth thy praise. The Maharshees, holy bands, hail thee, and glorify thy name with adorating praises. The Roodras, the Adeetyas, the Vasoos, and all those beings the world effectmeth good; A/ween and Koomar, the Maroots and the Oo/hmapas; the Gandharvs and the Yak/has, with the holy tribes of Soors, all ftand gazing on thee, and all alike amazed ! The worlds, alike with me, are terrified to behold thy wondrous form gigantic; with many mouths and eyes; with many arms, and legs, and breafts; with many bellies, and with rows of dreadful teeth! Thus as I fee thee, touching the heavens, and fhining with fuch glory; of fuch various hues, with widely-opened mouths, and bright expanded eyes, I am difturbed within me; my refolution faileth me, O Vee/hnoo! and I find no reft! Having beholden thy dreadful teeth, and gazed on thy countenance, emblem of Time's last fire, I know not which way I turn! I find no peace! Have mercy then, O God of Gods! thou mansion of the universe! The fons of Dhreetarashtra, now, with all those rulers of the land, Bheefhma, Dron, the fon of Soot, and even the fronts of our army, feem to be precipitating themfelves haftily into thy mouths, discovering such frightful rows of teeth! whilft fome appear to flick between thy teeth with their bodies forely mangled. As the rapid ftreams of full-flowing rivers roll on to meet the ocean's bed; even to these heroes of the human race ruth on towards thy flaming mouths. As troops of infects, with increasing speed, seek their own destruction in the flaming fire; even to these people, with fwelling fury, feek feek their own deftruction. Thou involveft and fwalloweft them altogether, even unto the laft, with thy flaming mouths; whilft the whole world is filled with thy glory, as thy awful beams, O Veefhnoo, fhine forth on all fides! Reverence be unto thee, thou moft exalted! Deign to make known unto me who is this God of awful figure! I am anxious to learn thy fource, and ignorant of what thy prefence here portendeth.

KREESHNA.

I am Time, the deftroyer of mankind, matured, come hither to feize at once all thefe who ftand before us. Except thyfelf^{$$} not one of all thefe warriors, deftined againft us in thefe numerous ranks, fhall live. Wherefore, arife! feek honor and renown! defeat the foe, and enjoy the full-grown kingdom! They are already, as it were, deftroyed by me. Be thou alone the immediate agent^{$$$9$}. Be not diffurbed! Kill Dron, and Bhee/hma, and Jayadrath, and Karna, and all the other heroes of the war already killed by me. Fight! and thou fhalt defeat thy rivals in the field.

SANJAY.

When the trembling Arjoon heard these words from the mouth of Kreeshna, he faluted him with joined hands, and addressed him in broken accents, and bowed down terrified before him.

Arjoon.

Ottree/heekes! the universe rejoiceth because of thy renown, and is filled with zeal for thy fervice. The evil spirits are terrified and flee on all fides; whilf the holy tribes bow down in adoration before thee. And wherefore should they not, O mighty Being! bow down before thee, who, greater than Brahma, art the prime Creator! eternal God of Gods! the world's mansion! Thou art the incorruptible Being, distinct from all things transfient! Thou art before all Gods, the ancient Pooroofh, Pooroofh, and the supreme supporter of the universe! Thou knoweft all things, and art worthy to be known; thou art the fupreme manfion, and by thee, O infinite form! the universe was spread abroad. Thou art Vayoo the God of the wind, Agnee the God of fire, Varoon the God of oceans, Sasanka the moon, Prajapatee the God of nations, and Prapeetamaha the mighty anceftor. Reverence! Reverence be unto thee a thousand times repeated! Again and again Reverence! Reverence be unto thee! Reverence be unto thee before and behind! Reverence be unto thee on all fides. O thou who art all in all! Infinite is thy power and they glory! Thou includest all things, wherefore thou art all things! Having regarded thee as my friend, I forcibly called thee Kreefhna, Yadava, Friend! but alas! I was ignorant of this thy greatness, because I was blinded by my affection and prefumption. Thou haft, at times, also in sport been treated ill by me; in thy recreations, in thy bed, on thy chair, and at thy meals; in private and in public; for which, O Being inconceivable! I humbly crave thy forgiveness.

Thou art the father of all things animate and inanimate; thou art the fage inftructor of the whole, worthy to be adored! There is none like unto thee; where then, in the three worlds, is there one above thee? Wherefore I bow down; and, with my body proftrate upon the ground, crave thy mercy, Lord! worthy to be adored; for thou shouldst bear with me, even as a father with his fon, a friend with his friend, a lover with his beloved. I am well pleafed with having beheld things before never feen; yet my mind is overwhelmed with awful Have mercy, then, O heavenly Lord! O manfion fear. of the univerfe! and fhew me thy celeftial form. I wish to behold thee with the diadem on thy head, and thy hands armed with club and Chakra; affume then, O God of of a thousand arms, image of the universe! thy fourarmed form ¹⁰⁰.

Kreeshna.

Well pleafed, O Arjoon, I have fhewn thee, by my divine power, this my fupreme form the univerfe, in all its glory, infinite and eternal, which was never feen by any one except thyfelf; for no one, O valiant Kooroo! in the three worlds, except thyfelf, can fuch a fight of me obtain; nor by the Veds, nor facrifices, nor profound fludy; nor by charitable gifts, nor by deeds, nor by the moft fevere mortification of the flefh. Having beholden my form, thus awful, be not diffurbed, nor let thy faculties be confounded. When thou art relieved from fears, and thy mind is reftored to peace, then behold this my wondrous form again.

SANJAY.

The fon of Vasoodev having thus fpoken unto Arjoon, fhewed him again his natural form; and having reaffumed his milder fhape, he prefently affwaged the fears of affrighted Arjoon.

Arjoon.

Having beheld thy placid human shape, I am again collected; my mind is no more disturbed, and I am once more returned to my natural state.

Kreeshna.

Thou haft beholden this my marvellous fhape, fo very difficult to be feen, which even the Dews are conftantly anxious to behold. But I am not to be feen, as thou haft feen me, even by the affiftance of the Veds, by mortifications, by facrifices, by charitable gifts; but I am to be feen, to be known in truth, and to be obtained by means of that worfhip which is offered up to me alone; and he goeth unto me whofe works are done for me; who efteemeth me fupreme; who is my fervant only; who hath abandoned all confequences, and who liveth amongft all men without hatred.

[71]

LECTURE XII.

OF SERVING THE DEITY IN HIS VISIBLE AND INVISIBLE FORMS.

Arjoon.

O^F those thy fervants who are always thus employed, which know their duty best? those who worship thee as thou now art; or those who ferve thee in thy invisible and incorruptible nature?

Kreeshna.

Those who having placed their minds in me, serve me with constant zeal, and are endued with steady faith, are efteemed the beft devoted. They too who, delighting in the welfare of all nature, ferve me in my incorruptible, ineffable, and invisible form; omnipresent, incomprehenfible, standing on high fixed and immoveable, with fubdued paffions and understandings, the fame in all things, fhall alfo come unto me. Those whose minds are attached to my invisible nature have the greater labour to encounter; becaufe an invisible path is difficult to be found by corporeal beings. They also who, preferring me, leave all works for me, and, free from the worship of all others, contemplate and ferve me alone, I prefently raife them up from the ocean of this region of mortality, whole minds are thus attached to me. Place then thy heart on me, and penetrate me with thy understanding, and thou shalt, without doubt, hereafter enter unto me. But if thou fhouldst be unable, at once, ftedfaftly to fix thy mind on me, endeavour to find me by means of constant practice. If after practice thou art still unable, follow me in my works supreme; for by performing works for me, thou shalt attain perfection. But

But shoulds thou find thyself unequal to this task, put thy trust in me alone, be of humble spirit, and forsake the fruit of every action. Knowledge is better than practice, meditation is diffinguished from knowledge, forsaking the fruit of action from meditation, for happines hereafter is derived from such forsaking.

He my fervant is dear unto me, who is free from enmity, the friend of all nature, merciful, exempt from pride and felfishness, the same in pain and pleasure, patient of wrongs, contented, conftantly devout, of fubdued paffions, and firm refolves, and whose mind and understanding are fixed on me alone. He also is my beloved of whom mankind are not afraid, and who of mankind is not afraid; and who is free from the influence of joy, impatience, and the dread of harm. He my fervant is dear unto me who is unexpecting, just and pure, impartial, free from distraction of mind, and who hath forfaken every enterprize. He also is worthy of my love, who neither rejoiceth nor findeth fault; who neither lamenteth nor coveteth, and, being my fervant, hath forfaken both good and evil fortune. He also is my beloved servant, who is the same in friendfhip and in hatred, in honor and in diffionor, in cold and in heat, in pain and pleafure; who is unfolicitous about the event of things; to whom praise and blame are as one; who is of little speech, and pleased with whatever cometh to pass; who owneth no particular home, and who is of a steady mind. They who seek this Amreeta¹⁰¹ of religion even as I have faid, and ferve me faithfully before all others, are, moreover, my deareft friends.

[73]

LECTURE XIII.

EXPLANATION OF THE TERMS KSHE-TRA AND KSHETRA-GNA.

Arjoon.

I NOW am anxious to be informed, O Kesoo! what is Prakreetee, who is Pooroofh; what is meant by the words K/hetra and K/hetra-gna, and what by Gnan and Gneya.

Kreeshna.

Learn that by the word K/hetra is implied this body, and that he who is acquainted with it is called *K/hetra*gna. Know that I am that K/hetra-gna in every mortal frame. The knowledge of the K/hetra and the *K/hetra*gna is by me efteemed Gnan or wifdom.

Now hear what that K/hetra or body is, what it refembleth, what are its different parts, what it proceedeth from, who he is who knoweth it, and what are its productions. Each hath been manifoldly fung by the Ree-/hees in various measures, and in verses containing divine precepts, including arguments and proofs.

This K/hetra or body, then, is made up of the five Mahabhoot (elements), Ahankar (felf-confcioufnefs), Boodhee (underftanding), Avyaktam (invifible fpirit), the eleven Eendreeya (organs), and the five Eendreeya-gochar (faculties of the five fenfes); with Eecha and Dwe/ha (love and hatred), Sookh and Dookh (pleafure and pain), Chetana (fenfibility), and Dhreetee (firmnefs).

Thus have I made known unto thee what that K/hetra or body is, and what are its component parts.

Gnan, or wifdom, is freedom from felf-efteem, hypocrify and injury; patience, rectitude, refpect for mafters and teachers, chaftity, fteadinefs, felf-conftraint, difaffection for the objects of the fenfes, freedom from pride, and a conftant attention^{10a} to birth, death, decay, ficknefs, pain and defects; exemption from attachments and affection¹⁰³ for children, wife, and home; a conftant evennefs of temper upon the arrival of every event, whether longed for or not; a conftant and invariable worfhip paid to me alone; worfhipping in a private place, and a diflike to the fociety of man; a conftant fludy of the fuperior fpirit¹⁰⁴; and the infpection of the advantage to be derived from a knowledge of the Tattwa or firft principle.

10

and

This is what is diffinguished by the name of Gnan, or wifdom. Agnan, or ignorance, is the reverse of this.

I will now tell thee what is Gnea, or the object of wifdom, from understanding which thou wilt enjoy immor-It is that which hath no beginning, and is tality. fupreme, even Brahm, who can neither be called Sat (ens) nor Asat (non ens)¹⁰⁵. It is all hands and feet; it is all faces, heads, and eyes; and, all ear, it fitteth in the midst of the world possessing the vast whole. Itfelf exempt from every organ, it is the reflected light of every faculty of the organs. Unattached, it containeth all things; and without quality it partaketh of every quality. It is the infide and the outfide, and it is the moveable and immoveable of all nature. From the minuteness of its parts it is inconceivable. It ftandeth at a diftance, yet is it prefent. It is undivided, yet in all things it standeth divided. It is the ruler of all things: it is that which now deftroyeth, and now pro-It is the light of lights, and it is declared to duceth. be free from darknefs. It is wifdom, that which is the object of wifdom, and that which is to be obtained by wifdom; and it prefideth in every breaft.

Thus hath been described together what is K/hetra or body body, what is Gnan or wifdom, and what is Gneya or the object of wifdom. He my fervant who thus conceiveth me obtaineth my nature.

Learn that both Prakreetee and Pooroofh are without beginning. Know alfo that the various component parts of matter and their qualities are co-existent with Prakreetee.

Prakreetee is that principle which operateth in the agency of the inftrumental caufe of action.

Pooroofh is that Hetoo or principle which operateth in the fenfation of pain and pleafure. The Pooroofh refideth in the Prakreetee, and partaketh of those qualities which proceed from the Prakreetee. The consequences arising from those qualities, are the cause which operateth in the birth of the Pooroofh¹⁰⁶, and determineth whether it shall be in a good or evil body. Pooroofh is that superior being, who is called Mahefwar, the great God, the most high spirit, who in this body is the observer, the director, the protector, the partaker.

He who conceiveth the Pooroofh and the Prakreetee, together with the Goon or qualities, to be even fo as I have defcribed them, whatever mode of life he may lead, he is not again fubject to mortal birth.

Some men, by meditation, behold, with the mind, the fpirit within themfelves; others, according to the difcipline of the Sankhya (contemplative doctrines), and the difcipline which is called Karma-yog (practical doctrines); others again, who are not acquainted with this, but have heard it from others, attend to it. But even these, who act but from the report of others, pass beyond the gulf of death.

Know, O chief of the race of Bharat, that every thing which is produced in nature, whether animate or inanimate, is produced from the union of K/hetra and *K/hetra*gna, matter and fpirit. He who beholdeth the Supreme Being

Being alike in all things, whilft corrupting, itfelf uncorrupting; and conceiving that God in all things is the same, doth not of himself injure his own soul, goeth the journey of immortality. He who beholdeth all his actions performed by Prakreetee, nature, at the fame time perceiveth that the Atma or foul is inactive in them. When he beholdeth all the different species in nature comprehended in one alone, and fo from it fpread forth into their vast variety, he then conceiveth Brahm, the Supreme Being. This fupreme fpirit and incorruptible Being, even when it is in the body, neither acteth, nor is it affected, because its nature is without beginning and without quality. As the all-moving Akas, or ether, from the minuteness of its parts, passeth every where unaffected, even so the omnipresent spirit remaineth in the body unaffected. As a fingle fun illuminateth the whole world, even fo doth the spirit enlighten every body. They who, with the eye of wifdom, perceive the body and the spirit to be thus distinct, and that there is a final release from the animal nature, go to the Supreme.

LECTURE

[77]

LECTURE XIV.

OF THE THREE GOON OR QUALITIES.

Kreeshna.

I WILL now reveal unto thee a most fublime knowledge, superior to all others, which having learnt, all the Moonees have passed from it to supreme perfection. They take fanctuary under this wisdom, and being arrived to that virtue which is similar to my own, they are not disturbed on the day of the confusion of all things, nor born again on their renovation.

The great Brahm is my womb. In it I place my foctus; and from it is the production of all nature. The great Brahm is the womb of all those various forms which are conceived in every natural womb, and I am the father who foweth the feed.

There are three Goon or qualities arising from Prakreetee or nature: Satwa truth, Raja paffion, and Tama darknefs; and each of them confineth the incorruptible fpirit in the body. The Satwa-Goon, because of its purity, is clear and free from defect, and intwineth the foul with fweet and pleafant confequences, and the fruit of wildom. The Raja-Goon is of a paffionate nature, arifing from the effects of worldly thirft, and imprisoneth the foul with the confequences produced from action. The Tama-Goon is the offspring of ignorance, and the confounder of all the faculties of the mind; and it imprisoneth the foul with intoxication, floth, and idlenefs. The Satwa-Goon prevaileth in felicity, the Raja in action, and the Tama, having possessed the foul, prevaileth in intoxication. When the Tama and the Raja have been overcome, overcome, then the Satwa appeareth; when the Raja and the Satwa, the Tama; and when the Tama and the Satwa, the Raja. When Gnan, or wifdom, shall become evident in this body at all its gates, then shall it be known that the Satwa-Goon is prevalent within. The love of gain, industry, and the commencement of works; intemperance, and inordinate defire, are produced from the prevalency of the Raja-Goon; whilft the tokens of the Tama-Goon are gloominefs, idlenefs, fottifhnefs, and distraction of thought. When the body is discoved whilft the Satwa-Goon prevaileth, the foul proceedeth to the regions of those immaculate beings who are acquainted with the Most High. When the body findeth diffolution whilft the Raja-Goon is predominate, the foul is born again amongft those who are attached to the fruits of their actions. So, in like manner, should the body be diffolved whilft the Tama-Goon is prevalent, the fpirit is conceived again in the wombs of irrational beings. The fruit of good works is called pure and holy; the fruit of the Raja-Goon is pain; and the fruit of the Tama-Goon is ignorance. From the Satwa is produced wifdom, from the Raja covetoufnefs, and from the Tama madness, distraction, and ignorance. Those of the Satwa-Goon mount on high, those of the Raja ftay in the middle, whilft those abject followers of the Tama-Goon fink below.

When he who beholdeth perceiveth no other agent than these qualities, and discovereth that there is a being superior to them, he at length findeth my nature; and when the soul hath surpassed these three qualities, which are co-existent with the body, it is delivered from birth and death, old-age and pain, and drinketh of the water of immortality.

Arjoon.

By what tokens is it known that a man hath furpaffed thefe thefe three qualities? What is his practice? What are the means by which he overcometh them.

[79]

Kreeshna.

He, O fon of Pandoo, who defpifeth not the light of wifdom, the attention to worldly things, and the diffraction of thought when they come upon him, nor longeth for them when they disappear; who, like one who is of no party, fitteth unagitated by the three qualities; who, whilft the qualities are prefent, ftandeth ftill and moveth not; who is felf-dependent and the fame in eafe and pain, and to whom iron, ftone, and gold are as one; firm alike in love and diflike, and the fame whether praifed or blamed; the fame in honor and difgrace; the fame on the part of the friend and the foe, and who forfaketh all enterprize; such a one hath furmounted the influence of the qualities. And he, my fervant, who ferveth me alone with due attention, having overcome the influence of the qualities, is formed to be absorbed in Brahm, the Supreme. I am the emblem of the immortal, and of the incorruptible; of the eternal, of justice, and of endless blifs.

LECTURE

[80]

LECTURE XV.

OF POOROOSHOTTAMA.

Kreeshna.

THE incorruptible being is likened unto the tree A/wattha, whofe root is above and whofe branches are below, and whose leaves are the Veds. He who knoweth that, is acquainted with the Veds. Its branches growing from the three Goon or qualities, whole leffer shoots are the objects of the organs of sense, spread forth fome high and fome low. The roots which are spread abroad below, in the regions of mankind, are restrained by action. Its form is not to be found here, neither its beginning, nor its end, nor its likenefs. When a man hath cut down this A/wattha, whole root is fo firmly fixed, with the strong ax of disinterest, from that time that place is to be fought from whence there is no return for those who find it; and I make manifest that first Pooroofh from whom is produced the ancient progression of all things.

Those who are free from pride and ignorance, have prevailed over those faults which arise from the confequences of action, have their minds constantly employed in watching over and restraining the inordinate defires, and are freed from contrary causes, whose consequences bring both pleasure and pain, are no longer consounded in their minds, and ascend to that place which endureth for ever. Neither the sun, nor the moon, nor the fire enlighteneth that place from whence there is no return, and which is the supreme mansion of my abode.

It is even a portion of myfelf that in this animal world is the univerfal fpirit of all things. It draweth together together the five organs and the mind, which is the fixth, that it may obtain a body, and that it may leave it again; and Eefwar, having taken them under his charge, accompanieth them from his own abode as the breeze the fragrance from the flower. He prefideth over the organs of hearing, feeing, feeling, tafting, and fmelling, together with the mind, and attendeth to their objects. The foolifh fee it not, attended by the Goon or qualities, in expiring, in being, or in enjoying; but thofe who are endued with the eye of wifdom behold it. Thofe alfo who induftrioufly apply their minds in meditation may perceive it planted in their own breafts, whilft thofe of unformed minds and weak judgments, labouring, find it not.

Know that the light which proceedeth from the fun and illuminateth the whole world, and the light which is in the moon, and in the fire, are mine. I pervade all things in nature, and guard them with my beams. I am the moon, whofe nature it is to give the quality of tafte and relifh, and to cherifh the herbs and plants of the field. I am the fire refiding in the bodies of all things which have life, where, joined with the two fpirits which are called Pran and *Opan*¹⁰⁷, I digeft the food which they eat, which is of four kinds¹⁰⁸. I penetrate into the hearts of all men; and from me proceed memory, knowledge, and the loss of both. I am to be known by all the Veds or books of divine knowledge: I am he who formed the *Vedant*¹⁰⁹, and I am he who knoweth the Veds.

There are two kinds of Pooroo/h in the world, the one corruptible, the other incorruptible. The corruptible Pooroo/h is the body of all things in nature; the incorruptible is called Koothafta, or he who ftandeth on the pinnacle¹¹⁰. There is another *Pooroo/h*¹¹¹ moft high, the Paramatma, or fupreme foul, who inhabiteth the three regions regions of the world, even the incorruptible Ee/war. Becaufe I am above corruption, fo alfo am I fuperior to incorruption; wherefore in this world, and in the Veds, I am called Pooroo/hottama. The man of a found judgment, who conceiveth me thus to be the Pooroo/hottama, knoweth all things, and ferveth me in every principle.

Thus, O Arjoon, have I made known unto thee this most mysterious Sastra¹¹²; and he who understandeth it shall be a wife man, and the performer of all that is fit to be done.

LECTURE

[83]

LECTURE XVI.

OF GOOD AND EVIL DESTINY.

KREESHNA.

THE man who is born with divine deftiny is endued with the following qualities : exemption from fear, a purity of heart, a constant attention to the discipline of his understanding; charity, felf-restraint, religion, fludy, penance, rectitude, freedom from doing wrong, veracity, freedom from anger, refignation, temperance, freedom from flander, univerfal compassion, exemption from the defire of flaughter, mildnefs, modefty, difcretion, dignity, patience, fortitude, chaftity, unrevengefulnefs, and a freedom from vain-glory : whilft those who come into life under the influence of the evil destiny are diffinguished by hypocrify, pride, prefumption, anger, harshness of speech, and ignorance. The divine destiny is for Mok/h, or eternal abforption in the divine nature; and the evil deftiny confineth the foul to mortal birth. Fear not, Arjoon, for thou art born with the divine deftiny before thee. Thus there are two kinds of deftiny prevailing in the world. The nature of the good deftiny hath been fully explained. Hear what is the nature of the evil.

Those who are born under the influence of the evil deftiny know not what it is to proceed in virtue, or recede from vice; nor is purity, veracity, or the practice of morality to be found in them. They fay the world is without beginning, and without end, and without an Lefwar; that all things are conceived by the junction of the fexes; and that love is the only cause. These lost fouls, and men of little understandings, having fixed upon upon this vision, are born of dreadful and inhuman deeds for the deftruction of the world. They truft to their carnal appetites, which are hard to be fatisfied; are hypocrites, and overwhelmed with madnefs and intoxication. Becaufe of their folly they adopt falfe doctrines, and continue to live the life of impurity. They abide by their inconceivable opinions, even unto the day of confusion, and determine within their own minds that the gratification of the fenfual appetites is the fupreme good. Faft bound by the hundred cords of hope, and placing all their truft in luft and anger, they feek by injustice the accumulation of wealth, for the gratification of their inordinate defires. "This, to-day, hath been "acquired by me. I shall obtain this object of my "heart. This wealth I have, and this shall I have also. "This foe have I already flain, and others will I forth-"with vanquish. I am Eeswar, and I enjoy; I am "confummate, I am powerful, and I am happy; I am "rich, and I am endued with precedence amongst men; "and where is there another like unto me? I will make "prefents at the feafts and be merry." In this manner do those ignorant men talk, whose minds are thus gone aftray. Confounded with various thoughts and defigns, they are entangled in the net of folly; and being firmly attached to the gratification of their lufts, they fink at length into the Narak of impurity. Being felf-conceited, stubborn, and ever in pursuit of wealth and pride, they worship with the name of worship and hypocrify, and not according to divine ordination; and, placing all their truft in pride, power, oftentation, luft, and anger, they are overwhelmed with calumny and detraction, and hate me in themfelves and others : wherefore I caft down upon the earth those furious abject wretches, those evil beings who thus despise me, into the wombs of evil fpirits and unclean beafts. Being doomed to the the wombs of A foors from birth to birth, at length not finding me, they go unto the most infernal regions. There are these three passages to Narak (or the infernal regions); luft, anger, and avarice, which are the destroyers of the foul; wherefore a man should avoid them; for, being freed from these gates of fin, which arife from the influence of the Tama-Goon, he advanceth his own happines; and at length he goeth the journey of the Most High. He who abandoneth the dictates of the Saftra to follow the dictates of his lufts, attaineth neither perfection, happiness, nor the regions of the Most High. Wherefore, O Arjoon, having made thyfelf acquainted with the precepts of the Saftra, in the establishment of what is fit and unfit to be done, thou fhouldft perform those works which are declared by the commandments of the Saftra.

LECTURE

[86]

LECTURE XVII.

OF FAITH DIVIDED INTO THREE SPECIES.

Arjoon.

W HAT is the guide of those men, who, although they neglect the precepts of the Saftra, yet, worship with faith? Is it the Satwa, the Raja or the Tama-Goon ?

KREESHNA.

The faith of mortals is of three kinds, and is produced from the conftitution. It is denominated after the three Goon, Satwakee, Rajasee, or Tamasee. Hear what these are. The faith of every one is a copy of that which is produced from the Satwa-Goon. The mortal Pooroo/h being formed with faith, of whatever nature he may be, with that kind of faith is he endued. Those who are of the disposition which ariseth from the Satwa-Goon worship the Dews; those of the Raja-Goon the Yak/has, and the Rak/has; and those of the Tama-Goon worship the departed spirits and the tribe of Bhoots. Those men who perform severe mortifications of the flesh, not authorized by the Saftra, are possessed of hypocrify and pride, and overwhelmed with luft, paffion, and tyrannic ftrength. Those fools torment the fpirit that is in the body, and myfelf also who am in them. Know what are the refolutions of those who are born under the influence of the evil fpirit.

There are three kinds of food which are dear unto all men. Worship, zeal", and charity are each of them alfo divided into three species. Hear what are their diffinctions.

The

The food that is dear unto those of the Satwa-Goon is such as increases their length of days, their power and their ftrength, and keeps them free from fickness, happy and contented. It is pleasing to the palate, nourishing, permanent, and congenial to the body. It is neither too bitter, too four, too falt, too hot, too pungent, too aftringent, nor too inflammable. The food that is coveted by those of the Raja-Goon giveth nothing but pain and misery: and the delight of those in whom the Tama-Goon prevaileth, is such as was dressed the day before, and is out of season, hath lost its taste, and is grown putrid; the leavings of others, and all things that are impure.

That worship which is directed by divine precept, and is performed without the defire of reward, as necessary to be done, and with an attentive mind, is of the Satwa-Goon.

The worfhip which is performed with a view to the fruit, and with hypocrify, is of the Tama-Goon.

The worship which is performed without regard to the precepts of the law, without the distribution of bread, without the usual invocations, without gifts to the Brahmans at the conclusion, and without faith, is of the Raja-Goon.

Respect to the Dews, to Brahmans, masters, and learned men; chastity, rectitude, the worship of the Deity, and a freedom from injury, are called bodily zeal.

Gentleness, justness, kindness, and benignity of speech, and attention to one's particular studies, are called verbal zeal.

Content of mind, mildness of temper, devotion, restraint of the passions, and a purity of soul, are called mental zeal.

This threefold zeal being warmed with fupreme faith, and performed by men who long not for the fruit of action, is of the Satwa-Goon.

The

[88]

The zeal which is shewn by hypocrify, for the sake of the reputation of fanctity, honor, and respect, is said to be of the Raja-Goon; and it is inconstant and uncertain.

The zeal which is exhibited with felf-torture, by the fool, without examination, or for the purpose of injuring another, is of the Tama-Goon.

That charity which is bestowed by the difinterested, because it is proper to be given, in due place and season, and to proper objects, is of the Satwa-Goon.

That which is given in expectation of a return, or for the fake of the fruit of the action, and with reluctancy, is of the Raja-Goon.

That which is given out of place and feafon, and to unworthy objects, and, at the fame time, ungracioufly and fcornfully, is pronounced to be of the Tama-Goon.

is \overline{o}_m , \overline{td} Tat, and \overline{td} Sat, are the three mystic characters used to denote the Deity.

By him in the beginning were appointed the Brahmans, the Veds, and religion: hence the facrificial, charitable, and zealous ceremonies of the expounders of the word of God, as they are ordained by the law, constantly proceed after they have pronounced Om !

Tat having been pronounced by those who long for immortality, without any inclination for a temporary reward of their actions, then are performed the ceremonies of worship and zeal, and the various deeds of charity.

The word Sat is used for qualities which are true, and for qualities that are holy. The word Sat is also applied to deeds which are praiseworthy. Attention in worship, zeal, and deeds of charity, are also called Sat. Deeds which are performed for Tat are also to be esteemed Sat.

Whatever is performed without faith, whether it be facrifices, deeds of charity, or mortifications of the flesh, is called Asat; and is not for this world or that which is above.

LECTURE

[89]

LECTURE XVIII.

OF FORSAKING THE FRUITS OF ACTION FOR OBTAINING ETERNAL SALVATION.

Arjoon.

I WISH much to comprehend the principle of Sannyas, and also of Tyag, each separately.

Kreeshna.

The bards conceive¹¹⁴ that the word Sannyas implieth the forfaking of all actions which are defirable; and they call Tyag, the forfaking of the fruits of every action. Certain philosophers have declared that works are as much to be avoided as crimes; whilft others fay that deeds of worship, mortifications, and charity should not be forfaken. Hear what is my decree upon the term Tyag.

Tyag, or forfaking, is pronounced to be of three natures. But deeds of worfhip, mortification, and charity are not to be forfaken: they are proper to be performed. Sacrifices, charity, and mortifications are purifiers of the philofopher. It is my ultimate opinion and decree, that fuch works are abfolutely to be performed, with a forfaking of their confequences and the profpect of their fruits. The retirement from works, which are appointed to be performed, is improper.

The forfaking of them through folly and diffraction of mind, arifeth from the influence of the Tama-Goon.

The forfaking of a work because it is painful, and from the dread of bodily affliction, ariseth from the Raja-Goon; and he who thus leaveth undone what he ought to do, shall not obtain the fruit of forfaking.

The work which is performed because it is appointed and and effected neceffary to be done, and with a forfaking of the confequences and the hope of a reward, is, with fuch a forfaking, declared to be of the Satwa-Goon.

The man who is possefield of the Satwa-Goon is thus a Tyagee, or one who forfaketh the fruit of action. He is of a found judgment, and exempt from all doubt; he complaineth not in adversity, nor exulteth in the fuccess of his undertakings.

No corporeal being is able totally to refrain from works. He is properly denominated a Tyagee who is a forfaker of the fruit of action.

The fruit of action is threefold: that which is coveted, that which is not coveted, and that which is neither one nor the other. Those who do not abandon works obtain a final release; not those who withdraw from action, and are denominated Sannyasees.

Learn, O Arjoon, that for the accomplifhment of every work five agents¹¹⁵ are neceffary, as is further declared in the Sankhya and Vedant-Saftras:—attention and fupervision, the actor, the implements of various forts, diftinct and manifold contrivances, and laftly the favor of Providence. The work which a man undertaketh, either with his body, his fpeech, or his mind, whether it be lawful or unlawful, hath these five agents engaged in the performance. He then who after this, because of the imperfection of his judgment, beholdeth no other agent than himself, is an evil-thinker and seeth not at all. He who hath no pride in his disposition, and whose judgment is not affected, although he should destroy a whole world, neither killeth, nor is he bound thereby¹¹⁶.

In the direction of a work are three things: Gnan, Gneya, and Pareegnata¹¹⁷. The accomplifhment of a work is alfo threefold: the implement, the action, and the agent. The Gnan, the action, and the agent are each each diffinguished by the influence of the three Goon. Hear in what manner they are declared to be after the order of the three Goon.

[90]

That Gnan, or wifdom, by which one principle alone is feen prevalent in all nature, incorruptible and infinite in all things finite; is of the Satwa-Goon.

That Gnan, or wifdom, is of the Raja-Goon, by which a man believeth that there are various and manifold principles prevailing in the natural world of created beings.

That Gnan, or wifdom which is mean, interested in one fingle object alone as if it were the whole, without any just motive or defign, and without principle or profit, is pronounced to be of the Tama-Goon.

The action which is appointed by divine precept, is performed free from the thought of its confequences and without passion or despite, by one who hath no regard for the fruit thereof, is of the Satwa-Goon.

The action which is performed by one who is fond of the gratification of his lufts, or by the proud and felfifh, and is attended with unremitted pains, is of the Raja-Goon.

The action which is undertaken through ignorance and folly, and without any forefight of its fatal and injurious confequence, is pronounced to be of the Tama-Goon.

The agent who is regardless of the confequences, is free from pride and arrogance, is endued with fortitude and resolution, and is unaffected whether his work succeed or not, is faid to be of the Satwa-Goon.

That agent is pronounced to be of the Raja-Goon who is a flave to his paffions, who longeth for the fruit of action, who is avaricious, of a cruel difposition, of impure principles, and a flave to joy and grief.

The agent who is unattentive, indifcreet, flubborn, diffembling, diffembling, mischievous, indolent, melancholy, and dilatory, is of the Tama-Goon.

Hear also what are the threefold divisions of underflanding and firmness, according to the influence of the three Goon, which are about to be explained to thee distinctly and without referve.

The underftanding which can determine what it is to proceed in a bufinefs, and what it is to recede; what is neceffary and what is unneceffary; what is fear and what is not; what is liberty and what is confinement, is of the Satwa-Goon.

The understanding which doth .not conceive justice and injustice; what is proper and what is improper; as they truly are, is of the Raja-Goon.

The underftanding which, being overwhelmed in darknefs, miftaketh injuffice for juffice, and all things contrary to their true intent and meaning, is of the Tama-Goon.

That fleady firmnefs, with which a man, by devotion, reftraineth every action of the mind and organs, is of the Satwa-Goon.

That interested firmness by which a man, from views of profit, persisteth in the duties of his calling, in the gratification of his lufts, and the acquisition of wealth, is declared to be of the Raja-Goon.

That flubborn firmness, by which a man of low capacity departeth not from floth, fear, grief, melancholy, and intoxication, is of the Tama-Goon.

Now hear what is the threefold division of pleasure.

That pleafure which a man enjoyeth from his labour, and wherein he findeth the end of his pains; and that which, in the beginning, is as poifon, and in the end as the water of life, is declared to be of the Satwa-Goon, and to arife from the confent of the understanding.

That pleasure which ariseth from the conjunction of the the organs with their objects, which in the beginning is as fweet as the water of life, and in the end as a poifon, is of the Raja-Goon

That pleafure which in the beginning and the end tendeth to flupify the foul, and arifeth from drowfinefs, idlenefs, and intoxication, is pronounced to be of the Tama-Goon.

There is not any thing either in heaven or earth, or amongst the hosts of heaven, which is free from the influence of these three Goon or qualities, which arise from the first principles of nature.

The refpective duties of the four tribes of Brahman¹¹⁸, K/hetree¹¹⁹, Vifya, and Soodra¹²⁰, are also determined by the qualities which are in their constitutions.

The natural duty of the Brahman is peace, felf-reftraint, zeal, purity, patience, rectitude, wildom, learning, and theology.

The natural duties of the K/hetree are bravery, glory, fortitude, rectitude, not to flee from the field, generofity, and princely conduct.

The natural duty of the Vi/ya is to cultivate the land, tend the cattle, and buy and fell.

The natural duty of a Soodra is fervitude.

A man being contented with his own particular lot and duty obtaineth perfection. Hear how that perfection is to be accomplified.

The man who maketh an offering of his own works to that being from whom the principles of all beings proceed, and by whom the whole universe was spread forth, by that means obtaineth perfection.

The duties of a man's own particular calling, although not free from faults, is far preferable to the duty of another, let it be ever fo well purfued. A man by following the duties which are appointed by his birth, doeth no wrong. A man's own calling, with all its faults, ought ought not to be forfaken. Every undertaking is involved in its faults, as the fire in its smoke. A difinterested mind and conquered spirit, who, in all things, is free from inordinate defires, obtaineth a perfection unconnected with works, by that refignation and retirement which is called Sannyas; and having attained that perfection, learn from me, in brief, in what manner he obtaineth Brahm, and what is the foundation of wildom. A man being endued with a purified understanding, having humbled his fpirit by refolution, and abandoned the objects of the organs; who hath freed himfelf from paffion and diflike; who worshippeth with discrimination, eateth with moderation, and is humble of fpeech, of body, and of mind; who preferreth the devotion of meditation, and who constantly placeth his confidence in difpassion; who is freed from oftentation, tyrannic ftrength, vain-glory, luft, anger, and avarice; and who is exempt from felfishness, and in all things temperate, is formed for being Brahm. And thus being as Brahm, his mind is at ease, and he neither longeth nor lamenteth. He is the fame in all things, and obtaineth my fupreme affistance; and by my divine aid he knoweth, fundamentally, who I am, and what is the extent of my existence; and having thus discovered who I am, he at length is abforbed in my nature.

A man also being engaged in every work, if he put his truft in me alone, shall, by my divine pleasure, obtain the eternal and incorruptible mansions of my abode.

With thy heart place all thy works on me; prefer me to all things elfe; depend upon the ufe of thy underftanding, and think conftantly of me; for by doing fo thou fhalt, by my divine favor, furmount every difficulty which furroundeth thee. But if, through pride, thou wilt not liften unto my words, thou fhalt undoubtedly be loft. From a confidence in thy own felf-fufficiency ficiency thou mays think that thou wilt not fight. Such is a fallacious determination, for the principles of thy nature will impel thee. Being confined to action by the duties of thy natural calling, thou wilt involuntarily do that from neceffity, which thou wantes, through ignorance, to avoid. Eefwar refideth in the breaft of every mortal being, revolving with his fupernatural power all things which are mounted upon the univerfal wheel of time. Take fanctuary then, upon all occafions, with him alone, O offspring of Bharat; for by his divine pleafure thou thalt obtain fupreme happinefs and an eternal abode.

Thus have I made known unto thee a knowledge which is a fuperior mystery. Ponder it well in thy mind, and then act as it feemeth best unto thee.

Attend now to these my supreme and most mysterious words, which I will now for thy good reveal unto thee, because thou art dearly beloved of me. Be of my mind, be my servant, offer unto me alone and bow down humbly before me, and thou shalt verily come unto me; for I approve thee, and thou art dear unto me. Forsake every other religion, and fly to me alone. Grieve not then, for I will deliver thee from all thy transgressions.

This is never to be revealed by thee to any one who hath not fubjected his body by devotion, who is not my fervant, who is not anxious to learn; nor unto him who defpifeth me.

He who shall teach this supreme mystery unto my fervant, directing his service unto me, shall undoubtedly go unto me; and there shall not be one amongst mankind who doeth me a greater kindness; nor shall there be in all the earth one more dear unto me.

He also who shall read these our religious dialogues, by him I may be sought with the devotion of wildom. This is my resolve.

[95]

The man too who may only hear it without doubt, and with due faith, may alfo be faved, and obtain the regions of happiness provided for those whose deeds are virtuous.

Hath what I have been fpeaking, O Arjoon, been heard with thy mind fixed to one point? Is the diftraction of thought, which arofe from thy ignorance, removed?

Arjoon.

By thy divine favor, my confusion of mind is loft, and I have found understanding. I am now fixed in my principles, and am freed from all doubt; and I will henceforth act according to thy words.

SANJAY.

In this manner have I been an ear-witnefs of the aftonishing and miraculous conversation that hath passed between the fon of Vasoodev, and the magnanimous fon of Pandoo; and I was enabled to hear this supreme and miraculous doctrine, even as revealed from the mouth of Kree/hna himfelf, who is the God of religion, by the favor of Vyas¹²¹. As, O mighty Prince! I recollect again and again this holy and wonderful dialogue of Kree/hna and Arjoon, I continue more and more to rejoice; and as I recall to my memory the more than miraculous form of Haree¹²², my aftonishment is great, and I marvel and rejoice again and again! Wherever Kreefhna the God of devotion may be, wherever Arjoon the mighty bowman may be, there too, without doubt, are fortune, riches, victory, and good conduct. This is my firm belief.

THE END OF THE GEETA.

NOTES.

N O T E S

.

.

•

TO THE

$\mathbf{G}_{\underline{}} \quad \overline{\mathbf{E}} \quad \overline{\mathbf{E}} \quad \mathbf{T} \quad \overline{\mathbf{A}} \ .$

• • •

.

13

.

N Т S. 0 E Nº. Page. THE ancient chief.—Bheeshma, brother of Veecheetra-24 veerya, grandfather of the Kooroos and the Pandoos. Shell.—The conch or chank. 3 Kree/hna.—An incarnation of the Deity. 4 Arjoon. - The third son of Pandoo, and the favorite of Kree/hna. 26 1. 3 Gandeev my bow .- The gift of Varoon the God of the Ocean. 5 Hell.-In the original Nark. The infernal regions, supposed to be situated at the bottom of the earth, where those whose virtues are less than their vices are doomed to dwell for a period proportioned to their crimes, after which they rise again to inhabit the bodies of unclean beasts. ⁶ Forefathers, &c .--- The Hindoos are enjoined by the 27 Veds to offer a cake, which is called Peenda, to the ghosts of their ancestors, as far back as the third generation. This ceremony is performed on the day of the new moon in every month. The offering of water is in like manner commanded to be performed daily, and this ceremony is called Tarpan, to fatisfy, appeale.-The fouls of fuch men as have left children to continue their generation, are fupposed to be transported, immediately upon quitting their bodies, into a certain region called Peetree-log, where they may continue in proportion to their former former virtues, provided these ceremonies be not neglected; otherwise they are precipitated into Nark, and doomed to be born again in the bodies of unclean beafts; and until, by repeated regenerations, all their fins are done away, and they attain such a degree of persection as will entitle them to what is called Mooktee, eternal falvation, by which is underftood a release from suture transmigration, and an absorption in the nature of the Godhead, who is called Brahm. These ceremonies, which are called Sradb, were not unknown to the Greeks and Romans, and are still practised by the followers of Mahommed.

[100]

Page. No.

- 28 7 Contrary to duty.—Contrary to the duty of a foldier.
 - ⁸ By the dictates of my duty.—The duty of a foldier in opposition to the dictates of the general moral duties.
 - 9 The wife men.—Pandeets, or expounders of the law; or in a more general fenfe, fuch as by meditation have attained that degree of perfection which is called Gnan, or infpired wildom.
 - The bonds of attion.—The Hindoos believe that every action of the body, whether good or evil, confineth the foul to mortal birth; and that an eternal releafe, which they call Mooktee, is only to be attained by a total neglect of all fublunary things, or, which is the fame thing according to the doctrine of Kreefbna, the abandonment of all hopes of the reward of our actions; for fuch reward, they fay, can only be a fhort enjoyment of a place in heaven, which they call Swarg; because no man can, merely by his actions, attain perfection, owing to the mixture of good and evil which is implanted in his conftitution.
 - The objects of the Veds are of a threefold nature.—The commentators do not agree with respect to the fignification of this passage; but, as the Veds teach three diffinct systems of religion, it is probable that it refers to this circumstance.
 - Yog.—There is no word in the San/kreet language that will bear fo many interpretations as this. Its first fignification is junction or union. It is also used for bodily

31

32

29

Page. Nº.

bodily or mental application; but in this work it is generally used as a theological term, to express the application of the mind in fpiritual things, and the performance of religious ceremonies. The word Yogee, a devout man, is one of its derivatives. If the word devotion be confined to the performance of religious duties, and a contemplation of the Deity, it will generally ferve to express the fense of the original; as will devout and devoted for its derivatives.

- 32 ¹³ Wifdom.—Wherever the word wifdom is used in this Translation, is to be understood infpired wifdom, or a knowledge of the Divine Nature. The original word is Gnan, or as it is written Jnan.
- 33 ¹⁴ Folly.—In the original Moba, which fignifies an embaraffment of the faculties, arifing from the attendant qualities of the principles of organized matter.
- 35 '5 The practice of deeds.—The performance of religious ceremonies and moral duties, called Karma-Yog.
- 36 ¹⁶ Brahma.—The Deity in his creative quality.
- 17 Hath no occafion.—Hath no occafion to perform the ceremonial parts of religion.
- 37 ¹⁸ Attained perfection.—That degree of perfection which is necessary to falvation.
- 38 '9 Defire.—The will, as prefiding over the organs, the heart and the understanding.
- 39 ²⁰ The refolution.—In this place refolution means the power of diffinguifhing the truth of a proposition: the understanding.
- ²¹ He.—The foul, or universal spirit, of which the vital foul is supposed to be a portion.

41 ²¹ Worfhip the Devatas.—The word Devata is fynonymous with Dev, Dew, or Deb, as it is fometimes pronounced. The Angels, or fubordinate celeftial beings; all the attributes of the Deity; and every thing in Heaven and Earth which has been perfonified by the imagination of the Poets.

43 ²³ And where, O Arjoon, is there another?—fit for him is underftood. The fentence would perhaps read better in this form : "He who neglecteth the duties of "life"

[102]

Page. No.

55

"life is not for this world, much lefs for that which is above." But the other translation is literally correct.

- 43 4 In me.—In the Deity, who is the universal spirit.
- ²⁵ Have no power to confine.—Have no power to confine the foul to mortal birth.
- 45 ²⁰ In the nine-gate city of its abode.—The body, as furnished with nine passages for the action of the faculties : the eyes, nose, mouth, &c.
- ²⁷ The powers nor the deeds of mankind.—To underftand this, and many fimilar paffages, it is neceffary to be apprized that the Hindoos believe that all our actions, whether good or evil, arife from the inherent qualities of the principles of our conflictution.
- 50 ²⁸ The man, &c.—i. e. That the defire of becoming a devout man is equal to the fludy of the Veds.
- 52 ²⁹ Of a vital nature.—The vital foul.
- 1. 20 Learn that thefe two.-Matter and spirit.
- 53 ³⁰ Satwa, Raja, Tama.—Truth, paffion, darkness; or, as the words are fometimes used, white, red, black.
 - ³¹ The wifhers after wealth.—Such as pray for worldly endowments.
- 32 And are governed by their own principles.—By the three ruling qualities already explained.
 - 33 Adhee-atma, &c.— As Kreefbna's answer to the feveral questions of Arjoon has something mysterious in it, I will endeavour to render it more comprehensible:
 - Adhee-atma—literally fignifies the over-ruling fpirit, by which is implied the divine nature.
 - Karma-fignifies action, whereby is to be underflood his creative quality.
 - Adhee-bhoot-fignifies be who rulet over created beings: the power of the Deity to deftroy.
 - Adhee-diva—literally means fuperior to fate; and is explained by the word Pooroofh, which, in vulgar language, means no more than man; but in this work it is a term in theology ufed to express the vital foul, or portion of the universal spirit of Brahm inhabiting a body. So by the word Maha-Pooroofh is implied the Deity as the primordial source. These terms are used used in a metaphysical work called Patanjal, wherein God is represented under the figure of Maha-Pooroofb, the great man or prime progenitor; in conjunction with Prakreetee, nature or first principle, under the emblem of a female engendering the world with his Maya or supernatural power.

[103]

- ¹⁴ Om !—This mystic emblem of the Deity is forbidden to be pronounced but in filence. It is a fyllable formed of the letters A a, J oo, which in composition coalesce, and make A O, and the nasal consonant R m. The first letter stands for the Creator, the second for the Preserver, and the third for the Destroyer.
- ³⁵ A thousand revolutions of the Yoogs.—Is equal to 4320,-000,000 years. An ingenious mathematician, who is now in India, fuppoles that these Yoogs are nothing more than astronomical periods formed from the coincidence of certain cycles, of which those of the precession of the equinoxes and the moon are two. The word Yoog, which fignifies a juncture or joining, gives good grounds for such an hypothesis.
- ¹⁶ And all things are not dependent on me.— This ambiguity is removed by the following fimile of the air in the æther.
- ³⁷ Kalp.—The fame as the day of Brahma, a thousand revolutions of the Yoogs. The word literally fignifies formation.
- ¹⁸ The whole, from the power of nature, without power.— This passage is agreeable to the doctrine of the influence of the three Goon, or qualities, over all our actions.
- ³⁹ It is from this fource.—Because of the supervision of the Supreme Being.

Other Gods.—Wherever the word Gods is used in this Translation, the subordinate supernatural beings are implied.

⁴¹ Veds.—The word Ved fignifies learning. The facred volumes of the Hindoos, of which there are four, fuppoied to have been revealed from the four mouths of Brahma. It is remarkable that Kreefhna mentions

Page. No.

58

59

56

[104]

Page. No.

60

tions only the three first; it may therefore be prefumed that no more existed in his time.

- 59 ⁴² Som.—is the name of a creeper, the juice of which is commanded to be drank at the conclusion of a facrifice, by the perfon for whom and at whofe expence it is performed, and by the Brabmans who officiate at the altar.
 - 43 Eendra—is a perfonification of the vifible heavens, or the power of the Almighty over the elements. He is the fprinkler of the rain, the roller of the thunder, and director of the winds. He is reprefented with a thousand eyes, grasping the thunderbolt.
 - 44 Sannyasee—one who totally forfaketh all worldly actions; but Kree/bna, in order to unite the various religious opinions which prevailed in those days, confines the word Sannyas to a forfaking of the hope of reward.
 - 45 Women.—In the Veds it is declared, that the fouls of women, and of the inferior tribes, are doomed to transfigration till they can be regenerated in the body of a Brahman.
 - 40 Rajar flees-from Raja and Reeshee, Prince and Saint.
- 61 47 Soors.-Good angels.
 - 48 Maharschees.—Great saints, of whom there are reckoned feven, who were at the creation produced from the mind of Brahma.
- -- 49 Manoos.--Four other beings produced at the creation from the mind of Brahma.
- 62 ⁵⁰ Reefbees.—Saints.
- ³¹ Devar /hees. Deified faints.
 - ³² Narad.—One of the Devarfhees, and a great Prophet, who is supposed to be still wandering about the world. Nara signifies a thread or clew, a precept; and Da Giver.—Wherever he appears he is constantly employed in giving good counsel.
- ³³ Danoos.—Evil fpirits, or fallen angels, the offsprings of Danoo (fem).
- 54 O first of men !— Arjoon makes use of this expression as addressing the Deity in human shape.
- 55 Adeetyas.—The offsprings of Adeetee (f.) (that may not be cut off.) There are reckoned twelve, and are nothing nothing more than emblems of the fun for each month of the year. Their names are Varoon, Soorya, Vedang, Bhanoo, Eendra, Ravee, Gabhastee, Yam, Swarna-reta, Deevakar, Meetra, Veeshnoo.

[105]

Page. No.

- 62 ⁵⁶ Veefhnoo.—He who filleth or poffeffeth all fpace. One of the twelve funs, and the name of the Deity in his preferving quality.
- 57 Ravee.—The rifer—one of the names of the fun.
- 58 Mareechee.—One of the eight points of the heavens.
- 59 Maroots.—The winds.
- --- ⁶⁰ Sasee.---The moon.
 - ⁶¹ Nak/batras.--Difpellers of darknefs. The 18 conftellations through which the moon paffes in its monthly courfe. Conftellations in general.
- -- ^{6a} Sam.—The first of the four books of the Veds, composed to be chanted or fung.
- 63 Vasava.—One of the names of Eendra.
- 63 ⁶⁴ Sankar.—One of the names of Seev, or Fate.
- 65 Roodras.-Eleven diffinctions of Seev, or Fate.
- Weettesa.—The God of riches, otherwife called Koover. He is faid to prefide over the regions of the north, and to be the chief of the Yak/has and the Rak/has, two fpecies of good and evil Genii.
- 67 Pavak.—The God of fire. He is supposed to prefide over the southeast quarter.
- 68 Vasoos.-Eight of the first created Beings of Brahma.
- -- ⁶⁹ Meroo.—The north pole of the terreftrial globe, fabled by the poets to be the higheft mountain in the world. It is fometimes, by way of pre-eminence, called Soo-meroo. It is remarkable that the word Meroo fignifies a centre or axis.
- -- " Vreebaspatee.-- The preceptor of the Devs or Dews, the planet Jupiter and Dies Jovis.
- ⁷¹ Skanda.—Otherwife called Karteek, the general of the celeftial armies.
- -- ⁷² Bbreegeo.—One of the first created beings produced from the mind of Brahma.
- 73 The monofyllable.-- The myftic word or monofyllable 36 Om ! already explained.
- 74 Yap.—A filent repetition of the name of God.

63 75 Heemalay.

[106]

Page. No.

- 63 ⁷⁵ Heemalay.—The chain of fnowy mountains which divide India from Tartary, and which, from the immenfe diftance they may be feen, are fuppofed to be as high as any upon the face of the globe.
- * Afwattha.-The Peepal tree.
 - 77 Cheetra-rath amonght Gandbarvs.—The title of chief of the Gandbarvs or celestial choirs: the Gandbarv of the painted chariot.

In the Mahabbarat is to be found a very entertaining flory of a combat between him and Arjoon, wherein he is defeated; and, his painted chariot being deftroyed by a fiery arrow fhot from the bow of his opponent, he refolves to change his name to Dagdba-rath, or the Gandbarv of the burnt chariot.

7⁸ Oochifrava, who arofe with the Amreeta, or the water of life, from the ocean. —The ftory of churning the ocean for what are called the Chowda Rattan, or fourteen jewels, is of fuch a curious nature, and, in fome parts, bears fuch a wonderful affinity to Milton's defcription of the war in heaven, that the Translator thinks it will afford the reader an agreeable contrast to the subject of this work, and ferve as a further fpecimen of his version of the Mahabharat, from which both are extracted.

AN EPISODE FROM THE MAHABHARAT, BOOK I. CHAP. 15.

"THERE is a fair and ftately mountain, and its name is Meroo, a most exalted mass of glory, reflecting the funny rays from the splendid surface of its gilded horns. It is cloathed in gold, and is the respected haunt of Dews and Gandharws. It is inconceivable, and not to be encompassed by finful man; and it is guarded by dreadful serpents. Many celessial medicinal plants adorn its fides, and it stands, piercing the heavens with its aspiring fummit, a mighty hill inaccessible even by the human mind! It is adorned with trees and pleasant streams, and resoundeth with the delightful sorts.

The

[107]

The Soors, and all the glorious hofts of heaven, having afcended to the fummit of this lofty mountain, fparkling with precious gems, and for eternal ages raifed, were fitting, in folemn fynod, meditating the difcovery of the Amreeta, or water of immortality. The Dew Narayan being alfo there, fpoke unto Brahma, whilft the Soors were thus confulting together, and faid, "Let the ocean, "as a pot of milk, be churned by the united labour of the Soors "and Asoors; and when the mighty waters have been ftirred up, "the Amreeta fhall be found. Let them collect together every "medicinal herb, and every precious thing, and let them ftir the "ocean, and they fhall difcover the Amreeta."

There is also another mighty mountain whose name is Mandar, and its rocky summits are like towering clouds. It is cloathed in a net of the entangled tendrils of the twining creeper, and refoundeth with the harmony of various birds. Innumerable favage beasts infest its borders, and it is the respected haunt of Keennars, Dews, and Apsars. It standeth eleven thousand Yojan above the earth, and eleven thousand more below its surface.

As the united bands of Dews were unable to remove this mountain, they went before Vee[hnoo, who was fitting with Brahma, and addreffed them in these words: "Exert, O masters, "your most superior wildom to remove the mountain Mandar, "and employ your utmost power for our good."

Veefbood and Brahma having faid, "It fhall be according to "your wifh," he with the lotus eye directed the King of Serpents to appear; and Ananta arofe, and was inftructed in that work by Brahma, and commanded by Narayan to perform it. Then Ananta, by his power, took up that king of mountains, together with all its forefts and every inhabitant thereof; and the Soors accompanied him into the prefence of the Ocean, whom they addreffed, faying, "We will ftir up thy waters to obtain the "Amreeta." And the Lord of the waters replied—"Let me "alfo have a fhare, feeing I am to bear the violent agitations that "will be caufed by the whirling of the mountain." Then the Soors and the Asoors fpoke unto Koorma-raj, the King of the Tortoifes, upon the ftrand of the ocean, and faid—" My Lord is able "to be the fupporter of this mountain." The Tortoife replied, "Be it fo:" and it was placed upon his back.

So the mountain being fet upon the back of the Tortoife, Eendra began to whirl it about as it were a machine. The mountain Mandar ferved as a churn, and the ferpent Vasookee for the rope; and thus in former days did the Dews, the Asoors, and the Danoos, begin to ftir up the waters of the ocean for the difcovery of the Amreeta.

the

The mighty Assors were employed on the fide of the ferpent's head, whilst all the Soors affembled about his tail. Ananta, that fovereign Dew, flood near Narayan.

They now pull forth the ferpent's head repeatedly, and as often let it go; whilft there iffued from his mouth, thus violently drawing to and fro by the Soors and Asoors, a continual ftream of fire, and fmoke, and wind; which afcending in thick clouds replete with lightning, it began to rain down upon the heavenly bands, who were already fatigued with their labour; whilft a fhower of flowers was shaken from the top of the mountain, covering the heads of all, both Soors and Asoors. In the mean time the roaring of the ocean, whilft violently agitated with the whirling of the mountain Mandar by the Soors and Asoors, was like the bellowing of a mighty cloud.—Thoufands of the various productions of the waters were torn to pieces by the mountain, and confounded with the briny flood; and every specific being of the deep, and all the inhabitants of the great abyfs which is below the earth, were annihilated ; whilft, from the violent agitation of the mountain, the forest trees were dashed against each other, and precipitated from its utmost height, with all the birds thereon; from whole violent confrication a raging fire was produced, involving the whole mountain with fmoke and flame, as with a dark blue cloud, and the lightning's vivid flafh. The lion and the retreating elephant are overtaken by the devouring flames, and every vital being, and every specific thing, are confumed in the general conflagration.

The raging flames, thus foreading deftruction on all fides, were at length quenched by a flower of cloud-borne water poured down by the immortal Eendra. And now a heterogeneous ftream of the concocted juices of various trees and plants ran down into the briny flood.

It was from this milk-like ftream of juices produced from those trees and plants, and a mixture of melted gold, that the Soors obtained their immortality.

The waters of the ocean now being affimilated with those juices, were converted into milk, and from that milk a kind of butter was prefently produced; when the heavenly bands went again into the prefence of Brahma, the granter of boons, and addreffed addreffed him, faying-" Except Narayan, every other Soor and "Asoor is fatigued with his labour, and still the Amreeta doth "not appear; wherefore the churning of the ocean is at a ftand." Then Brahma faid unto Narayan-"Endue them with recruited "ftrength, for thou art their support." And Narayan answered and faid-" I will give fresh vigour to such as co-operate in the "work. Let Mandar be whirled about, and the bed of the "ocean be kept fteady."

When they heard the words of Narayan, they all returned again to the work, and began to ftir about with great force that butter of the ocean; when there prefently arole from out the troubled deep-first the moon, with a pleasing countenance, fhining with ten thousand beams of gentle light; next followed Sree, the Goddels of fortune, whole leat is the white lily of the waters; then Soora-Devee, the Goddess of wine, and the white horfe called Oochi/rava. And after these there was produced, from the uncluous mais, the jewel Kow/toobb, that glorious fparkling gem worn by Narayan on his breaft; fo Pareejat, the tree of plenty, and Soorabhee, the cow that granted every heart's defire.

The moon, Soora-Devee, the Goddess Sree, and the horse as fwift as thought, inftantly marched away towards the Dews, keeping in the path of the fun.

Then the Dew Dhanwantaree, in human shape, came forth, holding in his hand a white veffel filled with the immortal juice Amreeta. When the Asoors beheld these wondrous things appear, they raifed their tumultuous voices for the Amreeta, and each or them clamoroufly exclaimed-" This of right is mine !"

In the mean time Iravat, a mighty elephant, arole, now kept by the God of thunder; and as they continued to churn the ocean more than enough, that deadly poifon iffued from its bed, burning like a raging fire, whole dreadful fumes in a moment fpread throughout the world, confounding the three regions of the universe with its mortal stench; until Seev, at the word of Brahma, swallowed the fatal drug to fave mankind; which remaining in the throat of that fovereign Dew of magic form, from that time he hath been called Neel-Kant, because his throat was stained blue.

When the Asoors beheld this miraculous deed, they became desperate, and the Amreeta and the Goddes' Sree became the fource of endless hatred.

Then

Then Narayan affumed the character and perfon of Mobeenee Maya, the power of inchantment, in a female form of wonderful beauty, and flood before the Assors; whole minds being falcinated by her prefence, and deprived of reason, they seized the Amreeta, and gave it unto her.

The Ascors now cloath themfelves in coftly armour, and, feizing their various weapons, rufh on together to attack the Scors. In the mean time Narayan, in the female form, having obtained the Amreeta from the hands of their leader, the hofts of Scors, during the tumult and confusion of the Ascors, drank of the living water.

And it fo fell out, that whilft the Soors were quenching their thirft for immortality, Raboo, an Asoor, affumed the form of a Soor, and began to drink alfo. And the water had but reached his throat, when the fun and moon, in friendfhip to the Soors, difcovered the deceit; and inftantly Narayan cut off his head, as he was drinking, with his fplendid weapon Chakra. And the gigantic head of the Asoor, emblem of a mountain's fummit, being thus feparated from his body by the Chakra's edge, bounded into the heavens with a dreadful cry, whilft his ponderous trunk fell cleaving the ground afunder, and fhaking the whole earth unto its foundation, with all its iflands, rocks, and forefts. And from that time the head of Raboo refolved an eternal enmity, and continueth, even unto this day, at times to feize upon the fun and moon.

Now Narayan, having quitted the female figure he had affumed, began to difturb the Assors with fundry celeftial weapons; and from that inftant a dreadful battle was commenced, on the ocean's briny ftrand, between the Assors and the Soors. Innumerable fharp and miffile weapons were hurled, and thoufands of piercing darts and battle-axes fell on all fides. The Assors vomit blood from the wounds of the Chakra, and fall upon the ground pierced by the fword, the fpear, and fpiked club.—Heads, glittering with polifhed gold, divided by the Pattees' blade, drop inceffantly; and mangled bodies, wallowing in their gore, lay like fragments or mighty rocks fparkling with gems and precious ores. Millions of fighs and groans arife on every fide; and the fun is overcaft with blood, as they claft their arms, and wound each other with their dreadful inftruments of deftruction.

Now the battle's fought with the iron-fpiked club, and, as they clofe, with clenched fift; and the din of war afcendeth to the heavens!

heavens! They cry----" Pursue! strike! fell to the ground!" fo that a horrid and tumultuous noise is heard on all fides.

In the midft of this dreadful hurry and confusion of the fight, Nar and Narayan entered the field together. Narayan beholding a celeftial bow in the hand of Nar, it reminded him of his Chakra, the deftroyer of the Ascors. The faithful weapon, by name Soodarsan, ready at the mind's call, flew down from heaven with direct and refulgent speed, beautiful, yet terrible to behold. And being arrived, glowing like the facrificial flame, and spreading terror around, Narayan, with his right arm formed like the elephantine trunk, hurled forth the ponderous orb, the speedy meffenger, and glorious ruin of hostile towns; who, raging like the final all-destroying fire, thot bounding with defolating force, killing thousands of the Ascors in his rapid flight, burning and involving, like the lambent flame, and cutting down all that would oppose him. Anon he climbeth the heavens, and now again darteth into the field like a Peesach to feast in blood.

Now the dauntle's Assors ftrive, with repeated ftrength. to crufh the Soors with rocks and mountains, which, hurled in vaft numbers into the heavens, appeared like fcattered clouds, and fell, with all the trees thereon, in millions of fear-exciting torrents, ftriking violently againft each other with a mighty noife; and in their fall the earth, with all its fields and forefts, is driven from its foundation: they thunder furioufly at each other as they roll along the field, and fpend their ftrength in mutual conflict.

Now Nar, feeing the Soors overwhelmed with fear, filled up the path to heaven with fhowers of golden-headed arrows, and fplit the mountain fummits with his unerring fhafts; and the Asoors, finding themselves again fore preffed by the Soors, precipitately flee: fome rufh headlong into the briny waters of the ocean, and others hide themfelves within the bowels of the earth.

The rage of the glorious Chakra, Soodarsan, which for a while burnt like the oil-fed fire, now grew cool, and he retired into the heavens from whence he came. And the Soors having obtained the victory, the mountain Mandar was carried back to its former flation with great refpect; whilft the waters also retired, filling the firmament and the heavens with their dreadful roarings.

The Soors guarded the Amreeta with great care, and rejoiced exceedingly because of their success; and Eendra, with all his immortal bands, gave the water of life unto Narayan, to keep it for their use."

63 79 Kama-dhook.

[112]

Page. No.

- 63 ⁷⁹ Kama-dbook.—One of the names of the Cow of Plenty, produced in churning the ocean.
- ⁸⁰ Ananta amongft the Nags.—The Nags are ferpents fabled with many heads. Ananta fignifies eternal, and may be an emblem of eternity. There are fome very wonderful ftories told of these ferpents in the original from which these Dialogues are taken.
- ^{BI} Varoon.—The God of the Ocean.
- ⁸² Yam.—The judge of hell.
- 83 Prahlad.—An evil spirit who was converted by Kreeshna.
- ⁸⁴ Vinateya.---A bird fabled to be of wonderful fize, and the vehicle of Veefbnoo, the Deity in his preferving quality, and who is otherwife called Garoor,
- ⁸⁵ Makar.—A fifh represented with a long fnout fomething like the proboscis of an elephant; and the fign Capricornus.
 - Ganga.—The Ganges. When the river was first conducted from its fource, by a Prince whose name was Bbageerath, towards the ocean, it so fell out that Jahnoo was at his devotions at the mouth of the Mahanadee, at a place now called Navobgunge.—The Goddess in passing sweet away the utensils for his ablutions, which so enraged him, that he drank up her stream; but after a while his anger was appealed, and he let her escape from an incision made in his thigh; and from this circumstance of her second birth, second bir
 - ⁸⁷ Dwandwa.—A term in grammar, ufed where many nouns are put together without a copulative, and the cafe fubjoined to the last only, which is a mode of composition much admired by the Poets.
- 64 ⁸⁸ Marga-seer fba.—The month beginning with the middle of October, when the periodical rains have fubfided, and the exceflive heats are abated.
- ⁸⁹ Koosoomakara.—The feafon of flowers, otherwife called Vasant. The two months between the middle of March and May.—The Hindoos divide the year into fix Reetoo, or feafons, of two months each, which are thus denominated :

Seesar.

Page. No.

Seesar.—Dewy feafon. Heemant.—Cold feafon. Vasant.—Mild (fpring). Greesbma.—Hot feafon. Varsa.—Rainy feafon. Sarat.—Breaking (up of the rains).

- 64 90 Vasoodev.—The father of Kree/hna in his incarnation.
- 9¹ Vyas.—The reputed author or compiler of the Mahabbarat.
- 92 Bards.—The Poets of India, like the Bards of Britain, were revered as Saints and Prophets.
- 93 Oosana.—Otherwife called Sookra, effeemed the preceptor of the evil fpirits; the planet Venus, and dies Veneris.
- 65 M Afween and Koomar.—Reputed the twin offsprings of the Sun, and phylicians of the Gods.
- 66 95 Ooragas.—Who crawl upon their breasts :--- ferpents.
- --- ⁹⁶ Chakra.—A kind of difcus with a fharp edge, hurled in battle from the point of the fore-finger, for which there is a hole in the centre.—See the ftory of the churning of the ocean, p. 106.
- 97 Pooroo/h.—Already explained.
- 68 98 Except thyfelf.—Thyfelf fhould include his brothers, who were also faved.
- 99 The immediate agent.—The inftrument to execute the decree of Fate.
- 70 ¹⁰⁰ Thy four-armed form.—In which the Deity is ufually repreferted in his incarnations, the images of which Arjoon had been accuftomed to behold without emotion.
- 72 ¹⁰¹ Amreeta.—The water of immortality, the Ambrofia of the Hindoo Gods.—See the flory of churning the ocean, p. 106.
- 74 ¹⁰² And a constant attention to birth, &c.—To look upon them as evils.
- -- 103 Exemption from attachments and affection, &c.--i. e. That no attachments or affections should draw a man from the exercise of his devotion; or that all worldly cares must be abandoned for the attainment of that wisdom which is to free the soul from suture birth.

^{— 194} The fuperior spirit.—God, the universal soul.

^{74 105} Sat

Page. No.

- 74 ¹⁰⁵ Sat (ens) nor Asat (non ens).—The opposite meanings of these two words render this passage peculiarly mysterious; and even the commentators differ about their true fignification. The most rational interpretation of them is, that the Deity in his works is a substance, or a material Being, and in his effence immaterial; but as he is but one, he cannot positively be denominated either one or the other.
- 81 ¹⁰⁷ Pran and Opan.—The breathing fpirit, and the fpirit which acteth in the bowels to expel the fæces.
- -- 108 Which is of four kinds.—Either to be mafticated with the teeth, lapped in with the tongue, fucked in by the lips, or imbibed by the throat.
- ¹⁰⁹ The Vedant.—A metaphyfical treatife on the nature of God, which teacheth that matter is a mere delufion, the fuppofed author of which is Vyas.
- -- 110 Koothafta, or he who ftandeth on the pinnacle.— The divine effence, which, according to the opinion or fome of their philosophers, is without quality, and fitteth aloof inactive.
- There is another Pooroofb, &c. &c.—This, and the following period, are fo full of mystery, that the Translator despairs of revealing it to the fatisfaction of the reader. Perhaps Kree/bna only means to collect into one view the feveral appellations Koothafta, Pooroo/b, Paramatma, Ee/war, and Pooroo/bottama, by which the Deity is described by as many different theologists, in order to expose their various opinions respecting his nature, and unite them in one.
- 82 ¹¹² Saftra.—Any book of Divine authority.
- 86 ¹¹³ Zeal, in the vulgar acceptation of the word, fignifies the voluntary infliction of pain, the modes of doing which, as practifed to this day by the zealots of India, dia, are as various as they are horrible and aftonifhing. Kree/bna, by pointing out what true zeal is, tacitly condemns those extravagant mortifications of the flesh.

Page. Nº.

14 The Bards conceive, &c .- The meaning of this period is too evident to require a note. But, in order to fhew that the commentators of India are not lefs fond of fearching for mystery, and wandering from the fimple path of their author into a labyrinth of fcholaftic jargon, than fome of those of more enlightened nations, who for ages have been labouring to entangle the plain unerring clew of our holy religion, the Translator, in this place, will intrude the following literal version of the comment written upon it by one Sree-dhar Swamee, whose notes upon the whole are held in as much effeem as the text, which at this day, they fay, is unintelligible without them. It can feldom happen that a commentator is infpired with the fame train of thought and arrangement of ideas as the author whofe fentiments he prefumes to expound, especially in metaphysical works. The Translator hath seen a comment, by a zealous Perfian, upon the wanton odes of their favorite Poet Hafiz, wherein every obfcene allufion is fublimated into a divine mystery, and the host and the tavern are as ingeniously metamorphofed into their Prophet and his holy temple.

NOTE BY SREE-DHAR SWAMEE, TO THE PASSAGE ABOVE ALLUDED TO.

"The Bards, &c....The Veds fay..." Let him who "longeth for children make offerings. Let him who "longeth for heaven make offerings, &c. &c." The "Bards understand Sannyas to be a forfaking, that "is, a total abandonment, of fuch works as are per-"formed for the accomplishment of a wish, such "works as are bound with the cord of defire. The "Pandeets know, that is, they understand, Sannyas "to imply also a forfaking of all works, together "with

89

Page. No.

"with all their fruits. The disquisitors, that is, such "as expound or make clear, call Tyag a forfaking of "the fruit only of every work that is defirable, "whether fuch as are ordained to be performed con-" ftantly, or only at stated periods; and not a for-"faking of the work itself. But how can there be "a forfaking of the fruit of fuch conftant and ftated "works as have no particular fruit or reward annexed "to them? The forfaking of a barren woman's " child cannot be conceived.—It is faid—" Although "one who longeth for heaven, or for a ftore of cat-"tle, &c. fhould all his life perform the ceremonies "which are called Sandya, or feed the fire upon the "altar, and in thefe and the like ceremonies, no "particular reward has ever been heard of; yet "whilft the law is unable to engage a provident and "wary man in a work where no human advantage "is to be feen, at the fame time it ordaineth that "even he who hath conquered the univerfe, &c. " fhall perform facrifices; ftill for these, and the like "religious duties, it hath appointed fome general re-"ward."-But it is the opinion of Gooroo, that the "law intended these works merely for its own ac-" complifhment. Such a tenet is unworthy of notice, "because of the difficulty of obliging men to pay " attention to those works.—It is also faid, that there "is a reward annexed to the general and particular "duties; that they who perform them shall become "inhabitants of the Poonya-lok; that by works the "Peetree-lok is to be attained; that by good works "crimes are done away, &c. &c. Wherefore it is " properly faid, --- that they call Tyag a forfaking of the " fruits of every action."

90

Five agents, &c.—The five agents here implied, are probably the foul, as fupervifor; the mind, as actor or director; the organs, as implements, &c.

- ¹¹⁶ Nor is he bound thereby.—He is not confined to mortal birth.
 - ¹¹⁷ Gnan, Gneya, and Pareegnata.—Wifdom, the object of wifdom, and the fuperintending fpirit.

93 118 Brahman

[117]

Page. No.

- 93 ¹¹⁸ Brahman—is a derivative from the word Brahm, the Deity, and fignifies a Theologist or Divine.
- 119 K/hetree—is derived from the word K/hetra, land.
- 120 Vifya and Soodra—are of doubtful origin.
- 96 ¹²¹ By the favor of Vyas—who had endued Sanjay with an omnifcient and prophetic fpirit, by which he might be enabled to recount all the circumftances of the war to the blind Dhreetara/htra.

— 122 Haree.—One of the names of the Deity.

FINIS.

Digitized by Google