LIFE OF SHAKSPEARE.

WILLIAM SHAKSPEARE was born at Strat- the performance. But in whatever situation as ford-apon-Avon, in Warwickstake, on the 23d day was first employed at the theatre, he appears to of April, 1884. His family was above the vulgar have soon discovered those talents which afterwards rank. His father, John Shakspeare, was a con-made him situable dealer in wool, and had been an officer of the corporation of Straiford. He was likewise a justice of the peace, and at one time a man of Some distinction he probably first acquired as considerable property. This last, however, ap an actor, but no character has been discovered pears to have been lost by some means, in the latter in which he appeared to more advantage than in part of his life. It is generally agreed, that he did not enjoy what is usually termed a literary education; but he certainly knew enough of Latin and by persons of the higher order, as we are certain without blunder or impropriety.

His plays were not only popular, but approved French to introduce scraps of both in his plays, that he enjoyed the gracious favour of Queen Ritzabeth, who was very fond of the stage; the patronage of the Earl of Southampton, to whom he When about eighteen years old, he married dedicated some of his poems; and of King James, acquaintance of every person distinguished for such qualities. It is not difficult, indeed, to truce, that He was twenty-two years of age when he strived Shakspeare was a man of humour, and a social in London, and is said to have made his first ac-companion; and probably excelled in that species exciptance in the play-house. Here his necessities of minor wit, not ill adapted to conversation, of obliged him to accept the office of call-boy, or which it could have been wished he had been more.

Howdong he acted, has not been discovered; but According to another account, far less he continued to write till the year 1814. During probable, his first employment was to wait at the his dramatic career, he acquired a preparty in the door of the play-house, and hold the horses of those theatre, which he must have disposed of when he who had no servents, that they might be ready after retired, as no mention of it occurs in his will. The neulated considerable property, which Gildon (in He died on his birth-day, Tucsday, April 23, 1616, his Letters and Emnys) stated to amount to 300t, when he had exactly completed his fifty-second amounted to much more than 2001, per own, which ment is placed in the wall, on which he is repreyet was a considerable fortune in those times; and sented under an arch, in a sitting posture, a cushion it is supposed, that he might have derived 2001, an- spread before him, with a pen in his right hand,

He retired some years before his death to a house in Stratford, of which it has been thought traportant to give the history. It was built by Sir Rugh Ciopton, a younger brother of an ancient family in that neighbourhood. Sir Hugh was sheriff of London in the reign of Richard III, and lord mayor in that of Henry VII. By his will he bequesthed to his elder brother's son his manor of Clopton, &c. and his house by the name of the Great House in Straubrd. A good part of the estate was in possession of Edward Clopton, Esq. and Blr Hugh Clopton, Kal. in 1733. The principal estate had been sold out of the Clopton family for above a century, at the time when Shakapeare became the purchaser, who, having repaired and modelled it to his own mind, changed the name to New Place, which the mansion-house afterwards erected, in the foom of the pool's house, retained for many years. The house and lands belonging to it continued in the possession of Shakspeare's descendants to the time of the Restoration, when they were re-purchased by the Clopton family. Hore, in May, 1748, when Mr. Garrick, Mr. Macklin, and Mr. Delane, visited Stratford, they were, hospitably entertained under Shakspeare's mulberry-tree, by Sir Hugh Clopton, who was a barrister, was knighted by George I. and died in the 80th year of his age, 1751. We have not any account of the maledy whice, at no very advanced age, closed the life and labours of this unrivalled and incomparable genius. The only notice we have of his person is from Aubrey, who says, "He was a handsome wellshaped man;" and adds, "veric good company, and of a veric ready and pleasant and amouth wit."

His family consisted of two daughters, and a son named Hamnet, who died in 1896, in the twelfth year of his age. Busannah, the eldest daughter, and her father's favourite, was married to Dr. John Hall, a physician, who died Nov. 1635, aged 60. Mrs. Hall died July II, 1849, aged 66. They left only one child, Elizabeth, born 1607-8, and married April 22, 1626, to Themas Nesha, esq. who died in 1647; and afterwards to Sir John Barnerd, of Abington in Northamptonshire, but died without Gastrel, a man of large fortune, who resided in it issue by either husband. BCENE II .- The island : before the cell of Pros pero. Enter Prospero and Miranda.

Mir. If by your art, my dearest father, you have Put the wild waters in this roar, allay them: The sky, it seems, would pour down stinking pitch But that the sea, mounting to the welkin's cheek, Dashes the fire out. O, I have suffer'd With those that I saw suffer! a brave vessel, Who had no doubt some noble creatures in her, Pash'd all to pieces. O, the cry did knock Against my vary heart! Poor souls! they perish'd. Had I been any god of power, I would Have sunk the sea within the earth, or e'er! It should the good ship so have swallow'd, and The freighting souls within her. Be collected ; Pre No more amazement: tall your pitcous heart,

There's no harm done. O, we the day ! Allra. No harm. I have done nothing but in care of thee (Of thee, my dear one! thee, my daughter!) who Art ignorant of what thou art, sought knowing Of whence I am; nor that I am more better Than Prospero, master of a full poor cell, And thy no greater father. To bate me a full year.

Dost thou forget From what a torment I did free thee?

Pro. Thou dost; and think'st It much, to tread the coze of the sait deep; To run upon the sharp wind of the north; To do me business in the veins of the earth, When it is bak'd with front.

I do not, sir. Art Pro. Thou liest, malignant thing! Hust thou We cannot miss him: he does make our fire, forgot The foul witch Sycorax, who, with age, and envy, Was grown into a hoop? hast thou forgot her? Āri No, sir.

Thou hast: where was she born?

speak; tell me. Ari. Sir, in Argier.

Pro. O, was she so? I must, Once in a month, recount what thou hast been, Which thou forget st. This demn'd witch, Sycorax, For mischiels manifold, and sorceries terrible To enter human hearing, from Argier, Thou know'st, was banished; for one thing she did, They would not take her life. Is not this true?

Ari. Ay, sir. Pro. This blue-ey'd hag was hither brought with child

And here was left by the sailors. Thou, my slave, As thou report'st thyself, wast then her servant: And, for thou wast a spirit too delicate

(1) Bermadas. (2) Wave.

(3) Algiers,

To act ner earthly and abherr'd commends.
Refusing her grand hests, ashe did commends.
By help of her more potent ministers,
And in her most unmittigable rage,
Into a cloven plac; within which rift
Imprison'd, thou didnt painfully remain
A dozen years; within which space she died,
And left thee there; where thou didnt vent thy grouns, As fast as mill-wheels strike; then was this island (Save for the son that she did litter here, A freekled whelp, hag-born,) not honoured with A human shape.

Pre. Dull thing, I say so; the that Caliban, her some Pro. Dull thing, I say so; he, that Caliban, Whom now I keep in service. Thou best know st What torment I did find thee in: thy groans Did make wolves howl, and penetrate the breasts
Of ever angry bears: it was a torment
To lay upon the damn'd, which Sycorax
Could not again undo; it was mine art,
When I would not heard that that or the When I arriv'd, and heard thee, that made gape

The pine, and let thee out. I thank thee, master, Pro. If thou more murmur'st, I will read an oak, And peg thee in his knotty entrails, till Thou hast howl'd away twelve winters. Pardon, mester :

Ari. I will be correspondent to command,

And do my spiriting gently.

Pro. Do so; and after two days I will discharge thee.

That's my noble master!

That's my noble master!

What shall I do? say what: what shall I do? Pro. Go make thyself like a nymph o' the sea; Pro. Go make thysen me a nymph of the subject to no sight but mine; invisible To every eye-ball else. Go, take this shape, And hither come in t: hence, with diligence.

[Exit Aried.

Awake, dear heart, awake! thou hast slept well; Awake!

Mire. The strangeness of your story put Heaviness in me.

Pro. Shake it off; come on: We'll visit Callban, my slave, who never Yields us kind answer.

Mira 'Tis a villain, air, I do not love to lock an.

But, as 'tis, Pro. Fetch in our wood; and serves in offices That profit us. What, he! slave! Caliban!

Thou earth, thou i speak.

Cal. [Within.] There's wood anough within.

Pro. Come forth, I say; there's other summess for thee; Come forth, thou tortoise! when?

Re-enter Ariel, like a water-nymph.

Fine apparition! My quaint Ariel. Hark in thine car.

My lord, it shall be done. Яri, Erit. Pro. Thou poisonous slave, got by the devil

Upon thy wicked dam, come forth!

Enter Caliban.

Cal. As wicked dow as e'er my mother brush'd With raven's forther from tarwholesome fan. Drop on you both! a south-west blow on ye,

(4) Commands.

(5) Do without.

And hilster you all o'er?

Pre. For this, he sure, to-night thou shalt have:

Side-stiches, that shall pen thy breath up; urchins' Shall, for that wast of might that they may work, All exercise on thee: then shall be pinch'd As thick as honey-combs, each pinch more stinging. Then bees that made them.

I must out my dinner.  $C_{nL}$ This island's mine, by Sycorax, my mother,
Which thou tak'st from me. When thou camest first,
Thou strok'est me, and mad'st much of me;
would'st give and teach me how

Water with berries in't; and teach me how

Of Sycorax, toads, bestles, bats, light on you! For I am all the subjects that you have, Which first was mine own king; and here you styme In this bard rock, whiles you do keep from me The rest of the island.

Pro. Thou most lying slave,

Whom strines may move, not kindness; I have used thee,
Fifth as thou art, with homan care; and lodged thee
In mane own cell, till then didst seek to violator

The honour of my thild, Cal. O ho, O ho!—would it had been done! Then dist prevent me; I had peopled else. This isie with Calibana.

Pra.

Abhorred stave;

Which any print of goodness will not take,

Being easable of all ill! I pitied thee,

This is no mortal business, nor no sound

That he earth owes: —I hear it now above me.

Pro. The fringed curtains of thine eye advance what thou seest youd.

One thing or other: when theu didst not, savage, Raow thine own meaning, but would'st gabble like A thing most evatish, I cadow'd thy purposes With words that made them known: But thy vile mature

Could not ablde to be with; therefore wast thou Deservedly confin'd into this rock, Who hadst deserved more than a prison.

Cal. You taught me language; and my profit on't A goodly person; he hath lost Is, I know how to curse; the red plague rids you, And strays about to find them. For learning me your language !

Hag-seed, hence! Pro. Hag-seed, hence! Fotch as in facel, and be quick, thou were best, To assume other business. Skrug'st thou, maice? If thou impleates, or dost unwillingly What I command, I'll rack thee with old cramps; What I command, I'll rack thee with old cramps; Fill all thy bosses with school; make thee roar, That beasts shall tremble at thy din.
Col. No. 'yeary thee !—
I must obey: his art is of such power,
It would control my dam's god, Setchos,
And make a vassel' of him.

And make a vassal of him.

Eo-enter Ariel, invisible, playing and singing; Ferdinand following him.

ARIEL'S SONG.

Come unto these yellow sands, And then take hands;

(I) Palrice. (2) Destroy,

Court sind when you have, and bloo'd. (The wild waves whist!) Foot it feetly here and there; And, sweet sprites, the burden bour. Hark, hark! Bur. Bowgh, wowgh.
The west-dogs bark: (dispersedly, no water-nogs barg:
Bur. Bowgh, wowgh. [t
Hurk, hark! I hear
The strain of strutting chanticlers,
Cry, Cock-a-doodle-doo. [dispersedly.

Fer. Where should this music be? I the air, or the earth?

To same the higger light, and how the less,
That burn by day and night: and then I lov'd thee,
And show'd thee all the qualities o' the isle,
The fresh springs, brise pits, barren place,
artile;
Cursed be I that did so — All the charms

It sounds no more:—and sure, it waits upon
Some god of the island. Sitting on a bank,
Weeping again the king my father's wreck,
This music crept by me upon the waters;
Allaying both their fury, and my passion,
With its sweet air: thence I have follow'd it, Or it bath drawn me rather :—But 'lis gone. No, it begins again.

Ariel sings.

Full fathom five thy father lies;
Of his bonce are corsi made;
Those are pearle that were his eyes.
Nothing of him that doth fade,
But dath suffer a sea-change
Into something rich and strunge.
Sea-nymphs hourly ring his knell;
Hart was I have the sea-change. Hark I now I hear them, ding-doug, bell. [Burden, ding-dong.

Fer. The ditty does remember my drown'd

Pro. The fringed curtains of thine eye advance, And say, what thou seest youd'.

Mire What la't? a spirit? Lord, how it looks about! Believe me, sir, It carries a brave form :—But his a spirit.

Pre. No, wench; it ests and sleeps, and hath such senses

As we have, such: this gullant which thou seest Was in the wreck; and but he's something stain'd With grief, that's beauty's canker, thou might'st call him

A goodly person: he hath lost his fellows,

Mira I relight call him A thing divine; for nothing natural

I ever suw so noble. As my soul prompts it:—Spirit, fine spirit! Pil free thec.

Within two days for this. Most sure, the goddess On whom these airs attend !-- Vouchsafe my prayer May know, if you remain upon this island do, Setebos,

And that you will some good instruction give,
How I may bear me here: my prime request,
Which I do last pronounce, is, O you wonder!

[Exit Caliban.]

Mira.
No wonder, sir;

But, certainly a maid. My language? beavens I am the best of them that speak this speech, Were I but where 'tis spoken.

How! the best? What wert thou, if the king of Naples heard thee ?

(3) Still, allent,

(4) Owns,

Fer. A single thing, as I am now, that wonders To hear thee speak of Naples: he does hear me; And, that he does, I weep: myself am Naples; Who with mine eyes, ne er since at ebb, beheld The king my father wreck'd.

And his brave son, being twain.

And his more braver daughter, could control' thee, If now it were fit to do 'l. At the first sight

They have chang'd eyes:—Delicate Ariel,
Pll set thee free for this!—A word, good sir;
Pls thee free for this!—A word, good sir;
Pro.
Thou hast done well, fine Ariel!—
Thou hast done well, fine Ariel!—
[To Pro.
This Hark, what thou else shalt do me.

Is the third man that ere I saw; the first That ere I sigh'd for : pity move my father To be inclin'd my way!

Fer. O, if a virgin,
And your affection not gone forth, I'll make you The queen of Naples.

Boft, air; one word more. Pro. They are both in either's powers: but this swift business

I must uneasy make, lest too light winning [ Aside. Make the prize light.—One word more: I charge thee.

That thou attend me: thou dost here usurp The name thou ow'st not: and hust put thyself Upon this island, as a spy, to win it From me, the lord on't

Fer. No, as I am a man. Mird. There's nothing ill can dwell in such a temple:

If the ill spirit have so fair a house, Good things will strive to dwell with 'L Pro. Follow me. - To Ferd.

Speak not you for him; he's a traitor.—Conic, I'll manacle thy neck and feet together: Sea-water shalt thou drink, thy food shall be The fresh-brook muscles, wither'd roots, and husks, Wherein the acorn cradied. Follow.

Fer. I will resist such entertainment, till

Mine enemy has more power. O dear father, Mira.

Make not too rash a trial of him, for He's gentle, and not fearful."

What, I say, My foot my tutor !- Put thy sword up, traitor; Who mak'st a show, but dar'st not strike, thy conscience

Is so possess'd with guilt : come from thy ward ;2 For I can here disarm thee with this stick,

And make thy weapon drop. Breech you, father! Mira.

Pro. Hence; hang not on my garments.

Mirs. Sir, have pity;

I'll be his surety.

Pro. Silence: one word more Shall make me chide thee, if not hate thee. What ! An advocate for an impostor? hush! Thou think'st, there are no more such shapes as he Having seen but him and Caliban: foolish wench! To the most of men this is a Caliban, And they to him are angels.

Mira. My affections Are then most humble; I have no ambition

To see a goodlier man.

(1) Confute. (2) Prightful. (3) Guard.

Come on : obey : [To Ford.

Thy nerves are in their infancy again, And have no vigour in them.

Fer. So they are: Fer. Yos, faith, and all his lords; the duke of My father's loss, the weakness which I feel,
Milan

The wreck of all my friends, or this man's threats,
To whom I am subdued, are but light to me,
The dube of Milan

The dube of Milan The duke of Milan, Might I but through my prison, once a day, Behold this maid: all corners else o' the earth Let liberty make use of ; space enough Have I in such a prison.

Pro. It works: - Come on. Thou hust done well, fine Ariel! - Follow me. To Ferd. and Mira.

Mira. Be al comfort, My father's of a better nature, air, Than he appears by speech; this is unwunted, Which now came from him.

Thou shalt be as free As mountain winds: but then exactly do All points of my command.

To the syllable. Pro. Come, follow: speak not for him. [Excusel.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—Another part of the island. Enter Alonso, Schastian, Antonio, Gonzalo, Adrian, Francisco, and others.

Gon. 'Beseech you, sir, be merry: you have cause

(So have we all) of joy; for our escape is much beyond our loss; our hint of wo is common; every day, some sailor's wife, The masters of some merchant, and the merchant, Have just our theme of wo: but for the miracle. I mean our preservation, few in millions Can speak like us: then wisely, good sir, weigh He draws. Our sorrow with our comfort.

Pr'ythee, peace. Alon. Scb. He receives comfort like cold porridge. Ant. The visitor will not give him o'er so. Seb. Look, he's winding up the watch of his wit; by and by it will strike.

Seb. One :--- Tell.

Gon. When every grief is entertain'd, the offer'd. Comes to the entertainer-

Seð. A dollar.

Gos. Dolour comes to him, indeed; you have spoken truer than you proposed. Seb. You have taken it wiselier than I meant ou should. Gon. Therefore, my lord,

Ant. Fie, what a spendthrift is he of his tongue

Alon. I prythce, spare. Con. Well, I have done: but yet— Seb. He will be talking.

Ant. Which of them, he, or Adrian, for a good wager, first begins to crow?

Seb. The old cock.

Ant. The cockrel. Sec. Done: the wager? Ant. A laughter.

Seb. A match.
Adv. Though this island seem to be desert,-

Seb. Ha, ha, ha!
Ant. Bo, you're pay'd.
Afr. Uninhabitable, and almost inaccessible,
Seb. Yet,

side. It must needs be of subtle, tender, and delicate temperance.1

Ant. Temperance was a delicate wench. Sec. Ay, and a subtle; as he most learnedly delivered.

Adv. The air breathes upon us here most sweetly.

Sch. As if it had lungs, and rotten ones. Sweeny.
Sch. As if it had lungs, and rotten ones.
And. Or, as 'twers-perfumed by a for.
Gon. Here is every thing advantageous to life.
And. True; save means to live.
Sch. Of that there's none, or little.
Gos. Hew lush' and lusty the grass looks! how ereen!

dat. The ground, indeed, is tawny. Seb. With an eyer of green in t.

Ant. He misses not much.

Seb. No; he doth but mistake the truth totally. Goz. But the rarity of it is (which is, indeed, almost beyond credit-

See. As many vouch'd rarities are.

Con. That our garments, being, as they were, drenched in the sea, hold, notwithstanding, their freshess, and glosses; being rather new dy'd, than stain'd with salt water.

If but one of his pockets could speak, would it not say, He lies?

Sch. Ay, or very falsely pocket up his report. as when we put them on first in Afric, at the mar-rage of the king's fair daughter Claribel to the king of Tunis, Set. Twas a sweet marriage, and we prosper well in our return.

.idr. Tunis was never grac'd before with such a paragon to their queen.

Gon. Not since widow Dide's time.

Ant. Widow I a pox o' that! how came that widow in? Widow Dido!
Seb. What if he had said, widower Æncas too?

good lord, how you take it!

Air. Widow Dido, said you? you make me suir of that: she was of Carthage, not of Tunis.

Gon. This Tunis, slr, was Carthage.

Adr. Carthage?
Gon. I assure you, Carthage.

Ant. His word is more than the miraculous harp. Seb. He hath rais'd the wall, and houses too. Ant. What impossible matter will be make easy nert! Seb. I think he will carry this island home in his pocket, and give it his son for an apple. int. And, sowing the kernels of it in the sea, bring forth more islands.

Gon. Ay I and work of the Gon. Ay I as Gon. Ay I as Gon. Ay I as Gon. Sir, we were talking, that our garments Gon. Sir, we were at Tunis, at the semnow as fresh, as when we were at Tunis, at the Ast. That sort was well fish'd for.

Aion. You crain these words into mine care. egainst

The stomech of my sense: 'would I had never Married my daughter there! for, coming thence, My son is lost; and, in my rate, she too, Who is so far from Italy remov'd,

I ne'er again shall see her. O thou mine heir Of Naples and of Milan, what strange fish Hath made his meal on thee!

From. Sir, he may live; I saw him bent the surges under him, And ride upon their backs; be trod the water, Whose enmity he flung aside, and breasted The surge most swoln that met him: his hold head

Bove the contentious waves he kept, and our'd Himself with his good arms in lusty stroke. To the shore, that o'er his wave-worn basis bow'd As stooping to relieve him. I not doubt, He came alive to land.

Alon. No, no, he's gone. Seb. Sir, you may thank yourself for this great loss

That would not bless our Europe with your daughter,

But rather lose her to an African;

Where she, at least, is banish'd from your eye, Who hath cause to wet the grief on't.

Alon. Pr'ythee, peace.

Seb. You were kneel'd to, and importun'd otherwise By all of us; and the fair soul herself Weigh'd, between lothness and obedience, at Which end o' the beam she'd bow. We have lost your son, fear, for ever: Milan and Naples have More widows in them of this business' making Than we bring men to comfort them: the fault's Your own.

Aion. So is the dearest of the loss My ford Sebastian,

The truth you speak doth lack some gentleness, And time to speak it in : you rub the sore, When you should bring the plaster.

Seb. Ant. And most chirurgeonly.

Gon. It is foul weather in us all, good sir, When you are cloudy.

Seb. Foul weather? Ant.

Very foul. Gon. Had I a plantation of this isle, my lord,-

Ant. He'd sow it with nettle-seed.

Seb. Or docks, or mellows.

Gon. And were the king of it, What would I do?

Seb. 'Scape being drunk, for want of wine.

Gon. I' the commonwealth I would by contraries

Execute all things: for no kind of trailic Would I admit; no name of magistrate

Letters should not be known; no use of service, Of riches or of poverty; no contracts, Successions; bound of land, tilth, vineyard, none. No use of metal, corn, or wine, or oil: No occupation; all men idie, all;

mirriage of your daughter, who is now queen,
And. And the rurest that e'er came there.
Sei. Bate, I beseech you, widow Dido.
And. O, widow Dido: av, widow Dido.
Goa. Is not, sir, my doublet as fresh as the first day I were it? I mean, in a sort.

Of its own kind, all folions, all abundance,
To feed my innocent people.

Seb. No marrying mong his subjects?

Ani. None, man; all idle; whores and knaves.

Gos. I would with such perfection govern, sir,
To eved the volten are.

To eved the volten are.

Gon. 1 would be golden age.
To excel the golden age.
'Save his majesty!

Ant. Long live Gonzalo!

Gon. And, do you mark me, sir?—Alon. Prythee, no more: Thou dost talk no-of such sensible and nimble lungs, that they always

By their own tear, or stoth.

Seb.

Thus, 'Twas you we laugh'd at.

Gon. Who, in this kind of merry fooling, am of thing to you; so you may continue, and laugh' A matter from thee; and a birth, indeed, which throes thee much to yield. at nothing still.

Ant. What a blow was there given:
Seb. An it had not fallou flat-long.

Gos. You are gentlemen of brave mettle; you would lift the moon out of her sphere, if she would continue in it five weeks without changing.

Enter Ariel, invisible, playing solumn muric.

See. We would so, and then go a bat-fowling.

for I am very heavy?

Aut. Go sleep, and hear us.

[All sleep but Alon. Seb. and Ant.

What, all so soon asleep! I wish mine eyes That Ferdinand is drown'd? , with themselves, shut up my thoughts: I find, ...ey are inclined to do so.

Please you, sir, Do not omit the heavy offer of it: It seldom visits sorrow; when it doth,

It is a comforter.

And. We two, my lord,
Will guard your person, while you take your rest,
And watch your safety.

Thank you: wondrous heavy [Alonso sleeps. Exit Ariel.

Why

Doth it not then our eye-lids sink? I find not Myself dispos'd to sleep.

Nor I; my spirits are nimble. Ant. They sell together all, as by consent; They dropped, as by a thunder-stroke. What might, Worthy Sebastian?—O, what might?—No more:—

And yet methinies, I see it in thy face, What thou should'st be: the occasion speaks thee;

and

My strong imagination sees a crown

Dropping upon thy head, Sec. What, art thou waking?

Ant. Do you not hear me speak?
Seb. I do; and, surely, It is a sleepy language; and thou speak'at Out of thy sleep: what is it thou didst say?

This is a strange repose, to be asleep With eyes wide open; standing, speaking, moving,

And yet so fast asleep. Noble Sebastian, Thou let'st thy fortune sleep-die rather; wink'st

Plenty.

Well; I am standing water. Seb. Ant. I'll teach you how to flow.

Hereditary sloth instructs use.

Alon. Prythee, no more: Thou dost talk nothing to me.

Atom. I do well believe your highness; and did

Whiles thus you mock it! how, in stripping it, it to minister occasion to these gentlemen, who are you more invest it! Ebbing men, indeed, of such sensible and nimble lungs, that they always Most often do so near the bottom run,

By their own fear, or sloth.

Thus, or: Aithough this lord of weak remembrance, this (Who shall be of as little memory,

When he is carth'd,) hath here almost permaded

(For he's a spirit of persuasion only,)
The king, his son's alive; 'tis as impossible
That he's undrown'd, as he that sleeps here swims.

Sec. I have no hope That he's undrown'd.

Seb. We would so, and then go a variance with a great hope have you i no hope, to my discretion so weakly. Will you laugh measleep, Another way so high a hope, that even Ambition cannot piecee a wink beyond, Ambition to the way so high a hope, that even Ambition cannot piecee a wink beyond these. Will you O, out of that no hope, What great hope have you! no hope, that way, s But doubts discovery there. Will you grant, with me,

He's gone. Then, tell me, S:b. Ant.

Who's the next heir of Naples? ClaribeL Seb.

dist. She that is queen of Tunia; she that dwells Ten leagues beyond man's life; she that from Naples Can have no note, unless the sun were post, (The mani' the moon'stoo slow,) till new-born chins Be rough and razorable: she, from whom We were all sea-awallowed, though some cast again, And, by that, destin'd to perform an act, Whereof what's past is prologue; what to come,

Seb. What a strange drowsiness possesses them! In yours and my discharge.

Ant. It is the quality o' the climate.

Seb. What stuff is this?—How say you?

Tis true, my brother's daughter's queen of Tunis; So is she heir of Naples; 'twixt which regions There is some space.

Aspace is some space.

As space whose every cubit
Seems to cry out, Hose shall that Clarifed
Measure us back to Naples?—Keep in Tunis,
And let Sebastian wake!—Say, this were death
That now hath seiz'd them; why, they were no

WOTER Than now they are: there be, that can rule Naples, As well as he that sleeps; lords, that can prate As amply, and unnecessarily,

As this Gonzalo; I myself could make A chough of as deep chat. O, that you bore The mind that I do! what a sleep were this

For your advancement! Do you understand me? Seb. Methinks I do. And how does your control Ant.

Tender your own good fortune? I remember. Beb.

(2) A bird of the juck-daw kind.

You did suppliest your brother Prospero.

True : And look, how well my garments at upon me Much feater than before: my brother's servants
Were then my follows, now they are my men.
Seb. But, for your conscience—

.int. Ay, sir; where lies that? if it were a kibe, So, king, go safely on to seek thy son. Twould put me to my slipper; but I feel not This deity in my bosoun: twenty consciences, This stand twint me and Milan, candied be they, and have the mether; there lies was hardened as the modest. Here lies was hardened themed. And melt, ere they molest! Here lies your brother, No better than the earth he lies upon.

If he were that which now he's like; whom I,

With this obedient steel, three inches of it,
Can lay to bed forever: while you, doing thus,
To the perpetual wink for aye! might put This ancient morsel, this sir Prudence, who Should not upbraid our course. For all the rest, They'll take suggestion, as a cat laps milk; They'll tell the clock to any business that We say befits the hour.

And when I rear my hand, do you the like,

To fall it on Gonzalo. Seb.

O, but one word.

Muric. Re-enter Ariel, invisible.

That these, his friends, are in; and sends me forth, (For else his project dies,) to keep them living.

[Sings in Gonzalo's car.

While you here do moring lie, Open-of d Conspiracy
His time doll take : If of life you keep a care, Shake of slamber, and beware : Awake! moake!

Ast. Then let us both be sudden.

Wherefore this ghastly looking?

It struck mine ear most terribly.

chi. O, 'twas a din to fright a monster's ear; To make an earthquake! sure it was the roar Of a whole hard of lions.

Son. Heard you this, Gonzalo?

Gos. Upon mine honour, sir, I heard a humand that a strange one too, which did awake me:
I shak'd you, sir, and cry'd; as mine eyes open'd,
I sow their weapons drawn:—there was a noise,
Thet's verity: 'best stand upon our guard;
Or that we quit this place: let's draw our weapons.
Also, Lend of this ground; and let's make further search

SCENE II.—Inether part of the Island. Enter Caliban, with a burden of mood. A noise of thunder heard.

Cal. All the infections that the sun sucks up From bogs, fens, flats, on Prosper fall, and make

By inch-meal a disease! His spirits hour me, And yet I needs must curse. But they'll nor pinch, Fright me with urchin shows, pitch me i' the mire, Nor lead me, like a fire-brand, in the dark, Out of my way, unless he bid them; but For every tride are they set upon me: Thy case, dear friend.
And after, bitc me; then like hedge-hogs, which thou got'at Milan, Lie tumbling in my bare-foot way, and mount See.

Thy case, near the see.

Shall be my precedent; as thou got'st Milan,
I'll come by Kaples. Draw thy sword: one stroke Their pricks at my foot-fall; sometime am I Shall free thee from the tribute which thou pay'st; All wound with adders, who, with cloven tongues,
Do him me into madness:—Loi now! loi

Enter Trinento.

They comerce sport.

Per bringing wood in slowly; I'll fall flat;

Perchance he will not mind me.

Tris. Here's neither bush nor shrub, to bear off any weather at all, and another storm brewing; I Art. My master through his art foresees the lear it sing I the wind: yound same black cloud, danger hat these, his friends, are in; and sends me forth, would shed his liquor. If it should thunder, as it for else his project dies, to keep them living.

ACT III.

20EME I.-Before Prospero's cell. Enter Perdinand, bearing a log.

For. There he some sports are painful; but their labour Delight in them sets off: some kinds of baseness Are nobly undergone; and most poor matters Point to rich ends. This my mean task would be As heavy to me, as 'tis odious; but The mistress, which I serve, quickens what's dead, And makes my labours pleasures: O, she is Ten times more gentle than her father's crabbed; And he's composed of barshness. I must remove Some thousands of these logs, and pile them up, Upon a sore injunction: my sweet mistress Weeps when she sees me work; and says, such baseness

Had ne'er like executor. I forget : But these sweet thoughts do even refresh my labours;

Most busy-less, when I do it.

Enter Miranda; and Prospero at a distance.

Mirs.

Alas, now! pray you,
Work not so hard: I would, the lightning had
Burat up those logs, that you are enjoind to pile!
Pray set it down, and rest you: when this burns,
'Twill weep for having wearied you. My father Is hard at study; pray now, rest yourself: He's safe for these three bours.

O most dear mistress, The sun will set, before I shall discharge

What I must strive to do.

Xire. If you'll sit down, I'll bear your logs the while: pray give me that;
I'll carry it to the pile.

No, precione creature: I had rather cruck my sinews, break my back, Than you should such dishonour undergo, While I sit lazy by.

It would become me Mirs. As wall as it does you: and I should do it With much more ease; for my good will is to it, And yours against.

Poor worm! thou art infected; P10. This visitation shows it.

Mira. You look wearily. For. No, noble mistress; 'tie fresh morning with

When you are by at night. I do beseech you (Chiefly, that I might set it in my prayers,) What is your name?

Mira Miranda :—O my father, I have broke your hest! to say so!

Fer. Admir'd Miranda! Indeed, the top of admiration; worth What's dearest to the world. Full many a lady I have ey'd with best regard; and many a time The harmony of their tongues hath into bondage Brought my too diligent ear: for several virtues Have I lik'd several women; never any With so fold soul, but some defect in her Did quarrel with the noblest grace she ow'd," And put it to the foil: but you, O you, 50 perfors, and so pearson, are created Of every creature's best.

I am, in my condition. A prince, Miranda; I do think, a king; (I would, not so!) and would no more endurs This wooden slavery, than I would suffer The fiesh-fly blow my mouth. Hear my soul speak; The very instant that I saw you, did My heart fly to your service; there resides, To make me slave to w; and, for your sake, Am I this patient log-man.

Mire. Do you love me? Fer. O heaven, O earth, bear witness to this sound.

And crown what I profess with kind event, If I speak true; if hollowly, invert What best is boded me, to mischief! I, Beyond all limit of what else! I the world, Do love, prize, honour you.

Mire. I am a fool, To weep at what I am glad of.

Fair encounter Of two most rare affections! Heavens rain grace On that which breeds between them!

Fer. Wherefore weep you?

Mirs. At mine unworthiness, that dare not offer What I desire to give; and much less take, What I shall die to want: But this is triding; And all the more it seeks to hide itself, The bigger bulk it shows. Hence, bushful cunning?
And prompt me, plain and holy innocence!
I am your wife, if you will marry me;
If not, I'll die your maid: to be your fellow You may deny me; but I'll be your servant, Whether you will or no.

My mistress, dearest, Fer. And I thus humble ever.

My husband then? Fer. Ay, with a heart as willing

As bondage e'er of freedom: here's my hand,
Mirs. And mine, with my heart in't: And now farewell,

Till half an hour hence. Fer.

A thousand! thousand! Execut Fer. and Mir.

Pro. So glad of this as they, I cannot be, Who are surprised with all; but my rejoicing At nothing can be more. Fil to my book: For yet, ere supper time, must I perform Much business appertaining. Esil.

SCENE III .- Another part of the Island. Enter Alonso, Sebastian, Antonio, Gonzalo, Adrian, Prenciaco, and others.

Gos. By'r lakin,' I can go no further, sir; My old bones ache: here's a maze trod, indeed Through forth-rights, and meanders! by your patience, I needs must rest me dion. Old lord, I cannot blame thee, Who am myself attach'd with weariness, To the dulling of my spirits: sit down, and rest. Even here I will put off my hope, and keep it No longer for my flatterer: he is drown'd, Whom thus we stray to find; and the sea mocks Our frustrate search on land: Well, let him go. Ant. I am right glad that he's so out of hope

LAside to Sebastian. Do not, for one repulse, forego the purpose

That you resolv'd to effect.

The next advantage Will we take thoroughly.

Let it be to-night; For, now they are oppress'd with travel, they Will not, nor cannot, use such vigilance. As when they are fresh.

I say, to-night : no more.

Solemn and strange music; and Prospero above, invisible. Enter several strange Shapes, bring-ing in a banquet; they dance about it with gen-le actions of salutation; and inviting the king, &c. to eat, they depart.

Alon. What harmony is this? my good friends, hark!

Con. Marvellous sweet music!

Alon. Give us kind keepers, heavens!-What were these !

Seb. A living drollery: Now I will believe, That there are unicorns; that in Arabia There is one tree, the phoenix' throne; one phoenix At this hour reigning there

Gon. Faith, Sir, you need not fear: When we were boys,

Who would believe that there were mountaineers, Dew-lapp'd like bulls, whose throats had hanging at them

Wallets of flesh? or that there were such men, Whose heads stood in their breasts? which now we find,

Each putter-out on five for one, will bring us Good warrant of.

Alon. I will stand to, and feed, Although my last: no matter, since I feel The best is past :- Brother, my lord the duke, Stand too, and do as we.

Thunder and lightning. Enter Ariel Uke a La py: claps his wings upon the table, and with a quaint device, the banquet vanishes.

Ari. You are three men of sin, whom destiny (That hath to instrument this lower world, And what is in't, the never-surfeited sea.

Hath caused to belch up; and on this island.

Hath caused to belch up; and on this island where man doth not inhabit; you mongst men Being most unfit to live. I have made you mad;

And a clear life ensuing.

He vanishes in thunder: then, to soft music, enter the Shapes again, and dance with mops and mowes, and carry out the table.

Pro. [Aside.] Bravely the figure of this harpy hast thou Perform'd, my Ariel; a grace it had, devouring: Of my instruction hast thou nothing 'bated, In what thou hadst to say: so, with good life, And observation strange, my meaner ministers Their several kinds have done: my high charms work, And these, mine enemies, are all knit up In their distractions: they now are in my power; And in these fits I leave them, whilst I visit Young Ferdinand (whom they suppose is drown'd,) And his and my lov'd darling

[Exit Prospero from above. Gon. I' the name of something holy, sir, why stand you

In this strange stare? O, it is monstrous! monstrous! Alon. Methought, the billows spoke, and told me of it; The winds did sing it to me; and the thunder, That deep and dreadful organ-pipe, pronounc'd The name of Prosper; it did bass my trespass.
Therefore my son i' the ooze is bedded; and
PI seek him dee et than e'er plummet sounded,
And with him there lie mudded.

Seb. I'll fight their legions o'es.

I'll be thy second.
[Excunt Seb. and Ant. Gon. All three of them are desperate; their great guilt, Like poison given to work a great time after, Now gins to bite the spirits:—I do beseech you That are of suppler joints, follow them swiftly, And hinder them from what this ccstacy2 May now provoke them to.

Follow, I pray you. [Exeunt.

ACT IV.

SCENE I .- Before Prospero's cell. Enter Prospero, Ferdinand, and Miranda.

Pro. If I have too austerely punish'd you, Your compensation makes amends; for I Have given you here a thread of mine own life, Or that for which I live; whom once again
I tender to thy hand: all thy vexations
Were but my trials of thy love, and thou
Hast strangely stood the test: here, afore Heaven, I ratify this my rich gift. O Ferdinand, Do not smile at me, that I boast her off, For thou shalt find she will outstrip all praise, And make it halt behind her.

Fer. I do believe it,

Against an oracle.

Pro. Then, as my gift, and thine own acquisition Worthily purchas'd, take my daughter: But If thou dost break her virgin knot before
All sanctimonious ceremonies may
With full and holy rite be minister'd,

Vernous according shall the heavens let fall No sweet aspersion's shall the heavens let fall To make this contract grow; but barren hate,

(1) Pure, blameless. (2) Alienation of mind,

Sour-ey'd disdain, and discord, shall bestrew The union of your bed with weeds so loakly, That you shall hate it both : therefore, take need, As Hymen's lamps shall light you.

As I hope For quiet days, fair issue, and long life, With such love as 'tis now; the murkiest den, The most opportune place, the strongest suggestion Our worser Genius can, shall never melt Mine honour into lust; to take away The edge of that day's celebration, When I shall think, or Phœbus' steeds are founder'd Or night kept chain'd below.

Pro. Fairly spoke:
Sit then, and talk with her, she is thinc own. What, Ariel: my industrious servant Ariel!

Enter Aniel.

Ari. What would my potent master? here I am. Pro. Thou and thy meaner fellows your last service

Did worthily perform; and I must use you In such another trick: go, bring the rabble, O'er whom I give thee power, here, to this place: Incite them to quick motion; for I must Bestow upon the eyes of this young couple Some vanity of mine art; it is my promise, And they expect it from me.

Ari. Pro. Presently?

Pro. Ay, with a twink.
Ari. Before you can say, Come, and go, And breathe twice; and cry, so, so! Each one, tripping on his toe, Will be here with mop and mowe: Do you love me, master? no.

Pro. Dearly, my delicate Ariel: Do not approach,
Till thou dost hear me call.

Well I conceive. Exit.

Pro. Look, thou be true; do not give dalliance Too much the rein; the strongest oaths are straw To the fire i' the blood: be more abstemious, Or else, good night, your vow!

I warrant you, sir; The white-cold virgin snow upon my heart Abates the ardour of my liver. Well. Pro.

Now come, my Ariel; bring a corollary, a Rather than want a spirit; appear, and pertly.-No tongue; all cyes; be silent. [Soft music [Soft music.

A Masque. Enter Iris.

Iris. Ceres, most bounteous lady, thy rich leas Of wheat, rye, barley, vetches, oats, and pease; Thy turfy mountains, where live nibbling sheep, And flat meads thatch'd with stover, them to keep; Thy banks with peonied and lilied brims, Which spongy April at thy hest's betrims, To make cold nymphs chaste crowns; and thy broom groves,

Whose shadow the dismissed bachelor loves, Being lass-lorn; thy pole-clipt vineyard; And thy sea-marge, steril, and rocky-hard,
Where thou thyself dost air: The queen o' the sky.
Whose watery arch, and messenger, am I,
Bids thee leave these; and with her sovereign race, Here on this grass-plot, in this very place, To come and sport: her peacocks fly amain; Approach, rich Ceres, her to entertain.

Who, with the refiron wings, upon my flowers
Diffuses, noney-drops, refreshing showers:
And with each end of thy blue bow dost crown
My bossy' acres, and my unshrubb'd down,
Rich scarf to my proud earth; Why hath thy queen
Summon'd me hilher, to this short-grass'd green!
Iris. A contract of true love to celebrate;

And some donation freely to estate

On the bless'd lovers.

Cer. Tell me, heavenly bow, If Venus, or her son, as thou dost know, Do now attend the queen? since they did plot The means, that dusky Dis2 my daughter got, Her and her blind boy's scandal'd company I have forsworn.

Iris. Of her society Be not afraid : I met her deity

Cutting the clouds towards Paphos; and her son Dove-drawn with her: here thought they to have done

Some wanton charm upon this man and maid Whose vows are, that no bed-rite shall be paid Till Hymen's torch be lighted: but in vain; Mars' hot minion is return'd again Her waspish-headed son has broke his arrows Swears he will shoot no more, but play with sparrows,

And be a boy right out.

Cer. Highest queen of state, Great Juno comes ; I know her by her gait.

Enter Juno.

Juno. How does my bounteous sister? Go with To bless this twain, that they may prosperous be, And honour'd in their issue.

SONG.

Juno. Honour, riches, marriage-blessing, Long continuance, and increasing, Hourly joys be still upon you! Juno sings her blessings on you.

Cer. Earth's increase, and foizon' plenty; Barns, and garners never empty; Vines, with clust'ring bunches growing; Plants, with goodly burden bowing; Spring come to you, at the farthest, In the very end of harvest; Scarcity, and want, shall shun you; Ceres' blessing so is on you.

Fer. This is a most majestic vision, and Harmonious charmingly: May I be bold To think these spirits?

Pro. Spirits, which by mine art I have from their confines call'd to enact My present fancies.

Let me live here ever ; So rare a wonder'd' father, and a wife, Make this place Paradise.

[Juno and Ceres whisper, and send Iris on employment.

Sweet now, silence; Juno and Ceres whisper seriously;

(1) Woody. (2) Pluto. (3) Abundance. (6) A body of clouds in motion; to Able to produce such wonders. (5) Yanished. probable that the author wrote track:

There's something else to do: hush, and be mute, Or else our spell is mara'd.

Iris. You nymphs, call'd Maiads, of the wand'ring brooks, With your sedged crowns, and ever harmless looks Leave your crisp channels, and on this green land Answer your summons; Juno does command: Come, temperate nymphs, and help to celebrate A contract of true love; be not too late.

Enter certain Nymphs.

You sun-burn'd sicklemen, of August weary, Come hither from the furrow, and be merry; Make holy-day: your rye-straw hats put on, And these fresh nymphs encounter every one In country footing.

Enter certain Reapers, properly habited; they join with the Nymphs in a graceful dance; towards the end whereof Prospero starts suddenly, and speaks; after which, to a strange, hollow, and confused noise, they heavily vanish.

Pro. [Aside.] I had forgot that foul conspiracy Of the beast Caliban, and his confederates, Against my life; the minute of their plot Is almost come.—[To the Spirits.] Well done;— avoid;—no more.

Fer. This is most strange: your father's in some passion

That works him strongly.

Never till this day, Mira. Saw I him touch'd with anger so distemper'd. Pro. You do look, my son, in a mov'd sort, As if you were dismay'd: be cheerful, sir: Our revels now are ended: these our actors, As I foretold you, were all spirits, and Are melted into air, into thin air: And, like the baseless fabric of this vision, The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces, The solemn temples, the great globe itself, Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve; And, like this insubstantial pageant faded, Leave not a rack behind: We are such stuff As dreams are made of, and our little life Is rounded with a sleep.—Sir, I am vex'd;
Bear with my weakness; my old brain is troubled.
Be not disturb'd with my infirmity: If you be pleas'd, retire into my cell And there repose; a turn or two I'll walk, To still my beating mind. We wish your peace. Fer. Mira.

Exeunt. Pro. Come with a thought:-I thank you:-Ariel, come.

Enter Ariel.

Ari. Thy thoughts I cleave to; What's thy pleasure?

Spirit,

Pro.

We must prepare to meet with Caliban. Ari. Ay, my commander: when I presented Cores,

I thought to have told thee of it; but I fear'd Lest I might anger thec.

Pro. Say again, where didst thou leave these variets?

Ari. I told you, sir, they were red-hot with drinking?

(6) A body of clouds in motion; but it is most

Be full of valour, that they smote the air For breathing in their faces; beat the ground For kinsing of their feet: yet always bending Tewards their project: Then I beat my tabor, At which, like unback'd colts, they prick'd their

Advanc'd their eye-lids, lifted up their noses, As they smelt music; so I charm'd their ears, That, establic, they my lowing follow'd, through That, calling they my lowing follow'd, through Tooth'd the, sharp furzes, pricking goss, and thorns, Which entered their frail shins: at last I left them

P the filthy manifed pool beyond your cell, There dancing up to the chins, that the foul lake O'er-stunk their feet.

This was well done, my bird: Thy shape invisible retain thou still: The trumpery in my house, go, bring it hither, For stale, to catch these thieves.

ML I go, I go. Pro. A devil, a born devil, on whose nature

Nurtures can never stick; on whom my pains, Humanely taken, all, all lost, quite lost; And as, with age, his body uglier grows, So his mind cankers: I will plague them all,

Ro-enter Ariel loaden with glistering apparel, &c. Even to roaring: Come, heng them on this line. Prospero and Ariel remain invisible. Enter Caliban, Stephano, and Trinculo; all wet.

Cal. Pray, you, trend softly, that the biind mole may not Hear a foot fall: we now are near his cell.

Site. Monater, your fairy, which, you say, is a harmless fairy, has done little batter than played the Jack' with us.

Trin. Monster, I do smell all horse-piss, at which my nose is in great indignation.

Ste. So is mine. Do you hear, monster? If I should take a displeasure against you; look you,—

Thou wert but a lost monster. Cal. Good my lord, give me thy favour still : Be patient, for the prize I'll bring thee to Shall hood-wink this mischance: therefore, speak softly, All's hush'd as midnight yet.

Trin. Ay, but to lose our bottles in the pool,— Ste. There is not only disgrace and dishonour in that, monster, but an infinite loss.

Trin. That's more to me than my wetting: yet this is your harmless fairy, monster.

Ste. I will fetch off my bottle, though I be o'er sare for my labour.

Cal. Pr'ythee, my king, be quiet: Seest thou here. This is the mouth o' the cell: no noise, and enter: Do that good mischief, which may make this island Thine own for ever, and I, thy Caliban, For eye' thy foot-licker.

Ste. Give me thy hand : I do begin to have bloody thoughts.

Tries O king Stephano! O peer! O worthy
Stephano! look what a wardrobe here is for thee! Cal. Let it alone, thou fool; it is but trash.

Tyin. O, ho, monster; we know what belongs to frippery: O king Stephano!

Sie. Put off that gown, Trinculo; by this hand,

I'll have that gown.

Trin. Thy grace shall have it.

(1) Bait. (2) Education. (3) Jack with a lanteru. (4) Ever. (5) A shop for sale of old clothes.

To dont thus on such luggage? Let's along, And do the murder first; if he awake, From toe to crown he'll fill our skins with pinches;

Make us strange stuff.

Ste. Be you quiet, monster.—Mistress line, is not this my jerkin? Now is the jerkin under the line: now, jerkin, you are like to lose your hair, and prove a baid jerkin.

Tris. Do, do: We steal by line and level, an't ke, they my lowing follow'd, through like your grace.

Ste. I thank thee for that jest; here's a garment fra, share fail shine: at last I left them for't: wit shall not go unrewarded, while I am king for't: wit shall not go unrewarded, while I am king for't: wit shall not go unrewarded, while I am king for't: wit shall not go unrewarded, while I am king for't: wit shall not go unrewarded, while I am king for the first and feed, is an excelof this country: Stead by time and level, is an excel-ient pass of pate; there's another garment for't. Trin. Monster, come, put some lime upon your lingers, and away with the rest. Cal. I will have none ou't: we shall lose our time,

And all be turn'd to barnacles, or to apes With foreheads villanous low.

Sie. Monster, lay to your fingers; help to bear this away, where my hopshead of wine is, or Pit turn you out of my kingdom; go to, carry this. Trin. And this

Ste. Aye, and this.

A noise of hunters heard. Enter divers Spirits, in shape of hounds, and hunt them about; Proppers and Ariel selling them on.

Pro. Hey, Mountain, hey! Art. Silver! there it goes, Silver!
Pro. Fury, Fury! there, Tyrque, there! hark, hark!

[Cal. Ste. and Trin. are drives out.

Go, charge my goblins that they grind their joints With dry convulsions; shorten up their sinews With aged cramps; and more pinch-spotted make them,

Than pard,' or cat o' mountain. Ari.

Hark, they roar. Pro. Let them be hunted soundly: at this hour Lie at my mercy all mine enumies Shortly shall all my labours end, and thou Shortly shall all my labours con-Shalt have the air at freedom: for a little. Follow, and do me service.

ACT V.

SCENE I .- Before the cell of Prospero. Enter Prospero in his magic robes, and Ariel.

Pro. Now does my project gather to a head: My charms crack not; my spirits obey; and time Goes upright with his carriage.—How's the day? Ari. On the sixth hour; at which time, my lord, You said our work should cease.

Pro. I did say so When first I rais'd the tempest. Say, my spirit,

How farce the king and his? Confin'd together Яri, In the same fashion as you gave in charge;

Just as you left them, sir; all prisoners In the lime grove which weather-fends' your cell. They cannot budge, till you release. The king, His brother, and yours, abide all three distracted And the remainder mourning over them, Twin. Thy grace shall have it.

Col. The dropsy drown this fool! what do you mean.

Him you term'd, sir, The good old ord Gonzale;
His tears run down his beard, like winter's drops

> (6) Bird-lime. (7) Leope (8) Defends from bad weather. (7) Leopard.

From caves of reeds: 'your charm so strongly works Didst thou, Alonso, usu me and my daughter:
them,
Thy brother was a furtherer in the act;

That if you now beheld them, your affections Would become tender.

Dost thou think so, spirit? dri. Mine would, sir, were I human.

Hast thou, which art but air, a touch of feeling of their afflictions; and shall not myself, one of their kind, that relish all as sharply, Passion as they, be kindlier mov'd than thou art? Though with their high wrongs I am struck to the quick, Tet with my nobler reason, 'gainst my flary Do I take part: the rarer action is In virtue than in vengeance: they being penitent, The sole drift of my purpose doth extend Not a frown further: Go, release them, Ariel; My charms I'll break. their senses I'll restore, And they shall be themselves.

I'll fetch them, sir. Exit. Pra. Ye cives of hills, brooks, standing lakes, and groves; And ye, that on the sands with printless foot Do chase the ebbing Neptune, and do fly him, When he comes back; you demy-puppets, that By moon-shine do the green-sour ringlets make, Whereof the ewe not bites; and you, whose pastime

Is to make midnight-mushrooms; that rejoice To hear the solemn curfew; by whose aid (Weak masters though ye be.) I have be-dimm'd. The noon-tide sun, call'd forth the mutinous winds And 'twist the green see and the agur'd vault Bet roaring war: to the dread rattling thunder Have I given fire, and rifted Jove's stout oak
With his own bolt: the strong-bas'd promontory
Have I made shake; and by the spurs pluck'd up Or ever your pulse twice bear to only. The pine and cedar: graves, at my command, Have wak'd their sleepers; op'd, and let them forth By my so potent art : But this rough magic I here abjure: and, when I have required Some heavenly music (which even now I do,) To work mine end upon their senses, that This airy charm is for, I'll break my staff, Bury it certain fathoms in the earth, And, deeper than did ever plummet sound, I'll drown my book. Solemn music

A solemn air, and the best comforter To an unsettled fancy, cure thy brains, New uscless, boil'd within thy skull I There stand, For you are spell-stopp'd. Holy Gonzalo, honourable man, Mine eyes, even sociable to the show of thine,
Fall fellowly drops.—The charm dissolves apace;
And as the morning steals upon the night,
Melling the darkness, so their rising senses Begin to chase the ignorant firmes that mantle Their clearer reason.—O my good Gonzalo, My true preserver, and a loyal sir To him thou follow'st; I will pay thy graces Home, both in word and deed.—Most cruelly

(1) Thatch. (2) Pity, or tenderness of heart.

Thou'rt pinch'd for't now, Sebastian -- blood,

You brother mine, that entertain'd ambition, Expell'd removes and nature; who, with Schasties And mine shall. (Whose inward pinches therefore are most strong,) who of feeling would here have kill'd your king; I do forgive thee, myself, Unnatural though thou art :— I near the standing Begins to swell: and the approaching tide Will shortly fill the reasonable aboves,
That now he foul and muddy. Not one of them,
That yet looks on me, or would know me:—Ariet,
Fetch me the hat and rapier in my cell;

I will dis-case me, and myself present, As I was sometime Milan :—quickly, spirit ; Thou shalt ere long be free.

Ariel re-enters, claging, and helps to attire Prospero.

Ari. Where the bee micks, there mak 1; In a constip's bell I lie: There I couch when only do cry. On the bal's back I do fly, After summer, merrily: Merrily, merrily, shall I live now, Under the blossom that hangs on the bough.

Pro. Why, that's my dainty Arlei; I shall miss thee; But yet thou shalt have freedom: so, so, so To the king's ship, invisible as thou art: There shalt thou find the mariners asleep Under the hatches; the master, and the boatswain, Being awake, enforce them to this place; And presently, I prythee.

Art. I drink the air before me, and return

[Exit Arial. Gon. All torment, trouble, wonder, and amexe-

ment Inhabits here: Some heavenly power guide us Out of this fearful country! Behold, str king, Pro. The wrong'd duke of Milan, Prospero; For more assurance that a living prince Does now speak to thee, I embrace thy body; And to thee, and thy company, I bid A hearly welcome.

dion. Whe'r' than beest he, or no, Or some enchanted trifle to abuse me, Re-enter Ariel: after him, Alonso, with a frantic As late I have been, I not know: thy pulse genture, attended by Gonzalo; Sebastian and Beats, as of flesh and blood; and, since I saw thee; Antonio in like manner, attended by Adrian and The affliction of my mind amends, with which, Francisco: They all enter the circle which Proper bad made, and there stand charmed; which which, I fear, a madness held me; this must crave pero had made, and there stand charmed; which if this be at all) a most strange story.

Thy dukedom I resign; and do entreat

Thou pardon me my wrongs:—But how should Pressure.

Prospero Be living, and be here? Pro. First, noble friend, Let me embrace thine age; whose honour cannot Be measur'd, or confin'd. Whether this be, Gon.

Or be not, I'll not swear. You do yet taste Pro. Some subtleties of the isle, that will not let you Believe things certain :—Welcome, my Irituds

But you, my brace of lords, were I so minded, [Aride to Seb. and Ant. I here could pluck his highness' frown upon you.

(3) Whether.

And justify you traitors; at this time I'll tell no tales.

The devil speaks in him. Beb. For you, most wicked air, whom to call brother Would even infect my mouth, I do forgive Thy rankest fault; all of them; and require My dukedom of thee, which, perforce, I know, Thou must restore. If thou beest Prospero, Alon.

Give us particulars of thy preservation; How thou hast met us here, who three hours since Were wreck'd upon this shore; where I have lost, How sharp the point of this remembrance is ! My dear son Ferdinand.

I am wo! for't, sir. dion. Irreparable is the loss; and Patience Bays, it is past her cure. I rather think You have not sought her help; of whose soft grace.

For the like loss, I have her sovereign aid,
And rest myself content.

And rest myself content.

Alon. You the like loss? Pro. As great to me, as late; and, portables Pro. The To make the dear loss, have I means much weaker Let us not burden our remembrances Than you may call to comfort you; for I Have lost my daughter.

Alex. A daughter? O heavens i that they were living both in Naples, The king and queen there! that they were, I wish Myself were mudded in that cozy bed

Where my son lies. When did you lose your Which brought us hither!

daughter? Pro, In this last tempest. I perceive, these lords At this encounter do so much admire, That they devour their reason; and scarce think Their eyes do offices of truth, their words Are natural breath; but, however you have Been justled from your senses, know for certain, That I am Prospero, and that very duke Which was thrust forth of Milan; who most strangely Upon this shore, where you were wreck'd, was landed,

To be the lord on the first for this a chronicle of day by day,

Not a relation for a breakfast, nor this first meeting. Welcome, sir; Befitting this first meeting. Welcome, sir; This cell's my court: here have I few attendants, And subjects none abroad: pray you, look in.

My dukedom since you have given me again,
I will requite you with as good a thing;
At least, bring forth a wonder, to content ya, As much as me my dukedom.

The entrance of the cell opens, and discovers Perdinend and Miranda playing at chees.

Mira. Sweet lord, you play me false. Fa. No, my dearest love,

I would not for the world. Mirs. Yes, for a score of kingdoms you should

WINDS And I would call it fair play.

If this prove vision of the island, one dear son Shall I twice lose

See. A most high miracle !
For. Though the seas threaten, they are merciful; I have surs'd them without cause, [Ford. kneels to Alon. Now all the blessings Of a glad father compass thee about !

(1) Borry.

(2) Bearable.

Arise, and say how thou cam'st here. Láside. How many goodly creatures are there have! No :-- How beauteous mankind is! O brave new world,

That has such people in't! "Tis new to thee. Pro.

Alon. What is this maid, with whom thou was at play? Your eld'st acquaintance cannot be three hours: is she the goddess that hath sever'd us,

And brought us thus together ? Sir, she's mortal: But, by immortal Providence, she's mine; I chose her, when I could not ask my father For his advice; nor thought I had one: she Is daughter to this famous duke of Milan, Of whom so often I have heard renown, But never saw before; of whom I have Receiv'd a second life, and second father

I am her's:

But O, how oddly will it sound, that I Must ask my child forgiveness f There, air, stop:

With a beaviness that's gone. I have inly wept, Gon. Or should have spoke ere this. Look down, you gods, And on this couple drop a blessed crown; For it is you, that have chalk'd forth the way

Alon. I say, Amen, Gonzalo!

Gon. Was Milan thrust from Milan, that his issue
Should become king of Naples? O, rejoice Beyond a common joy; and set it down With gold on lasting pillars: In one voyage Did Claribel her husband find at Tunis; And Ferdinand, her brother, found a wife, Where he himself was lost; Prospero his dukedom, In a poor isle; and all of us, ourselves, When no man was his own.

Give me your hands: Let grief and sorrow still embrace his heart,

That doth not wish you joy! Gon Be't so! Amen!

Re-enter Ariel, with the Master and Bostowain amasedly following.

O look, sir, look, sir; here are more of us! I prophesied, if a gallows were on land, This fellow could not drown :- Now, blosphemy, That swear'st grace o'erhourd, not an oath on above? Hast thou no mouth by land? What is the news?

Boats. The best news is, that we have safely found Our king and company: the next, our ship,—
Which, but three glasses since, we gave out split,—
Is tight and yare, and bravely rigg'd as whom We first put out to sea

Ari. Sir, all this actvice ) Have I done since I went.

My tricksys spirit!  $P_{T0}$ . These are not natural events; they strengthen.

From strange to stranger.—Say, how came you hither?

Boste. If I did think, sir, I were well awake, a strive to tell you. We were dead of sleep, l'd strive to tell you. And (how, we know not) all clapp'd under natches. Where, but even now, with strange and several poises

(4) In his genom. (4) Roady. (5) Clover adroits

Of rearing, shrisking, howling, gingling chains, And more diversity of sounds, all horrible. We were awak'd; straightway, at liberty? Where we, in all her trim, freshly beheld Our royal, good, and gallant ship; our master Capring to eye her: On a trice, so please you, Even in a dream, were we divided from them, And were brought moping hither.

And were brought moping hither.

Was't well done?

Pra Bravely, my diligence. Thou } [Acide.

.flon. This is as strange a maxe as e'er men trod : And there is in this business more than nature Was ever conduct! of: some oracle Must rectify our knowledge.

Sir, my liege, Do not infest your mind with beating on The strangeness of this business; at pick'd leisure, Which shall be shortly, single I'll resolve you Which shall be shortly, single I'm resource you (Which to you shall seem probable,) of every Three happen'd accidents; till when, be cheerful, And think of each thing well.—Come hither, spirit; [.dside]

Set Caliban and his companions free:
Untile the spell. [Exil Ariel.] How fares my gracious sir ?

There are yet missing of your company Some few odd lade, that you remember not.

Re-enter Ariel, driving in Caliban, Stephano, and Trinculo, in their stolen apparel.

Sie. Every man shift for all the rest, and let no man take care for himself; for all is but fortune:— Congrio, bully-monster, Coragio? Trin. If these be true spies which I wear in my head, here's a goodly sight. Cal. O Selebos, these be brave spirits, indeed?

How fine my master is! I am afraid

He will chastise me.

Seb. Ha, ha; What things are these, my lord Antonio? Will money buy them?

dnt. Yery like; one of them Is a plain fish, and, no doubt, marketable. Pro. Mark but the badges of these men, my lords. Then say, if they be true: *- This mis-shapen knave, His mother was a witch; and one so strong That could control the moon, make flows and ebbs, And deal in her command, without her power: These three have robb'd me; and this demi-devil (For he's a bastard one,) had plotted with them

Conductor.

(2) Hunest,

To take my life: two of these fellows you Must know, and own; this thing of darkness I Acknowledge mine.

I shall be pinch'd to death. Cal. Alon. Is not this Stephano, my drunken butler? Seb. He is drunk now: Where had he wine? Alon. And Trinculo is realing ripe: where should they Find this grand liquor that bath gilded them?— How cam'st thou in this pickle?

Trin. I have been in such a pickie, since I saw you last, that, I fear me, will never out of my benes: I shall not fear fly-blowing.

Seb. Why, how now, Stephano?

Ste. O, touch me not; I am not Stephano, but a cramp.

Pro. You'd be king of the isle, airrah?

Sie. I should have been a sore one then. Alon. This is as strange a thing as e'er I look'd off. Pointing to Caliban.

Pro. He is as disproportion'd in his manners, As in his shape :—Go, sirrah, to my cell; Take with you your companions; as you look To have my partion, trim it handsomely.

Cal. Ay, that I will; and Pli be wise hereafter, And seek for grace: What a thrice-double ass Was I, to take this drunkerd for a god, And worship this duli foel !

Pro. Go to; away i Alon. Hence, and bestow your luggage where you found it.

Seb. Or stole it, rather. [Execut Cal. Ste. and Trin. Pro. Sir, I invite your highness, and your train, To my poor cell: where you shall take your rest For this one night; which (part of it) I'll waste With such discourse, as, I not doubt, shall make it Go quick away: the story of my life,

And the particular accidents, gone by, Since I came to this isle: And in the morn, I'll bring you to your ship, and so to Naples, Where I have hope to see the nuptial Of these our dear-beloved solemniz'd:

And thence retire me to my Milan, where Every third thought shall be my grave. Alon. To hear the story of your life, which must Take the ear strangely. I'll deliver all ; And promise you calm seas, auspicious gales, And sail so expeditious, that shall catch Your royal ficet far off.—My Ariel;—chick,— That is thy charge; then to the elements Be free, and fare thou well!—[aside] Please you draw near.

RPILOGUEL

Spoken by Prospero.

NOW my charms are all o'erthroson, and what strength I have's mine own; Which is most faint: none, 'tis true, I must be here confin'd by you, Or sent to Naples: Let me not, Bince I have my dukedons got, and nardon'd he deceiver, shell I this have island. In the same island, he wave soul! and merion's the accessor, whose for this bare island, by your spell; Bul release me from my bands, With the help of your good hands. Gentle breath of your good hands. Hust fill, or else my project fails, Which was to please: now I want Robotic to a force art to enchant: Spirite to enforce, art to enchant; and my ending is despuir, Unless I be rokev'd by prayer;

Which places so, that it counties Mercy theif, and freez all feetle. "As you from crimes would pur Lat your indulgence set me free.

It is observed of The Tempest, that its plan is regular; this the author of The Revisal thinks, what I think too, an accidental effect of the story, whatever might be Shakopeare's intention in forming or adopting the plot, he has made it instrumental to the production of many characters, diversity to the production of many characters, diversity fied with boundless invention, and preserved with profound skill in nature, extensive knowledge of opinions, and accurate observation of life. In a sin-gle drams are here exhibited princes, courtiers, and isallors, all speaking in their real characters. There is the agency of airy spirits, and of an earthly gob-lin; the operations of magic, the tumults of a storm, the adventures of a desert island, the native Uniters I be refer's by prayer; effusion of untaught affection, the punishment of guilt, and the final happiness of the pair for whom our passions and reasons are equally interested. ### ACT I.

SCENE I.—An open place in Verma. Valentine and Protess.

Valentine.

CEASE to persuade, my loving Proteus;
Bone-keeping youth have ever homely wits:
Wer't not, affection chains thy tender days
To the sweet glances of thy honour'd love,
I rather would entreat thy company,
To see the worders of the world abroad,
Than fiving dully sluggardiz'd at home,
West out thy youth with shapeless idleness.
But, since thou lov'st, love still, and thrive therein,
I see as I would, when I to love begin.

Even as I would, when I to love begin.

Pre. Wilt thou be gone? Sweet Valentine.

adieu! Think on thy Proteus, when thou, haply, seest Some rare note-worthy object in thy travel: Wish me partaker in thy happiness, When thou dost meet good hap; and, in thy dan-if over danger do environ thee,

Commend the grievance to my holy prayers,
For I will be thy beads-man, Valentine,
Fal. And on a love-book pray for my success.

Pra. Upon some book I love, Pil pray for thee.
Ful. That's on some shallow story of deep love,
How young Leander cross'd the Hellespont. Pro. That's a deep story of a deeper love.

I'd. The true; for you are over boots in love, And yet you never swam the Hellespont.

Pro. Over the boots? may, give me not the boots. Fel. No. I'll not, for it boots thee not.

What? Pro.  $V_{\mathbf{d}}$ is low, where seem is bought with grouns; coy looks,

With heart-sore sighs; one fading moment's mirth, With twenty watchful, weary, tedious nights:

(1) A lumeorous punishment at harvest-home rue, &c.

If lost, why then a grievous labour won;
However, but a folly bought with wit,
Or class a wit by folly vanquished.
Pro. So, by your circumstance, you call me fool.
Val. So, by your circumstance, I fear, you'll prove.

Pro. Tis love you cavil at; I am not Love.

Val. Love is your master, for he masters you: And he that is so yoked by a fool, Methinks should not be chronicled for wise.

Pro. Yet writers say, As in the sweetest bud. The eating canker dwells, so eating love Inhabits in the finest wits of all.

Val. And writers say, As the most forward bud Is eaten by the canker ere it blow,
Even so by love the young and tender wit
Is turn'd to folly; blasting in the bud,
Losing his verdure even in the printe,
And all the fair effects of future hopes.
But wherefore waste I time to counsel thee, That art a votary to fond desire? Once more adieu: my father at the road Expects my coming, there to see me shipp'd.

Pro. And thither will I bring thee, Valentine.

Val. Sweet Proteus, no; now let us take our leave. At Milan, let me hear from thee by letters, Of thy success in love, and what news class

Betideth here in absence of thy friend;

And I likewise will visit thee with mine. Pro. All happiness bechance to thee in Milan ! Val. As much to you at home | and so, farewell! [Exit Valentine.

Pro. He after honour hunts, I after love: He leaves his friends, to dignify them more; I leave myself, my friends, and all for love. Thou, Julia, thou hast metamorphos'd me; Made me neglect my studies, lose my time, hat? War with good counsel, set the world at nought; To be Made wit with musing weak, heart sick with thought.

Enter Speed.

Speed. Sir Proteus, save you: saw you my master? Pre. But now he parted hence, to embark for Milan.

Speed. Twenty to one then, be is shipp'd already; And I have play'd the sheep, in losing him.

Pro. Indeed a sheep doth very often stray,

An if the shapherd be awhile away. Speed. You conclude that my master is a shee herd then, and I a sheep? Pro. I do.

Speed. Why then my horns are his horns, whether I wake or sleep.

Pro. A silly answer, and fitting well a sheep. Speed. This proves me still a sheep. Fro. True; and thy master a shepherd.

Fro. True; and thy master a surprise.

Speed. Nay, that I can day by a circumstance.

Fro. It shall go hard, but I'll prove it by another.

Wreck;

Speed. The shepherd seeks the sheep, and not Which cannot perish, baving thee aboard, being destined to a drier death on shore: the sheep the shepherd; but I seek my master, and my master seeks not me: therefore, I am no sheep.

Pro. The sheep for fodder follow the shepherd, the shepherd for food follows not the sheep; thou for wages followest thy master, thy master for wages follows not thee: therefore, thou art a sheep.

Speed. Such another proof will make me cry bas

Pro. But dost thou hear? gay'st thou my letter

Pro. But dost upon the following the following the Julia?

Speed. Ay, sir: I, a lost mutton, gave your letter to her, a laced mutton; and she, a laced mutton, fully.

Jul. Of all the fair resort of gentlemen, That every day with parlet encounter me, In thy opinion, which is worthiest love?

Luc. Please you, repest their names, Pil show my mind

Pro. Nay, in that you are astray; 'twere best pound you Speed. Nay, sir, less than a pound shall serve me for carrying your letter.

Pro. You mistake; I mean the pound, a pinfold.

Speed. From a pound to a pin? fold it over and

'Tis threefold too little for carrying a letter to your lover.

Pro. But what said she? did she nod? [Speed node.

Speed. I.

Speed. You mistook, sir; I say, she did nod: and you ask me, if she did nod, and I say, I.

Pro. And that set together, is—noddy.

Speed. Now you have taken the pains to set it together, take it for your pains.

Pro. No, no, you shall have it for bearing the leiter.

Speed. Well, I perceive, I must be fain to bear with you

Pro. Why, sir, how do you bear with me?

Speed. Marry, sir, the letter very orderly; having nothing but the word, noddy, for my pains.

Pro. Beshrew me, but you have a quick wit.

Speed. And yet it cannot overtake your slow

Pro. Pro. Come, come, open the matter in brief; what said she?

Speed. Open your purse, that the money, and the matter, may be both at once delivered. Pro. Well, sir, here is for your pains; what said abs? Speed. Truly, sir, I think you'll hardly win her. from Protous:

Pro. Why? could'st thou perceive so much He would have given it you, but I, being in the way, from her?

(1) A term for a couriesan. (2) A game at cards (5) Ill betide.

Speed. Sir, I could perceive nothing at all from her; no, not so much as a ducat for delivering your letter: and being so hard to me that brought your mind, I fear, she'll prove as hard to you in telling her mind. Give her no token but stones; telling her mind. for she's as hard as steel.

Pro. What, said she nothing?

Speed. No, not so much as—take this for the points. To testify your bounty, I thank you, you have testern'd me; in requital whereof, henceforth carry your letters yourself; and so, sir, I'll commend you to my master.

Pro. Go, go, begone, to save your ship from wreck;

I must go send some better messenger; I fear, my Julia would not deign my lines, Receiving them from such a worthless post

Exeunt. SCENE II.—The same. Gerein of Julia's house. Enter Julia and Lucetta. Jul. But say, Lucetta, now we are alone, Would'st thou then counsel me to fall in love

According to my shallow simple skill.

Jul. What think'st thou of the fair Sir Eglamour? Luc. As of a knight well-spoken, neat and fine; But, were I you, he never should be mine.

Jul. What think'st thou of the rich Mercatio?

Luc. Well of his wealth; but or rumoen, o., Jul. What think'st thou of the gentle Proteus?
Luc. Lord, lard! to see what folly reigns in us!
Jul. How now! what means this passion at his

Luc. Pardon, dear madam; 'tis a passing shame, That I, unworthy body as I am,

Should censure thus on lovely gentlemen.

Jul. Why not on Proteun, as of all the rest?

Luc. Then thus,---of many good I think him best.

Jul. Your reason?

Luc. I have no other but a woman's reason; think him so, because I think him so.

Jul. And would'st thou have me cast my lure f min no

Luc. Ay, if you thought your love not cast a way.

Jul. Why, he of all the rest hath never mov'd me.

Luc. Yet he of all the rest, I think, heat loves ye.

Jul. His little speaking shows his love but small.

Luc. Fire, that is closest kept, burns most of all.
Jul. They do not love, that do not show their love.
Luc. O, they love least, that let men know their

Jul. I would, I knew his mind.

Luc. Peruse this paper, madam. Jid. To Julia,—Say, from whom? Luc. That the contents will above.

Jul. Say, say; who gave it thee? Last. Sir Valentine's page; and sent, I think () Otreo me a sixpenea. (a) Tulk (0) Pass sentence.

Did in your name receive it; pardon the fault, I

Jal. Now, by my modesty, a goodly broker ( Dare you presume to harbour wanton lines? To whisper and conspire against my youth? Now, trust me, 'tis an office of great worth, And you as officer fit for the place.

There, take the paper, see it be return'd; Or else return no more into my sight,

Luc. To plead for love deserves more fee than hate.

Ad. Will you be game?

And yet, I would I had o'erlook'd the letter. It were a sk ame to call her back again And pray her to a fault for which I chid her. What fool is she, that knows I am a maid, and would not force the letter to my riew? Since maids, in modesty, say No, to that Which they would have the profeser construe, Ay. Fig. fie! how wayward is this foolish love, Fig. 6: I now wayward is this toolish love, That, like a testy bale, will scratch the nurse, And presently, all humbled, kiss the rod! How churbishy I chid Lucetta hence, When willingly I would have had her hera! How angrily I taught my brow to frown, When inward joy enforc'd my heart to smile! My penance is, to call Lucetta back, And ask remission for my fully past:— What ho | Lucetta !

Re-enter Lucetta.

What would your ladyship? Jul. le it near dinner-time ? I would it were : That you might kill your stomach on your meat, And not upon your maid. Jad. What is't you took up So gingerly? Nothing. Why didst thou stoop, then? To take a paper up that I let fall. Ad And is that paper nothing?
Luc. Nothing concerning ma.

Jal. Then let Mile for those that it concerns, Jul. Then let lidie for those that it concerns.
Lie. Madam, it will not lie where it concerns,
Unicse it have a false interpreter.
Jul. Some love of yours hath writto you in rhyme.
Lie. That I might sing it, madam, to a tune:
Give me a note: your ladyship can set—
Jul. As little by such toys as may be possible:
Best sing it to the tune of Light o' love.
Luc. It is too heavy for so light a tune.
Jul. Heavy? belike it hath some burden then,

Jal. Heavy ? belike it bath some burden then, Ay; and melodious were it, would you sing it.

Ad And why not you?

I cannot reach so high Jul. Let's see your song:—How now, minion? Let. Keep tune there still, so you will sing it out: And yet, mothinks, I do not like this tune. Jul. You do not?

Lat. No, madam; it is too sharp. Jul. You, minion, are too saucy. Inc. Nay, now you are too flat,

And mar the concord with too harsh a descent; There wanteth but a mean' to fill your song.

Fel. The mean is drown'd with your unruly base.

Lac, Indeed, I bid the base for Proteus.

A matchmaker.
 Paulon or obstinacy.
 A term in made.
 The tenor in made.

Jul. This babble shall not henceforth trouble me. Here is a coils with protestation !-Tears the letter.

Go, get you gone; and let the papers lie: You would be fingering them, to anger me. Luc. She makes it strange; but she would be best pleas'd

To be so anger'd with another letter. [Exit. Jul. Nay, would I were so anger'd with the same! O hateful hands, to tear such loving words! Injurious wasps! to feed on such sweet honey, That you may ruminate.

That you may ruminate.

I had o'erlook'd the letter.

And here is writ—kind Julia;

I had o'erlook'd the letter.

As in revenge of thy ingratitude,

I throw thy name against the bruising stones,

The property of the letter of the letter.

I throw thy name against the bruising stones,

Tramping contemptuously on thy distain.

Look, here is writ—love-wounded Proteus:—
Poor wounded name! my bosom, as a bed,
Shail lodge thee, till thy wound be thoroughly
heal'd;
And thus I search it with a covereign kiss.

But twice, or thrice, was Proteus written down? Be caim, good wind, blow not a word away Till I have found each letter in the letter, Except mine own name; that some whirlwind bear Unto a ragged, fearful, hanging rock, And throw it thence into the raging sea! Lo, here in one line is his name twice writ, Poor forforn Proteus, passionate Proteus, To the sweet Julia :—that I'll tear away; And yet I will not, fith' so prettily He couples it to his complaining names : Thus will I fold them one upon another; Now kiss, embrace, contend, do what you will.

Re-enter Lucetta.

Luc. Madam, dinner's ready, and your father stays. Jul. Well, let us go.

Luc. What, shall these papers lie like tell-takes here?

Jul. If you respect them, heat to take them up. Luc. Nay, I was taken up for laying them down : Yet here they shall not lie, for catching cold.

Jul. I see you have a month's mind to them. Luc. Ay, modam, you may say what sights you MOS ;

I see things too, although you judge I wink. Jul. Come, come, will't please you go?

SCENE III.—The same. A room in Antonio's Louise. Enter Antonio and Panthing.

Ant. Tell me, Panthino, what sade talk was that, Wherewith my brother held you in the cloister?

Pan. 'Twas of his nephew Proteus, your son.

Ant. Why, what of him?

Pan. He wonder'd, that your lordship Would suffer him to spend his youth at home; While other men, of slender reputation, Put forth their sons to seek preferment out: Some, to the wars, to try their fortune there; Some, to discover islands far away; Some, to the studious universities. some, to the suddens universities, For any, or for all these exercises, He said, that Protous, your son, was meet; And did tequest me, to importune you, To let him spend his time no more at home,

(5) A challenge,
 (6) Bustle, stir.
 (7) Since.
 (8) Serioue,
 (9) Little comequence

Which would be great impeachment' to his age, in having known no travel in his youth. Ant. Nor need'at thou much importune me to that Whereon this mouth I have been hummering. I have consider'd well his loss of time; And how he cannot be a perfect man, Not being try'd and tutor'd in the world: Experience is by industry achiev'd, And perfected by the swift course of time: Then, tell me, whither were I best to send him?

Past. I think, your lordship is not ignorant, How his companion, youthful Valentine, Attends the emperor in his royal court.

Ant. I know it well,

Part. Twere good, I think, your lordship sent him thither:

There shall be practise tilts and tournaments, Hear sweet discourse, converse with noblemen; And be in eye of every exercise, Worthy his youth and nobleness of birth.

Ant. I like thy counsel; well hast thou advis'd: And, that thou may'st perceive how well I like it, The execution of it shall make known; Even with the specifiest execution

I will despatch him to the emperor's court.

Pant. To-morrow, may it please you, Don Al-SCENE I.—Millon. As apartment in the Duke's phome,

With other gentlemen of good esteem, Are journeying to salute the emperor, And to commend their service to his will.

Ant. Good company: with them shall Proteus go: And, in good time, - now will we break with him.*

Ruler Protezu.

Pro. Sweet love : sweet lines! sweet life! Here is her hand, the agent of her heart; Here is her oath for love, her honour's pawn: O, that our fathers would applaud our loves, To seal our happiness with their consents; O heavenly Julia!

Ant. How now? what letter are you reading there?

Pro. May't please your lordship, 'tis a word or

Of commendation sent from Valentine Deliver'd by a friend that came from him Ani. Lend me the letter; let me see what news. Pro. There is no news, my lord; but that he

How happily he lives, how well belov'd,

And daily graced by the emperor;
Wishing me with him, partner of his fortune.
Ant. And how stand you affected to his wish? Pro. As one relying on your lordship's will, And not depending on his friendly wish. Ant. My will is something sorted with his wish : Muse not that I thus suddenly proceed; For what I wilt, I will, and there an end. I am resolv'd, that thou shalt spend some time With Valentinus in the emperor's court; What maintenance he from his friends receives, Like exhibitions thou shalt have from me. To-morrow be in readiness to go :

Excuse it not, for I am peremptory. Pro. My lord, I cannot be so soon provided; Please you, deliberate a day or two.

And, Look, what thou want'st, shall be sent after

No more of stay; to-morrow thou must go .-

(1) Reproach, (3) Break the matter to him. (5) Wonder, - (4) Allowance, Come on, Pantkino; you shall be employ'd To hasten on his expedition.

Ereant Ant. and Pont. Pro. Thus have I shunn'd the fire, for fear of burning; And drench'd me in the sea, where I am drown'd. I fear'd to show my father Julia's letter, Lest he should take exceptions to my love; And with the vantage of mine own excuse Hath he excepted most against my love.

The uncertain glory of an April day;

Which now shows all the beauty of the sun, And by and by a cloud takes all away !

Re-enter Panthino.

Pant. Sir Proteus, your father calls for you; He is in haste, therefore, I pray you, go. Pro. Why, this it is ! my heart accords thereto; And yet a thousand times it answers, no. (Eremit.

polace. Enter Valentine and Speed.

Speed. Sir, your glove.
Vol. Not mine; my gloves are on.
Speed. Why then this may be yours, for this is but one

Val. Ha! let me see: ay, give it me, it's mine:— Sweet ornament that decks a thing divine! Ah Silvia! Silvia!

Speed. Madam Silvia! madam Silvia! Val. How now, sirrah!

Fac. 110w nor, arrange within hearing, air.
Vol. Why, sir, who bade you call her?
Speed. Your worship, sir; or else I mistock.
Vol. Well, you'll still be too forward.
Speed. And yet I was last chidden for being too slow

Val. Go to, sir; tell me, do you know madam Silvia?

Speed. She that your worship loves?
Val. Why, how know you that I am in love? Speed. Marry, by these special marks: First, you have learned, like Sir Proteus, to wreath your arms have learned, like Sir Froteus, to wreath your arms like a male-content; to relian a love-song, like a robin-red-breast; to walk alone, like one that had the pestilence; to sigh, like a school-boy that had lost his A. B. C.; to weep, like a young wench that had buried her grandam; to fast, like one that takes diet; to watch, like one that fears robbing; to speak puling, like a beggar at Hallowmas. You speak puling, like a beggar at Hallownas. You were wont, when you laugh'd, to crow like a cock; when you walked, to walk like one of the lions; when you fasted, it was presently after dinner; when you looked sadly, it was for want of money : and now you are metamorphosed with a mistress, that, when I look on you, I can hardly think you my master.

Vol. Are all these things perceived in me?

Speed. They are all perceived without you.
Vol. Without me? They cannot.
Speed. Without you? nay, that's certain, for, without you were so simple, none class would: but you are so without these follies, that these follies are within you, and shine through you like the water in a urinal; that not an eye, that sees you.

(5) Under a regimen. (4) Allhallowman.

let is a physician to comment on your malady.

Fel. But tell me, dost thou know my lady Silvia?

Speed. She, that you gaze on so, as she sits at supper?

Vol. Hast thou observed that? oven she I mean. Speed. Why, sir, I know her not.

and yet know at her not?

Speed. Is she not hard-favour'd, sir? Yel. Not so fair, boy, as well favoured. Speed. Sir, I know that well enough. Yel. What dost thou know?

Speed. That she is not so fair, as (of you) well faroured, Val. I mean, that her beauty is exquisite, but her favour infinite. Speed. That's because the one is painted, and the other out of all count.

Val. How painted? and how cut of count? Speed. Marry, sir, so painted, to make her fair, that no man counts of her beauty.

Fal. How esteemest thou me? I account of her beauty. Speed. You never saw her since she was deformed.

Val. How long hath she been deformed?

Speed. Ever since you loved her.
Yet. I have loved her ever since I saw her, and still I see her beautiful.

Speed. If you love her, you cannot see her. Fal. Why?

Speed. Because love is blind. O, that you had mine eyes; or your own had the lights they were wont to have, when you chid at Sir Proteus for going ungartered!

Val. What should I see then?

Speed. Your own present folly, and her passing deformity: for he, being in love, could not see to garter his hose; and you, being in love, cannot see to put on your hose.

Fal. Beilte, boy, then you are in love; for last morning you could not see to wipe my shoes.

Speed. True, sir; I was in love with my bed: I thank you, you swinged me for my love, which makes me the bolder to chide you for yours.

Yel. In conclusion, I stand affected to her.

Speed. I would you were set; so, your affection would cease

Val. Last night she enjoined me to write some lines to one she loves.

Speed. And have you?

Vol. I have.

Speed. Are they not lamely writ?

Val. No, boy, but as well as I can do them : Peace, here she comes.

Enter Silvia

Speed. O excellent motion !* O exceeding puppet! now will he interpret to her.

Vol. Madam and mistress, a thousand good MOTTOWE.

Speed. O, 'give you good even! here's a million of manners. Sil. Sir Valentine and servant, to you two thousand. Speed. He should give her interest; and she gives it him.

Val. As you enjoin'd me, I have writ your letter, Unto the secret nameless friend of yours; Which I was much unwilling to proceed in,

 Whipped. (8) Like a scholar,

(2) A puppet-show,

But for my duty to your ladyship. Sil. I thank you, gentle servent: 'lis very clerkly'

Val. Now trust me, madam, it came hardly off; For, being ignorant to whom it goes, I writ at random, very doubtfully.

Sil. Perchance you think too much o' so much pains?

Vol. No, madam; so it steed you, I will write,
Please you command, a thousand times as much:

And yet,—
Sil. A pretty period! Well, I guess the sequel;
And yet I will not name it:—and yet I care not;

And yet I will not name it:—and yet I thank you; And yet take this again;—and yet I thank you; Meaning henceforth to trouble you no more. Speed. And yet you will; and yet another yet.

Vol. What means your ladyship? do you not like it?

Sil. Yes, yes; the lines are very quaintly writ: But since unwillingly, take them again;

ay, take them.
Yel. Madam, they are for you.

Su. Ay, ay; you writ them, sir, at my request : But I will none of them; they are for you: I would have had them writ more movingly.

Val. Please you, I'll write your ladyship another.

Val. Please you, I'll write your lagranp anomer.
Sil. And, when it's writ, for my sake read it over:
And, if it please you, so; if not, why, so.
Val. If it please me, madam! what then?
Sil. Why, if it please you, take it for your labour:
And so good morrow, servant.
Exil Silvia.
Speed. O jest unseen, inscrutable, invisible,

As a nose on a man's face, or a weathercock on a stceple !

My master suce to her; and she buth taught her suitor,

He being her pupil, to become her tutor. O excellent device! was there ever heard a better? That my master, being scribe, to himself should write the letter?

Val. How now, sir? what are you reasoning with yourself?

Speed. Nay, I was rhyming; 'tis you that have he reason.

Val. To do what?

Speed. To be a spokesman from madam Silvia.

Speed. To yourself: why, she woose you by a figure.

Note: What figure?

Speed. By a letter, I should say.

Yel. Why, she hath not writ to me.

Speed. What need she, when she hath made you write to yourself? Why, do you not perceive the jest 7

Val. No. believe me.

Speed. No believing you indeed, air; but did you perceive her earnest?

Val. She gave me none, except an angry word. Speed. Why, she hath given you's letter. Val. That's the letter I writ to her friend Speed. And that letter hath she delivered, and there an end. .. Val. I would, it were no worse.

Speed. I'll warrant you, 'tis as well:

For often you have writ to her; and she, in modesty, Or else for want of ielle time, could not again reply,

(4) There's the conclusion

Or fearing the some messenger, that might keriso. Now come I to my father; Father, pair blaze

All this I speak in print; for in print I found it.
Why muse you, ar? "its dinner-time.
Yal. I have dined.

Speed. Ay, but beerken, sir: though the cameleon. Leve, can feed on the air. I am one that and the dust with my tears nourished by my victuals, and would fain have mest: O, be not like your mistress; be moved, be mored. Exems.

SCENE II .- Verone. A room in Julia's house. Enter Protous and Julia.

Fro. Have patience, gentle Julia. Keep this remembrance for thy Julia's sake.

And when that hour o'er-slips me in the day, Wherein I sigh not, Julia, for thy sake, The next ensuing hour some four mischance Torment me for my love's forgetfulness! My father stays my coming; answer not; The tide is now: way, not the tide of tears; That title will stay me longer than I should; [Exit Julia.

Julia, farewell.—What t gone without a word? Ay, so true love should do: it cannot speak; For truth hath better deeds, than words, to grace it.

Enter Panthino.

Pon. Sir Proteus, you are staid for. Pro. Oo; I come, I come:— Alas! this parting strikes poor lovers dumb. [Excunt.

SCENE III.-The same, A street, Enter Launce, leading a dog.

Launce, Nay, 'twill be this hour ere I have done weeping; all the kind' of the Launces have this very fault: I have received my proportion, like the very fault: I have received my proportion, like the prodigious son, and am going with Sir Proteus to the Imperial's court. I think, Grab my dog be the sourcet-natured dog that lives: my mother weeping, my father waiting, my sister crying, our maid howing, our cat wringing her hands, and all our house in a great perplexity, yet did not this cruel-hearted our shed one tear: he is a stone, a very pebble-stone, and has no more pity in him than a dog: a law would have went to have seen our receiver. Jew would have wept to have seen our parting; why, my grandam having no eyes, look you, wept herself blind at my parting. Nay, I'll show you the manner of it: This shoe is my father;—no, this left aboe is my father ;--no, no, this left abon is my left aboe is my father;—no, no, this left aboe is my; mother; ney, that cannot be so neither;—yes, it is no, it is so: it hath the worser sole: this shoe, with the hole in it, is my mother, and this my father: a rengeance on't there this: now, sir, this staff is my colour? St. What, angry, easter; for, look you, she is as white as allly, and as small as a wand: this hat is Nan, our maid; I am the dog:—no, the dog is himself, and I am the dog:—no, the dog is me, and I am myself; sy, so, than live in your sic.

Enter Panthine.

Pas. Launce, away, away, aboard; thy master is shipped, and thou art to post after with oars. What's the matter? why weepest thou, man? Away, sae; you will lose the tide, if you tarry any longer.

Laus. It is no matter if the try'd ware lost; for it the matter of the try of

Fro. Why then we'll make exchange; here, take you this.

Jul. And seal the bargain with a holy kiss.

Fro. Here is my hand for my true constancy;

and when that hour o'er-alips me in the day,

Lams. It is no matter if the ty'd were lost; for it is the unkindest tide?

Lams. Why, he that's ty'd here; Crab, my dog.

SCENE IV.—Miles. An apertment de the Duke's palace. Enter Valentine, Silvia, Thuria, and Speed.

Sil. Servant-Val. Mistress ?

Speed. Master, Sir Thurfo frowns on you. Val. Ay, boy, it's for love. Speed. Not of you.

Val. Of my mistress then. Speed. 'Twere good, you knocked have.

Sil. Servant, you are sad. 2

Thu. Seem you that you are not? Val. Haply, I do.

Thu. So do counterfeits.

rdi. So do you.
Thu. What seem I, that I am not?
Val. Wise.
Thu. What instance of the contrary?
Val. Your folly.
Thu. And how quote' you my folly?
Val. I quote it in your jerkin.
Thu. My jerkin is a doublet.
Val. Well, then, I'll double your folly.

Yel. Mistress, it is: sweet lady, entertain him
To be my fellow-servant to your ladyship.

St. Too low a mistress for so high a servent.

Pro. Not so, sweet lady; but too mean a servant. To have a look of such a worthy mistress. Vol. Leave off discourse of disability: Sweet lady, entertain him for your servant.

Pro. My duty will I boast of, nothing class.

Sil. And duty never yet did want his meed; Servant, you are welcome to a worthless mistress.

Pro. Pil die on him that says so, but yourself.

Enter Servant.

Ser. Madam, my lord your father would speak with you.

No; that you are worthless.

Go with me:—Once more, new servant, welcome:
Pil leave you to confer of home affaire;
When you have done, we look to hear from you.
Pro. We'll both attend upon your ledyship.
[Excunt Silvia, Thuric, and Speed.
Val. Now, tell me, how do all from whence you came?

Pro. Your friends are well, and have them much commended.

Val. And how do yours?

I left them all in health. Val. How does your lady? and how thrives your love?

Pro. My tales of love were wont to weary you:

I know, you jey not in a love-discourse.

Val. Ay, Proteus, but that life is alter'd now: I have done penance for contemning love: Whose high imperions thoughts have punished me With bitter fasts, with penitential groans, With nightly tears, and daily heart-sore sighs; For, in revenge of my contempt of love, Love hath char'd sleep from my enthralled eyes, and made them watchers of mine own heart's sor.

O, gentic Proteus, love's a mighty lord; and hath so humbled me, as, I confess, There is no we to his correction, Nor, to his service, no such loy on earth! Now, no discourse, except if he of love; Now can I break my fast, dine, sup, and sleep, Upon the very raised name of love. Pro. Enough: I read your fortune in your eye?

ΙΕπι.

I will not flatter her. Pro. Vol. O, flatter me; for love delights in praises. Pro. When I was sick, you gave me bitter pills;

And I must minister the like to you.

Val. Then speak the truth by her; if not divine, Yet let her be a principality,
Sovereign to all the creatures on the earth.

Pro. Except my mistress.

νω. Sweet, except not any;

Except thou wilt except against my love.

Pro. Have I not reason to prefer mine own? Val. And I will help thee to prefer her too: She shall be dignified with this high honour,— To bear my lady's train: lest the base carth Should from her vesture chance to steal a kiss, And, of so great a favour growing proud, Distain to root the summer-swelling flower,

And make rough winter everlasting.

Pro. Why, Valentine, what braggardism is this?

Val. Pardon me, Proteus: all I can, is nothing
To her, whose worth makes other worthies nothing;

She is alone.

Pro. Then let her alone.

Vol. Not for the world: why, man, she is mine OWD ;

And I as rich in having such a jewel, As twenty seas, if all their sand were pearl, The water nectar, and the rocks pure gold. Forgive me, that I do not dream on thee, Because thou seest me dote upon my love. My foolish rival, that her father likes, Only for his possessions are so huge,
Is gone with her along; and I must after,
For love, thou know'st, is full of jealousy.

Pro. But she loves you?

Ŷd. Ay, and we are betroth'd; Nay, more, our marriage hour, With all the cunning manner of our flight, Determin'd of: how I must climb her window; The ladder made of cords; and all the means Plotted; and greed on, for my happiness. Good Proteus, go with me to my chamber, In these affairs to aid me with thy counsel

Pro. Go on before; I shall inquire you forth: I must unto the road, to disembark Some necessaries that I needs must use ;

And then I'll presently attend you.

Val. Will you make haste?

Pro. I will.-Exit Val. Even as one heat another heat expels, Or as one nail by strength drives out another, So the remembrance of my former love so the remembrance of my former love ds by a newer object quite forgotten.

Is it mine eye, or Valentinus' praise,
Her true perfection, or my faise transgression,
That makes me, reasonless, to reason thus?
She's fair; and so is Julia, that I love;—
That I did love, for now my love is thaw'd;
Which, like a waxen image 'gainst a fire,
Bears no impression of the thing it was.
Methinks my well to Valenting to old. Methinks, my zeal to Velentine is cold; And that I love him not, as I was wont: O: but I love his lady too, too much; And that's the reason I love him so little. How shall I dote on her with more advice. That thus without advice begin to love ber!

(1) On further knowledge.

Was this the idal that you worship so?

Yal, Even she; and is she not a heavenly saint? And that hath dazzled my reason's light;

Pro. No; but she is an earthly paragon.

Yal, Call her divine.

There is no reason but I shall be blind. If I can check my erring love, I will; If not, to compass her I'll use my skill.

Laun. Forswear not thyself, sweet youth; for I am not welcome. I reckon this always—that a man is never undone, till he be hanged; nor never welcome to a place, till some certain shot be paid, and the hostess say, welcome.

Speed. Come on, you mad-cap, I'll to the alchouse with you presently; where for one shot of five pence, thou shalt have five thousand welcomes. But, sirrah, how did thy master part with madam Julia Laum. Marry, after they closed in earnest, they parted very fairly in jest.

Speed. But shall she marry him?

Laun. No.

Speed. How then? shall be marry her?

Loun. No, neither.

Speed. What, are they broken?

Loun. No, they are both as whole as a fish.

Speed. Why then, how stands the matter with them?

Laun. Marry, thus; when it stands well with him, it stands well with her. Speed. What an ass art thou! I understand thee nat Laun. What a block art thou, that thou canst

Laun. Ay, and what I do too: look thee, I'll but lean, and my staff understands me.

Speed. It stands under thee, indeed.

Laun. Why, stand under and understand is all

Speed. But tell me true, will't be a match?
Laun. Ask my dog: if he say, ay, it will; if he say, no, it will; if he shake his tail, and say nothing, it will.

Speed. The conclusion is then, that it will. Speed. The conclusion is then, that it will.

Laur. Thou shalt never get such a secret from me, but by a parable.

Speed. Tis well that I get it so. But, Launce. how say'st thou, that my master is become a noteble lover?

Loan. I never knew him otherwise. Speed. Than how?

Laun. A notable lubber, as thou reportest him Ito be.

Speed. Why, thou whoreson and thou mistaken me. Lam. Why, fool, I meant not thee; I meant thy meater.

Speed. I tell thee, my master is become a hot lover.

Laun. Why, I tell thee, I care not though he burn himself in love. If thou wilt go with me to the ale-house, so; if not, thou art a Hebrew, a Jew, and not worth the name of a Christian.

Speed. Why?

Lam. Because thou hast not so much charity in thee, as to go to the ale-house with a Christian:

Wilt thou go?

Love bade me swear, and love bids me forswear: O sweet-suggesting' love, if thou hast sim'd, Teach me, thy tempted subject, to excuse it. At first I did adore a twinkling star, But now I worship a calestial sun. Unheedful vows may heedfully be broken; And he wants wit, that wants resolved will To learn his wit to exchange the had for better. Fie, he, unreverend tougue! to call her bad, Whose sovereignty so oft thou hast preferr'd With twenty thousand soul-confirming oaths. I cannot leave to love, and yet I do; But there I leave to love, where I should love. But there I seave to love, where I should I Julia I lose, and Valentine I lose; If I keep them, I needs must lose myself; If I lose them, thus find I by their loss, For Valentine, myself; for Julia, Slivia. I to myself an dearer than a friend; For love is still more precious in itself And Silvia, witness heaven, that made her fair! Shows Julia but a swarthy Ethiope. I will forget that Julia is alive, Remembring that my love to her is dead; And Valentine I'll hold an enemy, Aiming at Silvia as a sweeter friend. I cannot now prove constant to myself, Without some treachery used to Valentine:-This night he meaneth with a corded ladder To climb celestial Silvia's chamber-window; Myself in counsel, his competitor: 2 Now presently I'll give her father notice Of their disguising, and pretended flight;

Luc. Alas! the way is wearisome and long.

Jul. A true-devoted pilgrim is not weary To measure kingdoms with his feeble steps Much less shall she, that hath love's wings to fly; And when the flight is made to one so dear,

Of such divine perfection, as sir Proteus.

Luc. Better forbear, till Proteus make return. Jul. O, know'st thou not, his looks are my soul's food?

Pity the dearth that I have pined in, By longing for that food so long a time Dist thou but know the inly touch of love, Thou would'st as soon go kindle fire with snow, As seek to quench the fire of love with words.

Jul. That is the least, Lucetta, of my fear: A thousand oaths, an ocean of his tears, And instances as infinite of love, Warrant me welcome to my Proteus.

Luc. All these are servants to deceitful men-

But truer stars did govern Proteus' birth;
His words are bonds, his oaths are oracles
His love sincere, his thoughts immaculate;
His tears, pure messengers sent from his beart;

Naw, tell me, Proteus, what's your will with me? Pro. My gracious lord, that which I would dis-

The law of friendship bids me to conceal: est, when I call to mind your gracious favours My duty prices me on to utter that Which clue no worldly good should draw from me.
Know, worthy prince, Sir Valentine, my friend,
This pitch intends to steel array your daughter: This night intends to steal away your daughter;
Myself am une made privy to the plot.
I know you have determin'd to bestow her On Therio, whose your gentle daughter bates; And should she thus be stolen away from you, It would be much version to your age. Thus, for my duty's mire, I rather chose To cross my friend in his intended drift, Than, by concealing it, heap on your head A sack of sorrows, which would press you down, Being imprevented, to your timeless grave.

Duke, Proteus, I thank thee for thing honest care;

Which to requite, command me while I live. Val. I know it well, my lord; and, sure, the match

Were rich and honourable; besides, the grentleman

Is full of virtue, bounty, worth, and qualities Beseeming such a wife as your fair daughter: Cannot your grace win her to fancy him?

Cannot your grace win her to take; him?

Duke. No, trust me; she is peevish, sullen, froward,
Proud, disobedient, stubborn, lacking duty;
Nor fearing me as if I were her father;
And, may I say to thee, this pride of hers
Upon advice, hath drawn my love from her;
And, where I thought the remnant of mine age
Should have been cherish'd by her child like duty,
I now am full resolv'd to take a wife,
And turn her out to who will take her in: And turn her out to who will take her in: Then let her beauty be her wedding-dower;
For me and my possessions she esteems not.

Yel. What would your grace have me to do is Doth Silvia know that I am banish'd?

Pro. Ay, ay; and she hath offerd to the doom (Which, unrevers'd, stands in effectual force)
A sea of melting pearl, which some call tears:
Those at her father's churlish feet she tender'd;

Bestdes, her intercession chaf'd him so, When she for thy repeal was suppliant, That to close prison he commanded her, With many bitter threats of biding there. Val. No more; unless the next word that thou speak'st,

Have some malignant power upon my life: If so, I pray thee, breathe it in mine ear,
As ending authern of my endless dolour.

Pro. Cease to lament for that thou canst not help,

And study help for that which then lament'st.

Thu. Since his exile she hath despised me most,

Forsworn my company, and rail'd at me, That I am desperate of obtaining her.

Duke. This weak impress of love is as a figure Trench'd' in ice; which with an hour's heat Dissolves to water, and doth lose his form. A little time will melt her frozen thoughts, And worthless Valentine shall be forgot. How now, sir Proteus? Is your countrymen,

According to our proclamation, gone?

Pro. Gone, my good lord.

Duke. My daughter takes his going grievously.

Pro. A little time, my lord, will kill that grief.

Duke. So I believe; but Thuric thinks not so.—

Proceeding the graduation of the control of the co Proteus, the good conceit I hold of thee (For thou hast shown some sign of good desert,) Makes me the better to confer with thee.

Pro. Longer than I prove loyal to your grace, Let me not live to look upon your grace. Duke. Thouknow'st, how willingly I would effect The match between sir Thurio and my daughter. Pro. I do, my lord.

Duke. And also, I think, thou art not ignorant

How she opposes her against my will.

Pro. She did, my lord, when Valentine was here.

Duke. Ay, and perversely she perseveres so.
What might we do, to make the girl forget
The love of Valentine, and love air Thurio?
Pro. The best way is to slander Valentine

With falsehood, cowardice, and poor descent;
Three things that women highly hold in hate.

Pro. Ay, if his enemy deliver it: Therefore it must, with circumstance, be spoken

By one, whom she esteemeth as his friend.

Duke. Then you must undertake to slauder him. Pro. And that, my lord, I shall be loth to do. Tis an ill office for a gentleman;

Especially, against his very friend.

Duke. Where your good word cannot advantage him,

Your slander never can endemage him; Therefore the office is indifferent, Speed. What then?

Laux. Why, then I will tell thee,—that thy master stays for thee at the north gate.

She shall not long continue love to him.

But say, this weed her love from Valentine it follows not that she will love sir Thurio.

Pro. Say, that upon the altar of her beauty

You secrifice your tears, your sighs, your heart:

Write till your ink he dry; and with your tears Moiat it again; and frame some feeling line, That may discover such integrity:--For Orpheus' lute was strung with poet's sinews; Whose golden touch could soften steel and stones, Make tigers tame, and huge leviathans Forsake unsounded deeps to dance on sands. Val. From Milan.

3 Out. Have you long sojourn'd there? Val. Some sixteen months; and longer might have staid, If crooked fortune had not thwarted me. 1 Out. What, were you banish'd thence?

Fel. I was. 2 Out. For what offence?

Vol. For that which now torments me to rehearse: I kill'd a man, whose death I much repent; But yet I slew him manfully in fight, Without false vantage, or base treachery.

1 Out. Why ne'er repent it, if it were done so:
But were you banish'd for so small a fault?

Val. I was, and held me glad of such a doom.

1 Out. Have you the tongues?

Vol. My youthful travel therein made me happy;
Or else I often had been miserable. 3 Out. By the bare scalp of Robin Hood's fat

And show thee all the trusture we have got; Which, with ourselves, all rest at thy dispos Erani.

SCENE II.—Milan. Court of the palace, Eater Protess.

Pro. Already have I been false to Valentine, And now I must be as unjust to Thurio. Under the colour of commending him, I have access my own leve to prefer; But Silvia is too fair, too true, too holy, To be corrupted with my worthless gilts. When I protest true loyalty to her,
She twits me with my falsehood to my friend;
When to her beauty I commend my rows, She bids me think, how I have been forsworn. Thu. Ay, but, I hope, sir, that you love not here.

Pro. Sir, but I do; or clee I would be hence.

The. Whom? Siria?

Pro. Ay, Silvia—for your sake.
Thu, I thank you for your own. New, gentlemen,

Let's tune, and to it lustily awhile,

Enter Host, at a distance; and Julia in boy's dether.

Host. Now, my young guest? methinks you're allycholdy; I pray you, why is it?

Jul. Marry, mine host, because I cannot be

Jul. He heard not that.

Jul. He heard not that. How do you, man? the music likes you not. Jul. You mistake; the musician likes me not.

Host. Why, my pretty youth?

Jul. He plays faise, father.

Host. How? out of time on the strings?

Jul. Not so; but yet so false that he grieves my very heart-strings.

Host. You have a quick ear. Jul. Ay, I would I were deaf! it makes me have a slow beart.

Heat. I perceive, you delight not in music. Jul. Not a whit, when it jars so. Hast. Hark, what fine change is in the music? Jul. Ay; that change is the spite. Host. You would have them always play but one thing?

Jul. I would always have one play but one thing.

But, host, doth this sir Proteus, that we talk on,
Often resort unto this gentlewoman?

Host. I tell you what Launce, his man, told me, he loved her out of all nick." Jul. Where is Launce?

Host. Gone to seek his dog; which, to-morrow, by his master's command, he must carry for a present to his lady.

Jul. Peace! stand aside! the company parts. Pro. Sir Thurio, fear not you! I will so plead, That you shall say, my cunning drift excels.

Thu. Where meet we? Pro. At saint Gregory's well, Thu, Farewell.

That I may compass yours. Sit. You have your wish; my will is even this,-That presently you hie you home to bed.
Thou subtle, perjur'd, false, disloyal man?
Think'st thou, I am so shellow, so conceitless,
To be seduc'd by thy flattery,
That hast deceiv'd so many with thy yows?
Return, return, and make thy love amends. For me,—by this pale queen of night I swear, I am so far from granting thy request, That I despise thee for thy wrongful suit;

 Beyond all reckoning (2) Holy dame, blessed lady And by and by intend to chide myself, Even for this time I spend in talking to thee. Pre. I grant, sweet love, that I did love a lady; But she is dead.

Pro. Madam, if your heart be so obdurate, Youchsafe me yet your picture for my love, The picture that is hanging in your chamber ; To that I'll speak, to that I'll sigh and weep; For, since the substance of your perfect self is else devoted, I am but a shadow; And to your shadow I will make true love. Jul. If 'twere a substance, you would, sure, deceive it,

And make it but a shadow, as I am.

Sil. I am very loth to be your idol, air; But, since your falsehood shall become you well To worship shadows, and adore false shapes, Send to me in the morning, and I'll send it: And so good rest.

Sil. Who calls? Egi.Your servant, and your friend; One that attends your ledyship's command.

Sil. Sir Eglamour, a thousand times good-mor-TOW.

Egs. As many, worthy lady, to yourself. According to your ladyship's impose, I am thus early come, to know what service It is your pleasure to command me in. Sil. O Egiamour, thou art a gentleman (Think not, I fiatter, for, I swear, I do not,) Valiant, wise, remoraciul, well accomplish d. Thou art not ignorant, what dear good will I bear unto the banish'd Valentine; Nor how my father would enforce me marry Vain Thurio, whom my very soul abhorr'd, Thyself hast lov'd; and I have heard thee say, No grief did ever come so near your heart, As when thy lady and thy true love died,

To Mantus, where, I hear, he makes abode;
And, for the ways are dangerous to pass, I do desire thy worthy company, Upon whose faith and honour I repose. Upon whose rains and north repeat.
Urge not my father's anger, Eglamour,
But think upon my grief, a lady's grief,
And on the justice of my flying hence,
To keep me from a most unholy match,
Which heaven and fortune still reward with plagues. I do desire thee, even from a heart As full of sorrows as the sea of sands, As full of sorrows as the sea of same,

To bear me company, and go with me:
If not, to hide what I have said to thee,
That I may venture to depart alone.
Egi. Madam, I pity much your gricvances,
Which since I know they virtuously are plac'd,

I give consent to go along with you; Rocking' as little what betideth me,: As much I wish all good befortune you.

When will you go?

This evening coming. Sü.

Egf. Where shall I meet you?

At friar Patrick's cell, Where I intend holy confession.

Egi. I will not fail your ladyship:

Good-morrow, gentle lady. Sil. Good-morrow, kind sir Eglamour.

SCENE IV .- The same. Enter Launce, with A slave, that, still an end, turns me to shame. hìa dog.

When a man's servant shall play the cur with him, look you, it goes hard: one that I brought up of a puppy; one that I saved from drowning, when three or four of his blind brothers and sisters went to it! I have taught him-even as one would say precisely. Thus I would teach a dog. I was sent to deliver him, as a present to mistress Silvia, from my master; and I came no sooner into the dining-chamber, but he steps me to her trencher, and steals her capon's leg. O'tis a foul thing, when a cur cannot keep? himself in all companies! I would have, as one should say, one that takes upon him to be a dog indeed, to be, as it were, a dog at all things. Pro. But she received my dog?

Laun. No, indeed, she did not: here have I brought him back again.

Pro. What, didst thou offer her this from me?

Loun. Ay, sir; the other squirrel was stoler from me by the hangman's boys in the market-place: and then I offer'd her mine own; who is a dog as big as ten of yours, and therefore the gilt the greater.

As easily as I do tear his paper.

Jul. Madam, he sends your ladyship this ring. Sil. The more shame for him that he sends it me; For, I have beard him say a thousand times, His Julia gave it him at his departure: Though his false finger hath profan'd the ring, Mine shall not do his Julia so much wrong.

Jal. She thanks you.

Sil. What say'st thou?

Jul. I thank you, madam, that you tender her:

Poor gentlewoman! my master wronga her much.

Sil. Dost thou know her?

Lot. All theort as well as I do know myself:

Jid. Almost as well as I do know myself:

Sil. Is she not passing fair?

Jul. She hath been fairer, madam, than she is:

When she did think my master lov'd her well, She, in my judgment, was as fair as you; But since she did neglect her looking-glass, And threw her sun-expelling mask away. The air hath starv'd the roses in her cheeks, And pinch'd the lify-tineture of her face, That now she is become as black as I. Sii. How tall was she?

Jul. About my stature : for, at Pentecost,1 When all our pageants of delight were play'd, Our youth got me to play the woman's part, And I was trimm'd in madam Julia's gown, Which served me as fit by all men's judgment,

(2) In good carnest. (I) Whiteoptide.

As if the garment had been made for me: Therefore, I know she is about my height. And, at that time, I made her weep a-good," For I did play a lamentable part; Madam, 'twas Ariadne, passioning Wept bitterly; and, would I might be dead, If I in thought felt not her very sorrow!

Alas, poor kdy't desolate and left!—
I weep myself, to think upon thy words.
Here, youth, there is my purse; I give thee this Forthewoman, good day! I pray you, be my mean Forthy sweet mistress' sake, because thou lov'st ker.
To bring me where to speak with madam Silvia.

Sil. What would you with her, if that I be she!

Jul. And she shall thank you for't, if e'er you

A virtuous gentlewaven.

A virtuous gentlewaven. A virtuous gentlewoman, mild, and beautiful. I hope my master's suit will be but cold, Since she respects my mistress' love so much. Alas, how love can trifle with itself! Here is her picture: Let me see; I think, If I had such a tire, this face of mine Were full as lovely as is this of here: And yet the painter flatter'd her a little, Unless I flatter with myself too much. Her hair is auburn, mine is perfect yellow: If that be all the difference in his love, I'll get me such a colour'd periwig. Partico free, manan; I have unauted to Delivered you a paper that I should not;
This is the letter to your ladyship.

Sid. I paray thee, let rhe look on that again.

Jid. It may not be; good madam, pardon me.

Sid. There, hold.

Sid. There, hold.

I will not look upon your master's lines:
I know, they are stuff'd with protestations,
And full of new-found ouths; which he will break Thou shalt be worshipp'd, kise'd, lov'd, and ador'd;
And we of the respect particle particles.

If this fond love were not a blinded god?

Come, shadow, come, and take this shadow up,
For 'lis thy rival. O thou senseless form! And, were there sense in his idolatry, My substance should be atsitue in thy stead. I'll use thee kindly for thy mistress' sake, That us'd me so; or else, by Jove I vow, I should have scratch'd out your unseeing eyes To make my master out of love with thee. Exit.

ACT V.

An abbey. SCENE I.-The_same. Enter Eglumour.

Jisl. Almost as well as a do annoted.

To think upon her woes, I do protest,

That I have wept a hundred several times.

Sil. Belike, she thinks that Proteus hath forsook That Silvia, at Patrick's cell, should meet me.

She will not fall; for lovers break not hours, Egi. The sun begins to gild the western sky; So much they spur their expedition.

Enter Silvia.

Sec. where she comes: Lady, a happy evening!
Sil. Amen, amen! go on good Eglamour i
Out at the postern by the abbey-wall;
I fear, I am attended by some spies.
Egl. Fear not: the forest is not three league off; If we recover that, we are sure enough. [Except.

SCENE II.—The same. An operiment in the Duke's palace. Enter Thurio, Proteus, and

The Sir Proteus, what says Silvie to my suit?

(8) Head-dress. (4) Respectable. (5) Safe,

Pro. O, sir, I find her milder than she was;
And yet she takes exceptions at your person.
Thu. What, that my leg is too long?
Pro. No; that it is too little.
Thu. Fill wear a boot, to make it somewhat rounder. Pro. But love will not be spurr'd to what 't loaths. Thu. What says and to m.,

Pro. Sho says, it is a fair one.

Thu. Nay, then the wanton lies; my face is hinck.

I have fair; and the old saying is, Pro. But pearls are fair; and the old saying is, Black men are pearls in beauteous ladies' eyes. Jul. 'Tis true; such pearls as put out ladies' For I had rather wink than look on them. [ Aside. Thu. How likes she my discourse? Pro. Ill, when you talk of war. Thu. But well, when I discourse of love, and peace ? Jul. But better, indeed, when you hold your Pm. O, sir, she makes no doubt of that. Aside. Jul. She needs not, when she knows it coward-And, to the nightingsie's complaining notes, ice.

[Aside.] Tune my distresses, and record my woes.

Thu. What says she to my birth? Pro. That you are well derivd. Jul. True; from a gentleman to a fool. [Aside. Thu. Considers she my possessions?

Fra. O, sy; and pities them.

Thu. Wherefore? Jid. That such an ass should owe them. [ Aside. That they are out by lease. Jul. Here comes the duke.

Enter Duke.

Duke. How now, sir Proteus? how now, Thuriq Which of you saw sir Eglamour of late?
Thu. Not I. Pro.

Duke.

Nor I. Saw you my daughter?

Pro. Neither. Duke. Why, then she's fled unto that peasant Valentine;

And Egiamour is in her company.
'Tis true; for friar Laurence met them both, As he in penance wander'd through the forest: Him he knew well, and guess'd that it was she; But, being mask'd, he was not sure of it: Besides, she did intend confession At Patrick's cell this even; and there she was not: These likelihoods confirm her flight from hence. Therefore, I pray you, stand not to discourse, But mount you presently; and meet with me Upon the rising of the mountain foot That leads towards Mantua, whither they are fled:

Despatch, sweet gentlemen, and follow me. [Exit. Thu. Why, this it is to be a necvish* girl, That flies her fortune when it follows her: I'll after; more to be reveng'd on Eglamour. Than for the love of reckless' Silvia. Exit. Pro. And I will follow, more for Silvin's love, Than hate of Erlamour that goes with her. [Exit. Jul. And I will follow, more to cross that love, Then hate for Silvin, that is gone for love. Exit. BCENE III .- Frontiers of Mantua. Forest. Enter Silvia, and Out-lews.

Out. Come, come:

(1) Own. (2) Foolish, (3) Carcless. Be patient, we must bring you to our captain.

Sil. A thousand more mischances than this one Have learn'd me how to brook this patiently.

2 Out. Come, bring her away.

I Out. Where is the gentleman that was with her? 5 Out. Being nimble-footed, he bath out-run us, But Moyses, and Valerius, follow him. Go thou with her to the west end of the wood, There is our captain: we'll follow him that's fled; The thicket is beset, he cannot 'scape. I Out. Come, I must bring you to our captain's cave:

SCENE IV .- Inother part of the Forcet. Enter Valentine.

Val. How use doth breed a habit in a man This shadowy desert, unfrequented woods, I better brook than flourishing peopled towns: Here can I sit alone, unseen of any, Leave not the mension so long tenantiess; Lest, growing ruinous, the building fall, And leave no memory of what it was! Hepair me with thy presence, Silvia; Thou gentle symph, cherish thy forlors swain!-What halloing, and what stir, is this to-day? These are my mates, that make their wills their Ìаж,

Have some unhappy passenger in chace: They love me well; yet I have much to do, To keep them from uncivil outrages Withdraw thee, Valentine; who's this comes here?

Enter Proteus, Silvis, and Julia.

Pro. Madam, this service I have done for you (Though you respect not sught your servant doth,)
To hazard life, and rescue you from him That would have forc'd your honour and your love. Vouchsafe me, for my meed, but one fair look;

A smaller boon than this I cannot beg, And less than this, I am sure, you cannot give.

Val. How like a dream is this I see and hear?

Love, lend me patience to forbear awhile. [.fiside. Sil. O miserable, unhappy that I am! Pro. Unhappy, were you, madam, ere I came; But, by my coming, I have made you happy.

Sit. By thy approach thou mak'st me most un happy.

Jul. And me, when he approacheth to your presence. Aside. Sil. Had I been seized by a hungry lion, I would have been a breakfast to the beast, Rather than have false Proteus rescue me.

O, heaven be judge, how I love Valentine, Whose life's as tender to me as my soul; And full as much (for more there cannot be,)
I do detest false perjur'd Proteus: Therefore be gone, solicit me no more.

Pro. What dangerous action, stood it next to death,

Would I not undergo for one calm look?

(4) Sing. (5) Reward le love,

O, 'tis the curse in love, and still approvid,'
When women cannot love where they're belovid. Sil. When Protess cannot love where he's belov'd.

Into a thousand eaths; and all those caths Descended into perjury, to love me. Thou had no faith left now, unless thou hadst two, And there far worse then none; better have more Then planel feith, which is too much by one; Those counterfeit to thy true friend!

Pro. Who respects friend?

57 All mon but Proteus. Pro. Nay, if the gentle spirit of moving words Can no way thange you to a milder form, I'll woo you like a soldier, at arms end; And leve you 'quiset the nature of love, force you.

Sil. O heaven!

I'il force thee yield to my desire Val. Ruffian, let go that rude uncivil touch; Thou friend of an ill fashion!

Valentine! Val. Thou common friend, that's without faith or love; (For such is a friend now,) treacherous man! Thou hast beguil'd my hopes; nought but mine

Could have persuaded me: Now I dare not say I have one friend slive; thou would'st disprove me.
Who should be trusted now, when one's right hand is perjur'd to the bosom? Proteus, I am sorry, I must never trust thee more,
But count the world a stranger for thy sake.
The private wound is deepest: 0 time, most curst;
Mongst all foes, that a friend should be the worst.
Miles will not belief the life in the same of the most curst.
Miles will not belief the life in the again,
Miles will not belief the life in the again.

Pro. My shame and guilt confounds me. Forgive me, Valentine : if hearty sorrow Be a sufficient ransom for offence

I tender it here ; I do as truly suffer, As e'er I did commit.

V = 1Then I am paid; And once again I do receive thee honest. Who by repentance is not satisfied, is nor of heaven, nor earth; for these are pleas'd; By penitence the Eternal's wrath's uppeas'd:

And, that my love may appear plain and free,
All that was mine in Silvia, I give thee.

Which, out of my neglect, was never done.

Pro. Where is that ring, boy?

Jid. Here 'tis: this is it. [Gives [Gives a ring. Pro. How! let me see:

Why this is the ring I gave to Julia. Jal. O, cry you mercy, sir, I have mistook; This is the ring you sent to Silvin.

Pro. But, how cam'st thou by this ring? at my depart, I gave this unto Julia.

Jul. And Julia herself did give it me; And Julia herself bath brought it hither.

(1) Felt, experienced. (2) Direction. (3) An allusion to cleaving the pin in arrhery. .

Pro. How! Julia?
Jul. Behold her that gave ann? to all thy oaths, And entertain'd them deeply in her heart! How oft hast thou with perjury cleft the root!* O Proteus, let this habit make thee blush! below'd.

Read over Julia's heart, thy first best love, 'O Proteus, let this habit make thee bluss:

For whose dear sales thou disist then rend thy Be thou askamodest resistent; if shame five In a disguise of love: It is the lesser blot, modesty finds, Women to change their shapes, than men their minds. Pro. Than men their missis? 'the true: O heaven! were man But constant, he were perfect: that one error Fills him with faults; makes him run through all sins: Inconstancy falls off, ere it begins: What is in Bilvin's face, but I may spy More fresh in Julia's with a constant eye? Val. Come, come, a hand from either: Let me be blest to make this happy close;

"Twere pity two such friends should be long foes.

Pro. Bear witness, beaven, I have my wish for ever.

Jul. And I have mine.

Enter Out-laws, with Duke and Thurio.

A prisa, a prise, a prize!

Val. Forbear, 1 say; It is my lord the duke.

Your grace is welcome to a man disgrac'd,

Banish'd Valentine.

Duke.

Thus. Sir Valenune :
Thus. Yonder is Silvia; and Silvia's mine.
Val. Thurio, give back, or else embrace thy

Plead a new state in thy unrivall'd merit,

To which I thus subscribe,—sir Valentine,

Thou art a gentleman, and well deriv'd;

Take thou thy Silvia, for thou hast deserv'd her.

Which art of my neglect, was never done.

Val. I thank your grace; the gift hath made me happy

I now beseech you, for your daughter's sake, To grant one boon that I shall ask of you.

Duke. I grant it, for thine own, whate'er it be. Val. These bunish'd men, that I have kept withal.

Shows another ring.

With our discourse to make your grace to smile : What think you of this page, my lord?

Duke. I think the boy hath grace in him; he blushes.

Val. I warrant you, my lord; more grace than boy.

Duke. What mean you by that saying?

Val. Pleass you, I'll tell you as we pass along,
That you will wonder what hath fortun'd.— Come, Proteus; 'tis your penance, but to hear The story of your loves discovered: That done, our day of marriage shall be yours ; One feast, one house, one mutual happiness

(1) Masks, revela. (2) Conclude.

In this play there is a strange mixture of know ledge and ignorance, of cure and negligence. The versification is often excellent, the aliesions are learned and just; but the author conveys his heroes by sea from one inland town to another in the same country: he places the emperor at Milan, and sends his young men to attend him, but nev-z and sends his young men to steam sam, but here's mentions him more; he makes Proteins, after an interview with Silvin, say he has only seen her pic-ture; and, if we may credit the old copies, he has, by mistaking places, left his scenery inextricable. The reason of all this confusion seems to be, that he took his story from a novel which he sometimes followed and sometimes forsook; sometimes reyours;

ess.

[Excuss.]

That this play is rightly attributed to Shakto whom shall it be given? This question may be asked of all the disputed plays, except Titus Andronicus; and it will be found more credible, that Shakspeare might sometimes sink below his highest flights, than that any other should rise up to his lowest. Shal. Did her grandsire leave her soven hundred pound?

Eve. Ay, and her father is make her a petter penny. Shal. I know the young gentlewoman; she has good gifts.

Eva. Seven hundred pounds, and possibilities, is goot gifts.

Shal. Well, let us see honest master Page: is Falstaff there?

Skol. You may, by marrying.

Eve. It is marring indeed, if he quarter it.

Shal. Not a whit.

Eve. Yes, py'r- lady; if he has a quarter of your tost, there is but three shirts for yourself, in my ample conjectures: but that is all one; if Si- Lohn.

Quick. There is one mistress Ford, sir;—I pray come a little nearer this ways :- I myself dwell with master doctor Caius.

Fal. Well, on : Mistress Ford, you say, Quick. Your worship says very true: I pray your worship, come a little nearer this ways.

Fal. I warrant thee, nobody hears;—mine own people, mine own people. Quick. Are they so? Heaven bless them, and make them his servants!

Fal. Well: mistress Ford ;-what of her?

Quick. Why, ar, she's a good creature. Lord, lord i your worship's a wanton: Well, heaven forgive you, and all of us, I pray!

Falstaff and Pistol.

Stater it; you have brought her into such a canaries, as the courtier of them all, when the court lay at Windsor, could never have brought her to such a canary. Yet there has been kunghn, and lords, and gentlemen, with their coaches; I should lay my countenance to pawn: I have grationally and gentlemen, with their coaches; I marrant you, coach after coach, letter after letter, gift after gift; smelling so sweetly (all musk,) and so rushing, I warrant you, in silk and gold; and so use hellow? Nym; or else you had looked through the grate like a geniny of baboons. I am damned in hell, for swearing to gentlemen my friends, you were good soldiers, and tall fellows; and when mistress Bridget lost the handle of her fan, I took't upon my honour, thou hadst it not.

Pist. Didst thou not share? hadst thou not fifted pence?

Fal. Reason. with her.

Fal. But what says she to me? be brief, my good she Mercury.

Quick. Marry, she hath received your letter, Fol. Ten and eleven?

Quick. Ay, forsooth; and then you may come and see the picture, she says, that you woif of;—master Ford, her husband, will be from home. Alas! the sweet woman leads an ill life with him; he's a very jealousy man; she leads a very fram-pold life with him, good heart.

Fal. Ten and eleven? Woman, commend me to Quick. Why, you say well: But I have another messenger to your worship; Mistress Page hath her learty commendations to you too;—and let me tell you in your ear, she's as fartuous a civil modest wife, and one (I tell you) that will not miss your morning nor evening prayer, as any is in Windsor, whoe'er be the other: and she bade me tell your worship, that her husband is seldom from home; but, she hopes, there will come a time. I never knew a woman so dote upon a man : surely, I think you have charms, la ; yes, in truth.

Fal. Not I, I assure thee; setting the attraction

Quick. Blessing on your heart for't!

Fal. But, I pray thee, tell me this; has Ford's wife, and Page's wife, acquainted each other how white, and a age they love me?

Quick. That were a jest-indeed!—they have not so little grace, I hope:—that were a trick, indeed!

But mistress Page would desire you to send her your little page, of all loves; 10 her husband has a marvellous infection to the little page : and, truly, master Page is an honest man. Never a wife in Windsor leads a better life than she does; do what she will, say what she will, take all, pay all, go to bed when she list, rise when she list, all is as she will; and truly she deserves it: for if there be kind woman in Windsor, she is one. You must send her your page; no remedy.

Fal. Why, I will.

Quick. Nay, but do so then: and, look you, he may come and go between you both; and, in any case have a nay-word, " that you may know one Quick. Marry, this is the short and the long of another's mind, and the boy never need to under to me 7

Ford. When I have told you that, I have told you all. Some say, that, though she appear honest to me, yet, in other places, she enlargeth her mirth so far, that there is shrewd constinuition made of her. Now, sir John, here is the heart of my purpose: You are a gentleman of excellent breeding, admirable discourse, of great admit-tance, authentic in your place and person, generally allowed for your many warlike, court-like, rally allowed for your many warme, court-mee, and learned preparations.

Fal. O, sir!

Ford. Believe it, for you know it:—There is money; spend it, spend it; spend more; spend all I have; only give me so much of your time in exchange of it, as to lay an amiable siege to the honeaty of this Ford's wife: use your art of wooing, win her to consent to you; if any man may, you may as soon as any.

Fal. Would it apply well to the vehemency of your affection, that I should win what you would enjoy? Methinks, you prescribe to yourself very preposterously.

Ford. O, understand my drift! she dwells so ecurely on the excellency of her honour, that the folly of my soul dures not present itself; she is toe bright to be looked against. Now, could I come to be right to closed against. I we, could come to her with any detection in my hand, my desires had instance and argument to commend themselves; I could drive her then from the ward of her purity, her reputation, her marriage-row, and a thousand other her defences, which now are too strongly embattled against me; What say you to't, are John ?

Fat. Master Brook, I will first make bold with your money; next, give me your hand; and last, as I am a gentleman, you shall, if you will, enjoy Ford's wife.

Fal. Hang him, poor cuckoldly knave! I know him not:—yet I wrong him, to call him poor; they say, the jealous wittolly knave hath musses of money; for the which his wife seems to me wellfavoured. I will use her as the key of the cuckoldly rogue's coffer; and there's my harvest-home.

Ford. I would you knew Ford, sir; that you might avoid him, if you saw him.

Fed. Hang him, mechanical salt-butter rogue! I will stare him out of his wits; I will awe him with my sudgel; it shall hang like a meteor o'er the sackold's borns: master Brook, thou shalt know, I will predominate o'er the peasant, and thou shalt lie with his wife.—Come to me soon at night:—Ford's a knave, and I will aggravate his stile; thou master Brook, shalt know him for a knave and ouckold: -come to me soon at night.

Sien. I'll make a shaft or a bolt ou't: slid, 'tis but venturing.

Shal. Be not dismay'd. Sies. No, she shall not dismay me; I care not for that,—but that I am afeard.

Quick. Hark ye; master Siender would speak a word with you.

Anne. I come to him,--This is my father's choice. O, what a world of vile ill-favour'd faults Looks handsome in three hundred pounds a year I Aride. Quick. And how does good master Fenton?

Pray you, a word with you.

Shal. Bhe's coming; to her, coz. O boy, thou hadst a father!

Siere. I had a father, mistress Anne; -- my uncle can tell you good jests of him: Pray you, uncle, tell mistress Anne the jest, how my father stole two greese out of a pen, good uncle.

Shal. Mistress Anne, my cousin loves you.

Sign. Ay, that I do; as well as I love any woman Give my sweet Nan this ring: there's for thy pains.

Shal. He will maintain you like a gentlewoman Sien. Ay, that I will, come cut and long-tail, under the degree of a squire.

Shal. He will make you a hundred and fifty

Why, how now! what does master Fenton here? You wrong me, sir, thus still to haunt my house:

A proverb—a shaft was a long arrow, and a bolt a thick short one.

Mrs. Page. Good master Fenton, come not to my child.

Page. She is no match for you.

Fent. Sir, will you hear me?

No, good master Fenton. Come, master Shallow: come, son Stender; in:
Knowing my mind, you wrong me, master Fenton.
[Execut Page, Shallow, and Slender.
Quick. Speak to mistress Page.

Feet. Good mistress Page, for that I love your daughter

I'll wink and couch: No man their works must eye. Lies down upon his face.

Eva. Where's Pede?-Go you, and where you find a maid, That, ere she sleep, has thrice her prayers said, Raise up the organs of her fantasy, Sleep she as sound as careless infancy; But those as sleep, and think not on their sine Pinch them, arms, legs, backs, shoulders, sides, and shine.

Quick. About, about; Search Windsor castle, elves, within and out: Strew good luck, outhes, on every sacred room; That it may stand till the perpetual doom, In state as wholesome, as m state 'its fit; Worthy the owner, and the owner it. The several chairs of order look you scour With juice of linim, and every precious flower: Each fair instalment, coat, and several crest, With loyal plazon, evermore be blest! And nightly, meadow-fairies, look, you sing, Like to the Garter's compass, in a ring: The expressure that it bears, green let it be, More fertile-fresh than all the field to see; And, Hony soit que mai y pense, write, In emerald tufts, flowers purple, blue, and white; Like sapphire, pearl, and rich embroidery, Buckled below fair knighthood's bending knee: Fairies use flowers for their charactery. Away; disperse: But, till 'tis one o'clock Our dance of custom, round about the cak Of Herne the hunter, let us not forget.

fool; therefore, I say again, take her away.

Oil. Sir, I hade them take away you.

Clo. Misprision in the highest degree!—Lady, Carassas non facit conachum; that's as much as to say, I wear not motley in my brain. Good madoma, give me leave to prove you a fool. Oli. Can you do it?

Cia. Dexterously, good madonns.

Ofi. Make your proof. Clo. I must catechise you for it, madonna; good my mouse of virtue, answer me.

Oli. Well, sir, for want of other idleness, I'll bide your proof.

(Se. Good madonns, why mourn'st thou? Oli. Good fool, for my brother's death. Cle. I think, his soul is in hell, madonna.

Oli. I know his soul is in heaven, fool.

Cla. The more fool you, madonna, to mourn for your brother's soul being in heaven.—Take away the fool, gentlemen.

Oil. What think you of this fool, Malvolio? doth he not mend?

Mal. Yes; and shall do, till the pange of death shake him: infirmity, that decays the wise, doth word for two-pence that you are no fool.

Oil How say you to that, Malvolio?

Mal. I marvel your ladyship takes delight in said to him, lady? he's fortified against any denial. such a barren reacal: I saw him put down the other day with an ordinary fool, that has no more brain than a stone. Look you now, he's out of his said at your door like a sheriff's post, and he the guard already: unless you laugh and minister occurred to be both, but he'll speak with you.

Oil. What kind of man is he?

Mal. Why, of man kind. guard already: unless you laugh and minister oc-casion to him, he is gagged. I protest, I take these wise men, that crow so at these set kind of fools, no better than the fools' zanies.

Oli. O, you are sick of self-lore, Malvolio, and laste with a distempered appetite. To be generous, guiltless, and of free disposition, is to take those things for bird-boits, that you doem cannon-bullets; there is no slander in an allowed fool, though enough for a boy; as a squash is before its a peaset; there is no slander in an allowed fool, though he do nothing but rail; nor no railing in a known discreet man, though he do nothing but reprove. Oli. Whence came you, sir?

Yio. I can say little more than I have studied. and that question's out of my part. Good gentle one, give me modest assurance, if you be the lady of the house, that I may proceed in my speech. Oii. Are you a comedian?

Vio. No, my profound heart: and yet, by the very langs of malice, I swear, I am not that I play. Are you the lady of the house?

Old. If I do not usurp myself, I am.

Pio. Most certain, if you are she, you do usurp My lord and master loves you; O, such love yourself; for what is yours to bestow, is not yourself Could but be recompens'd, though you were to reserve. But this is from my commission: I will on with my speech in your praise, and then show you the heart of my message.

Oli. Come to what is important in't: I forgive you the praise.

Vio. Alas, I took great pains to study it, and

'tis poefical.

Oit. It is the more like to be feigned; I oray you Yet I suppose him virtuous, know him noble, Oil. It is the more like to be lenging; a pray you yet I suppose him virtuous, know him none, keep it in. I heard, you were saucy of my gates: Of great estate, of fresh and stainless youth; and allowed your approach, rather to wonder at you than to hear you. If you be not mad, be and you than to hear you. If you be not mad, be and, in dimension, and the shape of nature, gone; if you have reason, be brief: 'tis not that a gracious person: but yet I cannot fore him; time of moon with me, to make one in so skipping He might have took his answer long agd.

Get thee to you' same sovereign crucity: Tell her, my love, more noble than the world, Tell her, my tove, more none man the world, Prizes not quantity of dirty lands;
The parts that fortune hath bestow'd upon her, Tell her, I hold as gildily as fortune;
But 'tis that miracle, and queen of gems,
That nature pracks' her in, attracts my soul,
Vio. But, if she cannot love you, sir'?
Date: I cannot he so navor'd.

Duke. I cannot be so answer'd. Vio. 'Sooth, but you must.
Say, that some lady, as, perhaps, there is,
Hath for your love as great a pang of heart

As you have for Olivia: you cannot love her:
You tell her so; Must she not then be answer'd?
Duke. There's is no woman's sides,
Can 'bide the heating of so strong a passion As love doth give my heart: no woman's heart So big, to hold so much; they lack retention. Alas, their love may be call'd apperite,— No motion of the liver, but the palate, That suffer surfeit, cloyment, and revolt; But mine is all as hungry as the sea, And can digest as much: make no compare Between that love a woman cun bear me, And that I owe Olivia.

Vic. Ay, but I know,-

Duke. What dost thou know !
Vio. Too well what love women to men may owe:

In faith, they are as true of heart as we. My father had a daughter lov'd a man, As it might be, perhaps, were I woman, I should your lordship.

Duke. And what's her history?

Vio. A blank, my lord: She never told her love,
But let concealment, like a worm i' the bud, Feed on her damask cheek: she pin'd in thought; And, with a green and yellow melancholy, She sat like patience on a monument, Smiling at grief. Was not this love, indeed? We men may say more, swear more: but, indeed,

Our shows are more than will; for still we prove Much in our rows, but little in our love.

Duke. But died thy sister of her love, my boy?

Vio. I am all the daughters of my father's house, And all the brothers too;—and yet I know not:—

Sir, shall I to this lady?

Duke.

Ay, that's the theme.

Ay, that's the theme. To her in haste; give her this jewel; say, My love can give no place, bide no denay.

SCENE V .- Olivia's Garden. Enter Sir Toby Beich, Sir Andrew Ague-cheek, and Fabian.

Sir To. Come thy ways, signior Fabian.
Fab. Nay, I'll come; if I lose a scruple of this sport, let me be boiled to death with meancholy.
Sir To. Would'st thou not be glad to have the niggardly ruscally sheep-biter come by some notable shame?

Fab. I would exult, man: you know, he brought me out of favour with my lady, about a bear-baiting here.

Sir To. To anger him, we'll have the bear again; and we will fool him black and blue: -Shall we not, sir Andrew?

Sir And. An we do not, it is pity of our lives.

I do not now fool myself, to let imagination jade me; for every reason excites to this, that my lady loves me. She did commend my yellow stockings of late, she did praise my leg being cross-gartered; and in this she manifests herself to my love, and, with a kind of injunction, drives me to these habits of her liking. I thank my stars, I am happy. I will be strange, stout, in yellow stockings, and cross-gartered, even with the swiftness of putting on. Jove, and my sters be praised!—Here is yet a postscript. Olf. Cross-gartered?

Mal. Go to: thou get made, if thou desirest to Ott. Am I made?

Mal. If not, let me see thee a servant still.
Oil. Why, this is very midsummer madness.

Enter Bergant.

Ser. Madam, the young gentleman of the count Orajno's is returned; I could hardly entreat him godliness.

back; he attends your ladyship's pleasure.
Ost. I'll come to him. [Exil Servant.] Ost. I'll come to him. All the state of the Maria, let this fellow be looked to. Where's my cousin Toby? Let some of my people have a special care of him; I would not have him miscarry for the half of my dowry. [Exit Olivia and Mar. when how?] no

Mal. Oh, ho! do you come near me now? no worse man than sir Toby to look to me? This conworse man tran are 1000 to 100k to me? I me compute the series directly with the letter; she sends him on purpose, that I may appear stubborn to him; for she incites me to that in the letter. Cast the humble slong, he says she; be opposite with a kineman, surfy with servents,—let the iongue long with arguments with servents,—let the iongue long with arguments of state,—put they if into the trick of singularity;—and bound. My nicee is already in the belief that and, consequently, sets down the manner how; as, it is mad; we may carry it thus for our pleasure, a sad face, a reverend carriage, a slow tongue, in and his penance, till our yery pastime, tired out of the belief fearns air of note and so forth. I have breath, prompt us to have mercy on him; at which the habit of some sir of note, and so forth. I have breath, prompt us to have mercy on him: at which limed her; but it is Jove's doing, and Jove make time, we will bring the device to the bar, and imed her; I but it is Jove's doing, and Jove make tune, we will bring the device to the bar, and me thankful! And, when she went away now, Let crown thee for a finder of madmen. But see, but see. this fellow be looked to: Fellow! not Malvolio, nor after my degree, but fellow. Why, every thing adheres together; that no dram of a scruple, no or scruple of a scruple, no obstacle, no incredulous or immite circumstance.—What can be said? Nothing, rant, there's the challenge, read it; I war-immite circumstance.—What can be said? Nothing, rant, there's vinegar and pepper in't.

Fab. More matter for a May morning.

Sir And. Here's the challenge, read it; I war-immite circumstance, and the full prospect of my hopes. Well, Jove, not I, is the doer of this, and he is to be thanked.

Sir To. Give me. [reads.] Youth, whatsoeser than art. thou art has a scurve fellow.

Re-enter Maria, with Sir Toby Belch, and Fabian.

Sir To. Which way is he, in the name of sanctity ? If all the devils in hell be drawn in little, and Legion himself possessed him, yet l'Il speak to him.

Fab. Here he is, here he is:—How is't with you, air? how is't with you, man?

1) Hot weather madness.

Off. Wilt thou go to bed, Malvolio?

Mal. To bed? ay, sweet-heart; and I'll come prays you to have a care of him.

Mal. Ah, ha! does she so?

Sir To. Go to, go to; peace, we must deal Mar. How do you, Malvollo?

Mer. How do you, Malvollo?

Mar. How do you, Malvollo?

Mal. At your request? Yes; nightingales and devil: consider, he's an enemy to mankind.

Mal. Do you know what you say?

Mar. La you, an you speak ill of the devil, how he takes it at heart! Pray God, he be not be-

Fab. Carry his water to the wise woman.

Mar. Marry, and it shall be done to-morrow morning, if I live. My lady would not lose him for more than I'll say.

Mal. How now, mistress?

Mar. O lord!

Sir To. Pr'ythee, hold thy peace; this is not the way : Do you not see, you move him? let me siene

Fab. No way but gentleness; gently, gently: the fiend is rough, and will not be roughly used.

Sir To. Why, how now, my bawcock? how dost thou, chuck?

Jal. Sir ?

Sir To. Ay, Biddy, come with me. What, man? 'tis not for gravity to play at cherry-pit' with Satan: Hung him, foul collier !

Mar. Get him to say his prayers; good sir Toby, get him to pray.

Mid. My prayers, minx?
Mar. No, I warrant you, he will not hear of

Mal. Go, hang yourselves all i you are kile, shallow things: I am not of your element; you Where's my shall know more hereafter.

Sir To. Is't possible! Fab. If this were played upon a stage now, I could condemn it as an improbable fiction, Sir To. His very genius hath taken the infaction of the device, man.

Sir To. Give me. [reads.] You thou art, thou art but a scurvy fellow. Feb. Good, and valiant.

Sir To. Wonder not, nor admire not in thy mind, why I do call thee so, for I will show thee no reason Fab. A good note: that keeps you from the blow of the law.

Jolly cock, begs and esq.

Sir To. Thou comest to the lady Olivia, and in A fiend, like thee, might bear my soul to hell. [Ex. my sight she uses thee kindly: but thou liest in thy through that is not the matter I challenge thee for.

Fab. Very brief, and exceeding good senso-less.

Sir To. I will way-lay thee going home; where if it be thy chance to kill me,

It is the thy chance to kill me,

Fast. Good.

Sir To. Thou killest me like a rogue and a villain. Fab. Still you keep o' the windy side of the law: Good.

Sir To. Fore thee well; And God have mercy upon one of our souls! He may have mercy upon mine; but my hope is better, and so look to thy-self. Thy friend, as thou usest him, and thy Andrew Ague-cheek.

Sir To. If this letter moves him not, his legs cannot: I'll giv't him.

Mar. You may have very fit occasion for't; he

Sir To. Go, sir Andrew; secut me for him at the corner of the orchard, like a burn-bailiff: so ase a corner of the orener, has a buggestime so soon as ever thou seest him, draw; and as thou drawest, swear horrible; for it comes to pass off, that a terrible oath, with a swaggering accent sharply twanged off, gives manhood more appro-bation than ever proof itself would have earned bim. Away.

Str. And. Nay, let me alone for swearing. [Ex. Sir To. Now will not I deliver his letter: for the behaviour of the young gentleman gives him out to be of good capacity and breeding; his employment between his lord and my niece confirms no less; therefore this letter, being so excellently ig-norant, will breed no terror in the youth, he will find it comes from a clodpole. But, sir, I will de-liver his challenge by word of mouth; set upon Agus-cheek a notable report of valour; and drive the gentleman (as, I know, his youth will aptly receive it,) into a most hideous opinion of his rage, skill, fury, and impetuosity. This will so fright skill, fury, and impetuosity. This will so fright them both, that they will kill one another by the look, like cockstrices.

Enter Olivia and Viola.

Fab. Here he comes with your niece: give them way, till he take leave, and presently after him. Str To. I will meditate the white upon some horrid message for a challenge.
[Excust Sir Toby, Fabian, and Maria.

Olf. I have said too much unto a heart of stone, And laid mine honour too unchary! out : There's something in me, that reproves my fault; But such a headstrong potent fault it is, That it but mocks reproof.

Vis. With the same haviour that your passion bears,

Go on my master's griefs.

Old. Here, wear this jewel for me, 'tis my picture; Refuse it not, it bath no tongue to vex you: And, I beseech you, come again to-morrow. What shall you ask of me, that I'll deny; That bonour, sav'd, may upon asking give?

Vio. And you, sir. Sir To. That defence thou hast, betake thee to't: of what nature the wrongs are thou hast done him, I know not; but thy intercepter, full of despight, bloody as the hunter, attends thee at the orchard end: dismount thy tack, be yare in thy preparation, for thy asskilant is quick, skilful, and deadly.

Vio. You mistake, sir; I am sure, no man hath any quarrel to me; my remembrance is very free and clear from any image of offence done to any man.

Sir To. You'll find it otherwise, I assure you: *** As a count mod to energies, I assure you:

Vio. I pray you, sir, what is he? Sir To. He is knight, dubbed with unhacked rapier, and on carpet consideration; but he is a devil in private brawl; souls and bodies hath he divorced three; and his incensement at this moment is so implacable, that satisfaction can be none but by pange of death and sepulchre: hob, nob, is his word; give't, or take't.

Vio. I will return again into the house, and desire some conduct of the lady. I am no fighter. I have heard of some kind of men, that put quarrels purposely on others, to taste their valour : belike

Sir To. Sir, no; his indignation derives itself out of a very competent injury; therefore, get you on, and give him his desire. Back you shall not to the house, unless you undertake that with me, which with as much safety you might answer him: therefore, on, or strip your sword stark naked; for meddie you must, that's certain, or forswear to wear iron about you.

Vio. This is as uncivil, as strange. I beseech you, do me this courteous office, as to know of the knight what my offence to him is; it is something of my negligence, nothing of my purpose.

Sir To. I will do so. Signior Fabian, stay you by this gentleman till my return. [Exit Sir Toby. Vio. Pray you, sir, do you know of this matter? Fab. I know, the knight is increased against you.

even to a mortal arbitrament; but nothing of the circumstance more.

Fig. I beseech you, what manner of man is he? Fab. Nothing of that wonderful promise, to read him by his form, as you are like to find him in the proof of his valour. He is, indeed, sir, the most skilful, bloody, and fatal opposite that you could possibly have found in any part of Illyria: will you walk towards him? I will make your peace with him, if I can.

Vio. I shall be much bound to you fort: I am one, that would rather go with air priest, than eir knight: I care not who knows so much of my mettle. Execut.

Re-enter Sir Toby, with Sir Andrew.

Sir To. Why, man, he's a very devil; I have not seen such a virage. I had a pass with him, rapier, scabbard, and all, and he gives me the stuck-in, with such a mortal motion, that it is inevitable; and on the answer, he pays you as surely

I have his horse [to Fub.] to take up the quarrel;

I have permuaded him, the youth's a devil.

Fab. He is as horribly conceited of him; and ents, and looks pale, as if a bear were at his beck.

Sw To. There's no remedy, air; he will fight with you for his cath sake: marry, he hath better bethought him of his quarrel, and he finds that now scarce to be worth taiking of: therefore draw, for the supportance of his vow; he protests, he will not hurt you.

Vio. Pray God defend me! A little thing would make me tell them how much I lack of a Aride.

Fab. Give ground, if you see him furious.

Fab. Give ground, it you see mm surrous.
Sir To. Come, sir Andrew, there's no remedy;
the gentleman will, for his honour's sake, have one bout with you: he cannot by the duello* avoid it;
but he has promised me, as he is a gentleman and a soldier, he will not hurt you. Come on; to't.

You. What money, sir?

For the fair kindness you have show'd me here,

[Aride. Hold, there is half my coffer.

Will you deny me now? Aπ'. la't possible, that my deserts to you Can lack persuasion? Do not tempt my misery, Lest that it make me so unsound a man, As to upbraid you with those kindnesses That I have done for you.

I know of none; Vio. Nor know I you by voice, or any feature: I hate ingratitude more in a man,

Than lying, vainness, babbling, drunkenness, Or any taint of vice, whose strong corruption Inhabits our frail blood.

O heavens themselves! Ant.

2 Off. Come, sir, I pray you, go. dat. Let me speak a little. This youth that you see here, I snatch'd one half out of the jaws of death; Rolley'd him with such sanctity of love,—

And to his image, which, methought, did promise
Most venerable worth, did I devotion.

1 Off. What's that to us? The time goes by;

Ant. But, O, how vile an idol proves this god !-Thou hast, Sebastian, done good feature shame.-In nature there's no blemish, but the mind; None can be call'd deform'd, but the unkind: Virtue is beauty; but the beauteous-evil Are empty trunks, o'erflourish'd' by the devil.

Fab. Any thing.

Cio. Do not dezire to see this letter. Whom thou, in terms so bi desire my dog again.

Enter Duke, Viola, and attendants.

Duke. Belong you to the ledy Olivia, friends? Cto. Ay, sir; we are some of her trappings.
Duke. I know thee trell; How dost thou, my good fellow?

Clo. Truly, sir, the better for my foes, and the worse for my friends.

Duke. Just the contrary; the better for thy friends.

Clo. No. sir, the worse. Duke. How can that be?

Clo. Marry, sir, they praise me, and make an ass of me; now my foes tell me plainly I am an ass: so that by my foes, cir, I profit in the knowledge of myself; and by my friends I am abused: 50 that, conclusions to be as kisses, if your four negatives make your two affirmatives, why, then the worse for my friends, and the better for my form. for my friends, and the better for my focs.

Dute. Why, this is excellent.

Clo. By my troth, sir, no; though it please you

Duke. Thou shalt not be the worse for me;

there's gold.

Cio. But that it would be double-dealing, sir, I would you could make it another.

Duke. O, you give me ill counsel.

Cle. Put your grace in your pocket, sir, for this once, and let your flesh and blood abey it.

Duks. Well, I will be so much a sinner to be a double-dealer; there's another.

Clo. Primo, secundo, tertio, is a good play; and the old saying is, the third pays for all: the triplex, sir, is a good tripping measure; or the belis of St. " Bennet, sir, may put you in mind; One, two, three.

Duke. You can fool no more money out of me at this throw: if you will let your lady know, I am bere to speak with her, and bring her along with yeu, it may awake my bounty further.

Clo. Marry, sir, lullaby to your bounty, till I come again. I go, sir; but I would not have you to think, that my desire of having is the sin of covetousness: but, as you say, sir, let your bounty take a nap, I will awake it anon.

[Ext Clown.

Enter Antonio and Officers,

Ylo. Here comes the man, sir, that did rescue me. Duke. That face of his I do remember well; Yet, when I saw it last, it was besmear'd As black as Vulcun, in the smoke of war: A bawbling vessel was he captain of, For shallow draught, and bulk, unprizable: With which such scathfull grapple did he make With the most noble bottom of our fleet,

And this is he, that did the Tiger board, When your young nephew Titus lost his leg: Here in the streets, desperate of shame, and state, In private brabble did we apprehend him.

But I bespake you fair, and hurt you not.

Sir And. If a bloody coxcomb be a hurt, you have hurt me; I think, you set nothing by a bloody coxcomb.

Enter Sir Toby Belch, drunk, led by the Clown.

Here comes sir Toby halting, you shall hear more: but if he had not been in drink, he would have tickled you othergates' than he did.

Duke. How now, gentlemen? how is't with you? Sir To. That's all one; he has hurt me, and there's the end on't.—Sot, did'st see Dick surgeon, Cio. O he's drunk, air Toby, an hour agune; his eyes were set at eight i' the morning.

Sir To. Then he's a rogue. After a passy-mea-

Enter Schastian.

Seb. I am sorry, madam, I have hurt your kins

But, had it been the brother of my blood, I must have done no less, with wit, and safety. You throw a strange regard upon me, and By that I do perceive it hath offended you; Pardon me, sweet one, even for the yows We made each other but so late ego.

Duke. One face, one voice, one habit, and two региона?

A natural perspective, that is, and is not. Seb. Antonio, O my dear Antonio How have the hours rack'd and tortur'd me, Since I have lost thee.

Ant. Sebastian are you?

Fear'st thou that, Antonic?

Ant. How have you made division of yourself? An apple, cleft in two, is not more twin Than these two creatures. Which is Sebastian?

Oli. Most wonderful! Seb. Do I stand there? I never had a brother: Nor can there be that delty in my nature, Of here and every where. I had a sister, Whom the blind waves and surges have devour'd:

Of charity, what kin are you to me? [To Viola. What countryman? what name? what parentage, Vio. Of Messaline: Sobastian was my father; Such a Sebastian was my brother too, So went be suited to his watery tomb:

Sir And. He has broke my series for the love given sir Toby a bloody coxcomb too: for the love of God, your help: I had rather than forty pound, I were at home.

Oli. Who has done this, sir Andrew?
Sir And. The count's gentleman, one Cesario: Were you a wernan, as the rest goes even, we took him for a coward, but he's the very deril I should my tears let fall upon your cheek, And say—Thrice welcome, drowned Yiois?

Vio. My father had a mole upon his brow.

Sch. And so had mine. A spirit I am indeed;

Seb. So comes it, lady, you have been mistook: [ To Olivia.

But nature to her bias drew in that. You would have been contracted to a maid; Nor are you therein, by my life, deceiv'd; You are betroth'd both to a maid and man

Duke. Be not amaz'd ; right noble is his blood If this be so, as yet the glass seems true, I shall have share in this most happy wreck: Boy, thou hast said to me a thousand times, Thou never should'st love woman like to me.

Vio. And all those sayings will I over-swear; And all those swearings keep as true in soul, As doth that orbed continent the fire That severs day from night.

Give me thy hand; Duke. And let me see thee in thy woman's weeds.

Vio. The captain, that did bring me first on shore.

But when I came to man's estate, With key, ho, the wind and the rain, 'Gainst knove and thief men shut their gate, For the rain it raineth every day.

But when I came, alas! to wive, With hey, ho, the wind and the rain, By maggering could I never thrive, For the rain it raineth every day.

But taken I came unto my bed, With hey, ho, the wind and the rain, With toss-pots still had drunken head, For the rain it raineth every day,

A great while ago the world begun,
With hey, ho, the wind and like rain,
But that's all one, our play is done,
And we'll strive to please you every day.
[Exit.

This play is in the graver part elegant and easy and in some of the lighter scenes exquisitely humorous. Ague-cheek is drawn with great propriety, but his character is, in a great measure, that of natural fatuity, and is therefore not the proper prey of a satirist. The sollloquy of Maivolio is truly comic; he is betrayed to ridicule merely by his pride. The marriage of Olivia, and the succeeding perplexity, though well enough contrived to ing perplexity, though well enough contrived to divert on the stage, wants credibility, and fails to produce the proper instruction required in the dra ma, as it exhibits no just picture of life. SCENE I.—In apartment in the Duke's palace. Enter Duke, Escalus, Lords, and attendants.

Duke.

Escalus, Escal. My lord.

Dake. Of government the properties to unfold, Would seem in me to affect speech and discourse; Since I am put to know that your own science, Exceeds, in that, the lists of all advice My strength can give you: then no more remains But that to your sufficiency, as your worth is able, And let them work. The nature of our people, Our city's institutions, and the terms For common justice, you are as pregnants in, As art and practice hath enriched any That we remember: there is our commission, From which we would not have you warp. hither,

I say, bid come before us Angelo.

[Exit on attendant. What figure of us think you he will bear?
For you must know, we have with special soul Elected him our absence to supply ; Lent him our terror, drest him with our love; And given his deputation all the organs Of our own power: what think you of it?

Ercal. If any in Vienna be of worth
To undergo such ample grace and honour,

It is lord Angelo.

Enter Angelo.

Look, where he come .fng. Always obedient to your grace's will, I come to know your pleasure. Duke. Angelo, There is a kind of character in thy life, That, to the observer, doth thy history Fully unfold: thyself and thy belongings Are not thine own so proper, as to waste

Make us pay down for our offence by weight.—
The words of heaven;—on whom it will, it will;
On whom it will not, so; yet still 'dis just.
Liscio. Why, how now, Claudio? whence comes this restraint?

Claud. From too much liberty, my Lucio, liberty: As surfeit is the father of much fast, So every scope by the immoderate use Turns to restraint: our natures do pursue (Like rats that ravin' down their proper bane,) A thirsty evil; and when we drink, we die.

Lucio. If I could speak so wisely under an arrest, I would send for certain of my creditors: and yet, to say the truth, I had as lief have the foppery of freedom, as the morality of imprisonment.—What's thy offence, Claudio?

Claud. What, but to speak of world offend again.

Lucio. What is it? murder? Claud. No. Lucio. Lechery? Claud. Call it so.

Prov. Away, sir; you must go. Claud. One word, good friend:—Lucio, a word Takes him aside. with you. Lucio. A hundred, if they'll do you any good.

Is lechery so look'd after?

Claud. Thus stands it with me: Upon a true

contráct,

I got possession of Julietta's bed; You know the lady; she is fast my wife, Save that we do the denunciation lack Of outward order: this we came not to, Only for propagation of a dower Remaining in the coffer of her friends; From whom we thought it meet to hide our love, Till time had made them for us. But it chances, The stealth of our most mutual entertainment,

With character too gross, is writ on Juliet.

Lucio. With child, perhaps?

Claud. Unhappily, even so.

And the new deputy now for the duke.— Whether it be the fault and glimpse of newness; Or whether that the body public be A horse whereon the governor doth ride, Who, newly in the seat, that it may know He can command, lets it straight feel the spur: Whether the tyranny be in his piace, Or in his eminence that fills it up, I stagger in :—But this new governor
Awakee me all the enrolled penalties,
Which have, like unscour'd armour, hung by the wall

So long, that nineteen zodiacs have gone round, And none of them been worn; and, for a name, Now puts the drowsy and neglected act

Now puts the management of a name.

Freshly on me:—'tis surely for a name.

Lucio. I warrant it is: and thy head stands so father, tickle* on thy shoulders, that a milk-maid, if she tickle* on thy shoulders, that a milk-maid, if she tickle* on thy shoulders, that a milk-maid, if she tickle* on thy shoulders, that a milk-maid, if she tickle* on thy shoulders, that a milk-maid, if she tickle* on thy shoulders, that a milk-maid, if she tickle* on thy shoulders, that a milk-maid, if she tickle* on the sight of the sight, be in love, may sigh it off. Send after the duke, and appeal to him.

CENE III.—1'he assie.—Enter Provost,' Cland Claud. I have done so, but he's not to be found. I die, Juliet, and Officers; Lucio, and two Gen-I pr'ythee, Lucio, do me this kind service: themen.

This day my sister should the cloister enter, Claud. Fellow, why dost thou show me thus to Acquaint her with the danger of my state; the world? Implore her, in my voice, that she make friends To the strict deputy; bid herself assay him; I have great hope in that: for in her youth There is a prone and speechless dialect, Such as moves men; besides, she bath presperous

> When she will play with reason and discourse. Lucio. I pray she may: as well for the encourage-ment of the like, which else would stand under grievous imposition; as for the enjoying of thy life, > who I would be sorry should be thus foolishly lost at a game of tick-tack. I'll to her.

>
> Cloud. I thank you, good friend Lucio.
>
> Lucio. Within two hours.— Claud. Come, officer, away.

Except. SCENE 17.-A monactery. Enter Duke and Frier Thomas.

Duke. No; holy father; throw away that thought; Believe not that the dribbling dart of love Can pierce a complete bosom: why I desire thre To give me secret harbour, hath a purpose More grave and wrinkled than the aims and ends Of burning youth.

May your grace speak of it? Duke. My holy sir, none better knows than you How I have ever lov'd the life remov'd; And held in idle price to heunt assemblies, Where youth, and cost, and witiess bravery keeps.* I have delivered to lord Angelo (A man of stricture, 10 and firm abstinence,)
My absolute power and place here in Vienna,
And he supposes me travell'd to Poland;

For so I have strew'd it in the common ear, And so it is receiv'd: now, plous sir, You will demand of me, why I do this?

Fri. Gladly, my lord, Duke. We have strict statutes, and most biting laws

The needful bits and curbs for headstrong steeds,) Which for these four cursus to necessary we have let sleep; Even like an over-grown lion in a cave, Even like an over-grown lion in a cave, That goes not out to prey: now, as fond fathers Itaving bound up the threating twigs of birch, Only to stick it in their children's sight, For terror, not to use; in time the rod Becomes more mock'd, than fear'd: so our decrees, Dead to infliction, to themselves are dead; And liberty plucks justice by the nose The baby beats the nurse, and quite athwart Goes all decorum.

It rested in your grace Fyi. To unlosse this tied-up justice, when you pleas'd: And it in you more dreadful would have seen'd, Than in lord Angelo.

I do fear, too dreadful: Sith<sup>11</sup> twas my fault to give the people scope,
'Twould be my tyranny to strike, and gall them
For what I bid them do: for we bid this be done, When orli deeds have their permissive past, And not the punishment. Therefore, mined, my father,

(7) Completely armed, (9) Showy dress resides, (8) Retired. (10) Strictness, (11) Since,

To do it simder: and to behold his sway, I will, as 'twere a brother of your order,'
Visit both prince and people: therefore, I pr'ythee, Supply me with the babit, and instruct me How I may formally in person bear me. Like a true frier. More reasons for this action, At our more lessure shall I render you; Only, this one :- Lord Angelo is precise; Stands at a guard with envy; scarce confesses. That his blood flows, or that his appetite Is more to bread than stone: hence shall we see, If power change purpose, what our scemers be-Execut.

SCENE V .- A monnery. Enter Isabella and Francisca

Isab. And have you nuns no further privileges?
Fron. Are not those large enough?
Isab. Yes, truly: I speak not as desiring more; But rather wishing a more strict restraint
Upon the sisterhood, the votarists of saint Clare.
Lucio. He! peace be in this place! [Within.
Isab. Who's that which calls? From. It is a man's voice: gentle Isabella, Turn you the key, and know his business of him; You may, I may not; you are yet unsworn: When you have vow'd, you must not speak with mėn,

But in the presence of the prioress: Then, if you speak, you must not show your face; Or, if you show your face, you must not speak. He calls again; I pray you answer him.

Exit Francisca Isab. Peace and prosperity! Who is't that calls?

Enter Lucio.

Lucio. Hail, virgin, if you be; as those checkroses

Proclaim you are no less! can you so stead me, As bring me to the sight of Isabella, A novice of this place, and the fair sister To her mahappy brother Claudio? Linb. Why her unhappy brother? let me ask;

The rather, for I now must make you know I am that Imbella, and his sister.

Lucio. Gentle and fair, your brother kindly greets you:

Not to be weary with you, he's in prison.

Isab. Wo me! For what?

Lucio. For that, which, if myself might be his judge,

He should receive his punishment in thanks: He bath got his friend with child. Issb. Bir, make me not your story.

It is true. Lucio I would not—though 'tis my familiar sin With maids to seem the lapwing, and to jest, Tongue far from heart,—play with all virgins so: I hold you as a thing ensky'd, and sainted; By your renouncement, an immortal spirit; And to be talk'd with in mneerity, As with a maint.

Lacle. Do not believe it. Fewness and truth,2 Your brother and his lover have embrac'd: As those that feed grow full; as blossoming time, That from the seedness the bare fallow brings

On his definee. (2) Do not make a jest of me

(5) he few and true words. (4) Breeding pleaty. (5) Tiling. (6) Extent.

To teeming foison; a even so her plenteous womb Expresseth his full tilth and husbandry. Isse, Some one with child by him?—My consist Juliet ?

Incle. Is she your cousin?
Isab. Adoptedly: as school-maids change there cames,

By vain though apt affection.

Isab. O, let him marry her ! Lucio. This is the point. The duke is very strangely gone from hence; Bore many gentlemen, myself being one, In hand, and hope of action: but we do learn By those that know the very nerves of state, His givings out were of an infinite distance From his true-meant design. Upon his place, And with full lines of his authority, Governs lord Angelo; a man, whose blood Is very snow-broth; one who never feels The wanton stings and motions of the sense: But doth rebate and blunt his natural edge With profits of the mind, study and fast. He (to give fear to use and liberty, Which have, for long, run by the hideous law, As mice by lions,) bath pick'd out an act, Under whose heavy sense your brother's life Falls into forfeit: he arrests him on it;

To make him an example: all hope is gone, Unless you have the grace' by your fair payer. To soften Angelo: and that's my pith Of business 'twixt you and your poor brother.

Isab. Doth he so seek his life? Has censur'd him Lucio.

And follows close the rigour of the statute,

Already; and, as I hear, the provest hath A warrant for his execution. Isob. Alas! what poor ability's in me

To do him good? Lucio. Assay the power you have.

Isab. My power! Alas I I doubt,—
Lucio. Our doubts are traitors, And make us lose the good we oft might win, By fearing to attempt: go to lord Angele, And let him learn to know, when maidens suc,

All their petitions are as freely theirs

As they themselves would owe them.

Isab. I'll see what I can do.

Lucio. But speedily. Isab. I will about it straight;

No longer staying but to give the mother!"
Notice of my affair. I humbly thank you:
Commend me to my brother: soon at night I'll send him certain word of my success.

Lucio. I take my leave of you. Iseb. . Good air, adies. Examt.

ACT II.

into You do blaspheme the good, in mocking SCENE I.—A hall in Angelo's house. Enter the.

Angelo, Escalus, a Justice, Provest, Officers, and silendaris.

> Ang. We must not make a scare crow of the law, Setting it up to fear 1 the birds of proy,
> And let it keep one shape, till custom make &
> Their perch, and not their terror.

(7) Power of gaining favour. (8) Sentenced. (9) Harp. (10) Abbem. (11) Seare.

Ay, but yet Let us be keen, and rather cut a little,
Than fall, and bruise to death: alas! this gentleman,
Whom I would save, had a most noble father.
Let but your honour know! Escal.

(Whom I believe to be most strait in virtue,)

That, in the working of your own affections, Had time coher'd<sup>2</sup> with place, or place with wishing, Or that the resolute acting of your blood Could have attain'd the effect of your own purpose, Whether you had not sometime in your life Err'd in this point which now you censure him, And pull'd the law upon you.

Ang. 'Tis one thing to be tempted, Escalus, Another thing to fall. I not deny, The jury, passing on the prisoner's life, May, in the sworn twelve, have a thief or two

Guiltier than him they try: what's open made to justice,

That justice seizes. What know the laws. That thieves do pass' on thieves ? 'Tis very pregnant.4 The jewel that we find, we stoop and take it, Because we see it; but what we do not see, We tread upon, and never think of it. You may not so extenuate his offence For I have had such faults; but rather tell me, When I, that censure him, do so offend, Let mine own judgment pattern out my death, And nothing come in partial. Sir, he must die.

Escal. Be it as your wisdom will.

Ang. Where is the provost? Prov. Here, if it like your honour.

See that Claudio Be executed by nine to-morrow morning: Bring him his confessor, let him be prepar'd;
For that's the utmost of his pilgrimage. [Ex. Prov.
Escal. Well, heaven forgive him; and forgive us all!

Some rise by sin, and some by virtue fall: Sometrun from brakes' of sice, and answer none; And some condemned for a fault alone.

Enter Elbow, Froth, Clown, Officers, &c.

Elb. Come, bring them away: if these be good people in a common weal, that do nothing but use their abuses in common houses, I know no law.;

bring them away.

Ang. How now, sir! what's your name? and what's the matter?

what's the matter?

Elb. If it please your honour, I am the poor duke's constable, and my name is Elbow; I do lean upon justice, sir, and do bring in here before your good honour two notorious benefactors.

Ang. Benefactors? Well; what benefactors are they? are they not malefactors?

Elb. If it please your honour, I know not well what they are: but precise villains they are, that I am sure of; and void of all profanation in the world, that good Christians ought to have.

Escal. This comes off well; here's a wise officer.

Ang. Go to: what quality are they of? Elbow

dag. Go to: what quality are they of? Elbow is your name? Why dost thou not speak, Elbow? Clo. He cannot, sir; he's out at elbow.

Ang. What are you, sir?

Elb. He, sir? a tapster, sir; parcel¹º-bawd; one that serves a bad woman; whose house, sir, was, as they say, pluck'd down in the suburbs; and now she professes¹¹ a hot-house, which, I think, is a very ill house too.

(1) Examine. (2) Sunted. (3) Pass judgment. (4) Plain. (5) Because. (6) Sentence. (7) Thickest, thorny paths of vice. (6) Wealth.

Escal. How know you that?

Elb. My wife, sir, whom I detest<sup>12</sup> before heaven and your honour,— Escal. How! thy wife?

Elb. Ay, sir; whom, I thank heaven, is an honest woman, Escal. Dost thou detest her therefore?

Elb. I say, sir, I will detest myself also, as well as she, that this house, if it be not a bawd's house, it is pity of her life, for it is a naughty house.

Escal. How dost thou know that, constable?

Elb. Marry, sir, by my wife; who, if she had been a woman cardinally given, might have been accused in fornication, adultery, and all uncleanli-

Escal. By the woman's means?

Elb. Ay, sir, by mistress Over-done's means: but as she spit in his face, so she defied him. Clo. Sir, if it please your honour, this is not so. Elb. Prove it before these variets here, thou honourable man, prove it.

Escal. Do you hear how he misplaces?

[To Angelo. Clo. Sir, she came in great with child; and longing (saving your honour's reverence) for stew'd prunes: sir, we had but two in the house, which at that very distant time stood, as it were, in a fruit-dish, a dish of some three-pence: your honours have seen such dishes; they are not China dishes, but very good dishes.

Escal. Go to, go to: no matter for the dish, sir.

Clo. No, indeed, sir, not of a pin; you are therefore in the right: but, to the point: as I say, this mistress Elbow, being, as I say, with child, and being great belly'd, and longing, as I said, for prunes;
and having but two in the dish, as I said, master Froth here, this very man, having eaten the rest, as I said, and, as I say, paying for them very honestly;
—for, as you know, master Froth, I could not give you three-pence again.

Froth. No, indeed.
Cle. Very well: you being then, if you be remember'd, cracking the stones of the foresaid prunes.

Froth. Ay, so I did, indeed.

Clo. Why, very well: I telling you then, if you be remember'd, that such a one, and such a one, were past cure of the thing you wot of, unless they kept very good diet, as I told you.

Froth. All this is true.

Clo. Why, very well then.

Escal. Come, you are a tedious fool: to the pur pose.—What was done to Elbow's wife, that he hath cause to complain of? Come me to what was done to her.

Clo. Sir, your honour cannot come to that yet.

Escal. No, sir, nor I mean it not.

Clo. Sir, but you shall come to it, by your honour's leave: and I beseech you, look into master Froth here, sir; a man of fourscore pound a year; whose father died at Hallowmas: -- Was't not at whose father died at Hallowmas:—Was't not at Hallowmas, master Froth?

Froth. All-hollond's eve.

Clo. Why, very well; I hope here be truths: he, sir, sitting, as I say, in a lower's chair, sir; 'twas in the Bunch of Grapes, where, indeed, you have a delight to sit: have you not?

Froth. I have so; because it is an open room, and cood for winter.

Cto. I beseech your honour, ask me.

Escal. Well, sir: what did this gentleman to her?

Cto. I beseech you, sir, look in this gentleman's face:—Good master Froth, look upon his honour;

'tis for a good purpose: doth your honour mark his face?

Escal. Ay, sir, very well.
Clo. Nay, I beseech you, mark it well.
Escal. Well, I do so.

Cle. Doth your honour see any harm in his face?

Escal. Why, no. Clo. I'll be suppos'd upon a book, his face is the worst thing about him; good then; if his face be the worst thing about him, how could master Froth do the constable's wife any harm? I would know that of your honour.

Escal. He's in the right: constable, what say you to it?

Elb. First, an it like you, the house is a respected house; next, this is a respected fellow; and his mistress is a respected woman.

Clo. By this hand, sir, his wife is a more respected person than any of us all.

Elb. Variet, thou liest; thou liest, wicked varlet: the time is yet to come, that she was ever respected with man, woman, or child.

Clo. Sir, she was respected with him before he married with her.

Escal. Which is the wiser here? justice, or iniquity? Is this true?

Elb. O thou caitiff! O thou variet! O thou wicked Hannibal! I respected with her, before I was married to her? If ever I was respected with her, or she with me, let not your worship think me the poor duke's officer :- Prove this, thou wicked Han-

Ang. This will last out a night in Russia,

When nights are longest there: I'll take my leave,
And leave you to the hearing of the cause;
Hoping, you'll find good cause to whip them all.

Excel. I think no less: good morrow to your lordship.

Ext. Angelo, me hear no more of you.

Now air, come oc: what was done to Elbow's.

master tapster; what's your name, master tapster?

Clo. Pompey. Escal. What else?

Clo. Bum, air.

Eacal. Troth, and your burn is the greatest thing about you; so that, in the beastliest sense, you are Pompey the great. Pompey, you are partly a bawd, Pompey, howsoever you colour it in being a transfer of the partly and the partly are the partly as the pa tapeter. Are you not? come, tell me true; it shall be the better for you.

Clo. Truly, sir, I am a poor fellow, that would Escal. How would you live, Pompey? by being a bawd? What do you think of the trade, Pompey? is it a lawful trade?

Clo. If the law would allow it, sir.

Escal. But the law will not allow it, Pompey; nor it shall not be allowed in Vienna.

Clo. Does your worship mean to geld and may all the youth in the city? Escal. No, Pompey. Cle. Truly, sir, in my poor opinion, they will to't then: if your worship will take order for the drabs and the knaves, you need not to fear the bawda.

Excel. There are pretty orders beginning, I can tell you: it is but heading and hanging. Clo. If you head and hang all that offend that way but for ten year together, you'll be glad to give out a commission for more heads. If this law hold in Vienna ten year, I'll rent the fairest house in it, after three-pence a bay: if you live to see this come to pass, say Pompey told you so.

Escal. Thank you, good Pompey: and, in requital of your prophecy, hark you,—I advise you, let me not find you before me again upon any compoor duke's otheer:—Frove this, thou wicked Hanlet me not find you before me again upon any complaint whatseever, no, not for dwelling where you Escal. I thought, by your readiness in the office, you had continued in it some time: You say, soven years together?

Elb. And a half, sir.

Just. Eleven, sir.

Escal. I pray you home to dinner with me. Just. I humbly thank you.

Escal. It grieves me for the death of Claudio;

But there's no remedy.

Just. Lord Angelo is severe.

Escal. It is but needful: Mercy is not itself, that oft looks so: Pardon is still the nurse of second wo: But yet,—Poor Claudio!—There's no remedy. Come, sir. [Exer

SCENE II .- Another room in the same. Enter Provost and a Servant.

Serv. He's hearing of a cause; he will come

Fil tell him of you.

Prov. Pray you, do. [Exit Servant.] I'll know His pleasure; may be, he will relent: Alas, He hath but as offended in a dream ! All sects, all ages, smack of this vice; and he To die for it!

Enter Angelo.

Prov. Is it your will Claudio shall die to-morrow? Ang. Did I not tell thee, yea? hadst thou not order?

Why dost thou ask again? Lest I might be too rash: Under your good correction, I have seen,

When, after execution, judgment hath

Repented o'er his doom. Go to; let that be mine; Do you your office, or give up your place, And you shall we'll be spar'd.

I crave your honour's pardon. What shall be done, sir, with the groaning Juliet? She's very near her hour.

Ang. Dispose of her To some more fitter place; and that with speed.

Re-enter Servant.

Serv. Here is the sister of the man condemn'd, Desires access to you.

Ang. Hath he a sister? Prov. Ay, my good lord; a very virtuous maid, And to be shortly of a sisterhood,

Ang. Well, let her be admitted. [Ex. Serv. See you the fornicatress be remov'd;
Let her have needful, but not lavish, means; There shall be order for it.

Enter Lucio and Isabella.

Prov. Save your honour! Offering to relire. dig. Stay a little while.—[To lash.] You welcome: What's your will?

Isab. I am a woful suitor to your honour, You are

Please but your honour hear me.

Mell; what's your sundants. There is a vice, that most I do abhor, And most deshre should meet the blow of justice; Well; what's your suit? Boy which I would not plead, but that I must;

> (1) Pitz (2) Be assured.

Ang.
Isab. I have a brother is condemn'd to die: Well; the matter?

Prov. Heaven give thee moving graces! Ang. Condemn the fault, and not the actor of it! Why, every fault's condemn'd, ere it be done: Mine were the very cypher of a function, To find the faults, whose fine stands in record, And let go by the actor.

Isab. O just, but severe law!
I had a brother than.—Heaven keep your honour! [Retiring.

Lucio. [To Isab.] Give't not o'er so: to him again, entreat him; Kneel down before him, hang upon his gown;

You are too cold: if you should need a pin, You could not with more tame a tongue desire it : To him, I say Isab. Must he needs die?

Maiden, no remedy. Ang. Isab. Yes; I do think that you might pardon him, And neither heaven, nor man, grieve at the mercy. Ang. I will not do't.

But can you, if you would? Isab. Ang. Look, what I will not, that I cannot do. Isab. But might you do't, and do the world no wrong,

If so your heart were touch'd with that remorse!

As mine is to him? Ang. He's sentenc'd; 'tis too late.

Lucio. You are too cold. [To Isabella.

Isab. Too late? why, no; I, that do speak a word,
May call it back again: Well believe this, No ceremony that to great ones 'long Not the king's crown, nor the deputed sword, The marshal's truncheon, nor the judge's robe, Become them with one half so good a grace, As mercy does. If he had been as you And you as he, you would have slipt like him : But he, like you, would not have been so stern.

Ang. Pray you, begone.

Isab. I would to heaven I had your potency,
And you were Isabe!! should it then be thus? I would tell what 'twere to be a judge, And what a prisoner.

Lucio. Ay, touch him: there's the vein. [Aside Ang. Your brother is a forfeit of the law, And you but waste your words.

Isab. Alas! alas! Why, all the souls that were, were forfeit once: And He that might the vantage best have took, Found out the remedy: How would you be If He, which is the top of judgment, should But judge you as you are? O, think on that; And mercy then will breathe within your lips, Like man new made.

Ang. Be you content, fair maid: It is the law, not I, condemns your brother: Were he my kinsman, brother, or my son, It should be thus with him; —He must die to-morrow.

Isab. To-morrow? O, that's sudden! Spare him, spare him:

He's not prepar'd for death! Even for our kitchens We kill the fowl of season; shall we serve heaven With less respect than we do minister To our gross selves? Good, good my lord, bethink you: Who is it that hath died for this offence?

(3) When in season.

There's many have committed it.

hath slept:

Those many had not dar'd to do that evil, If the first man that did the edict infringe, Had answer'd for his deed: now, 'tis awake; Takes note of what is done; and, like a prophet, Looks in a glass, that shows what future evils (Either now, or by remissions new-conceiv'd, And so in progress to be hatch'd and born,) Are now to have no successive degrees,

But, where they live, to end. Yet show some pity. Ang. I show it most of all, when I show justice : For then I pity those I do not know Which a dismiss'd offence would after gall; And do him right, that, answering one foul wrong, Lives not to act another. Be satisfied; Your brother dies to-morrow: be content.

Isab. So you must be the first, that gives this sentence :

And he, that suffers: O, it is excellent To have a giant's strength; but it is tyranhous To use it like a giant.

That's well said. Lucio,

Isab. Could great men thunder As Jove himself does, Jove would ne'er be quiet, For every pelting' pelty officer, Would use his heaven for thunder; nothing but thunder.-Merciful beaven!

Thou suther, with thy sharp and sulphurous boil, Split'st the unwedgeable and gnaried oak, Than the soft myrtle:—O, but man, proud man t Drest in a little brief authority; Most ignorant of what he's most assur'd, His glassy essence,—like an angry spe. Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven,

As make the angels weep: who, with our spicens, Would all themselves laugh mortal.

Lucio. O, to him, to him, wench: he will relent;

He's coming, I perceive't. Pray beaven, she win him ! Isab. We cannot weigh our brother with ourself: Great men may jest with saints: 'tis wit in them; But, in ieas, foul profenation. Lucio. Thou art in the right, girl; more o' that. Isab. That in the captain's but a choleric word,

Which in the soldier is flat blasphemy.

Justic. Art advis'd o' that? more on't.

Ang. Why do you put these sayings upon me?

Isab. Because authority, though it err like others,

Hath yet a kind of medicine in itself, That skims the vice of the top: Go to your bosom; Knock there; and ask your heart, what it doth know That's like my brother's fault: if it confess A natural guiltiness, such as is his, Let it not sound a thought upon your tongue

Against my brother's life.

Ang. She speaks, and 'tis Such sense, that my sense breeds with it.you well.

Ind. Gentle my lord, turn back.

Ang. I will bethink me: - Come again to-morrow.

*A*ng. How i bribe me?

Jano. Ay, with such gifts, that beaven shall share with you.

(1) Paltry. (2) Knotted. (3) Attested, stamped. (4) Preserved from the corruption of the world.

Lucio. You had marr'd all else.

Isab. Not with fond shekels of the tested gold. Lucio.

Ay, well said. Isab. Not with fond shekels of the tested a sang. The law hath not been dead, though it Or stones, whose rates are either rich or poor, As fancy values them; but with true prayers, That shall be up in heaven, and enter there, Ere sun-rise; prayers from preserved souls, From fasting maids, whose minds are dedicate To nothing temporal.

Ang. Well: come to me To morrow.

Lucio. Go to ; it is well ; away. [Aside to Isab. Isab. i haven keep your honour safe!

.ing. Am that way going to templation, Amen: for I Avide. Where prayers cross.

Isab. At what hour to-morrow

Shall I attend your lordship?

Ang. Isab. Save your honour! [Exe. Luc. Isa. and Pro. Ang. From thee; even from thy virtue!— What's this? what's this? Is this her fault, or mine? The tempter, or the tempted, who sins most? Hai Not she; nor doth she tempt: but it is I, That lying by the violet, in the sun Do, as the carrion does, not as the flower, Corrupt with virtuous season. Can it be, That modesty may more betray our sense Than woman's lightness? Having waste ground enough, Shall we desire to raze the sanctuary, And pitch our evils there? O, fic, fic, fie! What dost thou? or what art thou, Angelo? That make her good? O, let her brother live:

Thieves for their robbery have authority,
When judges steal themselves. What? do I love her, That I desire to hear her speak again. And feast upon her eyes? What is't I dream on? O cunning enemy, that, to catch a saint,
With saints dost bait thy hook! Most dangerous
Is that temptation, that doth goad us on
To sin in loving virtue: never could the stranget, With all her double vigour, art, and nature, Once stir my temper; but this virtuous maid Subdues me quite;—Ever, till now, When men were fond, I smil'd, and wonder'd he Ent.

SCENE III .- A room in a prison. Enter Duke, habited like a Frier, and Provost.

Duke. Hail to you, provest; so, I think you are. Prov. I am the provest: What's your will, good friar ?

Dute. Bound by my charity, and my bless'd order,

I come to visit the afflicted spirits

Here in the prison : do me the common right To let me see them; and to make me know The nature of their crimes, that I may minister To them accordingly.

Prov. I would do more than that, if more were needful.

Enter Juliet.

Look, here comes one; a gentlewoman of mine, Isab. Hark, how I'll bribe you: Good my lord, Who falling in the flames of her own youth, turn back.

Hath blister'd her report: She is with child; And he that got it, sentenc'd: a young man More fit to do another such offence, Than die for this.

When must be die? Duke.

(8) See 2 Kings, L 27.

5:

Proc. As I do think, to-morrow.

[The general, subject to a well-wish'd king, I have provided for you; stay awhile. [To Juliet. Quit their own part, and in obsequious fondness.] And you shall be conducted.

conscience,

And try your penitence, if it be sound, Or hollowly put on.

Duke. So then, it seems, your most offenceful act. Was mutually committed?

Judet. Mutually.

Duke. Then was your sin of heavier kind than his.

Juliet. I do confess it, and repen' it, father.

Duke. "Tis meet so, daughter: But lest you do repent As that the sin hath brought you to this shame, Which sorrow is always toward ourselves, not beaten; Showing, we'd not spare' heaven, as we love it,

But as we stand in fear,-Juliet. I do repent me, as it is an evil; And take the shame with joy.

There rest. Your partner, as I hear, must die to-morrow, And I am going with instruction to him.— Grace go with you! Benedicite!

Juliet. Must die to-morrow! O, injurious love, That respites me a life, whose very comfort

Is still a dying horror Tis pity of him.

BCENE IV .- A room in Angelo's house. Angelo.

dag. When I would pray and think, I think and pray To several subjects: heaven hath my empty words; Whilst my invention, hearing not my tongue, Anchors on Isabel: Heaven in my mouth, As if I did but only chew his name;
And in my heart, the strong and swelling cril
Of my conception: The state, whereon I studied,
Is like a good thing, being often read,
Grown fear'd and tedious; yea, my gravity,
Wherein (let no man hear me) I take pride, Could I, with boot, change for an idle plume, Which the air beats for vain. O place i O form! How often dost thou with thy case, thy habit.
Wrench awe from fools, and tie the wiser souls
To thy false seeming? Blood, thou still art blood: Let's write good angel on the devil's horn, 'Tis not the devil's crest.

Enter Servant.

How now, who's there? One Isabel, a sister, Dealres access to you.

Ang. Teach her the way. [Ex. Serv. O heavens! Why does my blood thus muster to my heart: Making both it unable for itself, And disposeesing all the other paris
Of necessary fitness?
So play the foolish throngs with one that swoons; Come all to help him, and so stop the air By which he should revive : and even so

Duke. Pepent you fair one, of the sin you carry? Must needs appear offence.

Juliet. I do; and bear the shame most patiently.

Duke. I'll teach you how you shall a waiten the shame most patiently.

How now, fair maid?

r bollowly put on.

Justet,

Justet,

Pill gladly learn,

Justet,

Love you the man that wrong'd you?

Justet, Yes, as I lov'd the woman that wrong'd Than to demand what 'tis. Your brother cannot live.

Isab. Even so?-Heaven keep your honour!

Ang. Yet may be live a while; and, it may be, As long as you, or 1: Yet he must die.

Isab. Under your sentence?

Ang. Yes. Isac. When, I beseech you? that in his reprieve, Longer, or shorter, he may be so fitted, That his soul sicken not.

Ang. Ha! Fic, these filthy vices! It were as good To pardon him, that bath from nature stolen A man already made, as to remit Their saucy sweetness, that do coin heaven's image, In stamps that are forbid: 'tis all as easy

Falsely to take away a life true made,

As to put mettle in restrained means. To make a false one.

Isab. 'Tie set down so in heaven, but not in earth. Ang. Say you so? then I shall poxe you quickly. Which had you rather, That the most just law Now took your brother's life; or, to redeem him, Give up your body to such sweet uncleanness, [Execut. As she that he hath stain'd?

Isab. Sir, believe this, Enter I had rather give my body than my soul.

Ang. I talk not of your soul: Our compelled sins
Stand more for number than accompt.

Izab, Ang. Nay, I'll not warrant that; for I can speak Against the thing I say. Answer to this;— I, now the voice of the recorded law, Pronounce a sentence on your brother's life: Might there not be a charity in sin,

To save this brother's life? Irab, Please you to do'L

I'll take it as a peril to my soul, It is no sin at all, but charity,

Ang. Pleas'd you to do't, at peril of your soul,
Were equal poize of sin and charity.

Isab. That I do beg his life, if it be sin,
Heaven, let me bear it! you granting of my suit,
if that be sin, Pll make it my morn prayer
To have it added to the faults of mine,

And nothing of your, answer.

Nay, but hear me: Your sense pursues not mine: either you are ignorant, Or seem so, craftily; and that's not good.

Isab. Let me be ignorant, and in nothing good.

But graciously to know I am no better. Ang. Thus wisdom wishes to appear most bright, When it doth tax itself: as these black masks To be received plain, I'll speak more gross:
Your brother is to die.

laab, So.

Ang. And his offence is so, as it appears. Accountant to the law upon that pain.

Isab. True. Ang. Admit no other way to save his life

(5) Enshielded, covered. (6) Penalty, (As I subscribe not that, nor any other, But in the loss of question, ) that you, his sister, Finding yourself desir'd of such a person, Whose credit with the judge, or own great place, Could fetch your brother from the manacles Of the all-binding law; and that there were No earthly mean to save him, but that either You must lay down the treasures of your body To this supposed, or cise let him suffer; What would you do?

Isch. As much for my poor brother, as myself: That is, Were I under the terms of death, The impression of keen whips I'd wear as rubics, And strip myself to death, as to a bed That longing I have been sick for, ere I'd yield

That longing a My body up to shame.

Then must your brother die. Isso. And twees the cheaper way : Better it were, a brother died at once, Than that a sister, by redeeming him, Should die for ever.

Ang. Were not you then as cruel as the sentence That you have slander'd so?

Isab. Ignomy in ransom, and free pardon, Are of two houses: lewful mercy is Nothing skin to foul recemption. Ang. You seem'd of late to make the law a ty-mat, And rather prov'd the sliding of your brother

A merriment then a vice.

Isob. O, pardon me, my lord; it oft falls out, To have what we'd have, we speak not what we incen:

I something do excuse the thing I hate, For his advantage that I dearly love.

Ang. We are all frail.

Isae. Else let m

If not a feedary, but only he, Owe, and succeed by we ilmes

Ang. Nay, women are frail too.

Ind. Ay, as the glasses where they view themsolves;

Which are as easy broke as they make forms. Women!-Help heaven! men their creation mar In profiting by them. Nay, call us ten times frail; SCENE I.—A room in the prison. Enter Duke-For we are soft as our complexions are, Claudio, and Provest. And credulous to false prints.

And from this testimony of your own sex I think it well: (Since, I suppose, we are made to be no stronger Then faults may shake our frames, ) let me be bold : But only hope : I do arrest your words; Be that you are, That is, a woman; if you be more, you're none; If you be one (as you are well express'd By all external warronts,) show it now, By putting on the destin'd livery.

leab. I have no tongue but one: gentle my lord,

Isse. I have no tongue but one; gentle my lord, Let me entreat you speak the former language.

Ang. Plainly conceive, I love you.

Isse. My brother did love Juliet; and you tell me,
That he shall die for it.

Ang. He shall not, lanbel, if you give me love.

Isse. I know, your virtue hath a license in't,
Which seems a little fouler than it is,

To pluck on others. Believe me, on mine honour, Ang.

My words express my purpose.

Isab. Ha! little honour to be much believ'd And most permicious purpose !—Seeming, seeming!

(1) Agree to. (2) Conversation. (8) Ignominy. (4) Amociate. (5) Own. (6) Impressions.

I will proclaim thee, Angelo; look fort: Sign me a present pardon for my brother, Or, with an outstretch'd throat, I'll tell the world Aloud, what men thou art.

Who will believe thee, Isabel? Aug. My unsoil'd name, the austereness of my life, My vouch against you, and my piace I the state, Will so your accusation overweigh, That you shall stifle in your own report, And smell of calumny. I have begin And now I give my sensual race the rein
Fit thy consent to my sharp appetite;
Lay by all nicety, and prolixious blushes,
That banish what they sue for; redeem thy brother
By yielding up thy body to my will;
Or else he must not only die the death, But thy unkindness shall his death draw out To lingering sufferance: answer me to-morrow, Or, by the affection that now guides me most, I'll prove a tyrant to him: As for you, Say what you can, my false o'erweighs your true.

Isab. To whom shall I complain? Did I tell this, Who would believe me? O perilous mouths, That bear in them one and the self-same tongue, Either of condemnation or approof! Bidding the law make court sy to their will: Hooking both right and wrong to the appetite, To follow as it draws! I'll to my brother: Though he hath fallen by prompture of the blood, Yet hath he in him such a mind of honour, That had he twenty heads to tender down On twenty bloody blocks, he'd yield them up, Before his sister should her body stoop parly love.

To such abhorr'd pollution.

Then Isabel, live charte, and, brother, die:

Else let my brother die, More than our brother is our chartity. I'll tall him yet of Angelo's request, And fit his mind to death, for his soul's rest. [Exil.

ACT IIL

Dubr. So, then you hope of pardon from lord

Angelo?
Cloud. The miserable have no other medicine.

have hope to live, and am prepar'd to die.

Dake. Be absolute to for death; either death, or life Shall thereby be the sweeter. Reason thus with life,

If I do lose thee, I do lose a thing That none but fools would keep: a breath thou art (Servile to all the skiey influences,) (Service to all the says innuences,)
That doet this habitation, where thou keep'st,
Hourly afflict: merely, thou art death's fool;
For him thou labour'st by thy flight to shun,
And yet run's toward him still: Thou art not noble;
For all the accommodations that thou bear'st,
Are nurs'd by beaeness: Thou art by no means valiant : For thou dost fear the soft and tender fork Of a poor worm: Thy best of rest is aleep, And that thou oft provok'st; yet grossly fear'st Thy death, which is no more. Thou art not thyself; For thou exist'st on many a thousand grains That issue out of dust: Happy thou art not:

(7) Hypocrisy. (8) Attestation. (9) Reluctant. (10) Determined.

For what thee hast not, still thou stravest to get;
And what thou hast, forget st; Thou at not certain;
For the complexion shifts to strange effects,!
After the mean: If thou art rich, thou art poor;
For, like an ans, whose back with ingots hows,
Then hear'st thy heavy riches but a journey,
And death unloads thee: Friend hast thou none;
For thine own bowels, which do call thee sire,
The mere effusion of thy proper loins,
Do curse the gout, serpigo,? and the rheum,
For ending thee no sooner: Thou hast nor youth,
nor age;

But, as it were, an after-dinner's sleep,
Dreaming on both: for all thy bleased youth
Becomes as aged, and doth beg thee aims
Of paisied sid; and when thou art old, and rich,
Thou hast neither heat, affection, limb, nor beauty,
To make thy riches pleasant. What's yet in this,
That bears the name of life? Yet in this life
Lie hid more thousand deaths: yet death we fear,
That makes these odds all even.

Claud. I humbly thank you. To sue to live, I find, I seek to dis;
And, seeking death, fish life: Let it come on.

Enter Isabella.

Less. What, ho! Peace here; grace and good company!

Pres. Who's there? come in : the wish deserves a welcome.

Duke. Dear sir, ere long I'll visit you ngain.
Cloud. Most holy sir, I thank you.
Isab. My business is a word or two with Claudio.
Prov. And very welcome. Look, signior, here's your sister.

Duks. Provost, a word with you.

Prop. As many as you please.

Duke. Bring them to speak, where I may be

Yet hear them. [Excust Duke and Provost. Claud. Now, sister, what's the comfort? Isob. Why, as all comforts are; most good indeed;

Lord Angelo, having affairs to beaven,
Intends you for his swift ambassador,
Where you shall be an everlasting leiger:
Therefore your best appointment make with speed;
To-morrow you set on.

Claud. Is there no remedy?

Isab. None, but such remedy, as, to save a head,
To cleave a heart in twain.

Claud. But is there any? Issb. Yes, brother, you may live; There is a devillab mercy in the judge, If you'll implore it, that will free your life, But letter you till death.

Cloud. Perpetual durance? I seed. Ay, just, perpetual durance; a restraint, Though all the world's vastidity you had, To a determin'd scope.

Cless.

But in what nature?

Isob. In such a one as (you consenting to't)

Would bark your honour from that trunk you bear,
And leave you naked.

Claud.

Let me know the point,
Last. O, I do fear thee, Claudio; and I quake
Last thou a feverous life should'st entertain,
And six or seven winters more respect
Than a perpetual honour. Dar'st thou die?

(1) Affects, affections. (2) Leprous cruptions.
(3) Old age. (4) Resident. (5) Preparation.
(5) Variance of exient. (7) Shut up.

The sense of death is most in apprehension; And the poor beetle, that we tread upon, In corporal sufferance finds a pang as great As when a giant dies.

Claud. Why give you me this shame?
Think you I can a resolution fetch
From flowery tenderness? If I must die,
I will encounter darkness as a bride,
And hug if in reine arms.

And hug it in mine arms.

Isab. There spake my brother; there my father's grave

Did utter forth a voice! Yes, thou must die:
Thou art too noble to conserve a life
In base appliances. This outward-sainted deputy,
Whose settled visage and deliberate word
Nips youth i'the head, and follies doth samew,'
As falcon doth the fowl,—is yet a devil;
His filth within being cast, he would appear

A pond as deep as hell.

Claud. The princely Angelo?

Isub. O, 'tis the cunning livery of hell,

The damned'st body to invest and cover
In princely guards! Dost thou think, Claudio,

If I would yield him my virginity,

Thou mightest be freed?

Claud. O, heavens! it cannot be Isab. Yes, he would give it thee, from this rank offence.

So to offend him still: This night's the time That I should do what I abhor to name, Or else thou diest to-morrow.

Claud. Thou shalt not do't.

Isab. O. were it but my life

Isab. O, were it but my life.
I'd throw it down for your deliverance
As frankly* as a pin.

Cloud. Thanks, dear Isabel.

Isab. Be ready, Claudic, for your death to morrow.

Claud. Yes.—Has he affections in him.

That thus can make him bite the law by the more.

That thus can make him bite the law by the mose, When he would force it? Sure it is no sin; Or of the deadly seven it is the least. Isab, Which is the least?

Claud. If it were damnable, he, being so wise.
Why, would he for the momentary trick,

Be perdurably of fined?—O, Isabe!:

Isab. What says my brother!

Claud.

Beath is a fearful thing.

Isab. And shamed life a hateful.

Claud. Ay, but to do die, and go we know not where:

To lie in cold obstruction, and to rot;
This sensible warm motion to become
A kneaded cold; and the delighted spirit
To bathe in fiery floods, or to reside
In turilling regions of thick-ribbed ice;
To be imprison'd in the viewless is winds.
And blown with restless violence round about
The pendent world; or to be worse than worst
Of those, that lawless and incertain thoughts
Imagine howling!—'tis too horrible!
The wearied and most loathed worldly life.
That age, ache, penury, and imprisonment
Can lay on nature, is a paradise
To what we lear of death.
Isob. Alas alas!

Claud. Sweet sister, let me liva: What sin you do to save a brother's life, Nature dispenses with the deed so far, That it becomes a virtue.

Isab. O, you beant!

(8) Laced robes. (9) Freely. (10) Leatingly. (11) Invisible.

O, faithless coward ! O, dishonest wretch ! Wilt thou be made a man out of my vice?

I'll pray a thousand prayers for thy death, No word to save thec.

Claud. Nay/hear me, Isabel.

O, fie, fie, fie! Thy sin's not accidental, but a trade: Mercy to thee would prove itself a band: Tis best thou diest quickly. Going. Claud. O hear me, Isabella.

satisfaction I would require, is likewise your own

Duke. [To Claudio, aside.] Son, I have over-heard what hath passed between you and your sixler. Angelo had never the purpose to corrupt her; only he hath made an essay of her virtue, to practise is judgment with the disposition of flatures : she, having the truth of honour in her, hath made him yet wears for his sake; and he, a marble to her that gracious denial which he is most glad to re- tears, is washed with them, but relents not. ceive; I am confessor to Angele, and I know this to be true; therefore prepare yourself to death: do not satisfy your resolution with hopes that are fallible: to-morrow you must die; go to your knees, and this can she avail? make ready.

Claud. Let me ask my sister pardon. I am so out of love with life, that I will sue to be rid of it. Duke, Hold you there: farewell. [Ex. Claud.]

Re-enter Provost.

Provost, a word with you.

Prov. What's your will, father?

Duke. That now you are come, you will be gone: leave me a while with the maid; my mind promises with my habit, no loss shall touch her by my company.

Prov. In good time.

Duke. The hand that hath make you fair, hath made you good: the goodness, that is cheap in beauty, makes beauty brief in goodness; but grace, being the soul of your complexion, should keep the body of it ever fair. The ussault, that Angelo hath made to you, fortune bath conveyed to my under-standing; and, but that frailty hath examples for his falling, I should wonder at Angelo. How would you do to content this substitute, and to save your brother?

Isab. I am now going to resolve him: I had rather my brother die by the isw, than my son should be unlawfully born. But O, how much is the good duke deceived in Angelo! If ever he rethe good duke deceived in Angelo! If ever he re-turn, and I can speak to him, I will open my lips in vain, or discover his government. in vain, or discover his government.

ing of this business.

Isab. Let me hear you speak further; I have spirit to do any thing that appears not foul in the truth of my spirit.

Dake. Virtue is bold, and goodness never fearfu. Have not you heard speak of Marians, the sister of Frederick, the great soldier, who miscarried at sea? Isab. 1 have heard of the lady, and good words went with her name.

Re-enter Duke.

Duke. Vouchsafe a word, young sister, but one affianced to her by outh, and the naptial appointed:

Dukz. Might you dispense with your leisure, I sea, having in that perish'd vessel the dowry of his would by and by have some speech with you: the sister. But mark, how heavily this belei to the poor gentlewoman: there she lost a noble and renowned brother, in his love toward her ever most kind and Lieb. I have no superfluous leisure; my stay must natural; with him the portion and sinew of her forbe stolen out of other affairs; but I will attend you tune, her marriage-dowry; with both, her combinate husband, this well-seeming Angelo.

Duke. [To Claudio, aside.] Sun, I have over-lied. Can this be so? Did Angelo so leave her?

Duke. Left her in her tears, and dry'd not one of them with his comfort; awallowed his yows whole, pretending, in her, discoveries of dishonour: in few, bestowed her on her own lamentation, which she

Isab. What a merit were it in death, to take this poor maid from the world! What corruption in this life, that it will let this man live!—But how out of Duke. It is a rupture that you may easily heal : and the cure of it not only saves your brother, but keeps you from dishonour in doing it.

Isab. Show me how, good father. Duke. This fore-named maid hath yet in her the continuance of her first affection; his unjust un-kindness, that in all reason should have quenched her love, hath, like an impediment in the current, made it more violent and unruly. Go you to Angelo; answer his requiring with a plausible obediserie; agree with his demands to the point; only refer' yourself to this advantage,—first, that your stay with him may not be long; that the time may have all shadow and silence is it; and the place has answer to convenience; this being granted in course, now follows all. We shall advise this course, now follows all. We single autiso unis wronged maid to stead up your appointment, so in your place; if the encounter acknowledge itself hareafter, it may compel him to her recompense; and here, by this, is your brother saved, your honour untainted, the poor Mariana advantaged, and the corrupt deputy scaled. The maid will I frame and make 6f for his atternnt. If you think well to and make fit for his attempt. If you think well to carry this as you may, the doubleness of the bunefit defends the deceit from reproof. What hink you of it?

you speedily to Angelo ; if for this night he entrest you to his bed, give him promise of satisfaction. I will presently to St. Luke's; there, at the moated grange, 'resides this dejected Mariana; at that place call upon me; and despatch with Angelo, that it may be quickly.

I sab. I thank you for this comfort: fare you well, good father.

BCENE II .- The street before the prison. Enter Duke, as a frier; to him Elbow, Clown, and Officers.

Elb. Nay, if there be no remedy for it, but that you will needs buy and sell men and women like beasts, we shall have all the world drink brown and white bastard.

Duke, O, heavens! what stuff is here? Clo. 'Twas never merry world, since, of two usuries, the merriest was put down, and the worser allow'd by order of law a furr'd gown to keep him warm; and fure'd with fox and lamb-skins too, to signify, that graft, being richer than inno-cency, stands for the facing. Eds. Come your way, sir:—Bless you, good father friar.

Duke. And you, good brother father: What offence hath this man made you, sir?

Elb. Marry, sir, he hath offended the law: and, sir, we take him to be a third too, sir; for we have found upon him, sir, a strange pick-lock, which we have sent to the deputy.

There has a strange pick-lock, being the single pick-lock, being sirely.

Duke. Fie, sirrah; a bawd, a wicked bawd! The cvil that thou causest to be done, That is thy means to live: do thou but think What 'tie to cram a maw, or clothe a back, From such a filthy vice: say to thyself,— From their abominable and beastly touches I drink, I eat, array myself, and live.

Canst thou believe thy living is a life,
So stinkingly depending?, Go, mend, go, mend.

Clo. Indeed, it does stink in some sort, air; but yet, sir, I would prove—

Duke. Nay, if the devil have given thee proofs for sin,

They will be seen him. Take him to prison officers.

Thou wilt prove his. Take him to prison, officer; Correction and instruction must both work,

Ere this rude beast will profit.

Duke. That we were all, as some would seem to be, Free from our faults, as faults from seeming, free!

Enter Lucio.

Elb. His neck will come to your waist, a cord, sir. Clo. I spy comfort; I cry, bail: here's a gentleman, and a friend of mine.

Lucio. How now, noble Pompey? What, at the heels of Casar? Art thou led in triumph? What, is there none of Pygmalion's images, newly made woman, to be had now, for putting the hand in the woman, as or man now, for putting the mann in the pocket, and extracting it clutch'd? What reply? Ha? What say'st thou to this tune, matter, and method? Is't not drown'd i' the last rain? Ha? What say'st thou, trot? Is the world as it was, man? Which is the way? Is it sad, and few words? Or how? The trick of it?

Lucio. Some say, he is with the emperor of Russia; other some, he is in Rome: but where is he, think you?

Duke. I know not where: but wheresoever, I wish him well.

Lucio. It was a mad fantastical trick of him, to steal from the state, and usurp the beggary he was never born to. Lord Angelo dukes it well in his absence; he puts transgression to't.

Duke. He does well in't.

Lucio. A little more lenity to lechery would do no harm in him : something too crabbed that way,

Duke. It is too general a vice, and severity must cure it.

Lucie. Yes, in good sooth, the vice is of a great kindred; it is well ally'd: but it is impossible to extirp it quite, friar, till eating and drinking be put down. They say, this Angelo was not made by man and woman, after the downright way of creation: is it true, think you?

Duke. How should he be made then?

Lucie. Some record a sea-maid seaworld him:

Lucic. Some report, a sea-maid spawn'd him:-Some, that he was begot between two stock-fisher: but it is certain, that when he makes water, his urine is congeal'd ice; that I know to be true: and he is a motion' ungenerative, that's infallible.

Duke. You are pleasant, sir; and speak apaer. Lucio. Why, what a ruthless thing is this in him, for the rebellion of a cod-piece, to take away the life of a man? Would the duke, that is absent, have done this? Ere he would have hang'd a man for the getting a hundred bastards, he would have Duke. Unfit to live, or die: 0, gravel heart!— After him, fellows; bring him to the block. [Exenst Abhorson and Clown.

Proc. Now, sir, how do you find the prisoner? Duke. A creature unprepard, unmeet for death; And, to transport him in the mind he is, Were damnable.

Here in the prison, father, Proc. There died this morning of a cruel fever One Ragozine, a most notorious pirate, A man of Claudio's years; his beard, and head, Just of his colour: What if we do omit This reprobate, till he were well inclin'd; And satisfy the deputy with the risage

And satisfy the deputy with the visage
Of Ragozine, more like to Claudio?
Duke. O, 'us an accident that Heaven provides?
Despatch it presently; the hour draws on Prefix'd by Angelo: See, this be done,
And sent according to command; whiles I
Persuade this rade wretch willingly to die.
Prov. This shall be done, good father, presently.
But Barnardine must die this afternoon;
And how shall we continue Claudio.

And how shall we continue Claudio, To save me from the danger that might come, If he were known alive?

Duke, Let this be done;—Put them in secret holds.

Prov. Here is the head; I'll carry it myself. Duke. Convenient is it: Make a swift return;

I'll make all speed. [Exit. Isab. [Within.] Peace, he, be here!

Duke. The tongue of Isabel:—She's come to know.

If yet her brother's pardon be come hither: But I will keep her ignorant of her good, To make her heavenly comforts of despair, When it is least expected.

Enter Isabella,

Isab. Ho, by your leave.
Duke. Good morning to you, fair and gracious daughter.

Isab. The better, given me by so holy a man. Hath yet the deputy sent my brother's pardon? Duke. He hath releas'd him, Isabel, from the world; His head is off, and sent to Angelo.

Isab. Ney, but it is not so. It is no other: Duke. Show your wisdom, daughter, in your close patience. Isab. O, I will to him, and pluck out his eyes.

Duke. You shall not be admitted to his sight.

Isab. Unhappy Glaudio! Wretched Isabel!

Injurious world! Most damned Angelo!

Duke. This nor hurts him, nor profits you a jot : Forbear it therefore; give your cause to Heaven. Mark what I say; which you shall find, By overy syllable, a faithful verity: The duke comes home to-morrow;—nay, dry you:

In that good path that I would wish it go; And you shall have your bosoms on this wretch, Grace of the duke, revenges to your heart, And general honour.

Isab. I am directed by you. Duke. This letter then to friar Peter give; 'Tis that he sent me of the duke's return: Say, by this token, I desire his company At Mariana's house to night. Her cause, and yours I'll perfect him withal; and he shall bring you Before the duke; and to the head of Angelo Accuse him home, and home. For my poor self,

I am combined by a sacred yow. And shall be absent. Wend! you with this letter : Command these frotting waters from your eyes With a light heart; trust not my holy order, If I pervert your course.—Who's here?

Enter Lucio.

Good even! Lucio. Friar, where is the provent?

Duke.

Not within, sir. Lucio. O, pretty Isabella, I am pule at mine heart, to see thine eyes so red: thou must be patient: I am fain to dine and sup with water and bran; I dare not for my head fill my belly; one fruitful meal would set me to't: But they say the duke will be here to-morrow. By my troth, Isabel, I lov'd thy brother: if the old fantastical duke of SCENE V.—Fields without the town. dark corners had been at home, he had lived.

Exit Isabella Duke. Sir, the duke is marvellous little beholden him for.

Duke. Well, you'll answer this one day. Fare To well

Lucio. Nay, tarry 1 Pil go along with thee; I can tell thee pretty tales of the duke.

Duke. You have told me too many of him already, air, if they be true; if not true, none were anough.

Lucio. I was once before him for getting a wench with child.

Duke. Did you such a thing?

before his entering, that if any crave redress of injus-tice, they should exhibit their petitions in the street?

Escal. He shows his reason for that : to have a despatch of complaints; and to deliver us from devices hereafter, which shall then have no power to stand against us.

Ang. Well, I beseeth you, let it be proclaim'd:

Dake. O, your desert speaks loud; and I should wrong it,

To lock it in the wards of covert bosom, When it deserves with characters of brass A forted residence, 'gainst the tooth of time, And razure of oblivion: Give me your hand, And let the subject sec, to make them know That outward courtesies would fain proclaim Favours that keep within .- Come, Escalus; You must walk by us on our other hand ;-And good supporters are you.

Frier Peter and Isabella come forward.

F. Peter. Now is your time; speak loud, and kneel before him. Isal. Justice, O, royal duke! Vail' your regard Upon a wrong'd, I'd fain have said, a maid! O worthy prince, dishonour not your eye By throwing it on any other object, Till you have beard me in my true complaint,

And give me, justice, justice, justice !

Duke. Relate your wrongs : In what? By whom?

Be brief:

Here is lord Angelo shall give you justice; Reveal yourself to him.

Isab. O, worthy duke, You bid me seek rederaption of the devil : Hear me yourself; for that which I must speak Must either punish me, not being believ'd, Or wring redress from you: hear me, O, hear me,

Aug. My lord, her wits, I fear me, are not firm: To speak bufore your time.-Proceed. She bath been a suitor to me for her brother,

Cut off by course of justice.

By course of justice ! Isab. Ang. And she will speak most bitterly, and strange. Isab. Most strange, but yet most truly, will I speak: That Angelo's forsworn; is it not strange? That Angelo's a murderer; is't not strange? That Angelo is an adulterous thief,

A hypocrite, a virgin-violator; Is it not strange, and strange?

Isab. It is not truer he is Angelo,

Than this is all as true as it is atrange: Nay, it is ten times true; for truth is truth To the end of reckoning,

ing,
Away with her:—Poor soul,
For my poor brother's head. Duke. She speaks this in the infirmity of sense.

Isab. O prince, I conjure thee, as thou believ'st There is another comfort than this world, That thou neglect me not, with that opinion
That I am touch'd with madness: make not impossible

Duke. Many and hearty thankings to you both. Had I more name for badness.

By mine honesty, If she be mad (as I believe no other,) Her madness hath the oddest frame of sense. Such a dependency of thing on thing,

As c'er I heard in madacas.

Isab. O, gracious duba, Harp not on that; nor do not banish reason For inequality: but let your reason serve To make the truth appear, where it seems hid; And hide the false, seems true.

Duke. Many that are not mad Have, sure, more luck of resson.-What would you say?

Isab. I am the sister of one Claudio. Condemn'd upon the act of fornication To lose his head; condemn'd by Angelo: I, in probation of a sisterhood, Was sent to by my brother : One Lucio

As then the messenger;—
Lucio, That's I, an't like your grace:
I came to her from Claudio, and desir'd her To try her gracious fortune with lord Angelo. For her poor brother's pardon, Isab. That's he indeed. Duke. You were not bid to speak.

Lucio. No, my good lord;

Nor wish'd to hold my peace,

I wish you now then; Pray you, take note of it: and when you have A business for yourself, pray heaven, you then Be perfect.

I werrant your honour. Lario. Duke. The warrant's for yourself; take heed to it.

Isab. This gentleman told somewhat of my tale. Lucio. Right.

Duke. It may be right; but you are in the wrong

Isab. To this pernicions caltiff deputy.

Duke. That's somewhat madly spoken. Pardon it; Izah. The phrase is to the matter.

Take. Mended again: the matter:—Proceed.

Isab. In brief,—to set the needless process by,
How I persuaded, how I pray'd, and kneel'd,
How he refell'd me, and how I reply'd;

Most wrongfully accused your substitute; Who is as free from touch or soil with her, As she from one ungot

We did believe no less. Know you that friar Lodowick, that she speaks of?

F. Peter. I know him for a man divine and holy; Not scurvy, nor a temporary meddier, As he's reported by this gentleman; And, on my trust, a man that never yet Did, as he vouches, misreport your grace.

Lucio. My lord, most villanously; believe it. F. Peter. Well, he in time may come to clear himself :

But at this instant he is sick, my lord, Of a strange fever: Upon his mere? request. (Being come to knowledge that there was complaint intended gainst lord Angelo,) came I hither, To speak, as from his mouth, what he doth know Is true, and false; and what he with his oath, And all probation, will make up full clear, Whensoever he's convented: First, for this woman (To justify this worthy nobleman, So vulgarity and personally accused,) Her shall you hear disproved to her eyes, Till she herself confess it. Good friar, let's bear it. Duke.

[Isabella is carried off, gwarded; and Mariana comes forward.

Do you not smile at this, lord Angelo?— O heaven! the vanity of wretched fools!— Give us some seats.—Come, cousin Angelo; In this I'll be impartial; be you judge Of your own cause.—Is this the witness, friar? Of your own cause.—is this not without, that:

First, let her show her face; and, after speak.

Duke. Why, you Are nothing then: - Neither maid, widow, nor wife ? Lucio. My lord, she may be a punk; for many of them are neither maid, widow, nor wife.

Duke. Silence that fellow: I would, he had some cause

To prattle for himself,

Lucio. Well, my lord.

Mari. My lord, I do confess I ne'er was married; --Who knew of your intent, and coming hither? And, I confess, besides, I am no maid:

Isab. One that I would were here, friar Lodowick. I have known my husband; yet my husband knows not, That ever he knew me.

Lucio. He was drunk then, my lord; it can be no better.

Duke. For the benefit of silence, 'would thou rert so too

Lucio. Well, my lord.

Duke. This is no witness for lord Angelo.

Mari. Now I come to't, my lord: She, that accuses him of fornication, And charges him, my lord, with such a time, When I'll depose I had him in mine arms, With all the effect of love.

Mari. Not that I know. Charges she more than me? Duke. No? you say, your husband.
Mari. Why, just, my lord, and that is Angelo.
Who thinks, he knows, that he ne'er knew my body,
But knows, he thinks, that he knows Isabel's.

Ang. This is a strange abuse: "-Let's see thy Duke. Know you this woman? Lucio. Carnally, she mys. Duke. Sirrah, no more. Lucio. Enough, my lord.

Ang. My lord, I must confess, I know this woman ;

And, are years since, there was some speech of marriage

Beiwixt myself and her; which was broke off, Partly, for that her promised proportions Came short of composition; but, in chief, For that her reputation was disvalued in levity: since which time of five years. I never spake with her, saw her, nor heard from her,

Upon my faith and honour. Mari Noble prince As there comes light from heaven, and words from breath,

As there is sense in truth, and truth in virtue, I am affianced this man's wife, as strongly

O, give me pardon, That I, your vassal, have employ'd and pain'd

Your unknown sovereignty.

You are pardon'd, Isabel ; Duke, And now, dear maid, be you as free to us.
Your brother's death, I know, sits at your heart;
And you may marvel, why I obscur'd myself,
Labouring to save his life; and would not rather
Make rash remonstrance of my hidden power, Than let him so be lost: O, most kind maid, It was the swift celerity of his death, Which I did think with slower foot camen That brain'd my purpose: But, peace be with him! Mari. O, my good lord!-Sweet Isabel, take my part;

Lend me your knees, and all my life to come I'll lend you, all my life to do you service. Duke. Against all senses do you importune her : Should she kneel down, in mercy of this fact,

Her brother's ghost his paved bed would break, And take her hence in horror. Mari. Isabel, Sweet Isabel, do yet but kneel by me;

Hold up your hands, say nothing, Pil speak all. They say, best men are moulded out of faults; And, for the most, become much more the better For being a little bad: so may my husband, O, Isabel! will you not lend a knee?

Duke. He dies for Claudio's death,

Most bountcoussir, Isab.

Look, if it please you, on this man condemn'd, As if my brother liv'd: I partly think, A due sincerity govern'd his deeds, Fill he did look on me; since it is so, Let him not die : My brother had but justice, In that he did the thing for which he died: For Angrio,

His act did not o'ertake his bad intent, And must be buried but as an intent That perish'd by the way : thoughts are no subjects, Intents but merely thoughts.

What's he? Duke. Prov. His name is Barnardine. And see our pleasure herein executed. Duke. I would thou had'st done so by Claudio. Go, fetch him hither; let me look upon him.

Exit Provost. Escal. I am sorry, one so learned and so wise As you, lord Angelo, have still appear'd, Should slip so grossly, both in the heat of blood, And lack of temper'd judgment afterward.

Ing. I am sorry, that such sorrow I procure: And so deep sticks it in my penitent heart, That I crave death more willingly than merey: 'Tis my deserving, and I do entreat it.

Re-enter Provost, Barnardine, Claudio, and Juliet.

Duke. Which is that Barnardine?

This, my lord. Prov. Duke. There was a friar told me of this man :-Sirrah, thou art said to have a stubborn soul, That apprehends no further than this world, And squar'st thy life according. The novel of Giraldi Cinthio, from which Shakspeare is supposed to have borrowed this fable, may be read in Shakepeare Illustrated, elegantly translated, with remarks which will assist the inquirer to discover how much absurdity Shakspeare has admitted or avoided.

I cannot but suspect that some other had newmodelled the novel of Cinthio, or written a story which in some particulars resembled it, and that Cinthio was not the author whom Shakspeare immediately followed. The emperor in Cinthio is named Maximine: the duke, in Shakspeare's enumeration of the persons of the drama, is called Vin-Well, Angelo, your evil quits' you well:

Look that you love your wife; her worth, worth mentioned but he he he will all the health and the play nor is ever mentioned but by his title, why should he be called Vincentic among the persons, but because the usine vers copied from the story, and placed superflu-ously at the head of the list, by the mere habit of transcription? It is therefore likely that there was then a story of Vincentio duke of Vienna, different from that of Maximine emperor of the Romans.

Of this play, the light or comic part is very natu-Lucio. 'Faith, my lord, I spoke it but according sages be excepted, have more labour than elegance, but I had rather it would please you, I might be of the action is indefinite. of the action is indefinite: some time, we know not how much, must have clapsed between the recess of the duke and the imprisonment of Claudio; for he must have learned the story of Mariana in his disguise, or he delegated his power to a man al-ready known to be corrupted. The unities of action and place are sufficiently preserved.

ACT I.

SCENE I .- Before Leonato's house. Enter Leonato, Hero, Beatrice, and others, with a Messenger.

Leonalo.

I LEARN in this letter, that Don Pedro of Arra-gon, comes this night to Messina.

Mess. He is very near by this; he was not three leagues off when I left him.

Leon. How many gentlemen have you lost in wars. this action ?

Mess. But few of any sort, and none of name. Leon. A victory is twice itself, when the achiever brings home full numbers. I find here, that Don Pedro hath bestowed much honour on a young Florentine, called Claudio.

Mess. Much deserved on his part, and equally remembered by Don Pedro: he halh home him-self beyond the promise of his age; doing, in the figure of a lamb, the feats of a lion: he hath, indeed, better bettered expectation, then you must expect of me to tell you how.

Leon. He hath an uncle here in Messina will be very much glad of it.

Mess. I have already delivered him letters, and there appears much joy in him; even much, that joy could not show itself modest enough, without a badge of bitterness.

Leon. Did he break out into tears?

Mess. In great measure. Lean. A kind overflow of kindness: There are no faces truer than those that are so washed. How much better is it to weep at joy, than to joy at weeping?

Beat. I pray you, is signior Montanto returned

Mess. I know none of that name, lady; there was none such in the army of any sort.

Leon. What is he that you ask for, niece? Hero, My cousin means signior Benedick of Padua.

(1) Kind. (2) Abundance, (3) At long lengths.

Meas, 0, he is returned; and as pleasant as ever he was.

Beat. He set up his bills here in Messina, and challenged Cupid at the flight? and my uncle's fool, reading the challenge, subscribed for Cupid, and challenged him at the bird-bolt.—I pray you, how many hath he killed and eaten in these wars? But how many hath he killed? for, indeed, I pro-mised to cat all of his killing.

Leon. Faith niece, you tax signior Benedick too much; but he'll be meet with you, I doubt it not. Mess. He hath done good service, lady, in these Beat. You had musty victual, and he hath holp to eat it: he is a very valiant trencher-man, he hath an excellent stomach.

Mess. And a good soldier too, lady.

Beat. And a good soldier to a lady;—But whal is he to a lord?

Mess. A lord to a lord, a man to a man; stuffed with all honourable virtues

Beat. It is so, indeed; he is no less than a stuffed man; but for the stuffing, —Well, we are all mortal. *
Leon. You must not, sir, mistake my niece: there

He bath every month a new sworn brother.

Mess. is it possible?

Beat. Very easily possible: he wears his faith but as the fashion of his hat, it ever changes with the Leon. If you swear, my lord, you shall not be ease: he is sooner caught than the pestilence, and the taker runs presently mad. God help the noble flaudio? if he have caught the Benedick, it will cost him a thousand pound ere he be cured.

Mess. I will hold friends with you, lady.

Best. Do, good friend.

Leon. You will never run.

Leon. You will never run mad, niece. Best. No, not till a het January.

Mess. Don Pedro is approached.

er Don Pedro, attended by Balthazar, others, Don John, Claudio, and Benedick.

D. Padro. Good signior Leonato, you are come to meet your trouble: the fashion of the world is to avoid cost, and you encounter it.

Leon. Never came trouble to my house in the ikeness of your grace: for trouble being gone, com-fort should remain; but, when you depart from me, sorrow abides, and happiness takes his leave.

D. Pedro. You embrace your charge 1 too willingly.—I think, this is your daughter.

Less. Her mother bath many times told me so. Bene. Were you in doubt, sir, that you asked her? Lem. Signior Benedick, no; for then were you a child.

D. Pedro. You have it full, Benedick: we may guess by this what you are, being a man-Truly, the lady fathers herself :- He happy, lady! for you are like an honourable father.

Bene. If signior Leonato be her father, she would not have his head on her shoulders, for all Messina, as like him as she is.

Bene. I womer, that you will still be talking, signior Benedick; no body marks you.

Bene. What, my dear lady Disdain! are you yet a crow, than a man swear he loves me.

Bene. God keep your ladyship still in that mind! so some gentleman or other shall 'scape a predestinate scratched face.

Best. Scratching could not make it worse, an

'twere such a face as yours were.

Bene. Well, you are a rare parrot-teacher.

Bent. A bird of my tongue, is better than a beast of yours.

Bess. I would my horse had the speed of your tongue; and so good a continuer: But keep your way o' God's name; I have done.

Claud. Is she not a modest young lady? Bene. Do you question me, as an honest man should do, for my simple true judgment; or would you have me speak after my custom, as being a prolessed tyrant to their sex?

Claud. No, I pray thee, speak in soher judge-

Bene. Why, i'faith, methinks she is too low for a high praise, too brown for a fair praise, and too litthe for a great praise : only this commendation I can afford her; that were she other than she is, she were unhandsome; and being no other but as she is, I do not like ber.

Claud. Thou thinkest, I am in sport; I pray thee tell me truly how thou likest her Bene. Would you buy her, that you inquire after her?

Claud. Can the world buy such a jewel?

Bene. Yea, and a case to put it into. But speak you this with a sad brow? or do you play the floutng jack; to tell us Cupid is a good here-finder, and Vulcan a rare carpenter? Come, in what key shall a man take you, to go in the song?

sently,

(5) Seriously carried on, (6) Discourring, Here. Now, Urwals, when Bestrice doth come, It were a better death than die with machs; As we do trace this alley up and down, Which is as bad as die with tickling. Our talk must only be of Benedick:

When I do name him, let it be thy part
To praise him more than ever man did merit:

My talk the theorem the here. Plantick the state of the practice My talk to thee must be, how Benedick Is sick in love with Beatrice: of this matter is little Cupid's crafty arrow made, That only wounds by hearsay. Now begin;

Enter Beatrice, behind.

For look where Beatrice, like a lapwing, runs Close by the ground, to bear our conference. Urs. The pleasant'st angling is to see the fish Cut with her golden ours the silver stream, And greedily devour the treacherous bait: So angle we for Beatrice; who even now is cauched in the woodbine coverture: Fear you not my part of the dialogue.

Here. Then go we near her, that her ear lose nothing

Of the false sweet balt that we lay for it-[They advance to the bower. No, truly, Ursula, she is too disdainful; I know, her spirits are as coy and wild

As haggards of the rock.1 Urs. But are you sure,

That Benedick loves Beatrice so entirely? Hera. So says the prince, and my new-trothed Iord.

Urs. And did they bid you tell her of it, madam? Hera. They did entrast me to acquaint her of it: But I persuaded them, if they lov'd Benedick, To wish him wrestle with affection.

And never to let Beatrice know of it,

Urs. Why did you so? Doth not the gentleman Deserve as full, as fortunato a bed

As ever Bentrice shall couch upon? Hera. O god of love! I know, he doth deserve As much as may be yielded to a man: But nature never fram'd a woman's heart Of prouder stuff than that of Beatrice : Disdain and scorn ride sparkling in her eyes, Misprisings what they look on; and her wit Values itself so highly, that to her All matter else seems weak : she cannot love, Nor take no shape nor project of affection,

She is so self-endeared. Urs. Sure, I think so And therefore, certainly, it were not good She knew his love, lest she make sport at it.

Here. Why, you speak truth: I never yet saw man, How wise, how noble, young, how rarely fentur'd, But she would spell him backward: if fair-fac'd, Sie'd swear, the gentleman should be her sister; If black, why, nature, drawing of an antic, Made a foul blot: if tall, a lance ill-headed; Iflow, an agate very vilely cut: If speaking, why, a vane blown with all winds: If silent, why, a block moved with none. So turns she every man the wrong side out; And never gives to truth and virtue, that Which simpleness and merit putchaseth.

Urs. Sure, sure, such carping is not commendable. Here. No: not to be so odd, and from all fashions, As Bestrice is, cannot be commendable: But who dare tell her so? If I should speak, She'd mock me into air; O, she would laugh me Out of myself, press me to death with wit. Therefore let Benedick, like cover'd fire, Consume away in sighe, waste inwardly:

A species of hawk.
 Ready.

(2) Undervaluing. (4) Conversation.

And, truly, I'll devise some honest slanders To stain my cousin with: one doth not know,

How much an ill word may empoison liking. Urs. O, do not do your cousin such a wrong. She cannot be so much without true judgment (Having so swift? and excellent a wit, As she is priz'd to have,) as to refuse

So mre a gentleman as signior Benedick.

Hero. He is the only man in Italy,
Always excepted my dear Claudio. Urs. I pray you, be not angry with me, madam Speaking my fancy; signior Benedick, For shape, for hearing, argument, and valour, Goes foremost in report through Italy.

Hero. Indeed, he bath an excellent good name.

Urs. His excellence did earn it, ore he had it -

When are you married, madam?

Hero. Why, every day; -to-morrow: come, go in;

I'll show thee some attires; and have thy counsel, Which is the best to furnish me to-morrow.

Urs. She's lim'd, I warrant you; we have caught her, madam.

Hero. If it prove so, then loving goes by haps: Some Cupid kills with arrows, some with traps. [Ezernt Hero and Unula.

Beatrice advances.

Beat, What fire is in mine cars? Can this be true? Stand I condemn'd for pride and ecora so much? Contempt, farewell ! and mailen pride, adicu!

No glory lives behind the back of such. And, Benedick, love on, I will requite thee Tuming my wild heart to thy loving hand; If thou dost love, my kindness shall incite then

To bind our loves up in a holy hand: For others say, theu dost deserve; and I Believe it belier than reportingly. l Ezü.

SCENE II.—A room in Leonato's house. Enter Don Pedro, Claudio, Benedick, and Leonato.

D. Pedro. I do but stay till your marriage be consummate, and then I go toward Arragon.

Cland. Pil bring you thither, my lord, if you'll rouchsafe me.

D. Pedro. Nay, that would be as great a soil in the new gloss of your marriage, as to show a child his new coat, and forbid him to wear it. I will only be bold with Benedick for his company; for, from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot, he is all mirth; he hath twice or thrice cut Cupid's bowstring, and the little hangman dares not shoot at him: he hath a heart as sound as a bell, and his tongue is the clapper; for what his heart thinks, his tongue speaks.

Bene. Gallents, I am not as I have been.

Leon. So say I; methinks, you are sadder.

Claud. I hope, he be in love.

D. Pedro. Hang him, truant; there's no true drop of blood in him, to be truly touch'd with love: if he be sad, he wants money.

Bene. I have the tooth-sch. D. Pedro. Draw it.

Bene. Hang it!

Cloud. You must hang it first, and draw it after

D. Pedro. What? sigh for the tooth-ach?

(5) Ensuard with birdline,

he that has it.

Claud. Yet say I, he is in love.

D. Pedro. There is no appearance of fancy in him, unless it be a fancy that he hath to strange discumstances shortened, (for she hath been too long guises; as, to be a Dutchman to-day; a Fromchand at alking of,) the listly is disloyal.

Claud. Who? Here? to-morrow; or in the shape of two countries at once, as a German from the waist downward, all slop; and a Spaniard from the hip upward, no every man's ilero doublet: unless he have a fancy to this loolery, as it appears he hath, he is no fool for fancy, as you would have it appear he is.

Claud. If he be not in love with some woman, one that knows him not.

Claud. Yes, and his ill conditions; and, in despite of all, dies for him.

D. Pedro. She shall be buried with her face upwards.

Bene. Yet is this no charm for the tooth-ach. Old alguior, walk aside with me: I have studied eight or nine wise words to speak to you, which these hobby-horses must not hear, [Excunt Benedick and Leonato. D. Pedro. For my life, to break with him about Beatrice.

Claud. 'Tis even so: Hero and Margaret have by this played their parts with Beatrice; and then man to be constable. the two bears will not bite one another, when they meet.

Now, if you are a maid, answer to this.
Here, I talk'd with no man at that hour, my lord.
D. Pedro. Why, then are you no maiden.

Leonato,

I am sorty you must hear; upon mine honour, Myself, my brother, and this grieved count, Did see her, hear her, at that hour last night, Talk with a ruffian at her chamber-window; Who has, indeed, most like a liberal! villain, Comess'd the vile encounters they have had A thousand times in secret.

D. John. Fie, fie! they are Not to be ham'd, my ford, not to be spoke of; There is not chustity enough in language, Without offence, to utter them: thus, pretty lady,

If half the outward graces had been placed About the thoughts, and counsels of the heart! But, fare thee well, most foul, most fair! farewell, Thou pute implety, and implous parity!

For thes I'll lock up all the gates of love,
And on my eye-lids shall conjecture hang,
To jurn all beauty into thoughts of harm,
And never shall it more be gracious.

Death is the fatrest cover for her shame, That may be wish'd for.

Best. Best.
Frier. Have comfort, lady.
Dost thou look up? How now, cousin Hero? Leon. Frier. You; wherefore should she not? Leon. Wherefore? Why, doth not every entitly thing Cry shame upon her? Could she here deny The story that is printed in her blood?—

Do not live, Hero; do not ope thine eyes:
For did I think thou would'st not quickly die, Thought I thy spirits were stronger than thy shames. Myself would, on the rearward of reproaches, Strike at thy life. Griev'd I, I had but one? Chid I for that at fruent nature's frame? O, one too much by thee! Why had I one? Why seer wast thou lovely in my eyes? Why had I not, with charitable hand, Took in a hopper, issue at my cates. Took up a beggar's issue at my gates; Who smirahed thus, and mired with infamy, I might have said, No part of it is mine, This shame derines tiself from unknown loins?
But mine, and mine I lov'd, and mine I prais'd,

Ester Don Pedro and Chardio.

.fnt. Here comes the prince, and Claudio, hastily. D. Pedro. Good den, good den. Claud. Good day to both of you.

Leon. Hear you my lords,

We have some haste, Leonato. D. Pedro. Leon. Some haste, my lord !-well, fare you well, my lord !-

Are you so hasty now ?-well, all is one.

D. Pedro. Nay, do not quarrel with us, good old man.

.Int. If he could right himself with quarrelling, Some of us would lie low.

Claud. Who wrongs him? Leon Marry,

Thou, thou dost wrong me; thou dissembler, thou: Nay, never lay thy hand upon thy sword, I fear thee not.

Cloud. Marry, beshre a my hand,

If it should give your age such cause of fear: In faith, my hand meant nothing to my sword. Leon. Tush, tush, man, never fleer and jest at me: I speak not like a dotard, nor a fool;

As, under privilege of age, to brag What I have done being young, or what would do, Were I not old: Know, Claudio, to thy head, Thou hast so wrong'd mine innocent child and me,

That I am forc'd to lay my reverence by; And, with gray hairs, and bruise of many days, Do challenge thee to trial of a man. I say, thou hast belied mine innocent child;

Thy slander hath gone through and through her heart. And she lies buried with her ancestors : O! in a tomb where never scandal alopt, Save this of her's framed by thy villany. Claud, My villany?

Thine, Claudic; thine I say. Lean D. Pedro. You say not right, old man.

Leon. My lord, my lord, I'll prove it on his body, if he dare; Despite his nice fence, and his active practice;
His May of youth, and bloom of lustyhood.
Claud. Away, I will not have to do with you.
Leon. Canst thou so daff me? Thou hast kill'd

my child;
If thou kill'st me, boy, thou shalt kill a man.

Ant. He shall kill two of us, and men indeed:
But that's no matter; let him kill one first:— Win me and wear me,—let him answer me,— Come, follow me, boy; come, boy, follow me:— Sir boy, I'll whip you from your foining<sup>2</sup> fence; Nay, as I am a gentleman, I will.

Leon. Brother, Ant. Content yourself: God knows, I lov'd my niece; And she is dead, slander'd to death by vill That dare as well answer a man, indeed, As I dare take a serpent by the tongue: slander'd to death by villains;

Boys, apes, braggarts, Jacks, milksops !-Leon. Brother Antony, Ant. Hold you content; What, man! I know them, yes, And what they weigh, even to the utmost scruple: Scrambling, out-facing, fashion-mong'ring boys, That lie, and cog, and flout, deprare and slander, Go anticly, and shew outward hidcouncess. And speak off half a dozen dangerous words, How they might hurt their enomies, if they duret, And this is all.

Leon. But, brother Antony,— Come, 'tis no matter ; Do not you meddle, let me deal in this.

D. Pedro. Gentlemen both, we will not wake your patience.

My heart is sorry for your daughter's death; But, on my honour, she was charg'd with nothing But what was true, and very full of proof.

Leon. My lord, my lord,—

· I will not hear you. D. Pedro. Leon. No?-

Brother, away :- I will be heard :-Ant. And shall.

Or some of us will smart for it.

[Execut Leonato and Antonio.

Enter Benedick.

D. Pedro. See, see, here comes the man we went to seek.

Claud. Now, signior! what news?
Bene. Good day, my lord.

D. Pedro. Welcome, signior: You are almost come to part almost a fray.

Claud. We had like to have had our two noses snapped off with two old men without teeth.

D. Pedro. Leonato and his brother: What think'st thou? Had we fought, I doubt, we should lave been too young for them.

Bens. In a false quarrel there is no true valour.
I came to seek you both.

Claud. We have been up and down to seek thee ;

for we are high-proof melancholy, and would fain have it beaten away: Wilt thou use thy wit?

Bene. It is ig my scabbard; shall I draw it?

D. Pedro. Dost thou wear thy wit by thy side?

Cloud. Never any did so, though very many have been beside their wit.—I will bid thee draw as we do the minstrels; draw, to pleasure us.

D. Pedro. As I am an honest man, he looks pale:

Art thou sick or angry?

Cloud. What! courage, man! What though care killed a cat, thou hast mettle enough in thee to kill Bene. Sir, I shall meet your wit in the career, an you charge it against me:—I pray you, choose another subject.

Claud. Nay, then give him another staff; this last was broke cross.

D. Pedro. By this light, he changes more and more: I think, he be angry indeed. Claud. If he be, he knows how to turn his girdle.*

Bene. Shall I speak a word in your ear? Cloud. God bless me from a challenge!

Bene. You are a villain; I jest not:-I will make it good how you dare, with what you dare, and when you dare: Do me right, or I will protest your cowardice. You have killed a aweet lady, and her death shall fall heavy on you: Let me hear from you.

Claud. Well, I will meet you, so I may have good cheer.

D. Pedro. What, a feast? a feast?

Cloud. I'faith, I thank him; he hath bid me to a calf's head and a capon; the which if I do not carve most curiously, say, my knife's naugut.-Shall I not find a woodcock too?

Bene. Sir, your wit ambles well; it goes easily.

D. Pedro. I'll tell thee how Beatrice praised thy wit the other day: I said, thou hadst a fine wit; True, says she, a fine little one: No, said I, a great wit; Right, says she, a great gross one: Nay, said I, a good wit: Just, said she, it hurts notody:

(5) To give a challenge. (4) Invited.

Claud. All, all; and moreover, God saw him when he was hid in the garden.

D. Pedro. But when shall we set the savage hull's borns on the sensible Benedick's head?

Claud. Yes, and text underneath, Here dwells

Benedick the married man.

Bene. Fare you well, boy; you know my mind; I will leave you now to your gossip-like humour: you break jests as braggarts do their blades, which, God be thanked, hurt not.—My lord, for your many God be thanked, hurt not.—My tora, nor your many courtesies I thank you: I must discontinue your company; your brother, the bastard, is fied from Messins: you have, among you, killed a sweet and innocent lady: for my lord Lack-beard, there, he and I shall meet; and till then, peace be with him.

[Exit Benedick.

D. Pedro. He is in carnest. Claud. In most profound carnest; and, I'll war-rant you, for the love of Beatrice. D. Pedro. And hath challenged thee?

Cloud. Most sincerely.

D. Pedro. What a pretty thing man is, when he goes in his doublet and hose, and leaves off his wit!

Dogb. Come, bring away the plaintiffs; by this time our Sexton bath reformed signior Leonato of the matter; and masters, do not lorget to specify, when time and place shall serve, that I am an ass.

Verg. Here, here comes master signior Leonato, and the Sexton too.

Re-enter Leonato and Antonio, with the Sexton.

Leon. Which is the villain? Let me see his eyes : That when I note another man like him. I may avoid him: Which of these is he?

Bors. If you would know your wronger, look on me.

Leon. Art thou the slave, that with thy breath haat kill'd

Mine innocent child?

Вота. Yea, even I alone. Leon. No, not so, villain, thou bely'st thyself; Here stand a pair of honourable men, D. Pedro. But, soft you, let be; pluck up, my Here stand a pair of honourable men, heart, and be sad! Did he not say my brother was A third is fied, that had a hand in it.

I thank you, princes, for my daughter's death; Record it with your high and worthy deeds; "Twas bravely done, if you bethink you of it. Claud. I know not how to pray your patience. Yet I must speak: Choose your revenge yourself;

Impose<sup>2</sup> me to what penance your invention Can lay upon my sin: yet sinn'd I not,

But in mistaking. D. Pedro.

By my soul, nor I: And yet, to satisfy this good old man, I would bend under any heavy weight That he'il enjoin me to.

Leen. I cannot bid you bid my daughter live, That were impossible; but, I pray you both, Possess' the people in Messina here How innocent she died: and, if your love Hang her an epitaph upon her tomb, And sing it to her hones; sing it to-night:-To-morrow morning come you to my house;

Be yet my nephew: my brother hath a daughter,

Give her the right you should have given her cousin. And so dies my revenge.

Leon. To-morrow then I will expect your coming ; To-night I take my leave.—This naughty man Shall face to face be brought to Margaret, Who, I believe, was pack'd in all this wrong, Hir'd to it by your brother.

Bora. No, by my soul, she was not; Nor knew not what she did, when she spoke to me;

But always hath been just and virtuous, In any thing that I do know by her.

Dogo. Moreover, sir, (which, indeed, is not under white and black,) this plaintiff here, the offender, did call me ass: I beseech you, let it be remembered in his punishment: and also, the watch heard them talk of one Deformed: they say, he wears a key in his ear, and a lock hanging by it; and borrows money in God's name; the which he hath used so long, and never paid, that now men grow hard-hearted, and will lend nothing for God's sake: pray you, examine him upon that point.

Ege. Happy be Theseus, our renowned duke!! Nor how'st may concern my modesty,
The. Thanks, good Egeus: what's the news'in such a presence here, to plead my thoughts:
with thee?

But I beseech your grace that I may know

Egr. Full of vexation come I, with complaint Against my child, my daughter Hermin.—
Stand forth, Demetrius; My noble lord,
This man hath my consent to marry her:—
Stand forth, I vsander;—and, my gracious duke,
This hath bewitch'd the bosom of my child:
Thou, thou, Lysander, thou hast given her rhymes,

And interchang'd love-tokens with my child: Then hast by moon-light at her window sung, With feigning voice, verses of feigning love; And stol'n the impression of her fantasy. With bracelets of thy hair, rings, gawds, conceits, Knacks, trifles, nosegays, sweet-meats; messengers, Of strong prevailment in unharden'd youth: With cumning hast then flich'd my daughter's heart; Turn'd her obedience, which is due to me, 'To stubborn hardness:—ond, my gracious duke, Be it so she will not here before your grace Consent to marry with Demetrius, I beg the ancient privilege of Athens; As she is mine, I may dispose of her: Which shall be either to this gentleman, Or to her death; according to our law, Immediately provided in that case.

Let me have Hermie's: do you marry him.

Ege. Scornful Lysander! Irac, he hath my love;

And what is mine my love shall render him;

And she is mine; and all my right of her

I do estate unto Demetrius.

Lys. I am, my lord, as well deriv'd as he, As well possess'd; my love is more than his; My fortunes every way as fairly rank'd, if not with vantage, as Demetrius'; And, which is more than all these buasts can be, I am belov'd of beauteous Hermia : Why should not I then prosecute my right? Demetrius, I'll arough it to his head Made love to Nodar's daughter, Heiena, And won her soul; and slie, sweet lady, dotes, betoutly dotes, dotes in idolatry, I pen this spotteds and inconstant man.

The. I must confeas, that I have heard so much, In that same place thou hast appointed me, And with Demetrius thought to have spoke thereof; To-morrow truly will, I meet with thee.

But, being over-full of self-affairs, My mind did lose it.—But, Demetrius, come; And come, Egeus; you shall go with me, I have some private schooling for you both.—For you, thir Hermia, hook you arm yourself

Whither a For you, fair Hermia, look you arm yourself To fit your fancies to your father's will; Or cles the law of Athens yield you up (Which by no means we may extenuate,) To death, or to a vow of single life.— Come, my Hippolyta; what cheer, my love? Demetrius, and Egeus, go along: must employ you in some business Against our muptial; and confer with you

Of semething nearly that concerns yourselves.

How chance the roses there do fade so fast? Her. Belike for want of rain; which I could well

Ly. Ah me! for aught that ever I could read,
Could ever hear by tale or history,

The course of true love never did run smooth : But, either it was different in blood;

Her. O cross! too high to be enthrall'd to low:

(I) Ever. (4) Black. (2) Wicked. (5) Luvers.

 Pole-stars.

Lys. Or else misgruffed, in respect of years; Her. O spite! too old to be engaged to young! Lys. Or else it stood upon the choice of friends. Her. O hell! to choose love by another's oye!
Lys. Or, if there were a sympathy in choice,
War, death, or sickness did lay siege to it; Making it momentary as a sound Swift as a shadow, short as any dream; Brief as the lightning in the collied night, That, in a spicen, unfolds both heaven and earth, And ere a man hath power to say,—Behold! The jaws of darkness do devour it up: So quick bright things come to confusion.

Her. If then true lovers have been ever cross'd,

It stands as an edict in destiny : Then let us teach our trial patience, Because it is a customary cross;
As due to love, as thoughts, and dreams, and sighs,

Wishes, and fears, poor farey's' fellowers.

Lys. A good persuasion; therefore, hear me, Hermia. Of great revenue, and she hath no child:

From Athens is her house remote seven leagues; And she respects me as her only son. There, gentle Hermia, may I marry thee; And to that place the sharp Athenian law Cannot pursue us: if thou lov'st me then, Steal forth thy father's house to marrow night; And in the wood, a league without the town, Where I did meet thee once with Helena, To do observance to a morn of May, There will I stay for thee.

My good Lysander: I swear to thee, by Cupid's strongest bow; By his best arrow with the golden head; By the simplicity of Venus' doves; By that which knitteth souls, and prospers loves; And by that fire which hurn'd the Carthage queen, When the false Trojan under sail was seen; By all the rows that ever men have broke, In number more than ever women spoke;

Lys. Keep promise, love: look, here comes

Her. God speed fair Helena! Whither away? Hel. Call you me fair? that fair again unsay. Demetrius loves your fair: O happy fair! Your cycs are lode-stars; and your tangue's sweet

More tuneable than lark to shepherd's car, When wheat is green, when hawthorn buds appear.

were mine! Her. Take comfort; he no more shall see my face; Lysander and myself will fly this place .--Before the time I did Lysander see, Seem'd Athens as a paradise to me: O then, what graces in my love do dwell, That he hath turn'd a heaven unto hell!

Lys. Helen, to you our minds we will unfold: To-morrow night when Phœbe doth behold Her silver visage in the wat'ry glass,
Decking with liquid pent the binded grass
(A time that lovers' flights doth still conceal,)
Through Athens' gates have we devis'd to steat.
Her. And in the wood, where often you and I

Upon faint primrose-beds were wont to lie, Emptying our bosoms of their counsel sweet: There my Lysander and myself shall meet: And thence, from Athens, turn away our eyes, To seek new friends and stranger companies. Farewell, sweet playfellow; pray thou for us, And good luck grant thee thy Demetrius! Keep word, Lysander: we must storve our sight From levers' food, till morrow deep midnight.

[Exit Hermia

Lys. I will, my Hermia.—Helena, adicu: Lys. I will, my rierinia.—Account.

As you on him, Dometrius dote on you!

[Exil Lysander.

Hel. How happy some, o'er other some can be! Through Athens I am thought as fair as she. But what of that? Demetrius thinks not so; He will not know what all but he do know. And as he errs, doting on Hermin's eyes, So I, admiring of his qualities, Things base and vile, holding no quantity, Love can transpose to form and dignity Love looks not with the eves, but with the mind; And therefore is winged Cupid painted blind; Nor hath love's mind of any judgment taste; Wings, and no eyes, figure unheady haste: And therefore is love said to be a child, Because in choice he is so oft beguil'd. As waggish boys in game! themselves forswear, Bo the boy love is perjur'd every where: For ere Demetrius look'd on Hermia's cyne,* He hail'd down oaths, that he was only mine And when this hall some heat from Hermin felt, So he dissolv'd, and showers of oaths did melt. I will go tell him of fair Hermin's flight: Then to the wood will he, to-morrow night, Pursue her; and for this intelligence
If I have thanks, it is a dear expense:
But herein mean I to enrich my pain,
To have his sight thither, and back again. [Exit.

Bol. A very good piece of work, I assure you, and a mercy.—Now, good Peter Quince, call forth your actors by the scroll: Masters, spread yourselves.

Quin. Answer, as I call you.-Nick Bottom, the weaver.

Bot. Ready: name what part I am for, and pro-

Quin. You, Nick Bottom, are set down for Pyramus.

Bot. What is Pyramus? a lover, or a tyrant? Quin. A lover, that kills himself most gullantly for love.

Bol. That will ask some tears in the true per forming of it: If I do it, let the audience look to their eyes; I will more storms, I will condole in some measure. To the rest:—Yet my chief hu-mour is for a tyrant: I could play Ercles rarely, or a part to tear a est in, to make all split.

"The raging rocks, "With shivering shocks, "Shall break the locks

" Of prison-gates:
" And Phibbus' car " Shall shine from far, " And make and mar
" The foolish fates."

This was lofty !- Now name the rest of the players.—This is Ercles' vein; a tyrant's vein; a lover is more condoling.

Quin. Francis Flute, the bellows-mender.

Flu. Here, Peter Quince. Quin. You must take Thisby on you. Hu. What is Thisby? a wandering knight? Quin. It is the lady that Pyramus must love.

Fin. Nay, faith, let me not play a woman; I have a beard coming.

Quin. That's all one; you shall play it in a mask, and you may speak as small as you will.

Bol. An I may hide my face, let me play Thisby too: I'll speak in a monstrous little voice; This-ne, Thisme, Ah, Pyramus, my lover dear; thy Thisby dear! and lady dear!

This by dear: and sany acar:
Quin. No, no; you must play Pyramus, and,
Flute, you This by.
Bot. Well, proceed.
Quin. Robin Starveling, the tailor.
Star. Here, Peter Quince.
Onin Bohin Starveling you must play This be.

Quin. Robin Starveling, you must play Thisby's mother.-Tom Snort, the tinker.

Snout. Here, Peter Quince. Quin. You, Pyramos's father; myself, Thisby's father; —Snug, the joiner, you, the lion's part:— and, I hope, here is a play filted.

Snug. Have you the lion's part written? pray you, if it be, give it me, for I am slow of study Quin. You may do it extempore, for it is nothing but roaring.

Bot. Let me play the lion too: I will roar, that I will do any man's heart good to hear me; I will roar, that I will make the duke say, Let him roar again, Lei him roar again. Quin. An you should do it too terribly, you would fright the duchess and the ladies, that they

ACT II.

SCENE I .- A wood near Athens. Enter a Fairy al one door, and Puck at another.

Puck. How now, spirit! whither wander you?

Fai. Over hill, over dale, Thorough bush, thorough brier, Over park, over pale, Thorough flood, thorough fire, I do wander every where, Swifter than the moones sphere; And I serve the fairy queen, To dew her orbas upon the green : The cowslips tall her pensioners be; In their gold coats spots you see;

Those be rubies, fairy favours, In those freckles live their savours: I must go seek some dew-drops here, And hang a pearl in every cowship's cur. Farcwell, thou lohe of spirits, I'll be gone; Our queen and all her elves come here anon.

Puck. The king doth keep his revels here to-night; With Ariadne, and Antiopa? Take heed, the queen come not within his sight. For Oberon is passing fell and wrath, Breamse that she, as her attendant, both A lovely boy, stol'n from an Indian king; She nover had so sweet a changeling; And jealous Oberon would have the child knight of his train, to trace the forests wild: But she, perforce, withholds the loved boy, Crowns him with flowers, and makes him all her joy:

And now they never meet in grove, or green,
By foundin clear, or spangled star-light sheen,*
But they do square; that all their cives, for fear,

Creep into acorn cups, and hide them there.

Fai. Either I mistake your shape and making quite,

Or else you are that shrewd and knavish sprite,

 Articles required in performing a play. At all events.

4) A term of contempt.

(3) Circles. (5) Shining.

Quin. You can play no part but Pyramus: for Call'd Robin Good-fellow: are you not he,
Pyramus is a sweet-faced man; a proper man, as
That fright the maidens of the villagery;
one shall see in a summer's day; a most lovely,
Skim milk; and sometimes labour in the quero, gentleman-like man; therefore you must needs and bootless make the breathless housewife churn,

Bot. Well, I will undertake it. What beard Mislead night-wanderers, laughing at their harm; were I best to play it in?

Quin. Why, what you will.

You do their work, and they shall have good luck:

Bot. Well, I will undertake it. What beard interest in increase it in?

Quin. Why, what you will.

Bot. I will discharge it in either your straw-free do their work, and they shall have greated the heard, your orange-tawny beard, your problem of your French-crown-coloured heard, your perfect yellow.

Quin. Some of your French crowns have no hair

In the mean time I will draw a bill of properties. Then slip I from her bum, down topples she, such as our play wants. I pray you, fall me not.

Mod failor cries, and falls into a cough;
Bot. We will meet; and there we may rehearse And then the whole quire hold their hips, and loffe; naire obscenely, and courageously. Take pains; And waxen in their mirth, and nezze, and swear be perfect; atheu.

A merrier hour was never wasted there.

But room, Facry, here comes Oberon. But room, Facry, here comes Oberon.

Fai. And here my mistres: -- Would that he were gone!

SCENE II .- Enter Oberon, at one door, with his train, and Titunia, at another, with hers.

Obe. Ill met by moon-light, proud Titania.
Tita. What, jealous Oberon? Fairy, skip hence; I have forsworn his bed and company Obe. Tarry, rush wanton; Am not I thy lord? Tita. Then I must be thy lady: But I know When thou hast stol'n away from fairy land,

And in the shape of Corin sat all day, Playing on pipes of corn, and versing love To amorous Phillida. Why art thou here, Come from the farthest steep of India? But that forsooth, the bouncing Amazon, Your buskin'd mistress, and your warrior love, To Theseus must be wedded; and you come To give their bed joy and prosperity.

Obe. How canst thou thus, for shame, Titania,

Glance at my credit with Hippolyta, Knowing I know thy love to Thesens? Didst thou not lead him through the glimmering night

From Perigenia, whom he ravished? And make him with fair Æglé break his fuith, Tita. These are the forgeries of jealousy: And never, since the middle summer's spring, Met we on hill, in dole, forest, or mead, By paved fountain, or by rushy brook, Or on the beached margent of the sen, To dance our ringlets to the whistling wind, But with thy brawls thou hast disturbed our sport: Therefore the winds, piping to us in vain, As in revenge, have suck'd up from the sea Contagious fogs; which falling in the land, Have every pelting 10 river made so proud, That they have overborne their continents: The ox hath therefore stretch'd his voke in vain, The ploughman lost his sweat; and the green corn Hath rotted, ere his youth attain'd a beard: The fold stands empty in the drowned field, And crows are fatted with the murrain flock;

(6) Quarrel. 9) Wild apple. (7) Mill. (8) Yeast, (10) Petty.

(11) Banks which contain them,

The nine men's morris' is fill'd up with mud; And the quaint mazes in the wanton green For lack of tread, are undistinguishable: The human mortals want their winter here; No night is now with hymn or carol blest :-Therefore the moon, the governess of floods, Pale is her anger, washes all the air, That rhoumatic diseases do abound: And thorough this discomparature, we see The seasons after: heavy-headed frosts Fall in the fresh lap of the crimson rose; And on old Hyems' chin, an ley crown, An odgrous chaplet of sweet summer buds Is, as in mockery, set: The opring, the summer, The childing' autumn, anery winter, change Their wonted liveries; and the 'mazed world, By their increase, now knows not which is which : And this same progeny of evils comes From our debate, from our dissension; We are their parents and original. Obe. Do you amend it then; it lies in you: Why should Titania cross her Oberon? I do but beg a little changeling boy,

To be my henchman.*
Tita. Set your heart at rest, The fairy land buys not the child of mu. His mother was a votiress of my order: And, in the spiced Indian air, by night, Pull often hath she gossip'd by my side; And sat with me on Neptune's yellow sands, Marking the embarked trace.

When we have laugh'd to see the sails concerve,
And graw high lifed, with the wanton wind:
Which she, with pretty and with swimming gait (Pollowing her womb, face rich with my young 'squire,)

Would initiate; and sail upon the land,

The Leave of the gone, and follow me no more.

Hell. You draw me, you hard-hearted adarmant;
But yet you draw not iron, for my heart
Is true as steel; leave you your power to draw,

And I shall have no power to follow you.

And, for her sake, I do rear up her hoy: And, for her sake, I will not part with him.

Obe. How long within this word intend you stay? Tita. Perchance, till after Theseus' wedding-day. If you will patiently dance in our round, And see our moon-light revels, go with us; If not, shun me, and I will space your haun's.

Obe. Give me that boy, and I will go with thee. The. Not for thy kingdom. - Fairies, away: We shall chide downright, if I longer stay, [Execut Titania and her train.

Obe. Well, go thy way : thou shall not from this grove.

Till I terment thee for this injury. My gentle Puck, come hither: Thou remember'st Since once I sat upon a promuntory, And heard a morphaid, on a dolphin's back, Uttering such dulcet and harmonious breath That the rude sea grew civil at her song; And certain stars shot madly from their spheres, To hear the sea-maid's music.

Puck. I remember. Obe. That very time I saw (but thou could'st not,) | Therefore I think I am not in the night : Flying between the cold moon and the carth, Cupid all arm'd: a certain aim he took At a fair vestal, through by the west; And loos'd his love-shaft smartly from his bow, As it should pierce a hundred thousand hearts : But I might see young Cupid's fiery shaft. Quench'd in the chaste beams of the wat'ry moon; And the imperial vot'ress passed on,

A game played by boys. (2) Autumn producing flowers unseasonably. In maiden meditation, fancy-free.

Yet mark'd I where the bolt of Cupid fell: It fell upon a little western flower, Before, milk-white; now purple with love 's wound,-And maidens call it, love-in-idieness.

Futch me that flower; the herb I show'd thee once; The juice of it on sleeping eyelids laid, Will make or man or woman madly dote Upon the next live creature that it sees. ctch me this herb: and be thou here again, Ere the leviathan can swim a league.

Puck. 1'll put a girdle round about the earth Exit Puck. In forty minutes.

Having once this juice, Ohe. I'll watch Titania when she is asleep, And drop the liquor of it in her eyes: The next thing then she waking looks upon (Be it on lion, bear, or wolf, or bull, On meddling monkey, or on busy ape,) She shall pursue it with the soul of love. And ere I take this charm off from her sight As I can take it, with another herb,) I'll make her render up her page to me. But who comes here? I am invisible: And I will over-hear their conference.

Enter Demetrius, Helena following him.

Dem. I love thee not, therefore pursue me not. Where is Lysander, and fair Hermin?
The one I'll slay, the other slaveth me.
Then told'stine, they were stell n into this wood.

Or rather, do I not in plainest truth Tell you—I do not, nor I cannot lore you?

Hel. And even for that do I luve you the more. I am your spaniel; and, Demetrius, The more you beat me, I will fawn on you; Use me but as your spaniel, sparn me, strike me, Neglect me, lose me; only gate me leave, Unworthy as I am, to follow you.
What worser place can I beg in your love (And yet a place of high respect with me,)

Than to be used as you use your dog?

Dom. Tempt not too much the batred of my spirit; For I am sick, when I do look on thee. Hel. And I'am sick when I look not on you.

Dem. You do impeach" your modesty too much, To leave the city, and commit yourself tate the hands of one that loves you not; To frust the opportunity of night, And the ill counsel of a desert place, With the rich worth of your virginity. Hel. Your virtue is my privilege for that, It is not night, when I do see your face, Nor doth this wood lack workls of company; For you, in my respect, are all the world: Then how can it be said, I am alone,

When all the world is here to look on me? Dem. Pil run from thee, and hideme in the brakes, And leave ther to the mercy of wild beasts, Hel. The wildest hath not such a heart as you. Run when you will, the story shall be changed :

(4) Page. (5) Exempted one. (7) Bring in question. (3) Produce. (5) Exempt from love. (6) Mad, raying.

Apollo files, and Daphot holds the chase; The dove pursues the griffin; the mild hind Makes speed to catch the tiger: bootless speed !

When cowardios pursues, and valour flies.

Dens. I will not stay thy questions; let me go:

Or, if thou follow me, do not believe

But I shall do thee mischief in the wood.

Hel. Ay, in the temple, in the town, the field, You do me mischief. Fie, Demetrius! Your wrongs do set a scandal on my sex : We cannot light for love, as men may do ; We should be woo'd, and were not made to woo. I'll follow thee, and make a heaven of hell, To die upon' the hand I love so well.

Ezenni Dem. and Hel. Ohe. Fare thee well, nymph: ere he do leave this grove, Thom shalf fly him, and he shall seek thy love.—

Ro-enter Puck

Hast thou the flower there? Welcome, wanderer. Puck. Ay, there it is. Obe. I pray thee, give it me, I know a bank whereon the wild thyme blows, Where ox-lips and the nodding violet grows; Quite over-canopied with lush' woodbine, With sweet must-roses, and with eglantine: There sleeps Titania, some time of the night, halfd in these flowers with dances and delight; And they the sangle throws her snamelled skin. And there the make throws her enamell'd rkin Weed wide enough to wrap a fairy in : And with the juice of this I'll streak her eyes, And make her full of hateful fantasies. Take thou some of it, and seek through this grove: A sweet Atbenian lady is in love With a distlainful youth: anoint his cyes;

do it, when the next thing he espics be the lady: thou shalt know the man the Athenian garments he hath on. Effect it with some care; that he may prove More fond on her, than she upon her love; And look thou meet me ere the first cock crow, Pack. Fear not, my lord, your servant shall do Now much beshrew my manners and my pride,

Tite. Come, now a roundel, and a fairy song ; Then, for the third part of a minute, hence; Some, to kill cankers in the musk-rose buds ; Some, war with rear-mice' for their leathern wings, To make my small cives coats: and some, keep back

The classicrous owi, that nightly hoots, and wonders

At our quaint spirits: sing me now askeep; Then to your offices, and let me rest.

SONG.

You spotted spakes, with double tongue, I Pal. Thorny hedge-hogs, be not seen; Newts, and blind-norms, do no wrong; Come not near our fairy queen :

Philomel, with melody, Fastonet, with melody;
Sing in our more bullaby;
Isilia, bulla, bullaby; bulla, bullaby;
Newer harm, nor spell, nor charm,
Come our lovely lady nigh;
Ba, good night, with bullaby.

2 Ful. Wearing spiders, come not here;
Hence, you long-legg'd spinners, hence;
Beetles black, approach not near;
Worm, nor mail, do no offence.

Chorus. Philomel, with melody, &c.

l Fri. Hence, away; now all is well: One, alouf, stand sentinel. Execut Fairies. Thank eleepe.

Enter Oberon.

Obe. What thou seest, when thou dout wake, [Squeezes the flower on Titanin's sys-lide,] Do it for thy true love take: Love, and languish for his sake: Be it ounce, or cat, or bear, Pard, or boar with bristled hair, In thy eye that shall appear When thou wak'st, it is thy dear; [Ert. Wake, when some vile thing is near.

Enter Lysander and Hermia.

Las. Fair love, you faint with wandering in the

And to speak truth, I have forgot our way;
We'll rest us, Hermia, if you think it good,
And tarry for the comfort of the day.
Her. Be it so, Lysander: find you out a bed,
For I upon this bank will rest my head.

Lys. One turf shall serve as pillow for us both;

Lys. One current man serve as pinow for us both;
One heart, one bed, two bosoms, and one treth.

Her. Nay, good Lysander; for my sake, my dear,
Lie further off yet, do not lie so near.

Lys. O, take the sense, sweet, of my innocence;
Love takes the meaning, in love's conference.

I mean, that my heart unto yours is knit,
So that hat one heart we see notice it. So that but one heart we can make of it : so that but one neart we can make of it:
Two bosoms interchained with an oath;
So then, two bosoms, and a single troth.
Then, by your side no bod-room me deny;
For, lying so, Hermia, I do not lie.
Her. Lysander riddles very prettily:—

Exemp. If Hermia meant to say, Lyannder lied.

But, gentle friend, for love and courtesy
Lie further off; in human modesty
Titania, with her train. But, genue name,
Lie further off; in human modesty
Such separation, as, may well be said,
Becomes a virtuous bachelor and a maid:
So far be distant; and good night, sweet friend:
Thy love ne'er alter, till thy sweet life end!
Las. Amen, amen, to that fair prayer, say I;
And then end life, when I end loyalty!
Here is my bed: sleep give thee all his rest!
Her. With half that wish the wisher's eyes be press'd!

[They sleep.

Enter Puck.

Puck. Through the forest have I gone, But Athenian found I none, On whose eyes I might approve This flower's force in stirring love. Night and silence ! who is here? Weeds of Athens he doth wear:
This is he, my master said,
Despised the Athenian maid;
And here the maiden, sleeping sound,
On the dank and dirty ground.
Pretty soul! she durat not lie Near this lack-love, kill-courtesy. Churl, upon thy eyes I throw All the power this charm doth owe: 10

(!) By. (2) The greater cowellp. (3) Vigorous. (7) Efts. (8) Slow-worms. (9) The small tiggs. (6) A blad of dame. (5) Sais. (7) Sports. (10) Possess.

When those walk'ed, let have forbid. Bloop his seed on thy syelid. So awake, when I am gone; For I most now to Oberon. Est.

Enter Demotrius and Holms, running. Het. Stay, though thou hill me, sweet Demetrius. Dem. I charge thee, hence, and do not beant me thu

Hel. O, wilt thou darking leave me? do not so.

Dem. Stay, on thy peril; I alone will go.

[Exit Demetrins.

Hel. O, I am out of breath in this fond chase i The more my prayer, the leaser is my grace. Happy is Hermin, wheresoe'er she lies; For she hath blessed and attractive eyes. How came her eyes so bright? Not with salt tears: If so, my eyes are oftener wash'd than hers. No, no, I am as ugly as a bear; For beasts that meet me, run away for fear: Therefore, no marrel, though Demetrius Do, as a monster, fly my presence thus.
What wicked and dissembling glass of mine.
Made me compare with Hernia's sphery eyne?
But who is here?—Lysander! on the ground! Dead? or asleep? I see no blood, no wound: Lysander, if you live, good sir, awake.

Lys. And run through fire I will, for thy sweet sake. [Waking. Transparent Helena! Nature here shows art, That through thy bosom makes me see thy heart. Where is Demetrius? O, how fit a word Is that wile name, to perish on my sword? Hel. Do not say so, Lysander; say not so: What though he love your Hermin's Lord, what though?

Yet Hermis still loves you: then be content.

Lys. Content with Hermis? No: I do repent

The tedious minutes I with her have spent. Not Hermia, but Helena I love : Who will not change a raven for a dove? The will of man is by his reason sway?d And reason says you are the worthier maid. Things growing are not ripe until their season: So I, being young, till now ripe not to reason; and touching now the point of human skill. Reason becomes the marshal to my will, And leads me to your eyes; where I o'erlook Love's stories written in love's richest book.

Hel. Wherefore was I to this keen mockery born? When, at your hands, did I deserve this scorn? Is't not snough, is't not enough, young man, That I did never, no, nor never can, Deserve a sweet look from Demetrius' eye, But you must fout my insufficiency?
Good troth, you do me wrong, good sooth, you do, in such disdainful manner me to woo.

We ought to Shout. The

there;

And never may'st thou come Lysander near! For, as a surfeit of the sweetest things The deepest leathing to the stomach brings;
Or, as the heresies, that men do leave,
Are hated most of those they did deceive; Be thou, my surfeit, and my heresy,
Of all be hated; but the most of me;
And all my powers, address your love and might
To honour Helm, and to be her knight;
[ExHer. [Starting.] Help me, Lymnder, belp me i do thy best

To pluch this crawling screent from my broast!
Ah me, for pity!--what a dream was here!
Lysander, look, how I do quake with fear: Methought a serpent eat my heart away, And you sat smiling at his cruel prey:— Lysander! what, remov'd? Lysander! lord! Lysanor; woat, remover a symmet i tout:
What, out of hearing? gone? no sound, no word?
Alack, where are you? speak, an if you hear;
Speak, of all loves; I swoon almost with fear.
No?—then I well perceive you are nobuigh:

12th a dath as word 101 find impadiately. I Parif.

ACT III.

Either death, or you, I'll find immediately. [Exit.

SCENE I.—The reme. The queen of fairtes ing esterp. Enter Quince, Saug, Bottom, Flute, Snout, and Starveling.

Bot. Are we all met? Quin. Pat, pat; and here's a marvellous con-venient place for our rehearsal: this green plot shall be our stage, this hawthorn brake our tyring-house; and we will do it in action, as we will do it before the duke.

Bot. Peter Quince,

Quest. What say'st thou, bully Bottom?

Bot. There are things in this comedy of Pyramus and Thisby, that will never please. First, Pyramus must draw a sword to kill himself; which the ladies cannot abide. How answer you that?

Saoui. By'rlakin,' a parlous' fear.

Ster. I believe, we must leave the killing out, when all is done.

Bot. Not a whit; I have a device to make all well. Write me a prologue: and let the prologue seem to say, we will do no harm with our swords: and that Pyramus is not killed indeed; and, for the more better assurance, tell them, that I, Pyramus, am not Pyramus, but Bottom the weaver : this will put them out of fear.

Quin. Well, we will have such a prologue; and it shall be written in eight and six.

Bot. No, make it two more; let it be written in eight and eight. Snow. Will not the ladies be afeard of the lion?

Star. I fear it, I promise you.

Bot. Masters, you ought to consider with yourselves: to bring in, God shield us! a lion among ladies, is a most dreadful thing; for there is not a more fearful wild-fowl than your lion, living; and we ought to look to it.
Shout. Therefore, another prologue must tell he

Bot. Nay, you must name his name, and half his face must be seen through the liou's neck; and he In such allowant in the professe I must confess,

I thought you lord of more true gentleness.

O, that a lady, of one man refused

Should, of another, therefore be abus'd!

Lys. She sees not Hermis:—Hermis, sleep thoughts, not to tear, not to tremble; my life for yours.

Lys. She sees not Hermis:—Hermis, sleep thoughts, not to tear, not to tremble; my life for yours. If you think I come hither as a liou, it were pity of my life: no, I am no such thing; I am a man as other men are:—and there, indeed, let him name his other men are:—and there, indeed, set mus same me mane; and tell them plainly, he is Saug the joiner. Quits, Well, it shall be so. But there is two hard things; that is, to bring the moon-light into a chamber; for you know, Pyramus and Thisby meet by moon-light.

night, Sung. Doth the moon shine, that night we play [Exit. our play?

(5) By all that is door. (5) By our ladykin. (4) Dangerous. (5) Terrible.

(1) In the durk.

Bot. A calendar, a calendar: look in the almarate; find out moon-shine, flud out moon-shine.

Quits. Yes, it doth shine that night. Bot. Why, then you may leave a casement of the great chamber window, where we play, open;

and the moon may shine in at the cassment.

Quits. Ay; or else one must come in with a bush of thorns and a lanthorn, and say, he comes to disor towns and a lanteern, and say, he comes to dis-figure, or to present, the person of moon-shine. Then there is another thing: we must have a wall in the great chamber; for Pyramus and Thisby, says the story, did talk through the chinks of a well. Saug. You never can bring in a wall.—What say you, Bottom?

Bot. Some man or other must present wall: and let him have some plaster, or some loam, or some rough-cast about him, to signify wall; or let him hold his singers thus, and through that cranny shall Pyramus and Thisby whisper.

Quin. If that may be, then all is well: Come, sit down, every mother's son, and rehearse your parts. Pyramus, you begin: when you have spoken your speech, enter into that brake,' and so every one according to his cue.

Enter Puck behind.

Puck. What bempen home-spuns have we swag-garing here,

So near the cradle of the fairy queen?
What, a play toward? I'll be an auditor;
An actor too, perhape, if I see cause.
Quin. Speak, Pyramus:—Thisby, stand forth.
Pyr. Thisby, the flowers of odious savours

Quin. Odours, odours.

-Odours savours succet : So doth thy breath, my dearest Thisby dear. But, hark, a voice! stay thou but here a while.

And by and by I will to thee appear. Exit. Puck. A stranger Pyramus than e'er play'd here! Aside. - Exit.

This. Must I speak now?

Quess. Ay, marry, must you: for you must un-derstand, he goes but to see a noise that he heard,

Of colour like the red-rose on triumphant brier,

Most briskly incomal, and she most localy Jewo,
As true as truest horse, that yet would never tire,
PU meet thee, Pyramus, at Ninny's tomb.
Quiss. Ninus' tomb, man: why you must not speak that yet; that you answer to Pyramus: you speak all your part at once, ever and all.—Pyramus enter; your cue is past; it is, neper tire.

Re-enter Puck, and Bottom with an ass's head. This. O,—As true as truest horse, that yet would meder fire.

Pyr. If I were fair, Thisby, I were guly thine :- Quin. O monstrous? O strange? we are haunted.

Pray, masters! fly, masters! help! [Eze. Clowns. Puck. I'll follow you, I'll lead you about a round, Through bog, through bush, through brake, through brier;

Sometime a horse I'll be, sometime a hound, hog, a beardless bear, sometime a fire; And neigh, and bark, and grunt, and roar, and burn, Like horse, hound, hog, bear, fire, at every turn.

Snow. O Bottom, thou art changed! what do I see on thee?

Bot. What do you see? you see an asa's head of your own; Do you?

Re-miler Quince.

Quin. Blezs thee, Bottom ! bless thee! thou art translated.

Bot. I see their knavery: this is to make an assofme; to fright me, if they could. But I will not stir from this place, do what they can: I will walk up and down here, and I will sing, that they shall bear I am not afraid.

[Sings.]

The ousel-cock, so black of hue, With orange-tosony bill, The throstle with his note so true, The wren with little quill;

Tile. What angel wakes me from my flowery bed? Waking.

Bot. The finch, the sparrong, and the lark, The plain-sung cuckoot gray, Whose note full many a man doth mark, And dares not anneer, ney ;-

for, indeed, who would set his wit to so foolish a bird? who would give a bird the lie, though he cry, cuckoo, never so?

Tita. I pray thee, gentle mortal, sing again: Mine car is much enamourd of thy note,

So is mine eye enthralled to thy shape; And thy fair virtue's force perforce doth move me, On the first view, to say, to swear, I love thee,

Bot. Methicks, mistress, you should have little reason for that: and yet, to say the truth, reason and love keep little company together now-a-days: the more the pity, that some honest neighbours will not make them friends. Nay, I can gleck, upon occasion.

Tite. Out of this wood do not desire to go; Thou shalt remain here, whether thou wilt or no. "

I am a spirit, of no common rate : The summer still doth tend upon my state, And I do love thee: therefore, go with me; I'll give thee fairies to attend on thee; And they shall fetch thee jewels from the deep: And sing, while thou on pressed flowers dost sleep: And I will purge thy mortal grossness so, That thou shalt like an airy spirit go, Pass-blossom! Cobweb! Moth! and Mustard-seed!

Enter four Pairies.

1 Fat. Ready.

And I. 2 Fai.

And I. 3 Fai. 4 Fai. Where shall we go? Tits. Be kind and courteous to this gentleman; Hop in his walks, and gambol in his eyes; Feed him with apricocks and dewberries, With purple grapes, green figs, and mulberries; The honey bags steal from the humble-beez, And, for night tapers, crop their wazen thighs, And light them at the fiery glow-worm's eyes,

To have my love to bed, and to arise; And pluck the wings from painted butterflies, To fan the moon-beams from his sleeping eyes: Nod to him, sives, and do him courtesies.

1 Fed. Hall, mortal!

5 Fed. Hall!

good master Cobweb: if I cut my finger, I shall make bold with you. Your name, honest gentleman?

Fess. Pess-blossom.

Bot. I pray you, commend me to mistress Squash, your mother, and to master Peascod, your father, thoud master Peas-blossom, I shall desire of you more acquaintance too.—Your name, I beseech BCENE II .- Another part of the wood, Enter Oberon.

Obv. I wonder if Titanla be awak'd; Then, what it was that next came in her eye, Which she must dote on in extremity.

Enter Puck.

Here comes my messenger. - How now, mad spirit? What night-rule now about this haunted grove? Puck. My mistress with a monster is in love. Near to her close and consecrated bower, Near to her close and conscitution of the While she was in her dull and sleeping hour, A crew of patches, 2 rude mechanicals That work for bread upon Athenian stalls, Were met together to rehearse a play, Intended for great Theseus' nuptial day. The shallowest thick-skin of that barren sort,3 Who Pyramus presented, in their sport Foresok his scene, and enter'd in a trake: When I did him at this advantage take, An ass's nowl' I fixed on his head; Ann, his Thisbe must be answered, And forth my mimic's comes: when they him spy, As wild geese that the crosping fowler eye, Or russet-pated choughs, many in sort, Rising and cawing at the gun's report Sever themselves, and madly sweep the sky; So, at his sight, away his fellows fly; And, at our stamp, here o'er and o'er one falls; He murder cries, and help from Athens calls. Their sense, thus weak, lost with their fears, thus strong, Made acaseless things begin to do them wrong : For briers and thoms at their apparel sustoh; Some, sleeves ; some, bats : from yielders all things catch.

(8) Simple fellows. 3 Stupk company. (4) Head. (5) Actor. I led them on in this distracted fear. And left sweet Pyramus translated there:
When in that moment (so it came to pass)
Titania wak'd, and straightway lov'd on ass.
Obs. This falls out better than I could devise. But hast theu yet latch'd the Athenian's eyes With the love-juice, as I did bid thee do?

Bot. I cry your worship's mercy, heartily.—I. And the Athenian woman by his side; beseech, your worship's name.
Cost. Cobweb.
But. I shall desire you of more acquaintance.
good master Cobweb: if I cut we form Y that

Obe. Stand close; this is the same Athenias. Puck. This is the woman, but not this the mas. Dem. O why rebuke you him that loves you so? Lay breath so bitter on your bitter foe. Her. Now I but chide, but I should use thee

For thou, I fear, hast given me cause to curse.

Ret. Good master Mustard-seed, I know your patience well: that same cowardly, giant-like ox- And kill me too.

The sun was not so true unto the day, house: I promise you, your kindred hath made my As he to me: Would he have stol'n away eyes water era now. I desire you more acquaint- From sleeping Hermin 7 I'll believe as soon, asoo, good master Mustard-seed.

This whole earth may be bor'd; and that the mo May through the centre creep, and so displease Her brother's noon-tide with the Antipodes.

It cannot be, but thou hast murder'd him; This whole earth may be bor'd; and that the moon So should a murderer look; so dead, so grim.

Dem. So should the murder'd look; and so should l [Exempt. Pierc'd through the heart with your stern cruelty: Yet you, the murderer, look as bright, as clear,

As youder Yerus in her glimmering sphere.

Her. What's this to my Lysander? where is he?

Ah, good Dennetius, wilt thou give him me?

Dem. I had rather give his carease to my hounds. Her. Out, dog! out, ear! thou driv'st me pust the bounds

Of maiden's patience. Hast thou slain bim then? Hencaforth be never number'd among men! O! once tell true, tell true, even for my sake; Durst thou have look'd upon him, being awake, And hast thou kill'd him sheeping ? O brave touch; Could not a worm, an adder, do so much?
An adder did it: for with a doubler tongue Than thing, thou serpent, never adder stung. Dem. You spend your passion on a mispris'd' mood : i am not guilty of Lysander's blood; Nor is he dead, for aught that I can tell. Her. I pray thee, tell me then that he is well.

Dem. And if I could, what should I get therefore?

Her. A privilege, never to see the more.-And from thy hated presence part I so: See me no more, whether habe dead or no. [Exi. Dem. There is no following her in this face:

ing troth,

A million fall, confounding oath on oath.

Obe. About the wood go swifter than the wind, And Helena of Athens look thou find : All fancy-sick she is, and pale of cheers
With sighs of love, that cost the fresh blood dear: By some illusion see thou bring her here; I'll charm his eyes, against she do appear. Puck: I go, I go; look, how I go; Swifter than arrow from the Tartar's bow.

Obe. Flower of this purple dye, Hit with Cupid's archery,

Sink in apple of his eye l When his love he doth eapy, Let her shine as gloriously As the Venus of the sky.— When thou wak'st, if she he by, Beg of her for remedy.

Re-enter Pues.

Puck. Captain of our fair y band, Helena is here at hand ; And the youth, mistook by me, Pleading for a lover's fee; Shall we their fond pageant see? Lord, what fools these mortals be! Obe. Stand aside: the nove they make, Will cause Demetrius to awake.

Puck. Then will two at once, woo one; That must needs be sport alone; And those things do best please me, That befai preposterously.

Enter Lysander and Helena.

Lys. Why should you think, that I should woo in scorn? Scorn and derision never come in tears:

Look, when I vow, I weep; and vows so born, In their nativity all truth appears. How can these things in me seem scorn to you, Bearing the badge of faith, to prove them true?

Hel. You do advance your cunning more and more. When truth kills truth, O devilish-holy fray! These vows are Hermin's; Will you give her o'er?

Weigh oath with oath, and you will nothing weigh: Your vows, to her and me, put in two scales, Will even weigh; and both as light as tales,

Lys. I had no judgment, when to her I swore. Het. Now none, in my mind, now you give her

Lys. Demetrius loves her, and he loves not you.

Dem. [doubling.] O Helen, goddess, nymph, perfect, divine!

To what, my love, shall I compare thine eyne? Crystal is muddy. O, how ripe in show Thy lips, those kissing cherries, tempting grow!
That pure congealed white, high Taurus snow,
Fann'd with the eastern wind, turns to a crow,
When the helder to the head of the helder. When thou hold'st up thy hand: O let me kiss
This princess of pure white, this seal of bilss!
Hel. O spite! O hel!! I see you all are bent

To set against me for your merriment. If you were civil, and knew courtesy, You would not do me thus much injury Can you not hate me, as I know you do, But you must join, it souls, to mock me too? If you were men, as men you are in show, You would not use a gentle lady so; To yow, and swear, and superpraise my paris, [Exit. And here, with all good will, with all my heart, in Hermin's love I yield you up my part;

And yours of Helena to me boqueath,
When I do love and will do to my dares.

Whom I do love, and will do to my death Hel. Never did mockers waste more idle breath. Dem. Lysander, keep thy Hermia; I will nonet if e'er I lov'd her, all that love is gone. My heart with her, but as guestwise, sejourn'd; And now to Helena is it home return'd.

There to remain.

Helen, it is not so. Den. Disparage not the fuith thou dost not know Lest, to thy paril, thou shy it dear. Look, where thy love comes; yonder is thy dear.

Enier Hermis.

Her. Dark night, that from the eye his function

The ear more quick of apprehension makes; Wherein it doth impair the seeing sense, It pays the hearing double recompense:— Thou art not by mine eye, Lysander, found; Mine car, I thank it, brought me to thy sound. But why unfindly didst thou leave me so? Lys. Why should he stay, whom love doth press to go ? Her. What love could press Lysander (rom my

Lys. Lysander's love, that would not let him hide, Fair Helena; who more english the night Than all you fiery oce and eyes of light. Why seek'st thou me? could not this make these know,

The hate I bear thee made me leave thee so? Her. You speak not as you think; it cannot be.

Hel. Lo, she is one of this confederacy!

Now I perceive they have conjoin'd, all three,

To fashion this fulse sport in spite of me. Injurious Hermia! most ungrateful maid! Have you conspired, have you with these contrived. To bait me with this foul derision? Is all the counsel that we two have shared, The sisters' vows, the hours that we have spent, When we have chid the hasty-footed time For parting us,—O, and is all forgot? All school-days' friendship, childhood innocence? We, Hermis, like two artificial' gods, Have with our neelds' created both one flower, Both on one sampler, sitting on one cushion, Both warbling of one song, both in one key; As if our hands, our sides, voices, and minds, Had been incorporate. So we grew together, Like to a double cherry, seeming parted; But yet a union in partition, Two levely berries moulded on one stem: So, with two seeming bodies, but one heart; Two of the first, like coats in heraldry,

To join with men in scorning your poor friend? It is not friendly, 'the not maidenly: (#) Circles. (7) Ingendous. (8) Nootles

Due but to one, and crown'd with one crest. And will you rent our ancient love arunder, Our ser, as well as I, may chide you for it:
Though I alone do feel the injury.
Her. I am amaz'd at your passionate words:

I scorn you not; it seems that you scorn me.

Hel. Have you not set Lysander, as in scorn, To follow me, and praise my eyes and face? And made your other love, Demetrius, (Who ewen but now did spurn me with his foot,)
To call me goddess, nymph, divine, and rare,
Precious, celestial? Wherefore speaks he this To her he hates? and wherefore doth Lysander Deny your love, so rich within his soul, Deny your love, so reen within ms soul,
And tender me, foresoth, affection;
But by your setting on, by your convent?
What though I be not so in grace as you,
So hing upon with love, so fortunate;
But miserable most, to love unlov'd?
This you should pity, rather than despise.
Her. I understand not what you mean by this,
Het. As the restore, counterful and looks.

Hel. Ay, a persever, counterfeit and looks, Make mowa' upon me when I turn my back; Wink at each other; hold the sweet jest up; This sport, well carried, shall be chronicled. If you have any pity, grace, or manners, You would not make me such an argument. But, fare ye well: 'tis partly mine own fault; Which death, or absence, soon shall remedy.

Las. Stay, gentle Helena; hear my excuse; My love, my life, my soul, fair Helena! Hel. O excellent!

Sweet, do not scorn her so. Dem. If she cannot entreat, I can compel. Lys. Thou canst compel no more than she entreat ;

Thy threats have no more strength, than her weak prayers.—

Helen, I love thee; by my life, I do;
I swear by that which I will lose for thee, To prove him false, that says I love thee not.

Dem. Quick, come, Lysander, whereto tends all this?

Her. Lys. Away, you Ethiop!

No, no, sir:—be will And follow you no further: Let me go:
Seem to break loose; take on, as you would follow;
But yet come not: You are a tame men, go!
Lys. Hang off, thou cat, thou burr: vile thing,

let foose;
Or I will shake thee from me, like a serpent.

. Her. Why are you grown so rude? what change is this,

Sweet love? Thy love? out, tawny Tartar, out !

Out, loathed medicine ! hated potion, hence ! Her. Do you not jest?

Hel. Yes, 'sooth; and so do you.

Lys. Demetrius, I will keep my word with thee.

Dem. I would, I had your bond; for, I perceive, A weak bond holds you; I'll not trust your word. Lys. What, should I hurt her, strike her, kill her dead?

Although I hate her, I'll not harm her so.

Her. What can you do me greater harm, than hate?

Hate me! wherefore? O me! what news, my love? Am not I Hermin? Are not you Lyander? I am as fair now, as I was erewhile.

Since night, you lov'd me; yet, since night you led me:

(1) Wry faces.

(2) A worm that preys on buds of flowers, (3) Shrowish or mischiovous. (4) Fool (4) Foobah. Why, then you left me,—O, the gods forbid !— In carnest, shall I say?

Lys. Ay, by my life; And never did desire to see thee more. Therefore, be out of hope, of question, doubt, Be certain, nothing truer; 'tis no jest, That I do hate thee, and love Helena.

Her. O me! you juggler! you canker-blossom!"
You thief of love! what, have you come by night And stol'n my love's heart from him?

Fine, i'faith! Hd. Have you no modesty, no maiden shame, No touch of bashfulness? What, will you tear Impatient answers from my gentle tongue?

Fie, fie! you counterfeit, you puppet you!

Her. Puppet! why so? Ay, that way goes the game.

Now I perceive that she hath made compare Between our statures, she hath urg'd her height; And with her personage, her tail personage, Her height, forsoon, she hath prevail'd with him And are you grown so high in his esteem, Because I am so dwarfish, and so low? How low am I, then painted maypole? speak; How low am I? I am not yet so low, But that my nails can reach unto thine eyes.

Hel. I pray you, though you mock me, gentlemen, Let her not burt me: I was never curst; I have no stil at all in shrewishness;
I am a right maid for my cowardice;
Let her not strike me: You, perhaps, may think, Because she's something lower than inyself,

Her. Lower! hark, again. Het. Good Hermia, do not be so bitter with me. I evermore did love you, Hermia, Did ever keep your counsels, never wrong'd you; Save, that in love unto Demetrius, I told him of your stealth unto this wood: Dem. I say, I love thee more than he can do. He follow'd you; for love, I follow'd him.
Lys. If thou say so, withdraw, and prove it too. But he hath chid me hence; and threaten'd me To strike me, spurn me, ney, to kill me too: And now, so you will let me quiet go, To Athens will I bear my folly back,

That I can match her.

Her. Why, get you gone: Who is't that hinders

Hel. A foolish heart, that I leave here behind. Her. What, with Lysander?

Ha. With Demetrius, Lys. Be not afraid: she shall not harm thee, Helena.

Dem. No, sir; she shall not, though you take her part.

Hel. 'O, when she's angry, she is keen and shrewd:

She was a vixen, when she went to school;
And, though she be but little, she is flerce.

Her. Little again? nothing but low and little? Why will you suffer her to flout me thus?

Let me come to her.

Lye. Lys. Get you gone, you dwarf; You minimus, of hind'ring knot-grass' made; You bead, you acorn.
You are too officious,

In her behalf that scorns your services. Let her alone; speak not of Helena; Take not her part: for if thou dost intends Never so little show of love to her,

(5) Anciently knot-grass was believed to pre-vent the growth of children.

(8) Pretend.

Thou shalt aby it.

Now she holds me not; Lyr, Now follow, if thou dar'et, to try whose right,

Or thine or mine, is most in Helena.

Dem. Follow? nay, I'll go with thee, cheek by joke.

Excent Lys. and Dem.

Her. You, mistress, all this coil is 'long of you:

Nay, go not back.

I will not trust you, I;

Hel.

Nor longer stay in your curst company.

Your hands, than mine, are quicker for a fray;

Your hands, than mine, to run away. [Exit. I will not trust you, I; My legs are longer though, to run away.

Her. I am amaz'd, and know not what to se

Obe. This is thy negligence: attli thou mistak'st, Or else commit'st thy knaveries wilfully.

Puck. Believe me, king of shadows, I mistook.
Did not you tell me, I should know the man by the Athenian committed he had a should know the man By the Athenian garments he had on? And so far blameless proves my enterprise, That I have 'nointed an Athenian's eyes:

And so far am I glad it so did sort,

As this their jangling I esteem a sport.

Obe. Thou seest, these lovers seek a place to fight:
Hie therefore, Robin, overcast the night;
The starry welkin cover thou anon. With drooping fog, as black as Acheron: And lead these testy rivals so astray, As one come not within another's way. Like to Lysander sometime frame thy tongue, Then stir Demetrius up with bitter wrong; And sometime rail thou like Demetrius; And from each other look thou lead them thus, Till o'er their brows death-counterfeiting sleep With leaden legs and batty wings doth creep:
Then crush this herb into Lysander's eye;
Whose liquor hath this virtuous property,
To take from thence all error, with his might,
And make his sye-balls roll with wonted aight.
When they next wake, all this derision
Thell means a describer wither wither. Shall seem a dream, and fruitless vision; Shall seem a dream, and traitess valor, And back to Athens shall the lovers wend, With league, whose date till death shall never and. Whites I in this affair do thee employ, I'll to my queen, and beg her Indian boy; And then I will her charmed eye release From monster's view, and all things shall be peace.

Puck. My fairy lord, this must be done with haste; For night's swift dragons cut the clouds full fast,

And yonder shines Aurora's barbinger; At whese approach, ghosts, wandering here and there, Troop home to church-yards r damned spirits all, That in cross-ways and floods have burial, Already to their wormy beds are gone; Por fear lest day should look their shames upon, They wilfully themselves extle from light,

And must for aye consort with black-brow'd night. Obe. But we are spirits of another sort; I with the Morning's Love have oft made sport; And, like a forester, the groves may tread, Even to the eastern gate, all hery red, Opening on Neptune with fair blessed beams, Opening on Neptune with iair present scening.
Turns into yellow gold his salt-green streams.
But, notwithstanding, baste; make no delay:
We may effect this business yet ere day.

[Ext Oberon.

Puck. Up and down, up and down; I will lead them up and down: I am fear'd in field and town; Goblin, lead them up and down.

(1) Happen. (2) Medicinal efficacy. (5) Go.

Here comes one.

Enter Lymnder.

Lys. Where art thou, proud Demetrins? speak thou now.

Pack. Here, villain; drawn and ready. Where art thou?

Lys. I will be with thee straight. Follow me then

To plainer ground. [Exit Lys. as fallowing the voice. .

Enter Demetries.

Lyaunder! speak again. Thou runaway, thou coward, art thou fied? Speak. In some bush? Where dost thou hide thy head?

Puck. Thou coward, art thou brazzing to the stars,

Telling the bushes that thou look'st for wars, And wilt not come? Come, recreant; come, thou child;

I'll whip thee with a rod: He is dell'd That draws a sword on thee

Dem. Yes; art thou there? Puck. Follow my voice; we'll try no manhood here. Examt.

Re-outer Lymnder.

Lys. He goes before me, and still dares me on; When I come where he calls, then he is gone. The villain is much lighter heel'd than I: I follow'd fast, but faster he did fly; That fallen am I in dark uneven way, And here will rest me. Come, thou gentle day!

For if but once thou show me thy gusy light, I'll find Demetrius, and revenge this spite. [Sicept.

Re-enter Puck and Demetrius.

Puck. Ho, ho! ho, ho! Coward, why com's thou not?

Dem. Abide me, if thou dar'st; for well I wot, Thou runn'st before me, shifting every place; And dar'st not stand, nor look me in the face. Where art thou?

Pack. Come hither; I am here.

Dem. Nay, then thou mock'st me. Thou shalt buy this dear,

If ever I thy face by day-light see:

Now, go thy way. Faintness constraineth me.

To measure out my length on this cold had.

saure out my length on this cold bed.-By day's approach look to be visited.

Lies down and sleeps.

Bater Helena.

Hel. O weary night, O long and tedious night,
Abate thy hours: shine, comforts, from the east; That I may back to Athens, by day-light,

From these that my poor company detest:—
And, sleep, that sometimes shuts up sorrow's eye,
Steal me a while from mine own company. [Sleeps. Puck. Yet but three? Come one more; Two of both kinds makes up four.

Here she comes, curst and sad :— Cupid is a knavish lad, Thus to make poor females mad.

Enter Hermia.

Her. Never so weary, never so in we, Bedabbled with the dew, and torn with briers; I can no further crawl, no further go; My legs can keep no pace with my desires.

(4) Cephalus, the paramour of Aurora.

Here will I rest me, till the break of day. Heavens shield Lymander, if they mean a fray! [Lies doson.

Puck. On the ground Sleep sound: I'll apply

To your eye,
Gentle lover, remedy.
[Squeezing the juice on Lysander's eye.
When thou wak'st,

Thou tak'st

True delight
In the sight
Of thy former lady's eye: And the country proverb known, That every man should take his own, In your waking shall be shown: Jack shall have Jiff;

Nought shall go ill;
The man shall have his mare again, and all shall be well. [Ex. Puck .- Dem. Hel. &c. sleep.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—The same. Enter Titania and Bo tom, Fairies attending; Oberon behind unseen. Enter Titania and Bot-

Tits. Come, sit thee down upon this flowery bed,
While I thy amiable cheeks do coy,¹
And stick musk-roses in thy sleek smooth head,
And kiss thy fair large ears, my gentle joy.
Bot. Where's Peas-blossom?

Bot. Monsieur Cobweb; good monsieur, get your weapons in your hand, and kill me a red-hipped humble-bee on the top of a thistle; and, good mensieur, bring me the honey-bag. Do not fret yourself too much in the action, monsieur; and good monsieur, have a care the honey-bag break not; I would be loath to have you overflown with a honey bag, signior.—Where's monsieur Mustard-Must. Ready.

Bot. Give me your neif, monsieur Mustard-seed. Pray you, leave your courtesy, good monsieur.

Must. What's your will?

Bot. Nothing, good monsieur, but to help cavalero Cobweb to scratch. I must to the barber's, monsieur; for, methiaks, I am marvellous hairy about the face; and I am such a tender ass, if my hair do but tickle me, I must scratch.

Tita. What, wilt thou hear some music, my sweet love?

Bot. I have a reasonable good ear in music: let us have the tongs and the bones.

Tits. Or, say, sweet love, what thou desir'st to eat.

Bot. Truly, a peck of provender: I could munch your good dry oats. Methinks, I have a great desire to a bottle of hay: good hay, sweet hay, hath no fellow.

Tita. I have a venturous fairy that shall seek The squirrel's hoard, and fetch thee new nuts.

Bot. I had rather have a handful, or two, of dried peas. But, I pray you, let none of your people stir me; I have an exposition of sleep come upon me.

The. Sleep thou, and I will wind thee in my arms.

(1) Stroke. (2) Fist. Fairles, be gone, and be all ways away. So doth the woodbine, the homeysuckle, Gently entwist,—the female ivy so Enrings the barry fingers of the elm. O, how I love thee! how I dote on thee! [They sleep.

Oberon advances. Enter Puck.

Obe. Welcome, good Robin. See'st thou this sweet sight? Her dotage now I do begin to pity.
For meeting her of late, behind the wood,
Seeking sweet savours for this hateful fool, I did upbraid her, and fall out with her: For she his hairy temples then had rounded With coronet of fresh and fragrant flowers And that same dew which sometime on the buds Was wont to swell, like round and orient pearls, Stood now within the pretty flowrets' eyes, Like tears, that did their own disgrace bewail. When I had, at my pleasure, taunted her, And she, in mild terms, begg'd my patience, I then did ask of her her changeling child; Which straight she gave me, and her fairy sent To bear him to my bower in fairy land. And now I have the boy, I will undo This hateful imperfection of her eyes. And, gentle Puck, take this transformed scalp From off the head of this Athenian swain; That he awaking when the other do, May all to Athens back again repair; And think no more of this night's accidents, But as the fierce vexation of a dream.

But first I will release the fairy queen.

Be, as thou wast wont to be;

[Touching ker eyes with an kerb.

See, as thou wast wont to see: Dian's bud o'er Cupid's flower Hath such force and blessed power. Now, my Titania; wake you, my sweet queen.
Tita. My Oberon! What visions have I seen!
Methough; I was enamour'd of an ass.
Obs. There lies your love.
Tita. How came these things to pass?
O, how mine eyes do loath his visage now?
Ohe Silones are the pass of the best of the best of the latest of t

Obe. Silence, awhile-Robin, take off this head Titania, music call; and strike more dead Than common sleep, of all these five the sense

Tita. Music, ho! music; such as charmeth sleep. Puck. Now, when thou wak'st, with thine own fool's eyes peep.

Obs. Sound, music. [Still music.] Come, my queen, take hands with me,

And rock the ground whereon these sleepers be. Now thou and I are new in amity; And will, to-morrow midnight, solemnly, Dance in duke Theseus' house triumphantly, And bless it to all fair posterity:
There shall the pairs of faithful lovers be Wedded, with Theseus, all in jollity.

Puck. Fairy king, attend and mark;

I do hear the morning lark.

Obe. Then, my queen, in silence sad, Trip we after the night's shade: We the globe can compass soon, Swifter than the wand'ring moon.

Tits. Come, my lord: and in our flight, Tell me how it came this night, That I sleeping here was found, With these mortals, on the ground. [Excuss. [Horns sound within.

Enter Theseus, Hippolyta, Egens, and train. The. Go. one of you, find out the forester's For now our observation is perform'd:
And since we have the vayward! of the day,
My love shall hear the music of my hounds. Uncouple in the western valley; go: Despatch, I say, and find the forester.— We will, fair queen, up to the mountain's top, And mark the musical confusion

Of hounds and echo in conjunction. Hip. I was with Hercules, and Cadmus, once, When in a wood of Crete they bay'd the bear With hounds of Sparta: never did I bear Such gallant chiding; 2 for, besides the groves, The akies, the fountains, every region near Seem'd all one mutual cry: I never heard So musical a discord, such sweet thunder.

The. My hounds are bred out of the Sparta

The. My hounds are bred out of the Spartan kind, So flew'd, so sanded; and their heads are hung With ears that sweep away the morning dew;

Crook-knee'd, and dew-lap'd like Thessalian bulls;
Slow in pursuit, but match'd in mouth like bells,
Each under each. A cry more tuneable Was never holla'd to, nor cheer'd with horn, In Crete, in Sparta, nor in Thessaly: Judge, when you hear.—But, soft; what nymphs are these?

are these?

Ege. My lord, this is my daughter here asleep:
And this, Lysander: this Demetrius is;
This Helena, old Nedar's Helena:
I wonder of their being here together.

The. No doubt, they rose up early, to observe
The rite of May; and, hearing our intent,
Came here in grace of our solemnity.—
But, speak, Egeus; is not this the day
That Hermia should give answer of her choice?

Ege. It is, my lord.

Ege. It is, my lord.

The. Go, bid the huntsmen wake them with their horns.

Horns, and shout within. Demetrius, Lysander, Hermia, and Helena, wake and start up.

The. Good-morrow, friends. St. Valentine is past; Begin these wood-birds but to couple now? Lys. Pardon, my lord.
[He and the rest kneel to Theseus.

I pray you all, stand up. I know, you are two rival enemies: How comes this gentle concord in the world, That hatred is so far from jealousy,

That native is so far from jeanusy,
To sleep by hate, and fear no enmity?

Lys. My lord, I shall reply amazedly,
Half 'aleep, half waking: But as yet, I swear,
I cannot truly say how I came here:
But, as I think, (for truly would I speak,—
And now I do bethink me, so it is;)
I came with Hermia hither; our intent
Was, to be gone from Athens, where we might! Was, to be gone from Athens, where we might be Without the peril of the Athenian law.

Bge. Enough, enough, my lord; you have enough; I beg the law, the law, upon his head.—

They would have stol'n away, they would, Demetrius, Thereby to have defeated you and me: You, of your wife; and me of my consent; Of my consent that she should be your wife.

Drm. My lord, fair Helen told me of their stealth, Of this their purpose hither, to this wood; And I in fury hither follow'd them; Fair Helena in fancy' following me.
But, my good lord, I wot not by what power
(But by some power it is,) my love to Hermia,

(1) Forepart. (2) Sound. (3) The flews are the large chaps of a hound.

'Melted as doth the snow, seems to me now As the remembrance of an idle gawd,' Which in my childhood I did dote upon: And all the faith, the virtue of my heart, The object, and the pleasure of mine eye, Is only Helena. To her, my lord, Was I betroth'd ere I saw Hermia: But, like in sickness, did I loath this food: But, as in health, come to my natural taste, Now do I wish it, love it, long for it, And will for evermore be true to it. The. Fair lovers, you are fortunately met:

Of this discourse we more will hear anon. Egeus, I will overbear your will; For in the temple, by and by with us, These couples shall eternally be knit. And, for the morning now is something worn, Our purpos'd hunting shall be set aside.— Away, with us, to Athens: Three and three, We'll hold a feast in great solemnity.— Come, Hippolyta.

[Excunt The. Hyp. Ege. and train. Dem. These things seem small, and undistinguishable, Like far-off mountains turned into clouds. Her. Methinks, I see these things with parted eye, When every thing seems double.

So methinks: And I have found Demetrius like a jewel, Mine own, and not mine own.

It seems to me Dem. That yet we sleep, we dream.—Do not you think, The duke was here, and bid us follow him? And Hippolyta. Hel.

Her. Yea: and my father.

Lys. And he did bid us follow to the temple.

Dem. Why then, we are awake: let's follow him; And, by the way, let us recount our dreams. [Exe.

As they go out, Bottom awakes.

Bot. When my cue comes, call me, and I will answer;—my next is, Most fair Pyramus.—Hey, ho!—Peter Quince! Flute, the bellows-mender! Snout, the tinker! Starveling! God's my life! stolen hence, and left me asleep! I have had a most rare vision. I have had a dream,—past the wit of man to say what dream it was: Man is but an ass, if he go about to expound this dream. Methought I was—there is no man call tell what. Methought I was—and methought I had.—But man is but a I was, and inethought I had,—But man is but a patched fool, if he will offer to say what methought I had. The eye of man hath not heard, the ear of man hath not seen; man's hand is not able to taste, his tongue to conceive, nor his heart to report, what my dream was. I will get Peter Quince to write a ballad of this dream: it shall be called Bottom's Dream, because it hath no bottom: and I will sing it in the latter end of a play, before the duke. Peradventure, to make it the more gracious, I shall sing it at her death.

A room in Quince's SCENE II.-Athens. Enter Quince, Flute, Snout, and House, Starveling.

Quin. Have you sent to Bottom's house? is he come home yet?

Star. He cannot be heard of. Out of doubt, he is transported.

Fig. If he come not, then the play is marred;
It goes not forward, doth it?
Quin. It is not possible: you have not a man m

Fig. You must say, paragon: a paramour is,
God bless us, a thing of nonght.

Enter Soug.

Swag. Masters, the dukn is coming from the temple, and there is two or three lords and ladies more married: if our sport had gone forward, we had all been made men.

Fig. O sweet bully Bottom! Thus hath he lost sixpence a day during his life; he could not have 'scaped sixpence a day; an the duke had not given him sixpence a day for playing Pyramus, I'll be hanged; he would have deserved it: sixpence a-day, in Pyramus, or nothing.

Bot. Masters, I am to discourse wonders: but ask me not what; for, if I tell you, I am no true. Athenian. I will tell you every thing, right as it. What mask? what music? How shall we beguile. The lazy time, if not with some delight?

Quies. Let us hear, sweet Bottom.

Quies. Let us hear, sweet Bottom.

In any case, let Thisby have clean linen; and let not him, that plays the lion, pare his nails, for they shall bang out for the lions claws. And, most dear actors, eat no and I do not doubt, but to hear them say, it is a sweet comedy. No more words; away; go, away.

ACT V.

SCENE I .- The same. An aperiment in the Palace of Theseus. Enter Theseus, Hippolyta, Philostrate, Lords, and Attendants.

Hip. 'Tis strange, my Theseus, that these lovers speak of.

The More strange than true. I never may believe Which is as brief as I have known a play: These antique fables, nor these fairy toys. Lovers, and madmen, have such seething brains, Such shaping fantasies, that apprehend More than cool reason ever comprehends. The lunatic, the lover, and the poet, Are of imagination all compact: One sees more devils than vast hell can hold; That is, the madman: the lover, all as frantic, Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt: The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling, Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven; And, as imagination bodies forth The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen Turns them to shapes, and gives to airy nothing A local habitation, and a name.

Such tricks hath strong imagination;

Enter Lysander, Demetrius, Hermia, and Helena.

The. Here come the lovers, full of joy and mirth. Joy, gentle friends! joy, and fresh days of love, Accompany your hearts!

Lys. More than to us Wait on your royal walks, your board, your bed. The, Come now; what masks, what dances shall we have, To wear away this long age of three hours, Between our after-supper, and bed-time? Enter Bottom.

Where is our usual manager of mirth?

Bot. Where are these lads? where are these What revels are in hand? is there no play,

To ease the anguish of a torturing hour?

The lazy time, if not with some delight ?

The. [Reads.] The battle with the Centeurs, to be sung

By an althenian cunnich to the horp.

We'll none of that: that have I told my love,

In giory of my kinsman Hercules.

The riot of the tipsy Bacchanals,

Tearing the Thracian singer in their rage.

That is an old device; and it was play'd

Without Form Thabas come last a commence.

Of learning, late decear'd in beggary. That is some satire, keen, and critical,

Not sorting with a nuptial ceremony.

A tedious brief scene of young Pyramus,
And his love Thinks: very tragical mirth. Merry and tragical? Tedious and brief? That is, hot ice, and wonderous strange snow. How shall we find the concord of this discord?

Philost. A play there is, my lord, some ten words

By ten words, my lord, it is too long; Which makes it tedious: for in all the play There is not one word apt, one player fitted. And tragical, my noble lord, it is; For Pyramus therein doth kill himself. Which, when I saw rehears'd, I must confess,

Made mine eyes water; but more merry tears
The passion of loud laughter never shed.
The. What are they, that do play it?
PMiost. Hard-handed men, that work in Athens here, Which never labour'd in their minds till now: And now have toil'd their unbreath'd memories

With this same play, against your nuptial.
The. And we will bear it.

No, my noble lord, It is not for you: I have heard it over And it is nothing, nothing in the world;

(5) Unexercised.

Unless you can find sport in their intents. Extremely stretch'd, and conn'd with cruel pain, To do you service.

I will hear that play; The. For never any thing can be amiss When simpleness and duty tender it.

Go, bring them in ;—and take your places, ladies.
[Exit Philostrate. Hip. I love not to see wretchedness o'ercharg'd,

And duty in his service perishing.

The. Why, gentle sweet, you shall see no such thing.

Hip. He says, they can do nothing in this kind.

The. The kinder we, to give them thanks for nothing. Our sport shall be, to take what they mistake: And what poor duty cannot do, Noble respect takes it in might, not merit. Where I have come, great clerks have purpos'd To greet me with premeditated welcomes To greet use with premediated welcomes; Where I have seen them shiver and look pale, Make periods in the midst of sentences, Throttle their practis'd accept in their lears, And, in conclusion, dumbly have broke off, Not paying me a welcome: Trust me, sweet, Out of this silence, yet, I pick'd a welcome; And in the modesty of fearful duty tread as much as from the retiling longue. I read as much, as from the ratiling tongue Of samey and audacious eloquence. Love, therefore, and tongue-tied simplicity. In least, speak most, to my capacity.

Enter Prologue.

Prol. If we affend, it is with our good will.
That you should think, we come not to offend,
But with good will. To show our simple skill,
That is the true beginning of our end.
Consider then, we come but in despite.

We do not come as minding to content you,

Our true intent is. All for your delight,
We are not here. That you should here repent you,
The actors are at hand; and, by their show, You shall know all, that you are like to know.

The. This fellow doth not stand upon points. Lys. He both rid his prologue, like a rough colt, he knows not the stop. A good morel, my lord: It is not enough to speak, but to speak true.

His. Indeed he hath played on this prologue, like a child on a recorder; a sound, but not in

The. His speech was like a tangled chain; no thing impaired, but all disordered. Who is next?

Enter Pyramus and Thisbe, Wall, Moonshine, and Lion, as in dumb show.

Prol. 'Gentles, perchance, you wonder at this show; But wonder on, till truth make all things plain.

This man is Pyramus, if you would know;
This beauteous lady Thisby is, certain.

*This man, with lime and rough-cast, doth present Wall, that vile wall which did these lovers sunder:

And through wall's chink, poor souls, they are content

'To whisper: at the which let no man wonder.

(1) Ready. (2) A musical instrument.

This man, with lantern, dog, and bush of thorn, Presenteth moonshine: for, if you will know, By moonshine did these lovers think no scorn To meet at Nimus' tomb, there, there to woo-This grisly beast, which by name libn hight, The trusty Thisby, coming first by night, 'Did scars away, or rather did affright;
'And, as she fied, her mantle she did fall;
'Which lion vile with bloody mouth did stain:

Anon comes Pyramus, sweet youth, and tall, 'And finds his trusty Thisby's mantle slain: Whereat with blade, with bloody blameful blade, 'He bravely broach'd his boiling bloody breast;

And, Thisby tarrying in mulberry shade,
'And, Thisby tarrying in mulberry shade,
'His dagger drow, and died. For all the rest,
Let Lion, Moonshine, Wall, and lovers twain,
'At large discourse, while here they do remain.'
[Excust Prol. Thisbe, Lion, and Moonshine.
The. I wonder, if the lion be to speak.

Dom. No wonder, my lord: one lion may, when many asses do.

Wall. 'In this same interlude, it doth befall, That I, one Snout by name, present a wall:
And such a wall, as I would have you think,
That had in it a cranny'd hole, or chink, Through which the lovers, Pyramus and Thisby, Did whisper often very secretly. 'This loam, this rough-cast, and this stone, doth show 'That I am that same wall; the truth is so:

'And this the cranny is, right and sinister,
'Through which the fearful lovers are to whasper,'

The. Would you desire time and hair to speak better?

Dem. It is the wittiest partition that ever I heard

The. Pyramus draws near the wall; silence!

Enter Pyramus.

Pyr. 'O grim-look'd night! O night with hue so black !

O night, which ever art, when day is not to night, o night, a lack, slack, slack, if tear my Thisby's promise is forgot!—
'And thou, O wall, O sweet, O lovely wall,

'That stand'st between her father's ground and mine;
'Thou wall, O wall, O sweet and lovely wall,

Thanks, courteous wall: Jove shield thee well for this! Show me thy chink, to blink through with mine

But what see I? No Thisby do I see. O wicked wall, through whom I see no bliss; 'Curst be thy stones for thus deceiving me?' The. The wall, methinks, being sensible, should curse again.

Per. No, in truth, sir, he should not. Deceiving me, is Thisby's cue: she is to enter now, and I am to spy her through the wall. You shall see, it will fall pat as I told you: -Yonder she comes.

Enter Thisbe.

This. 'O wall, full often hast thou heard my mount,

'For parting my fair Pyramus and me: 'My cherry lips have often kins'd thy stones;
'Thy stones with lime and hair knit up in thee.'
Pyr. 'I see a voice; now will I to the chink,

This. 'And I like Holen, till the fates me kill.' This. 'And I like Heien, till the fates me kill Pyr. 'Not Shafalus to Procrus was so true.' This. 'As Shafalus to Procrus, I to you.'

Pyr. 'O, kiss me through the hole of this vile wall.' This. I kiss the wall's hole, not your lips at all. Pyr. 'Wilt thou at Ninny's tomb meet me

'And, being done, thus Wall away doth go.'

'End Well away and Thisbe.

[Ermont Wali, Pyramus, and Thisbe. The. Now is the mural down between the two neighbours.

Dem. No remedy, my lord, when walls are so wilful to hear without warning.

Hip. This is the silliest stuff that ever I heard.

The. The best in this kind are but shadows: and the worst are no worse, if imagination amend them. Hip. It must be your imagination then, and not theire.

The. If we imagine no worse of them, than they of themselves, they may pass for excellent men. Here come two noble beasts in, a moon and a lion.

Exter Lion and Moonshine.

Liot, 'You, ladies, you, whose gentle hearts do fear e'er I saw.

Las. This lion is a very fox for his valour.

The. True; and a goose for his discretion.

Dem. Not so, my lord: for his valour cannot carry his discretion; and the fox carries the goose.

The. His discretion, I am sure, cannot carry his valour; for the goose carries not the fox. It is well: leave it to his discretion, and let us listen to the moon,

Moon, 'This lantern doth the borned moon pre eent:

Dem. He should have worn the horne on his head.

The. He is no crescept, and his horns are invisible within the circumference.

Moon. 'This lantern doth the horned moon

Myself the man i' th' moon do seem to be."

The. This is the greatest error of all the rest: the man should be put into the lantern: How is it one cise the man i' the moon?

Dem. He dares not come there for the candle :

for, you see, it is already in snuff.:

Hip. I am aweary of this moon: Would, he would change !

The. It appears, by his small light of discretion, that he is in the wane: but yet, in courtesy, in all reason, we must stay the time.

. (1) In anger; a quibble. (2) Coarse yarm.

Lys. Proceed, moon.

Meon. All that I have to my, m, to tell you, that the lantern is the moon; I, the men is the moon; this thorn-bush, my thorn-bush; and this

Hip. Well shows, moon. Truly, the moon shines with a good grace.

The. Well maused, iton.

Dem. And so comes Pyramus. Lys. And then the moon vanishes.

Enter Pyramus.

Pyr. ' Sweet moon, I thank thee for thy sunny beams;

'I thank thee, moon, for shining new so bright: For, by thy gracious, golden glittering streams, 'I trust to taste of truest Thisby's sight.

But stay ;-O spite!
But mark :-- Poor knight,

Hip. Methinks, she should not use a long one,

for such a Pyramus: I hope, she will be brief.

Dem. A mote will turn the balance, which Pyramus, which Thisbe, is the better.

Lys. She hath spied him already with those sweet eyes.

Dem. And thus she moans, videlices,...
This. 'Asleep, my love?

Bot. No. I assure you; the wall is down that parted their fathers. Will it please you to see the epilogue, or to hear a Bergomask dance, between epilogue, or to hear a Bergomask dance, between iwo of our company?

The. No epilogue, I pray you; for your play needs no excuse. Never excuse; for when the players are all dead, there need none to be blamed. Marry, if he that writ it had play'd Pyranus, and hanged himself in Thisbe's garter, it would have been a fine tragedy: and so it is, truly; and very notably discharged. But come, your Bergomask: let your epilogue alone. [Here a demes of Clowns. The kross tongue of midnight hath told twelve:—Lovers, to bed; 'tis almost fairy time.

Pack. Now the hungry lion roam,

And the wolf behowle the moon; Whilst the beavy ploughman snores, All with weary task fordone.2 Now the wasted brands do glow, Whilst the scritch-owl, scritching loud, Puts the wretch, that lies in wo, in remembrance of a shroud. Now it is the time of night, That the graves, all gaping wide, Every one lets forth his sprite, In the church-way paths to glide: And we fairles, that do run By the triple Heckie's team,

From the presence of the sub. Following darkness like a dream, Now are frolic; not a mouse Shall disturb this hallow'd house: I am sent, with broom before, To sweep the dust behind the door.

Enter Oberon and Titania, with their Train.

Obe. Through this house give glimmering light, By the dead and drowsy fire:
Every elf, and fairy sprite,
Hop as light as bird from brier;
And this ditty, after me,
Sing and dame it tripelingly Sing and dance it trippingly.

Tita. First rehearse this song by rote:

To each word a warbling note, Hand in hand, with fairy grace, Will we sing, and bless this place.

BONG, AND DANCE.

Obe. Now, until the break of day, Through this house each fairy stray. To the best bride-bed will we. Which by us shall blessed bo; And the issue, there create, Ever shall be fortunate. So shall all the couples three Ever true in loving be: And the hlots of nature's hand Shall not in their issue stand; Never mole, hare-lip, nor scar, Nor mark prodigious, such as are Despised in nativity, Shall upon their children be.-With this field-dew consecrate, Every fairy take his guit; And each several chamber bless, Through this palace with sweet peace E'er shall it in safety rest, And the owner of it blest, Trip away ;

Make no stay: Meet me all by break of day.

[Excust Oberon, Titania, and Trais.

Puck. If we shadows have offended, Think but this (and all is mended,) That you have but stumber'd here, While these strions did appear. And this socak and idle theme, No more yielding but a dream, Gentles, do not reprehend; If you pardon, we will mend. And, as I am an honest Puck, If we have uncarned luck Now to 'scape the serpent's tongue, We will make emends, ere long: Else the Puck a Har call So, good night unto you all. Give me your hands, if we be friends, And Robin shall restore amends. [Exit.

Wild and fantastical as this play is, all the parts in their various modes are well written, and give the kind of pleasure which the author designed. Fairies in his time were much in fashion; common tradition had made them familiar, and Spencer's poem had made them great. JOHNSON.

ACT I.

SCENE I .- Neverte. A park, with a palace in il. Enter the King, Biron, Longaville, and Dunain.

King.

LET fame, that all hunt after in their lives, Live register'd upon our brazen tombs, And then grace us in the disgrace of death; When, spite of cormorant devouring time, The endeavour of this present breath may buy That honour, which shall bate his scythe's keen edge, And make us beirs of all elernity. Therefore, brave conquerors !-- for so you are, That war against your own affections And the huge army of the world's desires,—

Our late edict shall strongly stand in force:
Navarre shall be the wonder of the world; Our court shall be a little académe, Still and contemplative in living art. You three, Biron, Dumain, and Longaville, Huve sworn for three years' term to live with me, My fellow-scholars, and to keep those statutes, That are recorded in this schedule here: Your oaths are past, and now subscribe your names; That his own hand may strike his honour down, That violates the smallest branch herein: If you are arm'd to do, as sworn to do,

Subscribe to your deep oath, and keep it too.

Long. I am resolv'd: 'tis but a three years' fast;
The mind shall banquet, though the body pine:

The minus size banders, though the body pine: Fut paunches have lean pates; and dainty bits Make rich the ribs, but bank rout quite the wits.

Dum. My loving lord, Dumain is mortified;
The grosser manner of these world's delights
He throws upon the gross world's baser slaves:

To love, to wealth, to pomp, I pine and die;
With all these living in philosophy.
Biron. I can but say their protestation over,
So much, dear liege, I have already sworn,
That is, To live and study here three years, But there are other strict observances: As, not to see a woman in that term; Which, I hope well, is not enrolled there:

And, one day in a week to touch no food; And but one meal on every day beside; The which, I hope, is not enrolled there: And then to sleep but three hours in the night, And not to be seen to wink of all the day; (When I was wont to think no harm all night, (When I was wont to think no harm all night, And make a dark night too of half the day;) Which, I hope well, is not enrolled there:

O, these are barren tasks, too hard to keep;
Not to see ladies, study, fast, not sleep.

King. Your cath is pass'd to pass away from these Biron. Let me say no, my liege, an if you please; I only awore, to study with your grace.

And stay here in your court for three years' space.

Long. You swore to that, Biron, and to the rest.

Biron. By yea and nay, sir, then I swore is Biron. By yea and nay, sir, then I swore is jest.— What is the end of study? let me know.

King. Why, that to know, which else we should not know.

Biron. Things hid and barrid, you mean, from common sense:

King. Ay, that is study's god-like recompense.

Biron. Come on, then, I will awear to study so.

To know the thing I am forbid to know: As thus...To study where I well may dine,

When I to feast expressly am forbid; Or, study where to meet some mistress fine.
When mistresses from common sense are hid: Or, having sworn too hard-a-keeping cath, Study to break it, and not break my troth

Sindy to break it, and not break my troin. If study's gain be thus, and this be so,
Study knows that, which yet it doth not know:
Swear me to this, and I will ne'er say, no.
King. These be the stops that hinder study quite,
And train our intellects to vain delight.
Biron. Why, all delights are vain; but that most vain,
Which with nate nurchested doth inhesit pain.

Which, with pain purchas'd, doth inherit pain:

which, with pair purchased, doth innert pair?
As, painfully to pore upon a book,
To seek the like of truth; while truth the while Doth falsely' blind the eyesight of his look;
Light, seeking light, doth light of light beguile:
So, ere you find where light in darkness lies,
Your light grows dark by losing of your eyes.

(1) Dishonestly, treacherously.

Study me how to please the eye indeed, By fixing it upon a fairer eye; Who dazzling so, that eye shall be his heed, And give him light that was it binded by. Study is like the homeone Study is like the heaven's glorious sun,

That will not be deep-search'd with saucy looks; Small have continual plodders ever won, Save base authority from others' books.

These earthly godfathers of heaven's lights,

That gave a name to every fixed star, Have no more profit of their shining nights, Than those that walk, and wot not what they are.

Too much to know, is, to know nought but fame; And every godfather can give a name.

Why should I joy in an abortive birth? At Christman, I no more desire a reso Than wish a snow in May's new-fangled shows;* But like of each thing, that in season grows. So you, to study now it is too late, Climb o'er the house to unlock the little gate.

Biron. So study evermore is overshot While it doth study to have what it would, It doth forget to do the thing it should: And when it hath the thing it hunteth most, Tis won, as towns with fire; so won, so lost.

King. We must, of force, dispense with this King. We decree;

She must lies here on mere necessity. Biron. Necessity will make us all forsworn Three thousand times within this three years' space:

For every man with his affects is born; Not by might master d, but by special grace: If I break faith, this word shall speak for me, I am forsworn on mere necessity. So to the laws at large I write my name:

Subscribes. And he that breaks them in the least degree,

Stands in attainder of eternal shame:

Suggestions are to others, as to me; But, I believe, although I seem so loth, I am the last that will last keep his oath. But is there no quick' recreation granted: King. Ay, that there is: our court, you know, is haunted

With a refined traveller of Spain; A man in all the world's new fashion planted, That hath a mint of phrases in his brain; One, whom the music of his own vain tongue

A man of complements, whom right and wrong Have chose as umpire of their mutiny :

This child of fancy, that Armado hight, For interim to our studies, shall relate, King. Well, sit you out: go home, Biron; adieu! For interim to our studies, shall relate, Biron. No, my good lord; I have s. sorn to stay in high-born words, the worth of many a knight From tawny Spain, lost in the world's debate. How you delight, my lords, I know not, I;
But I protest, I love to hear him He,
And I will use him for my minstrelsy.

Biron, Armado is a most illustrious wight,
A man of fire-new words, fashion's own knight.

Long. Costard the awain, and he, shall be our sport;

And, so to study, three years is but short,

Enter Dull, with a letter, and Costard.

Dull. Which is the duke's own person? Biron. This, fellow; What would'st?

Dull. I myself reprehend his own person, for I am his grace's therborough: but I would see his Who devis'd this 7 own person in flesh and blood.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—Another part of the same. A part-lion and tents at a distance. Enter the Princess of France, Rosaline, Maria, Katharine, Boyet, Lords, and other attendants.

Royel. Now, madam, summon up your dearest?

apirita: Consider who the king your father sends; To whom he sends; and what's his embassy: Yourself, held precious in the world's esteem, To parley with the sole inheritor Of all perfections that a man may owe, Matchiess Navarre; the piez of no less weight Than Aquitain; a dowry for a queen. Be now as protigni of all dear grace, As nature was in making graces dear, When she did starve the general world beside,

And prodigally gave them all to you.

Prin. Good lord Boyel, my beauty, though but mean,

Needs not the painted flourish of your praise; Beauty is bought by judgment of the eye, Not utter'd by base sale of chapmen's tongues: I am less proud to hear you tell my worth, Than you much willing to be counted wise in spending your wit in the praise of mine. But now to task the tasker,—Good Boyet, You are not ignorant, all-telling fame Doth noise abroad, Navarre bath made a vow, Till painful study shall out-wear three years, No woman may approach his silent court: Therefore to us seemeth it a needful course, Before we enter his forbidden gates, To know his pleasure; and in that behalf, To know his pleasure; and in that behalf,
Bold of your worthiness, we single you
As our best-moving fair solicitor:
Tell him, the daughter of the king of France,

Prin. Now, what admittance, lord?
Boyet. Navarre had notice of your fair approach; Boyer, reverre had house or your mar approach; And he, and his competitors in oath,

He rather means to lodge you in the field (Like one that comes here to besiege his court,) Than seek a dispensation for his oath, To let you enter his unpeopled house. Here comes Navarre. The ladies mask.

Enter King, Longaville, Dumain, Biron, and at-tendents.

King. Fair princess, welcome to the court of Navarre.

Prin. Fair, I give you back again; and, wel-come I have not yet: the roof of this court is too high to be yours; and welcome to the wild fields too base to be mine.

King. You shall be welcome, madam, to my court

Prin. I will be welcome then; conduct me thither.

King. Hear me, dear lady; I have sworn an eath.

Arm. For the rest of the worthies? Hot. I will play three myself.

Moth. Thrice-worthy gentleman!

Arm. Shall I tell you a thing ?

Hal. We attend.

Arm. We will have, if this indge not, an antic.

I besseeh you, follow.
Hol. Va.'s good man Dull! thou has spoken no word all this while.
Dull. Nor understood none neither, sir.

Hot. Allens ! we will employ thee. Dull. I'll make one in a dance, or so; or I will play on the taken to the worthes, and let them dance the bay.

Hol. Most dull, honest Dull, to our sport, away. [Exemil.

SCENE II.—Inother part of the same. Before the Princese's Parition. Enter the Princese, Katherine, Roseline, and Maria.

Prin. Sweet hearts, we shall be rich ere we depart, If fairings come thus plentifully in : A ledy walled about with diamonds !—

Look you, what I have from the loving king.

Rev. Madaze, same nething also along with that?

Ros. Great reason; for, Past cure is still past care. Prin. Well bandled both; a set of wit well play'd. But Resaline, you have a favour too: Who sent it? and what is it?

I would, you knew : Ros.

An if my face were but as fair as yours

My favour were as great; be witness this. Nay, I have verses too, I thank Biron: The numbers true; and, were the numbiring too.

Kath. A pox of that jest! and beshrew all shrows. Prin. But what was sont to you from fair Dumain?

Kath. Madam, this glove.

Priss. Did he not send you twain?

Kuth. Yes, madam; and moreover.

Some thousand verses of a faithful lover:
A huge translation of hypocrisy,
Vilely compiled, profound simplicity.

Mer. This, and these pearls, to me sent Longaville;

The letter is too long by half a mile.

Mar. Folly in fools bears not so strong a note, As foolery in the wise, when wit doth dote; Since all the power thereof it doth apply, To prove, by wit, worth in simplicity.

Enter Boyet,

Pris. Here comes Boyet, and mirth is in his face. Boyel. O, I am stabb'd with laughter! Where's her grace?

Prin. Thy news, Boyet? Boyet. Prepare, madam, prepare !-Arm, wenches, arm; encounters mounted are Against your peace: Love doth approach disguis'd, Arm'd in arguments; you'll be surpris'd: Muster your wits; stand in your own defeace; Or hide your heads like cowards, and fly hence. Pris. Saint Dennis to saint Cupid: What are they,

That charge their breath against us? say, scout, say.
Boyet. Under the cool shade of a sycamore,

I though to close mine eyes some half an hour : When, lo ! to interrupt my purpos'd rest, Toward that shade I might behold addrest The king and his companions: warily I stole into a neighbour thicket by, And overheard what you shall overhear; That, by and by, disguis'd they will be here. Their herald is a pretty knavish page, That well by heart hath com'd his embassage: Astion, and accent, did they teach him there; Thus must thou speak, and thus thy body bear: And ever and anon they made a doubt Presence majestical would put him out: For, quoth the king, on angel shall thou see; Yet fear not thou, but speak audaciously. The boy replied, An angel is not coil;

I should have fear'd her, had she been a devil.

With that all laugh'd, and clapp'd him on the eyes, shoulder;

Making the bold wag by their praises bolder. One rubb'd his elbow, thus; and fleer'd, and swore, A better speech was never apoke before:
Another, with his finger and his thumb,
Cry'd, Fig I we will do't, come what will come:
The third he caper'd, and cried, All goes well:
The fourth tuen'd on the toe, and down he fell.
With that, they all did tumble on the ground, With such a zealous laughter, so profound, That in this spleen ridiculous appears,

To check their folly, passion's solumn tears.

Prin. But what, but what, come they to visit us?

Boyet. They do, they do; and are apparel'd thus,— Like Muscovites, or Russians: as I guesa,
Their purpose is, to parle, to court, and dance:
And every one his love-feat will advance

For, ladies, we will every one be mask'd; And not a man of them shall have the grace, Despite of suit, to see a lady's face .-

Hold, Rossline, this favour thou shalt wour ; And make him proud to make me proud that jests! And then the king will court thee for his dear; So portent-like would I o'ersway his state, Hold, take thou this, my sweet, and give me thine; So shall Birón take me for Rosaline

> Ros. Comeon then; wear the favouramost in night. Kath. But, in this changing, what is your intent? Prin. The effect of my intent is, to cross theirs:

And mock for mock is only my intent. Their several counsels they unbosom shall To loves mistook; and so be mock'd withal,

Upon the next occasion that we meet,
With visages display'd, to talk, and greet.
Ros. But shall we dance, if they desire us to't! Prin. No; to the death, we will not move a foot:
Nor to their penn'd speech render we no grace;
But, while 'tis spoke, each turn away her face.

Boyet. Why, that contempt will kill the speaker's heart, And quite divorce his memory from his part. Prin. Therefore I do it; and, I make no doubt, The rest will ne'er come in, if he be out. There's no such sport, as sport by sport o'erthrown; To make theirs ours, and ours none but our own: So shall we stay, mocking intended game; And they, well mock'd, depart away with shame. [Trampels award woithin.

Boyet. The trumpet sounds; be mask'd, the maskers come. The ladies mask. maskers come.

Enter the King, Biron, Longaville, and Dumain, in Russian habits, and masked; Moth, musicians, and allesdants.

Math. All hail! the richest beauties on the earth! Boyet. Beauties no richer than rich taffets. Moth. A holy parcel of the fairest dames, [The ladies turn their backs to him.

Bicon. Their eyes, villain, their eyes.
Moth. That ever turn'd their eyes to mortal views!

Boyet, True; out, indeed.
Moth. Out of your favours, hemonly spirits,

Not to behold-

Biron. Once to behold, roque. Moth. Once to behold with your men-beamed soith your sun-beamed eye.

Boyet. They will not answer to that epithet; You were best call it, daughter-beamed eye Meth. They do not mark me, and that brings me out Biron, le this your perfectness? be gone, you rogue.

Ros. What would these strangers? know their minds, Boyet: If they do speak our language, 'tis our will

That some plain man recount their purposes: Know what they would.

Boyet. She says, you have it, and you may be gone.

King. Say to her, we have measur'd many miles,

To tread a measure with you on this grass. Rot. It is not so: ask them how many inches Is in one mile: if they have measur'd many, The measure then of one is easily told.

Boyel. If, to come hither you have measur'd miles, And many miles; the princess bids you tell,

How many inches do fill up one mile.

Birow. Tell her, we measure them by weary steps. As much in private, and Pil bid adicu.

Boyet. She hears herself. Roe. How many weary steps.

Of many weary miles you have o'ergone, Are number'd in the travel of one mile?

Biron. We number nothing that we spend for you;

Our duty is so rich, so infinite, That we may do it still without accompt Vouchsafe to show the sunshine of your face,

That we, like savages, may worship it.

Ros. My face is but a moon, and clouded too.

King. Blessed are clouds, to do as such clouds do!

Vouchsafe, bright moon, and these thy stars, to shine (Those clouds remov'd,) upon our wat'ry syne.

Ros. O vain petitioner! beg a greater matter;

Thou now request'st but moonshine in the water. King. Then, in our measure do but vouchsafe one change:

Thou bid'st me beg; this begging is not strange.

Ros. Play, music, then: nay, you must do it Music plays. 800D.

Not yet; -no dance: -thus change I like the moon.

King. Will you not dance? How come you thus estrang'd?

Ros. You took the moon at full; but now she's chang'd.

King. Yet still she is the moon, and I the man. The music plays; souchsafe some motion to it.

Ros. Our cars voucheafe it.

King. But your legs should do it.
Res. Since you are strangers, and come here by chance,

We'll not be nice: take hands;—we will not dance.
Kieg. Why take we hands then?

Ros. Only to part friends: Court'sy, sweet hearts; and so the measure ends.

King. More measure of this measure; be not nice.

Ras. We can afford no more at such a price. King. Prize you yourselves; What buys your company?

Ros. Your absence only.

King. That can never be. Ros. Then cannot we be bought: and so adieu;

Twice to your visor, and half once to you!

King. If you deny to dance, let's hold more chat.

Ras. In private then.

King. I am best pleas'd with that. [They converse aparl. Biros. White-handed mistress, one sweet word Kala. O, for your reason? quickly, sir; I long.

Long. You have a double tongue within your mask

And would afford my speechless visor balf.

Kath. Veal, quoth the Dutchman; —Is not veal a cail?

Long. A call, fair lady?

No, a fair lord calf. Long. Let's part the word. Kel's. No.

No, I'll not be your half: Take all, and wean it; it may prove an ox.

Long. Look, how you butt yourself in these sharp mocks!

Will you give homs, chaste lady? do not so.

Kala. Then die a calf, before your homs do grow. Long. One word in private with you, ere I die. Kath. Bleat softly then, the butcher hears you Ros. Not one word more, my maids; break off, break off.

Biron. By heaven, all dry-beaten with pure scoff! King. Farewell, mad wenches; you have simple wits.

[Execut King, Lords, Moth, music, and attendants. Prin. Twenty adieus, my frozen Muscovites .-

Are these the breed of wits so wonder'd at? Boyet. Tapers they are, with your sweet breaths puff d out.

Ros. Well-liking wits they have; gross, gross fat, fat,

Prin. O poverty in wit, kingly-poor flout!
Will they not, think you, hang themselves to-night?
Or ever, but in visors, show their faces?
This pert Biron was out of countenance quite.

Ros. O! they were all in inmentable cases i The king was weeping-ripe for a good word. Prin. Biron did swear himself out of all suit.

Mar. Dumain was at my service, and his sword: No point, * quoth I: my servant straight was mute. Kath. Lord Longaville said, I came o'er his heart;

And trow you, what he call'd me? Qualm, perhapa, Kath. Yes, in good faith.

Go, sickness as thou art! Well, better wits have worn plain statute-Ros. Caps.

But will you hear? the king is my love sworn. Pris. And quick Biron hath plighted faith to me. Kath. And Longaville was for my service born. Mar. Dumain is mine, as sure as bark on tree. Boyet. Madam, and pretty mistrosses, give ear: Immediately they will again be here

(5) Better wits may be found among citizens.

In their own shapes; for it can never be,
They will digest this hursh indignity.
Prin. Will they return?
Boyet,
They will, they will, God knows;

And leap for juy, though they are lame with blows: Therefore, change favours; and when they repair, Blow like sweet roses in the summer air.

Pris. How blow? how blow? speak to be un-deratood

Boyet. Fair ladies, mask'd, are roses in their bud : Dismask'd, their damask sweet commixture shown

Are angels veiling clouds, or roses blown.

Prin. Avaunt, perplexity! What shall we do,
If they return in their own shapes to woo? Ros. Good madam, if by me you'll be advised Let's mock them still, as well known, as disguis'd: Let us complain to them what fools were here, Disguis'd like Muscovites, in shapeless gear; And wonder what they were; and to what end Their shallow shows, and prologue vilely penn'd, And their rough carriage so ridiculous,

Should be presented at our tent to us.

Boyet. Ludies, withdraw; the gullants are at hand.

Pris. Whip to our tents, as rocs run over land. [Exeunt Princess, Ros. Kath. and Maris.

A mess of Russians left us but of late.

King. How, madem? Russians? Prin. Ay, in truth, my lord; Trim galiants, full of courtship, and of state. Ros. Madam, speak true:—It is not so, my lord;

My lady (to the manner of the days,*) In courtesy, gives undeserving praise. We four, indeed, confronted here with four in Russian habit: here they stay'd an hour, And talk'd apace; and in that hour, my lord, They did not bless us with one happy word.
I dare not call them fools; but this I think,
When they are thirsty, tools would fain have drink.
Biron. This jest is d.y to me—Pair, gentle sweet,

Biron Yet I have a trick Of the old rage: bear with me, I am sick; Write, Lord have mercy on us, on those three;
They are infected, in their hearts it lies;
They have the plague, and caught it of your eyes:
These lords are visited; you are not free,

For the Lord's tokens on you do I see.

Prin. No, they are free, that gave these tokens to us.

Biron. Our states are forfeit, seek not to undo us Res. It is not so; For how can this be true, That you stand forfeit, being those that suc? Biron. Peace; for I will not have to do with you.
Ros. Nor shall not, if I do as I intend. Biron. Speak for yourselves, my wit is at an end

Some fair excuse.

The fairest is confession. Pris. Were you not here, but even now, diaguis'd? King. Madam, I was. And were you well advised?

King. I was, fair madam.

When you then were here, Prin. What did you whisper in your lady's ear?

King. That more than all the world I did respect her.

Priss. When she shall challenge this, you will reject her. Upon mine honour, no.

· Peace, peace, forbear; Prin Your oath once broke, you force not to forswear.

King. Despise me, when I break this eath of mine.

Pris. I will; and therefore keep it:—Rosaline,

What did the Russian whisper in your ear?

Ros. Madam, he swore, that he did hold me dear sir. As precious eye-sight; and did value me Above this world: adding thereto, moreover,

That he would wed me, or clse die my lover Most honourably doth uphold his word.

King. What mean you, madam? by my life, my troth.

I never swore this lady such an oath.

Ros. By heaven, you did; and to confirm it plain, You gave me this: but take it, sir, again. King. My faith, and this, the princess I did give;

I knew her by this jewel on her sleeve,
Prist. Pardon me, sir, this jewel did she wear;
And lord Biron, I thank him, is my dear:—

What; will you have me, or your pearl again?

Miron. Neither of either; I ramit both iwain.

Prin. He speaks not like a man of God's making. Arm. That's all one, my fair, sweet, honey monarch: for, I protest, the school-master is exceeding fantastical; too, too vain; too, too vain: But we will put it, as they say, to firtune della guerra. I wish you the peace of mind, most royal couplement? [Exit Armado.

King. Here is like to be a good presence of worthies: He presents Heeter of Troy; the swain, Pompey the great; the patish curate, Alexander; Armado's page, Hercules; the pedant, Judas Machabeus.

And if Sasse four worthics in their first show thrive,
These four will change habits, and present the other five,

Biron. There is five in the first show. King. You are deceived, 'tis not so.

Biros. The pecant, the braggart, the hedge-priest, the fool, and the boy:— Abate a throw at novum; and the whole world again,

Cannot prick* out five such, take each one in his vein.
King. The ship is under sail, and here she comes Cost. It is great, sir; -Pompey surnom'd the great; That oft in field, with targe and shield, did make my foe to reveal:

And, travelling along this coast, I here am come
by chance;

And lay my arms before the legs of this sweet lass of France.

If your ladyship would say, Thanks, Pompey, 1 had done.

Pris. Great thanks, great Pompey.
Cost. Tis not so much worth; but, I hope, I was perfect: I made a little fault in, great.
Biron. My hat to a halfpenny, Pompey proves the best worthy.

Biron. Your nose smells, no, in this, most tender-smelling knight.

Prin. The conqueror is dirmay'd: Proceed, good Alexander.

Nath. When in the world I livid, I was the togild's commander ;Boyet. Most true, 'tis right; you were so, Ali-sander.

Biron, Pompey the great,—
Cast. Your servant, and Costard. Biron. Take away the conqueror, take away Alisander.

Cost. O, sir, [To Nath.] you have overthrown Alisander the conqueror? You will be scraped out of the painted cloth for this: your lion, that holds his polf-ax sitting on a close-stool, will be given to A-jax, he will be the ninth worthy. A conqueror, and aleard to speak! run away for shame, Alisander. [Nath. refires.] There, sn't shall please you; a foolish mild man; an honest man, look you, and soon dash'd! He is a marrellous good neighbour, in sooth; and a very good bowler; but, for Alisander, alus, you see, how 'tis ;- a little o'erparted :-But there are worthics a coming will speak their mind in some other sort.

Pris. Stand aside, good Pompey.

Enter Holosernes arm'd, for Judes, and Moth arm'd, for Hercules.

Hol. Great Hercules is presented by this imp, Whose club kill'd Cerbergs, that three-headed CRRUS;

And, when he was a babe, a child, a shrimp, Thus did he strangle serpents in his manua:

Quonism, he seemeth in minority; Ergo, I come with this spology

Hol. Not lecariot, sir.—
Judas I am, yeleped Machabaus.
Dom. Judas Machabaus clipt, is plain Judas.
Biron. A kissing traitor:—How art thou prov'd Judan ?

Hol. Judas I em,— Dum. The more shame for you, Judas.

Hol. What mean you, sir?

Boyet. To make Judes hang himself.

Hol. Begin, sir; you are my elder.

Biron. Well follow'd: Judes was hang'd on an elder.

Hol. I will not be put out of countenance.

Biron. Because thou hast no face.

Hol. What is this?

Boyet. A cittern head. Dum. The head of a bodkin.

Biron. A death's face in a ring. Long. The face of an old Roman coin, scarce MARIE, Boyet. The pummel of Casar's faulchion.

Don. The care'd-boundace on a flash.

Biron. St. George's half-cheek in a brooch.

Dum. Ay, and in a brooch of lead.

Nath. When in the world I liv'd, I was the And now, forward; for we have put thee in countenance.

Enter Armado arm'd, for Hector.

Biron. Hide thy head, Achilles: here comes Hector in arms.

Dam. Though my mocks come home by me, I will now be merry.

King. Hector was but a Trojan in respect of this. Bovet. But is this Hector? Dum. I think, Hector was not so clean-timber'd.

Long. His leg is too big for Hector. Dum. More calf, certain.

Boyet. No; he is best indued in the small. Biron. This cannot be Hector.

Biron. This cannot be meeor.

Dum, He's a god or a painter; for he makes faces.

Dum. Hector will challenge him.

Biron. For the ass to the Jude; give it him:

Jud-ns, away.

Hol. This is not generous, not gentle, not humble.

Boyet. A light for Monsieur Judas: it grows dark, he may stumble.

Prin. Alas, poor Machabæus, how hath he been you, let me horrow my arms again.

Dum. Room for the incensed worthies. Cost. I'll do it in my shirt.

Dum. Most resolute Pompey!
Moth. Master, let me take you a button-hole lower. Do you not see, Pompey is meaning for the combat? What mean you? you will lose your reputation.

Arm. Gentlemen, and soldiers, pardon me: I will not combat in my shirt.

Dum. You may not deny it: Pompey hath made the challenge.

Arm. Sweet bloods, I both may and will.

Biron. What reason have you for't?

Arm. The naked truth of it is, I have no shirt; go woolward for penance.

Boyet. True, and it was enjoin'd him in Rome for want of linen: since when, I'll be sworn, he were none, but a dish-clout of Jacquenetta's; and that 'a wears next his heart, for a favour.

Arm. For mine own part, I breathe free breath: I have seen the day of wrong through the little hole of discretion, and I will right myself like a soldier. [Exeunt Worthies.

King. How fares your majesty? Prin. Boyet, prepare; I will away to-night.
King. Madam, not so; I do beseech you, stay.
Prin. Prepare, I say.—I thank you, gracious

For all your fair endeavours; and entreat, Out of a new-sad soul, that you vouchsafe In your rich wisdom, to excuse, or hide, The liberal opposition of our apirits: If over-holdly we have borne nurselves In the converse of breath, your gentleness Was guilty of it.—Farewell, worthy lord!

Res. You must be purged too, your sins are rank;

Honest plain words best pierce the ear You are attaint with faults and perjury;

And by these badges understand the king. Prey your fair sakes have we neglected time,
Play'd foul play with our oaths; your beauty, ladies,
Hath much deform'd us, fashioning our humours
Even to the opposed end of our intents; And what in us hath seem'd ridiculous, As love is full of unbelitting strains; All wanton as a child, skipping, and vain; Form'd by the eye, and, therefore, like the eye Form'd by the eye, and, therefore, like the eye fall of strange shapes, of habits, and of forms, berying in subjects as the eye doth roll. By being once false for ever to be true To those that make us both :—fair ladies, you : And even that falsehood, in itself a sin,

Thus purifies itself, and turns to grace.

Pris. We have receiv'd your letters full of love;
Your favours the embassadors of love;
And, in our maiden council, rated them And, as our mateer country, reach them.
As courtship, pleasant jest, and courtes,
As bombast, and as lining to the time:
But more derout than this, in our respects,
Have we not been; and therefore met your loves
In their own fishion, like a merriment.

Dan. Our letters, mudam, show'd much more than jest. Lear, Bo did pur looks.

Then, at the expiration of the year,
Come challenge, challenge me by these deserts,
And, by this virgin paim now kissing thine,
I will be thine; and till that instant, shut
My would self up in a mourning house;
Raising the tears of launeniation,
For the remembrance of my father's death. For the remambrance of my father's death.

If this thou do deny, let our hands part;

Neither shittled in the other's heart.

Impose some service an me for thy love.

Ros. Oft have I heard of you, my lord Birth,
Before I saw you: and the world's large tongue Proclaims you for a man replete with mocks; Full of comparisons and wounding flouts; Which you on all estates will execute. That lie within the mercy of your wit:
To weed this wormwood from your fruitful brain,
And, therewithal, to win me, if you please,
(Without the which I am not to be won,) You shall this twelvemonth term from day to day Visit the speechless sick, and still conver With groaning wretches; and your task shall be, With all the ficree' endeavour of your wit, To enforce the pained impotent to smile.

Biron. To more wild laughter in the throat of death ?

It cannot be; it is impossible: Mirth cannot more a soul in agony. Ros. Why, that's the way to choke a gibing spirit, Whose influence is begot of that loose grace Which shallow laughing hearers give to fools: A jest's prosperity lies in the car
Of him that hears it, never in the tongue
Of him that makes it: then, if sickly ears,
Deaf'd with the clamours of their own dear will hear your idle scorns, continue then, And I will have you, and that fault withat; But, if they will not, throw away that spirit, And I shall find you empty of that fault, Right joyful of your reformation.

Arra. Sweet majesty, vouchsale me,— Pris. Was not that Hector? Dam. The worthy knight of Trey.

Dam. The worthy knight of Troy.

Arm. I will kiss thy royal finger, and take leave: I am a votary; I have vowed to Jaquenetta to hold the plough for her sweet love three years.
But, most esteemed greatness, will you hear the dislogue that the two learned men have compiled, in praise of the owl and the cuckoo? It should have followed in the end of our show,

King. Call them forth quickly, we will do so. Arm. Hella! approach.—

Enter Holosemes, Nathaniel, Moth, Costard, and others.

This side is Hiems, winter; this Ver, the spring; the one maintain'd by the owl, the other by the cuckon. Ver, begin.

(2) Wild apples,

In this play, which all the editors have consurred to censure, and some have rejected as unwerthy of our poet, it must be sunfessed that there are many passages mean, childish, and vulgar: and some which ought not to have been exhibited, as we are told they were, to a maiden queen. But there are scattered through the whole many sparks of genius; nor is there any play that has more evident marks of the hand of Shakapeare.

ACT I.

BCENE L-Venice. A street. Enter Antonio, Is sad to think upon his merchandise Salarino, and Salanio.

Antonio.

N sooth, I know not why I am so sad; It wearies me; you say, it wearies you; But how I caught it, found it, or came by it, What stuff 'tis made of, whereof it is born, 1 am to learn;

And such a want-wit sadness makes of me,

That I have much ado to know myself.

Salar. Your mind is tossing on the ocean;
There, where your argosics! with portly sail, Like signiors and rich burghers of the flood, Or, as it were the pageants of the sca,-Do overpeer the petty traffickers,
That curt'sy to them, do them reverence,
As they fly by them with their woven wings.
Salos. Believe me, sir, had I such venture forth,
The better part of my affections would Be with my hopes abroad. I should be still

Plucking the grass, to know where rits the wind; Peering in maps, for ports, and piers, and roads; And every object, that might make me fear Misfortune to my ventures, out of doubt, Would make me sad.

My wind, cooling my broth, Solow Would blow me to an ague, when I thought What harm a wind too great might do at sea. I should not see the sandy hour-glass run, But I should think of shallows and of flats; And see my wealthy Andrew dock'd in sand, Vailings her high-top lower than her ribs, To kiss her burial. Should I go to church, And see the hely edifice of stone And not bethink me stungth of dangerous rocks?
Which touching but my gentle vessel's side,
Would scatter all her spices on the stream; Enrobe the roaring waters with my silks; And, in a word, but even now worth this. And now worth nothing? Shall I have the thought To think on this; and shall I lack the thought,

Upon the fortune of this present year: Therefore, my merchandise makes me not sad. Salan. Why then you are in love. Ant.

Salan. Not in love neither? Then let's say, you are sad.

Because you are not merry: and 'twere as easy For you to laugh, and leap, and say, you are merry, Because you are not sad. Now, by two-headed Junus, Nature hath fram'd strange fellows in her time: Some that will evermore peep through their eyes, And laugh, like parrots, at a bag-piper ; And other of such vinegar aspect, That they'll not show their teeth in way of smile, Though Nestor swear the jest be laughable.

Enter Bassanio, Lorenzo, and Gratiano.

Salam. Here comes Bassanio, your most noble kinsman,

Gratiano, and Lorenzo: Fare you well: We leave you now with better company.

Salar. I would have staid till I had made you

If worthier friend, had not prevented me.

Ant. Your worth is very dear in my regard. I take it, your own business calls on you, And you embrace the lession to depart. Salar. Good morrow, my good lords. Bass. Good siguiors both, when shall we laugh?

Ant. I hold the world but as the world. Gratiano ;

A stage, where every man must play a part, And mine a sad one.

Let me play the fool: With mirth and laughter let old wrinkles come; And let my liver rather heat with wine, Than my heart cool with mortifying groans, Why should a man, whose blood is warm within, Sit like his grandsire cut in alabaster? Sleep when he wakes? and creep into the jaundice By being pecvish? I tell thee what, Antonio, I love thee, and it is my love that speaks ;-There are a sort of men, whose visages Do cream and mantle, like a standing pond; And do a wilful stillness' entertain, With purpose to be dress'd in an opinion of wisdom, gravity, profound conceit;
As who should say, I am sir Oracle,
And, when I ope my lips, let no dog bark!
O, my Antonio, I do know of these,
That therefore only are reputed wise, For saying nothing; who, I am very sure, If they should speak, would almost damn those cars, Which, hearing them, would call their brothers, fools.

I'll tell thee more of this another time: But fish not with this melancholy bait, For this fool's gudgeon, this opinion.— Come, good Lorenzo:—Fare ye well, a while; I'll end my exhortation after dinner. Ler. Well, we will leave you then till dinner time:

I must be one of these same dumb wise men, For Gratiano never lets me speak.

Gratiano speaks an infinite deal of nothing, Go, presently inquire, and so will I, more than any man in all Venice: His reasons are Where money is; and I no question make as two grains of wheat hid in two bushels of chaff; To have it of my trust, or for my sake. you shall seek all day ere you find them; and, when you have them, they are not worth the search.

Ant. Well; tell me now, what lady is this same To whom you swore a secret pilgrimage,

That you to day promis'd to tell me of?

Bass. 'Tis not unknown to you, Antonio,
How much I have disabled mine estate, By something showing a more swelling port Than my faint means would grant continuance: Nor do I now make moan to be abridged From such a noble rate; but my chief care Is, to come fairly off from the great debis Wherein my time, something too prodigal,

(1) Obstinate silence, (2) Ready.

السلم I shot his fellow of the self-same flight The self-some way, with more advised watch, To find the other forth; and by adventing both, I of found both: I urge this childhood proof, Because what follows is pure innocence. I owe you much; and, like a wiful youth, That which I owe is lost: but if you please To shoot another arrow that self way. Which you did shoot the first, I do not doubt, As I will watch the aim, or to find both, Or bring your latter hazard back again, And thankfully rest debtor for the first.

Ant. You know me well; and herein spend but time,

To wind about my love with circumstance; And, out of doubt, you do me now more wrong, In making question of my uttermost, Than if you had made waste of all I have: Then do but say to me what I should do, That in your knowledge may by me be done,

And I am prest<sup>2</sup> unto it: therefore, speak.

Bass. In Belmont is a lady richly left,
And she is fair, and, fairer than that word, Of wondrous virtues: sometimes from her eyes Of wondrous virtues: sometimes from her eyes I did receive fair speechless messages: Her name is Portia; nothing undervalued
To Cato's daughter, Brutus' Portia.
Nor is the wide world ignorent of her worth;
For the four winds blow in from every coast
Renowned suitors; and her sunny locks
Hang on her temples like a golden fiece;
Which makes her seut of Belmont, Colchos' strand,
And many Jasons come in quest of her.
O my Antonio, had I but the means or Gratiano never lets me speak.

O my Antonio, had I but the means

Gra. Well, keep me company but two years To hold a rival place with one of them, Thou shalt not know the sound of thine own That I should questionless be fortunate.

Ant. Thou know'st, that all my fortunes are at BCENE II.—Belmont. A room in Portia's house. Enter Portia and Nerissa.

Por. By my troth, Nerissa, my little body is awcary of this great world. Ner. You would be, sweet madam, if your miso-ries were in the same abundance as your good fortunes are: And yet, for aught I see, they are as sick, that surfeit with too much, as they that starve with nothing: It is no mean happiness therefore, to be scated in the mean; superfluity comes sconer by white hairs, but competency lives longer. Por. Good sentences, and well pronounced.

Note my time, sometiming too pronigal, liath left me gaged: To you, Antonio, I owe the most, in money, and in love; And from your love I have a warranty SCENE VI .- The same. Enter Gratiano and Salarino, masked.

Gra. This is the pent-house, under which Lorenzo Desir'd us to make stand.

Seier. His hour is almost past. Grs. And it is marvel he out-dwells his bour, Por lowers over run before the clock.

Salor. O, ten times faster Venus' pigeons fly
To seal love's bonds new made, than they are wont,
To keep obliged faith unforbited!

Gra. That ever holds: Who riseth from a feast,
With that keen appetite that be sits down?

Where is the house that dath unstrand amin Where is the horse that doth untreed again His tedious measures with the unbated fire That he did pace them first? All things that are, Are with more spirit chased than enjoy'd. How like a younker, or a prodigal, The scarled back puls from her native bay Hugg'd and embraced by the strumpet wind! How like the predigal doth she return, With over-weather'd ribs, and ragged sails, Lean, rest, and beggar'd by the strumpet wind!

Enter Lorenzo.

Solar. Here comes Lorenzo; more of this here-

Ler. Sweet friends, your patience for my long abode; Not I, but my affairs, have made you wait; When you shall please to play the thieves for wives, I'll waith as long for you then.—Approach; Here dwells my father Jew :—He! who's within?

Rater Junios above, in boy's clother.

Jes. Who are you? Tell me, for more certainty,

(I) Described with flags.

Jes. Lorenzo, certain; and my love, indeed; For who love I so much? And now who knows,

But you, Lorenzo, whether I am yours?

Lor. Heaven, and thy thoughts, are witness that thou art.

Jes. Here, catch this casket; it is worth the pains. I am glad 'tis night, you do not look on me, For I am much ashum'd of my exchange: But love is blind, and lovers cannot see The pretty follies that themselves commit; For if they could, Cupid himself would blush To see me thus transformed to a boy.

Lor. Descend, for you must be my torch-bearer. Jes. What, must I hold a candle to my shames? They in themselves, good sooth, are too, too light. Why, 'tis an office of discovery, love; And I should be obscur'd.

Lor. So are you, sweet, Even in the lovely garnish of a boy.

But come at once; For the close night doth play the run-away,

And we are staid for at Bassanio's feast. Jes. I will make fast the doors, and gild myself With some more ducate, and be with you straight. [Extl. from above.

Gra. Now, by my hood, a Gentile, and no Jew. Lor. Beshrew me, but I love her heartily: For she is wise, if I can judge of her And fair she is, if that mine eyes be true And true she is, as she hath prov'd herself; And therefore, like herself, wise, fair, and true, Shall she be placed in my constant soul.

What, art thou come?—On, gentlemen, away, Our masquing mates by this time for us stay. [Exit with Jessica and Salarino.

Ant. Fic, fie, Gratiano? where are all the rest?
Tis nine o'clock; our friends all stay for you:—
No masque to-night; the wind is come about,
Bassanio presently will go aboard:

here sent tenate; out to each for you.

I have sent twenty out to seek for you.

Gra. I am glad on't; I desire no more delight Than to be under sail, and gone to-night, SCENE VII.—Belmont. A room in Portin's house. Flourish of cornels. Enter Portin, with the prince of Morocco, and both their trains.

Por. Go, draw aside the curtains, and discover The several caskets to this noble prince :-Now make your choice.

The first, of gold, who this inscription Mor. bears :-

Who chooseth me, shall gain what many men desire.
The second; sliver, which this promise carries;—
Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves.
The third, dull lead, with warning all as blunt;— Who chooseth me, must give and hazard all he hath. How shall I know if I do choose the right?

Por. The one of them contains my picture, prince;

If you choose that, then I am yours withal.

Mor. Some god direct my judgment! Let me see, I will survey the inscriptions back again : What says this leaden casket?

Who chooseth me, must give and hazard all he hath. Must give—For what? for lead? hazard for lead? This casket threatens : Men, that bexard all,

Do it in hope of fair advantages: A golden mind stoops not to shows of dross;
I'll then nor give, nor hazard, aught for lead.
What says the silver, with her virgin hue?
Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves.
As much as he deserves?—Pause there, Morocco,
And weigh thy value with an even hand:
If thou best rated by the estimation. If thou be'st rated by thy estimation, Thou dost deserve enough; and yet enough May not extend so far as to the lady; And yet to be afeard of my deserving Were but a weak disabling of myself.

As much as I descrive!—Why, that's the lady:
I do in birth descrive ber, and in fortunes,
In graces, and in qualities of breeding;
But more than these, in love I do deserve.

What if I stray'd no further, but chose here:

"" Let's see once more this saying grav'd in gold: Who chooseth me, shall guin what many men desire Why, that's the lady; all the world desires her: From the four corners of the earth they come, To kies this shrine, this mortal breathing saint. The Hyrcanian deserts, and the vasty wilds of wide Arabia, are as through-fares now, For princes to come view fair Portia: The watery kingdom, whose ambitious head Spits in the face of heaven, is no bar To stop the foreign spirits; but they come, As o'er a brook, to see fair Portia. One of these three contains her heavenly picture. Is't like, that lead contains her? 'Twere damnation, To think so base a thought; it were too gross To rib! her cerecloth in the obscure grave. Or shall I think, in silver she's immur'd. Being ten times undervalued to try'd gold? O sinful thought! Never so rich a gem Was set in worse than gold. They have in England A coin, that bears the figure of an angel Stamped in gold: but that's insculp'd' upon ; But here an angel in a golden bed Lies all within .- Deliver me the key; Here do I choose, and thrive I as I may!

Por. There, take it, prince, and if my form lie

there,

Then I am yours. [He unlocks the golden casket. Mor. O held! what have we here? A carrion death, within whose empty eye There is a written scroll? I'll read the writing,

All that glisters is not gold, Often have you heard that told: Many a man his life hath sold, But my outside to behold: Gilded tombs do worms infold. Had you been as wise as bold, Young in limbs, in judgment old, Your answer had not been inscrolled Fare you well; your suit is cold.

Cold, indeed; and labour lost: Then, farewell, heat; and, welcome, frost Portia, adieu! I have too grier'd a heart To take a tedious leave: thus losers part. [Ezü. Por. A gentle riddance :- Draw the curtains.

Let all of his complexion choose me so. [Errent. SCENE VIII. Venice, A street. Enter Salarino and Salenio.

They were not with Bassanio in his ship. Salan. I never heard a passion so confus'd, So strange, outrageous, and so variable,
As the dog Jew dul utter in the streets:
My daughter!—O my ducats!—O my daughter!
Fled with a Christian?—O my Christian ducats! Justice! the law! my duculs, and my daughter! A scaled bag, two scaled bags of duculs, Of double ducuts, slot'n from me by my daughter! And jewels; two stones, two rich and precious ziones Storn by my daughter!—Justice! find the girl.

Salar. Marry, well remember'd: I reason'd" with a Frenchman yesterday; Who told me,—in the narrow seas, that part The French and English, there miscarried A vessel of our country, richly fraught: I thought upon Antonio, when he told me; And wish'd in silence, that it were not his.

Salan. You were best to tell Antonio what you hear; Yet do not suddenly, for it may grieve him.

Salar. A kinder gentleman treads not the earth.
I saw Bassanio and Antonio part: Bassanio told him, he would make some speed Of his return; he answer'd—Do not so, Slubbert not business for my sake, Bassania, Sut stay the very riping of the time; And for the Jew's bond, which he halh of me, Let il not enter in your mind of towe: Be merry, and employ your chiefest thoughts To courtship, and such fair ostents' of towe As shall conveniently become you there: And even there, his eye being hig with tears, Turning his face, he put his hand behind him, and with affection wondrous sensible He wrong Basanio's hand, and so they parted.

Salan. I think, he only loyes the world for him.
I pray thou let us go, and find him out,
And quicken his embraced heaviness.

Ar. And so have I address'd me: Fortune now To my heart's hope!—Gold, silver, and base lead. IV ho chosselà me, must give and hazard all he hath: You shall look fairer, ere I give, or hazard. What says the golden chest? hu! let me see:— If he charseth me, shall gain what many men desire. What many men desire.—That many may be meant By the fool multitude, that choose by show, Not learning more than the fond eye doth teach; Which pries not to the interior, but, like the martiet, Builds in the weather on the outward wall, Even in the force and road of casualty I will not choose what many men desire, Because I will not jump with common spirits, And rank me with the barbarous multitudes. Why, then to thee, thou silver treasure-house; Tell me once more what title thou dost bear; Who chaneth me, shall get as much as he deserves; And well said too: For who shall go about To cozen fortune, and be honourable Without the stamp of merit! Let none presume To wear an podeserved dignity.
O, that estates, degrees, and offices,
Were not deriv'd corruptly! and that clear honour Were purchas'd by the men't of the wearer!
How many then should cover, that stand bare?
How many be commanded, that command?
How much low peasantry would then be glean'd
From the true need of honour? and how much honour Pick'd from the chaff and ruin of the times, To be new varnish'd? Well, but to my choice: Who chooseth me, shall get as much as he deserves; I will assume desert;—Give me a key for this,

And instantly unlock my fortunes here

Ar. What's here? the portrait of a blinking idiot, Presenting me a schedule? I will read it. How much unlike art thou to Partia? How much unlike my hopes, and my deservings?
Who chooseth me, shall have as much as he deserves. Did I deserve no more than a fool's head? Is that my prize? are my deserts no better?

Per. To offend, and judge, are distinct offices,

And of opposed natures,

Дr. What is here? The fire seven times tried this ; Seven times tried that judgment is, That did never choose amiss: Some there be, that shadows kiss; Such have but a shadow's bliss: There be fools alive, I wis, Silver'd o'er; and so was this.

And what is music then? then music is Even as the flourish when true subjects bow To a new-crowned monarch: such it is, As are those dulcet sounds in break of day, That creep into the dreaming bridegroom's car, And summon him to marriage. Now he goes, With no less presence, but with much more love, Than young Aicides, when he did redeem The virgin tribute paid by howling Troy To the sea-monster: I stand for sacrifice, The rest aloof are the Dardanian wives. With bleared visages, come forth to view, The issue of the exploit. Go, Hercules! Live thou, I live:—With much much more dismay I view the fight, than thou that mak'st the fray.

In religion, What damued error, but some soher brow Will bless it, and approve it with a text, Hiding the grossness with fair ornament? There is no vice so simple, but assumes Some mark of virtue on his outward parts. How many cowards, whose hearts are all as false As stairs of sand, wear yet upon their chins The beards of Hercules, and frowning Mars; Who, inward scarch'd, have livers white as milk? And these assume but valour's excrement, To render them redoubted. Look on beauty And you shall see 'tis purchas'd by the weight Which therein works a miracle in nature Making them lightest that wear most of it: So are those crisped snuky golden locks.

Where every something, being blent; together,
Turns to a wild of stitling, save of joy,
Express'd, and not express'd; But when this ring
Parts from this finger, then parts life from hance. Parts from this finger, then parts life from hence; O, then be bold to say, Bassanio's dead.

Ner. My lord and lady, it is now our time, That have stood by, and seen our wishes prosper, To ery, good joy; Good joy, my lord, and lady!

To ery, good joy; Good joy, my lord, and lady Gra. My lord Bassanio, and my gentle lady! I wish you all the joy that you can wish; For, I am suce, you can wish none from me: And, when your honours mean to selemnize The bargain of your faith, I do beseech you Even at that time I may be married too.

Rass. With all my heart, so thou canst get a wife. Gra. I thank your lordship; you have got me one. My eyes, my lord, can look as swift as yours: You saw the mistress, I beheld the maid; You lov'd, I lov'd; for intermission' No more pertains to me, my lord, than you, Your fortune stood upon the caskets there; And so did mine too, as the matter fails:
For wooing here, until I sweat again;
And swearing, till my very roof was dry
With oaths of love; at last,—if promise last,—
I got a promise of this fair one here, To have her love, provided that your fortune Achiev'd her mistress.

Por. Madam, it is, so you stand pleas'd withal Bess. And do you, Gratiano, mean good faith?

Boss. Our feast shall be much honour'd in your marriage. Gra. We'll play with them, the first boy for a thousand ducats. Ner. What, and stake down?-

Grs. No; we shall ne'er win at that sport, and stake down.—

But who comes here? Lorenzo, and his infidel? What, my old Venetian friend, Salerio?

Enter Lorenzo, Jessica, and Salerio.

Bass. Lorenzo, and Salerio, welcome hither; If that the youth of my new interest here Have power to bid you welcome: --- By your leave, I bid my very friends and countrymen, Sweet Portis, weicome.

Bo do I, my lord; They are entirely welcome.

Lor. I thank your honour:--For my part, my If law, authority, and power deny not, lord, lt will go hard with poor Antonio.

It will go hard with poor Antonio.

If purpose was not to have seen you here;

Por. Is it your dear friend, that is thus in trouble? My purpose was not to have seen you here;

But meeting with Saleric by the way, He did entreat me, past all saying may, To come with him along. Bale. I did, my lord,

And I have reason for it. Signior Antonio Commends him to you. [Gives Bassanic a letter. Commends him to you. Ere I ope his letter, I pray you, tell me how my good friend doth.

Sale. Not sick, my lord, unless it be in mind;

Nor well, unless in mind: his letter there

Will show you his estate.

Grs. Norissa, encer yon' stranger; bid her welcome.

(1) Blendesi'

(I) Pause, delay,

How doth that royal merchant, good Antonio? I know, he will be glad of our success; We are the Jasons, we have won the fleece.

Sale. Would you had won the fleece that he hath lost ! Por. There are some shrewd contents in you' same paper, That steal the colour from Bassanio's cheek: Some dear friend dead; else nothing in the world Could turn so much the constitution Of any constant man. What, worse and worse? .

With leave, Bassanio; I am half yourself, And I must freely have the half of any thing That this same paper brings you. Bass. O sweet Portes.

Here are a few of the unpleasant'st words, That ever blotted paper? Gentle lady, When I did first impart my love to you, I freely told you, all the wealth I had Ran in my veins, I was a gentleman; And then I told you true: and yet, dear lady, Rating myself at nothing, you shall see How much I was a braggart : When I told you My state was nothing, I should then have told you That I was worse than nothing; for, indeed, I have engaged myself to a dear friend, Enpag'd my friend to his mere enemy. To feed my means. Here is a letter, lady; The paper as the body of my friend, And every word in it a gaping wound, Issuing life-blood.—But is it true, Salerio ? Have all his ventures fail'd? What, not one hit? From Tripolis, from Mexico, and England, From Lisbon, Barbary, and India? And not one vessel 'scape the dreadful touch Of merchant-marring rocks?

Sale. Not one, my lord. Besides, it should appear, that if he had The present money to discharge the Jew, He would not take it : Never did I know A creature, that did bear the shape of man, So keen and greedy to confound a man: He plies the duke at morning, and at night: And doth impeach the freedom of the state, If they deny him justice: twenty merchants,
The duke himself, and the magnificoes?
Of greatest port, have all persuaded with him;
But none can drive him from the envious plea Of forfeiture, of justice, and his bond.

Jes. When I was with him, I have heard him swear, To Tubal, and to Chus, his countrymen That he would rather have Antonio's flesh, Than twenty times the value of the sum That he did owe him: and I know, my lord, Bass. The dearest friend to me, the kindest man, The best condition'd and unwearled spirit In doing courtesies; and one in whom.

The ancient Roman honour more appears, Than any that draws breath in Italy. Por. What sum owes be the Jew?

Bass. For me, three thousand ducats. What, no more? Pay him six thousand, and deface the bond; Double six thousand, and then treble that, Before a friend of this description Shall lose a hair through Bamanio's fault. First, go with me to church, and call me wife:

(3) The chief mon.

And then away to Venice to your friend; For never shall you lie by Portia's side With an unquiet soul. You shall have gold To pay the petty debt twenty times over; When it is paid, bring your true friend along: My maid Nerissa, and myself, mean time, Will live as maids and widows. Come, away; For you shall hence upon your wedding-day; Bid your friends welcome, show a merry cheer:
Since you are dear bought, I will love you dear.—
But let me hear the letter of your friend.

Bass. [Reads.] Sweet Bassanio, my ships have

No bed shall e'er be guilty of my stay, No rest be interposer 'twixt us twain.

Exeunt.

mercy;——.
This is the fool that lent out money gratis;—

Gapler, look to him. Ant.

I have sworn an oath, that I will have my bond: Thou call'dst me dog, before thou had'st a cause: But, since I am a dog, beware my fangs: The duke shail grant me justice.—I do wonder, Thou naughty gasler, that thou art so fond? To come abroad with him at his request.

Ast. I pray thee, hear me speak. Shy. I'll have my bond; I will not hear thee speak:

I'll have my bond; and therefore speak no more. I'll not be made a soft and dull-ey'd fool, To shake the head, reient, and sigh, and yield To Christian intercessors. Follow not: Pil have no speaking; I will have my bond.

Exit Shylock. Salant. It is the most impenetrable cur, That ever kept with men.

Ant. Let him alone, I'll follow him no more with bootless prayers. He seeks my life; his reason well I know; I oft deliver d from his forfeitures Many that have at times made mosn to me; Therefore he hates me.

Salan. I am sure, the duke

Will never grant this forfeiture to hold.

Ant. The duke cannot deny the course of law. For the commodity that strangers have With us in Venice, if it be denied, with much impean the justice of the state; Since that the trade and profit of the city Consisteth of all nations. Therefore, go: These griefs and losses have so 'Bated me, That I shall hardly spare a pound of flesh To-morrow to my bloody creditor.—

You have a noble and a true conceit Of god-like amity; which appears most strongly. In bearing thus the absence of your lord. But, if you knew to whom you show this honour, How true a gentleman you send relief, How dear a lover of my lord your husband, I know, you would be prouder of the work, Than customary bounty can enforce you.

That do converse and waste the time together Whose souls do bear an equal yoke of fove, There must be needs a like proportion Of lineaments, of manners, and of spirit; Which makes me think, that this Antonio,. Being the bosom lover of my lord, Must needs be like my lord: If it be so, How little is the cost I have bestow'd, In purchasing the semblance of my soul From out the state of hellish cruelty? This comes too near the praising of myself; Therefore no more of it: hear other things. I have toward heaven breath'd a secret vow Ant. Hear me yet, good Shylock. Por. My people do already know my mind,
And will acknowledge you and Jessica

In place of lord Bassanio and myself.

So fare you well, till we shall meet again.

Lor. Fair thoughts, and happy hours, attend on you.

Jes. I wish your ladyship all heart's content. Por. I thank you for your wish, and am well pleas'd

To wish it back on you: fare you well, Jesaica. Exercit Jessica and Lorenzo.

Now, Balthazar, As I have ever found thee honest, true, So let me find thee still: Take this same letter, And use thou all the endeavour of a man, In speed to Padua; see thou render this Into my cousin's hand, doctor Bellario; And, look, what notes and gurments he doth give thee.

Por. I did, my lord.

Dake. You are welcome: take your place.

Are you acquainted with the difference
That holds this present question in the court?
Por. I am informed thoroughly of the cause. Which is the merchant here, and which the Jew?
Duke. Antonio and old Shylock, both stand forth.

Por. Is your name Shylock? Bhy. Shylock is my name. Por. Of a strange nature is the suit you follow;
Yet in such rule, that the Venetian law

You stand within his danger, do you not?

Ani. Ay, so he says. Por. Do you confess the bond ? Ant. I do.

Por. Then must the Jew be merciful.

Shy. On what compulsion must I? tell me that. Por. The quality of mercy is not strain'd; It droppeth, as the gentle rain from heaven Upon the place beneath: it is twice bloss'd; It blesseth him that gives, and him that takes: "Tis mightlest in the mightlest; it becomes The throned monarch better than his crown: His sceptre shows the force of temporal power, The attribute to awe and majesty, Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings; But mercy is above this scepter'd away, It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,

It is an attribute to God himself; And earthly power doth then show likest God's, When morey seasons justice. Gra. O upright judge!—Mark, Jew;—O learn-ed judge! Sky. Is that the law?

Thou shalt have justice, more than thou desir'st.

I take this offer then ; - pay the bond thrice, And let the Christian go.

Here is the money. Bass.

Par. Soft: The Jew shall have all justice; -- soft! -- no haste; He shall have nothing but the penalty.

Gra. O Jew! an upright judge, a learned judge!

Por. Therefore, prepare thee to cut off the flesh.

Shed thou no blood; nor cut thou less, nor more, But just a pound of flesh: if thou tak'et more Or less, than a just pound,—be it but so much As makes it light, or heavy, in the substance, Or the division of the tweatieth part Of one poor scruple; nay, if the scale do turn But in the estimation of a hair,—

Thou diest, and all thy goods are confiscate.

Gru. A second Daniel, a Daniel, Jew! Now, infidel, I have thee on the hip.

Por. Why doth the Jew pause? take thy forfelture.

Shy. Give me my principal, and let me gu. Bass. I have it ready for thee; here it is. Por. He hath refus'd it in the open court;

He shall have merely justice, and his bond.

Gra. A Daniel, still say I; a second Daniel!—
I thank thee, Jew, for teaching me that word.

Shy. Shall I not have barely my principal?

Por. Thou shalt have nothing but the forfeiture.

To be so taken at thy peril, Jew.

Shy. Why then the devil give him good of it!

I'll stay no longer question.

Por. Tarry, Jew ; The law hath yet another hold on you. It is enacted in the laws of Venice,-If it he prov'd against an alien, That by direct, or indirect attempts, He seek the life of any citizen, The party, 'gainst the which he doin contrive,
Shall seize one half his goods; the other half
Comes to the privy coffer of the state;
And the offender's life lies in the mercy Of the duke only, 'gainst all other voice Of the duke only, 'gainst all differ voice, in which predicament, I say thou stand'st:
For it appears by manifest proceeding,
That, indirectly, and directly too,
Thou hast contriv'd against the very life
Of the defendant; and thou hast incurr'd
The danger formerly by me rehears'd.
Down, therefore, and beg mercy of the duke.
Gra. Beg, that thou may'lt have leave to hang thyself:

thyself: And yet, thy wealth being forfait to the state, Thou hast not left the value of a cord; spirit I pardon thee thy life before thou ask it: For half thy wealth, it is Antonio's; The other half comes to the general state, Which humbleness may drive unto a fine.

Por. Ay, for the state; not for Antonio. Shy. Nay, take my life and all, pardon not that You take my house, when you do take the prop That doth sustain my house; you take my life, When you do take the means whereby I live.

Por. What morey can you render him, Antonio? Gro. A halter gratis; nothing else, for God's sake. Ant. So please my lord the duke, and all the court

Thyself shalt see the act: To quit the fine for one half of his goods; Two things provided more,—That, for this favour, He presently become a Christian; The other, that he do record a gill, Here in the court, of all he dies possess'd,

Dake. I am sorry, that your lessure serves you

Antonio, gratify this gentleman; For, in my mind, you are much bound to him.

[Excent Duke, magnifices, and train.

Bass. Most worthy gentlemen, I and my friend,
Have by your wisdom been this day acquitted Of grievous penalties; in lieu whereof, Three thousand ducats, due unto the Jew We freely cope your courteous pains withal.

And stand indebted, over and above,

In love and service to you evermore.

Por. He is well paid, that is well satisfied; And I, delivering you, am satisfied, And therein do account myself well paid; My mind was never yet more mercenary. I pray you, know me, when we meet again ; I wish you well, and so I take my leave.

Bess. Dear sir, of force I must attempt you further;

Take some remembrance of us, as a tribute, Not as a fee : grant me two things, I pray you,

Give me your gloves, I'll wear them for your sake;
And, for your love, I'll take this ring from you:—
Do not draw back your hand; I'll take no more;
And you in leve shall not deny me this.

Bass. This ring, good sir,—alns, it is a trifle;
I will not shame myself to give you this.

Por. I will have nothing else but only this;
And you, methinks. I have a mind to it.

And now, methinks, I have a mind to it.

Boss. There's more depends on this, than on the value.

The dearest ring in Venice will I give you, And find it out by proclamation; Only for this, I pray you, pardon me.

Por. I see, sir, you are liberal in offers:
You taught me first to heer, and now met!

You taught me first to beg; and now, methinks You teach me how a beggar should be answer'd Base. Good sir, this ring was given me by my wife;

And, when she put it on, she made me vow, That I should neither sell, nor give, nor lose it. Par. That scuse serves many men to save their gifts.

An If your wife be not a mad woman, And know how well I have deserved this ring, . She would not hold out enemy for ever, For giving it to me. Well, peace be with you!

Exeunt Portis and Nerissa. Ant. My lord Bassanio, let him have the ring; Let his deservings, and my love withal, Be valued 'gainst your wife's commandment.

Bass. Go, Gratiano, run and overtake him, Give him the ring; and bring him, if thou canst, Unto Antonio's house:—away, make haste.

Exit Gratiano. Come, you and I will thither presently; And in the morning early will we both Fly toward Belmont: Come, Antonio.

Gra. Fair sir, you are well overtaken: My lord Bassanio, upon more advice, Hath sent you here this ring; and doth entreat Your company at dinner.

Por. That cannot be: And so, I pray you, tell him: Furthermore, I pray you, show my youth old Shylock's house.

Gra. That will I do.

Enter Lorenzo and Jessien. Enter Lorenzo and Jessica.

> Lor. The moon shines bright :- In such a night as this,

When the sweet wind did gently kiss the trees, And they did make no noise; in such a night, Troilus, methinks, mounted the Trojan walls, And sight dhis soul toward the Grecian tents, Where Crossid lay that night,

Jes. In such a night Did Thisbe fearfully o'ertrip the dow; And saw the hon's shadow ere himself.

And ran dismay'd away.

In such a night, Stood Dido with a willow in her hand Upon the wild sea-banks, and wav'd her love To come again to Carthage.

Jes. In such a night, Medea gather'd the enchanted herbs That did renew old Æson.

Lor. Did Jessica steal from the wealthy Jew; And with an unthrift love did run from Venice, As far as Belmont.

Ses. And in such a night, Did young Lorenzo swear he lov'd her well; Stealing her soul with many yours of faith, And ne'er a true one.

Lor. And in such a night, Did pretty Jessica, like a little shrew, Slander her love, and he forgave it her.

Jet. I would out-night you, did nobody come : But, hark, I hear the footing of a man.

Enter Stephano.

Lor. Who comes so fast in allence of the night? Steph. A friend. Lor. A friend? what friend? your name, I pray you, friend? Sleph. Stephano is my name; and I bring word.

My mistress will before the break of day Be here at Belmont: she doth stray about By holy crosses, where she kneels and prays For happy wedlock hours.

Who comes with her? Steph. None, but a holy hermit, and her maid.

I pray you, is my master yet return'd?

Lor. He is not, nor we have not heard from him.-

But go we in, I pray thee, Jessica, And ceremoniously let us prepare Some welcome for the mistress of the house.

Enter Launcelot.

Laim. Sola, sola, we ha, he, sola, sola! Lor. Who calls?

Laun. Sola! did you see master Lorenzo, and When neither is attended; and, I think mistress Lorenzo? sola, sola!

Lor. Leave hollaing, man; here. Laun. Sola! where? where? Lor, Here.

Laun. Tell him, there's a post come from my master, with his horn full of good news; my master will be here are morning. [Exit.

Lor. Sweet soul, let's in, and there expect their coming.

And yet no matter;—Why should we go in? My friend Stephano, signify, I pray you, Within the house, your mistress is at hand; And bring your music forth into the air.

[Exit Stephano. How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank! Here will we sit, and let the sounds of music Creep in our ears; soft stillness, and the night, Become the touches of sweet harmony. Sit, Jessica: Look, how the floor of heaven Is thick inlaid with patines! of bright gold; There's not the smallest orb, which thou behold'st, But in his motion like an angel sings, Still quiring to the young-cy'd cherubins: Such harmony is in immortal souls; But, whilst this muddy vesture of decay Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear it.—

Enter musicians,

Come, ho, and wake Diana with a hymn; With sweetest touches pierce your mistress' ear, And draw her home with music. Jes. I am never merry, when I hear sweet music.

Music, Lor. The reason is, your spirits are attentive : For do but note a wild and wanton herd, For race of youthful and unbandled colus, Fetching mad bounds, bellowing, and neighing loud,
Which is the hot condition of their blood;

If they but hear perchance a trumpet sound, Or any air of music touch their ears, You shall perceive them make a mutual stand, Their savage eyes turn'd to a modest gaze, By the sweet power of music: Therefore, the poet Did feign that Orpheus drew trees, stones, and floods ; Since nought so stockish, hard, and futi of rage, But music for the time doth change his nature: Nor is not mov'd with concord of sweet sounds, Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils; The motions of his spirit are dull as night, And his affections dark as Erebus: Let no such men be trusted .- Mark the music.

(1) A small firt dish, used in the administration of the Eucharist.

Enter Portia and Nerisea, at a distance.

Por. That light we see, is burning in my hall. How far that little candle throws his beams!

So shines a good deed in a naughty world.

Nor. When the meen shone, we did not see the candle.

Por. So doth the greater glory dim the less . A substitute shines brightly as a king, Until a king be by; and then his state Empties itself, as doth an inland brook Into the main of waters. Music! hark!

Ner. It is your music, madam, of the house.

For. Nothing is good, I see, without respect;

Methinks, it sounds much sweeter than by day.

Ner. Silence bestows that virtue on it, madam.

Por. The crow doth sing as sweetly as the lark.

The nightingule, if she should sing by day, When every goose is cackling, would be thought No better a musician than the wren. How many things by season season'd are To their right praise, and true perfection !-Peace, hoa! the moon sleeps with Endymion. And would not be awak'd! Music ceases.

That is the voice, Ler. Or I am much doceiv'd, of Portia. Por. He knows me, as the blind man knows the enckoo, By the bad voice.

Lor. Dear lady, welcome home. Por. We have been praying for our husbands welfare,

Which speed, we hope, the better for our words. Are they return'd?

Madam, they are not yet; But there is come a messenger before,

To signify their coming. Go in, Nerissa, Give order to my servants, that they take No note at all of our being absent hence ;-

Nor you, Lorenzo ;—Jessica, nor you.
[A tucket sounds. Lor. Your husband is at hand, I hear his trumpet: We are no tell-tales, madam; fear you not.

Por. This night, methinks, is but the day-light sick

It looks a little paler; 'tis a day, Such as the day is when the sun is hid,

Enter Bassanio, Antonio, Gratiano, and their fellowers.

Bass. We should hold day with the Antipodes, If you would walk in absence of the sun.

Por. Let me give light, but let me not be light; For a light wife doth make a heavy husband, And never be Bassanio so for me ;

But God sort all!-You are welcome home, my lord. Bass, I thank you, madam: give welcome to my friend.-

This is the man, this is Antonio, To whom I am so infinitely bound.

Por. You should in all sense be much bound to him,

For, as I hear, he was much bound for you. Ant. No more than I am well acquitted of. Por. Sir, you are very welcome to our house: It must appear in other ways than words,

Therefore, I scant this breathing courtesy.*

[Gratiano and Nerissa seem to talk apart. Gra. By yonder moon, I swear, you do me wrong;

(2) A flourish on a trumpet.(3) Verbal, complimentary form.

In faith, . gave it to the judge's clerk: Would be were gelt that had it, for my part, Bince you do take it, love, so much at heart.

Por. A quarrel, bo, already? what's the matter? Gra. About a hoop of gold, a paitry ring That she did give me; whose posy was For all the world, like cutter's poetry Upon a knife, Love me, and leave me not.

Ner. What talk you of the posy, or the value?
You swore to me, when I did give it you, That you would wear it till your hour of death; And that it should lie with you in your grave: Though not for me, yet for your vehement ouths. You should have been respective, and have kept it. Gave it a judge's clerk !- but well I know, The clerk will ne'er wear hair on his face, that had it. Gra. He will, an if he live to be a man-Wer. Ay, if a woman live to be a man.

Gra. Now, by this hand, I gave it to a youth,
A kind of boy; a little scrubbed boy,
No higher than thyself, the judge's cierk;
A praing boy, that begg'd it as a fee;
I would not few me heart dam it him. I could not for my heart deny it him.

Por. You were to blame, I must be plain with you, To part so slightly with your wife's first gift; A thing stuck on with oaths upon your finger, And riveted so with faith unto your firsh.
I gave my love a ring, and made him swear Never to part with it; and here he stands; I dare be sworn for him, he would not leave it, Nor pluck it from his finger, for the wealth That the world masters. Now, in faith, Gratiano, You give your wife too unkind a cause of grief;

You give your wife too unking a cause of gree; An 'twere to me, I should be mad at it.

Base. Why, I were best to cut my left hand of, And swear, I lost the ring defending it. [Aside.

Gra. My lord Bassanio gave his ring away
Unto the inden that begg'd it, and, indeed,
Deserv'd it too; and then the boy, his clerk,
That took some pains in writing, he begg'd nine:
And neither man, nor master, would take aucht and neither man, nor master, would take aught But the two rings.

Por. What ring gave you, my lord?
Not that, I hope, which you receiv'd of me.
Bass. If I could add a lie unto a fault, I would dony it; but you see my finger Hath not the ring upon it, it is gone.

Por. Even so void is your false heart of truth. By heaven, I will ne'er come in your bed Until I see the ring.

Nor I in yours, Ner.

Till I again see mine. Sweet Portia, Bass. If you did know to whom I gave the ring, If you did know for whom I gave the ring And would conceive for what I gave the ring, And how unwillingly I left the ring, When nought would be accepted but the ring,

You would abate the strongth of your displeasure. Por. If you had known the virtue of the ring, Or half her worthiness that gave the ring, Or your own honour to contain the ring, You would not then have parted with the ring. What man is there so much unreasonable, If you had pleas'd to have defended it, With any terms of zeal, wanted the modesty To urge the thing held as a ceremony? Nerissa teaches me what to believe :

I'll die for't, but some woman had the ring.

Bass. No, by mine honour, madam, by my soul,

No woman had it, but a civil doctor,

Regardful.

(2) Advantage.

Which did refuse three thousand ducats of me And begg'd the ring; the which I did deny him, And suffer'd him to go displeas'd away: Even he that had held up the very life Of my dear friend. What should I say, sweet lad?? I was enfore'd to send it after him; was beset with shame and courtesy: My honour would not let ingratitude For, by these blessed candles of the night, flad you been there, I think, you would have begg'd The ring of me to give the worthy doctor.

Por. Let not that doctor e'er come near my house:

Since he hath got the jewel that I lov'd, And that which you did swear to keep for me, I will become as liberal as you: I'll not deny him any thing I have No, not my body, nor my husband's bed: Know him I shall, I am well sure of it: Lie not a night from home; watch me like Argus: If you do not, if I he left alone, Now, by mine honour, which is yet my own, I'll have that doctor for my bediellow.

Ner. And I his clerk; therefore be well advis'd, How you do leave me to mine own protection. Gra. Well, do you so: let not me take him then; For, if I do, I'll mar the young clerk's pen. Ant. I am the unhappy subject of these quarrels. .

Por. Sir, grieve not you; You are welcome not with standing. Base. Portia, forgive me this enforc'd wrong; And, in the hearing of these many friends, swear to thee, even by thine own fair eyes,

Wherein I see myself,-Por. Mark you but that! In both my eyes be doubly sees himself: In each eye one :- swear by your double self, And there's an oath of credit

Bass. Nay, but hear me: Pardon this fault, and by my soul I awear, I never more will break an oath with thee. Ant. I once did lend my body for his wealth; Which, but for him that had your husband's ring

Had quite miscarried: I dare be bound again, My soul upon the forfest, that your lord Will never more break faith advisedly.

Por. Then you shall be his surety: Give him this;
And bid him keep it better than the other. Ant. Here, lord Bassanio; swear to keep this ring.

Bass. By heaven, it is the same I gave the doctor.

Por. I had it of him: pardon me, Bassanio; For by this ring the doctor lay with me.

Ner. And pardon me, my gentle Gratiano; For that same scrubbod boy, the doctor's clerk, In lieu of this, last night did lie with me. Gra. Why, this is like the mending of highways

In summer, where the ways are fair enough:

In summer, where the ways are lair enough:
What! are we cuckolds, ere we have deserved it?
Por. Speak not so grossly.—You are all amard:
Here is a letter, read it at your leisure;
It comes from Padua, from Bellario:
There you shall find, that Portia was the doctor;
Nerissa them, her clork: Lorenzo here
Shall witness, I set forth as soon as you,
And but area now return'd. I have not yet. And but even now return'd; I have not yet Enter'd my house .- Antonio, you are welcome: And I have better news in store for you,

Than you expect: unsent this letter soon; There you shall, three of your argosica Are richly come to harbour suddenly:

You shall not know by what strange accident

I chanced on this letter.

I am dumb. Base. Were you the doctor, and I knew you not?

Gra. Were you the cierk, that is to make me cuckold?

Ner. Ay; but the clork that never means to do it, Unless he live until he be a man.

Bass. Sweet doctor, you shall be my bedfellow; When I am absent, then lie with my wife.

And Sweet lady, you have given me lift; and living : For home I read for certain, that my ships

Are safely come to road. Por.

How now, Lorenzo? My clerk bath some good comforts too for you. Ner. Ay, and Pli give them him without a fee.

There do I give to you, and Jessice,
From the rich Jew, a special deed of gift,
After his death, of all he dies possess'd of,
Ler. Fair ladies, you drop manna in the way Of starved people.

Por. It is almost morning, And yet, I am sure, you are not satisfied Of these events at full: Let us go in;

And charge us there upon intergatories, And we will answer all things faithfully. Gra. Let it be so: The first intergatory, That my Nerissa shall be sworn on, is, Whether till the next night she had rather stay; Or go to bed now, being two hours to day:
But were the day come, I should wish it dark,
That I were couching with the doctor's clerk.
Well, while I live, Pil fear no other thing So sore, as keeping safe Nerissa's ring.

Example .

Of the Merchant of Venice the style is even and casy, with few populiarities of diction, or anomalies of construction. The comic part mises laughter, and the scrious fixes expectation. The probability of either one or the other story cannot be maintained. The union of two actions in one event is in this drama eminently happy. Dryden was much pleased with his own address in connecting much pleased with his own address in connecting the two plots of his Spanish Friar, which yet, believe, the critic will find excelled by this play.

Duke F. Thou art thy father's daughter, there's enough.

So was I, when your highness took his dukedom;

So was I, when your highness banish'd him; Treason is not inherited, my lord; Or, if we did derive it from our friends, What's that to me? my father was no traitor: Then, good my liege, mistake me not so much, To think my poverty is treacherous.

Cel. Dear sovereign, bear me speak.

ACT II.

SCENE I.—The forest of Arden. Enter Duke senior, Amiena, and other Lords, in the dress of Foresiers.

Duke S. Now, my co-mates, and brothers in exfic, Hath not old custom made this life more sweet Than that of painted pomp? Are not these woods More free from peril than the envious court? Here feel we but the penalty of Adam, The seasons' difference; as the key fang, And churlish chiding of the winter's wind; Which when it bites and blows upon my body, Even till I shrink with cold, I smile, and say,-This is no flattery: these are counsellors That feelingly persuade me what I am.

Sweet are the uses of adversity;

Which, like the toad, ugly and venomous,

Wears yet a precious jewel in his head;

And this our life, exempt from public haunt,

Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, Sermons in stones, and good in every thing.

Ami. I would not change it: Happy is your Indeed, my lard, The melancholy Jaques grieves at that; And, in that kind, swears you do more usurp Than doth your brother that hath banish'd you. To-day, my lord of Amiens, and myself, Did steal behind him, as he lay along Under an oak, whose assigne root peeps out Upon the brook that brawls along this wood: To the which place a poor sequester'd stag, That from the hunters' aim had ta'en a hurt Did come to languish; and, indeed, my lord, The wretched animal heav'd forth such grouns, That their discharge did stretch his leathern coat Almost to bursting; and the big round tears Cours'd one another down his innocent nose In pitcous chase: and thus the hairy fool, Much marked of the melancholy Jaques, Stood on the extremest verge of the swift brook, Augmenting it with tears.

Duke S. But what said Jaques? Did he not mornlize this speciagle?

1 Lord. O, yes, into a thousand similes. First, for his weeping in the needless stream;
Poor deer, quoth he, thou mak'st a testament
As worldlings do, giving thy sum of more

And never stays to great him; My quoth Jaques, Stocep on, you fat and greesy citizens;
'Tis just the fashion: Wherefore do you look Upon that poor and broken bankrupt there?
Thus most invectively he pieresth through The body of the country, city, court,
Yea, and of this our life; swearing, that we
Are more usurpers, tyrante, and what's worse,
To fright the animals, and to kill them up,
In their assign'd and pative dwelling-place.
Duke S. And did you leave him in this contemplation?

2 Lord. We did, my lord, weeping and commenting

Upon the sobbing deer.

Show me the place: Duke S. I love to copes him in these sullen fits, For then he's full of matter. 2 Lord. I'll bring you to him straight. [Execut.

SCENE II.—A room in the palace. Enter Duke Frederick, Lords, and altendants.

Duke F. Can it be possible, that no man saw them?

It cannot be: some villains of my court Are of consent and sufferance in this I Lord. I cannot hear of any that did see her. The ladies, her attendants of her chamber, Saw her sebed; and, in the morning early, They found the hed untreasur'd of their mistress. 2 Lord. My lord, the royalsh clown, at whom no oft Your grace was wont to laugh, is also missing. Hesperia, the princess' gentlewoman, Confesses, that she secretly o'erheard Your daughter and her cousin much commend The parts and graces of the wrestler, That did but lately foil the sinewy Charles; And she believes, wherever they are gone, That youth is surely in their company.

Duke F. Send to his brother; fetch that gallant hither;
If he be absent, bring his brother to me,
I'll make him find him: do this suddenly; And let not search and inquisition quait To bring again these foolish runaways.

SCENE III.-Before Oliver's house. Enter Orlando and Adam, meeting.

Orl. Who's there? Adam. What! my young master?-O, my gentle master, O, my sweet muster, O you memory! Of old sir Rowland! why, what make you here? Why are you virtuous? Why do people love you? And wherefore are you gentic, strong, and valiant Why would you be so fond to overcome The bony priser of the humorous duke? Your praise is come too swiftly home before y Know you not, master, to some kind of men Their graces serve them but as enemies? No more do yours: your virtues, gentle master, Are sanctified and hely traiters to you. O, what a world is this, when what is comely Envenoms him that bears it?

Orl. Why, what's the matter? O unhappy youth, Come not within these doors; within this roof The enemy of all your graces lives:

(6) Inconsiderate.

Your brother—(no, no brother; yet the son— Yet not the son;—I will not call him son— Of him I was about to call him (ather,)— High heard your praises; and this night he means. To burn the lodging where you used to lie,
And you within it: if he fail of that,
He will have other means to cut you off; To overheard him, and his practices.

This is no place, 'this house is but a butchery;

Abhor it, fear it, do not enter it.

Orl. Why, whither, Adam, would'st thou have me go?

Adam. No matter whither, so you come not here. Ort. What, would'at thou have me go and beg my food?

Or, with a base and boisterous sword, enforce A thievish living on the common road? This I must do, or know not what to do: Yet this I will not do, do how I can : I rather will subject me to the melice Of a diverted blood," and bloody brother. Adent. But do not so: I have five hundred crowns, The thrilly hire I sav'd under your father, Which I did store, to be my foster-nurse, When service should in my old limbs lie lume, And unregarded age in corners thrown; Take that: and He that doth the ravers feed, Yes, providently caters for the sparrow Be comfort to my age! Here is the gold; All this I gire you: Let me be your servant; Though I look old, yet I am strong and histy: For in my youth I never did apply Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood; Nor did not with unbashful forehead woo The means of weakness and debility; Therefore my age is as a lusty winter, Prosty, but kindly: Let me go with you; I'll do the service of a younger man

In all your business and necessities.

Ord. O good old man; how well in thee appears
The constant service of the antique world, When service sweat for duty, not for meed! Thou art not for the fashion of these times, Where none will sweat, but for promotion; And having that, do choke their service up Even with the having: it is not so with thee. But, poor old man, thou prun'st a rotten tree, That cannot so much as a blossom yield, In lieu of all thy pains and husbandry : But come thy ways, we'll go along together; And ere we have thy youthful wages spent, We'll light upon some settled low content.

Aden. Master, go on; and I will follow thee, To the last gasp, with truth and loyalty.— From seventeen years till now almost foursecre Here lived I, but now live here no more. At seventeen years many their fortunes seek : But at fourscore, it is too late a week Yet fortune cannot recompense me better Than to die well, and not my master's debtor. [Exerent.

Res. Ay, he so, good Touchstone:-Look you who comes here; a young man, and an old, in solemn talk.

Enter Corin and Silvins.

Cor. That is the way to make her scorn you still. Sil. O Corin, that thou knew'st how I do love her! Cor. I partly guess; for I have lov'd ere now. Sil. No. Corin, being old, thou canst not guess; Though in thy youth thou wast as true a lover As ever sigh'd upon a midnight pillow;

But if thy love were ever like to mine As sure I think did never man love so,) How many actions most ridiculous Hast thou been drawn to by thy fantasy? Cor. Into a thousand that I have forgotten.

Sit. O, thou didn't then ne'er love so heartily:
If thou remember'st not the slightest folly That ever love did make thee run into, Thou hast not lov'd: Or if thou hast not sat as I do now, Wearying thy hearer in thy mistress' prause, Thou hast not lov'd; Or if thou has not broke from company, Abruptly, as my pession now makes me, Thou hast not lov'd :- O Phebe, Placke, Phebe!

Ros. Alas, poor shepherd ! searching of thy wound,

I have by hard adventure found mine own.

Touck. And I mine: I remember, when I was in love, I broke my sword upon a stone, and bid him take that for coming anight's to Jane Smile: and I remember the kissing of her batlet, and the cow's dugs that her pretty chop'd hands had milk'd:

The same when the wooing of a peasond instead and I remember the wooing of a peaseod instead of her; from whom I took two cods, and giving her them again, said with weeping tears, Wear these for my sake. We, that are true lovers, run into strange capers; but as all is mortal in nature, so is all nature in love mortal in folly.

Ros. Thou speak'st wiser, than thou art 'ware of.
Touck. Nay, I shall ne'er be 'ware of mine own wit, till I break my shins against it.
Ros. Jove! Jove! this shepherd's passion

Is much upon my fashion.

Truck. And mine; but it grows something stale with me.

Cel. I pray you, one of you question yand man, like s I faint almost to death.

Touch, Holla ; you, clown ;
Ros. Peace, fool; he's not thy kinsman. Cor. Who calls ?

Touck. Your betters, sir. Cor. Else are they very wretched.

(4) In the night. 5) The instrument with which weahers beal Ros.

Good even to you, friend.

Cer. And to you, gentle sir, and to you all.
Ros. I prythee, shepherd, if that love, or gold,
Can in this desert place buy entertainment, Bring us where we may rest ourselves, and feed: Here's a young maid with travel much oppress'd, And faints for succour.

Cor. Fair sir, I pity her, And wish for her sake, more than for mine own, My fortunes were more able to relieve her: But I am shepherd to another man, And do not shear the fleeces that I graze; My master is of churlish disposition, And little recks to find the way to heaven By doing deeds of hospitality: Besides, his cote, his flocks, and bounds of feed, Are now on sale, and at our sheepcote now, By reason of his absence, there is nothing That you will feed on: but what is come see,
And in my voice most welcome shall you be.
Ros. What is he that shall buy his flock and peature?

Cor. That young swain that you saw here but erewhile,

That little cares for buying any thing. Ros. I pray thee, if it stand with honesty Buy thou the cottage, passure, and the flock, And thou shalt have to pay for it of us, Cel. And we will mend thy wages: I like this place, And willingly could waste my time in it. Gor. Assuredly, the thing is to be sold: Go with me; if you like, upon report, The soil, the profit, and this kind of life, I will your very faithful feeder be, And buy it with your gold right suddenly.

SCENE V .- The same. Enter Amiens, Jaques, and others.

SONG.

Ami. Under the greenwood tree, Who loves to lie with me, And tune his merry note Unto the sweet bird's throat, Come hither, come hither, come hither; Here shall he see No enemy,

But winter and rough weather.

Jaq. More, more, I pr'ythee, more. Ami. It will make you melancholy, monsieur

Jagues

Jaq. I thank it. Mote, I prythee, more. suck melaneboly out of a song, as a weazel sucks eggs: More, I pr'ythee, more.
And. My voice is ragged; I know, I cannot please you.

Jaq. I do not desire you to please me, I do desire another stance: Call you then stanzas?

Josephia. What you will, monsieur Jaques.

Jaq. Nay, I care not for their names; they owe nothing: Will you sing?

Ami. More at your request, than to please myself.

Jag. Well then, if ever I thank any man, I'll thank you: but that they call compliment, is like the secounter of two dog-apes; and when a man thanks me heartly, methinks I have given him a penny, and he records me the beggarly thanks,

(1) Cares.
(2) Bagwed and rugged had formerly the same menube.

Peace, I say :- | Come, sing; and you that will not, hold your tongues.

Ami. Well, I'll end the song.—Sire, cover the while; the duke will drink under this tree: - he hath been all this day to look you.

Jaq. And I have been all this day to avoid him He is too disputable for my company: I think of as many matters as he; but I give heaven thanks, and make no boast of them. Come, warble, come.

SONG.

Who doth ambition shun, [All together here. And loves to live it the sun. Secking the food he eats, And pleased with what he gets. Come hither, come hither, come hither; Here shall he see

No enemy, But winter and rough weather.

Jaq. I'll give you a verse to this note, that I made yesterday in despite of my invention.

Amt. And I'll sing it.

Jag. Thus it goes :

If it do come to pass, That any man turn ass, Leaving his wealth and case. A stubborn will to please, Ducdàme, ducdàme, ducdame; Here shall he see, Gross fools as he, An if he will come to Ami

Ami. What's that ducddme 1 Jaq. This a Greek invocation, to call fools into a circle. I'll go sleep if I can; if I cannot, I'll rall against all the first-born of Egypt.

Ami. And I'll go seek the duke his banquet is prepar'd. Exeunt severally.

SCENE VI.-The some. Enter Orlando and Adam.

Adam. Dear master, I can go no further: 0, I die for food! Here lie I down, and measure out my grave. Farewell, kind master.

Orl. Why, how now, Adam! no greater heart in thee? Live a little; comfort a little; cheer thyself a little; If this uncouth forest yield any thing savago, I will eithen be food for it, or bring it for food to thee. Thy concelt is nearer death than food to thee. Thy conceit is nearer death than thy powers. For my sake, be comfortable; hold death a while at the arm's end: I will here be with thee presently; and if I bring thee not something to eat, I'll give thee leave to die: but if thou diest before I come, thou art a mocker of my labour. Well said! thou look'st cheerly: and I'll be with thee quickly.—Yet thou liest in the bleak air: Come, I will bear thee to some shelter; and thou shalt not die for lack of a dinner, if there live any thing in this desert. Cheerly, good Adam ! [Exc.

you to sing: Come, more; another stanza; Call SCENE VII.—The same. A table set out. Enter you them stanzas?

Duke senior, Amiena, Lords, and others.

Duke S. I think he be transform'd into a beast; For I can no where find him like a man.

1 Lord. My lord, he is but even now gone hence ;

Here was he merry, hearing of a song.

Duke S. If he, compact of jars, grow musical,
We shall have shortly discord in the spheres:— Go, seek him; tell him, I would speak with him.

Enter Jaques.

I Lord. He saves my labour by his own approach.

hat your poor friends must woo your company? hat? you look merrily. Jag. A fool, a fool!——I met a fool? the forest A motley fool;—a miserable world!—
As I do live by food, I met a fool;—
Who laid him down and bask't him in the sun, And rail'd on lady Fortune in good terms In good set terms,—and yet a moticy fool.

Good-morrow, fool, quotin i: No, sir, quotin he,
Call me not fool, till heaven hath sent me for une:
And then he drew a dial from his pulse;
And looking on it with lack-lustre eye, Says, very wisely, It is ten o'clock: Thus may we see, quoth he, how the world wags: 'Tis but an how ago, since il was nine; And after an hour more, 'twill be eleven ; And so, from hour to hour, we ripe, and ripe, And then, from hour to hour, we rot, and rot, And then, from hour to hour, we rot, and rot, that thereby hours a tale. When I did hear The moder tool thus moral on the time, My lungs began to crow like chanticleer, That fools should be so deep-contemplative;

And I did laugh, sens intermission, An hour by his dial.—O noble fool! A worthy foo!! Motley's the only wear.<sup>1</sup> Duke S. What foo! is this? Jag. O worthy fooi!-One that both been a courtier ; And says, if ladies be but young, and fair, They have the gift to know it: and in his brain, Which is as dry as the remainder bisket After a voyage,—he hath strange places cramm'd with observation, the which he vents in mangled forms :- O, that I were a fool! I am ambitious for a motley cost.

Dake S. Thou shall have one.

Jag. It is my only suit; Provided, that you weed your better judgments Of all opinion that grows rank in them, That I am wise. I must have liberty That I am was. I must have liberty. Withal, as large a charter as the wind, To blow on whom I please; for so fools have: And they that are most gailed with my folly. They most must laugh: And why, sir, must they so? The why is plain as way to parish church: He, that a fool doth very wisely hit, but were foolishly, although be smart. Doth very foolishly, although he smart, Not to seem senseless of the bob: if not, The wise man's folly is anatomiz'd Even by the squandering glances of the fool.
Invest me in my motley; give me leave
To speak my mind, and I will through and through Cleanse the foul body of the infected world,

If they will patiently receive my medicine, Duke S. Fie on thee! I can tell what thou would'st do,

Jag. What, for a cornter, would I do, but good? Dake S. Most mischievous foul sin, in chiding sin: For thou threalf hast been a libertine, As sensual as the brutish sting itself. And all the embossed sores, and headed evils That then with license of free foot hast enught, Would'st thou disgorpe into the general world.

July, Why, who erics out on pride,
That can therein tax any private party?
Doth it not flow as hugely as the sea, Till that the very very means do ebb?
What woman in the city do I name,
When that I say, The city-woman bears

(f) The fool was anciently dressed in a party-PURCEUS COLL.

Dule S. Why, how now, monaicur! what a life The cost of princes on unworthy shoulders ?
Who can come in, and say, that I mean her. Who can come in, and say, that I mean her, When such a one as she, such is her neighbour? Or what is he of basest function, -I met a fool P the forest, That says, his braverys is not on my cost (Thinking that Lineau him) but therein suits
His folly to the mettie of my speech?
There then: How, what then? Let me see wherein
My tongue hath wrong'd him: if it do him right,
Then he hath wrong'd himself; if he be free, Why then, my taxing like a wild goose flies, Unclaim'd of any man .- But who comes here?

Enter Orlando, with his sword druces.

Orl. Forbear, and cat no more.

Why, I have cut none yet. Jaq. Why, I have can non Orl. Nor shalt not, till necessity be serv'd. Jag. Of what kind should this cock come of? Duke S. Art thou thus bolden'd, man, by thy distress; Or else a rude despiser of good manners, That in civility thou seem'st so empty?

Orl. You touch'd my vein at first; the thorny point

Of bare distress hath ta'en from me the show Of smooth civility: yet am I inland bred.*
And know some nurture: But forbear, I say; He dies, that jouches any of this fruit,
Fill I and my affairs are answered.
Jag. An you will not be answered with reason,
I must die.

Duke S. What would you have? Your gentleness shall force,

More than your force move us to gentleness. Orl. I almost die for food, and let me have it. Duke S. Sit down and feed, welcome to our table. Orl. Speak you so gently? Pardon me, I pray you:

I thought that all things had been savage here; And therefore put I on the countenance Of stern commandment: But whate'er you are, That in this desert inaccepsible, Under the shade of melancholy boughs, Lose and neglect the creeping hours of time; If ever you have look'd on better days; If ever been where belts have knotl'd to church; If ever sat at any good man's feast; If ever from your cyc-lids wip'd a tear And know what 'tis to pity, and be pitied;

Let gentleness my strong enforcement be: In the which hope, I blush, and hide my sword-Duke S. True is it that we have seen better days

And have with holy bell been knoll'd to church; And sat at good men's fearts; and wip'd our eyes Of drops that sacred pity hath engender'd : And therefore sit you down in gentleness And take upon command what help we have, That to your wanting may be ministred.
Ord. Then, but forbear your food a little while,
Whiles, like a doe, I go to find my faw,
And give it food. There is an old poor man, Who after me hath many a weary step Limp'd in pure love; till he be first suffic'd,-Oppress'd with two weak cylls, age and hunger,-I will not touch a bit.

Dake S. Go find him out, And we will nothing waste till you return. Ort. I thank ye; and be bless'd for your road comfort?

And all the men and women merely players: They have their exits, and their entrances; And one man in his time plays many parts, His acts being seven ages. At first, the infunt, Mewiling and puking in the nurse's arms: And then, the whining school-boy, with his satchel, And shining morning face, creeping like snail Unwillingly to school: And then, the lover; Sighing like furnace, with a woful bailed Made to his mistress' eye-brow: Then, a soldier; Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard, Jealous in honour, sudden' and quick in quarrel, Seeking the bubble reputation Even in the cannon's mouth: And then, the justice; I should not seek an absent argument In fair round belly, with good capon lin'd, With eyes severe, and beard of formal cut, Full of wise saws and modern's instances, And so he plays his part: The sixth age shifts into the lean and slipper'd pantatoon; With spectacles on nose, and pouch on side His youthful hose well savid, a world too wide For his shrunk shank; and his big manly voice, Turning again toward childish treble, pipes And whatles in his sound: Last scene of all, That ends this strange eventful history, Is second childishness, and mere oblivion; Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans every thing, Duke S. Welcome: set down your venerable Do this expediently, and turn him going. burden. And let him feed.

Orl. I thank you most for him.

Adam. So had you need; I scarce can speak to thank you for myself.

Duke S. Welcome, fall to: I will not trouble you As yet, to question you about your fortunes:-Give us some music; and, good cousin, sing.

Amiens sings.

SONG.

Blow, blow, thou winter wind, Thou art not so unkind? As man's ingratitude ;

Thy tooth is not so keen, Because thou art not seen,

Although thy breath be rude. Heigh, ho! sing, heigh, ho! unto the green holly: Most friendship is feigning, most loving mere folly: Then, heigh, ho, the holly! This life is most jolly.

Freeze, freeze, thou biller sky, That dost not bile so nigh, As benefits forgot : Though that the waters warp, Thy sting is not so sharp
As friend remember de not. Heigh, ho! sing, heigh, ho! &c.

ACT III.

SCENE I .- A room in the palace. Enter Dake Frederick, Oliver, Lords, and attendants.

Duke F. Not see him since? Sir, sir, that cannot be:

But were I not the better part made mercy, Of my revenge, thou present: But look to il; Find out thy brother, wheresoe'er be is; Seek him with candle; bring him dead or living, Within this twelvementh, or turn theu no more To seek a living in our territory. Thy lands, and all things that thou dost call thine, Worth scizure, do we seize into our hands: Tili thou canst quit thee by thy brother's mouth, Of what we think against thee.

Olf. O, that your highness know my heart in this! I never lov'd my brother in my life.

Duke F. More villain thou.—Well, push him out of doors :

And let my officers of such a nature Make an extent' upon his house and lands:

SCENE II.—The Forest. Enter Orlando, with a paper.

Orl. Hang there, my verse, in witness of my love:
And, thou, thrice-crowned queen of night, survey
With thy chaste eye, from thy pale sphere above,

Thy huntress' name, that my full life doll sway.

O Rosalind! these trees shall be my books.

And in their barks my thoughts I'll character:

That every eye, which in this forest looks, Shall see thy virtue witness'd every where. Run, run, Orlando; carve, on every tree, The fair, the chaste, and unexpressive she. [Ext.

Enter Corin and Touchstone.

Cor. And how like you this shepherd's life, master Touchstone?

Touch. Truly, shepherd, in respect of itself, it is a good life; but in respect that it is a shepherd's life, it is naught. In respect that it is solitary, I like it very well; but in respect that it is private, when the state of the like it very well; but in respect that it is private, when it is not the life. it is a very vile life. Now in respect it is in the fields, it pleaseth me well; but in respect it is not in the court, it is tedious. As it is a spare life, look you, it fits my humour well; but as there is no more plenty in it, it goes much against my stomach. Hast thou any philosophy in thee, shepherd? Cor. Touch. Such a one is a natural philosopher .-Wast over in court, shepherd?

Cor. No, truly.
Touch. Then thou art damn'd.
Cor. Nay, I hope,—
Touch. Truly, thou art damn'd; like an ill-roasted egg, all on one side.

Cor. For not being at court? Your reason.

Touck. Why, if thou never wast at court, thou never saw'st good manners; if thou never saw'st good manners, then thy manners must be wicked and wickedness is sin, and sin is damnation: Thou art in a parlous state, shepherd.

Cor. Not a whit, Touchstone: those, that are good manners, at the court, are as ridiculous in the country, as the behaviour of the country is most mockable at the court. You told me, you sainte not at the court, but you kiss your hands; that pourtesy would be uncleanly, if courtiers were shapherds.

Touch. Instance, briefly; come, instance. Cov. Why, we are still handling our ewes; and Touch. Why, do not your courtier's hands sweat? and is not the grease of a mutton as whole-some as the sweat of a man? Shallow, shallow:

Shallow, again: A more sounder instance, come.

Cor. And they are often tarr'd over with the surgery of our sheep; And would you have us kiss tar? The courtier's hands are perfumed with civet. Touch. Most shellow man! Thou worms-meat, is respect of a good piece of flesh: Indeed!— Learn of the wise, and perpend: Civet is of a f-ser birth than tar; the very uncleanly flux of a cat. Mand the instance, shepherd.

Cor. You have too courtly a wit for me; 1911 rest.
Touch. Wilt thou rest damn'd? God help thee, shallow man! God make incision in thee! thou art

Cor. Sir, I am a true labourer; I earn that I sat, get that I wear; owe no man hate, envy no man's happiness; glad of other men's good, content with my harm: and the greatest of my price is, to see my ewes graze, and my lambs suck. Touch. That is another simple sin in you; to bring the ewes and the rams together, and to offer to get your living by the copulation of cattle: to be bawd to a bell-wether; and to betray a shelamb of a twelvamonth, to a crooked-pated, old, cuckoldly ram, out of all reasonable match. If thou be'st not damn'd for this, the devil himself will have no shepherds; I cannot see che how thou should'st 'scape.

Cor. Here comes young master Ganymede, my new mistress's brother.

Enter Rosalind, reading a paper,

Bos. From the east to western Ind. No jewel is like Rosalind. Her worth, being mounted on the wind, Through all the world bears Rosalind. All the pictures, fairest lin'd,2 Are but black to Rosalind. Let no face be kept in mind, But the fairs of Rosalind.

Ros. Out, fool!
Touck. For a taste:

If a hart do lack a hind, Let him seek out Rosalind. If the cat will after kind, So, be sure, will Rosalind. Winter-garments must be lin'd, So must elender Rosalind. They that reap, must sheaf and bind; Then to cart with Rosalind. Sweetest nut hath sources rind, Such a nut is Reselind. He that sweetest rose will find, Must find love's prick, and Rosalind.

This is the very false gallop of verses; Why do you infect yourself with them?

Ros. Prace, you dull fool; I found them on a tree.
Touch. Truly, the tree yields had fruit.
Ros. I'll graff it with you, and then I shall graff it with a mediar; then it will be the earliest fruit in the country: for you'll be rotten ere you be half ripe, and that's the right virtue of the medlar. Touch. You have said; but whether wisely or no, let the forest judge.

Enter Celia, reading a paper.

A better instance, I say; come.

Cor. Beables, our hands are hard.

Touck. Your lips will feel them the sooner. Here comes my sister, reading; stand saide.

Cal. Why should this desert silent be? For it is unpeopled 7 No; Tongues Pil hang on every tree, That shall civil sayings show. Some, how brief the life of man Runs his erring pilgrimage; That the stretching of a span Buckles in his sum of age. Some, of violated wors:

I think, she means to tangle my eyes too: No, 'faith, proud mistress, hope not after it Tis not your inky brows, your black-silk hair, Your bugle eye-balls, nor your cheek of cream, That can entame my spirits to your worship.— You foolish shepherd, wherefore do you follow her, Like foggy south, putting with wind and rain? You are a thousand times a properer man. Than she a woman: 'Tis such fools as you. That make the world full of ill-favour'd children : 'Tis not her glass, but you, that flatters her; And out of you she sees herself more proper, Than any of her lineaments can show her.— But, mistress, know yourself; down on your knoces, And thank heaven, fasting, for a good man's love: For I must tell you friendly in your ear,— Sell when you can; you are not for all markets: Cry the man mercy; love him; take his offer; Foul is most foul, being foul to be a scoffer. So take her to thee, shepherd ;-- fare you well.

Enter Jaques and Lords, in the habit of Foresters.

Jaq. Which is he that killed the deer?

1 Lord. Sir, it was I.

Jaq. Let's present him to the duke, like a Roman conqueror; and it would do well to set the deer's horns upon his head, for a branch of victory:

-Have you no song, forester, for this purpose?

2 Lord. Yes, sir.

Jaq. Sing it; 'tis no matter how it be in tune

SONG.

SCENE III .- The Forest. Enter Rosalind and Colin.

Ros. How may you now? Is it not past two o'clock? and here much Orlando!

gone forth-to aleep: Look, who comes here.

Fater Silvion.

Sil. My errand is to you, fair youth ;-My gentle Phebe bid me give you this: Giving a letter.

I know not the contents; but, as I guess, By the stern brow, and waspish action Which she did use as she was writing of it, It bears an angry tenor: pardon me, I am but as a guiltless messenger.

Res. Patience herself would startle at this letter, And play the swaggerer; bear this, bear all: She says, I am not fair; that I lack manners; She calls me proud; and, that she could not love me Were man as rare as phoenix; Od's my will i Her love is not the hare that I do hunt: Why writes she so to me?-Well, shepherd, well, This is a letter of your own device.

Sil. No, I protest, I know not the contents;

Phehe did write it.

Ros. Come, come, you are a tool, And turn'd into the extremity of love. I saw her hand: she has a leathern hand, A freestone-colour'd hand; I verily did think That her old gloves were on, but 'twos her hands; She has a huswife's hand; but that's no matter: I say, she never did invent this letter; . This is a man's invention, and his hand. Sil. Sure, it is hers.

Ros. Why, 'tis a boistereus and cruel style, A style for challengers; why, she defice me, Like Turk to Christian: woman's gentle brain Could not drop forth such giant rade invention, Such Ethiop words, blacker in their effect Than in their countenance:—Will you hear the letter? Sil. So please you, for I never heard it yet; Yet heard too much of Phebe's crucity.

Ros. She Phobes me: Mark how the tyrant

Will the faithful offer take Of me, and all that I can make; Or else by him my love deny, And then I'll study how to the.

Sil. Call you this chiding?

Cri. Alas, poor shepherd!
Ros. Do you pity him? no, he deserves no pity.
Wilt thou love such a woman?—What, to make Cel. I warrant you, with pure love, and troubled thee an instrument, and play false strains upon brain, he hath taken his how and arrows, and is thee! not to be endured!—Well, go your way to her, (for I see, love bath made thee a tame snake,) and say this to her: -That if she love me, I charge her to love thee: If she will not, I will never have her, unless thou entreat for her.-- If you be a true her, unless thou endear to the lover, hence, and not a word; for here comes more commany.

[Exit Silvius.

Enter Oliver.

Oli. Good-morrow, fair ones: Pray you, if you know Where, in the purlieus of this forest, stands

A sheepcote, fenc'd about with olive-trees?

Cel. West of this place, down in the neighbour bottom,

The rank of osiers, by the murmuring stream, Left on your right hand, brings you to the place: But at this hour the house doth keep itself,

There's none within. Oli. If that an eye may profit by a tongue, Then I should know you by description; Such parments, and such years: The boy is fair, Of female favour, and bestows himself Like a ripe sister: but the woman tom, And browner than her brother. Are not you The owner of the house I did inquire for?

Cel. It is no boast, being askid, to say, we are. Oli. Orlando doth commend him to you both; And to that youth, he calls his Rosalind, He sends this bloody napkin; Are you he?

Ros. I ain: What must we understand by this? Oli. Some of my shame; if you will know of me What man I am, and how, and why, and where This handkerchief was stain'd.

Col. I pray you, tell it.
Oli. When last the young Orlando parted from

He left a promise to return armin Within an hour; and, pacing through the forest, Chewing the food of sweet and bitter fancy, Lo, what beful! he threw his eye aside, And, mark, what object did present itself! Under an oak, whose boughs were moss d with age, And high top hald with dry antiquity, A wretched ragged man, o'ergrown with hair, Lay sleeping on his back; about his neck A green and gilded snake had wreath'd itself, Who with her head, nimble in threats, approach'd The opening of his mooth; but suddenly Seeing Orlando, it unlink'd itself, And with indented glides did slip away Into a bush: under which bush's shade A lioness, with udders all drawn dry, Lay couching, head on ground, with cat-like watch, When that the sleeping man should stir; for his

Oli. Twas I; but 'tis not I: I do not shame To tell you what I was, since my conversion

So sweetly tastes, being the thing I am. Ros, But, for the bloody napkin?— Oli. By and by. When from the first to last, betwixt us two, Tears our recountments had most kindly buth'd, As, how I came into that desert place :-In brief, he led me to the gentle duke Who gave me fresh array, and entertainment, Committing me unto my brother's love; Who led me instantly unto his cave, There stripp'd himself, and here upon his arm The lioness had torn some flesh away, Which all this while had bled; and now he fainted, And cry'd, in fainting, upon Rosalind. Brief, I recover'd him; bound up his wound; Brief, I recover'd him; bound up his wound;
And, after some small space, being strong at heart, good;—and yet it is not; it is but so so. Art thou He sent me hither, stranger as I am,
To tell this story, that you might excuse
His broken promise, and to give this napkin,
Dy'd in this blood, unto the shepherd youth That he in sport doth call his Rosalind.

Cel. Why, how now, Ganymede? sweet Gany-mede? [Rosalind faints.]

Cel. There is more in it :- Cousin-Ganymede ! Oil. Look, he recovers.

I would I were at home. Ros.

Cd. We'll lead you thither :

I pray you, will you take him by the arm?

Oil. Be of good cheer, youth:—You a man?

ACT V.

SCENE I.—The same. Enter Touchstone and Audrey.

Touck. We shall find a time, Audrey; patience, gentle Audrey.

And. Faith, the priest was good enough, for all the old gentleman's saying.

Touch. A most wicked sir Oliver, Audrey, a most vile Mar-text. But, Audrey, there is a youth here in the forest lays claim to you.

And. Ay, I know who this, he hath no interest in me in the world: here comes the man you mean.

Enter William.

Touch. It is meat and drink to me, to see u. clown: By my troth, we that have good with, have much to answer for; we shall be flouting; we cannot hold.

Will. Good even, Audrey.

And. God ye good even, William.

Will. And good even to you, sir.
Touch. Good even, gentle friend: Cover thy head, cover thy head; nay, prythee, be covered. How old are you, friend?

Will. Five and twenty, sir.

Touch. A ripe age; Is thy name William? Will. William, sir. Touch. A fair name: Wast born i'the forest here ?

Will. Ay, sir, I thank God.
Touch. Thank God;—a good answer: Art rich?

Will. 'Fuith, sir, so, so. wise?

ho!

Old. This was not counterfeit; there is too great testimony in your complexion, that it was a passion of sarnest.

Touck. He, sir?

Touck. He, sir, that must marry this woman:
O'd. This was not counterfeit; there is too great testimony in your complexion, that it was a passion of sarnest.

It is a passible to the society, which is the boorish more in subjection. Laf. You shall find of the king a husband, madam ;—you, sir, a father: He that so generally is at all times good, must of necessity hold his virtue to you; whose worthiness would stir it up where it wanted, rather than lack it where there is such amendment?

Lef. He hath shandoned his physicians, madam; under whose practices he hath persecuted time with hope; and finds no other advantage in the process but only the losing of hope by time.

Count. This young gentlewoman had a father (O, that had! how sad a passage 'tis!) whose skill was almost as great as his honesty; had it stretched so far, would have made nature immortal, and death should have play for lack of work. 'Would, for the king's sake, he were living! I think, it would be the death of the king's disease.

Laf. How called you the man you speak of, madam ?

Count. He was famous, sir, in his profession, and it was his great right to be so: Gerard de Narbon.

Laf. He was excellent, indeed, madam; the king very lately spoke of him, admiringly, and mourningly; he was shilful enough to have lived still, if knowledge could be set up against mortality.

Ber. What is it, my good lord, the king languishes of?

Laf. A fistule, my lord.

I have those hopes of her good, that her education promises: her dispositions she inherits, which make fair gifts fairer; for where IN delivering my son from me, I bury a second an unclean mind carries virtuous qualities, there hashand.

Ber. And I, in going, madam, weep o'er my traitors ton; in her they are the better for their father's death anew: but I must attend his majes—simpleness; a she derives her honesty, and achieves her grouness.

Laf. Your commendations, madam, get from her lears.

Count. 'Tis the best brine a maiden can season

Laf. Moderate lamentation is the right of the dead, excessive grief the enemy to the living.

Count. If the living be enemy to the grief, the excess makes it soon mortal.

Ber. Madam, I desire your holy wishes. Laf. How understand we that?

Count. Be thou blest, Bertram! and succeed thy father In manners, as in shape! thy blood, and virtue, Contend for empire in thee; and thy goodness Share with thy birthright! Love all, trust a few, Do wrong to none: be able for thine enemy Rather in power, than use; and keep thy friend Under thy own life's key: he check'd for slience But never tax'd for speech. That shall attend his love.

And these great tears grace his remembrance more Than those I shed for him. What was be like? I have forgot him: my imagination Carries as favour in it, but Bertram's. I am undone; there is no living, none, if Bertram be away. It were all one, That I should love a bright particular star, And think to wed it, he is so above me: in his bright radiance and collateral light in his bright radiance and collaterat light.

Must I be completed, not in his sphere.

The ambition in my love thus pingues itself:
The hind, that would be mated by the lion,
Must die for love. 'Twas prefty, though a plague,
The see him every hour; to sit and draw
His arched brows, his hawking eye, his curls,
In our heart's table; heart, too capable
Of every line and trick' of his sweet favour.'

But now here some and my ideletrous fines. But now he's gone, and my idolatrous fancy Must sanctify his relics. Who comes here?

Adoption strives with nature; and choice breeds A native slip to us from foreign seeds: You ne'er oppress'd me with a mother's groan, Yet I express to you a mother's care:—
God's mercy, maiden! does it curd thy blood,
To say, I am thy mother? What's the matter, That this distemper'd messenger of wet, The many-colour'd Iris, rounds thine eye? Why ?--that you are my daughter?

Hel. That I am not. Cossal. I say, I am your mother.

Pardon, madam; The count Rousilion cannot be my brother: I am from humble, he from honour'd name; No note upon my parenta, his all noble: My master, my dear lord, he is; and I His servant live, and will his vassel die: His servant live, and the He must not be my brother.

(So that my lord, your son, were not my brother,) Indeed, my mother!—or were you both our mothers, I care no more for, than I do for heaven, So I were not his sister: Can't no other, But, I your daughter, he must be my brother?

Count. Yes, Helen, you might be my daughter

Count. Yes, mean it not! daughter, and mother, fod shield, you mean it not! daughter, and mother, fod shield, you mean it not! daughter, and mother, for shield, you mean it not! daughter, and mother. To cure the desperance of the king is render'd lost.

The mystery of your loneliness, and find four sall tears' head. Now to all sense 'tis gross. For Paris, was it? speak. You love my son; invention is asham'd, fel. But think you, Helen, Against the proclamation of thy peasion,
'To say, thou dost not: therefore tell me true;
But tell me then, 'tis so:—for, look, thy checks See it so grossly shown in thy behaviours, That in their kinds they speak it; only sin And hellish obstinacy lie thy tongue,
That truth should be suspected: Speak, is't so? If it be so, you have wound a goodly clue; if it be not, forswear!: however, I charge thee, As heaven shall work in me for thine avail, To tell me truly.

Good madam, pardon me ! HeL. Count. Do you love my son? Your pardon, noble mistress! Hel.

I know I love in vain, strive against hope; Yet, in this captious and intenable sieve, I still pour in the waters of my love, And lack not to lose still: thus, Indian-like, Religious in mine error, I adore The sup, that looks upon his worshipper, But knows of him no more. My dearest madam, Let not your hate encounter with my love, For loving where you do: but, if yourself Whose aged honour cites a virtuous youth,* Did ever, in so true a fiame of liking, Wish chastely, and love dearly, that your Diam Was both herself and love; O then, give pity To her, whose state is such, that cannot choose But lend and give, where she is sure to lose; That seeks not to find that her search implies, But, riddle-like, lives sweetly where she dies. Count. Had you not lately an intent, speak truly,
To go to Paris?

Madam, I had.

Madam, I had. Wherefore? tell true. Count. Hel. I will tell truth; by grace itself, I swear.
You know, my father left me some prescriptions
Of rare and provid effects, such as his reading,
And manifest experience, had collected
For general sovereignty; and that he will'd me

ACT II.

ECENE I .- Paris. A room in the King's polace. Flourish. Enter King, with young Lords taking lease for the Florentine war; Bortram, Parolles, and allendants.

King, Farewell, young lord, these warliks principles, Do not throw from you:—and you, my lord, ferowell:-Share the advice betwixt you; if both gain all, The gift doth stretch itself as 'tis receiv'd, And is enough for both.

It is our hope, sir, I Lord.

After well-enter'd soldiers, to return
And find your grace in health.
King. No, no, it cannot be; and yet my heart
Will not confess he owes the melady
That doth my life besiege. Farewell, young lords; Whether I live or die, be you the sons Of worthy Frenchmen: let higher Italy (Those 'bated, that inherit but the ran
Of the last monarchy,') see, that you come
Not to woo honour, but to wed it; when
The bravest questant's shrinks, find what you seek,
That fame may cry you loud: I say, farewell.

2 Lord. Health, at your bidding, serve your

But, my good lord, 'tis thus; Will you be carr'd Of your infirmity?

Ring. No.

Laf. O, will you eat No grapes, my royal fox? yes, but you will, My noble grapes, an if my royal fox Could reach them: I have seen a medicine, 19 That's able to breathe life into a stone; quicken a rock, and make you dence canary, 12 Both. SCENE III .- Paris. A room in the King's Palace. Enter Bertram, Lufeu, and Parolles.

Laf. They say, miracles are past; and we have our philosophical persons, to make modern' and familiar things, supernatural and causeless. Hence Cas. Hel. You are too young, too happy, and too good,
To make yourself a son out of my blood.
4 Lord. Fair one, I think not so.

I.af. There's one grape yet,—I am sure, thy father drank wine.—But if thou be'st not an am,

Ber. My wife, my liego? I shall beseech your highness,
In such a business give me feave to use

The help of mine own eyes.

King. Know'st thou not, Bertram,

What she has done for me?

Ber. Yes, my good lord; But never hope to know why I should marry her. King. Thou know'st, she has rais'd me from my sickly bed.

Ber. But follows it, my lord, to bring me down, Must answer for your raising? I knew her well; She had her breeding at my father's charge:

A docked horse.

L a. I have no more to say to you,

(3) The lowest chance of the dice.

A poor physiciau's daughter my wife!—Disdain Rather corrupt me ever!

King. 'Tis only title' thou discain'st in her, the which

I can build up. Strange is it, that our bloods, Of colour, weight, and heat, pour'd all together, Would quite confound distinction, yet stand off In differences so mighty: if she be

All that is virtuous, (save what thou dislik'st, A poor physician's daughter,) thou dislik'st Of virtue for the name: but do not so: From lowest place when virtuous things proceed, The place is dignified by the doer's deed: Where great additions swell, and virtue none, It is a dropsied honour: good alone Is good, without a name; vileness is so:
The property by what it is should go.
Not by the title. She is young, wise, fair;
In these to nature she's immediate heir;

And these breed honour: that is honour's scorn, Which challenges itself as honour's born And is not like the sire: Honours best thrive, When rather from our acts we them derive Than our fore-goers: the mere word's a slave,

Debauch'd on every tomb; on every grave, A lying trophy, and as oft is dumb, Where dust, and damned oblivion, is the tomb Of honour'd hones indeed. What should be said? If thou caust like this creature as a maid,

I can create the rest: virtue and she Is her own dower; honour, and wealth, from me. Ber. I cannot love her, nor will strive to do't.

King. Thou wrong'st thyself, if thou should'st strive to choose. Hel. That you are well restor'd, my lord, I am

King. My honour's at the stake; which to defeat, I must produce my power: Here, take her hand, Proud scornful boy, unworthy this good gift; That does in vile misprision shackle up My love, and her desert; that canst not dream, We, poising us in her detective scale, Shall weigh thee to the beam: that wilt not know, It is in us to plant thine honour, where

We please to have it grow : Check thy contempt : Obey our will, which travails in thy good: Believe not thy discain, but presently Do thine own fortunes that obedient right, Which both thy duty owes, and our power claims;

Or I will throw thee from my care for ever, Into the staggers, and the careless lapse Of youth and ignorance; both my revenge and hate,

Loosing upon thee in the name of justice, Without all terms of pity: Speak; thine answer. Ber. Pardon, my gracious lord; for I submit My fancy to your eyes: When I consider, What great creation, and what dole of honour, Flies where you bid it, I find that she, which late

Was in my nobler thoughts most base, is now The praised of the king; who, so ennobled,

Is, as 'twere, born so.

King.

Take her by the he had tell her, she is thine: to whom I promise
A counterpoise; if not to thy estate, Take her by the hand, A balance more replete.

Вeт. I take her hand. King. Good fortune, and the favour of the king, Smile upon this contract; whose ceremony Shall seem expedient on the now-born brief,

(4) i. c. The want of title. (5) Titles. (6) Good is good independent of any worldly distinction, and so is vileness vile.

And be performed to night: the salemn feast Shall more attend upon the coming space, Expecting absent friends. As thou lov'st her, Thy love's to me religious; else, does err.

[Execut King, Bertrum, Helena, Lords, and aftendants.

Laf. Do you hear, monsieur? a word with you.

Par. Your pleasure, air?
Laf. Your lord and master did well to make his recantation.

Par. Recantation ?- My lord ? my master?

Lef. Ay; Is it not a language, I speak?

Par. A most harsh one; and not to be under stood without bloody succeeding. My master?

I Lord. He can come no other way but by this hedge's corner: When you sally upon him, speak what terrible language you will; though you under-stand it not yourselves, no matter: for we must not seem to understand him; unless some one among us, whom we must produce for an interpreter.

1 Sold. Good captain, let me be the interpreter. I Lord. Art not acquainted with him? knows he not thy voice?

1 Sold. No, sir, I warrant you.
1 Lord, But what liney-wooley hast thou to speak to us again?

I Sold. Even such as you speak to me.

I Lord. He must think us some band of stran gers i' the adversary's entertainment. Now he hath a smack of all neighbouring languages; therefore we must every one be a man of his own fancy, not to know what we speak one to another; so we seem to know, is to know straight our purpose: chough's language, gabble enough, and good enough. As for you, interpreter, you must seem very politic. But couch, ho! here he comes; to beguile two hours in a sleep, and then to return and swear the lies he forges.

Per. Ten o'clock: within these three hours 'twill be time enough to go home. What shall I say I have done? It must be a very plausive invention that carries it: They begin to smoke me; and disgraces have of late knocked too often at my door. I find my tongue is too fool-hardy; but my heart hath the fear of Mars before it, and of his creatures, not during the reports of my tongue.

I Lord. This is the first truth that e'er thine own tongue was guilty of. [Aside. Per. What the devil should more me to undertake the recovery of this drum; being not ignorant of the impossibility, and knowing I had no such purpose? And mock us with our bareness How have I sworn? Ber.

Dia. 'Tis not the many oaths that make the truth;

But the plain single vow, that is vow'd true. What is not holy, that we awear not by, But take the Highest to witness: Then, pray you, tell me,

If I should swear by Jove's great attributes, I lov'd you dearly, would you believe my ouths, When I did love you ill? this has no holding, To swear by him whom I protest to love, That I will work against him: Therefore, your caths Are words, and poor conditions; but unsealed; At least, in my opinion.

Change it, change it; Be not so holy-cruel: love is holy;

And my integrity no'er knew the crafts, That you do charge men with: Stand no more off. But give thyself unto my sick desires,

Who then recover: Say, thou art mine, and ever My love, as it begins, shall so persever. Dia. I see that men make hopes in such affairs,

That we'll forsake ourselves. Give me that ring. Ber. I'll lend it thee, my dear, but have no power To give it from me.

Dia. Will you not, my lord? Ber. It is an honour longing to our house, Bequeathed down from many ancestors; Which were the greatest obloquy i' the world In me to lose.

Dia. Mine honour's such a ring: My chastity's the jewel of our house, Bequeathed down from many ancestors; Which were the greatest obloquy i' the world! In me to lose: Thus your own proper wisdom Brings in the champion honour on my part, Against your vain assault.

Ber. Here, take my ring: My house, mine honour, yea, my life be thine, And I'll be bid by thee. Dis. When midnight comes, knock at my chamber window; Pil order take, my mother shall not hear. Now will I charge you in the band of truth When you have conquer'd my yet maiden bed, Remain there but an hour, nor speak to me: My reasons are most strong; and you shall know them, Laf. His 100ks wer King. I am not a day of season, 1 For thou may'st see a sunshine and a hail In me at once: But to the brightest beams Distracted clouds give way; so stand thou forth, The time is fair again.

My high-repented blames,2 Ber. Dear sovereign, pardon to me.

King. All is whole: Not one word more of the consumed time, Let's take the instant by the forward top; For we are old, and on our quick'at decrees The inaudible and noiseless foot of time Steals ere we can effect them: You remember

The daughter of this lord?

Ber. Admiringly, my liege: at first

I stuck my choice upon her, ere my heart

Durst make too bold a herald of my longue: Where the impression of mine eye enfixing, Contempt his scornful perspective did lend me, Which warp'd the line of every other favour; Scorn'd a fair colour, or express'd it stol'n; Extended or contracted all proportions, To a most hideous object: Thence it came, That she, whom all men prair'd, and whom myself, Since I have lost, have lov'd, was in mine eye The due; that did offend it.

Ring. Well excustd: That thou didst love her, strikes some scores away From the great compt: But love, that comes too late, Like a remorseful pardon slowly carried, To the great sender turns a sour offence, Crying, That's good that's gone : our rash faults, Crying, That's good that's gone: our rash f Make trivial price of serious things we have, Not knowing them, until we know their grave: Oft our displeasures, to ourselves unjust Destroy our friends, and after weep their dust : Our own lave waking cries to see what's done, While shameful hate sleeps out the afternoon. Be this sweet Heien's knell, and now forget her. Send forth your amorous token for fall Maudlin: The main consents are had; and here we'll stay To see our widower's second marriage-day.

Count. Which better than the first, O dear heaven, bless! Or, ere they meet, in me, O nature, cease! Or, ere they meet, in me, O nature, cease!

Lef. Come on, my son, in whom my house's name
Must be digested, give a favour from you,
To sparkle in the spirits of my daughter,
That she may quickly come.—By my old beard,
And every hair that's on't, Helen, that's dead,
Was a sweet creature; such a ring as this,
The last that e'er I took her leave at court, I saw upon her finger.

The ring was never hers. Count. Bon, on my life, I have seen her wear it; and she reckon'd it At her life's rate.

Laf. I am sure, I saw per mana to Ber. You are deceived, my lord, she never saw it. In Florence was it from a casement thrown me, Wrapp'd in a paper, which contained the name
Of her that threw it: noble she was, and thought
I stood ingag'd: but when I had subscrib'd
To mine own fortune, and inform'd her fully,
I could not answer in that course of homour As she had made the overture, she ceas'd, In heavy satisfaction, and would never Receive the ring again.

Plutus himself, That knows the tinct and multiplying medicine, Hath not in nature's mystery more science. Than I have in this ring: 'twas mine, 'twas Helen's, Whoever gave it you: Then, if you know That you are well acquainted with yourself,' Confess 'twas hers, and by what rough enforcement

You got it from her: she call'd the saints to surety. That she would never put it from her finger, Unless she gave it to yourself in bed, (Where you have never come,) or sent it us Upon her great disaster.

Ber. She never saw it. King. Thou speak'st it falsely, as I love mine

And mak'st conjectural fears to come into me, Which I would fain shut out: If it should prove That thou art so inhuman,-!twill not prove so: And yet I know not:—thou didst hate her deadly,
And she is dead; which nothing, but to close
Her eyes myself, could win me to believe,

More than to see this ring.—Take him away.—
[Guards seize Bertram.
My forc-past proofs, howe'er the matter fall, Shall tax my fears of little vanity, Having vainly fear'd too little.—Away with him ;— We'll sift this matter further.

Ber. If you shall prove This ring was ever here, you shall as easy Prove that I husbanded her bed in Morence, Where yet she never was. Erit Ber, guarded,

Enter a Gentleman.

King. I am weapp'd in dismal thinkings. Gent. Gracious sovereign, Whither I have been to blame, or no, I know not; Here's a petition from a Florentine, Who hath, for four or five removes, come short To tender it herself. I undertook it, Vanquish'd thereto by the fair grace and speech Of the poor suppliant, who by this, I know, Is here attending: her business looks in her With an importing visage; and she fold me, In a sweet verbal brief, it did concern Your highness with herself.

King. [Reads.] Upon his many protestations to marry me, when his wife was dead, I blush to say it, he won me. Now is the count Rousillon a widower; his vows are forfeited to me, and my honour's paid to him. He stole from Florence, taking no leave, and I follow him to his country for justice:

Wid. I am her mother, sir, whose age and honour Both suffer under this complaint we bring, And both shall cease," without your remedy.

King. Come hither, count. Do you know these women? Ber. My lord, I neither can, nor will deny But that I know them: Do they charge me further? Dia. Why do you look so strange upon your wife?

Ber. She's none of mine, my lord.

Dia. If you shall marry,
You give away this hand, and that is mine; You give away heaven's vows, and those are mine; You give away myself, which is known mine; For I by yow am so embodied yours, That she which marries you, must marry me,

Either both, or none.

Lif. Your reputation [To Bertram.] comes too short for my daughter, you are no husband for her.

Ber. My lord, this is a fond and desperate croa-

He had not my virginity.

King. What say'st thou to her?

Ber. She's impudent, my lord; And was a common gamester to the camp.3

Dia. He does me wrong, my lord; if I were so, He might have bought me at a common price: Do not believe him: O, behold this ring, Whose high respect, and rich validity,' Did lack a parallel; yet, for all that, He gave it to a commoner o' the camp,

King. But wiit thou not speak all thou know'st?

Part. Yes, so please your majesty; I did go between thom, as I said; but more than that, he loved tweern them, as I said; but more than that, he rowed her.—for, indeed, he was mad for her, and talked of Satan, and of limbo, and of furies, and I know not how that: yet I was in that credit with them at that I knew of their going to bed: and of thines, that I knew of their going to bed: and of other motions, as promising her marriage, and things that would derive me ill will to speak of things that would derive me ill will to speak of things that would derive me ill will to speak of things that would not speak what I know.

The row wondrous kind. There is your ring, And, look you, here's your letter; This it says, When from my finger you can get this ring, and of the row in the child, &c.—This is done:

Will you be mine, now you are doubly won?

Ber. If she, my liege, can make me know this clearly.

King. Thou hast spoken all already, unless thou cannot say they are married: But thou art too fine in thy evidence: therefore stand aside.-

This ring, you say, was yours? Dis. Ay, my good lord. King. Where did you buy it? or who gave it you? Dis. It was not given me, nor I did not buy it. King. Who lent it you?

IV ith strife to please you, day exceeding day:
Ours be your patience then, and yours our parts; Your gentle hands lend us, and take our hearts. [Execut,

This play has many delightful scenes, though not sufficiently probable; and some happy charac-King. She does abuse our ears; to prison with lers, though not new, nor produced by any deep ber.

Riowledge of human nature. Parolles is a bonster and a coward, such as has always been the sport of the stage, but perhaps never raised more laugh-ter or contempt than in the hands of Shakapeare.

I cannot reconcile my heart to Bertram; a mon noble without generosity, and young without truth; who marries Helen as a coward, and leaves her as a profligato: when sho is dead by his unkindness, sneaks home to a second marriage, is accused by a woman whom he has wronged, defends himself by falschood, and is dismissed to happiness.

The story of Bertram and Diana had been told before of Mariana and Angelo, and, to confers the truth, scarcely merited to be heard a second time. JOHNSON.

ACT I.

SCENE I.—Pedus. A Public Place. Lucentio and Tranio.

Luc. Tranio, since—for the great desire I had To see fair Padus, nursery of arts,— I am arriv'd for fruitful Lombardy, The pleasant garden of great Italy; And, by my father's love and leave, am arm'd With his good will, and thy good company, Most trusty servant, well approved in all; Here let us breathe, and happily institute A course of learning, and ingenious studies. Pisa, renowned for grave citizens, Gave me my being, and my father first, A merchant of great traffic through the world, Vincentio, come of the Bentivolii. Vincentio his son, brought up in Florence, it shall become, to serve all hopes conceiv'd, To deck his fortune with his virtuous deeds: And therefore, Tranio, for the time I study, Virtue, and that part of philosophy Will I apply, that treats of happiness By virtue specially to be achieved.
Tell me thy mind: for I have Plsa left,
And am to Padua come; as he that leaves A shallow plash, to plunge him in the deep,
And with satiety seeks to queach his thirst.

Tra. Mi perdonale, gentle master mine,
I am in all affected as yourself;

Glad that you thus continue your resolve, To suck the sweets of sweet philosophy. Only, good master, while we do admire This virtue, and this moral discipling, Let's be no stoics, nor no stocks, I pray: Or so devote to Aristotle's checks,* As Ovid be an outcast quite abjur'd Talk logic with acquaintance that you have, And practice rhetoric in your common talk: Music and poesy use to quickent you; The mathematics, and the metaphysics

If, Biondello, thou wert come ashore, We could at once put us in readiness; And take a lodging, fit to entertain Such friends, as time in Padua shall beget. But stay awhile: What company is this?

Tra. Master, some show, to welcome us to town.

Bep. Gentlemen, importune me no further, For how I firmly am resolv'd you know; That is,—not to bestow my youngest daughter, Before I have a husband for the elder: Page. No, my good lord; it is more pleasing lifeither of you both love Katharina, stuff.

Size. What, household stuff?

Leave shall you have to court her at your pleasure. Gre. To cart her rather: She's too rough for me: There, there, Hortensio, will you any wife?

Kath. I pray you, sir, [To Bap.] is it your wife
To make a stale of me amongst these mates?

Hov. Mates, maid? how mean you that? so mates for you, Unless you were of gentler, milder mould.

Eath. I faith, sir, you shall never need to fear;
I wis, it is not half way to her heart: But, if it were, doubt not her care should be To comb your noddle with a three-legg'd stool, Enter And paint your face, and use you like a fool.

Suffeeth, my reasons are both good and weighty.

I Berr. My lord, you nod: you do not mind the Siy. Yes, by saint Anne, do I. A good matter, surely; Comes there any more of it?

Page. My lord, 'tie but begum. Bly. 'Tie a very excellent piece of work, madam lady; 'Would't were done!

SCENE II .- The _ some. Before Hortensio's house. Enter Petruchio and Grumio.

Pet. Verona, for a while I take my leave, To see my friends in Padua; but of all, My best beloved and approved friend, Hortensio; and I trow, this is his house: Here, sirrah Grunnio; knock, I say. Grs. Knock, sir! whom should I knock? is there ery man has rebused your worship?

Pet. Villain, I say, knock me here soundly.

Grm. Knock you here, sir? why, sir, what am I,

sir, that I should knock you here, sir?

Pet. Villain, I say, knock me at this gate,

And rap me well, or I'll knock your knave's pate.

Grm. My master is grown quarrelsome: I should knock you feet.

knock you first, And then I know after who comes by the worst. Pet. Will it not be? Faith, sirrah, and you'll not knock, I'll wring it;

I'll try how you can sol, fa, and sing it. He wrings Grumio by the cars. Gru. Help, mastera, help! my master is mad. Pst. Now, knock when I bid you: sirrah! villain!

Enter Hortensio.

Hor. How now? what's the matter?—My old friend Grumio! and my good friend Petruchio!—How do you all at Verona?

Pet. Signior Hortensio, come you to part the fray? Con talle il core bene trevato, may I say. Hor. Alla nostra casa bene venuto, Molio honorato signior mio Petruchio.

Rise, Grumio, rise; we will compound this quarrel.

Gru. Nay, 'tis no matter, what he 'leges' in Latin if this be not a lawful enuse for me to leave his service, Look you, sir, he bid me knock him, and rap him soundly, sir: Well, was it fit for a servant to use his master so; being, perhaps, (for aught I see,) two and thirty,—a pip out?
Whom, 'would to God, I had well knock'd at first,

Then had not Gramio come by the worst.

Pet. A senseless villain!—Good Hortensio, I bade the rascal knock upon your gate, And could not get him for my heart to do it.

Gru. Knock at the gate?-O heavens! Spale you not these words plain, ... Sirrak, knock me bere,

(1) Alleges. (2) Few words. (3) See the story, No. 39, of A Theorem No. de Thines.'

Tre. So would I, 'lath, boy, to have the next Ray we here, knock at well, and knock me wish after...

But, skrah, not for my sake, but your master's,

Her. Petruchio, patience; I am Grumio's piedge:
Why, this is a beavy chance twint him and you;
You use your memors discreelly in all kind of Your ancient, trusty, pleasant servant Grumio. And tell me now, sweet friend,—what happy gale Blows you to Padua here, from old Verona?

Pet. Such wind as scatters young men through the world,

To seek their fortunes further than at home, Where small experience grows. But in a few,* Signier Hortensio, thus it stands with me :-Antonio, my father, is deceas'd; And I have thrust myself into this maze, Haply to wive, and thrive, as best I may: Crowns in my purse I have, and goods at home, And so am come abroad to see the world. Hor. Petrochio, shall I then come roundly to thee,

And wish thee to a shrewd ill-favour'd wife? Thou dat thank me but a little for my counsel: And yet I'll promise thee she shall be rich, And very rich:—but thou'rt too much my friend, And I'li not wish thee to her.

Pet. Signior Hortensio, twixt such friends as we, Few words suffice: and, therefore, if then know One rich enough to be Petruchio's wife, (As wealth is burthen of my wooing dance,) Bo she as foul as was Florentius' love, As old as Sybil, and as curst and shrewd. As Socrates' Xantippe, or a worse, She moves me not, or not removes, at least, Affection's edge in me; were she as rough As are the swelling Adriatic seas: come to wive it wealthily in Padua;

If wealthily, then happily in Padua.

Gras. Nay, look you, sir, be tells you fiathy want his mind is: Why, give him gold enough, and marry him to a puppet, or an agiet-baby; or an old trot with ne'er a tooth in her head, though she have as many diseases as two and fifty horses; why, nothing comes amiss, so money comes withal.

Hor. Petruchio, since we have stepp'd thus far in, will continue that I broach'd in jest. I can, Petruchio, help thee to a wife With wealth enough, and young, and beauteous; Brought up, as best becomes a gentlewoman; Her only fault (and that is faults enough,) is,—that she is intolerably curst,

And shrewd, and froward; so beyond all measure, That, were my state far worser than it is, I would not wed her for a mine of gold. Pet. Hortensio, peace; thou know'st not gold's effect:-Tell me her father's name, and 'tis enough; For I will board her, though she chide as loud As thunder, when the clouds in autumn crack.

Hor. Her father is Baptista Minois,

An affable and courteous gentleman : Her name is Katharina Minole, Renown'd in Padua for her scolding tongue.

Pet. I know her father, though I know not her;
And he knew my deceased father well:—
I will not sleep, Hortensio, till I see her;
And therefore let me be thus hold with you,

To give you over at this first encounter,

Unless you will accompany me thither.

Gru. I pray you, sir, let him go while the humour lasts. O'nny word, an she knew him as well as I do, she would think scolding would do little will throw a figure in her face, and so disfigure her with it that she shall here a mean and the stands.

Gre. Belov'd of me,—and that my deeds shall prove.

[Aside, with it, that she shall have no more eyes to see withat than a cat: you know him not air.

How. Tarry, Petruchio, I must go with thee;
For in Baptisat's keep' my treasure is:
He hath the jewel of my life in hold,
His youngest daughter, beautiful Bianca; And her withholds from me, and other more Suitors to her, and rivals in my love: Supposing it a thing impossible (For those defects I have before rehears'd,) That ever Katharina will be woo'd, Therefore this order hath Baptista ta'en;— That none shall have access unto Bianca, Till Katharine the curst have got a husband. Gru. Katharine the curst!

A title for a maid, of all titles the worst. A little for a man, or at titles the worst.

Hor. Now shall my friend Petruchio do me grace;
And offer me, disguis'd in suber robes,
To old Baptista as a schoolmaster
Well seen's in music, to instruct Blanca;
That so I may by this device, at least,
Have leave and leisure to make love to her,

And management about her by bereaff

Enter Gramio; with him Lucentio disguired, with books under his arm.

And, unsuspected, court her by herself.

Grs. Here's no knavery! See; to beguile the Have I not in my time heard lions roar? old folks, how the young folks lay their heads to Have I not heard the sea, pull'd up with winds, gether! Master, master, look about you: Who Rage like an angry boar, chafed with sweat? goes there? be Hor, Peace, Grumio; 'tis the rival of my love: Petruchic, stand by a while.

Gru. A proper stripling, and an amorous ! They retire.

Gre. O, very well; I have perus'd the note. Hark you, air; I'll have them very fairly bound : All books of love, see that at any hand; And see you read no other lectures to her : You understand me :--Over and beside Signior Baptista's liberality, Pil mend it with a largess: — Take your papers too, And let me have them very well perfum'd; For she is sweeter than perfume itself, To whom they go. What will you read to her?

Luc. Whate'er I read to her, I'll plead for you,

As for my patron (stand you so assur'd,) As firmly as yourself were still in place: Yes, and (perhaps) with more successful words

Than you, unless you were a scholar, sir.

Gre. O this learning! what a thing it is! Gru. O this woodcock! what an ass it is ! Pet. Peace, sirrah.

Hor. Grumio, mum!—God save you, signior Gremio !

Gre. And you're well met, algalor Hortensio.
Trow you, Whither I am going?—To Baptista Minola. I promis'd to inquire carefully About a schoolmaster for fair Bianca; And, by good fortune, I have lighted well On this young man; for learning, and behaviour, Fit for her turn; well read in poetry,

And other books, —good ones, I warrant you, Her. "Tis well: and I have met a gentleman, Hath promised me to help me to another, A fine musician to instruct our mistress :

Here is a gentieman, whom by chance I met, Upon agreement from us to his liking, Will undertake to woo curst Katharine; Yea, and to marry her, if her dowry please. Gre. So said, so done, is well:— Hortensio, have you told him all her faults? Pet. I know, she is an irksome brawling scold, If that be all, masters, I hear no harm.

Gre. No, say'st me so, friend? What countly-man?

Pet. Born in Verona, old Antonio's son: My father dead, my fortune lives for me; And I do hope good days, and long, to see. Gre. O, sir, such a life, with such a wife, were strange:

But, if you have a stomach, to't, o' God's name; You shall have me assisting you in all, But will you woo this wild cat?

Pel. Will I live? Gru. Will he woo her? ay, or I'll hang her.

Pet. Why came I hither, but to that intent? Think you, a little din can daunt mine care? Have I not heard great ordnance in the field, And heaven's artillery thunder in the skies? Have I not in a pitched battle heard Loud'isrums, neighing steeds, and trumpets'clang. And do you tell me of a woman's tongue: That gives not half so great a blow to the ear.
As will a chesnut in a farmer's fire? Tush! tush! fear boys with bugs.*

For he fears none. Aride.

Gre. Hortensio, hark! This gentleman is happily arrivid, My mind presumes, for his own good, and yours. Hor. I promis'd, we would be contributors, And bear his charge of wooing, whateoe'er.

Gre. And so we will; provided, that he win her. Gru. I would, I were as sure of a good dinner.

Enter Tranio, bravely apparelled; and Biondello. Tra. Gentlemen, God save you! If I may be bold, Tell me, I beseech you, which is the readiest way To the house of signior Baptista Minola? Gre. He that has the two fair daughters :- is't Gre. He that has the two tart anagments:—has [Aride to Tranio.] he you mean?

Tre. Even he. Biondello!
Gre. Hark you, sir; You mean not her to—
Tre. Perhaps, him and her, sir; What have you to do?
Pet. Not her that chides, sir, at any hand, I pray.—
The Your me ablders gir.—Ricordello, let's

Tra. I love no chidera, sir: Biondello, let's

Luc. Well begun, Tranic. -Bride. Hor. Sir, a word ere you go :---Are you a suffer to the maid you talk of, yes, or no?

Tre. An if I be, sir, is it ony offence?

(8) Rate. (?) Present. (8) Pright boys with bug-boars.

Gre. No; if, without more words, you will get! you hence.

Trs. Why, sir, I pray, are not the streets as free

For me, as for you? Gre. But so is not she.

Trs. For what reason, I beseech you? Gre. For this reason, if you'll know,-That she's the choice love of signior Gremiu.

Hor. That she's the chosen of signior Hortensio.

Trs. Softly, my musters: if you be gentlemen, Do me this right,—hear me with patience, Baptista is a noble gentleman, To whom my father is not all unknown; And, were his daughter fairer than she is, Bhe may more suitors have, and me for one. Pair Leda's daughter had a thousand wooers; Then well one more may fair Bianca have: And so she shall; Lucentio shall make one, Though Paris came, in hope to speed alone

Gre. What! this gentleman will out-talk us all.

Hor. Sir, let me be so bold, as to ask you.

Did you yet ever see Baptista's daughter?

Tra. No, sir; but hear I do, that he hath two;

The one as famous for a scolding tongue, As is the other for beauteous modest

Pet. Sir, air, the first's for me; let her go by. Gre. Yes, leave that labour to great Hercules ; And let it be more than Alcides' twelve.

Pet. Sir, understand you this of me, in sooth ;-The youngest daughter, whom you hearken for, Her father keeps from all access of suitors; And will not promise her to any man, Until the elder sister first be wed;

The younger then is free, and not before.

The Jounger then is free, and not before.

The If it be so, sir, that you are the man
Must stead us all, and me among the rest;
An if you break the free, and do this feat,—
Achieve the edder, set the younger free For our access,-whose hap shall be to have her,

Will not so graceless be, to be ingrate. '
Hor. Sir, you say well, and well you do conceive; And since you do profess to be a suiter, You must, as we do, gratify this gentleman, To whom we all rest generally beholden.

To whom we an that generally stated in sign whereof, Call'd Katharina, fair, and virtuous?

Trs. Sir, I shall not be slack: in sign whereof, Call'd Katharina, fair, and virtuous?

Please ye we may contrive this afternoon,

Bap. I have a daughter, sir, call'd Katharina. And quant carouses to our law,—
And do as adversaries do in law,—
Strive mightily, but cut and drink as friends.

Gra. Bion. O excellent motion:—Fellows, a let's

I am a gentleman of Verona, sir,

That,—hearing of her beauty, and her wit,

Hor. The motion's good indeed, and be it so ;-Petruchio, I shall be your ben venuto. [Exem

ACT II.

SCENE I .- The same. A room in Baptista's house. Enter Katharina and Bianca.

Biss. Good sister, wrong me not, nor wrong yourself, To make a bondmaid and a slave of me; That I disdain: but for these other gawds,? Unbind my hands, I'll pull them off myself, Yes, all my raiment, to my petticoat; Or, what you will command me, will I do, So well I know my duty to my elders.

(1) Մոջունաև (3) Companions. (5) Trilling ornaments.

Kath. Of all thy suitors, here I charge thee, tell Whom thou lov'st best: see thou dissemble not.

Bian. Believe me, sister, of all the men sire,
I never yet beheld that special face
Which I could fancy more than any other.

Kath. Minion, thou liest; Is't not Hortensio? Bian. If you affect him, sister, here I swear, I'll plead for you myself, but you shall have him.

Kath. O, then, belike, you fancy riches more,
You will have Gremio to keep you fair.

Bian. Is it for him you do envy me so? Nay, then you jest; and now I will perceive, You have but jested with me all this while; I priythee, sister Kate, untie my hands.

Kath. If that be jest, then all the rest was so.

[Strikes her,

Enter Baptiste.

Hop. Why, how now, dame! whence grows this insolence?-

Luc. Sir, give him head; I know, he'll prove a Bianca, stand aside; —poor girl! she weeps:—— jade.

Pet. Hortensio, to what end are all these words?

For shame, thou hidding of a deviliah spirit,
Why dost thou wrong her that did ne'er wrong thes?

When did she cross thee with a bitter word?

Kath. Her silence flouts me, and I'll be revenged. [Flies after Biane Bap. What, in my sight?—Bianca, get thee in.
[Exit Bianca.

Kath. Will you not suffer me? Nay, now I see, She is your treasure, she must have a husband? I must dance bare-foot on her wedding-day, And, for your love to her, lead apes in hell.
Talk not to me; I will go sit and weep,
Till I can find occasion of revenge.

[Enit Kath.]

Bop. Was ever gentleman thus griev'd as 1? But who comes here?

Enter Gremio, with Lucentio in the habit of a meet man; Petruchio, with Hortensio as a sus-sician; and Tranio, with Biondello bearing a lute and books.

Gre. Good-morrow, neighbour Baptista. Bap. Good-morrow, neighbour Gramio: God save you, gentlemen!

Pet. And you, good sir! Pray, have you not a

Gre. You are too blunt, go to it orderly.

Pet. You wrong me, signior Greenia; give me

I am a generous of her beauty, and her wit,
Her affability, and bashful modesty,
Her wondrous qualities, and mild behaviour,—
Am bold to show myself a forward guest Within your house, to make mine eye the witness of that report which I so oft have heard. I do present you with a man of mine,

Presenting Hortensto. Cunning in music, and the mathematics, To instruct her fully in those sciences, Whereof, I know, she is not ignorant: Accept of him, or clas you do me wrong; His name is Licio, born in Mantun.

Bap. You're welcome, air; and he, for your good sake: But for my daughter Katharine, -this I know,

She is not for your turn, the move my grief.

Pet. I see, you do not mean to part with her;

(4) Love. (5) A worthless momen.

Or else you like not of my company.

Bap. Mistake me not, I speak but as I find.
Whence are you, sir? what may I call your name?

Pet. Petruchio is my name; Antonio's son, A man well known throughout all Italy.

Gre. Saving your tale, Petruchio, I pray, Let us, that are poor politioners, speak too: Baccare! you are marvellous forward.

be doing.

Yet extreme gusts will blow out fire

Gre. I doubt it not, sir; but you will curse your So I to her, and so she yields to me:

wooing.—
Neighbour, this is a gift very grateful, I a: * sure of it. To express the like kindness myself, that have been more kindly beholden to you than any, I freely give unto you this young scholar, [Presenting Lu-centio.] that bath been long studying at Rheims; as cunning in Greek, Latin, and other languages, as the other in music and mathematics; his name is Cambio; pray, accept his service.

Bep. A thousand thanks, signior Gremio: welcome, good Cambio.—But, gentle sir, [To Tranio.] methinks you walk like a stranger; May I be so bold to know the cause of your coming?

Tra. Pardon me, sir, the boldness is mine own; That, being a stranger in this city here, Do make myself a suitor to your daughter, Unto Bianca, fair, and virtuous. Nor is your firm resolve unknown to me, In the preferment of the eldest sister: This liberty is all that I request,— That, upon knowledge of my parentage, I may have welcome mongst the rest that woo, And free access and favour us the rest. And, toward the education of your daughters, I here bestow a simple instrument, And this small packet of Greek and Latin books : If you accept them, then their worth is great. Bay. Lucentic is your name? of whence, I may ? Tra. Of Pisa, sir; son to Vincentio.

Bap. A mighty man of Pisa; by report I know him well: you are very welcome, sir.— Take you [To Hor.] the lute, and you [To Luc.] the set of books,

You shall go see your pupils presently. Holls, within!

Enter a Servant.

Sirrah, lead These gentlemen to my daughters; and tell them both,

These are their tutors: bid them use them well. [Exit Servant, with Hortensio, Lucentio, and Biondelio.

We will go walk a little in the orchard, And then to dinner: You are passing welcome,

And so I pray you all to think yourselves.

And so I pray you all to think yourselves.

Pet. Signior Baptists, my business asketh haste,
And every day I carmot come to woo.

I know my father well; and in him, me,
Lat anlely helt to all his lands and goods, Which I have better'd rather than decreas'd: Then tell me,—if I get your daughter's love, What dowry shall I have with her to wife?

Bap. After my death, the one half of my lands: And, in possession, twenty thousand crowns.

Pet. And, for that dowry, I'll assure her of man wall known throughout all Italy.

Bap. I know him well; you are welcome for his This is,—her love; for that is all in all.

Pet. Why, that is nothing; for I tell you, father. I am as peremptory as she proud-minded; And where two raging fires meet together, They do consume the thing that feeds their fury: Pet. O, pardon me, signior Gremio; I would fain Though little fire grows great with little wind, be doing.

Yet extreme gusts will blow out fire and all:

For I am rough, and woo not like a babe,

Bop. Well may'at thou woo, and happy be thy speed ! But he thou arm'd for some unhappy words.

Pet. Ay, to the proof; as mountains are for winds, Thus shake not, though they blow perpetually.

Re-enter Hortensio, with his head broken,

Bup. How now, my friend? why dost thou look so pale?

Hor. For fear, I promise you, if I look pale. Bop. What, will my daughter prove a good mu-siciau?

Hor. I think, she'll sooner prove a soldier; Iron may hold with her, but never lutes.

Bap. Why, then thou canst not break her to the lute?

Hor. Why, no; for she hath broke the late to me. I did but tell her, she mistook her frets,*

And how'd her hand to leach her fingering; When, with a most impatient devilish spirit, Frets, call you these? quoth sho: I'll fume with them :

And, with that word, she struck me on the head, And through the instrument my pate made way; And there I stood amazed for a while, As on a pillory, looking through the jute: While she did eath me,—rascal fiddler, And—twangling Jack; with twenty such vild terms,

As she had studied to misuse me so.

Pet. Now, by the world, it is a lusty wench; love her ten times more than e'er I did:

I love her ten times more than e'er I did:
O, how I long to have some chat with her I
Bap. Well, go with me, and be not so discomfited:
Proceed in practice with my younger daughter;
She's apt to learn, and thankful for good turns.—
Signior Petruchio, will you go with us;
Or shall I send my daughter Kate to you?
Pet. I pray you do; I will attend her here.—
[Exc. Bap. Gre. Tra. and Hor.
And woo her with some spirit when she comes.
Say, that she rail; Why, then Pil tell her plain,
She sings as awedly as a nightingale:
Say, that she frown; I'll say, she looks as clear
As morning roses newly wash'd with dew:
Say, she be mute, and will not speak a word;
Then I'll commend her yolubility. Then I'll commend her volubility. And say—she uttereth piercing elegaence: If she do hid me pack, I'll give her thanks, As though she bid me stay by her a week;

If she deny to wed, I'll crave the day When I shall ask the banns, and when be married :-But here she comes; and now, Petruchio, speak.

Enter Katharina

Good morrow, Kate; for that's your name, I hear.
Kath. Well have you heard, but something hard of hearing :

(3) Pattry musician,

They call me Katharine, that do talk of me. Pet. You lie, in faith; for you are call'd plain Kale And bonny Kate, and sometimes Kate the curst;

But Kate, the prettiest Kate in Christendom, Kate of Kate-hall, my super-dainty Kate, For dainties are all cates: and therefore, Kate, Take this of me, Kata of my consolution ;— Hearing thy mildness praised in every town Thy virtues spoke of, and thy beauty sounded, (Yet not so deeply as to thee belongs,) Myself am mov'd to woo thee for my wife.

Kath. Mov'd! in good time: let him that mov'd But thou with mildness entertain'st thy woors, you hither, Remove you hence: I knew you at the first, You were a moveable.

Pet.

Kath. A joint-stool. Pel. Thou hast his it : come, sit on me. Rail. Asses are made to pear, and so are you.

Pet. Women are made to bear, and so are you. Kath. No such jade, sir, as you, if me you mean. Pet. Alas, good Kate! I will not burden thee:

For, knowing thee to be but young all light,— Kath. Too light for such a swain as you to catch;

And yet as heavy as my weight should be.

Pet. Should be? should bux.

Katk. Well ta'en, and like a buzzard. Pet. O, slow-wing'd turtle! shall a buzzard take thee?

Katà. Ay, for a turtle ; as he takes a huzzard. Pet. Come, come, you wasp ; l'faith, you are too

Kath. If I be waspish, best beware my sting. Pst. My remedy is then, to pluck it out.

Katk. Ay, if the fool could find it where it lies.

Pst. Who knows not where a wasp doth wear his sting?

In his tail. Kaik. In his tongue.

Whose tangue? Pet. Kath. Yours, if you talk of talls; and so fare-

Pel. What, with my tongue in your tail? may, come again,

Good Kate; I am a gentleman.

That I'll try. Kath. [Striking him Pal. I swear I'll cuff you, if you strike again.

Malb. So may you lose your arms:

If you strike me, you are no gentleman;
And if no gentleman, why, then no arms.

Pet. A bernid, Kate? O, put me in thy books.

Kath. What is your crest? a coxcomb?

Pet. A combless cock, so Kate will be my hen. Keth. No cock of mine, you crow too like a craven. Pet. Nay, come, Kate, come; you must not look A mad-cap ruffian, and a swearing Jack, so sour.

That thinks with oaths to face the matter out.

Kath. It is my fashion, when I see a crab. Pet. Why, here's no crab; and therefore look not sour. Kath. There is, ..... Pet. Then show it me. There is, there is.

Kaik Had I a glass, I would. What, you mean my face?
Well sim'd of such a young one. Pet. Kath.

Pel. New, by Saint George, I am too young for you. Kath. Yet you are wither'd. 'The with carea. Pa. Kath.

I care not

A degenerate cock.

(2) By.

Pel. Nay, hear you, Kaie: In sooth, you beaps not so.

Kath. I chafe you, if I tarry; let me ga. Pet. No, not a whit; I find you passing gentle. Twas told me, you were rough, and coy, and sullen, And now I find report a very liar; For thou art pleasant, gumesome, passing sourteous;

But slow in speech, yet sweet as spring-time flowers: Thou canst not frown, thou caust not look sakance, Nor bite the lip, as angry wenches will; Nor hast thou pleasure to be cross in talk; With gentle conference, soft and affable. Why does the world report, that Kate doth imp? O slanderous world! Kate, like the hazle-twig, Why, what's a moveable? Is straight and slender; and as brown in hus As hazle nuts, and sweeter than the kernels. O, let me see thee walk: thou dost not half.

Kath. Go, fool, and whom thou keep'st command.

Pet. Did ever Dian so become a grove, As Kate this chamber with her princely guit? O, be thou Dian, and let her be Kate; And then let Kate be chaste, and Dian sportful!

Kath. Where did you study all this goodly speech? Pd. It is extempore, from my mother-wit.

Kath. A witty mother | witless size her son.

Pet. Am I not wise? Kath. Yes; keep you warm. Pet. Marry, so I mean, sweet Katharine, in thy bed :

And therefore, setting all this chat aside, Thus in plain terms:—Your father hath consented That you shall be my wife; your dowry 'greed on; And, wili you, nill you, I will marry you. Now, Kate, I am a husband for your turn; For, by this light, whereby I see thy beauty, (Thy beauty, that doth make me like then well,) Thou must be married to no man but me: For I am he, am born to tame you, Kate; And bring you from a wild cat to a Kate Conformable, as other household Kates. Here comes your father: never make denial, I must and will have Katharine to my wife.

Re-enter Baptista, Greenlo, and Tranto. Bep. Now,

Signior Petruchio: How speed you with My daughter ?

Pet. How but well, air? how but weil? It were impossible I should speed ambe.

Bap. Why, how now, daughter Reillarine? in year dumps? Kath. Call you me daughter ? now i promise you, You have show'd a tender fatherly regard, To wish me wed to one half lunatic

Pet. Father, 'tis thus, -yourself and all the world, That talk'd of her, have talk'd emiss of her; if she be curst, it is for policy:

For she's not froward, but modest as the dove : She is not hot, but temperate as the morn ; For patience she will prove a second Grissel; And Roman Lucrece for her chastity: And to conclude,—we have 'greed so well toge.

ther, That upon Sunday is the wedding-day.

Kath. I'll see thee hand d on Sunday first.

Gre. Hark, Petruchie! she says, she'll see then hang'd first.

Tra. Is this your speeding? nay, then, good night our part!

Pol. Be patient, gentlemen; I choose her for myself;

If she and I be pleas'd, what's that to you?
"Tis bargain'd 'twirt us twain, being alone, That she shall still be curst in company. I tall you, 'tis incredible to believe How much she loves me: O, the kindest Kate!— She hung about my neck; and kiss on kiss She vied so last, protesting oath on oath, That in a twink she won me to her love, O, you are novices ! 'tis a world to see," How tame, when men and women are alone, A meacock* wretch can make the curstest shrey Give me thy hand, Kate: I will unto Venice, To buy apparel 'gainst the wedding-day :--Provide the feast, father, and bid the guests; I will be sure, my Katharine shall be fine. Bep. I know not what to say: but give me your hands ; God send you joy, Petruchio! 'tis a match. Gre. Tra. Amen, say we; we will be witnessed Pet. Father, and wife, and gentlemen, adieu;

I will to Venice, Sunday comes space; —— We will have rings, and things, and fine array; And kiss me, Kate, we will be married o'Sunday [Ereant Petruchio and Katharine, severally.]
Gre. Was ever match clapp'd up so suddenly?
Bep. Faith, gentlemen, now I play a merchant's

And venture madly on a desperate mart.

And venture mady on a desperate marr.

Tra. Trans a commodity lay fretting by you:

Twill bring you gain, or periah on the seas.

Bep. The gain I seek is—quiet in the match.

Gre: Wo doubt, but he hath got a quiet catch.

But now, Baptista, to your younger daughter;

Now is the day we long have looked for;

I am your said-bour, and was quiter first. I am your neighbour, and was suiter first. Two. And I am one, that love Bianca more Then words can witness, or your thoughts can guess Gre. Youngling ! thou canst not love so dear as I. Tre. Grey-beard ! thy love doth freeze. But thine doth fry. Gre.

Skipper, stand back: 'tis age that nourisheth.

Tvs. But youth, in ladies' eyes that flourisheth. Bep. Content you, gentlemen; I'll compound this strife:

Tis deeds, must win the prize; and he, of both, That can assure my daughter greatest dower, Shall have Bianca's love.—

Of fruitful land, all which shall be her jointure.

What, have I pinch'd you, signior Gremio?

Gre. Two thousand ducate by the year, of land!

My land amounts not to so much in all : That she shall have; besides an argosy, That now is lying in Marseilles' road: What, have I chok'd you with an argosy?

Tra, Gremio, 'tis known, my father hath no less Than three great argosies; beades two galliasses,"
And twelve tight gallies: these I will assure her, And twice as much, whate'er thou offer'st next. Gre. Nay, I have effer'd all, I have no more; And she can have no more than all I have ;

If you like me, she shall have me and mine.

Tra. Why, then the maid is mine from all the world,

By your firm promise; Gremio is out-vied.

Bap. I must confess, your offer is the best;

And, let your father make her the assurance, She is your own; else, you must pardon me s if you should die before him, where's her dower? Tra. That's but a cavil; he is old, I young.

Gre. And may not young men die, as well as old?

Bap. Well, gentlemen,
I am thus resolv'd:—On Sunday next you know,

My daughter Katharine is to be married : Now, on the Sunday following, shall Bianca Be bride to you, if you make this assurance;

If not, to signior Gremio:
And so I take my leave, and thank you both. [Ex. Gre. Adieu, good neighbour.—Now I fear thee

Tra. A vengeance on your crafty wither'd hide! Yet I have faced it with a card of ien. Tis in my head to do my master good :-I see no reason, but suppos'd Lucentio Must get a father, call'd—suppos'd Vincentio; Shall have Binner's love.—
Shall have Binner's love.—
Say, signior Gremio, what can you assure her?

Gre. First, as you know, my house within the A child shall get a sire, if I fail not of my cumning.

ACT III.

SCENE I .- A room in Baptista's house, Lucentio, Hortensio, and Bianca.

Luc. Fiddler, forbear; you grow too forward, sir: Have you so soon forgot the entertainment Her sister Katharine welcom'd you withal? Hor. But, wrangling pedant, this is The patroness of heavenly harmony: Then give me leave to have prerogative; And when in music we have spent an hour, Your lecture shall have leisure for as much.

Luc. Preposterous ass! that never read so far To know the cause why music was ordain'd !

A large me-chant-ship.

(5) A large me-chancemp.
(6) A vessel of burthen worked both with sails and oars.

Was it not, to refresh the mind of man, After his studies, or his usual pain? Then give me leave to read philosophy,

And, while I pause, serve in your harmony.

Her. Birrah, I will not bear these braves of thin Bies. Why, gentlemen, you do me double wrong, To strive for that which resteth in my choice: I am no breeching scholar in the schools;
I'll not be tied to hours, nor pointed times,
But learn my lessons as I please myself.
And, to cut off all strile, here at we down; Take you your instrument, play you the whiles; His lecture will be done ere you have tun'd.

Hor. You'll leave his lecture when I am in tune? To Bianca. - Hortensio retires.

Luc. That will be never ; -tune your instrument. Bian. Where left we last?

Biss. Construe them

Hor. Madam, 'tis now in tune.

All but the base. Luc. Hor. The base is right; "Is the base knave that jars. How flery and forward our pedant is?

Now, for my life, the knave doth court my love: Pedascule, I'll watch you better yet. Dion. In time I may believe, yet I mistrust.

Luc. Mistrust it not; for, sure, Eacides
Was Ajax,—call'd so from his grandfather.
Bion. I must believe my master; else, I promise you, I should be arguing still upon that doubt: But let it rest.—Now, Licio, to you:--Good masters, take it not unkindly, pray,

That I have been thus pleasant with you both.

Hor. You may go walk, [To Lusentio.] and give me leave a while; My lessons make no music in three parts.

Luc. Are you so formal, sir 7 well, I must wait, And watch withel; for, but I be deceived,

Our fine musician groweth amorous. [Aside Hor. Madam, before you touch the instrument, To learn the order of my fingering, faside. I must begin with rudiments of art;

To teach you gamut in a briefer sort, More pleasant, pithy, and effectual, Than hath been taught by any of my trade: And there it is in writing, fairly drawn.

Bian. Why, I am past my gamut long ago. Hor. Yet read the gamut of Hortansio. Bian. [Reads.] Gamut I am, the ground of all anca, Lucentio, and attendante.

Bap. Signior Lucentic, [To Transc.] this is the pointed day That Katharine and Petruchic should bastarried, And yet we hear not of our son-in-law:

What will be said? what mockery will it be,

What says Lucentio to this shame of ours?

**Esth. No shame but mine: I must, forecoth, be forc'd To give my hand, oppos'd against my heart, Unto a mad-brain'd rudesby, full of spicen Who would in haste, and means to wed at leisure. I told you, I, he was a frantic fool, Hiding his bitter jests in blunt behaviour: And, to be noted for a merry man, He'il woo a thousand, 'point the day of marriage,' Make friends, invite, yes, and proclaim the banes; Yet never means to wed where he hath woo'd. Now must the world noint a poor Katharine. Now must the world point at poor Katharine,

And say,—Lo, there is mad Petruchio's wife,
If thousand please him come and marry her.
Tra. Patience, good Katharine, and Baptista

Upon my life, Petruchio means but well, Whatever fortune stays him from his word : Though he be hlunt, I know him pessing wise ; Though he be merry, yet withal he's honest.

Kata. 'Would Katharine had nover seen him though! [Exit, weeping, followed by Binnes, and others. Bop. Go, girl; I cannot blame thee now to weep;

For such an injury would vex a saint, Much more a shrew of thy impatient humour.

Enter Biondello.

Bion. Master, master! news, old news, and such nows as you never heard of!

Bop. Is it new and old too? how may that be?

Bion. Why, is it not news, to bear of Petruchlo's coming ? Bap. Is he come?

(3) Pedant. (5) Bait, decoy.

(4) Fantastical.(6) Caprice, Inconstancy.

Bion, Why, no, sir. Bep. What then? Bion. He is coming.

Bep. When will he be here?

Bion. When he stands where I am, and sees you there.

The But, say, what: -Te thine old news.

Bios. Why, Petruchio is coming, in a new hat Suffecth, I am come to keep my word, and an old jerkin; a pair of old breeches, thrice turned; a pair of boots that have been candle-cases. Bap. Who comes with him?

Bion. O, sir, his lackey, for all the world caparatoned like the horse; with a linen stock on ope lag, and a kersey book-hose on the other, gartered with a life and bine list: an old hat, and The kumore of forty functes pricked in't for a feather: a monator, a very monater in apparel; and not like a Christian footboy, or a gentleman's lackey.

Tra. Tis some odd humour pricks him to this fashlon;—

Yet oftentimes he goes but mean apparell'd. Bep. I am glad he is come, however he comes. Biss. Why, sir, he comes not.

Bap. Didat thou not say, he comes?
Biss. Who? that Petruchic came?

Bios. Who? that retruento came;

Bop. Ay, that Petruchio came.

Bios. No, sir; I say, his horse comes with him on his back.

Bop. Why, that's all one.

Bios. Nay, by Saint Jamy, I hold you a penny,
A horse and a man is more than one, and yet not many.

Enter Petruchio and Grunio.

Pel. Come, where he these guilants? who is at home? You are welcome, sir. And yet I come not well.

 And yet you halt not. Not so well apparell'd

As I wish you were.

Pst. Ware it better I should rush in thus. But where is Kate? where is my lovely bride? How does my father?—Gentles, methinks you frown:

And wherefore gaze this goodly company; As if they saw some wondrous monument,

Some comet, or unusual prodicy?

Bep. Why, sir, you know, this is your wedding-

First were we sad, fearing you would not come :

Now sadder, that you come so unprevided Fig i doff this habit, shame to your estate, An eye-sore to our solemn festival.

Tvs. And tell us, what occasion of import Hath all so long detain'd you from your wife, And sent you hither so unlike yourself? Pet. Tedious it were to tell, and harsh to hear:

Though in some part enforced to digrees Which, at more leisure, I will so excuse

Tru. See not your bride in these unreverent robes;

Go to my chamber, put on clothes of mine. Pet. Not I, believe me; thus I'll visit her.
Bep. But thus, I trust, you will not marry her.
Pet. Good sooth, even thus; therefore have done

Exemi Petruchio, Grumio, and Biondello.

Tra. He hath some meaning in his mad attice:

We will persuade him, be it possible,

To put on better ere he go to church.

Bep. I'll after him, and see the exent of this. (Zzit.

Tra. But, sir, to ber love concerneth us to add Her father's liking: Which to bring to pass, As I before unparted to your worship, It shills not nuch: white'er he be,
It shills not nuch: we'll fit him to our turn,—
And he shall be Vincentio of Piss; And make assurance, here in Padua, Of greater sums than I have promised. And marry sweet Bience with consent.

Luc. Were it not that my fellow schoolmaster
Doth watch Bience's steps so narrowly, 'Twere good, methinks, to steal our marriage; Which once perform'd, let all the world say—n

I'll keep mine own, despite of all the world.

Tra. That by degrees we mean to look into,

And watch our vantage in this business: We'll over-reach the greybeard, Gregalo, The narrow-prying father, Minola; The quaint' musician, amorous Licio;

All for my master's sake, Lucentio.-

Re-cater Greenio.

Signior Gremio! came you from the church?
Gre. As willingly as e'er I came from school Tre. And is the bride and bridegroom coming home? Gre. A bridegroom, say you? 'tis a groom, indeed, A grumbling groom, and that the girl shall flod.

Tra. Curster than she? why, 'its impossible.

Gre. Why, he's a devil, a devil, a very fiend.

Tra. Why, she's a devil, a devil, the devil's dans.

Gre. Tut! sho's a lamb, a dove, a fool to him.

I'll tell you, sir Lucentio; When the proset

That all amaz'd, the priest let fall the book; And, as he steep'd again to take it up, The mad-brain'd bridegreem took him such a cull, That down fell priest and book, and book and priest; Now take them up, quoth he, if my list. Tru. What said the wench, when he arose again?

Gre. Trembled and shook; for why, he stamp'd, and swore,

As if the vicer meant to copen him. But after many ceremonies done, He calls for wine:—A kealth, quoth he; as if He had been aboard caroning to his mates After a storm:—Quaff'd of the mursudel, And threw the sops all in the sexton's face ; And threw the sops at in the section's take;
Having no other reason,—
But that his beard grew thin and hungerly,
And seem'd to ask him sops as ne was drinking.
This done, he took the bride about the neck;
And kise'd her lips with such a clamorous anack,
That, at the parting, all the church did echo.
I, seeing this, came thence for very shame;
And after me, I know, the rout is coming:
Such a read marriage power was hefore. Such a mad marriage never was before; Harly hark ! I hear the minatrels play. Muric.

Enter Petruchio, Katharina, Binnea, Baptista, Hortensio, Grumio, and train.

Pet. Gentlemen and friends, I thank you for your pagis: I know, you think to dine with me to-day, And have prepar'd great store of wadding cheer; But so it is, my haste doth call me hance, And therefore here I mean to take my leave

Bap. 1s't possible, you will away to night?

Pet. I must away to day, before night come:

Make it no wonder; if you know my business, You would entreat me rather go than stay.
And, honest company, I thank you all, That have beheld me give away myed.

To this most patient, sweet, and virtuous wife:
Dine with my father, drink a health to me; For I must hence, and farewell to you all.

Tra. Let us entreat you stay till after dinner.

Pet. It may not be.

Let me entreat you.

Gre. Pet. It cannot be.

Kath.

Let me entreat you. Pet. I am content.

Kath. Are you content to stay?

Pet. I am content you shall entreat me stay;

But yet not stay, entreat me how you can.

Kath. Now, if you love me, stay.

Pet. Grumio, my horses.

Gru. Ay, sir, they be ready; the oats have eaten the horses.

Kath. Nay, then,
Do what thou canst, I will not go to-day; No, nor to-morrow, nor till I please myself. The door is open, sir, there lies your way. The door is open, int, there has your way.

You may be jogging, whiles your boots are green;

For me, I'll not be gone, till I please myself:

That take it on you at the first so roundly.

Pet. O, Kate, content thee; pr'ythee, be not good Curtis.

Curt. is m:

If she had not a spirit to resist.

Pet. They shall go forward, Kuts, at thy commund:-Obey the bride, you that attend on her: Go to the feast, revel and domineer, Carouse full measure to her maidenhead, Be mad and merry,—or go hang yourselves; But for my honny Kate, she must with me. Nay, look not big, nor stamp, nor stare, nor fret; I will be master of what is mine own: She is my goods, my chattels; she is my house, My household-stuff, my field, my burn, My horse, my ox, my ass, my any thing And here she stands, touch her whoever dare; Pfi bring my action on the proudest he That stops my way in Padus. — Grumio, Draw forth thy weapon, we're beset with thieves; Rescue thy mistress, if thou be a man:— Fear not, sweet weach, they shall not touch thee, Kate;

Pil buckler thee against a million.

[Exeunt Petruchio, Katharine, and Grumio. Bap. Nay, let them go, a couple of quiet ones. Gre. Went they not quickly, I should die with laughing.

Tra. Of all mad matches, never was the like! Luc. Mistress, what's your opinion of your sister?

Bian. That, being mad herself, she's madiy mated.

Grr. I warrent him, Petruchio is Kated.

Bap. Neighbours and friends, though bride and bridegroom wants

For to supply the places at the table, You know, there wants no junkets at the feast;— Lucentio, you shall supply the bridegroom's place; And let Bianca take her sister's room.

Tra. Shall swent Bianca practise how to bride it? Bop. She shall, Lucentio.—Come, gentlemen, let's go.

ACT IV.

SCENE I .- A hall in Petruchio's country hour. Enter Grumio.

Gru. Fie, fie, on all tired jades i on all med masters; and all foul ways; Was ever man so beaten? was over man so rayed? was ever man so weary? I am sent before to make a fire, and they I a make the core to make a net, and they are coming after to warm them. Now, were not I a make pot, and soon hot, my very lips might freeze to my teeth, my tongue to the roof of my mouth, my heart in my belly, ere I should come by a fire to thaw me:—But I, with blowing the fre, shall warm myself; for, considering the weather, a taller man than I will take cold.—Holia, hoa! Tra. O despiteful love! unconstant woman kind !-

I tell thee, Licio, this is wonderful.

Hor. Mistake no more: I am not Licio, But one that scorn to live in this disguise,

Tra. Signior Hortensio, I have often heard
Of your entire affection to Bianca;
And since mine eyes are witness of her lightness,
I will with you,—if you be so contented,—
Forswear Bianca and her love for ever.

Hor. See, how they kim and court! -- Signior

Ne'er to marry with her though she would entreat:

Fig on her! see, how heastly she doth court him.

Hor. 'Would, all the world, but he, had quite forsworn!

For me,—that I may surely keep mine oath, I will be married to a wealthy widow, Ere three days pass; which heth as long lov'd me, As I have lov'd this proud disdainful haggard: And so farewell, signior Lucentio.-Kindness in women, not their beauteous looks, Shall win my love :—and so I take my leave, in resolution as I swore before.

Tra. Ay, mistress, and Petruchio is the muster; That teacheth tricks eleven and twenty long, To tame a shrew, and charm her chattering longue.

Enter Biondello running.

Bios. O master, master, I have watch'd so long, That I'm dog-weary; but at last I spied An ancient angel; coming down the hill, Will serve the turn.

What is he, Biondello? Tra. Bios. Master, a mercatante, or a pedant,*
I know not what; but formal in apparel, In guit and countenance surely like a father.

Luc. And what of him, Tranio? Trs. If he be credulous, and trust my tale, I'll make him glad to seem Vincentio; And give assurance to Baptista Minola, As if he were the right Vincentio. Take in your love, and then let me slone Exerni Lucentio and Bianca.

Enter a Pedant.

Ped. God save you, sir!

Tra. And you, air I you are welcome.

Travel you far on, or are you at the furthest?

Ped. Sir, at the furthest for a week or two:

But then up further, and as fit as Rome; And so to Tripoly, if God held me life. Tra. What countryman, I pray?

Ped. Of Mantua. Tys. Of Mantus, sir?—marry, God forbid!
And come to Padua, careless of your life?
Ped. My life, sir! how, I pray? for that goes hard.

Tra. 'Tis death for any one in Mantua To come to Padua; Know you not the cause? Your ships are staid at Venice; and the duke (For private quarrel 'twixt your duke and him,) Hath publish'd and proclaim'd it openly: Tis marvel; but that you're but newly come, You might have heard it else proclaim'd about.

Ped. Alas, sir, it is worse for me than so; For I have bills for money by exchange

From Florence, and must here deliver them. Tra. Well, sir, to do you courtesy, This will I do, and this will I advise you;

First, tell me, have you ever been at Pisa?

Ped. Ay, sir, in Pisa have I often been; Plan, renowned for grave citizens.

Tra. Among them, know you one Vincentio: Ped. I know him not, but I have heard of him; A merchant of incomparable wealth.

Tra. He is my father, sir; and, south to say, In countenance somewhat doth resemble you. Bion. As much as an apple doth an oyster, and [Aride. all one.

Tra. To save your life in this extremity, This favour will I do you for his sake; And think it not the worst of all your fortunes, That your are like to sir Vincentio. His name and credit shall you undertake, And in my house you shall be friendly lodg'd; Look, that you take upon you as you should; You understand me, sir;—so shall you stay Till you have done your business in the city: If this be courtesy, air, accept of it.

Beggars, that come unto my father's door, Upon entreaty, have a present alms; If not, elsewhere they meet with charity: But I, who never knew how to entreal Am starv'd for meat, giddy for lack of sleep; With oaths kept waking, and with brawling fed: And that which spites me more than all these want He does it under name of perfect love; As who should say,—if I should sleep, or eas, 'Twere deadly sickness, or else present death. I pr'ythee go, and get me some repast; I care not what, so it be wholesome food.

Grz. What say you to a neat's foot? Kath. 'Tis passing good; I priythee let me have it.

Gra. I fear it is too cholerie a meat : How say you to a fat tripe, finely broiled?

Kath. I like it well; good Grumio, fetch it me.

Gru. I cannot tell; I fear 'tis cholerie.

What say you to a piece of beef, and mustard?

Kath. A lish that I do lars to feed was Kath. A dish that I do love to feed upon. Gru. Av, but the mustard is too bot a little.

Kath. Why, then the beef, and let the mustard rest.

Gru. Nay, then I will not; you shall have the mustard,

Or else you get no beef of Grumio. Rath. Then both, or one, or any thing thou wilt.
Gru. Why, then the mustard without the beef. Kath. Go, get thee gone, thou false deluding slave, Bente him.

That feed'st me with the very name of meat: Sorrow on thee, and all the pack of you, That triumph thus upon my misery! Go, get thee gone, I say.

Enter Petruchio with a dish of meal; and Hortensio.

Pet. How fares my Kate? What, sweeting, all amort ?3

Hor. Mistress, what cheer? Kath. 'Faith, as cold as can be. Pet. Pluck up thy spirits, took cheerfiely upon Sets the dick on a table. I am sure, sweet Kate, this kindness merits thanks.

What, not a word? Nay, then, theu lev'st it not;
And all my pains is sorted to no proof:—— Here, take away this dish.

Pray you, let it stand. Kalk. Pet. The poorest service is repaid with thanks; And so shall mine, before you touch the meat. Kath. I thank you, sir.

(3) Dispirited; a gallicista.

Hor. Signior Petruchio, fie ? you are to blams ? Come, mistress Kate, Pil bear you company. Pet. Eat it up all, Hortensio, if thou lov'et me.—

[Aride, Much good do it unto thy gentle heart! Kate, cat apace :- And now, my honey love, Will we return unto thy father's house;

And revel it as bravely as the best, With silken coats, and caps, and golden rings, With rulls, and cuffs, and farthingates, and things; With scarfs, and fans, and double change of bro-

I tell thee, I, that thou hast marr'd her gown. Tal. Your worship is deceived; the gown is made

Just as my master had direction :

Grumio gave order how it should be done.

Gru. I gave him no order, I gave him the stuff. Tet. But how did you desire it should be made? Gric. Marry, sir, with needle and thread. The But did you not request to have it cut?

Gra. Thou hast faced many things.

Tal, I have.

Gru. Face not me : thou hast brav'd many men , brave not me; I will neither be faced nor braved. I say unto thee,—I bid thy master cut out the gown; but I did not bid him cut it to pieces: ergo, thou liest.

Tat. Why, here is the note of the fashion to testify. Pet. Read it.

Gru. The note lies in his throat, if he say I said so.

Tal. Imprimie, a loose-bodied gown; Gru. Master, if ever I said loose-bodied gown, sew me in the skirts of it, and heat me to death with a bottom of brown thread : I said, a gown,

Pet. Proceed. Tai. With a small compassed cape:

Gru. I confess the cupe. Tai. With a trunk sleeve ;-

Gru. I confess two sleeves. Tai. The sleeves curiously cut.

Pet. Av, there's the villany.

Gru. Error i'the bill, sir; error Pthe bill. I commanded the sleeves should be cut out, and sewed up again; and that I'll prove upon thee, though thy little finger be arm'd in a thimble. Test. This is true, that I say; an I had thee in place where, thou should'st know it.

Gru. I am for thee straight: take thou the bul, give me thy mete-yard, and spare not me.

Hor. God-a-mercy, Grumio: then he shall have no odda.

Pat. Well, sir, in brief, the gown is not for me. Gru. You are i'the right, sir; 'tis for my mistress. Pet. Go, take it up unto thy master's use.

Gru. Villuin, not for thy life: Take up my mis-tress' gown for thy master's use! Pet. Why, sir, what's your conceit in that? Gru. O, sir, the conceit is deeper than you think for:

Take up my mistress' gown to his master's use!

O, fie, fie, fie!

Pet. Hortensio, say thou wilt see the tailor Aside,

Bocause his painted skin contents the eye?

O, no, good Kate; neither art thou the worse

For this poor furniture, and mean array.

If thou account'st it shame, ley it on me:

And therefore, frolic; we will bence forthwith, To feast and sport us at thy father's house.-Go, call my men, and let us straight to him; And bring our horses unto Long-line end, There will we mount, and thither walk on foot, Let's see; I think, 'tis now some seven o'clock,

And well we may come there by dinner-time.

Keth. I dare assure you, sir, 'tis almost two;

And 'twill be supper-time, ere you come there. Pet. It shall be seven, ere I go to horse:
Look, what I speak, or do, or think to do,
You are still crossing it.—Sire, let't slone:
I will not go to-day; and ere I do,
It shall be what o'clock I say it is.

Blow. Tut! fear not me.

Bion. This lear not me.

Tre. But hast thou done thy errand to Baptista?

Bion. I told him, that your father was at Venice;

Luc. I pray thee, moralize them.

Bion. Then thus. Baptista is safe, the deceiving father of a deceitful son.

Herecomes Baptista :--ect your countenance, sir. Enter Baptista and Lucentic.

Signior Baptista, you are haply met:— Sir, [To the Pedant.] This is the gentleman I told you of; I pray you, stand good father to me now, Give me Bianca for my patrimony.

Ped. Soft, son!— Sir, by your leave: having come to Padna To gather in some debts, my son Lucentio Made me acquainted with a weighty cause Of love between your daughter and himself: And,—for the good report I hear of you; And for the love he beareth to your daughter, And she to him,—to stay him not too long, I am content, in a good father's care, Appeareth. (2) Brave. (3) Serupulous, (5) Betrothed. (4) AMELIE OF COLLYDY.

To have him match'd; and,—if you please to like No worse than I, sir,—spon some agreement, Me shall you find most ready and most willing With one consent to have her so beslow'd; For curious' I cannot be with you,

Signior Baptista, of whom I hear so wall.

Bap. Sir, pardon me in what I have to say; Your plainness, and your shortness, please me well. Right true it is, your son Lucentio here Doth love my daughter, and she loveth him, Or both dissemble deeply their affections: And, therefore, if you say no more than this, That like a father you will deal with him, And pass my daughter a sufficient dower, The match is fully made, and all is done:

Your son shall have my daughter with consent.

Tra. I thank you, sir. Where then do you know beat

We be affied; and such assurance talen, As shall with either part's agreement stand? Bap. Not in my house, Lucentic; for, you know, Pitchers have ears, and I have many servants: Besides, old Gremio is henriching still And, happily, we might be interrupted.

Tra. Then at my lodging, an it like you, sir:
There doth my father lie; and there, this night,

We'll pass the business privately and well: Send for your daughter by your servant here, My boy shall fetch the scrivener presently. The worst is this,—that, at so stender warning, You're like to have a thin and slender pittance.

Bop. It likes me well:—Cambio, hie you house,

And bid Bianca make her ready straight; And, if you will, tell what hath happened:-Lucentio's father is arriv'd in Padus, And how sho's like to be Lucentic's wife

Luc. I pray the gods she may, with all my heart!

Tru. Dally not with the gods, but get theo gone.
Signior Baptists, shall I lead the way? Welcome I one mess is like to be your cheer:

Come, sir; we'll better it in Piss. I follow you. Bep. Errou Trusio, Pedant, and Baptista.

Bion. Cambia.--What say'st thou, Biomicho? Lace. Bion. You saw my master wink and laugh upon you?

Luc. Biondello, what of that? Bion, Faith, nothing; but he has left me here behind, to expound the meaning or marel of his

Luc. I pray thee, moralize them. Bion. Then thus. Bantista is safe, talking with

Luc. And what of him? Bion. His daughter is to be brought by you to the supper.

Luc. And then?

Bios. The old priest at Saint Luke's church is at your command at all hours.

Luc. And what of all this?

Bion. I cannot tell; except they are busied about a counterfeit assurance; Take your assurance of her, came privilegio ad imprimendam solum: to the church; take the priest, clerk, and some sufficient honest witnesses: If this be not that you look for, I have no more to Kata. I know it is. Pel. Nay, then you lie; it is the blessed sun.

Kath. Then, God be bless'd, it is the blessed BULL TO

But sun it is not, when you say it is not; And the moon changes, even as your mind. What you will have it nam'd, even that it is; And so it shall be so, for Katharine.

Hor. Petruchio, go thy ways; the field is won.
Pet. Well, forward, forward: thus the bow!
should run,

And not unluckily against the bias.-But soft; what company is coming here?

Enter Vincentia, in a travelling dress. Good-morrow, gentle mistress: Where away? [To Vincentio

Tell me, sweet Kate, and tell me truly too, Hast then beheld a fresher gentlewoman? Such war of white and red within her cheeks! What stars do spangle heaven with such beauty, As those two eyes become that heavenly face?— Fair levely mand, once more good day to thee :-Sweet Kate, embrace her for her beauty's sake.

Her. 'A will make the man mad, to make Woman of him.

Kath. Young budding virgin, fair, and fresh, and sweet, Whither away; or where is thy abode? Happy the parents of so fair a child;

Happier the man, whom favourable stars

Upon the company you overtake?

Hor. I do assure thee, father, so it is.

Pet. Come, go along, and see the truth hereof;
For our first merriment hath made thee jealous.

[Exemt Petruchio, Katharina, and Vincentio. Her. Well, Petruchio, this hath put me in heart. Have to my widow; and if she be forward. Then hast thou taught Hortensio to be untoward.

ACT V.

SCENE L.—Padas. Before Lucentio's house. Enter on one side Biondello, Lucentlo, and Biuncu; Gremio walking on the other side.

Mon. Softly and swiftly, sir; for the priest is

Luc. I fly, Biondello: but they may chance to need thee at home, therefore leave us.

Bion. Nay, faith, I'll see the church o' your back; and then come back to my master as soon as I can.

[Execut Luc. Bian. and Bion. Gre. I marvel Cambio comes not all this while.

Enter Petruchio, Kathorina, Vincentio, and attendants.

Pel. Sir, here's the door, this is Lucentio's house. My father's bears more toward the market-place; Thither must I, and here I leave you, sir.

Vin. You shall not choose but drink before you go; I think, I shall command your welcome here, And, by all likelihood, some cheer is toward.

Knocks. Gre. They're busy within, you were best knock louder.

Enter Pedant above at a window.

Ped. What's he, that knocks as he would beat down the gate?

Vin. Is signior Lucentio within, sir?

Ped. He's within, sir, but not to be spoken withal.

Vin. What if a man bring him a hundred pound or two, to make merry withal?

Ped. Keep your hundred pounds to yourself: he shall need none, so long as I live.

Pet. Nay, I told you, your son was beloved in the door to speak with him.

Ped. Thou liest; his father is come from Pisa, and here looking out at the window.

Fist. Art thou his father?

Ped. Ay, air; so his mother says, K I may be-

Pet. Why, how, now, gentlemen! [To Vincen.] why, this is flat knavery, to take upon you another man's name.

Ped. Lay hands on the villain; I believe 's means to cozen somebody in this city under my countenance.

Of this play the two plots are so well united, that they can hardly be called two, without injury to the art with which they are interwoven. The attention is entertained with all the variety of a double plot, yet is not distracted by unconnected incidents.

The part between Katharine and Petruchio is eminently sprightly and diverting. At the marriage of Bianca, the arrival of the real father, perhaps, produces more perplexity than pleasure. whole play is very popular and diverting.

ACT I.

SCENE L.—Sicilia. An Antechamber in Leontes' palece. Enter Camillo and Archidamus.

Archidamus.

IF you shall chance, Camillo, to visit Bohemia, on the like occasion whereon my services are now on font, you shall see, as I have said, great difference betwist our Bohemia and your Sicilia.

Com. I think, this coming summer, the king of Sicilia means to pay Bohemia the visitation which ne justly owes him.

Drek. Wherein our entertainment shall shame us, we will be justified in our loves: for, indeed,—

Cam. Beseech you.—
Arck. Verily, I speak it in the freedom of my knowledge: we cannot with such magnificence—in so rare—I know not what to say.——We will give you sleepy drinks; that your senses, unintelli-gent of our insufficience, may, though they can-not praise us, as little accuse us.

Cam. You pay a great deal too dear, for what's given freely.

Arck. Believe me, I speak as my understanding instructs me, and as mine honesty puts it to utterance.

Com. Sicilia cannot show himself over-kind to Bohemia. They were trained together in their childhoods; and there rooted betwint them then such an affection, which cannot choose but branch now. Since their more mature dignities, and royal necessities, made separation of their society, their encounters, though not personal, have been royally attornied with interchange of gifts, letters, loving embassies; that they have seemed to be together, though absent; shook hards, as over a vart; and embraced, as it were, from the ends of opposed winds. The heavens continue their loves!

malice, or matter, to alter it. You have an un-speakable comfort of your young prince Mamillius; it is a gentleman of the greatest promise, that ever came into my note.

Cam. I very well agree with you in the hopes of him: it is a gallant child; one that, indeed, phy-sics the subject, makes old hearts fresh: they, that went on crutches ere he was born, desire yet their life, to see him a man.

Arch. Would they also be content to die?

Cam. Yes; if there were no other excuse why they should desire to live.

Arch. If the king had no son, they would desire to live on crutches till he had one. [Execut.

Mon. Mo, my lord, I'll fight.

Leon. You will? why, happy man be his dole!"—

My hords.

My brother,

Are you so fond of your young prince, as we

Do seem to be of ours?

If at home, sir, Pol. He's all my exercise, my mirth, my matter: Now my sworn friend, and then mine enemy; My parasite, my soldier, statesman, all; He makes a July's day short as December; And, with his varying childness, cures in me Thoughts that would thick my blood.

So stands this squire Offic'd with me : We two will walk, my lord, -Hermione, And leave you to your graver steps.—Hermione, How thou lov'st us, show in our brother's welcome; Let what is dear in Sicily, be cheap: Next to thyself, and my young rover, he's Apparent's to my heart.

Her.

If you would seel

If you would seek us,

(4) Blue. (5) Gredible. (7) Will you be esjoled? (5) Oredible,

We must be neat; not neat, but clearly, captain: We are yours i'the garden: Shall's attend you.

And yet the stear, the heifer, and the call, there?

Leon. To your own bents dispose you: you'll be found, Be you beneath the sky :—I am angling now,

Though you perceive me not how I give line. Go to, go to i [Aside. Observing Polizones and Herm

From east, west, north, and south: Be it concluded, No barricado for a belly; know it;

It will let in and out the enemy,

With bug and baggage: many a thousand of us Have the disease, and feel't not.—How now, boy? Mam. I am like you, they say. Leon. Why, that's some comfort.—

What! Camillo there? Com. Ay, my good lord

Leon. Go play, Mamillius; thou'rt an honest Erit Mamilibus. man.

Camillo, this great sir will yet stay longer.

Cam. You had much ado to make his anchor hold; When you cast out, it still came home

Didet note it? Leon. Cam. He would not stay at your petitions; made His business more material.

Didst perceive it ?--They're here with me already; whispering, rounding,18

Sicilia is a so-forth: 'Tis far gone, When I shall gust's it last.—How came't, Camillo, That he did stay?

At the good queen's entreaty. €am. Leon. At the queen's, he't: good, should be pertinent ;

But so it is, it is not. Was this taken
By any understanding pate but thine?
For thy conceit is soaking, will draw in (14) Taste. (15) Infariors in rank. Ha?

Loon. Stays here longer.

Laon. Ay, but why?
Com. To satisfy your highness, and the entreaties
Of our most gracious mistress.

Satisfy The entreaties of your mistress?—satisfy?— Let that suffice. I have trusted thee, Camillo, With all the nearest things to my heart, as well My chamber-counsels: wherein, priest-like, thou Hast cleans'd my bosom; I from thee departed Thy penitent reform'd: but we have been Deceived in thy integrity, deceiv'd In that which seems so.

Be it forbid, my lord! Com Leon. To bide upon't ;-Thou art not honest : or, If thou inclin'st that way, thou art a coward;
Which hoxes' honesty behind, restraining
From course requir'd: Or else thou must be counted
A servant, grafted in my serious trust,
A servant, grafted in my serious trust, And therein negligent; or else a fool, That need a game play'd home, the rich stake drawn

And tak'st it all for jest.

Com. My gracious lord, I may be negligent, foolish, and fearful; In every one of these no man is free, But that his negligence, his folly, fear, Amongst the infinite doings of the world, Sometime puts forth: In your affairs, my lord, If ever I were wilful-negligent, It was my folly; if industriously
I play'd the fool, it was my negligence,
Not weighing well the end: if ever fearful
To do a thing, where I the issue doubted,
Whereof the evention did one out Whereof the execution did cry out
Against the non-performance, 'twas a fear
Which oft affects the wisest: these, my lord,
Are such allow'd infirmities, that honesty Is never free of. But, 'beseech your grace, Be plainer with me; let me know my trespass By its own visage; if I then deny it, Tie none of mine.

Leon. Have not you seen, Camillo, (But that's past doubt : you have; or your eye-glass is thicker than a cuckold's horn;) or heard (For, to a vison so apparent, rumour
Cannot be mute,) or thought (for cogitation
Resides not in that man, that does not think it,)
My wife its slippery? If thou wilt confess,
(Or else be impudently negative,
To have nor eyes, nor care, nor thought,) then say,

My wife's a hobby-horse; deserves a name
As rank as any flax-wench, that puts to
Before her troth-plight; say it, and justify it.
Com. I would not be a stander-by, to hear
My sovereign mistress clouded so, without
My present vengeance taken: 'Shrew my heart, You never spoke what did become you leas Than this: which to reiterate, were sin

As deep as that, though true.

Le whispering nothing? Is leaning check to check? is meeting noses? Rissing with inside lip? stopping the career
Of leaghter with a sigh? (a note infallible
Of breaking honesty;) horsing foot on foot?
Shuking in corners? wishing clocks more swift?
Hours, minutes? noon, midnight? and all eyes blind

With the pin and web," but theirs, theirs only,

To hox is to hamstring.
 Disorders of the eye.
 Hour-glass. (4) Harty.

That would unseen be wicked? is this nothing? Why, then the world, and all that's in't, is nothing; The covering sky is nothing; Bohemia nothing; My wife is nothing; nor nothing have these nothings, If this be nothing.

Good my lord, be cur'd Cam. Of this diseas'd opinion, and betimes;

For 'tie most dangerous. Leon. Say, it be ; 'lis true.

Infected as her life, she would not live

Com. No, no, my lord. Lem. It is; you lie; you lie: I say, thou liest, Camillo, and I hate thee; Pronounce thee a gross lout, a mindless slave; Or else a hovering temporizer, that Canst with thine eyes at once see good and evil, Inclining to them both: Were my wife's liver

The running of one glass.2 €om_ Who does infect her? Loon. Why he, that wears her like her medal, hanging About his neck, Bohemia: Who—if I Had servants true about me; that hare eyes

To see alike mise honour as their profits,
Their own perticular thrifu, they would do that
Which should undo more doing: Ay, and thou His cup-bearer,—whom I from meaner form Have bench'd, and rear'd to worship; who may'st

Plainly, as heaven sees earth, and earth sees heaven, How I am galled—might'st bespice a cup, To give mine enemy a lasting wink; Which draught to me were cordial.

Sir, my lord, I could do this; and that with no rash potion, But with a ling ring dram, that should not work Maliciously like poison: But i cannot Believe this crack to be in my dread mistress,
So sovereignly being honourable.
I have lov'd thee.

Leon.

Make't thy question, and go 10t.

Dost think, I am so muddy, so unsettled, To appoint myself in this vexation? sully The purity and whiteness of my sheets, Which to preserve is sleep; which being spotted, Is goads, thorns, nettles, tails of wasps? Give scandal to the blood of the prince my son, Who, I do think is mine, and love as mine; Without ripe moving to't? Would I do this? Could man so bleuch?

Cam. I must believe you, sir : I do; and will fetch off Bohemia for't: Provided, that when he's ramov'd, your highness Will take again your queen, as yours at first; Even for your son's sake; and, thereby, for scaling The injury of tongues, in courts and kingdoms Known and allied to yours.

Thou dost advise me, Leon. Even so as I mine own course have set down :

I'll give no blemish to her honour, none.

Com. My lord,
Go then; and with a countenance as clear
As friendship wears at feasts, keep with Bohemis, And with your queen: I am his cupbearer; If from me he have wholesome beverage, Account me not your servant.

Leon. This is all: Do't, and thou hast the one half of my heart;

Do't, and thou near the own.
Do't not, thou splitt'st thine own.
Fill do't, my lord.

Maliciously, with effects openly hurtful. (6) i. c. Could any man so start off from proLows. I will seem friendly, as thou hast advised Since I am charged in honour, and by Max me. [Exit. That I think honourable: Therefore, mark my

Cam. O miserable lady !-But, for me, What case stand I in? I must be the poisoner of good Polizanes: and my ground to do't is the obedience to a master; one, who, in rebellion with himself, will have All that are his, so too.—To do this deed, Promotion follows: If I could find example Of thousands, that had struck anointed kings, And fourish'd after, Pd not do't: but since Nor brass, nor stone, nor parchment, bears not one, Let villany itself forswear't. I must Forsake the court: to do't, or no, is certain To me a break-neck. Happy star, reign now! Here comes Bohemis.

Enter Polizenes.

PoL Pol. This is strange! methinks, My favour here begins to warp. Not speak?— Good-day, Camillo.

Com. Hail, most royal sir!
Pol. What is the news i'the court? Cam None rare, my lord,

Pol. The king hath on him such a countenance, As he had lost some province, and a region, Lov'd as he loves himself: even now I met him With customary compliment; when he, Wasting his eyes to the contrary, and failing A lip of much contempt, speeds from me; and Sc leaves me to consider what is breeding,

That changes thus his manners.

Cam. I dare not know, my lord.

Pol. How! dare not? do not. Do you know, and dare not Be intelligent to me? 'Tis thereabouts; For, to yourself, what you do know, you must; And cannot say, you dars not. Good Camillo, Your chang'd complexions are to me a mirror Which shows me mine chang'd too: for I must be A party in this alteration, finding Myself thus alter'd with it

There is a sickness Which puts some of us in distemper; but I cannot name the disease; and it is cought Of you that yet are well.

How! caught of me? Make me not sighted like the basilisk : I have look'd on thousands, who have sped the better His execution sworn.
By my regard, but kill'd none so. Camilio,———Pol. As you are certainly a gentleman; thereto Cierk-lika, experienc'd, which no less adorns Our gentry, than our parents' noble names,

Is not this suit of mine,—that thou declare What incidency thou dost guess of harm Is creeping toward me; how far off, how near; Which way to be prevented, if to be; If not, how best to bear it.

 Por succession. (2) Gentle was opposed to simple; well born.

counsel; Which must be even as swiftly follow'd, as I mean to utter it; or both yourself and me

Cry, lost, and so good-night. On, good Camillo.

Com. I am appointed Him to murder you. Cans.

Pd. For what? Com. He thinks, pay, with all confidence he sweers

As he had seen't, or been an instrument To vice you to't, ... that you have touch'd his queen Forbiddenly.

Pol. O, then my best blood turn To an infected jelly; and my same Be yok'd with his, that did betray the best? Turn then my freshest reputation to A sevour, that may strike the duliest mostril Where I arrive; and my approach be ahunn'd, Nay, hated too, werse than the great's rimection. That e'er was heard, or read!

Sweer his thought ever By each particular star in heaven, and By all their influences, you may as well Forbid the sea for to obey the moon, As or, by eath, remove, or coursel, shake The fabric of his folly; whose foundation is pil'd uson his faith, and will continue The standing of his body.

Pol. How should this grow? Com. I know not: but, I am sure, 'tis saler to Pol. Avoid what's grown, than question how 'tie born. If therefore you dare trust my honesty,— That lies enclosed in this trunk, which you Shall bear along impawn'd,—away to-night.
Your followers I will whisper to the business: And will, by twos, and threes, at several posterns, Clear them o' the city: For myself, I'll put My fortunes to your service, which are here By this discovery lost. Be not uncertain; For, by the honour of my parents, I have utter'd truth: which if you seek to prove, I dure not stand by; nor shall you be safer Than one condemn'd by the king's own mouth, thereon

I do believe thee: I saw his heart in his face. Give me thy hand; Be pilot to me, and thy places shall Still neighbour mine: My ships are ready, and Our gentry, than our parents' noble names,

SCENE L-The same. Enter Bermione, Mamillins, and Ladies. Her. Take the boy to you: he se troubles me, Tis past enduring. 1 Lady. 1 Lady. Come, my gracious lord, Shall I be your play-follow?

No, I'll none of you.

I Lady. Why, my sweet lord? Mam. You'll kies me hard; and speak to me as if I were a baby still.—I love you bette

2 Lady. And why so, my good lord? Not for because Man. Your brows are blacker: yet black brows, they say, Become some women best; so that there be not Become some women for the semi-circle, or half-moon made with a pen.

2 Lady.

Who taught you this? 2 Lady. Who taught you this?

Mam. I learn'd it out of women's faces.—Pray

What colour are your eye-brows?

I Lady.

Brue, my 10ru.

Mem. Nay, that's a mock: I have seen a lady's

That has been blue, but not her eyn-brows

Z Ledy, Hark ye: The queen, your mother, rounds apace: we shall Protect our section to Present our services to a fine new prince, One of these days; and then you'd wanton with us, If we would have you.

1 Lady. She is spread of late Into a goodly bulk: Good time encounter her!

Her. What wisdom stirs amongst you? Come,

I am for you again: Pray you ait by us, And tell 's a take. nir, now Man. Merry, or sad, shall't be? Her. As marry as you will.

A sad tale's best for winter: Жæ.

I have one of sprites and gobline Let's have that, sir. Her. Come on, all down :-Come on, and do your best. To fright me with your sprites: you're powerful

Mess. Dwelt by a church-yard;—I will tell it softly; You crickets shall not hear it.

Come on, then, Her. And give't me in mine car.

Enter Leonies, Antigonus, Lords, and others, Less. Was he met there? his train? Camillo More, she's a traitor; and Camillo is with him?

I Lord, Behind the taft of pines I met them;

Saw I men scour so on their way: I sy'd them Even to their ships.

Leon. How bless'd am I In my just censure? in my true opinion?— Alack, for lesser knowledge 12 How accura'd. In being so blest!—There may be in the cup A spider steep'd, and one may drink; depart, And yet partake no venom : for his knowledge ! Is not infected: but if one present.

Camillo was his help in this, his pender :-There is a plot against my life, my crown; All's true that is mistrusted:—that false villain, Whom I employ'd, was pre-employ'd by him: He has discovered my design, and I Remain a pinch'd thing: yes, a very trick For them to play at will:—How came the pa So casily open?

I Lord. By his great authority; Which often hath no less prevall'd than so,

On your command.

Leon. I know't too well .-Give me the boy: I am glad, you did not nurse hem: Though he does bear some signs of me, yet you Have too much blood in him.

What is this? sport? Her. Leon. Bear the boy hence, he shall not come about her;

Away with him :—and let her sport herself With that she's big with ; for 'tin Polizenes Has made thee swell thus.

But Pd say, he had not, Her. And, I'll be sworn you would believe my saying, Howe'er you lean to the nayward.

You, my lords, Leon Look on her, mark her well; be but about To say, she is a goodly lady, and The justice of your hearts will thereto add,

Tis pity she's not honest, honourable: Praise her but for this her without-door form (Which, on my faith, deserves high speech,) and straight

Ere you can say she's honest: But be it known. From him that has most cause to grieve it should be, She's an adultress.

Her, Should a villain say so, The most replenish'd villain in the world He were as much more villain: you, my lord, Do but mistake,

Leon. You have mistock, my lady, Polizenes for Leontes: O thou thing, Which I'll not call a creature of thy p Lest barbarism, making me the precedent, Should a like language use to all degrees, And mannerly distinguishment leave out Betwirt the prince and beggar !—I have said, She's an adultress; I have said with whom: A federary' with her; and one that knows
What she should shame to know berself. But with her most vile principal, that she's A bed-swerver, even as bad as those That vulgars give bold titles; ay, and privy To this their late escape.

Her. No, by my life, Privy to none of this: How will the griers you, When you shall come to clearer knowledge, that You thus have publish'd me? Gentle my lord, You scarce can right me throughly then, to say You did mistake.

No, no; if I mistake Leon. Mow he hath drank, he crucks his gorge, his sides, In those foundations which I build upon,

The centre is not big enough to bear A school-boy's top.—Away with her to prison: He, who shall speak for her, is sear off guilty, 1 But that he speaks. 2 Away with her to prison :

There's some III planet reigns: Her. I must be patient, till the heavens look With an aspect more favourable.— -Good my lords,

I am not prove to weeping, as our sex Commonly are: the want of which vain dew, Perchance, shall dry your pities: but I have That honourable grief loug'd here, which burns Worse than tears drown: 'Beseech you all, my lords,

With thoughts so qualified as your charities Shall best instruct you, measure me;—and so The king's will be perform'd!

Shall I be heard? Leon

Her. Who is't that goes with me?—Beseech your highness,

My women may be with me; for, you see, My plight requires it. Do not weep, good fools; There is no exuse; when you shall know, your mistress

Has deserv'd prison, then abound in tears, As I come out: this action, I now go on, Is for my better grace.—Adieu, my lord » I never wish'd to see you sorry; now, I trust, I shall.—My women, come; you have leave.

Lean. Go, do our bidding; hence.

Prove violence; in the which three great ones suffer.

Yourself, your queen, your son

I dare my life lay down, and will do't, sir, Please you to accept it, that the queen is spotless Pihe eyes of heaven, and to you; I mean, In this which you accuse her.

Ant.

If it prove
She's otherwise, I'll keep my stables where
I lodge my wifa; I'll go in couples with her;
Than when I feel, and see her, no further trust her;
Per every inch of woman in the world,
Ay, every dram of woman's flesh, is false,
I' she be.

Lean, Hold your peaces.

1 Lard. Good my lord, Ant. It is for you we speak, not for ourselves: You are abus'd, and by some putter-on,*
That will be damn'd for't; would I knew the villain, I would lend-damn him: Be she honour-fixw'd, I have three daughters; the eldest is eleven; The second, and the third, nine, and some five; If this prove true, they'll pay for't; by mine honour, I'll gold them all; fourteen they shall not see To bring false generations: they are co-heirs; And I had rather glib myself, than they Should not produce fair lesse.

Leon. Cease; no more. You smell this business with a sense as cold As is a dead man's pose: I see't, and feel't, As you feel doing thus; and see withal The instruments that feel.

(1) Hemotely guilty. (5) Take my station.

(2) In merely speaking.(4) Instigator.

Ant. If it be so, We need no grave to bury honesty; There's not a grain of it, the face to sweeten Of the whole dungy earth.

What! lack I credit? I Lord. I had rather you did lack, than I, my lord, Upon this ground: and more it would content me To have her honour true, than your suspicion; Be blam'd for't how you might

Leon, Why, what need we Commune with you of this? but rather follow Our forceful instigation. Our prerogative Calls not your counsels; but our natural goodness Imparts this: which,—if you (or stupified, Or seeming so in skill,) cannot, or will not, Relish as truth, like us; faform yourselves, We need no more of your advice: the matter, The loss, the gain, the ordering on't, is all Properly ours.

Ant. And I wish, my liege You had only in your silent judgment tried it. Without more overture.

Leon. How could that be? Either thou art most ignorant by age, Or thou wert born a fool. Camillo's flight,

Added to their familiarity, (Which was as gross as ever touch'd conjecture. That lack'd sight only, nought for approbation, But only seeing, all other circumstances Made up to the deed,) doth push on this proceeding:

Yet, for a greater confirmation,

The a derivative from me to mine, And only that I stand for. I appeal Fo your own conscience, sir, before Polizenes Carnes to your court, how I was in your grace, How merited to be so; since he came, With what encounter so uncurrent I Have strain'd, to appear thus: if one jot beyond The bound of honour; or, in act, or will, That way inclining; harden'd be the hearts Of all that hear me, and my near'st of kin Cry, Fie upon my grava! I ne'er heard yet, That any of these bolder vices wanted Less impadence to gainer what they did, Then to perform it first. That's true enough; Her.

Though 'tis a saying, sir, not due to me.

Leon. You will not own it. Her. More than mistress of,

Which comes to me in name of fault, I must not At all acknowledge. For Polixenes, (With whom I am accused,) I do confess, I low'd him, as in honour he requir'd; With such a kind of love, as might become A lady like me; with a lora, even such, So, and no other, as yourself commanded: Which not to have done, I think, had been in me Both disobedience and ingratitude, To you, and toward your friend; whose love had spoke,

Even since it could speak, from an infant, freely, That it was yours. Now, for conspiracy, I know not how it tastes; though it be dish'd For me to try how: all I know of it Is, that Camillo was an honest man And, why he left your court, the gods themselvas, Wotting no more than I, are ignorant.

Leon. You know of his departure, as you know What you have underta'en to do in his absence.

Her. Sir, You speak a language that I understand not: My life stands in the level' of your dreams, Which I'll lay down.

Your actions are my dreams; You had a bastard by Polizenes,
And I but dream'd it:—As you were past all shame,
(Those of your facts are so,) so past all truth:
Which to deny, concerns more than avails:

Thy brat hath been cast out, like to itself, No father owning it, (which is, indeed, More criminal in thee, than it,) so thou Shalt feel our justice; in whose easiest passage, Look for no less than death.

Her. Sir, spare your threats: The bug, which you would fright me with, I seek. To me can life be no commodity: The crown and comfort of my life, your favour, I do give lost; for I do feel it gone, But know not how it went: My second joy, And first-fruits of my body, from his presence,

Her. The emperor of Russia was my father : O, that he were alive, and here beholding His daughter's trial! that he did but see The flainess of my misery; yet with eyes Of pity, not revenge!

Re-enter Officers with Cleomenes and Dion. Off. You here shall swear upon this sword of justice,

That you, Cleomenes and Dion, have Been both at Delphos; and from thence have brought

This seal'd-up oracle, by the hand deliver'd Of great Apollo's priest; and that, since then, You have not dar'd to break the holy seal, Nor read the secrets in't.

Cleo. Dion. All this we swear.

Leon. Break up the seals, and read.

Offi. [Reads.] Hermione is chaste, Polixenes blameless, Camillo a true subject. Leontes a jed-loue tyrant, his innocent babe truly begoiten; and the king shall live without an heir, if that, which is lost, be not found.

Lords. Now blessed be the great Apollo! Her. Praised !

Leon. Heat thou read truth? Offi. Ay, my lard; even so As it is here set down.

Leon. There is no truth at all i'the oracle : The sessions shall proceed; this is mere falsehood.

Enter a Servant, hastily.

Serv. My lord the king, the king! Leon. What is the business ? Serv. O sir, I shall be hated to report it:

The prince your son, with mere conceit and fear Of the queen's speed, is gone.

My great profaneness 'gainst thine oracle !-I'll reconcile me to Polixenes ; New woo my queen ; recall the good Camillo ; Whom I proclaim a man of truth of mercy:
For, being transported by my jealousies
To bloody thoughts and to revenge, I chose Camillo for the minister, to poison
My friend Polixenes; which had been done,
But that the good mind of Camillo tardied My swift command, though I with death, and with Reward, did threaten and encourage him, Not doing it, and being done: he, most humane, And fill'd with honour, to my kingly guest Unclasp'd my practice; quit his fortunes here, Which you knew great; and to the certain hazard Of all incertainties himself commended, No richer than his honour :- How he glisters Thorough my rust! and how his piety Does my deeds make the blacker!

Re-enter Paulina.

Wo the while! O, cut my lace; lest my heart, cracking it, Break too!

1 Lord. What fit is this, good lady? Paul. What studied torments, tyrant, hast for me? What wheels? racks? fires? What flaying? boiling, In leads, or oils? what old, or newer torture Must I receive; whose every word deserves
To taste of thy most worst? Thy tyranny
Together working with thy jealousies,—
Fancies too weak for boys, too green and idle
For girls of nine!—O, think, what they have done,
And then run mad, indeed; stark mad! for all
Thy by-gone fooleries were but spices of it.
That thou betray'dst Polixenes, 'twas nothing;
That did but show thee of a fool incenstant; That did but show thee, of a fool, inconstant,
And damnable ungrateful: nor was't much,
Thou would'st have poison'd good Camillo's honour,
To have him kill a king; poor trespasses,
More monstrous standing by: whereof I reckon
The casting forth to crows thy baby daughter, To be or none, or little; though a devil Would have shed water out of fire, ere done't: Nor is't directly laid to thee, the death
Of the young prince; whose honourable thoughts
(Thoughts high for one so tender,) cleft the heart
That could conceive, a gross and foolish sire
Blemish'd his gracious dam: this is not, no, Laid to thy answer: But the last,-O, lords, When I have said, cry, wo!—the queen, the queen, The sweetest, dearest, creature's dead; and vengeance for't
Not dropp'd down yet.

nor oath,
Prevail not, go and see: if you can bring
Tincture, or lustre, in her lip, her eye,
Heat outwardly, or breath within, I'll serve you
As I would do the gods.—But, O thou tyrant!
Do not repent these things; for they are heavier
Than all thy woes can stir: therefore, betake thee

Pol. As thou lovest me, Camillo, wipe not out the rest of thy services, by leaving me now: the need I have of thee, thine own goodness bath made better not to have had thee, than thus to want thee: thou, having made me businesses, which none without thee can sufficiently manage, must either stay to execute them thyself, or take away with thee the very services thou hast done: which if I have not enough considered, (as too much I cannot,) to be more thankful to thee, shall be my study; and my profit therein, the heaping friend-ships. Of that fatal country, Sicilia, prytheospeak no more: whose very naming punishes me with the remembrance of that penitent, as thou call at him, and reconciled king, my brother; whose loss of his most precious queen, and children, are even now to be afresh lamented. Com. I have heard, sir, of such a man, who hath a daughter of most rare note: the report of her is extended more, than can be thought to begin from such a cottage.

Pol. That's likewise part of my intelligence.
But, I fear the angle that plucks our son thither. Thou shalt accompany us to the place: where we will, not appearing what we are, have some question with the shepherd; from whose simplicity, I think it not uneasy to get the cause of my son's resort thither. I so much thirst to see.

And, through him, what is nearest to him, which is
Your gracious self; embrace but my direction,
(If your more ponderous and settled project
May suffer alteration,) on mine honour
I'll point you where you shall have such receiving
As shall become your highness; where you may

There's no disjunction to be made, but by,
As heavens forefend! your ruin:) marry her;
And (with my best endeavours, in your absence,)

And bring him up to liking.

Flo. How, Camillo, May this, almost a miracle, be done? That I may call thee something more than man, And, after that, trust to thee.

Cam. Have you thought.

But undergo this flight;—Make for Sicilia;
And there present yourself, and your fair princess,

She shall be habited, as it becomes
The partner of your bed. Methinks, I see

Do their best office, if they can but stay you
Where you'll be loath to be: Besides, you know,
Prosperity's the very bond of love;
Whose fresh complexion and whose heart together
Affliction alters.

Per. One of these is true:

I think, affliction may subdue the cheek,

But not take in the mind.

Cam. Yea, say you so? There shall not, at your father's house, these seven years,

Be born another such.

Flo. My good Camillo, She is as forward of her breeding, as Pthe rear of birth.

Cam. I cannot say, 'tis pity

To most that teach.

Per. Your pardon, sir, for this; I'll blush you thanks.

Flo. My prettiest Perdita.—
But, O, the thorns we stand upon!—Camillo,— Preserver of my father, now of me;
The medicine of our house!—how shall we do?
We are not furnish'd like Bohemia's son;
Nor shall appear in Sicily—

Cam. My lord,
Fear none of this: I think, you know, my fortunes
Do all lie there: it shall be so my care
To have you royally appointed, as if
The scene you play, were mine. For instance, sir,

That you may know you shall not want,—one word.

ACT V.

SCENE I .- Sicilia. A room in the palace of Leontes. Enter Leontes, Cicomenes, Dion, Panline, and others.

Cles. Sir, you have done enough, and have perform'd

Whilst I remember Leon.

(5) The hottest day foretold in the almanae. (6) Being handsomely bribed.

Paul. True, too true, my lord: And all eyes else dead coals i—fear faou no wife, If, one by one, you wedded all the world, Or, from the all that are, took something good, To make a perfect woman; she, you kill'd, Never to marry, but by my free leave?

Novel he women is the superior of the leave? Would be unparallel'd.

Lean I think so. She I kill'd ? I did so: but thou strik'st me Sorely, to say I did; it is as bitter Upon thy tongue, as in my thought: Now, good now,

Say so but seldom. Not at all, good lady: You might have spoken a thousand things that would Have done the time more benefit, and grac'd Your kindness better.

Paul. You are one of those. Would have him wed again.

If you would not so, Dion. You pity not the state, nor the remembrance Of his most sovereign dame; consider little, What dangers, by his highness fail of issue, May drop upon his kingdom, and devour Incertain lookers-on. What were more holy, Than to rejoice, the former queen is well?"
What holier, than,—for royalty's repair, For present comfort and for future good,-To bless the bed of majesty again With a sweet fellow to't?

There is none Worthy, Paul. Respecting her that's gone. Besides, the gods Will have fulfill'd their secret purposes: For has not the divine Apollo said, Is't not the tenor of his oracle, That king Leontes shall not have an heir, Till his lost child be found? which, that it shall, Is all as monstrous to our human reason, As my Antigonus to break his grave, And come again to me; who, on my life, Did perish with the infant. "Tis your counsel, My lord should to the heavens be contrary, Oppose against their will.—Care not for issue; To Leonter.

The crown will find an heir: Great Alexander Left his to the worthlest; so his successor Was like to be the best.

Leon Good Pauling,-Who has the memory of Hermione, I know, in honour, -0, that ever I Had squar'd me to thy counsel !-- then, even now, I might have look'd upon my queen's full eyes; Have taken tressure from her lips,-

And left them Paul. More rich, for what they yielded.

Leon. Thou speak'st truth, No more such wives; therefore, no wife: one worse, And better us'd, would make her sainted spirit Again possess her corpse; and, on this stage (Where we offenders now appear,) soul-vex'd, Begin, And why to me?

Had she such power, She had just cause.

She had; and would incense me Leon To murder her I married.

Paul. I should so: Were I the ghost that walk'd, I'd bid you mark Her eye; and tell me, for what dull part in't You chose her: then I'd shrick, that even your earn Should rift's to hear me; and the words that follow'd Should be, Romeniber mine.

oath.

Cleo. You tempt him over-much.

Unless another, As like Hermione as is her picture, Affronts his eye.

Good madam,-Cleo. Paul. I have done. Yet, if my lord will marry,—if you will, sir, No remedy, but you will; give me the office To choose you a queen: she shall not be so young As was your former; but she shall be such, As, walk'd your first queen's ghost, it should take joy To see her in your arms.

Leon My true Paulina. We shall not marry, till thou bidd'at us. Paul. Shall be, when your first queen's again in breath; Never till then.

Enter s Gentleman.

Gent. One that gives out himself prince Florisel, Son of Polizenes, with his princess, (she The fairest I have yet beheld,) desires access

To your high presence What with him? he comes not Leon. Like to his father's greatness: his approach, So out of circumstance, and sudden, tells us, 'Tis not a visitation fram'd, but forc'd By need, and accident. What train? But few, Gent.

And those but mean.

Leon. His princess, say you, with him? Gent. Ay: the most peerless piece of earth, I think, That e'er the sun shone bright on.

O Hemalone, Poul. As every present time doth boast itself

Unfurnish me of reason.—They are come.

Re-enter Cleomenes, with Florizel, Perdita, and attendants.

Your mother was most true to wedlock, prince;
For she did print your royal father off,
Conceiving you: Were I but twenty-one,
Your father's image is so hit in you,
His very air, that I should call you brother;
As I did him; and speak of something, wildly
By us perform'd before. Most dearly welcome!
And your fair princess, goddess!—O, alas!
I lost a couple, that 'twixt heaven and earth
Might thus have stood, begetting wonder, as
You, gracious couple, do! and then I lost
(All mine own folly,) the society,
Amity too, of your brave father; whom,
Though bearing misery, I desire my life Your mother was most true to wedlock, prince; Though bearing misery, I desire my life Once more to look upon.

Flo. By his command Have I here touch'd Sicilia; and from him Give you all greetings, that a king, at friend, Can send his brother: and, but infirmity seiz'd His wish'd ability, he had himself The lands and waters 'twixt your throne and his Mcasur'd, to look upon you; whom he loves (He bade me say so,) more than all the sceptres, And those that bear them, living.

Leon. O, my brother, (Good gentleman!) the wrongs I have done thee, stir Afresh within me; and these thy offices, So rarely kind, are as interpreters Of my behind-hand slackness !- Welcome hither, As is the spring to the earth. And hath he too Expos'd this paragon to the fearful usage (At least, ungentle,) of the dreadful Neptune, To greet a man, not worth her pains; much less The adventure of her person? Flo. Good my lord,

She came from Libya. Where the warlike Smalus, Leon. That noble honour'd lord, is fear'd, and lov'd?

Flo. Most royal sir, from thence; from him, whose daughter His tears proclaim'd his, parting with her: thence (A prosperous south-wind friendly,) we have cross'd, To execute the charge my father gave me,

For visiting your highness: My best train I have from your Sicilian shores dismiss'd; Who for Bohemia bend, to signify Not only my success in Libya, sir, But my arrival, and my wife's, in safety Here, where we arc.

The blessed gods Leon. Purge all infection from our air, whilst you Do climate here! You have a holy father, A graceful' gentleman; against whose person, So sacred as it is, I have done sin: For which the heavens, taking angry note, Have left me issueless; and your father' bless'd (As he from heaven merits it,) with you, Worthy his goodness. What might I have been, Might I a son and daughter now have look'd on,

Such goodly things as you?

Bohemia greets you from himself, by me: Desires you to attach his son; who has (His dignity and duty both cast off,) Fled from his father, from his hopes, and with A shepherd's daughter. Where's Bohemia? speak.

Leon.

Lord. Here in the city; I now came from him. I speak amazedly; and it becomes My marvel, and my message. To your court Whiles he was hast'ning (in the chase, it seems, Of this fair couple,) meets he on the way The father of this seeming lady, and Her brother, having both their country quitted With this young prince.

Camillo has betray'd me; Flo. Whose honour, and whose honesty, till now, Endur'd all weathers. Lay't so, to his charge, Lord.

He's with the king your father. Who? Camillo? Leon. Lord. Camillo, sir; I spake with him; who now Has these poor men in question.3 Never saw I Wretches so quake : they kneel, they kiss the carth; (Which waits upon wern time,) hath something Forswear themselves as often as they speak : Bohemia stops his ears, and threatens them With divers deaths in death.

Per. O, my poor father!-The heaven sets spics upon us, will not have Our contract celebrated.

You are married ? Leon. Flo. We are not, sir, nor are we like to be; The stars, I see, will kiss the valleys first:— The odds for high and low's alike.

Leon My lord, Is this the daughter of a king?

She is,

When once she is my wife. Leon. That once, I see, by your good father's speed,

Will come on very slowly. I am sorry, Most sorry, you have broken from his liking, Where you were tied in duty: and as sorry, Your choice is not so rich in worth as beauty, That you might well enjoy her.

Dear, look up: · Flo. Though fortune, visible an enemy, Should chase us, with my father; power no jot Hath she, to change our loves.—Beseech you, sr, Remember since you ow'd no more to time Than I do now: with thought of your affections, Step forth mine advocate; at your request,
My father will grant precious things, as trifles.

Leon. Would he do so, I'd beg your precious mistress, Which he counts but a trifle. Paul. Sir, my liege, Your eye hath too much youth in't: not a month

'Fore your queen died, she was more worth such gazes

Than what you look on now.

I thought of her, Lcon. Even in these looks I made.—But your petition To Florized

Is yet unanswer'd: I will to your father; Your honour not o'erthrown by your desires, I am a friend to them, and you: upon which errand I now go toward him; therefore, follow me,

Unto a woman, happy but for me,
And by me too, had not our hap been bad.
With her I liv'd in joy; our wealth increas'd,
By prosperous voyages I often made
To Epidamnum, till my factor's death;
And he (great care of goods at random left)
Drew me from kind embracements of my spow From whom my absence was not six med Before herself (almost at fainting, worder The pleasing punishment that women bear;) Had made provision for her following me, And soon, and safe, arrived where I was. There she had not been long, but she became A joyful mother of two goodly sons; And, which was strange, the one so like the other, As could not be distinguish'd but by names. That very hour, and in the self-same inn, A poor mean woman was delivered Of such a burden, male twins, both alike: Those, for their parents were exceeding poor I bought, and brought up to attend my sons. My wife, not meanly proud of two such boys, Made daily motions for our home return: Unwilling I agreed; alas, too soon. We came aboard: A league from Epidamnum had we sail'd, Before the always-wind-obeying deep Gave any tragic instance of our harm: But longer did we not retain much hope; For what obscured light the heavens did grant Did but convey unto our fearful minds A doubtful warrant of immediate death; And piteous plainings of the pretty babes, That mourn'd for fashion, ignorant what to fear, Forc'd me to seek delays for them and me. And this it was, -- for other means was none. The sailors sought for safety by our boat, And left the ship, then sinking ripe, to us: My wife, more careful for the latter born, Had fasten'd him unto a small spare mast, Such as sea-faring men provide for storms; To him one of the other twins was bound, Whilst I had been like heedful of the other. The children thus dispos'd, my wife and I,

Fixing our eyes on whom our care was fix'd. Fasten'd ourselves at either end the most ; And floating straight, obedient to the stream, Were carried towards Corinth, as we thought. At length the sun, gazing upon the earth, Dispers'd those vapours that offended us; And, by the benefit of his wish'd light, The seas wax'd calm, and we discovered Two ships from far making amain to us, Of Corinth that, of Epidaurus this: But ere they came,—O, let me say no more!

Which being violently borne upon, Our helpful ship was splitted in the midst, So that, in this unjust divorce of us, Fortune had left to both of us alike What to delight in, what to sorrow for. Her part, poor soul I seeming as burdened With leaser weight, but not with lesser wo, Was carried with more speed before the wind; And in our sight they three were taken up By fishermen of Corinth, as we thought. At length, unother ship had seized on us ; And, knowing whom it was their hap to save. Give helpful welcome to their shipwreck'd guests; And would have reft! the fishers of their prey, Had not their bark been very slow of sail, And therefore homeward did they bend their course. If I return, I shall be post indeed: For she will score your fault upon my pate. Methinks, your maw, like mine, should be your clock,

My mistress, and her sister, stay for you.

Ant. S. Now, as I am a Christian, answer me,
In what safe place you have bestow'd my money; Or I shall break that merry sconce! of yours, That stands on tricks when I am undisposed : Where is the thousand marks thou hadst of me?

Dro. E. I have some marks of yours upon my slave, hast thou?

Dro. E. Your worship's wife, my mistress at the Phoenix

She that doth fast, till you come home to dinner, And prays, that you will hie you home to dinner.

Ant. S. What, wilt thou flout me thus unto my

ACT IV.

SCENE I.-The same. Bater a Merchant, Angelo, and an Officer.

Mer. You know, since Pentecost the sum is due, And since I have not much importun'd you; Nor now I had not, but that I am bound To Persia, and want guilders! for my voyage: Therefore make present satisfaction, Or I'll attact you by this officer.

Or I'll attach you by this officer.

Ang. Even just the sum, that I do owe to you, Is growing to me by Antipholus:
And, in the instant that I met with you,
He had of me a chain; at five o'clock,
I shall receive the money for the same:
Pleaseth you walk with me down to his house,
I will discharge my bond, and thank you too.

Enter Antipholus of Ephesus, and Dromio of Ephesus.

Off. That labour may you save; see where he comes.

Ans. E. While I go to the goldsmith's house, go

And buy a rope's end; that will I bestow
Among my wife and her confederates,
For locking me out of my doors by day.—
But soft, I see the goldsmith:—get thee gone;
Buy thou a rope, and bring it home to me.

Dro. E. I buy a thousand pound a year! I buy a rope! [Exit Dromio. Ant. E. A man is well holp up, that trusts to

you:

I promised your presence, and the chain;
But neither chain, nor goldsmith, came to me:
Belike, you thought our love would last too long,
If it were chain'd together; and therefore came not.
Ang. Saving your merry humour, here's the note,
How much your chain weighs to the utmost carat;
The fluences of the gold and chargeful fashion.

Ang. Saving your merry humour, here's the note, How much your chain weighs to the utmost carat; The flueness of the gold, and chargeful fashion; Which doth amount to three odd ducats more Than I stand debted to this gentleman; I pray you, see him presently discharged, For he is bound to see, and stays but for it.

Ant. E. I am not furnish'd with the present money;

Besides, I have some business in the town:
Good signior, take the stranger to my house,
And with you take the chain, and bid my wife
Distance the sum on the receipt thereof;
Parchance, I will! be there as soon as you.

(1) A coin. (8) Ascerting. (5) I shall.

Mer. The hour steads on; I pray you, sir, despatch.

Ang. You hear, how he importunes me; the chain—

Ant. E. Why, give it to my wife, and fetch your money.

Ang. Come, come, you know, I gave it you even now;
Either and the chain, or send me by some taken.

Ant. E. Fie! now you run this humour out of breath; Come, where's the chain? I pray you let me see it. Mer. My business cannot brook this dalliance;

Good sir, say, whe'r you'll answer me, or no; if not, I'll leave him to the officer. Ant. E. I answer you! What should I answer

Ang. The money, that you owe me for the chain.
Ant. E. I owe you none, till I receive the chain.
Ang. You know, I gave it you half an hour since.
Ant. E. You gave me none; you wrong me mach to say so.

Ang. You wrong me more, sir, in denying it:
Consider, how it stands upon my credit.

Mer. Well, officer, arrest him at my suit.

Off. I do; and charge you in the duke's name, to obey me.

Ang. This touches me in reputation:—

Will you go with me? We'll mend our dinner here. Dro. S. Master, if you do expect spoon-meat, bespeak a long spoon.

dut. S. Why, Dromio?

Dro. S. Marry, he must have a long spoon, that must cat with the devil.

Ant. S. Avoid then, fiend! what tell'st thou me of supping?

Thou art, as you are all, a sorecress: I sonjure thee to leave me, and be gone.

A nut, a cherry-stone; but she, more covetous, Would have a chain. Master, be wise; and if you give it her, Too deril will shake her chain, and fright us with it. Cour. I pray you, sir, my ring, or else the chain ; hope, you do not mean to cheat me so.

Avaunt, thou witch! Come, Dromio.

let us go,

dut. S. What gold is this? what Adam dost that you know. [Excess Ant. said Dro. 3. Not that Adam, that kept the person; he that you know. [Excess Ant. said Dro. Coss. Now, out of dosist, Antipholes is said, at that Adam, that keeps the prison; he that goes like would be never so demons himself:

A ring he hath of mine, worth forty densis, And for the same he promised me a chain? Both one, and other, he denies me now. The reason that I gather he is mad, (Besides this present instance of his rage,)

My way is now, to hie home to his house, And tell his wife, that, being hunstic, life rush'd into my house, and took perforce My ring away: This course I fittest choose For forty ducate is too much to loss.

SCENE IV .- The same. Enter Antipholes of Ephrou, and an Officer.

dnt. E. Fear me not, man, I will not break away; I'll give thee, ere I leave thee, so much money To warrant thee, as I am 'rested for. My wife is in a wayward mood to-day; And will not lightly trust the messenger, That I should be attach'd in Ephesse: I tell you, 'twill sound herebly in her care. -

Enter Dromio of Ephema, with a rope's end.

Here comes my man; I think, he brings the money. How now, sir? have you that I sent you for? Dro. E. Here's that, I warrant you, will pay them all.

Ant. E. But where's the money?

Dro. E. Why, sir, I gave the money for the rope.

Ant. E. Five hundred duests, villain, for a rope? Dro. E. I'll serve you, sir, five hundred at the rate. And. E. To what end did I bid thee his thee home? Dro. E. To a rope's end, sir; and to that end

Ant. E. And to that end, sir, I will welcome Beating him. Off. Good sir, be patient.

Dro. E. Nay, 'tis for me to be patient; I am in adversity.

Off. Good now, hold thy tongue.

Dro. E. Nay, rather persuade him to hold his heads.

Ant. E. Thou whoreson, senseless villain? Dro. E. I would I were senseless, mr, that I might not feel your blows. Ant. E. Thou art sensible in nothing but blows, and so is an ass.

Dro. E. I am an ass, indeed; you may prore it by my long ears. I have serv'd him from the hour of nativity to this instant, and have nothing at his hands for my service, but blows: when I am cold, Cour. dag. Of very reverend reputation, air, Of credit infinite, highly belov'd, Second to none that lives here in the city; His word might bear my wealth at any time. Mer. Speak softly: yonder, as I think, he walks.

Enter Antipholus and Dromio of Syracuse.

Ang. Tis so; and that self chain about his neck, Which he forswore, most monstrously, to have. Good sir, draw near to me, I'll speak to him. Bignior Antipholus, I wonder much That you would put me to this shame and trouble; And not without some scandal to yourself, With circumstance, and oaths, so to deny This chain, which now you wear so openly: Besides the charge, the shame, imprisonment You have done wrong to this my honest friend; Who, but for staying on our controversy,
Who, but for staying on our controversy,
Had hoisted sail, and put to sea to-day:
This chain you had of me, can you deny it?
Ant. S. I think, I had: I never did deny it.
Mer. Yea, that you did, sir; and forswors it too.
Ant. S. Who heard me to deny it, or forswear it?
Mer. These care of mine, they knowest it?

Fie on thee, wretch! 'tis pity, that thou liv'st To walk where any honest men resort.

Ant. S. Thou art a villain, to impeach me thus: I'll prove mine honour, and mine honesty, Against thee presently, if thou dar'st stand,

Mer. I dare, and do defy thee for a villain. They draw.

Enter Adriana, Luciana, Courtexan, and others.

-fidr. Hold, burt him not, for God's sake; he is mad:

Some get within him," take his sword away : Bind Dromio too, and beat them to my house.

Till I have brought him to his will Dro. S. Run, master, run; for God's sake, take Or lose my labour in assaying it.

Bular the Abbons.

Abb. Be quiet, people; Wherefore throng you hither?

And bear him home for his recovery.

Ang. I knew, he was not in his perfect wits.

Who give their eyes the liberty of gazing.

Which of these sorrows is he subject to?

Adv. To none of these, except it he the last:

Namely, some love, that drew him off from home.

Abb. You should for that have reprehended him.

Adv. Why, so I did.

Sh. Av. but not rough enough.

Abb. Ay, but not rough enough.

Adr. As roughly, as my modesty would let me. Abb. Haply, in private. And in amemblics too. Adr.

Abb. Ay, but not enough. Adv. It was the copy of our conference: In bed, he slept not for my urging it: At board, he led not for my urging it:

Alone, it was the subject of my thome; In company, I often glanced it; Still did I tell him it was vile and bad.

Abb. And thereof came it, that the man was mad: The venom clamours of a jealous woman Poison more deadly than a mad dog's tooth It seems his sleeps were hindered by thy railing; And thereof comes it that his head is light. Thou say'st his meat was sauc'd with thy upbraid-

And what's a fever but a fit of madness?
Thou say'st, his sports were hinder'd by thy brawls:
Sweet recreation barr'd, what doth ensue,
But moody and dull melancholy,
(Kinsman to grim and comfortless despair;)

And, at her heels, a huge infectious troop Mer. Yes, that you did, sir; and lorswore it too.

Ant. S. Who heard me to deny it, or forswear it?

Mer. These cars of mine, theu knowest, did hear thee:

To be disturb'd, would mad or man, or beast; The consequence is then, thy jealous fits Have scared thy husband from the use of wits.

Luc. She never reprehended him but mildly, When he demeaned himself rough, rude, and wildly.

Why bear you these rebukes, and answer not? ofdr. She did betray me to my own reproof.---Good people, enter, and lay hold on him.

Abb. No, not a creature enters in my house.
Adr. Then, let your servants bring my husband forth. Abb. Neither; he took this place for sanctuary, And it shall privilege him from your hands, Till I have brought him to his wits again, Adr. I will attend my husband, be his nurse, Diet his sickness, for it is my office,

(4) Theme.

And therefore let me have him home with me. Abs. Bespetient; for I will not let him stir, Till I have us'd the approved means I have, With wholesome syrups, drugs, and holy prayers, To make of him a formal man again: It is a branch and parcels of mine oath, A charitable duty of my order; Therefore depart, and leave him here with me.

Adr. I will not bence and leave my husband here And ill doth it beseem your holiness To separate the husband and the wife.

Abb. Be quiet and depart, thou shalt not have him. Exit Abbess

Luc. Complain unto the duke of this indignity. Adv. Come, go; I will fall prostrate at his feet,
And ever as it blazed, they threw on him
And never rise until my tears and prayers
Great pails of puddled mire to queuch the hair; Have won his grace to come in person hither,

And take perforce my husband from the abbess.

Mer. By this, I think, the dial points at five:

Anon, I am sure, the duke himself in person Comes this way to the melancholy vale, The place of death and sorry' execution, Behind the ditches of the abbey here.

Ang. Upon what cause?

Mer. To see a reverend Syracusan merchant, Who put unluckily into this bay Against the laws and statutes of this town, Beheaded publicly for his offence.

Enter Duke attended; Egeon bare-keaded; with the Headsman and other officers.

Duke. Yet once again proclaim it publicly, If any friend will pay the sum for him, He shall not die, so much we tender him. Adv. Justice, most mared duke, against the abbon!

Duke. She is a virtuous and a reverend lady; It cannot be, that she bath done thee wrong.

Adv. May it please your grace, Antipholus, my husband. Whom I made lord of me and all I had, At your important letters,—this ill day A most outrageous fit of madness took him ; That desperately he hurried through the street (With him his bondman, all as mad as he,) Doing displessure to the citizens By rushing in their houses, bearing thence Rings, lewels, any thing his rage did like. Once did I get him bound, and sent him home, Whilst to take order's for the wrongs I went, That here and there his fury had committed. Anon, I wot not by what strong escape, He broke from those that had the guard of him; And, with his mad attendant and himself, And, what he must see that an industry.

Each one with ireful passion, with drawn swords,
Met us again, add, madly bent on us,
Chas'd us away; till raising of more aid,
We came again to bind them: then they fied
Into this abbey, whither we pursued them;
And here the abbess shuts the gates on us, And will not suffer us to fetch him out, Nor send him forth, that we may bear him hence. Therefore, most gracious duke, with thy command Therefore, most gracious duke, with thy command, I this the madman justly chargeth them.

With halberds.

Adr. Ah me, it is my husband i Witness you, That he is borne about invisible: Even now we hous'd him in the abbey here; And now he's there, past thought of human reason.

Enter Antipholus and Dromio of Ephenu.

Ant. E. Justice, most gracious duke, ab, grant me justice!

Even for the service that long since I did thee, When I bestrid thee in the wars, and took Deep scars to save thy life; even for the blood That then I lost for thee, now great me justice.

Æge. Unless the fear of death doth make me dote, see my son Antipholus and Dromio.

Ant. E. Justice, sweet prince, against that woman there.

She whom thou gav'at to me to be my wife; That hath abused and dishonour'd me, Even in the strength and height of injury!

Beyond imagination is the wrong, That she this day bath shameless thrown on me. Duke. Discover how, and thou shalt find me just. Ant. E. This day, great duke, she shut the doors upon me,

While she with harlots' feasted in my house. Duke. A grievous fault: Say, woman, didst. thou so?

Adr. No, my good lord ;-myself, he, and my sister,

To-day did dine together: So befall my soul, As this is false, he burdens me withal!

Luc. Ne'er may I look on day, nor sleep on night, But she tells to your highness simple truth!

Ang. O perjur'd woman! They are both for-

Ant. E. My liege, I am edvised what I say;

(8) f. c. Cuts his hair close.

(9) Harlot was a term of reproach applied to Tong men as well as to wantons among cheals a women.

That goldsmith there, were as not packed with ner, Could witness it, for he was with me then;
Who parted with me to go setches chain,
Promising to bring it to the Porcupine, Where Balthazar and I did dine together. Our dinner done, and he not coming thither, I went to seek him: in the street I met him: And in his company, that gentleman. There did this perjur'd goldsmith awear me down,

That I this day of him receiv'd the chain, Which, God he knows, I saw not: for the which, He did arrest me with an officer. I did obey; and sent my peasant home For certain ducats: he with none return'd. Then fairly I bespoke the officer, To go in person with me to my house. By the way we met My wife, her sister, and a rabble more Of vile confederates; along with them They brought one Pinch; a hungry lean-fac'd villain, A mere anatomy, a mountebank, A thread-bare juggler, and a fortune-teller; A needy, hollow-cy'd, sharp-looking wretch, A living dead man: this pernicious slave, Forsooth, took on him as a conjuror; And, gazing in mine eyes, feeling my pulse, And with no face, as 'twere, outfacing me, Cries out, I was possess'd: then all together They fell upon me, bound me, bore me thence; And in a dark and dankish vault at bome There left me and my man, both bound together; Till, gnawing with my teeth my bonds in sunder, I gain'd my freedom, and immediately Ran hither to your grace; whom I beseech To give me ample satisfaction him : That he dined not at home, but was lock'd out.

Duke. But had he such a chain of thee, or no? Ang. He had, my lord; and when he ran in here, These people saw the chain about his neck.

Heard you confess you had the chain of him, After you first forswore it on the mart, And, thereupon, I drew my sword on you;

And then, you fled into this abbey here, From whence, I think, you are come by miracle. Ant. E. I never came within these abbey walls, Nor ever didst thou draw thy sword on me: I never saw the chain, so help me heaven!

And this is false, you burden me withal.

Duke. Why, what an intricate impeach is this!

I think, you all have drank of Circe's cup. If here you hous'd him, here he would have been; If he were mad, he would not plead so coldly:—

Cour. As sure, my liege, as I do see your grace.

Æge. I am sure, you both of you remember me. Dro. E. Ourselves we do remember, sir, by you; For lately we were bound as you are now

You are not Pinch's patient, are you, sir? Ege. Why look you strange on me? you know me well.

Ant. E. I never saw you in my life, till now. Ege. Oh! grief hath chang'd me, since you saw me last; And careful hours, with Time's deformed hand, Have written strange defeature!s in my face: But tell me yet, dost thou not know my voice? Ant. E. Neither.

Dromio, nor thou? Æge. Dro. E. No, trust me, sir, nor I.

Ege. I am sure, thou dost.

Dro. E. Ay, sir? but I am sure, I do not; and whatsoever a man denies, you are now bound to believe him.

Æge. Not know my voice! O, time's extremity! Hast thon so crack'd and splitted my poor tongue, In seven short years, that here my only son Knows not my feeble key of untun'd cares? Though now this grained' face of mine be hid In sap-consuming winter's drizzled snow, And all the conduits of my blood fraze up; Yet hath my night of life some memory For these deep shames and great indignities.

Ang. My lord, in truth, thus far I witness with him;

My wasting lamp some fading glimmer left, My dull deaf cars a little use to hear:

All these old witnesses (I cannot grr,)

Tell me, thou art my son Antipholus.
Ant. E. I never saw my father in my life. Æge. But seven years since, in Syracusa, boy, And the had, my lord; and which he ray in here, here people saw the chain about his neck.

Thou know'st, we parted: but, perhapa, my son,

Mer. Besides, I will be sworn, these ears of Thou sham'st to acknowledge me in misery.

Ant. E. The duke, and all that know me in the city, Can witness with me that it is not so;

ne'er saw Syracusa in my life. Duke. I tell thee, Syracusan, twenty years. Have I been patron to Antipholus.

During which time he ne'er saw Syracusa: I see, thy age and dangers make thee dote. Enter the Abbess, with Antipholus Syracusan, and Dromio Syracusan.

Abb. Most mighty duke, behold a man much wrong'd. [All gather to see him.

If here you hous'd min, most like you hous'd min, most like here you say, he dined at home: the goldsmith here Denies that saying:—Sirrah, what say you?

Dro. E. Sir, he dined with her there, at the Porcupine.

Porcupine.

Cour. He did; and from my finger snatch'd Dro. E. 1, sir, am Dromio; command him away.

Dro. E. 1, sir, am Dromio; pray, let me stay.

Ant. S. Ægeon, art thou not? or else his ghost?

Dro. S. O, my old master! who halt bound him Abb. Whoever bound him, I will loose his bonds.

Ege. If I dream not, thou art Æmili ;; If thou art she, tell me, where is that son That floated with thee on the fatal raft?

Abb. By men of Epidamnum, he, and I, And the twin Dromio, all were taken up; But, by and by rude fishermen of Corinth By force took Dromio and my son from them, And me they left with those of Endamnum; What then became of them, I cannot tell: I, to this fortune that you see me in.

Duke. Why, here begins his morning story right; 'These two Antipholus's, these two so like, And these two Dromlo's, one is samblanes, Besides her urging of her wreck at sea,— Senies her argaing of his fraction and the services are the parents to those children. Ani. E. Dromib, what stuff of mine hast thou embark'd?

Dro. S. Your goods, that lay at heat, sir, in the Centaur. Ant. S. He speaks to me; I am your master,

Dromie: Come, go with us: we'll look to that anon:

Embrace thy brother there, rejuice with him.
[Exempt Antipholus 8. and E. Adr. and Luc.

Dro. S. There is a fat friend at your master's house

That kitches d me for you to-day at dinner; She now shall be my sister, not my wife.

Dro. E. Methinks, you are my glass, and not my brother:

I see by you, I am a sweet-faced youth. Will you walk in to see their gossiping?

Bro. S. Not I, sir; you are my odder.

Dro. E. That's a question: how shall we try it?

Dro. S. We will draw cuts for the senior: till then, lead thou first.

Dro. E. Nay, then thus:
We came into the world, like brother and brother;
And now let's go hand in hand, not one before Exeunt.

On a vareful revision of the foregoing scenes, I do not heritate to pronounce them the composition of two very unequal writers. Shukspeare had industriedly a share in them; but that the entire play to the control of was no work of his, is an opinion which (as Binewas no work of his, is an opinion which (as Bhos-dict says) 'fire cannot melt out of me; I will die in it at the stake.' Thus, as we are informed by Aulus Gellius, Lib. III. Cap. 3. some plays were abso-lately ascribed to Plantus, which in truth had only been (refractatæ et expolitæ) retouches and policaed by him.

In this comedy we find more intricacy of plot than distinction of character; and our attention is itian distinction of character; and our attention is less forcibly enjaged, because who an guess in great incasure how the denouement will be brought about. Yet the subject appears to have been reluctantly dismissed, even in this last and numericosary scene; where the same intenders are continued, till the piewer of afferding essentialment in entirely lost. That you do lie so late?

Port. 'Faith, sir, we were caroning till the second cock: and drink, air, is a great provoke:

of three things.

Macd. What three things does drink especially provoke?

Porf. Marry, sir, nose-painting, sleep, and urine. Lechery, sir, it provokes, and unprovokes: it provokes the desire, but it takes away the performance. Therefore, much drink may be said to be an equivo-cator with lechery: it makes him, and it mars him; it sets him on, and it takes him off; it persuades him, and disheartens him; makes him stand to, and not stand to : in conclusion, equivocates him in a sleep, and, swing him the lie, leaves him.

Macd. 1 believe, drink gave thee the lie last night.

Enter Malcolm and Donalbain.

Don. What is amiss?

You are, and do not know it: Macb. The spring, the head, the fountain of your blood is stopp'd; the very source of it is stopp'd.

Macd. Your royal father's murder'd.

O, by whom? Mai. Len. Those of his chamber, as it seem'd, had

Their hands and faces were all budg'd with blood, So were their daggers, which, unwip'd, we found Upon their pillows:

They star'd, and were distracted; no man's life Was to be trusted with them.

Macb. O, yet I do repent me of my fary, That I did kill them.

Macd. Wherefore did you so?

Loyal and neutral, in a moment? No man: The expedition of my violent love Out-ran the pauser reason.—Here lay Duncan, And his gash'd stabs look'd like a breach in nature,
For ruin's wasteful entrance: there, the murderers, Steep'd in the colours of their trade, their daggers Unmannerly breech'd with gore: Who could refrain,

That had a heart to love, and in that he t Courage, to make his love known ?

(1) Covered with blood to their hilt.

Lady M. Halp me bence, bo f Macd. Look to the lady.

The life o'the building.

Mack. What is't you say 7 the life? That most may claim this argument for ours!

Don. What should be ap ken here, Where our fate, hid within an augre-hole, May rush, and seize us? Let's away; our tears Are not yet brew'd.

Mai. Nor our strong sorrow on

The foot of motion, Ban. Look to the lady:-Lady Macbeth is carried out.

And when we have our naked frailties hid. That suffer in exposure, let us meet,
And question this most bloody piece of work,
To know it further. Fears and scruples shake us:
In the great hand? of God I stand; and, thence,
Against the undivulged pretence? I fight
Of treasonous malice. Bell rings.

Macb.

And so do I. Aи. So all.

Mach. Let's briefly put on manly readiness. And meet i'the hall together. Well contented.

[Execut all but Mal, and Don. Mal. What will you do? Let's not consort with them:

To show an unfeit sorrow, is an office Which the false man does easy: I'll to England.

Don. To Ireland, I; our separated fortune Shall keep us both the safer: where we are, There's daggers in men's smiles; the near in blood, There's unggers...

The nearer bloody.
This murderous shaft that's shot, Hath not yet lighted; and our safest way Is, to avoid the aim. Therefore, to horse; And let us not be dainty of leave-taking, But shift away: There's warrant in that theft Which steals itself, when there's no mercy left.

Exeunt.

SCENE IV.—Without the easile. Enter Rosso and an Old Mas.

Old M. Threescore and ten I can remember well:

Within the volume of which time, I have seen Hours dreadful, and things strange; but this sore night

Hath trifled former knowings. Rosse. Ah, good father, Thou see'st, the heavens, as troubled with man's act, Threaten his bloody stage: by the clock, 'tis day, And yet dark night strangles the travelling lamp: Is't night's predominance, or the day's shame, That darkness does the face of earth intomit, When living light should kiss it?

'Tis unnattra! Old M. Even like the deed that's done. On Tuesday last,

Mucb. Who can be wise, amaz'd, temperate, and A falcon, tow'ring in her pride of place, furious, oyal and neutral, in a moment? No man:

Rosse. And Duncan's horses, (a thing most strange and certain,) Beauteous and swift, the minions of their race, Turn'd wild in nature, broke their stalls, flung out, Contending 'gainst obedience, as they would make War with mankind,

Old M. 'Tis said, they eat each other. Rosse. They did so; to the amazement of mine

That look'd upon't.—Here comes the good Macduff:-

How goes the world, sir, now?

bloody deed?

Macd. Those that Macbeth hath slain. Alas, the day! Rosse.

What good could they pretend?1
Macd. The They were suborn'd: Malcolm, and Donalbain, the king's two sons, Are stol'n away and fled; which puts upon them

Suspicion of the deed. Rosse. 'Gainst nature still: Thriftless ambition, that wilt ravin up Thine own life's means ! - Then 'tis most like,

The sovereignty will fall upon Macbeth. Macd. He is already nam'd; and gone to Scone,

To be invested. Rosse. Where is Duncan's body? Macd. Carried to Colmes-kill; The sacred storehouse of his predecessors,

And guardian of their bones. Will you to Scone? Rosse. Macd. No, cousin, I'll to Fife Well, I will thither.

Rosse. Macd. Well, may you see things well done there;—adieu!—

Lest our old robes sit easier than our new! Rosse. Father, farewell. Old M. God's benison go with you; and with

That would make good of bad, and friends of foes! [Exeunt.

ACT III.

SCENE I .- Fores. A room in the palace. Enter Banquo.

Ban. Thou hast it now, King, Cawdor, Glamis, all,

As the weird's women promis'd; and, I fear, Thou play'dst most foully for't: yet it was said, It should not stand in thy posterity; But that myself should be the root, and father Of many kings. If there come truth from them (As upon thee, Macbeth, their speeches shine,) Why, by the verities on thee made good, May they not be my oracles as well, And set me up in hope? But, hush; no more.

Enter Macbeth, as king; Lady Macbeth, as queen; Lenox, Rossc, Lords, Ladies, and attendants.

Macb. Here's our chief guest.

Last M. If he had been forgotte
It had been as a gap in our great feast,
And all things unbecoming.
Macb. To-night we hold a solemn supper, sir, If he had been forgotten,

And I'll request your presence. Let your highness

Command upon me; to the which, my duties Are with a most indissoluble tie For ever knit.

Macb. Ride you this afternoon?

Ban. Ban. Ay, my good lord. Macb. We should have else desir'd your good advice (Which still hath been both grave and prosperous,) In this day's council; but we'll take to-morrow. Is't fareyou ride?

> (2) Commit. 1) Intend to themselves.

(2) Nobleness. _ (4) For defiled.

s the world, sir, now?

Why, see you not?

Is't known who did this more than bloody deed?

Twist this and supper: go not my horse the better I must become a borrower of the night,

For a dark hour, or twain

There the the state of the night,

Ban. My lord, I will not.

Macb. We hear, our bloody cousins are bestow'd In England, and in Ireland; not confessing Their cruel parricide, filling their hearers With strange invention: But of that to-morrow; When, therewithal, we shall have cause of state, Craving us jointly. Hie you to horse: Adieu, Till you return at night. Goes Fleance with you? Ban. Ay, my good lord: our time does call upon us.

Macb. I wish your horses swift, and sure of foot; And so I do commend2 you to their backs. Farewell .-[Exit Banque.

Let every man be master of his time Till seven at night; to make society The sweeter welcome, we will keep ourself
Till supper-time alone: while then, God be with you.
[Exeunt Lady Macbeth, Lords, Ladies, &c.

Sirrah, a word: Attend those men our pleasure?

Atten. They are, my lord, without the palace-gate

gate

Macb. Bring them before us.—[Exit Atten.]

To be thus, is nothing;

To be thus, is nothing; But to be safely thus :- Our fears in Banquo Stick deep; and in his royalty of nature Reigns that, which would be fear'd: 'Tis much he dares; And, to that dauntless temper of his mind He hath a wisdom that doth guide his valour To act in safety. There is none, but he, Whose being I do fear: and, under him,

My genius is rebuk'd; as, it is said,
Mark Antony's was by Cæsar. He chid the sisters,
When first they put the name of king upon me, And bade them speak to him; then, prophet-like, They hail'd him father to a line of kings: Upon my head they placed a fruitless crown, And put a barren sceptre in my gripe, Thence to be wrench'd with an unlineal hand, No son of mine succeding. If it be so, For Banquo's issue have I fil'd' my mind; For them the gracious Duncan have I murder'd; Put rancours in the vessel of my peace Only for them; and mine eternal jewel Given to the common enemy of man, To make them kings, the seed of Banquo kings! Rather than so, come, fate, into the list, And champion me to the utterance!

Re-enter Attendant, with two Murderers.

Now to the door, and stay there till we call. [Exit Attendant.

Was it not yesterday we spoke together?

1 Mur. It was, so please your highness.

Macb.

Well then, now.

there ?-

Have you consider'd of my speeches? Know That it was he, in the times past, which held you So under fortune; which, you thought, had been Our innocent self: this I made good to you In our last conference; pass'd in probatione with you,

How you were borne in hand; how cross'd; the instruments;

Who wrought with them; and all things else, that might,

(6) Proved. (7) Deluded.

To half a soul, and a notion craz'd,

Say, Thus did Banque. Say, Thus did Banquo.

1 Mar.

You made it known to us.

Macb. I did so; and went further, which is now! It is concluded:—Banquo, thy soul's flight.

Our point of second meeting. Do you find

If it find heaven, must find it out to-night. [Exc. Your patience so predominant in your nature, That you can let this go? Are you so gospell'd, To pray for that good man, and for his issue, Whose heavy hand hath bow'd you to the grave, And beggard yours for ever ?

1 Mur. We are man, my liege. Mach. Ay, in the catalogue ye go for men;

As houses, and greyhouses, mongreis, spaniels, For a few words. curs,

Shoughs, water-rugs, and demi-wolves, are cleped<sup>a</sup>
All by the name of dogs: the valued file

Now, if you have a station in the file, And not in the worst rank of manhood, say it; And I will put that business in your bosoms, Whose execution takes your enemy off; Grappies you to the heart and leve of us Who wear our health but sickly in his life, Which in his death were perfect.

₹ Mur. I am one, my liege, Whom the vile blows and buffets of the world Have so incens'd, that I am reckless' what I do, to spite the world.

1 Mar. And I another, So weary with disasters, tugg'd' with fortune, That I would set my life on any chance, To mend it, or be rid on't.

Both of you Mach. Know, Banquo was your enemy.

z Mur. True, my lord. Mach. So is he mine: and in such bloody dis-tance.

That every minute of his being thrusts Against my near'st of life: And though I could With bare-fac'd power sweep him from my sight, And bid my will avouch it; yet I must not, For cortain friends that are both his and mine, Whose loves I may not drop, but wail his fall Whom I myself struck down: and thence it is, That I to your assistance do make love; Masking the business from the common eye, For sundry weighty reasons.

2 Mar. Perform what you command us.

I Mur. Though our lives—Maco. Your spirits shine through you. Within this hour, at most, I will advise you where to plant yourselves.

Acquaint you with the perfect spy o'the time,
The moment on't; for't must be done to-night,
And something from the palace; always thought
That I require a clearness: And with him, (To leave no rubs, nor botches, in the work,) Fleance his son, that keeps him company, Whose absence is no less material to me Than is his father's, must embrace the fate Of that dark hour. Resolve yourselves apart;

SCENE II .- The same. Another room. Lady Marbeth, and a Servant.

Lady M. Is Banquo gone from court? Serv. Ay, madam, but returns again to-night.

Lady M. Say to the king, I would attend his leisure [ErlL Serv. Madam, I will. Nought's had, all's spent, Lady M.

Where our desire is got without content: Tis safer to be that which we destroy Than, by destruction, dwell in doubtful joy.

Enter Macbeth.

How now, my lord? why do you keep alone, Of sorriest? fancies your companions making? Using those thoughts, which should indeed have died With them they think on? Things without remedy, Should be without regard: what's done, is done. Macb. We have scotch'd the snake, not kill'd it; She'll close, and be herself; whilst our poor malics Remains in danger of her former tooth, But let .

The frame of things disjoint, both the worlds suffer, Ere we will eat our meal in fear, and sleep in the affliction of these terrible dreams, That shake us nightly: Better be with the dead, Whom we, to gain our place, have sent to peace, Than on the torture of the mind to lie In restless ecstasy. 10 Duncan is in his grave; After life's fitful fever, he sleeps wall; Treason has done his worst: nor steel, nor poison, Malice domestic, foreign levy, nothing, Can touch him further? Lady M. Come on;

Gentle my lord, sleek o'er your rugged looks : Be bright and jovial 'mong your guests to night. Mach. So shall I, love; and so, I pray, be you: Let your remembrance apply to Banque; Present him eminence, 11 both with aye and tongue; Unsafe the while, that we Must lave our honours in these flattering streams; And make our faces vizards to our bearta.

Lady M. You must leave this.

Macb. O, full of scorpions is my mind, ear wife!

We shall, my lord, Thou know at, that Banquo, and his Fleance, lives. Lady M. But in them nature acopy a not eterne. 12 Mach. There's comfort yet; they are assailage; Then be thou jocund: Ere the bat hath flown

His cloister'd flight; ere, to black Hecate's summons,

Hath rung night's yawning peal, there shall be done A deed of dreadful note.

What's to be done? Lady M. Mach. Be innocent of the knowledge, dearest chuck,14 derers.

1 Mur. But who did bid thee join with us? Macbeth.

2 Mur. He needs not our mistrust; since he delivers

Our offices, and what we have to do,

. To the direction just. 1 Mur. Then stand with us. The west yet glimmers with some streaks of day: Now spurs the lated traveller apace,

To gain the timely inn; and near approaches The subject of our watch.

3 Mur. Hark! I hear horses. Ban. [Within.] Give us a light there, ho!

2 Mur. Then it is he; the rest That are within the note of expectation, Already are i'the court.

1 Mur. His horses go about. 3 Mur. Almost a mile: but he does usually, So all men do, from hence to the palace gate Make it their walk.

Enter Banquo and Fleance, a servant with a torch preceding them.

2 Mur. A light, a light! 3 Mur. 'Tis he.

1 Mur. Stand to't. Ban. It will be rain to-night.

1 Mur. Let it come down. Assaults Banquo.

Ban. O, treachery! Fly, good Fleance, fly, fly, fly;
Thou may'st revenge.—O slave!
[Dies. Fleance and servant escape.
3 Mur. Who did strike out the light?

1 Mur. There's but one down; the son is fied.
2 Mur. We have lost best half of our affair.
1 Mur. Well, let's away, and say how much is done. [Exeunt.

BCENE IV .- A room of state in the palace. A banquet prepared. Enter Macbeth, Lady Macbeth, Rosse, Lenox, Lords, and attendants.

Macb. You know your own degrees, sit down : at first

And last, the hearty welcome.

Thanks to your majesty. Lords. Macb. Ourself will mingle with society, And play the humble host.

Our hostess keeps her state; 2 but, in best time,

We will require her welcome.

Lady M. Pronounce it for me, sir, to all our friends;

For my heart speaks, they are welcome.

Enter first Murderer, to the door.

Macb. See, they encounter thee with their hearts'

him. Thou art the best o'the cut-throats: Yet he's good, That did the like for Fleance: if thou didst it, Thou art the nonpareil.

Mur. Most royal sir,

Fleance is 'scap'd.

Macb. Then comes my fit again: I had else been perfect;

Whole as the marble, founded as the rock;
As broad, and general, as the casing air:
But now, I am cabin'd, cribb'd, confin'd, bound in
To saucy doubts and fears. But Banquo's safe?

Mur. Ay, my good lord: safe in a ditch he bides, With twenty trenched gashes on his head; The least a death to nature.

Macb. Thanks for that:-There the grown serpent lies; the worm, that's fed, Hath nature that in time will venom breed, No teeth for the present. - Get thee gone : to-mor LOM

We'll hear, ourselves again. Exit Murderer. My royal lord, Lady M. You do not give the cheer: 'the least is sold, That is not often vouch'd, while 'tis a making, 'Tis given with welcome: To feed, were best at home;

From thence, the sauce to meat is ceremony:

Meeting were bare without it. Sweet remembrancer !-Now, good digestion wait on appetite, And health on both!

Len. May it please your highness sit? The Ghost of Banquo rises, and sits in Macbeth's place. Macb. Here had we now our country's honour roof'd,

Were the grac'd person of our Banquo present; Who may I rather challenge for unkindness, Than pity for mischance!

His absence, sir, Rosse. Lays blame upon his promise. Please it your highness

To grace us with your royal company?

Macb. The table's full.

Len. Here's a place reserv'd, sir. Macb. Where? Len.

Here, my lord. What is't that moves your highness? Macb. Which of you have done this?

Lords. What, my good lord? Macb. Thou canst not say, I did it: never shake Thy gory locks at me.

Rosse. Gentlemen, rise; his highness is not well. Lady M. Sit, worthy friends :- my lord is often thus,

And hath been from his youth: 'Pray you, keep seat;

The fit is momentary; upon a thought He will again be well: If much you note him, You shall offend him, and extend his passion; Feed, and regard him not.—Are you a man? Mach. Ay, and a bold one, that dare look on that Which might appal the devil.

(2) Continues in her chair of state.
(3) As quick as thought, (4) Prolong his suffering.

Led you to Duncan. O, these flaws, and starts, (Impostors to true fear,) would well become A woman's story, at a winter's fire, Authoriz'd by her grandam. Shame itself!
Why do you make such faces? When all's done,
You look but on a stool.

Macb. Prythee, see there! behold! look! lo! Attend his majesty!

If charnel-houses, and our graves, must send Those that we bury, back, our monuments
Shall be the maws of kites. [Ghost disappears.
Lady M. What! quite unmann'd in folly?

Lady M. What! quite unm Macb. If I stand here, I saw him. Lady M.

Fie, for shame! Blood hath been shed ere now, i'the Macb. olden time,

Ere human statute purg'd the gentle weal;
Ay, and since too, murders have been perform'd
Too terrible for the ear: the times have been.
That, when the brains were out the man would die, And there an end; but now, they rise again,
With twenty mortal murders on their crowns,
And push us from our stools: This is more strange
Than such a murder is.

Lady M. My worthy lord, Your noble friends do lack you.

Macb. I do forget :-Do not muse2 at me, my most worthy friends; I have a strange infirmity, which is nothing
To those that know me. Come, love and health to all;
Then I'll sit down:—Give me some wine, fill full: I drink to the general joy of the whole table, Ghost rises.

And to our dear friend Banquo, whom we miss; Would he were here! to all, and him, we thirst, And all to all.3

Lords. Our duties, and the pledge, Macb. Avaunt! and quit my sight! Let the earth hide thee!

Thy bones are marrowless, thy blood is cold; Thou hast no speculation in those eyes

Which thou dost glare with!

Lady M. Think of this, good peers, But as a thing of custom: 'tis no other; Only it spoils the pleasure of the time.

Macb. What man dare, I dare : Approach thou like the rugged Russian bear, The arm'd rhinoceros, or the Hyrcan tiger, Take any shape but that, and my firm nerves Shall never tremble: Or, be alive again, And dare me to the descrt with thy sword; If trembling I inhibit thee, protest me The baby of a girl. Hence, horrible shadow! [Ghost disappears.

And overcome' us like a summer's cloud, Without our special wonder? You make me strange Great business must be wrought ere noon. Even to the disposition that I owe, When now I think you can behold such sights,

(1) Sudden gusts. (2) Wonder.

(4) Forbid. (7) Magpies. (5) Pass over. (6) Possess.

PC033E. y nat signts, my lord ! Lady M. I pray you, speak not; he grows worse and worse; Question enrages him: at once, good night:-

Stand not upon the order of your going, But go at once.

Len. Good night, and better health Lady M. A kind good night to all!

[Excunt Lords and altendants. Macb. It will have blood; they say, blood will have blood:

Stones have been known to move, and trees to speak;

Augurs, and understood relations, have By magot-pies, and choughs, and rooks, brought forth

The secret'st man of blood.—What is the night?

Lady M. Almost at odds with morning, which is which.

Macb. How say'st thou, that Macduff denies his person, At our great bidding?

Did you send to him, sir? Lady M. Macb. I hear it by the way; but I will send: There's not a one's of them, but in his house I keep a servant feed. I will to-morrow (Betimes I will,) unto the weird sisters: More shall they speak; for now I am bent to know, By the worst means, the worst: for mine own good, All causes shall give way. 1 am in blood Stept in so far, that, should I wade no more, Returning were as tedious as go o'er:

Strange things I have in head, that will to hand;

Which must be acted, ere they may be seann'd.

Lady M. You lack the season of all natures, sleep.

Macb. Come, we'll to sleep: My strange and self-abuse Is the initiate fear, that wants hard use :-We are yet but young in deed. [Exeunt.

SCENE V .- The heath. Thunder. Enter Hecate, meeting the three Witches.

1 Witch. Why, how now, Hecate? you look angerly.

Hec. Have I not reason, bedlams, as you are Saucy, and overbold? How did you dare To trade and traffic with Macbeth, In riddles and affairs of death; And I, the mistress of your charms, The close contriver of all harms Was never call'd to bear my part, Or show the glory of our ast? And, which is worse, all you have done Hath been but for a wayward son, Spiteful, and wrathful, who, as others do, Loves for his own ends, not for you. But make amends now: Get you gone, Unreal mockery, hence !—Why, so :—being gone, I am a man again.—Pray you, sit still.

Lady M. You have displac'd the mirth, broke the good meeting,
With most admir'd disorder.

Macb.

Can such things be, I am of the air; this night I'll spend
I the good meeting the displaced the mirth, broke the good meeting,
With most admir'd the provide the mirth, broke the provide the morning; thither he will come to know his destiny.
Your vessels, and your spells, provide, Your charms, and every thing beside:
I am for the air; this night I'll spend
I the displaced the mirth, broke the pit of Acheron, Meet me i'the morning; thither he will come to know his destiny. Unto a dismal-fatal end. There hangs a vaporous drop profound;10

Song. [Within.] Come away, come away, &c.
Hark, I am call'd; my little spirit, see,
Sits in a foggy cloud, and stays for me. [Extt.
1 Witch. Come, let's make haste; she'll soon be Exeunt. back again.

SCENE VI .- Fores. A room in the palace. Enter Lenox and another Lord.

Len. My former speeches have but hit your thoughts,

Which can interpret further: only, I say, Things have been strangely borne; The gracious Fire, burn; and, cauldron, bubble.

2 Witch. Fillet of a fenny snake,

Was pitied of Macbeth:—marry, he was dead:—
And the right-valiant Banquo walk'd too late;
Whom, you may say, if it please you, Fleance kill'd,
For Fleance fied. Men must not walk too late. Who cannot want the thought, how monstrous it was for Malcolm, and for Donalbain, To kill their gracious father? damned fact! How it did grieve Macbeth! did he not straight, In pious rage, the two delinquents tear, That were the slaves of drink, and thralls of sleep? Was not that nobly done? Ay, and wisely too; For 'twould have anger'd any heart alive,
To hear the men deny it. So that, I say,
He has borne all things well: and I do think,
That had be Dunayle sone under his hear. That, had he Duncan's sons under his key (As, an't please heaven, he shall not,) they should find

What 'twere to kill a father; so should Fleance. But, peace !- for from broad words, and 'cause he fail'd His presence at the tyrant's feast, I hear Macduff lives in disgrace: Sir, can you tell Where he bestows himself?

The son of Duncan, Lord. From whom this tyrant holds the due of birth, Lives in the English court; and is received Of the most pious Edward with such grace, That the most pious Edward with such graces
That the malevolence of fortune nothing
Takes from his high respect: Thither Macduff
Is gone to pray the holy king, on his aid
To wake Northumberland, and warlike Siward: That by the help of these (with Him above
To ratify the work,) we may again
Give to our table meat, sleep to our nights;
Free from our feasts and banquets bloody knives;
Do faithful homage, and receive free homours,!
All which we pine for now: And this report Hath so exasperate2 the king, that he Prepares for some attempt of war. Sent he to Macduff?

Lord. He did: and with an absolute, Sir, not I, The cloudy messenger turns me his back, And hums; as who should say, You'll rue the time That clogs me with this answer.

And that well might Advise him to a caution, to hold what distance His wisdom can provide. Some holy angel Fly to the court of England, and unfold His message ere he come; that a swift blessing

Honours freely bestowed.
 For exasperated.

ACT IV.

SCENE I .- A dark cave. In the middle a con-dron boiling. Thunder. Enter three Witches.

1 Witch. Thrice the brinded cat hath mew'd.
2 Witch. Thrice; and once the hedge-pig whin'd.
3 Witch. Harper cries:—"Tis time, 'its time.
1 Witch. Round about the cauldron go;

In the poison'd entrails throw.-Toad, that under coldest stone, Days and nights hast thirty-one Swelter'd' venom sleeping got, Boil thou first i'the charmed pot! AU. Double, double toil and trouble;

In the cauldron boil and bake: Eye of newt, and toe of from Wool of bat, and tongue of dog, Adder's fork, and blind-worm's sting, Lizard's leg, and owlet's wing, For a charm of powerful trouble, Like a hell-broth boil and bubble. All. Double, double toil and trouble,

All. Double, double toil and trouble; Fire, burn; and, cauldron, bubble.

2 Witch. Cool it with a baboon's blood, Then the charm is firm and good.

Enter Hecate, and the other three Witches. Hec. O, well done! I commend your pains; And every one shall share i'the gains. And now about the cauldron sing, Like elves and fairies in a ring, Enchanting all that you put in.

Therein the patient Doct. Must minister to himself.

Mack. Throw physic to the dogs, I'll none of it .-Come, put mine armour on; give me my staff:— Seyton, send out.—Doctor, the thancs fly from me:— Come, sir, despatch:—If thou could'st, doctor, cast The water of my land, find her disease, And purge it to a sound and pristine health, I would applaud thee to the very echo

That should applaud again .- Pull't off, I say .-What rhubarh, senns, or what purgetive drug, Would scour these English hence?—Hearest thou of them ?

Mach. Bring it after me .will not be afraid of death and bane, Till Birnam forest come to Dunsinane. Erit. Doct. Were I from Dunsinane away and clear Profit again should hardly draw me here.

[Ezú. SCENE IV.—Country near Dunsinane: A wood in view. Enter, with dram and colours, Mal-colm, Old Siward and his Son, Mucduff, Men-teth, Cathness, Angus, Lenox, Rosse, and Soidiers, marching,

Mal. Cousins, I hope, the days are near at hand That chambers will be safe, Meni. We down Siw. What wood is this before us? We doubt it nothing.

Ment. The wood of Birnam. Mai. Let every soldier hew him down a bough, And bear't before him; thereby shall we shadow The numbers of our host, and make discovery

Err in report of us.

Sold. It shall be done. Siw. We learn no other, but the confident tyrant Keeps still in Dunsinane, and will endure Our setting down befor'L.

'Tis his main hope: For where there is advantage to be given, Both more and less' have given him the revolt; And none servs with him but constrained things, Whose hearts are absent too.

Macd. Let our just censures Attend the true event, and put we on Industrious soldiership. The time approaches, Sizo. That will with due decision make us know What news more? What we shall say we have, and what we owe.

Thoughts speculative, their unsure hopes relate;
But certain issue strokes must arbitrata;

> [Execut, marching. SCENE V.—Dunsinane. Within the cartle. En-ter, with drums and colours, Masbeth, Baylon, and Soldiers.

Mach. Hang out our banners on the outward walls:

Scour, (7) is a Greater and less. (8) Determine.

[A cry within, of nomen. Sey. It is the cry of women, my good lord. Macb. I have almost forgot the taste of fears: The time has been, my senses would have cool'd To hear a night-shrick; and my fell' of hair Would at a dismal treatise rouse, and stir As life were in't: I have supp'd full with horrors; Direness, familiar to my slaught'rous thoughts, Cannot once start me.—Wherefore was that cry? Cannot once start me.—Wherefore was t Sey. The queen, my lord, is dead. Macb. She should have died hereafter;

And beat them backward home. What is that noise?

There would have been a time for such a word .-To-morrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow, Creeps in this petty pace from day to day, To the last syllable of recorded time; And all our yesterdays have lighted fools The way to dusty death. Out, out, brief candle! Life's but a walking shadow; a poor player, That struts and frets his hour upon the stage, And then is heard no more: it is a tale Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, Signifying nothing.

Enter a Messenger.

Thou com'st to use thy tongue; thy story quickly. Mess. Gracious my lord,

I shall report that which I say I saw, But know not how to do it.

Well, say, sir. Mess. As I did stand my watch upon the nill, I look'd toward Birnam, and anon, methought, The wood began to move. Liar, and slave! Macb.

Striking him. Mess. Let me endure your wrath, if't be not so: Within this three mile may you see it coming;

I say, a moving grove. Macb. If thou speak'st false, Upon the next tree shalt thou hang alive, Till famine cling2 thee : if thy speech be sooth, I care not if thou dost for me as much. -I pull in resolution; and begin To doubt the equivocation of the fiend, That lies like truth : Fear not, till Birnam wood Do come to Dunsinane; -and now a wood Comes toward Dunsinane. - Arm, arm, and out!-If this, which he avouches, does appear There is nor flying hence, nor tarrying here.

I 'gin to be a-weary of the sun, And wish the estate o'the world were now undone. Ring the alarum bell:—Blow, wind! come, wrack! At least we'll die with harness' on our back.

SCENE VI .- The same. A plain before the castle. Enter, with drums and colours, Malcolm. Old Siward, Macdulf, &c. and their army, with boughs.

Mal. Now near enough; your leavy screens throw

And show like those you are:—You, worthy uncle, Shall, with my cousin, your right-noble son, Lead our first battle: worthy Macduff, and we, Shall take upon us what else remains to do, According to our order. Sino.

Fare you well .-

(1) 8kin, (2) Shrivel, (3) Armour,

II .- The same. Another part of the plain. Enter Macbeth. SCENE VII.-

Macb. They have tied me to a stake; I cannot fly, But, bear-like, I must fight the course. - What's he, That was not born of woman? Such a one Am I to fear, or none.

Enter Young Siward.

Yo. Siw. What is thy name?

Macb. Thou'll be afraid to hear it. Yo. Siw. No; though thou call'st thyself a hotter name

Than any is in hell. Macb. My name's Macbeth. Yo. Siw. The devil himself could not pronounce a title

More hateful to mine ear.

Macb. No, nor more fearful. Yo. Sito. Thou liest, abhorred tyrant; with my sword

I'll prove the lie thou speak'st.

[They fight, and Young Siward is slain. Thou wast born of woman.-Macb. But swords I smile at, weapons laugh to scorn, Brandish'd by man that's of a woman born. [Ex. Alarums. Enter Macduff.

Macd. That way the noise is :- Tyrant, show thy face: If thou be'st slain, and with no stroke of mine, My wife and children's ghosts will haunt me still. I cannot strike at wretched kernes, whose arms Are hir'd to bear their staves; either thou, Macbeth, Or else my sword, with an unbatter'd edge, I sheath again undeeded. There thou should'st be; By this great clatter, one of greatest note Seems bruited: Let me find him, fortune! [Exit. Alarum. And more I beg not.

Enter Malcolm and Old Siward.

Siw. This way, my lord;—the castle's gently render'd:

The tyrant's people on both sides do fight; The noble thanes do bravely in the war; The day almost itself professes yours, And little is to do.

We have met with foes Mal. That strike beside us.

Enter, sir, the castle. Siw. Exeunt. Alarum.

Re-enter Macbeth.

Macb. Why should I play the Roman fool, and

On mine own sword? whiles I see lives, the gashes Do better upon them.

Re-enter Macduff.

Macd. Turn, hell-hound, turn.
Macb. Of all men else I have avoided thee:
But get thee back, my soul is too much charg'd Turn, hell-hound, turn. With blood of thine already.

Macd. I have no words, My voice is in my sword; thou bloodier villain t! [They fight. Thou loosest labour : Than terms can give thee out! Macb.

(5) Reported with clamour, (4) Soldiers,

As easy may'st thou the entremehant air'

With thy loca sword impress, as make me bleed:

And that I'll spend for him.

Size.

Size. I bear a charmed life, which must not yield To one of woman born.

Despair thy charm; Macd And let the angel, whom thou still hast serv'd, Tell thee, Macduff was from his mother's womb Untimely ripp'd.

Mach. Accurace he that tongue that tells me so, The naurper's cursed head: the time is free: For it hath cow'd my better part of man i And he these jugging fiends no more believ'd, That palter with us in a double sense; That keep the word of promise to our ear, And break it to our hope.—I'll not fight with thee.

Macd. Then yield thee, coward, And live to be the show and gaze o'the time. We'll have thee, as our rarer monsters are, Painted upon a pole; and underwrit, Here may you see the lyrant.

Mach. I'll not yield.
To kies the ground before young Malcolm's feet, And to be baited with the rabble's curse. And to be bailed with the ranoiers curse.
Though Birmam wood be come to Dunsinane,
And thou oppos'd, being of no woman born,
Yet I will try the last: Before my body
I throw my warlike shield: lay on, Macduff;
And damn'd be him that first cries, Hold, enough.
[Execut, fighting.

eireal. Hourisk. Re-enter, with drum and colours, Mulcolm, Old Siward, Rosse, Lenox, Angus, Cathness, Menteth, and soldiers. Retreut. Mai. I would, the friends we miss were safe ar-rit'd.

Size. Some must go off: and yet, by these, I see, So great a day as this is cheaply bought. Mal. Macduff is missing, and your noble son. Resse. Your son, my lord, has paid a soldier's debt : He only liv'd but till he was a man; The which no sooner had his prowess confirm'd In the unshrinking station where he fought,

But like a man he died. Siv. Then he is dead? Rosse. Ay, and brought off the field : your cause of norrow first not be measur'd by his worth, for then

It hath no end. Had he his hurts before? Stw.

Rosse. Aye, on the front. Why then, God's soldier be he!

Had I as many sons as I have hairs, I would not wish them to a fairer death: And so his knell is knoll'd.

(1) The air, which cannot be cut. (2) Shuffle.

He's worth more sorrow,

He's worth no more; They say, he parted well, and paid his score: So, God he with him!—Here comes newer comfort.

Re-enter Mucdall with Mucbeth's head on a pale.

Macd. Hall, king! for so thou art: Behold, where stands

I see thee compass'd with thy kingdom's pearl," That speak my salutation in their minds; Whose voices I desire aloud with mine,— Hail, king of Scotland!

King of Scotland, hail! Flourisk. Mai. We shall not spend a large expense of time,

Before we reckon with your several loves, And make us even with you. My thanes and kinsmen.

Henceforth be earls, the first that ever Scotland In such an honour nam'd. What's more to do, Which would be planted newly with the time,— As calling home our exil'd friends abroad, That fled the snares of watchful tyramy; Producing forth the cruel ministers Of this dead butcher, and his fiend-like queen; Of this dead butener, and his nemerical queens, Who, as 'tin thought, by self and violent hands Took off her life;—This, and what needful else That calls upon us, by the grace of Grace, We will perform in measure, time, and place: So thanks to all at once, and to each one, we will be a seen to be a seen to be a seen or the seen of the seen Whom we invite to see us crown'd at Scone [Flourisk. Execut.

This play is deservedly celebrated for the pro-priety of its fiction, and solemnity, grandeur, and variety of its action; but it has no nice discrimina-tions of character; the events are too great to ad-mit the influence of particular dispositions, and the course of the action necessarily determines the conduct of the agenta.

The danger of ambition is well described; and I know not whether it may not be said, in defence of some parts which now seem improbable, that in Shakepeare's time it was necessary to warn cre-dulity against vain and illusive predictions.

The passions are directed to their true end, Lady Macbeth is merely detested; and though the courage of Macbeth preserves some esteem, yet every reader rejoices at his fall.

(1) Conduct, administration.

You came not of one mother then, it seems That is well known; and, as I think, one father: But, for the certain knowledge of that truth, I put you o'er to heaven, and to my mother; Of that I doubt, as all men's children may. Etc. Out on thee, rude man't thou dost shame thy mother, And wound her honour with this diffidence Best. I, madem? no, I have no reason for it; That is my brother's plea, and none of mine;

The which if he can prove, 'a pops me out
At least from fair five headred pound a year;
Heaven guard my mother's honour, and my land!
K. Jahn. A good blunt fellow;—Why, being younger born, Doth he lay claim to thine inheritance? Bast. I know not why, except to get the land. But once he slander'd me with bastardy: But whe'r' I be as true begot, or no, That still I lay upon my mother's head; But, that I am as well begot, my liege, (Fair fail the bones that took the pains for mc!) Compare our faces, and be judge yourself.

Rob. My gracious liege, when that my father liv'd, Kneel thou down Philip, but arise more great;

Your brother did employ my father much;

Bast. Well, sir, by this you cannot got my land;

Bast. Brother, by the mother's side, give me

Your tale must be, how be employ'd my mother.

Reb. And once despatch'd him in an embassy To Germany, there, with the emperor, To treat of high affairs touching that time: The advantage of his absence took the king, And in the mean time sojourn'd at my father's; Where how he did prevail, I shame to speak: But truth is truth; large lengths of seas and shores Between my father and my mother lay (As I have heard my father speak himself,) (As I have heard my tather speak managed, When this same lusty gentleman was got. Upon his death-bed he by will bequeath'd His lands to me; and took it, on his death, That this, my mother's son, was none of his; And, if he were, he came into the world And, if he were, he came into the course of time

Then, good my liege, let me have what is mine.
My father's land, as was my father's will.

X. John. Sirrah, your brother is legitimate;
Your father's wife did, after wedlock, bear him:
And, if she did play false, the fault was hers;
Which doubt like on the herards of all bushoust. Which fault lies on the hazards of all husbands That marry wives. Tell me, how if my brother, Who, as you say, took pains to get this son, Had of your father claim'd this son for his?

Reb. The son and heir to that same Faulcon-lin sooth, good friend, your father might have kept bridge.

K. John. Is that the elder, and art thou the heir? This calf, bred from his cow, from all the world;

Sou came not of one mother then, it seems.

Bast. Most certain of one mother, mighty king, Being none of his, refuse him: This concludes,—that is well known; and, as i think, one father: My mother's son did get your father's heir; thut for the certain knowledge of that truth.

Your father's heir must have your father's land. Your father's heir must have your father's land.
Red. Shall then my father's will be of no force,
To dispossess that child which is not his?

Bast. Of no more force to disposeess me, sir, Than was his will to get me, as I think. Eli. Whether hadet thou rather, -be a Faulconbridge,

And like thy brother, to enjoy thy land; Or the reputed son of Cœur-de-lion, Lord of thy presence, and no land beside? Best. Madam, an if my brother had my shape, And I had his, sir Robert his, like him; And if my legs were two such riding-rods, My arms such cel-skins stuff'd; my face so this, That in mine ear I durst not stick a rose, Lest men should say, Look, where three-furthings goes! And, to his shape, were heir to all this land, Would I might never stir from off this place, I'd give it every foot to have this face; I would not be sir Nob* in any case

Ell. I like thee well; Wilt thou forsake thy for-

Bequeath thy land to him, and follow me? I om a soldier, and now bound to France. Bast. Brother, take you my land, I'll take my chance:

Your face hath got five hundred pounds a year; Yet sell your face for five pence, and 'tis dear.— Madam, I'll follow you unto the death. Eli. Nay, I would have you go before me thither.

Bast. Our country manners give our betters way. K. John. What is thy name?

your hand : My father gave me honour, your's gave land :-Now blessed he the hour, by night or day, When I was got, sir Robert was away. Eli. The very spirit of Plantagenet!-

I am thy grandame, Richard; call me so.

Bast. Madam, by chance, but not by truth;

What though?

Something about, a little from the right, In at the window, or else o'er the hatch: Who dares not stir by day, must walk by night; And have is have, however men do crich: Near or far off, well won is still well shot;

And I am I, howe'er I was begot.

K. John. Go, Faulconbridge; now hast thou thy desire,

A landless knight makes thee a landed 'squire.-Come, madam, and come, Richard; we must speed For France, for France; for it is more than need.

Bast. Brother, adjeu; Good fortune come to thee ! For thou wast got i'the way of honesty

And I'his name be George, I'll call him Peter: For new-made honour doll forget men's names; Tis too respective, and too sociable,
For your conversion. Now your traveller,
He and his tooth-pick at my worship's mess; And when my knightly stomach is suffic'd, Why then I suck my teeth, and catechise My picked man of countries: "-–My dear où, (Thus, leaning on mine elbow, I begin,)
I shall beseech you—That is question now And then comes answer like an ABC-book: * O, str, says answer, at your lest command;
If your employment; at your service, str:
Yo sir, says question, I, sweet sir, at yours:
And so, ere answer knows what question would (Saving in dislogue of compliment; And talking of the Alps, and Apennines, The Pyranean, and the river Po.) It draws towards supper in conclusion so, But this is worshipful society, And fits the mounting spirit, like myself: For he is but a bustard to the time, That doth not smack of observation (And so am I, whether I smack, or no;)
And not alone in habit and device, Exterior form, outward accoutrement; But from the inward motion to deliver Sweet, sweet, sweet poison for the age's tooth: Which, though I will not practise to deceive, Yet, to avoid deceit, I mean to learn: For it shall strew the footsteps of my rising. But who comes in such haste, in riding robes? What woman-post is this? hath she no husband, That will take pains to blow a horn before her ?

Enter Lady Faulconbridge and James Gurney. O me! it is my mother: —How now, good lady? What brings you here to court so hastily? Lady F. Where is that slave, thy brother? where is he? That holds in chase mine honour up and down? Bast. My brother Robert? old sir Robert's son?

Colbrand the giant, that same mighty man? Is it sir Robert's son, that you seek so? Lady F. Sir Robert's son! Ay, thou unreverend boy, Sir Robert's son: Why scorn'st thou at sir Robert? He is sir Robert's son ; and so art thou.

Bost. James Gurney, will thou give us leave a

(3) My travelled fop. (5) Idle reports (4) Catechism.

But, mother, I am not sir Robert's son; I have disclaim'd sir Robert, and my land; Legitimation, name, and all is gone:
Then, good my mother, let me knew my father;
Some proper man, I hope; Who was it, mother?
Lady F. Hast thou denied thyself a Faulous.

bridge?

Bast. As faithfully as I deny the devil.

Lady F. King Richard Cour-de-lien was thy father;

By long and vehement suit I was seduc'd
To make room for him in my husband's bed:-Heaven lay not my transgression to my charge ! Thou art the issue of my dear offence,

Which was so strongly urg'd, past my defence.

Bast. Now, by this light, were I to get again,
Madam, I would not wish a better father. Some sins do bear their privilege on earth, And so doth yours; your fault was not your folly: Needs must you lay your heart at his dispose,— Subjected tribute to commanding love,— Against whose fury and unmatched force The awless lion could not wage the fight, Nor keep his princely heartfrom Richard's hand. He, that perforce robs lions of their hearts, May easily win a woman's. Ay, my mother, With all my heart I thank thee for my father? Who lives and dares but say, thou ddat not well When I was got, I'll send his soul to belt.
Come, lady, I will show thee to my kin;
And they shall say, when Richard re begot,
If thou had'st said him may, it had been sin:
Who says it was, he lies; I say, 'twas not. [Exc.

ACT II.

SCENE 1.-France. Before the walls of Angiers. Enter, on one side, the Archduke of Austria, and forces; on the other, Philip, Ring of France, and forces; Lewis, Commune, Arthur, and attendants.

Lew. Before Angiers well met, brave Austria.— Arthur, that great forerunner of thy blood, Richard, that robb'd the lion of his heart, And fought the holy wars in Palestine, By this brave duke came early to his grave: And, for amends to his posterity, At our importance, hither is he come, To spread his colours, boy, in thy behalf; And to rebuke the naurpation Of thy unnatural uncle, English John : Embrace him, love him, give him welcome hither.
Arth. God shall forgive you Cour-de-lion's death,

The rather, that you give his offspring life, Shadowing their right under your wings of war: I give you welcome with a nowerless hand, But with a heart full of unstained love We know his handy-work: -- Therefore, good Welcome before the gates of Angiera duke.

I.e. Anoble boy! Who would not do thee right?

Aust. Upon thy check lay I this zeatous kiss, As seal to this indenture of my love; Sir Robert never holp to make this leg.

As seal to this indenture of my love;

Lady F. Hast thou conspired with thy brother too, That to my home I will no more return.

That for thine own gain should'st defend mine Till Angiers, and the right thou hast in France, Together with that pale, that white-fac'd shore, Whose fuot spurns back the ocean's roaring tides. And coops from other lands her islanders Even till that England, hedg'd in with the main, That water-walled bulwark, still secure

(6) A character in an old drama, called Belimer and Persons.

(7) Importunity.

And confident from foreign purposes, Even till that utmost corner of the west Salute thee for her king: till then, fair boy, Will I not think of home, but follow arms.

Const. O, take his mother's thanks, a widow's England we love; and, for that England's sake,

To make a more requital to your love. Aust. The peace of heaven is theirs, that lift their swords

be bent Against the brows of this resisting town.-Call for our chiefest men of discipline, To cull the plots of best advantages: We'll lay before this town our royal bones, Wade to the market-place in Frenchmen's blood, But we will make it subject to this boy.

Const. Stay for an answer to your embassy, Lest unadvis'd you stain your swords with blood: My lord Chatillon may from England bring That right in peace, which here we urge in war; And then we shall repent each drop of blood, That hot rash haste so indirectly shed.

Enter Chatillon.

K. Phi. A wonder, lady !--lo, upon thy wish, Our messenger Chatillon is arriv'd.--

What England says, say briefly, gentle lord, We coldly pause for thee; Chatillon, speak. Chat. Then turn your forces from this paltry siege, And stir them up against a mightier task. England, impatient of your just demands, Hath put himself in arms; the adverse winds, Whose leisure I have staid, have given him time To land his legions all as soon as I: His marches are expedient to this town, His forces strong, his soldiers confident. With him along is come the mother-queen, With mm along is come the inducer queen, An Até, stirring him to blood and strife; With her her niece, the lady Blanch of Spain; With them a bastard of the king deceas'd: And all the unsettled humours of the land,-Rash, inconsiderate, flery voluntaries, With ladies' faces, and fierce dragons' spleens, Have sold their fortunes at their native homes Bearing their birthrights proudly on their backs, To make a hazard of new fortunes here. In brief, a braver choice of dauntless spirits Than now the English bottoms have wast o'er, Did never float upon the swelling tide, To do offence and scath in Christendom. The interruption of their churlish drums Drums beat. Cuts off more circumstance: they are at hand,

To parley, or to fight; therefore, prepare.

R. Phi. How much unlook'd for is this expedition !

Aust. By how much unexpected, by so much We must awake endeavour for defence; For courage mounteth with occasion: Let them alone be welcome then, we are prepar'd. Enter King John, Elinor, Blanch, the Bastard, Pembroke, and forces.

thanks,

With burden of our armour here we sweat:

Till your strong hand shall help to give him strength, This toil of ours should be a work of thine;

But thou from loving England art so far, That thou hast under-wrought his lawful king, Cut off the sequences of posterity, In such a just and charitable war.

K. Phi. Well then, to work: our cannon shall Upon the maiden virtue of the crown. mission, France, To draw my answer from thy articles?

K. Phi. From that supernal judge, that stirs good thoughts In any breast of strong authority, To look into the blots and stains of right. That judge hath made me guardian to this boy:

Under whose warrant, I impeach thy wrong;
And, by whose help, I mean to chastise it.

K. John. Alack, thou dost usurp authority.

K. Phi. Excuse; it is to beat usurping down.

Eli. Who is it, thou dost call usurper, France? Const. Let me make answer;—thy usurping son. Eti. Out, insolent! thy bastard shall be king; That thou may'st be a queen, and check the world!

Const. My bed was ever to thy son as true, As thine was to thy husband: and this boy Liker in feature to his father Geffrey, Than thou and John in manners; being as like, As rain to water, or devil to his dam.
My boy a bastard! By my soul, I think,
His father never was so true begot;
It cannot be, an if thou wert his mother.

Eli. There's a good mother, boy, that blots thy father.

Const. There's a good grandam, boy, that would blot thee.

Arthur of Bretagne, yield thee to my hand; And, out of my dear love, I'll give thee more Than e'er the coward hand of France can win:

These flags of France, that are advanced here Before the eye and prospect of your town, Have hither merch'd to your endemagement: The cannons have their bowels full of wrath; And ready mounted are they, to spit forth Their iron indignation gainst your walls: All preparation for a bloody siege, And merciless proceeding by these French, Confront your city's eyes, your winking gates; And, but for our approach, those sleeping stones, That as a waist do girdle you about, By the compulsion of their ordnance By this time from their fixed beds of lime Had been dishabited, and wide havor made For bloody power to rush upon your peace. But, on the sight of us, your lawful king, Who painfully, with much expedient march, Have brought a countercheck before your gates, To save unscratch'd your city's threaten'd cheeks, Behold, the French, amaz'd, vouchsafe a parla; And now, instead of builets wrapp'd in fire, To make a shaking fever in your walls, They shoot but calm words, folded up in smoke, To make a faithless error in your cars : Which trust accordingly, kind citizens, And let us in, your king; whose labour'd spirits, Forwearied' in this action of swift speed, Crave harbourage within your city walls.

But if you fondly pass our profier'd offer, 'Tis not the rondure' of your old-fac'd walls Can hide you from our messengers of war; Though all these English, and their discipline, Were harbour'd in their rude circumference. Then, tell us, shall your city call us lord, In that behalf which we have challeng'd it? Or shall we give the signal to our rag And stalk in blood to our possession?

And let young Arthur, duke of Bretagne, in; Who, by the hand of France, this day hath made Much work for tears in many an English mother, Whose sons lie scatter'd on the bleeding ground: Many a widow's husband grovelling lies, Coldly embracing the discolour'd earth;
And victory, with little loss, doth play
Upon the dancing banners of the French;
Who are at hand, triumphantly display'd,
To enter conquerors, and to proclaim
Arthur of Bretagne, England's king, and yours.

Enter an English Herald, with trumpets.

E. Her. Rejoice, you men of Angiers, ring your bells;

King John, your king and England's, doth approach, Commander of this hot malicious day! Their armours, that march'd hence so silver-bright, Hither return all gilt with Frenchmen's blood; There stuck no plume in any English crest, That is removed by a staff of France; Our colours do return in those same hands That did display them when we first march'd forth; And, like a jolly troop of huntsmen, come Our lusty English, all with purpled hands, Dyed in the dying slaughter of their foes: Open your gates, and give the victors way.

(1) Judged, determined.

(2) Potentates.

Cit. Heralds, from off our towers we might behold, From first to last, the onset and retire Of both your armies; whose equality By our best eyes cannot be censured:

Blood hath bought blood, and blows have answer'd blews; Strength match'd with strength, and power confronted power: Both are alike; and both alike we like. One must prove greatest : while they weigh so even,

We hold our town for neither; yet for both. Enter, at one side, King John, with his power; Elinor, Blanch, and the Bastard; at the other,

King Philip, Lewis, Austria, and forces. K. John. France, hast thou yet more blood to cast away?

Say, shall the current of our right run on? Whose passage, vex'd with thy impediment, Shall leave his native channel, and o'er-swell With course disturb'd even thy confining shores; Unless thou let his silver water keep

A peaceful progress to the ocean.

K. P.M. England, thou hast not sav'd one dros of blood, In this hot trial, more than we of France; Rather, lost more: And by this hand I swear, That sways the earth this climate overlooks,-Before we will lay down our just-borne arms, We'll put thee down, 'gainst whom these arms we bear,

Or add a royal number to the dead; Gracing the scroll, that tells of this war's loss, With slaughter coupled to the name of kings

Bast. Ha, majesty! how high thy glory towers, When the rich blood of kings is set on fire! O, now doth death line his dead chaps with steel; The swords of soldiers are his teeth, his fangs; And now he feasts, mouthing the flesh of men, In undetermin'd differences of kings.— Why stand these royal fronts amazed thus? Cry, havoc, kings! back to the stained field, You equal potents,* fiery-kindled spirits!

Then let confusion of one part confirm The other's peace; till then, blows, blood, and death!

K. John. Whose party do the townsmen yet admit?

K. Phi. Speak, citizens, for England; who's your king?

1 Cit. The king of England, when we know the king.

K. Phi. Know him in us, that here hold up his

K. John. In us, that are our own great deputy, And bear possession of our person here; Lord of our presence, Angiers, and of you.

1 Cit. A greater power than we, denies all this; And, till it be undoubted, we do lock Our former scruple in our strong-barr'd gates: King'd of our fears , until our fears, resolv'd, Be by some certain king purg'd and depos'd.

The flinty ribs of this contemptuous city:
The mouth of passage shall we fling wide ope,
The mouth of passage shall we fling wide ope,
And give you entrance; but, without this match,
Even till unfenced desolation
The sea arraged is not half so deaf, Leave them as naked as the vulgar air. That done, dissever your united strengths, And part your mingled colours once again; Turn face to face, and bloody point to point: Then, in a moment, fortune shall cull forth Out of one side her happy minion; To whom in favour she shall give the day, And kiss him with a glorious victory. How like you this wild counsel, mighty states? Smacks it not something of the policy?

K. John. Now, by the sky that hangs above our heads,

I like it well; -Prance, shall we knit our powers, And lay this Anglers even with the ground; Then, after, fight who shall be king of it?

Bast. An if thou hast the mettle of a king, Being wrong'd, as we are, by this peerish town,. Turn thou the mouth of thy artillery, As we will ours, against these saucy walls: And when that we have dash'd them to the ground, Why, then defy each other; and, pell-mell, Make work upon ourselves, for heaven or hell.

Into the city's bosom, Aust. I from the north,

K. PM. Our thunder from the south, Shall rain their drift of bulkts on this town. Bast. O prudent discipline! From north to south, Austria and France shoot in each other's mouth:

I Cit. Hear us, great kings: vouchsale a while to slay, And I shall show you peace, and fair-faced league; Win you this city without stroke, or wound; Rescue those breathing lives to die in beds, That here come sacrifices for the field: Persever not, but hear me, mighty kings.

K. John. Speak on, with favour; we are bent

If zealous! love should go in search of virtue Where should be find it purer than in Blanch? If love ambitious sought a match of birth, Whose veins bound richer blood than lady Blanch? Such as she is, in leastly, virtue, birth, Is the young Dauphin every way complete: If not complete, O say, he is not she; And she again wants nothing, to name want, If want it be not, that she is not he: He is the half part of a blessed man, Left to be finished by such a sha; And she a fair divided excellence. Whose fulness of perfection lies in him-(), two such silver currents, when they join, Do glorify the banks that bound them in : And two such shores to two such streams made one Two such controlling bounds shall you be, kings, To these two princes, if you marry them. Bost. Here's a stay That shakes the rotten carcase of old death Out of his rage! Here's a large mouth, indeed, That spits forth death, and mountains, rocks, and Talks as familiarly of roaring lions, As maids of thirteen do of puppy-dogs! What cannoncer begot this lusty blood? He speaks plain cannon, fire, and smoke, and bounce; He gives the bastinade with his tongue Our cuts are cudgel'd; not a word of his, But buffets better than a fist of France: Zounds! I was never so bethump'd with words, Since I first call'd my brother's father, dad.

Lew. I do, my loul, and in her eye I find A wonder, or a wondrous miracle, The shadow of myself form'd in her eye; Which, being but the shadow of your son, Becomes a sun, and makes your son a shadow: I do protest, I hever lov'd myself, Till now infixed I beheld myself, Drawn in the flattering table<sup>2</sup> of her eye

In such a love, so vile a lout as he. Blanch. My uncte's will, in this respect, is mine a IIf he see aught in you, that makes him like,

That any thing he sees, which moves his liking, I can with ease translate it to my will; Or, if you will, (to speak more properly,) I will enforce it easily to my love. Further I will not flatter you, my lord, That all I see in you is worthy love, Than this,—that nothing do I see in you your hands. Aust. And your lips too; for, I am well assur'd, That I did so, when I was first assur'd.

K. Phi. Now, citizens of Angiers, ope your gates, Let in that smity which you have made; For at saint Mary's chapel, presently, The rites of marriage shall be solemnized. Is not the lady Constance in this troop? I know, she is not; for this match, made up, Her presence would have interrupted much: Where is she and her son? tell me, who knows.

Lew. She is sad and passionate? at your highness' tent,

K. Pht. And, by my faith, this league, that we Shall Lewis have Blanch? and Blanch those prohave made,

Will give her sadness very little cure. Brother of England, how may we content This widow lady? In her right we came; Which wa, God knows, have turned another way, To our own vantage.3

K. John. We will heal up all: For we'll create young Arthur duke of Bretagne, And earl of Richmond; and this rich fair town We make him lord of.—Call the lady Constance; Some speedy messenger bid her repair To our solemnity:—I trust we shall, If not fill up the measure of her will, Yet in some measure satisfy her so, That we shall stop her exclamation. Go we, as well as haste will suffer us, retire from the walls.

To this unlook'd for, unprepared pomp.

Bast. Mad world! mad kings! mad composition! John, to stop Arthur's title in the whole, Hath willingly departed with a part: And France (whose armour conscience buckled on ; Whom zeal and charity brought to the field, As God's own soldier,) rounded in the ear With that same purpose-changer, that sly devil; That broker, that still breaks the pute of faith; That daily broak-vow; he that wins of all, Of kings, of beggars, old men, young men, maids; Who having no external thing to lose But the word maid, -cheats the poor maid of that;

And why rail I on this commodity? Lew. Nay, ask me if I can refrain from love,
For I do love her most unfeignedly.

K. John. Then do I give Volquessen, Touraine,
When his fair angels' would sainte my paim: But for my hand, as unattempted yet but for my hand, as unattempted yet, Like a poor beggar, raileth on the rich, Well, whiles I am a beggar, I will rail, And say,—there is no sin, but to be rich; And being rich, my virtue then shall be, To say,—there is no vice, but beggary: Since kings break faith upon commodity Gain, be my lord! for I will worship thee! It is not so; thou hast misspoke, misheard;
Be well advis'd, tell o'er thy tale again;
It cannot be; thou dost but say, 'its so:
It trust, It may not trust thee; for thy word
Is but the vain breath of a common man;
Believe me, I do not believe thee, man;
I have a kine'a oath to the contrary. I have a king's oath to the contrary. Thou shalt be punish'd for thus frighting me. Oppress'd with wrongs, and therefore full of fears;
A widow, husbandless, subject to fears;
A woman, naturally born to fears; And though thou now confess, thou didst but jest, With my vex'd spirits I cannot take a truce, But they will quake and tremble all this day. What doet thou mean by shaking of thy head? Why dost thou look so sadly on my son? What means that hand upon that breast of thine? Why holds thine eye that lamentable rheum, Like a proud river peering to his hounds? Be these and signs confirmers of thy words? Then speak again; not all thy former tale, But this one word, whether thy tale be true. Sal. As true, as, I believe, you think them false,

That give you cause to prove my saying true.

Const. O, if thou teach me to believe this sorrow,
Teach thou this sorrow how to make me die; And let belief and life encounter so, As doth the fury of two desperate men Which, in the very meeting, fall, and die.-

But thou art fair; and at thy birth, dear boy! Nature and fortune join'd to make thee great: Of nature's gifts thou may'st with lilies boast, and with the half-blown rose; but fortune, O! She is corrupted, chang'd, and won from thee; she adulterates hourly with thine uncle John; And with her golden hand hath pluck'd on France To trend down fair respect of sovereignty, And made his majesty the bawd to theirs. France is a bawd to fortune, and king John; That strumpet fortune, that usurping John:— Tell me, thou fellow, is not France forsworn? Envenom him with words; or get thee gone, And leave those woes alone, which I alone Am bound to under-bear.

Pardon me, madem, I may not go without you to the kings.

Coast. Thou may'st, thou shalt, I will not go with thee:

I will instruct my sorrows to be proud; For grief is proud, and makes his owner stout. To me, and to the state of my great grief, Let kings assemble; for my grief's so great, That no supporter but the huge firm earth Can hold it up: hers I and sorrow sit; Here is my throne, bid kings come bow to it.

Const. You have beguited me with a counterfeit.

Resembling majesty; which, being touch'd, and

A widow cries; be husband to me, heavens? Let not the hours of this ungodly day Wear out the day in peace; but, ere sunset, Set armed discord twist these perjur'd kings ! Hear me, O, hear me!

Lady Constance, peace. Aust. Const. War! war! no peace! peace is to me WAT.

O Lymoges! O Austria! thou dost shame That bloody spoil: Thou slave, thou wretch, thou coward;

Thou little valiant, great in villany! Thou ever strong upon the stronger side! Thou fortune's champion, that doet never fight To teach thee safety i thou art perjur'd too, And sooth'st up greatness. What a fool art thou, Aramping fool; to brag, and stamp, and swear, Upon my party! Thou cold-blooded slave. Hast thou not spoke like thunder on my side? Been aworn my soldier? bidding me depend Upon thy stars, thy fortune, and thy strength? And dost thou now fall over to my foes? Thou wear a lion's hide! doff' it for shame,

And hang a calf's-skin on those recreant limbs.

Anst. O, that a man should speak those words to me!

Bast. And hang a call's-skin on those recreant limbs.

Aust. Thou dar'st not say so, villain, for thy life. Bast. And hang a calf's akin on those recreant limbs.

K. John. We like not thin; thou dost forger thyself.

Enter Pandulph.

K. Phi. Here comes the holy legate of the pope. Pand. Hail, you anointed deputies of heaven !— To thee, king John, my holy errand is. I Pandulph, of fair Milan cardinal, And from pope Innocent the legate here, Do, in his name, religiously demand Why thou against the church, our holy mother, So wilfully dost spurn; and, force perforce, Keep Stephen Langton, chosen archbishop Of Canterbury, from that holy see? This, in our foresaid holy father's name, Pope Innocent, I do domand of thee.

K. John. What earthly name to interrogatories Can task the free breath of a sacred king? Thou canst not, cardinal, device a name So slight, unworthy, and ridiculous, To charge me to an answer, as the pope Tell him this tale; and from the mouth of England Add thus much more,—That no Italian priest Shall tithe or tell in our dominions; But as we under heaven are supreme head, So, under him, that great supremacy,

A. PAL Brother of England, you maspheme in this. his. Though you, and all the kings of K. John. Christendom,

Are led so grossly by this moddling priest, Dreading the curse that money may buy out; And, by the merit of vile gold, dross, dust, Purchase corrupted pardon of a man, Who, in that sale, sells pardon from himself: Though you, and all the rest, so grossly led, This juggling witchcraft with revenue cherish; Yet I, alone, alone do me oppose Against the pope, and count his friends my foes.

Pand. Then, by the lawful power that I have, Thou shalt stand curs'd, and excommunicate: And blessed shall he be, that doth revolt From his allegiance to a heretic; And meritorious shall that hand be call'd, Canonized, and worshipp'd as a saint,

That takes away by any secret course

Thy hateful life. Const. O, lawful let it be, That I have room with Rome to curse a while! Good father cardinal, cry thou, amen, To my keen curses; for, without my wrong, There is no tongue hath power to curse him right. Pand. There's law and warrant, lady, for my curse. Const. And for mine too; when law can do no right,

Let it be lawful, that law bar no wrong: Law cannot give my child his kingdom here; For he, that holds his kingdom, holds the law: Therefore, since law itself is perfect wrong, How can the law forbid my tongue to curse?

Pand. Philip of France, on peril of a curse,

Let go the hand of that arch-heretic And raise the power of France upon his head, Unless he do submit himself to Rome.

Eli. Look'st thou pale, France? do not let go thy hand.

Const. Look to that, devil! lest that France repent.

And, by disjoining hands, hell lose a soul.

Aust. Well, russian, I must pocket up these wrongs, Because-

Bast.

Your breeches best may carry them. K. John. Philip, what say'st thou to the cardinal?

Const. What should he say, but as the cardinal? Lew. Bethink you, father; for the difference Is, purchase of a heavy curse from Rome,

Or the light loss of England for a friend: Forego the easier.

Blanch. That's the curse of Rome. Const. O Lewis, stand fast; the devil tempts thee here,

In likeness of a new untrimmed bride. Blanch. The lady Constance speaks not from her faith,

But from her need. Const. O, if thou grant my need,

Which only lives but by the death of faith,

(1) 'When unadorn'd, adorn'd the most.' Thomson's Autumn, 206.

A. JUILTI. THE KING IS MOV'C, and ans to this. Const. O, be remov'd from him, and answer well Aust. Do so, king Philip; hang no more in doub.
Bast. Hang Rothing but a call's-skin, most sweet

K. Phi. I am perplex'd, and know not what to av. Pand. What can'st thou say, but will perplex thee more,

If thou stand excommunicate, and curs'd? K. Phi. Good reverend father, make my perset yours.

And tell me, how you would bestow yourself. This royal hand and mine are newly knit; And the conjunction of our inward souls Married in league, coupled and link'd together With all religious strength of sacred vows; The latest breath that gave the sound of words, Was deep-sworn faith, peace, amity, true love, Between our kingdoms, and our royal selves; And even before this truce, but new before,— No longer than we well could wash our hands, To clap this royal bargain up of peace.— Heaven knows, they were besmear'd and overstain'd

With slaughter's pencil; where revenge did paint The fearful difference of incensed kings: And shall these hands, so lately purg'd of blood, So newly join'd in love, so strong in both, Unyoke this seizure, and this kind regreet? Play fast and loose with faith? so jest with heaver, Make such unconstant children of ourselves, As now again to snatch our palm from palm Unswear faith sworn; and on the marriage bed Of smiling peace to march a bloody hest, And make a riot on the gentle brow Of true sincerity? O holy sir,
My reverend father, let it not be so:
Out of your grace, devise, ordain, impose
Some gentle order; and then we shall be bless'i

To do your pleasure, and continue friends.

Pand. All form is formless, order orderless,
Save what is opposite to England's love. Therefore, to arms! be champion of our church! Just. King Philip, listen to the cardinal.

Or let the church, our mother, breathe her curse,

Bast. And hang a calf's-skin on his recreant A mother's curse, on her revolting son.

France, thou may'st hold a serpent by the tonget. A cased lion by the mortal paw,

A fasting tiger safer by the tooth,

Than keep in peace that hand which thou dost hold. K. Phi. I may disjoin my hand, but not my faith. Pand. So mak'st thou faith an enemy to faith, And, like a civil war, set'st oath to oath, Thy tongue against thy tongue. O, let the row First made to heaven, first be to heaven perform 4 That is, to be the champion of our church!

What since thou swor'st, is sworn against thysi And may not be performed by thyself: For that, which thou hast sworn to do amiss, Is not amiss when it is truly done And being not done, where doing tends to ill, The truth is then most done not doing it: The better act of purposes mistook Is, to mistake again; though indirect, Yet indirection thereby grows direct, And falsehood falsehood cures; as fire cools fire,

Within the scorched veins of one new burn'd. It is religion, that doth make vows kept;

(2) Exchange of salutation.

But thou hast sworn against religion; France, I om burn'd up with inflaming By what thou swear'st, against the thing thou A rage, whose best half this condition swear'st;

And real'st an oath the surety for thy truth Against an oath: The truth thou art unsure To swear, swear only not to be forsworn ; Else, what a mockery should it be to swear! But thou dost swear only to be forsworn; And most forsworn, to keep what thou dost swear. Therefore, thy latter vows, against thy first, Is in thyself rebellion to thyself: And better conquest never caust thou make, Than arm thy constant and thy nobler parts Against those giddy loose suggestions: Upon which halter next and thy nobler Upon which better part our preyers come in, If thou vouchsafe them; but, if not, then know, The peril of our curses light on thee; So heavy, as thou shalt not shake them off, But, in despair, die under their black weight.

. Just. Rebellion, flat rebellion ! Will't not be? Bart.

Will not a calf's-skin stop that mouth of thine? Lese. Father, to arms!

Upon thy wedding day? Blanch. Against the blood that thou hast married? What, shall our least be kept with slaughter'd men? Shall braying trumpets, and foud churlish drums, Clamours of hell—he measures: to our pomp? O husband, bear me!—ah, alack, how new Is husband in my mouth !- even for that name, Which till this time my tongue did ne'er pronounce, Upon my knee I beg, go not to arms Against mine uncle.

Const.

O, upon my knee,
Made hard with kneeling, I do pray to thee,
Thou virtuous dauphin, after not the doom Fore-thought by heaven.

Blanch. Now shall I see thy love; What motive

Be stronger with thee than the name of wife?

Const. That which upholdeth him that thee upholds, His honour: O, thine honour, Lowis, thine honour? Lew. I muse, your majesty doth seem so cold, When such profound respects do pull you on.

Pand. I will denounce a curse upon his head. Must by the hungry now be fed upon : K. Phi. Thou shalt not need:—England, Pil fall Use our commission in his utmost force.

SCENE II.—The same. Plains near Angiors.
Alarums, Excursions. Enter the Bastard, with Austria's head.

Bast. Now, by my life, this day grows wondrous hot;

Some airy devil hovers in the sky, And pours down mischief. Austria's head lie there; While Philip breathes.

Enter King John, Arthur, and Hubert.

K. John. Hubert, keep this boy: - Philip, make

My mother is assailed in our tent, And ta'ch, I fear.

Bast. My lord, I rescu'd her; Her highness is in safety, fear you not; But on, my liege: for very little pains

Will bring this labour to a happy end.

SCENE III.—The some. Alarwas; Excur-sions; Retreat. Enter King John, Elinor, Arthur, the Bastard, Hubert, and Lords.

K. John. So shall it be; your grace shall stay behind, [To Elinor. So strongly guarded.—Courin, look not sad:

To Arthur. Thy grandam loves thee; and thy uncle will

As dear he to thee as thy father was Arth. O, this will make my mother die with grief.

K. John. Cousin, [To the Bastard.] away for England; haste before a And, ere our coming, see thou shake the bags Of hoarding abbots: angels imprisoned Set thou at liberty: the fat ribs of peace

Basi. Bell, book, and candle, shall not drive me

K. John. Coz, farewell, [Emi Bustard.

Eli. Come hither, little kinsman; hark, a word. K. John. Come hither, Hubert. O my gentle Hubert, We owe thee much; within this wall of flesh There is a soul, counts thee her creditor, And with advantage means to pay thy love: And, my good friend, thy voluntary eath Lives in this bosom, dearly cherished. Give me thy hand. I had a thing to say,— But I will fit it with some better time. By heaven, Hubert, I am almost asham'd To say what good respect I have of thee.

Find. I am much bounder to your majesty

K. John. Good friend, thou hast no cause to say ao yet:

(3) Pores,

(4) Gold colo,

But thou shalt have; and creep time ne'er so slow, Doth want example: Who hath read, or heard, Yet it shall come, for me to do thee good. I had a thing to say,—But let it go: The sun is in the heaven, and the proud day, Attended with the piessures of the world, Is all too wanton, and too full of gawda.

To give me audience:—If the midnight bell Did, with his iron tongue and brazen mouth, Sound one unto the drowsy race of fight; If this same were a church-yard where we stand, And thou possessed with a thousand wrongs; And thou possessed with a thousand wrongs;
Or if that surly spirit, melancholy,
Had bak'd thy blood, and made it heavy-thick,
(Which, else, runs tickling up and down the veins,
Making that idox, laughter, keep men's eyes,
And strain their cheeks to idle merriment, A passion hateful to my purposes;)
Or if that thou could'st see me without eyes, Hear me without thine ears, and make reply Without a tongue, using conceils alone, Without eyes, ears, and harmful sound of words; Then, in despite of brooded watchful day, I would into thy bosom pour my thoughts: But ah, I will not: - Yet I love thee well; And, by my troth, I think, thou lov'st me well.

Hub. So well, that what you bid me undertake, Though that my death were adjunct? to my act, By heaven, I'd do't. Do not I know, thou would'st? K. John

Good Hubert, Hubert, Hubert, throw thine eye On you young boy: I'll tell thee what, my friend,

He is a very scrpent in my way: And, wheresoe'er this foot of mine doth tread, He lies before me: Dost thou understand me! Thou art his keeper.

And I will keep him so,

That he shall not offend your majesty.

K. John. Death. Hub.

My ford?

K. John. Hub. K. John. A grave. He shall not live. Enough.

I could be merry now: Hubert, Liove thee; Well, Pil not say what I intend for thee: Remember .- Madam, fare you well: I'll send those powers o'er to your majesty.

Eli. My blessing go with thee! For England, cousin: K. John. Hubert shall be your man, attend on you With all true duty.—On toward Calais, ho Excunt.

Are we not beaten? Is not Angiers loat? Arthur ta'en prisoner? divers dear friends slain? And bloody England into England gone, O'erbearing interruption, spite of France? Lew. What he hath won, that hath he forfified: So hot a speed with such advice dispoa'd,

Such temperate order in so fierce a cause.

Of any kindred action like to this?

K. Phi. Well could I bear that England had this praise, So we could find some pattern of our shape.

Enter Constance.

Look, who comes here! a grave unto a soul; Holding the sternal spirit, against her will, In the vite prison of afflicted breath:— I prythee, lady, go away with me. Const. Lo. now! now see the issue of your peace!

K. Phi. Patience, good lady! comfort, gentle

Constance ! Coast. No, I dely all counsel, all redress, But that which ends all counsel, true redress, Death, death:—O amiable lovely death? Thou odoriferous stench! sound rottenness! Arise forth from the couch of lasting night, Thou hate and terror to prosperity, And I will kiss thy détestable bones; And put my eye-balls in thy vaulty brows; And ring these fingers with thy household worms; And stop this gap of breath with fulsome dust, And he a carrion monster like thyself: Come, grin on me; and I will think thou smillst, And buss thee as thy wife! Misery's love, O, come to me!

K. Phi. O fair affliction, peace. Const. No, no, I will not, having breath to cry:-O, that my tongue were in the thunder's mouth. Then with a passion would I shake the world; And rouse from sleep that fell anatomy, Which cannot hear a lady's feeble voice, Which scorns a modern' invocation.

Pand. Lady, you utter madness, and not sorrow.

Const. Thou art not holy to belie me so;

I am not mad: this hair I tear, is swine; My name is Constance; I was Geffrey's wife; Young Arthur is my son, and he is lost: I am not mad;—I would to beaven, I were! For thee, 'its like I should forget myself: O, if I could, what grief should I forget!— Preach some philosophy to make me mad, And thou shall be caponiz'd, cardinal; For, being not mad, but sensible of grief, My reasonable part produces reason How I may be delivered of these woes, And teaches me to kill or hang myself If I were mad, I should forget my son : Or madly think, a babe of clouts were he : I am not mad; too well, too well I feel
The different plague of each calamity.

K. Phi. Bind up those treates: O, what love I note In the fair multitude of those her hairs ! Where but by chance a silver drop hath fallen,

Rind up your hairs. Const. Yes, that I will; and wherefore wift I do it? I tore them from their bonds; and cried aloud, O that these hands could so redeem my sea, As they have given these hairs their liberty? But now I envy at their liberty, And will again commit them to their bonds, Because my poor child is a prisoner.——
And, father cardinal, I have heard you my, That we shall see and know our friends in heaven;

(8) Refuse. (6) Overcome. (7) Company If that be true, I shall see my hoy again; For, since the birth of Cain, the first male child, To him that did but yesterday suspire, There was not such a gracious' creature born. But now will canker sorrow eat my bud, And chase the native beauty from his check, And he will look as hollow as a ghost; As dim and meagrs as an ague's lit : And so he'll die; and, rising so again, When I shall meet him in the court of heaven, I small not know him: therefore never, never Must I behold my pretty Arthur more.

Pand. You hold too beloous a respect of grief.

Const. He talks to me, that never had a son.

K. Phi. You are as fond of grief, as of your child. Const. Grief fills the room up of my absent child, Lies in his bed, walks up and down with me; Puts on his pretty looks, repeats his words, Remembers me of all his gracious parts, Stuffs out his vacant garments with his form; Then, have I reason to be fond of grief, Fare you well: had you such a loss as I, I could give better comfort than you do.-I will not keep this form upon my head, [Tearing off her head-dress. When there is such disorder in my wit. O lord! my boy, my Arthur, my fair son!

What have you lost by losing of this day?

Lew. All days of glory, joy, and happiness.

Pand. If you have won it, certainly you had. No, no: when fortune means to men most good, No, no: when fortune means to men most good, She looks upon them with a threatening eye.
This strange, to think how much king John hath lost In this which he accounts so clearly won:
Are not you grieved, that Arthur is his prisoner?
Lew. As heartily, as he is glad he hath him.
Pand. Your maind is all as youthful as your blood.
Now hear me areas with a prophetic arrivit.

Now hear me speak with a prophetic spirit; For even the breath of what I mean to speak Shall blow each dust, each straw, each little rub, Out of the path which shall directly lead Thy foot to England's throne; and, therefore, mark. John hath seiz'd Arthur; and it cannot be, That, whiles warm life plays in that infunt's veins, The misplac'd John should entertain an hour, One minute, nay, one quiet breath of rest: A sceptre, snatch'd with an unruly hand, Must be as boisterously maintain'd as gain'd: And he, that stands upon a slippery place, Makes nice of no vile hold to stay him up: That John may stand, then Arthur needs must fall; So be it, for it cannot be but so.

Lew. But what shall I gain by young Arthur's fall ?

Pand. You, in the right of lady Blanch, your wife May then make all the claim that Arthur did.

(5) Tapestry. (1) Breathe, (2) Graceful.

Lew. And lose it, life and all, as Arthur did, Pand. How green are you, and fresh in this old world:

John lays you plots; the times conspire with you: For he, that steeps his safety in true blood, Shail find but bloody safety, and untrue.
This act, so evilly born, shall cool the hearts (the all by records and freezy on their seal.) Of all his people, and freeze up their zeal; That none so small advantage shall step forth, To check his reign, but they will cherish it: No natural exhalation in the sky, No 'scape of nature, no distemper'd day, No common wind, no customed event, But they will pluck away his natural cause, And call them meteors, prodigies, and signs, Abortives, presages, and tongues of heaven,

Plainly denouncing vengeance upon John.

Lew. May be, he will not touch young Arthur's life,

But hold himself safe in his prisonment.

Pand. O, sir, when he shall hear of your approach, If that young Arthur be not gone already, Even at that news he dies; and then the hearts Of all his people shall revolt from him,

And kiss the lips of unacquainted change;
And pick strong matter of revolt, and wrath, Out of the bloody fingers' ends of John. Methinks, I see this hurly all on foot; And, O, what better matter breeds for you, Than I have nam'd!—The bastard Faulconbridge Lew. There's nothing in this world, can make is now in England, rensucking the church, me joy:

Is now in England, rensucking the church,

Offending charity: If but a dozen French

Were there in arms, they would be as a call

To train ten thousand English to their side; Anon becomes a mountain. O noble Dauphin, Go with me to the king: 'Tis wonderful, What may be wrought out of their discontent: Now that their souls are topful of offence, For England go; I will what on the king.

Lew. Strong reasons make strong actions: Let

ACT IV.

SCENE I .- Northampton. A room in the castle. Enter Hubert and two Attendants.

Hub. Heat me these irons hot: and, look thou stand

Within the arras: when I strike my foot Upon the bosom of the ground, rush forth And bind the boy, which you shall find with me, Fast to the chair: be heedful: bence, and watch. I Attend. I hope, your warrant will bear out the deed. Hub. Uncleanly scruples! Fear not you: look to't.— [Execut Attendants, Young lad, come forth; I have to say with you.

Enfer Arthur.

Arth. Good morrow, Hubert. Good morrow, little prince. Hub. Arth. As little prince (having so great a title o be more prince) as may be.—You are sad. To be more prince) as may be.—You Hub. Indeed, I have been merrier. Arth. Mercy on me !

Methinks, nobody should be sad but I: Yet, I remember, when I was in France, Young gentlemen would be as sad as might,

Only for wantonness. By my christendom, So I were out of prison, and kep' sheep, I should be as merry as the day is long; And so I would be here, but that I doubt My uncle practises more harm to me: He is afraid of me, and I of him: Is it my fault that I was defined's son? No, indeed, is't not; And I would to heaven, I were your son, so you would love me, Hubert.

Hub. If I talk to him, with his innocent prate

He will awake my mercy, which lies dead: Therefore I will be sudden, and despatch. [Aside. Arth. Are you sick, Hubert I you look pale today: In sooth, I would you were a little sick: That I might sit all night, and watch with you: I warrant, I love you more than you do me.

Hub. His words do take possession of my bo-8011.

Read here, young Arthur, [Showing a paper.]
How now, footish rhound? [Aside. Aside. Turning dispiteous torture out of door! I must be brief; lest resolution drop Out at mine eyes, in teader womanish tears, Can you not read it? is it not fair writ?

Arth. Too fairly, Hubert, for so foul effect: Must you with hot irons burn out both mine eyes?

Hub. Young boy, I must. Arth. And will you? Hub. And I will,

I kuit my handkerchies about your brows, (The best I had, a princess wrought it me,) And I did never ask it you again: And with my hand at midnight held your head; And, like the watchful minutes to the hour, Still and onon cheer'd up the heavy time; Saying, What lack you? and, Where lies your gricf? Or, What good love may I perform for you? Many a poor man's son would have lain still, And ne'er have spoke a loving word to you; But you at your sick service had a prince. Nay, you may think, my love was crafty love, And call it comming; Do, an if you will:

If heaven be pleas a that you must use me ill, Why, then you must .- Will you put out mine eyes? These eyes, that never did, nor never shall, So much as frown on you

I have sworn to do it; Hub. And with hot from must I burn them out. Arth. Ab, none, but in this iron age, would do it i The iron of itself, though heat red-hot, Approaching near these eyes, would drink my lears, And quench his flery indignation, Even la the matter of mine innocence: Nay, after that, consume away in rust, But for containing fire to harm mine eye, Are you more stubborn-hard than hommer'd iron? An if an angel should have come to me, And told me, Hubert should put out mine eves, I would not have believ'd no tongue, but Hubert's. Hub. Come forth. (Stamps.

Re-enter Attendunts, with cord, irons, &c. Do as I bid you do.

Arth. O, save me, Hubert, save me! of eyes are out

Even with the ferce looks of these bloody men.

(I) In cruelty I have not deserved.

Hub. Give me the iron, I say, and bind him here. Arth. Alsa, what need you be so boist rous rough?

I will not struggle, I will stand stone-still. For heaven's sake, Hubert, let me not be bound! Nay, hear me, Hubert!! drive these men away, And I will sit as quiet as a lamb;

I will not stir, nor wince, nor speak a word, Nor look upon the iron angerly:

Thrust but these men away, and I'll forgive you, Whatever torment you do put me to.

Hub. Go, stand within; let use alone with blin.

Hub. Come, boy, prepare yourself. .lrth. Is there no remedy? Hub. None, but to lose your cycle. Arth. O heaven!—that there were but a little in yours, A grain, a dust, a gnat, a wand'ring hair, Any aunovance in that precious sense! Then, feeling what small things are boist rous there,

Your vile intent must needs seem horrible. Hub. Is this your promise? go to, hold your tongue, Arth. Hubert, the utterance of a brace of tongues Arth. Have you the heart? When your head Must needs want pleading for a pair of eyes:

did but ache,

Let me not hold my tongue; let me not, Hubert! Or, Hubert, if you will, cut out my tongue, So I may keep mine eyes; O, spare mine eyes; Though to no use, but still to look on you! I.o. by my troth, the instrument is cold, And would not have me.

Hub. l can heat it, boy. drik. No, in good sooth; the fire is dead with grief. Being create for comfort, to be us'd In undeserv'd extremes: See else yourself; There is no malice in this burning coal; The breath of heaven bath blown his spirit out, And strew'd repentant ashes on his head.

And strew of repensar anner on an seas.

Hab. But with my breath I can revive it, boy.

Arth. And if you do, you will but make it black,
And glow with shame of your proceedings, Hubert:
Nay, it, perchance, will sparkle in your eyes;
And, like a dog that is compelled to fight. Snatch at his master that doth tarre? him on. All things, that you should use to do me wrong, Deny their office: only you do lack That mercy, which heree fire, and iron, extends, Creatures of note, for mercy-lacking uses. Hub. Well, see to live; I will not touch thine суез For all the treasures that thine uncle owes:* Yet am I sworn, and I did purpose, buy, With this same very iron to burn them out.

Arth. O, now you took like Hubert! all this while You were disguised.

Ponce: no More. Hub. Adieu ; Your uncle must not know but you are dead: I'll fill those danged spies with false reports. And, pretty child, sleep doubtless, and secure, That Hubert, for the wealth of all the world, Will not offend thee.

Arth. O heaven !- I thank you, Hubert. Hub. Silence; no more: Goclosely in with nor Much danger do I undergo for thee. [Exemu.

Fon. This is the man should do the blood; seed; He show'd his warrant to a friend of mine: The image of a wicked heinous fault Lives in his eye; that close aspect of his Does show the mood of a much-troubled breast;

See. The colour of the king doth come and go, Between his purpose and his conscience, Like heralds 'twixt two dreadful battles set :

His passion is so ripe, it needs must break.

Pers. And, when it breaks, I fear, will issue thence

The foul corruption of a sweet child's death.

K. John. We cannot hold mortality's strong hand:

Good lords, although my will to give is living. The suit which you degrand is gone and dead: He tells us, Arthur is deceased to night.

Sal. Indeed, we fear'd, his sickness was past cure. Pem. Indeed we heard how near his death he was, Before the child himself felt he was sick:

This must be answer'd, either here, or hence, K. John. Why do you bend such solemn brows on me i Think you, I bear the shears of destiny? Have I commandment on the pulse of life? Sal. It is apparent foul play; and "ils shame,

That greatness should so grossly offer it:
So three it in your game! and so farewell!
Pers. Stay yet, lord Salisbury; I'll go with thea,
And find the inheritance of this poor child,

His little kingdom of a forced grave. That blood, which ow'd the breath of all this isle, Three foot of it doth hold; Bad world the while This must not be thus borne: this will break out To all our sorrows, and ere long, I doubt.

ACT V.

K. John. Thus have I yielded up into your hard

The circle of my glory.

Pand.

Take again

[Giving John the crown.

From this my band, as holding of the pape, Your sovernign greatness and authority.

K. John. Now keep your holy word: go meet the French; And from his holiness use all your power To stop their marches, fore we are inflam's. Our discontented counties de revolt : Our people quarrel with obedience; Swearing alteriance, and the love of soul, To stranger blood, to foreign royalty. This inundation of misteraper'd humour Rests by you only to be qualified. Then pause not; for the present time's so sick, That present medicine must be ministered, Or overthrow incurable ensues, Pand. It was my breath that blew this tempest up. Unon your stubborn usage of the pope : But, since you are a gentle convertite. My tongue shall hush again this storm of war And make fair weather in your blustering land. On this Ascension-day, remember well, If thou didst but consent Upon your outh of service to the pay Go I to make the French lay down their arms.

K. John. In this Ascension-day? Did not the prophet Say, that, before Ascension-day at noon

My crown I should give off? Even so I have: I did suppose, it should be on constraint : But, heaven be thank'd, it is but voluntary.

Enter the Bantard.

Bast. All Kent hath yielded; nothing there holds out,

But Dover castle: Lundon bath received. Like a kind host, the dauphin and his powers : Your nobles will not hear you, but are gone To offer service to your enemy;

And wild amuzement hurries up and down The little number of your doubtful friends.

K. John. Would not my lords return to me

again,

After they heard young Arthur was alive?

Bast. They found him dead, and cast into the streets;

An empty casket, where the jewel of life By some damn'd hand was robb'd and ta'en away. K. John. That villain Hubert told me, he did Bast. So, on my soul, he did, for aught he knew. But wherefore do you droop? why look you sad? Be great in act, as you have been in thought;

(4) Unowned. (5) Girdha Let not the world see fear, and sad distrust, Govern the motion of a kingly eye: Be stirring as the time; be fire with fire; Threaten the threat ner, and outlace the brow Of bragging horror: so shall inferior eyes, That borrow their behaviours from the great, Grow great by your example, and put on The dauntless spirit of resolution.

A way; and glister like the god of war,

When be intendeth to become the field: Show boldness, and sapiring confidence.
What, shall they seek the lion in his don,
And fright him there? and make him tremble there?
O, let if not be said!—Forage, and run
To meet displeasure further from the doors; And grapple with him, ere he come so nigh.

K. John. The legate of the pope hath been with me. Avid i have made a happy peace with him; And he hath premis'd to damies the powers! Led by the dauphin.

O, inglarious league! Shall we, upon the footing of our land, Send fair-play orders, and make compromise, Insinuation, parley, and base truce, To arms invasive i shall a heardless boy, A cocker'd<sup>a</sup> silken wanton, brave our fields, And flesh his spirit in a warlike soil Mocking the air with colours idly spread, And find no check? Let us, my liege, to arms: Perchance, the cardinal cannot make your peace; Or if he do, let it at least be said,

They saw we had a purpose of defence.

K. John. Have you the ordering of this present time.

Bast, Away then, with good courage; yet, I know, Our party may well meet a prouder foe. [Except.]

SCENE II.—A plain, near St. Edmund's-Bury. Enter, in arms, Lewis, Salisbury, Melun, Pem-brake, Bigot, and soldiers.

Lew. My lord Melun, let this be copied out, And keep it safe for our remembrance : Return the precedent to these lords again ; That, having our fair order written down, Both they, and we, perusing o'er these notes, May know wherefore we took the secrament, And keep our faiths firm and inviolable.

Sal. Upon our sides it never shall be broken. And, poble dauphin, albeit we swear A voluntary seal, and unorg'd faith, To your proceedings; yet, believe me, prince, I am not glad that such a sore of time Should seek a plaster by contemn'd revolt, And heal the inveterate canker of one wound By making many: O, it grieves my soul, That I must draw this metal from my side, To be a widow-maker; O, and there, Where honourable rescue, and defence, Cries out upon the name of Salisbury: But such is the infection of the time, That, for the health and physic of our right, We cannot deal but with the very hand Of stern injustice and confused wrong, And is't not pity, O my grieved friends! That we, the sons and children of this isle. Were born to see so sad an hour as this; Wherein we step after a stranger march Upon her gentle bosom, and fill up Her enemies' ranks, (I must withdraw and weep Upon the spot of this enforc'd cause,) To grace the gentry of a land remote,

(2) Fondled. (1) Forces.

And follow unacquainted colours here?
What, here?—O nation, that thou could stre That Neptune's arms, who clippeth' thee about.
Would bear thee from the knowledge of thyself. And grapple thee unto a Pagan shore; Where those two Christian armies might combine The blood of malice in a vein of league. And not to spend it so unneighbourly !

Lew. A noble temper dost thou show in this; And great affections, wrestling in thy bosom, Do make an earthquake of nobility, O, what a noble combat hast thou fought Between compulsion and a brave respect !* Let me wipe off this honourable dew That silverly doth progress on thy cheeks: My heart hath melted at a lady's tears, Being an ordinary inundation; But this effusion of such manly drops, This shower, blown up by tempest of the soul Startles mine eyes, and makes me more amaz'd. Than had I seen the vaulty top of heaven Figur'd quite o'er with burning meteors. Lift up thy brow, renowned Salisbury,
And with a great heart heave away this storm:
Commend these waters to those baby eyes, That never saw the giant world enrug d; Nor met with fortune other than at feasts For mer with fortune ounce that at reason, Full warm of blood, of mirth, of gessiping. Come, come; for thou shall thrust thy hand as deep Into the purse of rich prosperity, As Lewis himself:—so, nobles, shall you all, That knit your sinews to the atrength of miss.

Enter Pandulph attended.

And even there, methinks, an angel spales: Look, where the holy legate comes space, To give us warrant from the hand of heaven; And on our actions set the name of right, With holy breath.

Pand, Hail, noble prince of France!
The next is this,—King John hath reconcil'd. Himself to Rome; his spirit is come in That so stood out against the holy church, The great metropolis and see of Rome: Therefore thy threat'ning colours now wind up, And tame the savage spirit of wild war; That, like a lion foster'd up at hand, It may lie gently at the foot of peace. And be no further harmful than in show.

Lee. Your grace shall partion me, I will not back; I am too high-born to be propertied, To be a secondary at control, Or useful serving-man, and instrument,
To any sovereign state throughout the world.
Your breath first kindled the dead coal of wars, Between this chastis'd kingdom and myself And brought in matter that abould feed this fire; And now its far too huge to be blown out With that same weak wind which enkindled it. You taught me how to know the face of right, Acquainted me with interest to this had Yea, thrust this enterprize into my heart; And come you now to tell me, John hath made His peace with Rome? What is that peace to ma? I, by the honour of my marriago-sed,
After young Arthur, claim this land for mine;
And, now it is half-conquer'd, must I back,
Because that John hath made his peace with Rome? Am I Rome's slave? What penny hath Rome borne, What men provided, what musicos must, To undergrop this action? is't not I That undergo this charge? who else but I,

(3) Embraceth. (4) Love of country.

(5) Appropriated.

And such as to my claim are liable, Sweat in this business, and maintain this war? Have I not heard these islanders shout out, Fine le ruy? as I have bank'd their towns? Have I not here the best cards for the game, To win this easy match play'd for a crown? And shell I now give o'er the yielded set?
No, on my soul, it never shall be said.

Pend. You look but on the outside of this work.

Les. Outside or inside, I will not return Till my attempt so much be glorified As to my simple hope was promised Before I drew this gallant head of war, And cuil'd these fiery spirits from the world, To outlook! conquest, and to win renown Even in the jaws of danger and of deutin.

[Trumpet sounds. What lusty trumpet thus doth summon us?

Enjer the Bastard, altended.

Rest. According to the fair play of the world. Let me have audience; I am sent to speak :--My holy lord of Mihan, from the king I come, to learn how you have dealt for him; And as you answer, I do know the scope And warrant limited unto my tongue. Pand. The dauphin is too wilful-opposite,

And will not temporize with my entreaties; He faily says, he'll not lay down his arms. Bast. By all the blood that ever fury breath'd,

The youth says well: -Now hear our English king; For thus his royalty doth speak in me. He is prepar'd; and reason too, he should: This spish and unmannerly approach, This harness'd masque, and unadvised revel, This unhair'd sauciness, and boyish troops, The king doth smile at; and is well prepar'd To whip this dwarfish war, these pigmy arms, From out the circle of his territories. That hand, which had the strength, even at your door.

To codge! you, and make you take the hatch; To dive, like buckets, in concealed wells; To crouch in litter of your stable planks; To lie, like pawas, lock'd up in chests and trunks; To hig with swine; to seek sweet safety out In vanits and prisons; and to thrill, and shake, Even at the crying of your nation's crow, Thinking his voice an armed Englishman; Shall that victorious hand be feebled here, That in your chambers gave you chastisement? No: Know, the gallant monarch is in arms; And like an eagle o'er his aiery' towers, To some annoyance that comes near his nest. And you degenerate, you ingrate revolts. You bloody Nerces, ripping up the womb Of your dear mother England, blush for shame: For your own ladies, and pale-visag'd maids, Like Amazons, come tripping after drums; Their thimbles into armed gauntiets change, Their neelds to lances, and their gentle hearts To ferce and bloody inclination.

Lew. There end thy brave, and turn thy face in peace,

Strike up the drums; and let the tongue of war

(I) Face down. (3) Covered:

Plead for our interest, and our being here.

Bast. Indeed, your drums, being beaten, will cry out; And so shall you, being beaten: Do but start An echo with the clamour of thy drum, And even at hand a drum is ready brac'd That shall reverberate all as loud as thine; Sound but snother, and another shall, As loud as thine, rattle the welkin's ear, And mock the deep-mouth'd thunder: for at hand (Not trusting to this balting legate here, Whom he hath us'd rather for sport than need,) Is warlike John; and in his forehead sits A bare-ribb'd death, whose office is this day To feast upon whole thousands of the French.

Lese. Strike up our arums, which are his, do not Bast. And thou shall find it, dauphin, do not (Execut.

SCENE III.—The same. A field of bu Alarums. Enter King John and Hubert. A field of buttle.

K. John. How goes the day with us? O, tell me, Hubert.

Hub. Badly, I fear: How fares your majesty?

K. John. This fever, that hath troubled me so loug,

Lies heavy on me; O, my heart is sick!

Enter a Missacnger.

Mess. My ford, your valiant hinaman, Faulcon bridge,

Desires your majesty to leave the field; And send him word by me, which way you go.

K. John. Tell him, toward Swinstead, to the abbey there.

Mess. Be of good comfort; for the great supply,

That was expected by the dauphin here,
Are wreck'd three nights ago on Goodwin sands.
This news was brought to Richard but even now;
The French fight coldly, and retire themselves.

K. John. Ah me! this tyrant fever hurns me up,

And will not let me welcome this good news. — Set on toward Swinstead: to my litter straight: Weakness possesseth me, and I am faint.

SCENE IV .- The same. Another part of the same. Enter Salisbury, Pembroke, Bigot, and olkers.

Sal. I did not think the king so stortd with friends, Pem. Up once again; put spirit in the French;
If they miscarry, we miscarry too.
Sai. That misbegotten devil, Faulconbridge,
In spite of spite, alone upholds the day.

Pew. They say, king John, sore sick, hath left the field.

Enter Melun wounded, and led by soldiers. Mrs. Lead me to the revolts of England here. Sal. When we were happy, we had other names. Part. It is the count Melun. Wounded to death,

Mel. Fly, noble English, you are bought and sold; * Unthread the rude eye of rebellion, And welcome home again discarded faith. Seek out king John, and fall before his feet; We shall during the precious to be spent
With such a brabbier.

Pand.
Bast. No, I will speak.
Lete.

We will attend to neither:—

Seek out any sount, and am quore ma rea;
For, if the French be lords of this loud day,
He's means to recompense the pains you take,
By cutting off your heads: Thus hath he sworn,
And I with him, and many more with me,
Upon the altar at Saint Edmund's-Bury;
Even on that altar, where we swore to you

Stella up the decrees: and let the torque of war. Dear amity and everlasting love.

Sal. May this be possible? may this be true?

Mel. Have I not hideous death within my view, Retaining but a quantity of life; Which bleeds away, even as a form of wax Resolved from his figure 'gainst the fire?' What in the world should make me now decaye, Since I must lose the use of all deceit?
Why should I then be false; since it is true That I must die here, and live hence by truth? I say again, if Lewis do win the day, I de is forsworn, if e'er those eyes of yours Hehold another day break in the east: But even this night, -whose black contagious breath Aiready smokes about the burning crest Of the eld, feeble, and day-wearied sun,— Even this ill night, your breathing shall expire; Paying the fine of rated treachery, Even with a freacherous fine of all your lives, If Lewis, by your assistance, win the day. Commend me to one Hubert, with your king; The love of him, -and this respect besides, For that my grandsire was an Englishman,-Awakes my conscience to confess all this. In lieus whereof, I pray you, bear me hence From forth the noise and rumour of the field Where I may think the remnant of my thoughts In peace, and part this body and my soul With contemplation and devout desires.

Sal. We do believe thee,—And beshrew my soul, But I do love the favour and the form Of this most fair occasion, by the which We will untread the steps of damned flight; And, like a bated and retired flood, Leaving our rankness and irregular course, Stoop low within those bounds we have o'erlook'd, To find you out. And calmly run on in obedience, Even to our ocean, to our great king John. My arm shall give thee help to bear thee bence; For I do see the cruel pangs of death Right in thine eye .- Away, my friends! New flight;

And happy newness, that intends old right, [Excunt, leading off Melun.

SCENE V .- The same. The French camp. Enter Lowis and his train.

Lew. The sun of heaven, methought, was loath to set

But stay'd, and made the western welkins blush, When the English measur'd backward their own ground, In faint retire: O, bravely came we off, When with a volley of our needless shot After such bloody toil, we bid good night; And wound our tatter'd colours clearly up, Last in the field, and almost lords of it!

Enter a Messenger.

Mass. Where is my prince, the dauphin?

Lew. Here: -- What news? Mess. The count Melun is slain; the English lords,

By his persuasion, are again fallen off: And your supply, which you have wish'd so long, Are cast away, and sunk, on Goodwin sands, Lew. Ah, foul shrewd news!—Beshrew thy very heart ! I did not think to be so sad to-night, As this hath made me.—Who was he, that said, King John did fig, au hour or two before The stumbling night did part our weary powers?

SCENE VI. An open place in the neighbourhood of Swinstead abbey. Enter the Bustard and Hubert, meeting.

Hub. Who's there? speak, ho! speak quickly, or i shoot.

Bast. A friend:-What art thou?

Hub. Of the part of England. Bast. Whither doet thou go? Hub. What's that to thee? Why may not I demand.

Of thine affairs, as well as thou of mine?

thine aflairs, as was Bast. Hubert, I think.
Thou hast a perfect thought: I will, upon all hazards, well believe Thou art my friend, that know'st my tongue so well:

Who art thou? Who thou wilt: an if you please, Bout. Thou may'st befriend me so much, as to think,

I come one way of the Plantagenets.

Hub. Unkind remembrance! thou, and eyeless night, Have done me shame :—Brave soldier, pardon me, That any accent, breaking from thy tongue, Should scape the true acquaintance of mine ear.

Basi. Come, come; sans compliment, what news abroad?

Hub. Why, here walk I, in the black brow of night,

Bast. Brief, then; and what's the news? Hub. O, my sweet sir, news fitting to the night, Black, fearful, comfortless, and horrible.

Best. Show me the very wound of this ill news; am no woman, I'll not swoon at it. Hub. The king, I fear, is poison'd by a monk: I left him almost speechiess, and broke out To acquaint you with this evil; that you might

The better arm you to the sudden time, Than if you had at leisure known of this. Bast. How did he take it? who did taste to him? Hub. A monk, I tell you; a resolved villain, Whose bowels suddenly burst out: the king

Yet speaks, and, peradventure, may recover.

Best. Who didst thou leave to tend his majorty? Hub. Why, know you not? the lords are all come back,
And brought prince Heary in their company;

At whose request the king hath pardon'd them,

And they are all about his majesty.

Bast. Withhold thine indignation, mighty heaven,
And tempt us not to bear above our power!

Pil tell thee, Hubert, half my power's this night,
Passing these flats, are taken by the tide,
These Lincoln washes have devoured them; Myself, well-mounted, hardly have escap'd. Away, before I conduct me to the king; I doubt he will be dead, or ere I come. [I SCENE VII.—The oralged of Swinstead abley. Enter Prince Henry, Salisbury, and Bigot. P. Hen. It is too late; the life of all his blood Is touch'd corruptibly; and his pure brain (Which some suppose the soul's frail dwelling-house, )

Doth, by the idle comments that it makes,

Enter Pembroke.

Proc. His highness yet doth speak; and holds belief

That, being brought into the open air, It would allay the burning quality Of that fell poison which assaileth him.

P. Hen. Let him be brought into the orchard

Doth he still rage?  $P_{rm}$

[Exit Bigot. He is more patient

Than when you left him; even now he sung.

P. Hen. O vanity of sickness! fierce extremes, P. Men. U vanny of accross: heree extremes, in their continuance, will not feel themselves. Death, having prey'd upon the outward parts, Leaves them insensible; and his siege is now Against the mind, the which he pricks and wounds With many legions of strange fantasies; Which, in their throng and press to that last hold, Confound themselves. The strange, that death should since.

Sat. Be of good comfort, prince; for you are born To set a form upon that indigest Which he bath left so shapeless and so rude.

Re-enter Bigot and attendants, who bring in King John in a chetr.

K. John. Ay, marry, now my soul hath elbowroom; It would not out at windows, nor at doors. There is so hot a summer in my bosom That all my bowels crumble up to dust:

I am a scribbled form, drawn with a pen Upon a parchment; and against this fire Do I shrink up.

P. Hes. How fares your majesty? K. John. Poison'd, -ill fare; -dead, forsook, cast off:

And none of you will hid the winter come, To thrust his icy fingers in my maw. Nor let my kingdom's rivers take their course Through my burn'd bosom; nor entreat the north To make his bleak winds kiss my parched lips, And comfort me with cold:—I do not ask you much, I beg cold comfort; and you are so strait, And so ingrateful, you deny me that.

P. Hen. O, that there were some virtue in my iears,

That might relieve you!

X. John.

Within me is a hell; and there the poison
Is, as a fond, conflu'd to tyramize
On unreprievable condemned blood. The salt in them is hot.

Enter the Bustard.

Bast. O, I am scalded with my violent motion, And spleen of speed to see your majesty. K. John. O cousin, thou art come to set mine eye.

The tackie of my beart is crack'd and burn'd; And all the shrouds, wherewith my life should sail,
And all the shrouds, wherewith my life should sail,
Are turned to one thread, one little hair:
My heart hath one poor string to stay it by,
Which holds but till the news be uttered;
and then all this there said to hair a the And then all this thou see'st, is but a clod, And module of confounded royalty.

Bast. The dauphin is preparing hitherward;

Where, heaven he knows, how we shall answer him : For, in a night, the best part of my power,

(1) Narrow, avaricious,

(2) Model.

As I upon advantage did remove, Were in the washes all unwarily, Devoured by the unexpected flood.

The bing dies. Sal. You breathe these dead news in as dead so car.-

My liegs! my lord!—But now a king,—now thus.
P. Hes. Even so must! run on, and even so stop. What surety of the world, what hope, what stay, When this was now a king, and now is clay!

Bast. Art thou gone so ! I do but stay behind,

To do the office for thee of revenge; And then my soul shall wait on thee to beaven, As it on earth bath been thy servant still. Now, now, you stars, that move in your right spheres,

Where he your powers? Show now your mended faiths;

And instantly return with me again, To push destruction, and perpetual shame, Out of the weak door of our fainting land: Straight let us seek, or straight we shall be sought;

The dauphin rages at our very heels.

Sal. It seems, you know not then so much as we:
The cardinal Pandulph is within at rest, Who half an hour since came from the dauphin; And brings from him such offers of our peace, As we with honour and respect may take, With purpose presently to leave this war. Bast. He will the rather do it, when he sees Ourselves well sinowed to our defence. Sal. Nay, it is in a manner done already; For many carriages he bath despatch'd To the sea-side, and put his cause and quarrel To the disposing of the cardinal: With whom yourself, myself, and other lords, If you think meet, this afternoon will post To consummate this business happily. Basi. Let it be so:—And you, my noble prince, With other princes that may best be spar'd, Shall wait upon your father's funeral.

P. Hen. At Worcester must his body be interrid;

Thither shall it then. Best. And happily may your sweet self put on The lineal state and glory of the lead?
To whom, with all submission, on my knee,
I do bequeath my faithful services
And true subjection everlastingly.
Sal. And the like tender of our love we make,

For so he will'd it.

To rest without a spot for evermore. P. Hen. I have a kind soul, that would give you

thanks,

And knows not how to do it, but with tears Bast. O, let us pay the time but needful wo. Since it hath been beforehand with our griefs.—
This England never did (nor never shall)
Lie at the proud foot of a conqueroe,
But when it first did help to wound itself. Now these her princes are come home again. Come the three corners of the world in arms. And we shall shock them: Nought shall make us

If England to itself do rest but true. (Ereal

ACT I.

SCENE I.—London. A room in the palace. Enter King Richard, attended; John of Gaunt, and other nobles, with him.

King Richard.

OLD John of Gaunt, time-honour'd Lancaster, Hast thou, according to thy oath and band, 1 Brought hither Henry Hereford thy bold son; Here to make good the boisterous late appeal, Which then our leisure would not let us hear, Against the duke of Norfolk, Thomas Mowbray?

Gaunt. I have, my liege.

K. Rich. Tell me moreover, hast thou sounded him,

If he appeal the duke on ancient malice; Or worthily as a good subject should, On some known ground of treachery in him? Gaunt. As near as I could sift him on that argument,

On some apparent danger seen in him, Aim'd at your highness; no inveterate malice.

K. Rich. Then call them to our presence; face to face And frowning brow to brow, ourselves will hear The accuser, and the accused, freely speak:— Exeunt some attendants.

High-stomach'd are they both, and full of ire, In rage deaf as the sea, hasty as fire.

Re-enter attendants, with Boling broke and Norfolk.

Boling. May many years of happy days befall My gracious sovereign, my most loving liege!

Nor. Each day still better other's happiness;
Until the heavens, envying earth's good hap,
Add an immortal title to your crown!

K. Rich. We thank you both: yet one but flatters us,

As well appeareth by the cause you come; Namely, to appeals each other of high treason. Cousin of Hereford, what dost thou object

(1) Bond. (2) Charge. (3) Uninhabitable.

Against the duke of Norfolk, Thomas Mowbray? Boling. First (heaven be the record of my speech!) In the devotion of a subject's love, Tendering the precious safety of my prince, And free from other misbegotten hate, Come I appellant to this princely presence.— Now, Thomas Mowbray, do I turn to thee, And mark my greeting well; for what I speak, My body shall make good upon this earth, Or my divine soul answer it in heaven. Thou art a traitor, and a miscreant; Too good to be so, and too bad to live; Since, the more fair and crystal is the sky, The uglier seem the clouds that in it fly. Once more, the more to aggravate the note, With a foul traitor's name stuff I thy throat; And wish (so please my sovereign,) ere I move, What my tongue speaks, my right-drawn sword may prove.

Nor. Let not my cold words here accuse my zeal: 'Tis not the trial of a woman's war, The bitter clamour of two eager tongues, Can arbitrate this cause betwixt us twain: The blood is hot, that must be cool'd for this, Yet can I not of such tame patience boast, As to be hush'd, and nought at all to say: First, the fair reverence of your highness curbs me From giving reins and spurs to my free speech; Which else would post, until it had return'd These terms of treason doubled down his throat. Setting aside his high blood's royalty, And let him be no kinsman to my llege, I do defy him, and I spit at him; Call him—a slanderous coward, and a villain: Which to maintain, I would allow him odds; And meet him, were I tied to run a-foot Even to the frozen ridges of the Alps, Or any other ground inhabitable<sup>2</sup>
Where ever Englishman durst set his foot.
Mean time, let this defend my loyalty,—
By all my hopes, most falsely doth he lie.
Boling. Pale trembling coward, there I throw my gage,

Disclaiming here the kindred of a king; And lay aside my high blood's royalty, Which lear, not reverence, makes thee to except: If guilty dread both left thee so much strength, As to take up mine honour's pawn, then stoop; By that, and all the rites of knighthood else, Will I make good against thee, arm to arm,
What I have spoke, or thou canst worse devise.

Nor. I take it up; and, by that sword I swear, Which gently lay'd my knighthood on my shoulder, I'll answer thee in any fair degree, Or chivalrous design of knightly trial:
And, when I mount, alive may I not light,
If be traitor, or unjustly fight!

K. Rick. What doth our cousin lay to Mow bray's charge?

It must be great, that can inherit us

So much as of a thought of ill in him.

Boling. Look, what I speak my life shall prove at true

That Mowbray hath receiv'd eight thousand nobles, In name of lendings for your highness' soldiers; The which he hath detain'd for lewd' employments, Like a false traitor, and injurious villain. Bosides I say, and will in battle prove,— Or here, or elsewhere, to the farthest verge That ever was survey'd by English eye,— That all the treasons, for these eighteen years Complotted and contrived in this land, Fetch from false Mowbray their first head and Throw down, my son, the duke of Norfolk's gage. apring.

Further 1 say,—and further will maintain Upon his bad life, to make all this good,—That he did plot the duke of Gloster's death; Suggest' his soon-believing adversaries; And, consequently, like a fraitor coward Shuc'd out his innocent soul through streams of blood:

Which blood, like sacrificing Abel's, cries, Even from the tongueless caverus of the earth, To me for justice, and rough chastisement; And by the glorious worth of my descent,

This arm shall do it, or this life be spent.

K. Rich. How high a pitch his resolution soars !-

Thomas of Norfolk, what say'st thou to this? Nor. O, let my soversign turn away his face, And bid his cars a little while be deaf, Till I have told this slander of his blood,

CAIS:

Were he my brother, nay, my kingdom's heir, (As he is but my father's brother's son,) Now by my sceptre's awe I make a you, Such neighbour nearness to our sacred blood Should nothing privilege him, nor partialize The unstooping firmness of my upright soul; He is our subject, Mowbray, so art thou; Free speech, and fearless, I to thee allow.

Nov. Then, Bolingbroke, as low as to thy heart, Through the false passage of thy throat, thou liest! Three parts of that receipt I had for Calais, Disburs'd I duly to his highness' soldiers: The other part reserv'd I by consent; For that my sovereign liege was in my debt, Upon remainder of a dear account Since last I went to France to fetch his queen : Now swallow down that lie.--For Gloster's death,-I slew him not; but to my own disgrace,

(2) Wicked. (I) Possess. (4) Reproach to his ancestry.

Neglected my swarn duty in that case. For you, my noble lord of Lancaster, The honourable father to my foe, Once did I lay an ambush for your life, A trespass that doth vex my grieved soul. But, ere I last received the sacrament, I did confess it; and exactly begg'd Your grace's pardon, and, I hope, I had it. This is my fault: As for the rest appeal'd, It issues from the rancour of a villain, A recreant and most degenerate traitor:
Which in myself I boldly will defend;
And interchangeably hurl down my gage
Upon this overweening traitor's foot,
To prove myself a loyal gentleman
Even in the best blood chamber'd in his bosom: In haste whereof, most heartily I pray Your highness to assign our trial day. K. Rich. Wrath-kindled gentlemen, be rul'd by

My life thou shalt command, but not my shame: The one my duty owes; but my fair name, (Despite of death, that lives upon my grave,) To dark dishonour's use, thou shall not have. I am disgrac'd, impeach'd, and haffled here; Piere'd to the soul with alander's venom'd spear The which no balm can cure, but his heart-blood Which breath'd this poison.

K. Rich. Rage must be withstood: Give me his gage :- Lions make leopards tam

Nor. Yes, but not change their spots: take but my shame, How God, and good men, hate so foul a liar.

K. Rica. Mowbray, impartial are our eyes, and The purest treasure mortal times afford, And I resign my gage. My dear dear lord, Is—spotless reputation; that away, Men are but glided learn, or painted clay.

A jewel in a len-times-barr'd-up chest -a bold spirit in a loyal breast Mine honour is my life; both grow in one; Take honour from me, and my life is done: Then, dear my liege, mine honour let me try; in that I live, and for that will I die. K. Rich. Cousin, throw down your gage; de you begin.

Boling. O. God defend my soul from such for sin!

Shall I seem crest-fallen in my father's sight? Or with pale beggar-fear impeach my height Before this outdar'd dastard! But since correction light in those hands, Which made the fault that we cannot correct, Put we our quarrel to the will of heaven; Who, when he sees the hours ripe on earth, Will rain hot vengeance on offenders' heads.

Duck. Finds brotherhood in thee no sharper spur? Hath love in thy old blood no living fire? Edward's seven sons, whereof thyself art one, Were as seven phials of his sacred blood, Or seven fair branches springing from one root: Some of those seven are dried by nature's course, Some of those branches by the destinles cut: But Thomas, my dear lord, my life, my Gloster,.

One phiai full of Edward's sacred blood,
One flourishing branch of his most royal reot,—
Is crack'd, and all the precious liquor spilt;
Is hack'd down, and his summer leaves all faded,
By any is hand, and murday's bloody are By envy's hand, and murder's bloody aze. Ah, Gaunt! his blood was thine; that bed, that Flourish of trumpets. Enter King Richard, soko womb,

That metal, that self-mould, that fashion'd thee, Made him a man; and though thou lives, and breath'st,

Yet art thou slain in him: thou dost consent In some large measure to thy father's death, In that thou seest thy wretched brother die, Who was the model of thy father's life. Call it not patience, Gaunt, it is despair: In suffering thus thy brother to be slaughter'd, Thou show'st the naked pathway to thy life, Teaching stern murder how to butcher thee: That which in mean men we entitle—patience, Is pale cold cowardice in noble breasts. What shall I say? to safeguard thine own life, The best way is—to 'venge my Gloster's death. Gaunt. Heaven's is the querrel; for heaven's substitute,

His deputy anointed in his sight, Hath caus'd his death: the which if wrongfully, Let heaven revenge; for I may never lift

An angry arm against his minister.

Duch. Where then, alas! may I complain myself?

Gamt. To heaven, the widow's champion and defence.

Duck. Why then, I will. Farewell, old Gaunt. Theu go'st to Coventry, there to behold Our cousin Hereford and fell Mowbray fight: O, sit my husband's wrongs on Hereford's spear,
That it may enter butcher Mowbray's breast!
Or, if misfortune miss the first career,
Be Mowbray's sins so heavy in his bosom,
That they may break his foaming courser's back,

A caitiff' recreant to my cousin Hereford! Farewell, old Gaunt; thy sometime brother's wife, With her companion grief must end her life. Gount. Sister, farewell: I must to Coventry:

As much good slay with thee, as go with me!

Duch. Yet one word more; Grief boundeth where it falls,

Not with the empty hollowness, but weight: I take my leave before I have begun; For sorrow ends not when it seemeth done. SCENE II.—The same. A room in the Duke of Lo, this is all:—Nay, yet depart not so;
Luncaster's palace. Enter Gaunt, and Duckess Though this be all, do not so quickly go;
I shell remember more. Bid him—O, what?— Gaussi. Alas! the part? I had in Gloster's blood oth more solicit me, then your exclaims, ostir against the butchers of his life.

It shall remember more. Bid him—O, what?—With all good speed at Plashy' visit me.

Alack, and what shall good old York there see, But empty lodgings and unfurnish'd walls, Unpeopled offices, unforder stones?

And what cheer there for welcome, but my groans? Therefore commend me; let him not come there, To seek out sorrow that dwells every where: Desolate, desolate, will I hence, and die; The last leave of thee takes my weeping eye. Excunt.

K. Rick. Marshal, demand of yonder champion The cause of his arrival here in arms: Ask him his name; and orderly proceed To swear him in the justice of his cause. Mar. In God's name, and the king's, say who thou art,

And why thou com'st, thus knightly clad in arms: Against what man thou com'st, and what thy quarrel:

Speak truly, on thy knighthood, and thy oath; And so defend thee heaven, and thy valour! Nor. My name is Thomas Mowbray, duke of Norfolk;

Who hither come engaged by my oath (Which, heaven defend, a knight should violate!) Both to defend my loyalty and truth, To God, my king, and my succeeding issue, Against the duke of Hereford that appeals me; And, by the grace of God, and this mine arm, And, by the grace or Good, and man mine.

To prove him, in defending of myself,

A traitor to my God, my king, and me:

And, as I truly fight, defend me heaven!

Derby,
Am I; who ready here do stand in arms,
To prove, by heaven's grace, and my body's valour,
In lists, on Thomas Mowbray, duke of Norfolk,
That he's a troitor foal and dannerous.

In lists, on Thomas Mowbray, duke of Programs, That he's a traitor, load and dangerous, To God of heaven, king Richard, and to me; And, as I truly fight, defend me heaven!

Mar. On pain of death, no person he so hold, Or daring-hardy, as to touch the lists; Except the marshal, and such officers.

According to direct them fair designs. Appointed to direct these fair designs,

K. Rick. We will descend, and fold him in our årins

Cousin of Hereford, as thy cause is right, So be thy fortune in this royal fight! Farewell, my blood; which if to-day thou shed, Lament we may, but not revenge thee dead.

Boling. O, let no noble eve profune a tear For me, if I be gor'd with Mowbray's spear; As confident, as is the falcon's flight Against a bird, do I with Mowbray fight.—
My loving lord, [To Lord Marshel.] I take my leave of you;—

Of you, my noble cousin, lord Aumerle :-Not sick, although I have to do with death; But lusty, voung, and cheerly drawing breath, Lo, as at English feasts, so I regreet The daintiest last, to make the end most sweet: O thou, the earthly author of my blood, F To Gaunt.

Whose youthful spirit, in me regenerate, Doth with a two-fold vigour lift me up To reach at victory above my head,-Add proof unto my armour with thy prayers; And with thy blessings steel my hance's point, That it may enter Mowbray's waxen' coat, And furbish' new the name of John of Gaunt, Even in the lasty 'haviour of his son.

Gaunt. Heaven in thy good cause make thee prosperous!

Be swift, like lightning, in the execution; And let thy blows, doubly redoubled, Fall, like amazing thunder, on the casque Of thy adverse pernicious enemy:

Rouse up thy youthful blood, he valiant, and live.

Boling. Mine innocency, and Saint George to Take from my mouth the wish of happy years:

cry—amen.

Mor. Go bear this lance [To on affect.] to Thomas duke of Norfolk.

1 Her. Harry of Hereford, Lancaster, and Derby, Stands here for God, his sovereign, and himself, On pain to be found false and recreant, To prove the duke of Norfolk, Thomas Mawhray, A traitor to his God, his king, and him.
And dares him to set forward to the fight.
2 Her. Here standeth Thomas Mowbray, duke of Norfolk On pain to be found false and recreant,

Both to defend himself, and to approve Henry of Hereford, Lancaster, and Derby, To God, his sovereign, and to him, disloyal;
Courageously, and with a free desire,
Attending but the signal to begin.

Mar. Sound, itumpets; and set forward, com-

K. Rick. Let them lay by their helmets and their spears, And both return back to their chairs again : Withdraw with us :-- and let the trumpets sound,

While we return these dukes what we decree. [A long flourish, [To the combatants. Draw near, And list, what with our council we have done. For that our kingdom's earth should not be soil'd With that dear blood which it hath fostered;

And for our eyes do hate the dire aspect Of civil wounds plough'd up with neighbours swords; And for we think the engle-winged pride Of sky-aspiring and ambitious thoughts, With rival-hating envy, set you on

To wake our peace, which in our country's cradle
Draws the sweet infant breath of gentle sleep;
Which so rous'd up with boisterous untain'd drums, With harsh resounding trumpets' dreadful bray, And grating shock of wrathful iron arms, Might from our quiet confines fright fair peace, And make us wade even in our kindred's blood ;-Therefore, we banish you our territories:-You, cousin Hereford, upon pain of death, Till twice five summers have enriched our fields.

Shall not regreet our fair dominions.
But tread the stranger paths of banishment.
Boling. Your will be done: This must my comfort be,—

That sun, that warms you here, shall shine on me; And those his golden beams, to you here lent, Shall point on ine, and gild my banishment.

K. Rick. Norfolk, for thee remains a heavier doom, Which I with some unwillingness pronounce: The fly-slow hours shall not determinate

Nor. A heavy sentence, my most sovereign liege,
And all unlooked for from your highness' mouth) A dearer merit, not so deep a main As to be cast forth in the common air, Have I deserved at your highness' hand. The language I have learn'd these forty years, My native English, now I must forego: And now my tongue's use is to me no more, Than an unstringed riol, or a harp;
Or, like a sunning instrument cas'd up,
Or, being open, put into his hands
That knows no bauch to tune the harmony. Within my mouth you have engaci'd my tongue, Doubly portcultie'd, with my toeth, and tips; And dail, unfeeling, barren ignorance Is made my gaster to attend on me. I am too old to fewn upon a nurse, Too far in years to be a pupil now; What is thy sentence then, but speechless death, Which rubs my tongue from breathing native breath?

K. Rich. It bnots thee not to be compassionate; After our seatence, plaining comes too late.

Nor. Then then I term me from my country's light, To dwell in solomn shades of endless night.

Nor never write, regrest, nor recensells
This lowering tempest of your home-bred hate;
Nor never hy advised? purpose meet,
To plot, contrive, or complet any ill,

Boling. I swear.
Nor. And I, to keep all this.
Boting. Norfolk, so far as to mine enemy;
By this time, bad the king permitted us,
One of our souts had wander'd in the mir.

One of our souls had wander'd in the air, Banish'd this fixal sepulchre of our flesh, As now our fiesh is banish'd from this land: Confess thy treasons, ere thou fly the realm;

Contess thy treasons, are mounty are reason, Since those heat far to go, bear not along The clogging burden of a guilty soul.

But what theu art, beaven, thou, and I do know; And all toe soon, I fear, the king shall rue.— Farewell, my liege:—Now no way can I stray; Save back to England, all the world's my way.

And not—the king exil'd thee: or suppose, Devouring pestilence hangs in our air, And thou art flying to a fresher clime Look, what thy soul holds dear, imagine it To lie that way thou go'st, not whence thou com'st: Suppose the singing birds, musicians; The grass whereon thou tread'st, the presence strew'd;

The flowers, fair ladies; and thy steps, no more Than a delightful measure, or a dance:

For gnarling sorrow hath less power to bite
The man that mocks at it, and sets it light.
Boling. O, who can hold a fire in his hand,
By thinking on the frosty Caucasus?
Or cloy the hungry edge of appetite,
By bare imagination of a feast? Or wallow naked in December snow, By thinking on fantastic summer's heat? O, no! the apprehension of the good, Gives but the greater feeling to the worse: Fell sorrow's tooth doth never rankle more, Than when it bites, but lanceth not the sore SCENE IV .- The same. A room in the king's castle. Enter King Richard, Bagot, and Green; Aumerle following.

K. Rich. We did observe.-Cousin Aumerle, How far brought you high Hereford on his way?

Ann. I brought high Hereford, if you call him so, But to the next highway, and there I left him. K. Rich. And, say, what store of parting tears were shed? Aum. 'Faith, none by me: except the northeast wind

Which then blew bitterly against our faces, Awak'd the sleeping rheum; and so by chance, Did grace our hollow parting with a tear.

K. Rich. What said our cousin, when you parted with him ?

Aum. Farewell:

And, for my heart disdained that my tongue Should so profane the word, that taught me craft
To counterfeit oppression of such grief,
That words seem'd buried in my sorrow's grave.
Marry, would the word farewell have lengthen'd hours,

And added years to his short banishment, He should have had a volume of farewells;

But, since it would not, he had none of me.

K. Rich. He is our cousin, cousin; but 'tis doubt,
When time shall call him home from banishment, Whether our kinsman come to see his friends. Ourself, and Bushy, Bagot here, and Green, Observed his courtship to the common people :-How he did seem to dive into their hearts, With humble and familiar courtesy; What reverence he did throw away on slaves;

As were our England in reversion his, And he our subjects' next degree in hope.

Green. Well, he is gone; and with him go these thoughts.

Now for the rebels, which stand out in Ireland ;-Expedient manage must be made, my liege; Ere further leisure yield them further means, For their advantage, and your highness' loss.

K. Rick. We will ourself in person to this war.

And, for our coffers—with too great a court, And liberal largess,—are grown somewhat light, We are enforced to farm our royal realm; The revenue whereof shall furnish us For our affairs in hand: If that come short, Our substitutes at home shall have blank charters; Whereto, when they shall know what men are rich, They shall subscribe them for large sums of gold, And send them after to supply our wants; For we will make for Ireland presently.

Enter Bushy.

Bushy, what news?

Bushy, Old John of Gaunt is grievous sick, my lord;

Suddenly taken; and hath sent post-haste, To entreat your majesty to visit him.

K. Rick. Where lies he?

Bushy. At Ely-house.

K. Rich. Now put it, heaven, in his physician's mind,

To help him to his grave immediately ! The lining of his coffers shall make coats To deck our soldiers for these Irish wars. Come, gentlemen, let's all go visit him: Pray God, we may make haste, and come too late!

Gaunt on a couch; the Duke of York, and other, stending by him. SCENE I.-London.

Gmmt. Will the king come? that I may breathe my last,

In wholesome counsel to his unstailed youth.

York. Vex not yourself, nor strive not with your breath;

For all in vain comes counsel to his ear Gount. O, but they say, the tongues of dying mea Enforce attention, like deep harmony: Where words are scarce, they are seldom spent in vain;

For they breathe truth, that breathe their words in pain.

He, that no more must say, is listen'd more Than they whom youth and ease have taught to glose; More are men's ends mark'd, than their lives before: The setting sun, and music at the close, As the last taste of sweets, is sweetest last; Writ in remembrance, more than things long past: Though Richard my life's counsel would not hear,

Methinks, I am a prophet new inspir'd; and thus, expiring, do foretel of him: lis rash fierce blaze of riot cannot last; 'or violent fires soon burn out themselves: mall showers last long, but sudden storms are short; le tires betimes, that spurs too fast betimes ; Vith eager feeding, food doth choke the feeder : ight vanity, insatiate cormorant, consuming means, soon preys upon itself. Jonsuming means, soon preys upon itself. This royal throne of kings, this scepter'd isle, this earth of majesty, this seat of Mars, this other Eden, demi-paradise; This fortress, built by nature for herself, Against infection, and the hand of war; This happy breed of men, this little world; This precious stone set in the silver sea, Which serves it in the office of a wall. Which serves it in the office of a wall, Or as a moat defensive to a house Against the envy of less happier lands: This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this

Of the world's ransom, blessed Mary's son: This land of such dear souls, this dear dear land, Dear for her reputation through the world, Is now leased out (I die pronouncing it,) Like to a tenement or pelting! farm: England, bound in with the triumphant sea, Whose rocky shore beats back the envious siege Of watery Neptune, is now bound in with shame, With inky blots, and rotten parchment bonds; That England, that was wont to conquer others, Hath made a shameful conquest of itself: O, would the scandal vanish with my life How happy then were my ensuing death!

Enter King Richard, and Queen; Aumerle, Bushy, Green, Bagot, Ross, and Willoughby.

York. The king is come: deal mildly with his Old Gaunt, indeed; and gaunt<sup>2</sup> in being old: Within me grief hath kept a tedious fast; And who abstains from meat, that is not gaunt? For sleeping England long time have I watch'd; Watching breeds leanness, leanness all gaunt: The pleasure, that some fathers feed upon,

Since thou dost seek to kill my name in me, that live? Gaunt. No, no; men living flatter those that die.

K. Rich. Thou, now a dying, say'st-thou flatterest me.

Gamt. Oh! no; thou diest, though I the sicker be. K. Rich. I am in health, I breathe, and see thee ill? Gaunt. Now, He that made me, knows I see thee ill;

Ill in myself to see, and in thee seeing ill. Thy death-bed is no lesser than the land, Wherein thou liest in reputation sick: And thou, too careless patient as thou art, Commit'st thy anointed body to the cure of those physicians that first wounded thee: A thousand flatterers sit within thy crown, Whose compass is no bigger than thy head; And yet, incaged in so small a verge The waste is no whit lesser than thy land. O, had thy grandsire, with a prophet's ey Seen how his son's son should destroy his sons, From forth thy reach he would have laid thy shame; Deposing thee before thou wert possess'd, Which art possess'd' now to depose thyself. Why, cousin, wert thou regent of the world, It were a shame to let this land by lease: But, for thy world, enjoying but this land, Is it not more than shame, to shame it so? Landlord of England art thou now, not king: Thy state of law is bondslave to the law; And thou

K. Rich. - a lunatic lean-witted fool, Presuming on an ague's privilege, Dar'st with thy frozen admonition Make pale our cheek; chasing the royal blood, With fury, from his native residence. Now by my scat's right royal majesty, Wert thou not brother to great Edward's son, This tongue that runs so roundly in thy head Should run thy head from thy unreverend shoulders.

Gaunt. O, spareme not, my brother Edward's son, For that I was his father Edward's son; That blood already, like the pelican, Hast thou tapp'd out, and drunkenly carous'd:
My brother Gloster, plain well-meaning soul,
(Whom fair befall in heaven 'mongst happy souls!)
May be a precedent and witness good,
That thou respect'st not spilling Edward's blood:

For young hot colts, being rag'd, do rage the more.

Queen. How fares our noble uncle, Lancaster?

K. Rich. What comfort, man? How is't with aged Gaunt?

Love they to live, that love and honour have.

[Exit, borne out by his attendants.]

K. Rich. And let them die, that age and sullens have:

For both hast thou, and both become the grave.

York. 'Beseech your majesty, impute his words
To wayward sickliness and age in him:
He loves you, on my life, and holds you dear
As Harry, duke of Hereford, were he here.

K. Rich. Right; you say true: as Hereford's love, so his:

love, so his:

As theirs, so mice ; and all he as it is.

Enter Northumberland.

North. My liege, old Gaunt commends him to What will ensue hereaf, there's none can tell; your majesty.

But by had courses may be understood,

K. Rich. What says he now? North. Nay, nothing; all is said: His tongue is now a stringless instrument; Words, No, and all, old Laucaster has spent. York. Be York the next that must be bankrupt so!

Though death be poor, it ends a mortal wo.

K. Rich. The ripest fruit first falls, and so doth he: His time is spent, our pilgrimage must be: So much for that.—Now for our Irish wars: We must suppless those rough rug-headed kerns ; Which live like tenom, where no venom eise, But only they, hath privilege to live. <sup>3</sup> And for these great affairs do ask some charge, Towards our assistance, we do seize to us

The plate, coin, revenues, and moveables, Whereof our uncle Gaunt did stand possess'd. York. How long shall I be patient? Ah, how long Shall tender duty make me suffer wrong? Not Gloster's death, nor Herrford's banishment. Not Gaunt's rebukes, nor England's private wrongs Nor the prevention of poor Bolingbroke About his marriage, nor my own disgrace Have ever made me sour my patient check, Or bend one wrinkle on my sovereign's face.-I am the last of noble Edward's sons, Of whom thy father, prince of Wales, was first; In war, was never lion ray'd more fierce, In peace, was never gentle lamb more mild. Than was that young and princely gentleman: His face thou hast, for even so look d he, Accomplish'd with the number of the hours;
But, when he from'd, it was against the French,
And not against his friends: his noble hand Did win what he did spend, and spent not that Which his triumphant father's hand had won: His hands were guilty of no kindred's blood, But bloody with the enemies of his kin. O, Richard ! York as too far gone with grief, Or else he never would compare between.

K. Rich. Why, uncle, what's the matter?

York. O, my liege. Pardon me, if you please; if not, I pleas'd Not to be pardon'd, am content withal. Seek you to seize, and gripe into your hands. The royalties and rights of banish'd Hereford? Is not Gaunt dead? and doth not Hereford live? Was not Gaunt just? and is not Harry true? Did not the one deserve to have an heir? Is not his heir a well-deserving son? Take Hereford's rights away, and take from time His charters, and his customery rights; et not to-morrow then ensue to-day; Be not thyself, for how art thou a king, But by fair sequence and succession? Now, afore God (God forbid, I say true!)
If you do wrongfully seize Hereford's rights, Call in the letters patents that he hath By his attornies-general to sue His livery, and dony his offer'd homage, You plack a thousand dangers on your head, You lose a thousand well-disposed hearts, And prick my tender patience to those thoughts Which honour and allegiance cannot think.

SCENE III .- The Wilds in Glostershire. Enter Bolingbroke and Northumberland, with Forces.

Boling. How far is it, my lord, to Berkley now! North. Believe me, noble lord, I am a stranger here in Glostershire These high wild hills, and rough uneven ways, Draw out our miles, and make them wearisome: And yet your fair discourse hath been as sugar, Making the hard way sweet and délectable. But, I bethink me, what a weary wa From Ravenspurg to Cotawold, will be found in Ross and Willoughby, wanting your company; Which, I protest, hath very much beguil'd The tediousness and process of my travel: But theirs is sweeten'd with the hope to have The present benefit which I possess: And hope to joy, is little less in joy, Than hope enjoy'd: by this the weary lords Shall make their way seem short; as mine hath done By sight of what I have, your noble company.

Boling. Of much less value is my company,
Than your good words. But who comes here?

Enter Harry Percy.

North. It is my son, young Harry Percy,
Sent from my brother Worcester, whencesoever.—
Harry, how ince your uncle?
Percy. I had thought, my lord, to have learn'd his health of you.

North. Why, is he not with the queen?

Percy. No, my good lord; he hath forsook the court, Broken his staff of office, and dispers'd. Broken me stead of the king.

The household of the king.
What was his reason?

He was not so resolv'd, when last we spake together.

Percy. Because your lordship was proclaimed traitor. But he, my lord, is gone to Ravenspurg

To offer service to the duke of Hernford; And sent me o'er by Berkley, to discover What power the duke of York had levied there; Then with direction to repair to Ravenspurg North. Have you forgot the duke of Hereford, boy?

Percy. No, my good lord; for that is not forget.
Which ne'er I did remember: to my knowledge, I never in my life did look on him.

North. Then learn to know him now; this is the duke.

Percy. My gracious lord, I tender you my service, Such as it is, being tender, raw, and young;

And, as my fortune ripens with thy love, it shall be still thy true love's recompanie:

There stands the castle, by you tust of Mann'd with three hundred men, as I have heard:

North. Here come the lords of Ross and Willoughby,

Bloody with spurring, fiery-red with haste. Boling. Welcome, my lords: I wot, your love

A banish'd traitor; all my treasury Is yet but unfelt thanks, which, more enrich'd, Shall be your love and labour's recompense. Ross. Your presence makes us rich, most noble lord. And far surmounts our labour to attain it.

Which, till my infant fortune comes to years, Stands for my bounty. But who comes here?

Enter Berkley. North. It is my lord of Berkley, as I guess. Berk. My lord of Hereford, my message is to you. Boling. My lord, my answer is—to Lancaster; And I am come to seek that name in England: And I must find that title in your tongue, Before I make reply to aught you say.

Berk. Mistake me not, my lord; 'tis not my meaning, To raze one title of your honour out :-To you, my lord, I come (what lord you will,) From the most glorious regent of this land, The duke of York; to know, what pricks you on To take advantage of the absent time And fright our native peace with self-born arms.

Enter York, attended.

Here comes his grace in person.-My noble uncle!

York. Show me thy humble heart, and not thy knee, Whose duty is deceivable and false. Boling. My gracious uncle !-

Grace me no grace, nor uncle me no uncle:
I am no traitor's uncle; and that word—grace, In an ungracious mouth, is but profane:
Why have those banish'd and forbidden legs
Dar'd once to touch a dust of England's ground?
But then more why;—Why have they dar'd to march

So many miles upon her peaceful bosom Frighting her pale-fac'd villages with war, And ostentation of despised arms? Com'st thou because the anointed king is hence? Why, foolish boy, the king is left behind, And in my loyal bosom lies his power. Were I but now the lord of such hot youth, As when brave Gaunt, thy father, and myself, Rescued the Black Prince, that young Mars of men, From forth the ranks of many thousand French;

Boling. As I was banish'd, I was banish'd Hereford;

But as I come, I come for Lancaster. And, noble uncle, I beseech your grace, Look on my wrongs with an indifferent eye: You are my father, for, methinks, in you I see old Gaunt alive; O then, my father!
Will you permit that I shall stand condemn'd A wand'ring vagabond; my rights and royalties Pluck'd from my arms perforce, and given away To upstart unthrifts? Wherefore was I born? I have had feeling of my cousin's wrongs, And labour'd all I could to do him right: But in this kind to come, in braving arms, Be his own carver, and cut out his way,
To find out right with wrong,—it may not be;
And you, that do abet him in this kind,

Cherish rebellion, and are rebels all.

North. The noble duke hath sworn, his coming is But for his own: and, for the right of that

We all have strongly sworn to give him aid;
And let him ne'er see joy, that breaks that oath.
York. Well, well, I see the issue of these arms;
I cannot mend it, I must needs confess,
Because my power is weak, and all ill left:
But, if I could, by him that gave me life,
I would attach you all, and make you stoon I would attach you all, and make you stoop Unto the sovereign mercy of the king; But, since I cannot, be it known to you, I do remain as neuter. So, fare you well;— Unless you please to enter in the castle, And there repose you for this night.

Boling. An offer, uncle, that we will accept. But we must win your grace, to go with us
To Bristol castle; which, they say, is held
By Bushy, Bagot, and their complices,
The caterpillars of the commonwealth,

Which I have sworn to weed, and pluck away.

The bay-trees in our country are all wither'd, And meteors fright the fixed stars of heaven; The pale-fac'd moon looks bloody on the earth, And lean-look'd prophets whisper fearful change; Rich men look sad, and ruffians dance and leap, The one, in fear to lose what they enjoy, The other, to enjoy by rage and war: These signs forerun the death or fall of kings. ### ACT III.

SCENE I .- Bolingbroke's camp at Bristol. Enter Bolingbroke, York, Northumberland, Percy, Willoughby, Ross: officers behind with Bushy and Green, prisoners.

Boling. Bring forth these men.-Bushy, and Green, I will not vex your souls (Since presently your souls must part your bodies,)
With too much urging your pernicious lives,
For 'twere no charity: yet, to wash your blood
From off my hands, here, in the view of men, I will unfold some causes of your death. You have misled a prince, a royal king, A happy gentleman in blood and lineaments, By you unhappied and disfigur'd clean. You have, in manner, with your sinful hours, Made a divorce betwixt his queen and him; Broke the possession of a royal bed, And stain'd the beauty of a fair queen's cheeks With tears drawn from her eyes by your foul Hath power to keep you king, in spite of all.

Whits you have fed upon my signories,
Dispark'de my parks, and fell'd my forest woods;
From my own windows torn my household coat, Raz'd out my impress, leaving me no sign,-Save men's opinions, and my living blood,— To show the world I am a gentleman. This, and much more, much more than twice all this,

Boling. Thanks, gentle uncle.—Come, lords, away; To fight with Glendower and his complices;

Awhile to work, and, after, holiday. SCENE II.—The coast of Wales. A castle in view. Flourish: drums and trumpets. Enter King Richard, Bishop of Carllsle, Aumerle, and

K. Rich. Barkloughly castle call you this at hand?

Aum. Yea, my lord: How brooks your grace the air,

After late tossing on the breaking seas? K. Rich. Needs must I like it well; I weep for joy, To stand upon my kingdom once again. Dear earth, I do salute thee with my hand, Though rebels wound thee with their horses' hoofs: As a long parted mother with her child Plays fondly with her tears, and smiles in meeting; So, weeping, smiling, greet I thee, my earth, And do thee favour with my royal hands. Feed not thy sovereign's foe, my gentle earth, Nor with thy sweets comfort his rav'nous sense: But let thy spiders, that suck up thy venom, And heavy-gaited toads, lie in their way; Doing annoyance to the treacherous feet, Which with usurping steps do trample thee. Yield stinging nettles to mine enemies: And when they from thy bosom pluck a flower, Guard it, I pray thee, with a lurking adder, Whose double tongue may with a mortal touch Throw death upon thy sovereign's enemies. Mock not my senseless conjuration, lords; This earth shall have a feeling, and these stones Prove armed soldiers, ere her native king Shall falter under foul rebellious arms.

Bishop. Fear not, my lord; that Power, that made you king,

The means that heaven yields must be embrac'd, And not neglected; else, if heaven would, And we will not, heaven's offer we refuse; The proffer'd means of succour and redress. Ann. He means, my lord, that we are too remiss; Whilst Bolingbroke, through our security, Grows strong and great, in substance, and in friends.

K. Rich. Discomfortable cousin! know'st thou

That when the searching eye of heaven is hid Behind the globe, and lights the lower world, Then thicves and robbers range abroad unseen, In murders and in outrage, bloody here;

(1) Completely, (2) Thrown down the hedges, (3) Of arms, (4) Motto, (5) Commendations,

Stand bare and naked, trembling at themselves? So when this thief, this traitor, Bolingbroke, Who all this while hath revell'd in the night Whilst we were wandering with the antipodes, Shall see us rising in our throne the east, His treasons will sit blushing in his face, Not able to endure the sight of day; But, self-affrighted, tremble at his sin. Not all the water in the rough rude sea Can wash the balm from an anointed king: The breath of worldly men cannot depose The deputy elected by the Lord:
For every man that Bolingbroke hath press'd, To lift shrewd steel against our golden crown, God for his Richard hath in heavenly pay A glorious angel: then, if angels fight Weak men must fall; for heaven still guards the right.

Enter Salisbury. Welcome, my lord; How far off lies your power? Sal. Nor near, nor further off, my gracious lord, Than this weak arm: Discomfort guides my tongue, Inan this weak arm: Discomfort guides my tongue, And bids me speak of nothing but despair. One day too late, I fear, my noble lord, Hath clouded all thy happy days on earth; O, call back yesterday, bid time return, And thou shalt have twelve thousand fighting men! To-day, to-day, unhappy day, too late, O'erthrows thy joys, friends, fortune, and thy state; For all the Welshmen, hearing thou wert dead, Are gone to Bolingbroke, dispers'd, and fled.

Aun. Comfort, my liege: why looks your grace so pale?

K. Rich. But now, the blood of twenty thousand men Did triumph in my face, and they are fled; And, till so much blood thither come again, Have I not reason to look pale and dead? All souls that will be safe, fly from my side;

For time hath set a blot upon my pride. Aum. Comfort, my liege; remember who you

K. Rich. I had forgot myself: Am I not king? Awake, thou sluggard majesty! thou sleep'st. Is not the king's name forty thousand names? Arm, arm, my name! a puny subject strikes
At thy great glory.—Look not to the ground,
Ye favourites of a king; Are we not high?
High be our thoughts: I know, my uncle York Hath power enough to serve our turn. But who Comes here?

Enter Scroop.

Scroop. More health and happiness betide my liege,

Than can my care-tun'd tongue deliver him.

K. Rick. Mine car is open, and my heart pre-

The worst is worldly loss, thou canst unfold. Say, is my kingdom lost? why, 'twas my care; And what loss is it, to be rid of care? Strives Bolingbroke to be as great as we? Greater he shall not be; if he serve God, We'll serve him too, and be his fellow so: Revolt our subjects? that we cannot mend; They break their faith to God, as well as us; Cry, wo, destruction, ruin, loss, decay;

K. Rich. Too well, too well, thou tell'st a tale so ill. Where is the earl of Wiltshire? where is Bagot?

What is become of Bushy? where is Green? That they have let the dangerous enem Measure our confines with such peaceful steps ?
If we prevail, their heads shall pay for it.
I warrant, they have made peace with Bolingbroke.
Scroop. Peace have they made with him, indeed, my lord.
K. Rich. O villains, vipers, damn'd without redemption!

Dogs, easily won to fawn on any man! Snakes, in my heart-blood warm'd, that sting my heart!

Three Judases, each one thrice worse than Judas! Would they make peace? terrible hell make war Upon their spotted souls for this offence!

Scroop. Sweet love, I see, changing his property Turns to the sourcest and most deadly hate :-Again uncurse their souls; their peace is made With heads, and not with hands: those whom you curse,

Have felt the worst of death's destroying wound,
And lie full low, grav'd in the bollow ground.

Aum. Is Bushy, Green, and the earl of Wilkshire, dead?

Sames Venell of them at British lost their Scroop. Yea, all of them at Bristol lost their heads.

Aum. Where is the duke, my father, with his power?

K. Rich. No matter where; of comfort no man speak:

Let's talk of graves, of worms, and epitaphs; Make dust our paper, and with rainy eyes Write sorrow on the bosom of the earth. Let's choose executors, and talk of wills: And yet not so,—for what can we bequeath, Save our deposed bodies to the ground? Our lands, our lives, and all, are Bolingbroke's, And nothing can we call our own, but death; And that small model of the barren earth, Which serves as paste and cover to our bones. For heaven's sake, let us sit upon the ground, And tell sad stories of the death of kings:— How some have been depos'd, some slain in war; Some haunted by the ghosts they have depos'd; Some poison'd by their wives, some sleeping kill'd; All murder'd:—For within the hollow crown, That rounds the mortal temples of a king Keeps death his court: and there the antic sits, Scoffing his state, and grinning at his pomp; Allowing him a breath, a little seens To monarchize, be fear'd, and kill with looks;

Influence him with self and vain conceit,— As if this flesh, which walls about our life, Were brass impregnable; and, humour'd thus, Comes at the last, and with a little pin Bores through his castle wall, and—larcwell king! Cover your beads, and mock not flesh and blood With solemn reverence; throw away respect, Tradition, form, and ceremonious duty, For you have but mistook me all this while: I live with bread like you, feel want, taste grief, Need friends:—Subjected thus, How can you say to me—I am a king? Cor. My lord, wise men ne'er wail their present

WOOS, But presently prevent the ways to wail. To fear the foe, since fear oppresseth strength, Gives, in your weakness, strength unto your foe, And so your follies fight against yourself. Fear, and be clain; no worse can come, to fight: And fight and die, is death destroying death; Where fearing dying, pays death service breath.
Aum. My father hath a power, inquire of him;
And learn to make a body of a limb.

K. Rich. Thou chid'at me well:—Proud Bo

lingbroke, I come To change blows with thee for our day of doom. This ague-fit of fear is over-blown; An easy task it is, to win our own. Bay, Scroop, where lies our uncle with his power? Speak sweetly, man, although thy looks be sour.

Scroop. Men judge by the complexion of the sky The state and inclination of the day: So may you by my dull and heavy eye,
My tongue hath but a heavier tale to say.

I play the forturer, by small and small, To lengthen out the worst that must be spoken: Your uncle York hath join'd with Bolingbroke; And all your northern castles yielded up, And all your southern gentlemen in arms Upon his party. K. Rick.

Thou hast said enough. Beshrews thee, cousin, which didst lead me forth [To Aumerle.

Of that sweet way I was in to despair ! What say you now? What comfort have we now? By heaven, I'll hate him everlastingly, That bids me be of comfort any more. Go, to Flint castle; there I'll pine away; A king, we's slave, shall kingly we obey. That power! I have, discharge; and let them go To sare the land that hath some hope to grow, For I have none:—Let no man speak again To after this, for counsel is but vain.

Sum. My liege, one word.

E. Rick. He does me double wrong,

That wounds me with the fatteries of his tongue. Discharge my followers, let them hence:—Away, From Richard's night, to Bolingbroke's fair day. Exeunt.

K. Rick. We are aman'd; and thus long have we atood

To watch the fearful bending of thy knee,

[To Northumberland.

Because we thought ourself thy lawful king : And if we be, how dare thy joints forget To pay their awful duty to our presence? If we be not, show us the hand of God That hath dismiss'd us from our stewardship; For well we know, no hand of blood and bone Can gripe the secred handle of our sceptre, Yet know,-my master, God omnipotent, Is must'ring in his clouds, on our behalf Armies of pestilence; and they shall strike Your children yet unborn, and unbegot, That lift your vassal hands against my head, And threat the glory of my precious crown. Tell Bolingbroke (for youd, methinks, he is,) That every stride he makes upon my land, is dangerous treason: He is come to ope The purple testament of bleeding war ; But ere the crown he looks for live in peace, Ten thousand bloody crowns of mother's sons Shall ill become the flower of England's face; Change the complexion of her maid-pale peace To scarlet indignation, and bedew
Her pastures' grass with faithful English blood.

Be rush'd upon! Thy thrice-noble cousin, Harry Bolingbroke, doth humbly kiss thy hand; And by the honourable tomb he awears.
That stands upon thy royal grandsire's bones;
And by the royalties of both your bloods, Currents that spring from one most gracious head :

And by the buried hand of warlike Gaunt ; And by the worth and honour of himself Comprising all that may be sworn, or said, His coming hither hath no further scope, Than for his lineal royalties, and to beg Enfranchisement immediate on his knees: Which on thy royal party granted once, His glittering arms he will commend* to rust, His barbed steeds to stables, and his heart To faithful service of your majesty. This swears he, as he is a prince, is just;

And, as I am a gentleman, I credit him.

Quen. Of sorrow, or of joy? 1 Lady. Of olther, madem.

Queen. Of neither, girl: For if of joy, being altogether wanting, It doth remember me the more of sorrow; Or if of grief, being altogether had It adds more sorrow to my want of joy : For what I have, I need not to repeat; And what I want, it boots not to complain.

Gard. They are; and Bolingbroke Hath seix'd the wasteful king.—Oh! What pity is it,

That he had not so trimm'd and dress'd his land, As we this garden! We, at time of year, Do wound the back, the skin of our fruit-trees; Lest, being over-proud with sap and blood, With too much riches it confound itself: Had he done so to great and growing men.

Gard. Depress'd he is already; and depos'd, Tis doubt, he will be: Letters came last night To a dear friend of the good duke of York's, That tell black tidings. Queen

O, I am press'd to death, Through want of speaking !-Thou, old Adam's likeness, [Coming from her concesiment. Set to dress the garden, how dares Thy harsh-rude tongue sound this unpleasing news? Say, where, when, and how, Cam'st thou by these ill tidings? speak, thou wretch. Gard. Pardon me, madam : little joy have I, To breathe this news; yet, what I say, is true. King Richard, he is in the mighty hold Of Bolingbroke; their fortunes both are weigh'd: In your lord's scale is nothing but himself.
And some few vanities that make him light; But in the balance of great Bollingbroke, Besides himself, are all the English peers, And with that odds be weighs king Richard down. Post you to London, and you'll find it so; I speak no more than every one doth know.

SCENE I.-London. Westminster Hall. CENE I.—London. Westminster Hall. The lords spiritual on the right side of the throne; the lords semporal on the lest; the commons below. Enter Bolingbroke, Aumerie, Surrey, Northumberland, Percy, Fitzwater, another lord, Bishop of Carlisle, Abbot of Westminster, and attendants. Officers behind, with Bagot.

To answer twenty thousand such as you. Surrey. My lord Fitzwater, I do remem the very time Aumerie and you did talk. Fitz. My lord, 'tis true: you were in then; of Carlisle, Abbot of Westminster, and attendants. Surrey. As false, by heaven, as heaven

Boling. Call forth Bagot:—
Now, Bagot, freely speak thy mind;
What thou dost know of noble Gloster's death;

Bagot. My lord Aumerle, I know your daring

Scorns to unsay what once it hath deliver'd. In that dead time when Gloster's death was plotted, I heard you say,—Is not my arm of length,
That reacheth from the resiful English court
Is far as Calais, to my uncle's head?
Amongst much other talk, that very time,
I heard you say, that you had rather refuse
The offer of a hundred thousand crowns, Than Bolingbroke's return to England; Adding withal, how blest this land would be, In this your cousin's death.

Aum. Princes, and noble lords.
What answer shall I make to this base man? Shall I so much dishonour my fair stars, On equal terms to give him chastisement? Either I must, or have mine honour soil'd With the attainder of his sland'rous lips.— There is my gage, the manual seal of death,
That marks thee out for hell: I say, thou liest,
And will maintain, what thou hast said, is false,
In thy heart-blood, though being all too base
To stain the temper of my knightly sword.

Beling. Bagot, forbear, thou shalt not take it up.
Jum. Excepting one, I would he were the best
In all this presence, that hath mov'd me so.

In all this presence, that hath mov'd me so.

Fitz. If that thy valour stand on sympathies,
There is my gage, Aumerle, in gage to thine:
By that fair sun that shows me where thou stand'st, I heard thee say, and vauntingly thou spak'st it, That thou wert cause of noble Gloster's death. If thou deny'st it, twenty times thou liest;
And I will turn thy falsehood to thy heart,
Where it was forged, with my rapier's point.
Aust. Thou dar'st not, coward, live to see that day.

(1) Pity. (2) Untimely.

rercy. Aumeric, thou liest; his nonour is as true, In this appeal, as thou art all unjust: And, that thou art so, there I throw my gage, To prove it on thee, to the extremest point Of mortal breathing; seize it, if thou dar'st.

Aum. And if I do not, may my hands rot off, And never brandish more revengeful steel Over the glittering helmet of my foe!

Lord. I take the earth to the like, forsworn

Aumerie; And spur thee on with full as many lies As may be holla'd in thy treacherous ear From sun to sun: there is my honour's pawn;

To answer twenty thousand such as you.
Surrey. My lord Fitzwater, I do remember wall

Fitz. Surrey, thou liest. Surrey. Dishonourable

That it shall render vengeance and revenge, Dishonourable boy ! What thou dost know of node Groster's dead, who wrought it with the king, and who perform'd. That lie shall lie so heavy on my sword, That it shall render vengeance and revenge, Bagot. Then set before my face the lord Aumerie. Till thou the lie-giver, and that lie, do lie In earth as quiet as thy father's scull. In proof whereof, there is my honour's pawn;

Engage it to the trial, if thou dar'st.

Fitz. How fondly dost thou spur a forward horse! If I dare eat, or drink, or breathe, or live, I dare meet Surrey in a wilderness, And spit upon him, whilst I say, he lies, And lies, and lies: there is my bond of faith, To tie thee to my strong correction.— As I intend to thrive in this new world, Aumerie is guilty of my true appeal: Besides, I heard the banish'd Norfolk say, That thou, Aumerle, didst send two of thy men To execute the noble duke at Calais. Would God, that any in this noble presence Were enough noble to be upright judge Of noble Richard; then true nobless' would Learn him forbearance from so foul a wrong. What subject can give sentence on his king And who sits here, that is not Richard's subject? Thieves are not judg'd, but they are by to hear, Although apparent guilt be seen in them: And shall the figure of God's majesty, His captain, steward, deputy elect,
Anointed, crown'd, planted many years,
Be judg'd by subject and inferior breath,
And he himself not present? O, forbid it, God, That, in a Christian climate, souls refin'd Should show so heinous, black, obscens a deed! I speak to subjects, and a subject speaks, Stirr'd up by heaven thus boidly for his king. My lord of Horeford here, whom you call king, Is a foul trailor to proud Hereford's king: And if you crown him, let me prophesy,-The blood of English shall manure the ground, And future ages groan for this foul act; Peace shall go sleep with Turks and infidels, And, in this seat of peace, turnultuous wars Shall kin with kin, and kind with kind confound; Disorder, horror, lear, and muting, Shall here inhabit, and this land be call'd The field of Golgotha, and dead men's sculls. O, if you rear this house against this house, It will the wofullest division prove,

That ever fell upon this cursed earth:

Lest child, child's children, cry against you—wo!
North. Well have you argu'd, sir; and, for your pains,
Of capital treason we arrest you here:

Boling, Are you contented to resign the crown!

K. Rich. Ay, no; no, ny;—for I must nothing be,
Therefore, no no, for I resign to thee.
Now mark me how I will undo myself:— I give this heavy weight from off my head, And this unwieldly sceptre from my hand, The pride of kingly sway from out my heart; With mine own tears I wash away my bains, With mine own hands I give away my crown, With mine own tongue deny my sacred state, With mine own breath release all duteous caths: All pomp and majesty I do forswear;

Which art a lion, and a king of beasts? K. Rich. A king of beasts, indeed; if aught but beasts,

I had been still a happy king of men. Good sometime queen, prepare thee hence for France: Think, I am doad; and that even here thou tak's!, As from my death-hed, my last living leave. In winter's tedious nights, sit by the fire With good old folks; and let them tell thee tales Of would noges, long ago betid: 3 And, ere thou bid good night, to quit their grief, Tell thou the ismentable fall of me, And send the hearers weeping to their beds For why, the senseless brands will sympathize The heavy accent of thy moving tongue,

And, in compassion, weep the fire out:
And some will mourn in ashes, some coal-black, For the deposing of a rightful king.

Enter Northumberland, attended. North. My lord, the mind of Bolingbroke is chang'd; You must to Pomfret, not unto the Tower. And, madam, there is order ta'en for you; With all swift speed you must away to France.

K. Rich. Northamberland, thou ladder where withal The mounting Bolingbroke ascends my throne, The time shall not be many hours of age More than it is, ere foul sin, gathering head, Shall break into corruption: thou shalt think Though he divide the realm, and give thee half,

It is too little, helping him to all; And he shall think, that thou, which know st the way To plant unrightful kings, wilt know again, Being ne'er so little urg'd, anether way To pluck him headlong from the usurped throne. The love of wicked friends converts to fear; That fear, to hate; and hate turns one, or both, To worthy danger, and deserved death.

ACT III.

SCENE I.—Bangor. A room in the archdeacon's house. Enter Hotspur, Worcester, Mortimer, and Glendower.

Mort. These promises are fair, the parties sure, And our inductions full of prosperous hope. Hol. Lord Mortimer, and cousin Glendower,-

Will you sit down? And, uncle Worcester :- A plague upon it!

I have forgot the map.

Glend. No, here it la. Sit, cousin Percy; sit, good cousin Hotspur: For by that name as oft as Lancaster Doth speak of you, his cheek looks paie; and with A rising sigh, he wishelt you in heaven. Hat. And you is hell as often as he has And you in hell, as often as he hears

If you suppose, as fearing you it shook.
Glend. The heavens were all on fire, the earth did tremble. Hot. O, then the earth shock to see the heavens on fire, And not in fear of your nativity. Diseased nature oftentimes breaks forth In strange eruptions: oft the teeming earth is with a kind of choic pinch'd and vex'd By the imprisoning of unruly wind Within her womb; which, for enlargement striving,

Shakes the old beldame earth, and topples down At your birth, Steeples, and moss-grown towers.

In passion shock, Glend. Cousin, of many men I do not bear these crossings. Give me leave To tell you once again,-that at my birth, The goals ran from the mountains, and the herds Were strangely clamorous to the frighted fields. These signs have mark'd me extraordinary; And all the courses of my life do show, I am not in the roll of common men.

(4) Lights set crossways upon beacons, and also upon point, which were used in processions, &c., (5) Tumbles, Glend. I can call spirits from the vasty deep.

Hol. Why, so can I; or so can any man:
But will they come, when you do call for them?

Glend. Why, I can teach you, cousin, to command The devil.

Hot. And I can teach thee, coz, to shame the devil, By telling truth; Tell truth, and shame the devil.— If thou have power to raise him, bring him hither, And I'll be sworn, I have power to shame him bence. Speak it in Welsh. O, while you live, tell truth, and shame the devil.

Glend. Come, here's the map; Shall we divide And that would set my teeth nothing on edge, our right,

According to our three-fold order ta'en?

Mort. The archdeacon hath divided it Into three limits, very equally: England, from Trent and Severn hitherto, By south and east, is to my part assign'd: All westward, Wales beyond the Severn shore, And all the fertile land within that bound, To Owen Glendower:—and, dear cox, to you The remnant northward, lying off from Trent. And our indentures triperlite are drawn: Which being sealed interchangeably, (A business that this night may execute,) To-morrow, cousin Percy, you, and i, And my good load of Wornester, will not be And my good lord of Worcester, will set forth, To meet your father, and the Scottish power,3 As is appointed us, at Shrewsbury. My father Giendower is not ready yet, Nor shall we need his help these fourteen days:-

And in my conduct shall your ladies come: From whom you now must steal, and take no leave; For there will be a world of water shed, Upon the parting of your wives and you.

Hot. Methinks, my moiety, north from Burton

Find pardon on my true submission.

A. Hen. God pardon thee!—yet let me wonder, Harry, At thy affections, which do hold a wing Quite from the flight of all thy ancestors Thy place in council thou hast rudely lost Which by thy younger brother is supplied; And art almost an alien to the hearts Of all the court and princes of my blood : The hope and expectation of thy time Is ruin'd; and the soul of every man Prophetically does fore-think thy fall. Had I so lavish of my presence been, So common-hackney'd in the eyes of men, So stale and cheap to rulgar company; Opinion, that did help me to lite crown, Had still kept loyal to possession; And left me in reputeless banishment, A feilow of no mark, nor likelihood. By being seldom seen, I could not stir, But, like a comet, I was wonder'd at: That men would tell their children, This is he: Others would say, -Where? which is Bolingbroke!
And then I stole all courtesy from heaven,
And dress'd myself in such humility, That I did pluck allegiance from men's hearts, Lond shouts and salutations from their mouths, Even in the presence of the crowned king. Thus did I keep my person fresh, and new; My presence, like a robe pontifical, Ne'er seen, but wonder'd at: and so my state, Seldom, but sumptuous, showed like a feast; And won, by rareness, such solemnity The skipping king, he ambled up and down With shallow jesters, and rash bavin' wits, Soon kindled, and soon burn'd: carded his state; Mingled his royalty with capering fools; Had his great name profuned with their scorns; And gave his countenance, against his name, To laugh at gilling boys, and stand the push Of every beardless vain comparative: Grew a companion to the common streets, Enfeoff'd' himself to popularity: That being daily swallow'd by men's eyes, They surfeiled with honey; and began To loathe the taste of sweetness, whereof a little More than a little is by much too much. So, when he had occasion to be seen, He was but as a cuckoo is in June, Heard, not regarded; seen, but with such eyes, As, sick and blunted with community, Afford no extraordinary gaze, Such as is bent on sun-like majesty When it shines soldom in admiring eyes: But rather drowz'd, and hung their eye-lids down, Slept in his face, and render'd such aspect As cloudy men use to their adversaries;
Being with his presence glutted, gorg'd, and full.
And in that very line, Harry, stand'st thou:
For thou hast lost thy princely privilege, With vile participation; not an eye But is a-weary of thy common sight, Bave mine, which hath desir'd to see thes more;

Now by my sceptre, and my soul to boot, He hath more worthy interest to the state, Than thou, the shadow of succession For, of no right, nor colour like to right, He doth fill fields with harness in the realen; Turns head against the lion's armed laws; And, being no more in debt to years than thou, Leads ancient lords and reverend bishops on, To bloody bettles, and to bruising arms.
What never-dying honour hath he got Against renowned Douglas; whose high deeds,
Whose hot incursions, and great name in arms,
Holds from all soldiers chief majority, And military title capital, Through all the kingdoms that acknowledge Christ? Thrice hath this Hotspur Mars in swething clothes, This infant warrior, in his enterprises Discomfitted great Douglas: ta on him once, Enlarged him, and made a friend of him, To fill the mouth of deep defiance up, And shake the peace and safety of our throne. And what say you to this? Percy, Northumberland, The archbishop's grace of York, Douglas, Mor timer, Capitulete' against us, and are up.

But wherefore do I tell these news to thee?
Why, Harry, do I tell thee of my foes,
Which art my near'st and deurest' enemy?
Thou that art like enough, —through vasual fear,
Base inclination, and the start of spicen,—
To fight against me under Percy's pay,
To dog his heels, and court'sy at his frowns,
To show how much degenerate thou are.

To show how much degenerate thou art.

P. Hen. Do not think so, you shall not find it so;
And God forgive them, that have so much sway'd You amajesty's good thoughts away from me! I will redeem all this on Percy's head, And, in the closing of some glorious day, Be bold to tell you, that I am your son When I will wear a garment all of blood, And stain my favours in a bloody mask, Which, wash'd away, shall scour my shame with it. And that shall be the day, whene'er it lights, That this same child of honour and renown, This gallant Hotspur, this all-praised knight And your unthought of Harry, chance to meet: For every honour sitting on his helm, 'Would they were multitudes; and on my head My shames redoubled! for the time will come, That I shall make this northern youth exchange llis glorious deeds for my indignities. Percy is but my factor, good my ford To engross up glorious deeds on my behalf; And I will call him to so strict account. That he shall render every glory up. Yea, even the slightest worship of his time, Or I will tear the reckoning from his heart. Fal. Bardolph, am I not fallen away vilely since this last action? do I not bate? do I not dwindle? of the I shall have no strength to repent. An I have not forgotten what the inside of a church is made. I shall have no strength to repent. An I have not forgotten what the inside of a church is made. I shall have no strength to repent. An I have not forgotten what the inside of a church is made sir. John for you we money here besides. Host. Now, as I am a true woman, holland of then I shall have no strength to repent. An I have not forgotten what the inside of a church is made of, I am a pepper-corn, a brewer's horse: the inside of a church! Company, villanous company, hatheen the spoil of me.

Bard. Sir John, you are so fretful, you cannot live long.

Bard. Why, there is it:—come, sing me a bandy song; make me merry. I was as virtuously given, in the like of a church is made me merry. I was as virtuously given, in the like of the properties of the like of the properties of the like of the like

I was as virtuously given, song; make me merry. I was as virtuously given, as a gentleman need to be; virtuous enough: swore as a gendeman need to be; virtuous enough; swore little; diced, not above seven times a week; went to a bawdy-house, not above once in a quarter—of an hour; paid money that I borrowed, three or four times; lived well, and in good compass: and now I live out of all order, out of all compass.

Bard. Why, you are so fat, sir John, that you must needs be out of all compass; out of all reasonable compass; if John.

sonable compass, sir John.

Fal. Do thou amend thy face, and I'll amend my life: Thou art our admiral, thou bearest the lantern in the poop,—but 'tis in the nose of thee; thou art the knight of the burning lamp.

Bard. Why, sir John, my face does you no harm.

Fal. No, I'll be sworn; I make as good use of it as many a man doth of a death's head, or a memento mori: I never see thy face, but I think upon hells fire and Direct that limit is purple. for these hell-fire, and Dives that lived in purple; for there he is in his robes, burning, burning. belly!

Fal. God-a-mercy! so should I be sure to be heart-burned.

Enter Hostess.

How now, dame Partlet the hen? have you inquired yet, who pick'd my pocket?

Host. Why, sir John! what do you think, sir
John? Do you think I keep thieves in my house? I have searched, I have inquired, so has my husband, man by man, boy by boy, servant by servant: the tithe of a hair was never lost in my house before.

Fal. You lie, hostess; Bardolph was shaved, and lost many a hair: and Pil be sworn, my pocket was picked: Go to, you are a woman, go.

Host. Who, 1? I defy thee: I was never called to in mire own house before.

so in mine own house before.

Fal. Go to, I know you well enough.

Host. No, sir John; you do not know me, sir
John: I know you, sir John: you owe me money, inn, but I shall have my pocket picked? I have lost a seal-ring of my grandfather's, worth forty mark.

Host. O Jesu! I have heard the prince tell him.

I know not how oft, that that ring was copper.

Fal. How! the prince is a Jack, a sneak-cup; and, if he were here, I would cudge! him like a dog, if he would say so.

Enter Prince Henry and Poins, marching. Falstaff meets the Prince, playing on his truncheon like a fife.

Fal. How now, lad? is the wind in that door, i'faith? must we all march?

Bard. Yes, two and two, Newgate-fashion.
Host. My lord, I pray you, hear me.
P. Hen. What sayest thou, mistress Quickly?
How does thy husband? I love him well, he is an honest man.

(6) In the story-book of Reynard the Fox.
(7) A term of contempt frequently used by nood in me else.

P. Hen. There's no more faith in thee than in a stewed prune; nor no more truth in thee, than in a drawn fox; and for womanhood, maid Marian' may be the deputy's wife of the ward to thee. Go, you thing, go.

Hest. Say, what thing? what thing?

Fal. What thing? why, a thing to thank God on.

Hest. I am no thing to thank God on, I would thou should'st know it; I am an honest man's wife: and, setting thy knighthood aside, thou art a knave to call me so.

Fal. Setting thy womanhood aside, thou art a

Fal. Setting try womanood aside, thou art a beast to say otherwise.

Host. Say, what beast, thou knave thou?

Fal. What beast? why, an otter.

P. Hes. An otter, sir John? why an otter?

Fal. Why? she's neither fish, nor flesh; a man knows not where to have her.

Host. Thou art an unjust man in saying so; thou or any man knows where to have me, thou knave thou

P. Hen. Thou sayest true, hostess; and he slanders thee most grossly.

Host. So he doth you, my lord; and said this other day, you ought him a thousand pound.

P. Hen. Sirrah, do I owe you a thousand pound?

Fal. A thousand pound, Hal? a million: thy love is worth a million; thou owest me thy love.

Host. Nay, my lord, he called you Jack, and said, he would cudgel you.

Fal. Did I, Bardolph?

Bard. Indeed, sir John, you said so.

Fal. Yea; if he said, my ring was copper.

P. Hen. I say, 'tis copper: Darest thou be as good as thy word now?

Fal. Why, Hal, thou knowest, as thou art but man, I dare: but, as thou art prince, I fear thee, as I fear the roaring of the lion's whelp.

P. Hen. And why not, as the lion?
Fal. The king himself is to be feared as the lion:
Dost thou think, I'll fear thee as I fear thy father?

nay, an I do, I pray God, my girdle break!

P. Hen. O, if it should, how would thy guts fall about thy knees! But, sirrah, there's no room for faith, truth, nor honesty, in this bosom of thine: it is filled up with guts, and midriff. Charge an honest woman with picking thy pocket! Why, thou whoresee, impudent, embossed rascal, if there whorese, impudent, embossed rascal, if there were any thing in thy pocket but tavern-reckonings, memorandums of bawdy-houses, and one poor penny-worth of sugar-candy, to make thee long-winded; if thy pocket were enriched with any other injuries but these, I am a viliain. And yet you will stand to it; you will not pocket up wrong:
Art thou not ashamed ?

Fal. Dost thou hear, Hal? thou knowest, in the state of innocency, Adam fell; and what should

P. Hen. A trifle, some eight-penny matter.

Host. So I told him, my lord; and I said, I breakfast; love thy busband, look to thy servests, heard your grace say so: And, my lord, he speaks are speakfast; love thy busband, look to thy servests, heard your grace say so: And, my lord, he speaks should reach the season in the seest, I am pacified.—Still?—Nay, pr'ythee, be gone. [Exit Hostess.] Now, Host. There's neither faith, truth, nor woman-pood in me cless.

P. Hen. O, my sweet beef, I must still be good angel to thee:—The money is paid back again. Fal. O, I do not like that paying back, its a double labour.

P. Hen. I am good friends with my father, and may do any thing.

Fal. Rob me the exchequer the first thing thou doest, and do it with unwashed hands too.

Bard. Do, my lord. P. Hen. I have procured thee, Jack, a charge of foot.

d. I would, it had been of horse. Where shall I find one that can steal well? O for a fine thief, of the age of two and twenty, or thereabouts! I am heinously unprovided. Well, God be thanked for these rebels, they offend none but the virtuous; I laud them, I praise them.

P. Hen. Bardolph.

Bard. My lord.

P. Men. Go bear this letter to lord John of Lancaster, My brother John; this to my lord of Westmoreland. Go, Poins, to horse, to horse; for thou, and I, have thirty miles to ride yet ere dinner-time.

Jack, Meet me to morrow i'the Temple hall,

At two o'clock i'the afternoon :

There shalt thou know thy charge; and there receive

Money, and order for their furniture. The land is burning; Percy stands on high;
And either they, or we, must lower lie.

ACT IV.

SCENE I.—The rebel camp, near Shrewsbury. Enter Hotspur, Worcester, and Douglas.

Hot. Well said, my noble Scot: If speaking truth, In this fine age, were not thought flattery, Such attribution should the Douglas' have, As not a soldier of this season's stamp Should go so general current through the world. By heaven, I cannot flatter; I defy<sup>2</sup> The tongues of soothers; but a braver place

In my heart's love, hath no man than yourself:
Nay, task me to the word; approve me, lord.
Doug. Thou art the king of honour: No man so potent breathes upon the ground, But I will beard him.

Hot. Do so, and 'tis well :-

Hot. Zounds! how has he the leisure to be sick, In such a justling time? Who leads his power?

Under whose government come they along?

Mess. His letters bear his mind, not I, my lord.

Wor. I prythee, tell me, doth he keep his bed?

Mess. He did, my lord, four days ere I set forth; And at the time of my departure thence, He was much fear'd by his physicians.

Wor. I would, the state of time had first been whole,

Ere he by sickness had been visited: His health was never better worth than now. Hot. Sick now! droop now! this sickness doth

The very life-blood of our enterprise; Tis catching hither, even to our camp. He writes me here,—that inward sickness— And that his friends by deputation could not So soon be drawn; nor did he think it meet, To lay so dangerous and dear a trust On any soul remov'd, but on his own. Yet doth he give us bold advertisement,-That with our small conjunction, we should on, To see how fortune is dispos'd to us: For, as he writes, there is no quailing? now; Because the king is certainly possess'd'
Of all our purposes. What say you to it?

Wor. Your father's sickness is a maim to us.

Hot. A perilous gash, a very limb lopp'd off:— And yet, in faith, 'tis not; his present want Seems more than we shall find it:—Were it good, To set the exact wealth of all our states All at one cast? to set so rich a main On the nice hazard of one doubtful hour? It were not good: for therein should we read The very list, the very utmost bound Of all our fortunes.

Doug.
Where now remains a sweet reversion: 'Faith, and so we should; We may boldly spend upon the hope of what

Is to come in:

A comfort of retirement lives in this. Hot. A rendezvous, a home to fly unto, If that the devil and mischance look big Upon the maidenhead of our affairs

Wor. But yet, I would your father had been here.

The quality and hairs of our attempt Brooks no division: It will be thought By some, that know not why he is away,
That wisdom, loyalty, and mere dislike
Of our proceedings, kept the earl from hence;
And think, how such an apprehension
May turn the tide of fearful faction, And breed a kind of question in our cause : For, well you know, we of the offering side Must keep aloof from strict arbitrement; And stop all sight-holes, every loop, from whence The eye of reason may pry in upon us: This absence of your father's draws a curtain, That shows the ignorant a kind of fear Before not dreamt of.

Doug. As heart can think: there is not such a word Spoke of in Scotland, as this term of fear.

Enter Sir Richard Vernon.

Hot. My cousin Vernon! welcome, by my soul. Ver. Pray God, my news be worth a welcome, lord.

The earl of Westmoreland, seven thousand strong, Is marching hitherwards; with him, prince John. Hot. No harm: What more?

Ver. And further, I have learn'd,—
The king himself in person is set forth,
Or hitherwards intended speedily,

With strong and mighty preparation.

Hot. He shall be welcome too. Where is his son, The nimble-footed mad-cap prince of Wales, And his comrades, that daff'd' the world aside,

And bid it pass ?

Ver. All furnish'd, all in arms, All plum'd like estridges that wing the wind; Bated like eagles having lately bath'd; Glittering in golden coats, like images; As full of spirit as the month of May, And gorgeous as the sun at midsummer; Wanton as youthful goats, wild as young bulls. I saw young Harry,—with his beaver on, His cuisses to on his thighs, gallantly arm'd,—Rise from the ground like feather'd Mercury, And vaulted with such ease into his seat, As if an angel dropp'd down from the clouds, To turn and wind a fiery Pegasus, And witch11 the world with noble horsemanship.

Hot. No more, no more; worse than the sun in March,

This praise doth nourish agues. Let them come: They come like sacrifices in their trim, And to the fire-ey'd maid of smoky war, All hot, and bleeding, will we offer them: The mailed Mars shall on his altar sit, Up to the ears in blood. I am on fire, To hear this rich reprisal is so nigh, And yet not ours:—Come, let me take my horse, Who is to bear me, like a thunderbolt, Against the bosom of the prince of Wales: Harry to Harry shall, hot horse to horse, Meet, and ne'er part, till one drop down a corse.

O, that Glendower were come!

Ver.

There is more news:

I learn'd in Worcester, as I rode along, He cannot draw his power this fourteen days Doug. That's the worst tidings that I hear of yet. Wor. Ay, by my faith, that bears a frosty sound. Hot. What may the king's whole battle reach unto? Ver. To thirty thousand.

Hot. Forty let it be; My father and Glendower being both away, The powers of us may serve so great a day. Come, let us make a muster speedily: Doomsday is near; die all, die merrily.

Fal. Bardolph, get thee before to Coventry; fill as better: tush, man, mortal men, mortal me a bottle of sack: our soldiers shall murch through; we'll to Sutton-Colfield to-night.

Bard, Will you give me money, captain?

Fel. What is the king encamped?

wd. I will, captain: farewell. Fal. If I be not ashumed of my soldiers, I am a sourced gurnet. I have misused the king's press damashly. I have got, in exchange of a hundred and fifty soldiers, three hundred and odd pounds. I press me none but good householders, yeomen's Fits a dull fig soms: inquire me out contracted bachelors, such as had been asked twice on the banne; such a com-modity of warm slaves, as had as lief hear the devil as a drum; such as fear the report of a caliver,* worse than a struck fowl, or a hurt wild-duck. I present me none but such tousts and butter, with hearts in their belies no bigger than pin's heads, and they have bought out their services; and now my whole charge consists of ancients, corporals, lieutenants, gentlemen of companies, slaves as ragged as Lazarus in the painted cloth, where the glutton's dogs licked his sores: and such as, in-deed, were never soldiers; but discarded unjust serving mea, younger sons to younger brothers, revolted tapatent, and outlors trade-fallen; the cankers Y of a calm world, and a long peace; ten times more dishonourable ragged than an old faced ancient:2 and such have I, to fill up the rooms of them that have bought out their services, that you would think, that I had a hundred and fifty taltered prodigals, lately come from swine-keeping, from eating draff and hunks. A mad fellow met me on the way, and told me, I had unloaded all the gibbets, and pressed the dead bodies. No eye hath seen such scarecrows. I'll not march through Coventry with them, erows. I'll not march amount of the villains march wide be-twirt the legs, as if they had gyves on; for, indeed, I had the most of them out of prison. There's but a shirt and a half in all my company; and the halfshirt is two napkins, tacked together, and thrown over the shoulders, like a herald's coat without sleeres; and the shirt, to say the fruth, stolen from my host at Saint Alban's, or the red-nose im-keeper of Daintry.* But that's all one; they'll find lines enough on every hodge.

Ester Prince Henry and Westmoreland.

P. Hen. How now, blown Jack? how now, quilt? Fal. What, Hal? How now, mad wag? what a devil doet thou in Warwickshire?—My good lord of Westmoreland, I cry you mercy; I thought your honour had already been at Shrewsbury. West. 'Faith, sir John, 'tis more than time that

Ver.

Come, come, it may not be.
I wonder much, being men of such great leading. That you foresce not what impediments Drag back our expedition: Certain horse Of my cousis Vernon's are not yet come up: Your uncle Worcester's horse came but to-day; And now their pride and mettle is asleep. Their courage with hard labour tame and dull. That not a horse is half the half himself.

Hot. So are the horses of the enemy In general, journey-bated, and brought low; The better part of ours is full of rest.

Wor. The number of the king exceedeth ours: For God's sake, cousin, stay till all come in.

Blunt. I come with gracious offers from the king, If you vouchsafe me hearing, and respect.

But stand against us like an enemy. Bhasi. And God defend, but still I should stand so, So long as, out of limit, and true rule, You stand against anointed majesty! But, to my charge.—The king hath sent to know The nature of your griefs; and whereupon You conjure from the breast of civil peace Such bold hostility, teaching this duteous land Audacious cruelty: If that the king Have any way your good deserts forgot,-Which he confisseth to be manifold,-He bids you name your gricls; and, with all speed You shall have your desires, with interest; And pardon absolute for yourself, and these, Lieruin mided by your suggestion. Hot. The king is kind; and, well we know, the king Knows at what time to promise, when to pay, My father, and my uncle, and myself, Did give him that same royalty he wears : And,—when he was not six and twenty strong, Sick is the world's regard, wretched and low, A poor unminded outlaw sneaking home,— My father gave him welcome to the shore: And, -when he heard him swear, and you to God, He came but to be duke of Lancaster, To sue his livery, and beg his peace; With tears of innocency, and terms of zeal,-My father, in kind heart and pity mov'd Swore him assistance, and perform'd it too. Now, when the lords, and barons of the realm, Perceiv'd Northumberland did lean to him The more and less' came in with cap and knee; Met him in boroughs, cities, villages; Attended him on bridges, stood in lanes, Laid gifts before him, proffer'd him their oaths, Gave him their heirs; as pages follow'd him, Even at the heels, in golden multitudes. He presently,—as greatness knows itself,— Steps me a little higher than his vow Made to my father, while his blood was poor, Upon the naked shore at Ravenspurg; And naw, forsooth, takes on him to reform Some certain edicts, and some straft decrees, That lie too heavy on the commonwealth:

Cries out upon abuses, seems to weep
Over his country's wrong; and, by this face,
This seeming brow of justice, did he win
The hearts of all that he did angle for. Proceeded further; cut me off the heads Of all the favourities, that the absent king In deputation left behind him here, When he was personal in the Irish war.

Blunt. Tut, I came not to hear this.

Hot.

Then, to the point.

In short time after, he depos'd the king; Soon after that, deprived him of his life; And, in the neck of that, task'd the whole state: To make that worse, suffer'd his kinsman, March, (Who is, if every owner were well pinc'd, indeed his king,) to be incag'd in Wales, There without ransom to lie forfelted: Disgrac'd me in my happy victories; Sought to entrap me by intelligence; Rated my uncle from the council-board; In rage dismiss'd my father from the court; Broke oath on oath, committed wrong on wrong : And, in conclusion, drove us to seek out This head of safety; and, withal, to pry Into his title, the which we find Too indirect for long continuance, Blunt. Shall I return this answer to the king ? Hot. Not so, sir Walter; we'll withdraw awhile. Go to the king; and let there be impawn'd Some surety for a safe return again, And in the morning early shall mine uncle Bring him our purposes: and so farewell.

Blust. I would you would accept of grace and love.

SCENE IV .- York A room in the archbishop's Enter the Archbishop of York, and a Gentleman.

Arch. Hie, good sir Michael; bear this sealed brief.

With winged haste, to the lord mareshal; This to my cousin Scroop; and all the rest To whom they are directed: if you know How much they do import, you would make hasts, Gent. My good lord, I guess their tenor.

Arch. Like enough you do. To-morrow, good sir Michael, is a day, Wherein the fortune of ten thousand men Must bide the touch: For, sir, at Shrowsbury, As I am truly given to understand, The king, with mighty and quick-raised power, Meets with lord Harry: and I fear, sir Michael, What with the sickness of WorthsmissFand. What with the sickness of Northumberland, (Whose power was in the first proportion,) And what with Owen Glendower's absence, thence, (Who with them was a rated sinew too, And comes not in, o'er-rul'd by prophecies,)—
I fear, the power of Percy is too weak

To wage an instant trial with the king.

Gent. Why, good my lord, you need not har;
there's Douglas,

And Mortimer.

Arch. No. Mortimer's not there Gent. But there is Mordake, Vernon, lord Harry

Perey,
And there's my lord of Worcester; and a head Of gallant warriors, noble gentlemen

Arch. And so there is: but yet the king bath drawn The special head of all the land together :

The prince of Wales, lord John of Lancaster, The noble Westmoreland, and warlike Blunt; And many more cor-rivals, and dear men Of estimation and command in arms.

Gent. Doubt not, my lord, they shall be well opposid.

Arch. I hope no less, yet needful 'tis to fear , And, to prevent the worst, sir Michael, speed: For, if lord Percy thrive not, ere the king Dismiss his power, he means to visit us, For he hath heard of our confederacy,— And its but wisdom to make strong against him; Therefore, make haste: I must go write again To other friends; and so farewell, sir Michael Exe. severally.

For nothing can seem foul to those that win .-

How now, my lord of Worcester? 'tis not well. That you and I should meet upon such terms As now we meet: You have deceive our trust; And made us doff our easy robes of peace, To crush our old limbs in ungentie steel: This is not well, my lord, this is not well. What say you to't? will you again unknit This churlish knot of all-abhorred war? And move in that obedient orb again, Where you did give a fair and natural light; And be no more an exhal'd meteor, A prodigy of fear, and a portent Of broached mischief to the unborn times? Wor. Hear me, my liege:
For mine own part, I could be well content To entertain the lag-end of my life With quiet hours; for, I do protest I have not sought the day of this dislike. K. Hen. You have not sought for it i how comes it then? Fal. Rebellion lay in his way, and he found it. P. Hen. Peace, chewet, peace.

Wor. It pleas'd your majesty, to turn your looks
Of favour, from myself, and all our house;

K. Hen. And, prince of Wales, so dare we ver-And yet, I must remember you, my lord, We were the first and dearest of your friends. we were the first and dearest of your friends. For you, my staff of office did I break In Richard's time; and posted day and night To meet you on the way, and kiss your hand, When yet you were in place and in account Nothing so strong and dortunate as I. It was myself, my brother, and his son That brought you home, and boldly did outdare The dangers of the time: You swore to us,— And you did swear that oath at Doncaster, That you did nothing purpose 'gainst the state; Nor claim no further than your new-full'n right, The seat of Gaunt, dukedom of Lancaster :

To this we swore our aid. But, in short space It rain'd down fortune showering on your head; And such a flood of greatness fell on you,—
What with our help; what with the absent king;
What with the injuries of a wanton time; The seeming sufferances that you had borne; And the contrarious winds, that held the king So long in his unlucky Irish wars, That all in England did repute him dead,— And, from this swarm of fair advantages, You took occasion to be quickly woo'd To gripe the general sway into your hand: And, being fed by us, you us'd us so
As that ungentle gull, the cuckoo's bird,
Useth the sparrow: did oppress our nest; Grew by our feeding to so great a bulk,

That even our love durst not come near your sight,

For fear of swallowing; but with nimble wing We were enforc'd, for safety sake, to fly Out of your sight, and raise this present head: Whereby we stand opposed by such means

As you yourself have forg'd against yourself; (I) Woody. (2) Put (3) A chattering bird, a ple (2) Put off.

K. Hen. Then with the losers let it sympathize; To face the garment of rebellion or nothing can seem foul to those that win.—

Trompet. Enter Worcester and Vernon.
ow now, my lord of Worcester? Itis not well,

Of hurly-burly innovation: And never yet did insurrection want Such water-colours, to impaint his cause; Nor moody beggars, starving for a time Of pell-mell bavoc and confusion.

. Hert. In both our armies, there is many a soul Shall pay full dearly for this encounter,
If once they join in trial. Tell your nephew,
The prince of Wales doth join with all the world In praise of Henry Percy; By my hopes, This present enterprise set off his head,— I do not think, a braver gentieman, More active-valiant, or more valiant-young, More daring, or more bold, is now alive, To grace this latter age with noble deeds. For my part, I may speak it to my shame, I have a truant been to chivalry; And so, I hear, he doth account use too: Yet this before my father's majesty,— I am content, that he shall take the odds Of his great name and estimation; And will, to save the blood on either side, ture thee, Albeit, considerations infinite Do make against it:—No, good Worcester, no, We love our people well; even those we love. That are misled upon your cousin's part; I hat are mased upon your consin s pars.

And, will they take the offer of our grace,
Both he, and they, and you, yea, every man,
Shall be my friend again, and Pil be his:
So tell your cousin, and bring me word.
What he will do:—Buf if he will not yield, Rebuke and dread correction wait on us, And they shall do their office. So, be gone; We will not now be troubled with reply : We offer fair, take it advisedly.

[Exempt Worcester and Vernoe. P. Hen. It will not be accepted, on my life: The Douglas and the Hotspur both together Are confident against the world in arms.

K. Hen. Hence, therefore, every leader to his charge;

For, on their answer, will we set on them:
And God befriend us, as our cause is just!

[Except King, Blunt, and Prince John.

Fal. Hal, if thou see me down in the battle, and bestride me, so; 'tis a point of friendship.

P. Hen. Nothing but a colossus can do thee that friendship. Say thy prayers, and farewell.

Fat. I would it were bod-time, Hal, and all well.

P. Hen. Why, thou owest God a death. [Exit. Fal. 'Tis not due yet; I would be louth to pay him before his day. What need I be so forward with him that calls not on me? Well, 'tis so matter; Honour pricks me on. Yea, but how if honour prick me off when I come on? how then? Can honour set to a leg? No. Or an arm? No. Or take away the grief of a wound? No. Honour hath no still in surrecy then? No. What is honour? hath no skill in surgery then? No. What is honour? A word. What is in that word, honour? What is m, and so ends my catechism. CENE II .- The rebel camp. and Vernon.

The liberal kind offer of the king. Ver. 'Twere best he did. Wor. Then are we all undone. t is not possible, it cannot be, The king should keep his word in loving us; le will suspect us still, and find a time To punish this offence in other faults: Suspicion shall be all stuck full of eyes: For treason is but trusted like the fox Who, ne'er so tame, so cherish'd, and lock'd-up,
Will have a wild trick of his ancestors.
Look how we can, or sad, or merrily,
Interpretation will misquote our looks; And we shall feed like oxen at a stall, The better cherish'd, still the nearer death. My nephew's trespass may be well forgot, It hath the excuse of youth, and heat of blood; And an adopted name of privilege,— A hair-brain'd Hotspur, govern'd by a spleen:

An har-brain'd rictspur, govern'd by a spicen: All his offences live upon my head,
And on his father's;—we did train him on;
And, his corruption being ta'en from us,
We, as the spring of all, shall pay for all.
Therefore, good cousin, let not Harry know,
In any case, the offer of the king.

Ver. Deliver what you will, I'll say, 'tis so.
Here comes your cousin.

Here comes your cousin.

Enter Hotspur and Douglas; and officers and soldiers, behind.

Hot. My uncle is return'd :- Deliver up My lord of Westmoreland.—Uncle, what news?
Wor. The king will bid you battle presently.
Doug. Defy him by the lord of Westmoreland.
Hot. Lord Douglas, go you and tell him so.
Doug. Marry, and shall, and very willingly.

[Exit

Wor. There is no seeming mercy in the king. Hot. Did you beg any? God forbid! Wor. I told him gently of our grievances, Of his oath-breaking; which he mended thus, By now forswearing that he is forsworn: He calls us rebels, traitors; and will scourge With haughty arms this hateful name in us.

Re-enter Douglas.

Doug. Arm, gentlemen; to arms! for I have thrown

A brave defiance in king Henry's teeth,
And Westmoreland, that was engag'd, did bear it;
Which cannot choose but bring him quickly on.

Wor. The prince of Wales stepp'd forth before

| Blunt. What is thy name, that in the battle thus Thou crossest me? what honour dost thou seek Upon my head?
| Doug. Know then, my name is Douglas;

the king,
And, nephow, challeng'd you to single fight.
Hot. O, 'would the quarrel lay upon our heads; And that no man raight draw short oreas bought
But I, and Harry Monmouth! Tell me, tell me,
How show'd his tasking? seemed it in contempt?
Thy likeness; for, instead of thee, king Harry,
This sword hath ended him: so shall it thee,
This sword hath ended him: so shall it thee, And that no man might draw short breath to-day,

(1) Painted heraldry in funerals. (2) Recital. (3) Own.

Enter Worcester
And, which became him like a prince indeed,
He made a blashing cital of himself; Wor. O, no, my nephew must not know, sir And chid his truant youth with such a grace, Richard, Of teaching, and of learning, instantly. There did he pause: But let me tell the world,—
If he outlive the envy of this day,
England did never owe so sweet a hope, So much misconstrued in his wantonness Hot. Cousin, I think, thou art enamour'd Upon his follies; never did I hear Of any prince, so wild, at liberty:—
But, be he as he will, yet once ere night
I will embrace him with a soldier's arm, That he shall shrink under my courtesy.—
Arm, arm, with speed:——And, fellows, soldiers, friends, Better consider what you have to do, Than I, that have not well the gift of tongue, Can lift your blood up with persuasion.

Enter a Messenger.

Mess. My lord, here are letters for you. Hot. I cannot read them now.— O gentlemen, the time of life is short; To spend that shortness basely, were too long, If life did ride upon a dial's point, Still ending at the arrival of an hour. An if we live, we live to tread on kings; If die, brave death, when princes die with us ! Now for our conscience,—the arms are fair, When the intent of bearing them is just.

Enter another Messenger.

Mess. My lord, prepare; the king comes on apace.
Hot. I thank him, that he cuts me from my tale,
For I profess not talking; Only this—
Let each man do his beet; and here draw I A sword, whose temper I intend to stain With the best blood that I can meet withal Now,—Esperance!—Percy!—and set on.
Sound all the lofty instruments of war,
And by that music let us all embrace: For, heaven to earth, some of us never shall A second time do such a courtesy.

[The trumpets sound. They embrace, and exemat.]

SCENE III.—Plain near Shrewsbury. Excur-sions, and parties fighting. Alarum to the bat-tle. Then enter Douglas and Blunt, meeting.

Doug. Know then, my name is Douglas;
And I do hause there in the battle thus,
Because some tell me that thou art a king.
Blunt. They tell thee true.
Doug. The lord of Stafford dear to-day hath bought

Unless thou yield thee as my prisoner.

(4) The motto of the Percy family.

Rimi. I was not born a yielder, thou proud Scot; Harry, withdraw thyself; thou bleed'st too much:

And thou shalt find a king that will rereage
Lord Stafford's death.

P. John. Not I, my lord, unless I did bleed then. Lord Stafford's death.

[They fight, and Blunt is stain. Enter Hotepur.

Hot. O Douglas, badet thou funght at Holmedon thus.

I never had triumph'd upon a Scot.

Dong. All's done, all's won; here breathless Dong, Airs lies the king.

Hot, Where !

A gallant knight he was, his name was Blunt; Semblably: furnish'd like the king himself. Doug. A fool go with thy soul, whither it goes ! borrow'd title hast thou bought too dear.

Why didst thou tell me that thou wert a king?

Hot. The king hath many marching in his coats.

Doug. Now, by my sword, I will kill all his coats;
Pli murder all his wardrobe, piece by piece, Until I meet the king.

Hot. Up, and away; Our soldiers stand full fairly for the day. [Execut. Other elerane, Enter Fulstaff.

Fat. Though I could 'scape shot-free at London, I fear the shot here; here's no scoring, but upon the puts.—Soft! who art thou? Sir Walter Blunt: there's honour for you: Here's no vanity!--I am as hot as mollen lead, and as heavy too: God keep lead out of me: I need no more weight than mine own bowels.—I have led my raggamuffins where they are peppered: there's but three of my hundred and fifty loft alive; and they are for the town's end, to beg during life. But who comes here?

Enter Prince Henry.

P. Hen, What, stand'st thou idle here? land me thy sword:

Many a nobleman liss stark and stiff, Under the hoofs of vaunting enemies.
Whose deaths are unrevenged: Prythee, lend thy sword.

Fal. O Hal, I pr'ythee, give me leave to breathe a while.—Turk Gregory never did such deeds in arms, as I have done this day. I have paid Percy, I have made him sure,

P. Hen. He is, indeed; and living to kill thee. Lend me thy sword, I prythee. Fal. Nay, before God, Hal, if Parcy be alive.

Lend me thy sword, I prythee.

Fal. Nay, before God, Hal, if Percy be alive. Of Shirty, Stafford, Blunt, are in my arms: thou get'st not my aword; but take my platel, if It is the prince of Wales, that threatens thee; thou wilt

P. Hen. Give it me: What, is it in the case?
Fal. Ay, Hal; 'tis hot, 'tis hot; there's that will mck a city.

[The Prince draws out a bottle of each. P. Hen. What, is't a time to just and dally now?

! Throngs it at him, and exit.

E. Hen. I pr'ythee,

In recomblemen.

(2) A place of most out crosswise for the gridiron.

P. Hes. I do beseech your majesty, make up, Lest your retirement do amaze your irlends. K. Hen. I will do so :-

My lord of Westmoreland, lead him to his tent.

West. Come, my lord, I will lead you to your tent.

P. Hen. Lead me, my lord? I do not need your belp:

And heaven forbid, a shallow scratch should drive The prince of Wales from such a field as this; Doug. Here.

Hot. This, Douglas? no, I know this face full And rebels' arms triumph in massacres!

Well:

P. John. We breathe too long:—Come, committee.

Westmoreland,
Our duty this way lies; for God's sake, come.

[Execut Prince John and Westmoreland. P. Hen. By heaven, thou hast deceived me, Lancaster, I did not think thee lord of such a spirit : Before, I lov'd thee as a brother, John ;

But now, I do respect thee as my soul.

K. Hen. I saw him hold lord Piercy at the point,
With Instier maintenance than I did look for Of such an ungrown warrior.

P. Hen. Lends mettle to us all ! 0, this boy [Emil.

Alerens. Enter Douglas.

Doug. Another king I they grow like Hydra's heads:

I am the Dougias, fatal to all those That wear those colours on them.—What art those, That counterfelt at the person of a king?

K. Hen. The king himself; who, Douglas, grieves at heart.

So many of his shadows thou hast met, And not the very king. I have two boys,
Seek Percy, and thyself, about the field:
But, seeing thou fall'st on me so luckily,
I will assay thee; so defend thyself.
Doug. I feer, thou art another counterfeit;
And yet, in faith, thou bear'st thee like a king:
But will assay they thou art another than be

But mine, I am sure thou art, whoe'er thou be, And thus I win thee.

[They fight; the King being in danger, enter Prince Henry. P. Hen. Hold up thy bead, vile Scot, or thou art like

Who never promiseth, but he means to pay. [They fight; Douglas flies

Cheerly, my lord; How fares your grace?— Sir Nicholas Gawsey hath for succour sent, And so bath Clifton; Pll to Clifton straight. K. Hen. Stay, and breathe awhile:—

[Thrones it at him, and exit. Thou hast redeem'd thy lost opinion; Fel. Well, if Percy be alive, I'll pierce him. If And show'd, thou mak'st some tender of my life, he do come in my way, so: it he do not, if I come in this fair rescue thou has brought to me.

P. Hen. O heaven! they did me too much in-

K. Hest. Make up to Clifton, I'll to sir Nicholes Gamey. [Exit King Henry.

(3) Reputation.

Enter Hotspur.

Hot. If I mistake not, thou art Harry Monmouth.

P. Hen. Thou speak'st as if I would deny my name.

Hot. My name is Harry Percy.
Why, then I see

A very valiant rebel of the name.

I am the prince of Wales; and think not, Percy,
To share with me in glory any more:
Two stars keep not their motion in one sphere;
Nor can one England brook a double reign,
Of Marry Per

Of Harry Percy, and the prince of Wales.

Hot. Nor shall it, Harry, for the hear is come
To end the one of us; And 'would to God,

Thy name in arms were now as great as mine!

P. Hen. I'll make it greater, ere I part from thee; And all the budding honours on thy crest I'll crop, to make a garland for my head.

Hot. I can no longer brook thy vanities.

[They fight.

Enter Falstaff.

Fal. Well said, Hal! to it, Hal!-Nay, you shall find no boy's play here, I can tell you.

Enter Douglas; he fights with Falstaff, who falls down as if he were dead, and exit Douglas. Hot-spur is wounded, and falls.

Hot. O, Harry, thou hast robb'd me of my youth:

I better brook the loss of brittle life,

Than those proud titles thou hast won of me; They wound my thoughts, worse than thy sword my flesh :-But thought's the slave of life, and life time's fool; And time, that takes survey of all the world, Must have a stop. O, I could prophesy, But that the earthy and cold hand of death Lies on my tongue :- No, Percy, thou art dust, And food for

P. Hen. For worms, brave Percy: Fare thee well, great heart!—

Ill-weav'd ambition, how much art thou shrunk!

When that this body did contain a spirit,

A kingdom for it was too small a bound; But now, two paces of the vilest earth
Is room enough:—This earth, that bears thee dead, Bears not alive so stout a gentleman. If thou wert sensible of courtesy,

I should not make so dear a show of zeal:— But let my favours' hide thy mangled face; And, even in thy behalf, I'll thank myself For doing these fair rites of tenderness. Adieu, and take thy praise with thee to heaven! Thy ignominy sleep with thee in the grave,
But not remember'd in thy epitaph!—
[He sees Falstaff on the ground

What! old acquaintance! could not all this flesh Keep in a little life? Poor Jack, farewell! I could have better spar'd a better man. O, I should have a heavy miss of thee, If I were much in love with vanity. Death hath not struck so fat a deer to-day,

Though many dearer, in this bloody fray:
Embowell'd will I see thee by and by;
Till then, in blood by noble Percy lie.
Fal. [Riting slouly.] Embowell'd! If thou embowel me to day I'll give you have to norde?

bowel me to-day, I'll give you leave to powder' me, and eat me too, to-morrow. 'Sblood, 'twas time to counterfeit, or that hot termagant Scot had paid me scot and lot too. Counterfeit? I lie, I am no counterfeit: To die, is to be a counterfeit; for he but the counterfeit of a man, who hath not the counterfeit of a man of the life of a man: but to counterfeit dying, when a man thereby liveth, is to be no counterfeit, but the man thereby livein, is to be no counterfeit, but the true and perfect image of life indeed. The better part of valour is—discretion; in the which better part, I have saved my life. Zounds, I am afraid of this gunpowder Percy, though he be dead: How, if he should counterfeit too, and rise? I am afraid he would prove the better counterfeit. Therefore I'll make him sures year and I'll swear I bill. fore I'll make him sure: yea, and I'll swear I killed him. Why may not he rise, as well as I? Nothing confutes me but eyes, and nobody sees me. Therefore, sirrah, [Stabbing him.] with a new wound in your thigh, come you along with me.

(1) Scarf with which he covers Percy's face.

[Takes Hotspur on his back.

Re-enter Prince Henry and Prince John.

P. Hen. Come, brother John, full bravely hast thou flesh'd Thy maiden sword.

P. John. But soft! whom have we here?

Did you not tell me, this fat man was dead?

P. Hen. I did; I saw him dead, breathless and bleeding

Upon the ground.—
Art thou alive? or is it phantasy
That plays upon our eye-sight? I pr'ythee, speak;
We win not trust our eyes, without our ears:—

Thou art not what thou seem'st.

Fal. No, that's certain; I am not a double man:
but if I be not Jack Falstaff, then am I a Jack. There is Percy: [Throwing the body down.] if your father will do me any honour, so; if not, let him kill the next Percy himself. I look to be either earl or duke, I can assure you.

P. Hen. Why, Percy I killed myself, and saw thee dead.

Fal. Didst thou?-Lord, lord, how this world is given to lying !—I grant you, I was down, and out of breath; and so was he: but we rose both at an instant, and so was not but we rose both at an instant, and sought a long hour by Shrewsbury clock. If I may be believed, so; if not, let them, that should reward valour, bear the sin upon their own heads. I'll take it upon my death, I gave him this wound in the thigh: if the man were alive, and would deny it, I would make him eat a piece of my sword.

P. John. This is the strangest tale that e'er I heard.

P. Hen. This is the strangest fellow, brother John.

Come, bring your luggage nobly on your back: For my part, if a lie may do thee grace, I'll gild it with the happiest terms I have.

[A retreat is sounded.
The trumpet sounds retreat, the day is ours. Come, brother, let's to the highest of the field. To see what friends are living, who are dead.

Exeunt Prince Henry and Prince John. Fal. I'll follow, as they say, for reward. He that rewards me, God reward him! If I do grow great, I'll grow less; for I'll purge, and leave sack, and live cleanly, as a nobleman should do.

[Exit_bearing off the body.

SCENE V.—Inother part of the field. The trumpets sound. Enter King Henry, Prince Henry, Prince John, Westmoreland, and others; with Worcester, and Vernon, prisoners.

(2) Salt. SF

Missee the tenor of thy kineman's trust? Three knights upon our party slain to day,
A noble earl, and many a creature cise,
Had been alive this hour,
If, like a Christian, thou hads truly borne

Betwirt our armies true intelligence.

Wer. What I have done, my safety urg'd me to;
And I embrace this fortune putiently,
Since not to be avoided it falls on me.

K. Hen, Bear Worcester to the death, and Vernon too:

Other offenders we will pause upon.—
[Excent Worcester and Vernon, guarded.

How goes the field? P. Hen. The noble Scot, lord Douglas, when be saw The fortune of the day quite turn'd from him, The northese or the day quies turn'd from him. The noble Percy slain, and all his men. "Upon the foot of fear,—food with the rest; And, falling from a hill, he was so bruis'd. That the pursuers took him. At my tent. The Douglas is; and I beseeth your grace, I may dispose of him.

With all my heart. K. Hen.

P. Hen. Then, brother John of Lancaster, to TOU

This honourable bounty shall belong: Go to the Douglas, and deliver him Up to his pleasure, ransomless, and free: His valour shown upon our creats to-day, Hath taught us how to cherish such high deeds, Even in the bosom of our adversaries. K. Men. Then this remains,—that we divide our power.---You, son John, and my cousin Westmoreland, Towards York shall bend you, with your dearest speed, To meet Northumberland, and the prelate Scroep Who, as we begr, are busily in arms:

Myself,—and you, son Harry,—will towards Wales
To fight with Glendower, and the earl of March.
Rebellion in this land shell lose his away, Meeting the check of such another day: And since this business so fair is done, Let us not leave till all our own be won

INDUCTION.

Warkworth. Before Northumberland's cattle. Enter Rumour, pointed full of tengues.

Rum. Open your cars; For which of you will the vent of hearing, when loud Rumour speaks?

from the orient to the dreoping west, , from the orient to the drapping west, daking the wind my post-horse, still unfold the acts commenced on this ball of earth: Joon my tongues continual alanders ride; The which in every language I pronounce, itufing the cars of men with false reports, ituling the ears of men with false reports, speak of peace, while covert enmity, Inder the smile of safety, wounds the world: and who but Rumour, who but only I, take fearful musters, and prepar'd defence; Whilst the big year, swoll'n with some other grief, a thought with child by the stern tyrant war, and no such matter? Rumour is a pipe 310 wm by surmises, jeafousies, conjuctures; but of so carn and so nhis no aton. and of so easy and so plain a stop, That the blunt monster with uncounted heads, The still-discordant wavering multitude, The still-discordant wavering multitude, 2an play upon it. But what need I thus
My well-known body to anatomize
Among my household? Why is Rumour here?
I run before king Harry's victory;
Who, in a bloody field by Shrewsbury,
Hath beaten down young Hotspur, and his troops,
Quenching the fiame of bold rebellion
Even with the rehel's blood! Rut what many I Even with the rebel's blood. But what mean I To speak so true at first? my office is To noise abroad,—that Harry Monmouth fell Under the wrath of noble Hotspur's sword; And that the king before the Douglas' rage Stoop'd his anointed head as low as death.

(1) Northumberland's castle.

This have I rumour'd through the peasant towns Between that royal field of Shrewsbury And this worm-eaten hold of ragged stone, 1 Where Hotspur's father, old Northumberland, Lies crafty-sick: the posts come tiring on, And not a men of them brings other news Than they have learn'd of me; From Rumour's tongues They bring smooth comforts false, worse than true Prit. wrongs.

ACT I.

SCENE I.-The same. The Porter before the gate; Enter Lord Burdolph.

Bard. Who keeps the gate here, ho?--Where is the carl?

Port. What shall I say you are? Tell thou the carl, Bord. That the lord Bardolph doth attend him here.

Port. His lordship is walk'd forth into the orchard;
Please it your honour, knock but at the gate,
And he himself will answer.

Enter Northumberland.

Here comes the earl. North. What news, ford Bardolph? every minute DOM

Should be the father of some stratagem:

The times are wild; contention, like a horse Full of high feeding, madly hath broke loose, And bears down all before him.

Bard. Noble earl. I bring you certain news from Shrewsbury.

North. Good, an beaven will!

As good as blart can wish :-Bard. The king is almost wounded to the death;

1.

(2) Important or dreadful event.

So fought, so follow'd, and so fairly won, Came not, till now, to dignify the times, Since Cæsar's fortunes!

North. How is this deriv'd?
Saw you the field? came you from Shrewsbury?
Bard. I spake with one, my lord, that came from thence;

A gentleman well bred, and of good name,
That freely render'd me these news for true.

That freely render'd me these news for true.

North. Here comes my servant, Travers, whom
I sent
On Tuesday last to listen after news.

Bard. My lord, I over-rode him on the way; And he is furnish'd with no certainties, More than he haply may retain from me.

Enter Travers.

North. Now, Travers, what good tidings come with you?

Tra. My lord, sir John Umfrevile turn'd me back With joyful tidings; and, being better hors'd, Out-rode me. After him, came, spurring hard, A gentleman almost forspent' with speed, That stopp'd by me to breathe his bloodied horse: He ask'd the way to Chester; and of him I did demand, what news from Shrewsbury. He told me, that rebellion had bad luck, And that young Harry Percy's spur was cold: With that, he gave his able horse the head, And, bending forward, struck his armed heels Against the panting sides of his poor jade Up to the rowel-head; and, starting so, He seem'd in running to devour the way, Staying no longer question.

North. Ha!—Again. Said he, young Harry Percy's spur was cold? (If Hotspur, coldspur? that rebellion

Had met ill luck?

Bard.

My lord, I'll tell you what;—

If my young lord your son has not the day,

Upon mine henour, for a silken point?

Plugice my barony, percet talk of it.

I'll give my barony: never talk of it.

North. Why should the gentleman, that rode by

Travers,

Give then such instances of loss?

Bard.

Who, he?

He was some hilding? fellow, that had stol'n

The horse he rode on; and, upon my life,

Speke at a venture. Look, here comes more news.

Enter Morton.

North. Yea, this man's brow, like to a title-leaf, Foretells the nature of a tragic volume:
So looks the strond, whereon the imperious flood Hath left a witness'd usurpation.

Say, Morton, didst thou come from Shrewsbury?

Mor. I ran from Shrewsbury, my noble lord;
Where hateful death put on his ugliest mask,

To fright our party.

North. How doth my son, and brother?

Thou tremblest; and the whiteness in thy cheek
Is apter than thy tongue to tell thy errand.

Even such a man, so faint, so spiritless,
So dull, so dead in look, so wo-begone,

(1) Exhausted. (2) Lace tagged. (3) Hilderling, base, cowardly. (4) An attestation of its ravage. Your brother, thus; so fought the moble Doughs; Stopping my greedy ear with their bold deeds; But in the end, to stop mine ear indeed, Thou hast a sigh to blow away this praise, Ending with—brother, son, and all, are dead. Mor. Doughas is living, and your brother, yet. But, for my lord your son,————North.

Why, he is dead. See, what a ready tongue suspicion hath!
He, that but fears the thing he would not know, Hath, by instinct, knowledge from others' eye, That what he fear' dis chanced. Yet speak, Mortas; Tell thou thy earl, his divination lies; And I will take it as a sweet disgrace, And make thee rich for doing me such wrong. Mor. You are too great to be by one gainstid: Your spirit is too true, your fears too certain. North. Yet, for all this, say not that Percy's dead. I see a strange confession in thine eye:
Thou shak'st thy head, and hold'st it fear, or sin, To speak a truth. If he be slain, say so:
The tongue offends not, that reports his death:
And he doth sin, that doth belie the dead;
Not he, which says the dead is not alive.
Yet the first bringer of unwelcome news

Mor. I am sorry, I should force you to believe That, which I would to heaven I had not seen: But these mine eyes saw him in bloody state, Rend'ring faint quittance, wearled and outbreath. To Harry Monmouth: whose swift wrath beat down The never-daunted Percy to the earth, In few, his death (whose spirit lent a fire Even to the dullest peasant in his camp,) Being bruited' once, took fire and heat away From the best temper'd courage in his troops: For from his metal was his party steel'd; Which once in him abated, all the rest Turn'd on themselves, like dull and heavy lead. And as the thing that's heavy in itself, Upon enforcement, flies with greatest speed; So did our men, heavy in Hotspur's los Lend to this weight such lightness with their fear, That arrows fled not swifter toward their aim, Than did our soldiers, aiming at their safety, Fly from the field: Then was that noble Worcester Too soon ta'en prisoner: and that furious Sest, The bloody Douglas, whose well-labouring sword Had three times slain the appearance of the king, 'Gan vail' his stomach, and did grace the shame Of those that turn'd their backs; and, is his flight, Stumbling in fear, was took. The sum of all is,-that the king hath won; and hath seat out A speedy power to encounter you, my lord, Under the conduct of young Lancaster, And Westmoreland: this is the news in full.

He may keep his own grace, but he is almost out of mine, I can assure him.—What said master Dumbleton about the satin, for my short cloak, and slops?

Page. He said, sir, you should procure him better assurance than Bardolph: he would not take his bond and yours; he liked not the security.

thank you, good sir John.

Ch. Just. Sir John, you loiter here too long, being you are to take soldiers up in counties as you go.

Fol. Will you sup with me, master Gower?

Ch. Just. What foolish master taught you these manners, sir John?

Fal. Master Gower, if they become me not, he was a fool that taught them me.—This is the right fencing grace, my lord; tap for tap, and so part fair.

Ch. Just. Now the Lord lighten thee! thou art a great fool. Exeunt.

SCENE II .- The same. Another street. Enter Prince Henry and Poins.

P. Hen. Trust me, I am exceeding weary.
Poins. Is it come to that? I had thought wear ness durst not have attached one of so high blood.

(3) Suitable to your character. (4) Withdraw.

P. Hes. Faith, it does me; though it discolours the complexion of my greatness to acknowledge it. Doth it not show vilely in the, to desire small heer? Poins. Why, a prince should not be so loosely the statement of the second statement of the sec studied, as to remember so weak a composition.

P. Hrs. Belike then my appetite was not princely got; for, by my troth, I do now remember the poor creature, small beer. But, indeed, these humble considerations make me out of love with my greatness. What a disgrace is it to me, to remember thy name? or to know thy face to-morrow? or to take note how many pair of silk stockings thou hast; siz. these, and those that were the pexch-coloured ones? or to bear the inventory of thy shirts; as, one for superfluity, and one other for use?—but that, the tennis-court keeper knows bet-ter than I; for it is a low ebb of linen with thee, when thou keepest not racket there; as thou hast not done a great while, because the rest of thy low-countries have made a shift to eat up thy holland: and God knows, whether those that bawl out the ruins of thy linen, shall inherit his kingdom; but the midwives say, the children are not in the fault: whereupon the world increases, and kindreds are mightily strengthened.

Poins. Hew ill it follows, after you have laboured so hard, you should talk so idly? Tell me, how many good young princes would do so, their fathers being so sick as yours at this time is? P. Hen. Shall I tell thee one thing, Poins?

Poins. Yes; and let it be an excellent good thing. P. Hen. It shall serve among wits of no higher breeding than thine.

Poins. Go to; I stand the push of your one thing that you will tell.

P. Hen. Why, I tell thee,—it is not meet that I should be said, now my father is sick: about I would be to the control of fault to the control of the push of the control of fault tells. could tell to thee (as to one it pleases me, for fault of a better, to call my friend,) I could be sad, and and indeed too.

Poins. Very hardly, upon such a subject.

P. Hen. By this hand, thou think'st me as far in the devil's book, as thou, and Falstaff, for obduracy and persistency: Let the end try the man. But I tell thee,—my heart bleeds inwardly, that my father is so sick: and keeping such vile company as thou-art, hath in reason taken from me all estentation of sorrow.

Poins. The reason?

P. Hen. What wouldn't thou think of me, if I abould weep?

Poins. I would think thee a most princely hypocrite.

P. Hes. It would be every man's thought; and thou art a blessed fellow, to think as every man thinks; never a man's thought in the world keeps the road-way better than thine: every man would think mn a hypocrite indeed. And what accites your most worshipful thought, to think so?

Poins. Why, because you have been so lowd, and so much engrafied to Falstaff.

P. Hen. And to thee.

Poins. By this light, I am well spoken of, I can hear it with my own cors: the worst that they can say of me is, that I am a second brother, and that I am a proper follow of my hands; and those two things, I confess, I cannot help. By the mass, here comes Bardolph.

you bashful fool, must you be blushing? wherefore blush you now? What a maddenly man at arms are you become! Is it such a matter, to get a pottlepot's maidenhead?

Page. He called me even now, my lord, through a red lattice, and I could discern no part of his face from the window; at last, I spled his eyes; and, methought, he had made two holes in the ale-wife's new petticout, and peeped through.

P. Hen. And how doth thy master, Bardolph?

Bard. Well, my lord. He heard of your grace's coming to town; there's a letter for you.

Poss. Delivered with good respect.—And how doth the Martlemas, your master?

Burd. In bodily health, sir.

Poins. Marry, the immortal part needs a physi-cian: but that moves not him; though that he sick, it dies not.

P. Hen. I do allow this went to be as familiar with me as my dog: and he holds his place; for, look you, how he writes.

Poins. [Reads.] John Faistaff, bright, — Every man must know that, as oft as he has occasion to name himself. P. Hen. For the women,—

Fel. For one of them,—she is in hell already, and burns, poor soul! For the other,—I owe her money; and whether she be damned for that. I know not.

Fed. No, I warrant you.

Fed. No, I think thou art not; I think, thou art quit for that; Marry, there is another indictment upon thee, for suffering flesh to be caten in thy house, contrary to the law; for the which, I think, thou wilt how.

Host. All victuallers do so: What's a joint of mutton or two in a whole Lent?

P. Hen. You, gentlewoman,—
Doll. What says your grace?
Fal. His grace says that which his flesh rebels

Host. Who knocks so load at door? look to the door these, Francis.

Enter Peto.

P. Hen. Peto, how now? what news? Peto. The king, your father, is at Westminster; And there are twenty weak and wearled posts, Come from the north: and, as I came along, I met, and overtook, a dozen captains, Bare-headed, aweating, knocking at the taveras,
And asking every one for sir John Falstaff.

P. Hen. By heaven, Poins, I feel me much to blame

So idly to profese the precious time; When tempest of commotion, like the south, Borne with black vapour, doth begin to melt, And drop upon our bare unarmed beads

Give me my sword, and clock: Falstaff, good night.

[Exe. P. Henry, Poins, Peto, and Bardolph.
Fal. Now comes in the sweetest morsel of the night, and we must hence, and leave it unpicked. [Knocking heard.] More knocking at the door?

Re-enter Bardolph.

How now? what's the matter?

Bard. You must away to court, sir, presently; A dozen captains stay at door for you.

Fal. Pay the musicians, sirrah. [To the Page.]—
Farewell, hostess;—Farewell, Doll.—You see, my good wenches, how men of merit are sought after good webenes, how men or ment are sough, accer-the undeserver may sleep, when the man of action is called on. Farewell, good wenches: if I be not sent away post, I will see you again ere I go. Doll. I cannot speak;—If my heart be not ready

ACT III.

Poins. Answer, thou dead elm, answer.

Pal. The fiend hath pricked down Bardolph ir. SCENE I.—A room in the polace. Enter King Henry, in his night-gown, with a Page. K. Hen. Go, call the earls of Surrey, and of

Warwick;

But, ere they come, hid them o'er-read these letters, When Richard,—with his eye ortmfull of tears, And well consider of them: Make good speed.——Then check'drand rated by Northumberland,— Exil Page.

How many thousands of my poorest subjects. Are at this hour asleep!—Sleep, gentle sleep, Nature's soft nurse, how have I frighted thee, That thou no more wilt weigh my eyelids down, And steep my senses in forgetfulness? Why rather, sleep, liest thou in smoky cribs, Upon uneasy pallets stretching thee, And hush'd with buzzing night-flies to thy ulumber; Than in the perfum'd chambers of the great, Under the canopies of costly state, And lull'd with sounds of sweetest melody? O thou dull god, why liest thou with the vile, In lusthsome beds: and leav'st the kingly couch, A watch-case, or a common larum bell it Wilt thou upon the high and giddy mast Seni up the ship-boy's eyes, and rock his brains In cradle of the rude imperious surge; And in the visitation of the winds. Who take the ruffian billows by the top, Curling their monstrous heads, and hanging them With deaf ning clamours in the slippery clouds, That, with the hurly, death itself awakes? Canst thou, O partial sleep! give thy repose To the wet sea-boy in an hour so rude; And, in the calmest and most stillest night, With all appliances and means to boot, Deny it to a king? Then, happy low,* lie down! Unesay lies the head that wears a crown.

Enter Warwick and Surrey.

War. Many good morrows to your majesty! K. Hen. Is it good morrow, lords? Wer. 'Tis one o'clock, and past.

Have you read o'er the letters that I sent you?

K. Ren. Then you perceive, the body of our kingdom

How foul it is; what rank diseases grow And with what danger, near the heart of it.

Wer. It is but as a body, yet, distemper'd;

Which to his former strength may be restor'd,

With good advice, and little medicine:

My lord Northumberland will soon be coel'd.

K. Hen. O heaven! that one might read the book of fate ;

And see the revolution of the times Make mountains level, and the continent (Weary of solid firmness) melt itself Into the sea! and, other times, to see The beachy girdle of the ocean Too wide for Neptune's hips; how chances mock, And changes fill the cup of alteration
With divers liquors! O, if this were seen,
The happlest youth, wriewing his progress through,
What perils past, what crosses to enaug.—
Would shut the book, and sit him down and dis. 'Tis not ten years gone, Since Richard, and Northumberland, great friends, Did feast together, and, is two years after, Were they at ware: It is but eight years, since This Percy was the man nearest my soul; Who like a brother toil'd in my affairs, And laid his love and life under my foot; Yea, for my sake, even to the eyes of Richard, Gave him defiance. But which of you was by,

Did speak these words, now provid a prophecy ? Northumberland, then leader, by the which My cousin Bolingbroke ascends my throne;— Though then, heaven knows, I had no such intent; But that necessity so bow'd the state, That I and greatness were compelled to kiss:-The time shall come, thus did he follow it, The time will come, that foul sin, gathering bead, Shall break into corruption ;-- so went on, Foretelling this same time's condition, And the division of our smity. War. There is a history in all men's lives, Figuring the nature of the times deceas'd:

The which observed, a man may prophesy, With a near aim, of the main chance of things with a near aim, of the main chance or usings. As yet not come to life; which in their seeds, And weak beginnings, he intreasured. Such things become the hatch and brood of time; And, by the nocessary form of this, King Richard might oreate a perfect guess, That great Northumberland, then false to him, Would, of that seed, grow to a greater falseness; Which should not find a ground to root upon,

Unless on you. K. Hen. Are these things then necessities? Then let us meet them like necessities : And that same word even now cries out on us; They say, the bishop and Northumberland Are fifty thousand strong.

War. It cannot be, my lord; Rumour doth double, like the voice and echn, The numbers of the fear'd :—Please it your grace, To go to bed: upon my life, my lord, The powers that you already have sent forth, Wer. "Tis one o'clock, and past.

K. Hen. Why then, good morrow to you all, my lords.

To comfort you the more, I have receiv'd

A certain instance, that Glendower is dead.

Your majesty hath been this fortnight ill; And these unseason'd hours, perforce, must add Unto your sickness. K. Hen. I will take your counsel:

I will take your counsel: And, were these inward wars once out of hand, We would, dear lards, unto the Holy Land. (Exc.

SCENE II.—Court before Justice Shallow's house, in Gloucestershire. Enter Shallow and Silence, meeting; Mouldy, Shadow, Wart, Feeble, Bullcelf, and servants, behind.

Shal. Come on, come on, come on; give me your hand, sir, give me your hand, sir: an early stirrer, by the rood. And how doth my good cousin, Silence ?

Sii. Good morrow, good cousin Shallow. Shal. And how doth my cousin, your bed-fellow? and your fairest daughter, and mine, my god-daugh-ter Ellen?

Sil. Alas, a black ouzel, cousin Shallow. Shal. By yea and nay, sir, I dare say, my consin William is become a good scholar: He is at Oxford still, is he not?

Sil. Indeed, sir, to my cost.

Shel. He must then to the inns of courts shortly: I was once of Clement's-Inn; where, I think, they will talk of mad Shullow yet.

Sil. You were called—lusty Shallow, then,

Shal. By the mess, I was called any thing; and I would have done any thing, indeed, and roundly too. There was I, and little John Doit of Staffordshire, and black George Bare, and Francis Pickhone.

Fel. Is thy name Mouldy?

Moul. Yes, an't please you. Fal. 'Tis the more time thou wert used.

Fat. Prick him.

Moul. I was pricked well enough before, an you could have let me alone: my old dame will be undone now, for one to do her husbandry, and her drudgery: you need not to have pricked me; there are other men fitter to go out than I.
Fol. Go to ; peace, Mouldy, you shall go. Moul-

Shal. O, sir John, do you remember since we lay all night in the windmill in St. George's-fields?

Fal. No more of that, good master Shallow, no more of that.

Night-work alive?

Shal. She never could away with me.

Foi. Never, never: she would always say, she could not abide master Shallow.

Shal. By the mass, I could anger her to the heart. She was then a bona-roba. Doth she hold her own well?

Fal. Old, old, master Shallow.
Shal. Nay, she must be old; she cannot choose but be old; certain, she's old; and had Robin Night-work by old Night-work, before scame to Clement's Inn.

And it proceeds from policy, not love.

West. Mowbray, you overween, to take it so;
This offer comes from mercy, not from fear: For, to I within a ken, our army lies; Upon mine honour, all too confident To give admittance to a thought of fear. Our battle is more full of names than yours, Our men more perfect in the use of arms, Our armour all as strong, our cause the best; Then reason wills, our hearts should be as good :-Say you not then, our offer is compell'd.

Movob. Well, by my will, we shall admit no parley.

West. That argues but the shame of your offence: A rotten case abides no handling. Hast. Hath the prince John a full commission, In very ample virtue of his father, To hear, and absolutely to determine

Of what conditions we shall stand upon?

West. That is intended in the general's name: I muse, you make so slight a question. Arch. Then take, my lord of Westmoreland, this schedule;

For this contains our general grievances:-Each several article herein redresa'd; All members of our cause, both here and hence, That are insinew'd to this action Acquitted by a true substantial form: And present execution of our wills To us, and to our purposes, consign'd; We come within our awful banks's again, And knik our powers to the arm of peac West. This will I show the general. Please you, lords, In sight of both our battles we may meet : And either end in peace, which heaven so frame!

Or to the place of difference call the swords Which must decide it.

Arch. My lord, we will do so. Exit West.

Mouse. There is a thing within my bosom, tells me, That no conditions of our peace can stand, Hast. Fear you not that: if we can make our peace

Upon such large terms, and so absolute, As our conditions shall consist upon, Our peace shall stand as firm as rocky mountains. Metob. Ay, but our valuation shall be such. That every slight and false-derived cause, Yea, every idle, nice, " and wanton reason, Shall, to the king, taste of this action: That, were our royal faiths" martyrs in love, We shall be winnow'd with so rough a wind That even our corn shall seem as light as chaff, And good from bad find no partition. Of dainty and such picking' grievances: For he hath found,—to end one doubt by death, Revives two greater in the heirs of life. And therefore will be wipe his tables clean; And keep no tell-tale to his memory, That may repeat and history his loss To new remembrance: For full well he knows, He cannot so precisely weed this land, As his misdoubts present occasion: His focs are so enrooted with his friends, That, plucking to unix an enemy, He doth unfasten so, and shake a friend. So that this land, like an offensive wife, That hath enray'd him on to offer strokes; As he is striking, holds his infant up, And hangs resolv'd correction in the arm That was uprear'd to execution.

Hast. Besides, the king bath wasted all his rods On late offenders, that he now doth lack The very instruments of chastisement: So that his power, like to a fangless lion, May offer, but not hold.

'Tis very true ;-Arch. And therefore be assur'd, my good lord marshal, if we do now make our atonement well. Our peace will, like a broken limb united, Grow stronger for the breaking. Be it so. Mowb. Here is return'd my lord of Westmoreland.

Re-enter Westmoreland.

West, The prince is here at hand: Pleaseth your lordship,

To meet his grace just distance 'tween our armies? Mowe. Your grace of York, in god's name then set forward.

Arch. Before, and greet his grace:-my lord, Exeunt.

SCENE II .- Another part of the forest. Enter from one side, Mowbray, the Archbishop, Hustings, and others: from the other side, Prince John of Lancaster, Westmoreland, officers, and attendants.

P. John. You are well encounter'd here, my cousin Mowbray:— a Good day to you, gentle lord archbishop:— And so to you, lord Hastings,—and to all.— My lord of York, it better show'd with you, When that your flock, assembled by the bell, Encircled you, to hear with reverence Your exposition on the holy text; Than now to see you here an fron man,2 Cheering a rout of rebels with your drum, Turning the word to sword, and life to death. That man, that sits within a monarch's heart, And ripens in the sunshine of his favour, Would he abuse the countenance of the king, Alack, what mischiefs might he set abroach In shadow of such greatness! With you, lord bishop, It is even so :-- Who hath not heard it spoken, How deep you were within the books of God? To us, the speaker in his parliament; To us, the imagin'd voice of God himself: The very opener, and intelligencer, Between the grace, the sanctities of heaven, And our dull workings: O, who shall believe, But you misuse the reverence of your place; Employ the countenance and grace of beaven, As a false favourite doth his prince's name,

In deeds dishonourable? You have taken up, Under the counterfeited zeal of God, The subjects of his substitute, my father; And, both against the peace of heaven and him. Have here up-swarm'd them. Good my lord of Lancaster, Arch. I am not here against your father's peace : But, as I told my lord of Westmorpland, The time misorder'd doth, in common sense Crowd us, and crush us, to this monstrous forms, To hold our safety up. I sent your graces The parcels and particulars of our grief; The which hath been with scorn show'd from the court, Whereon this Hydra son of war is born : Whose dangerous eyes may well be charm'd asleep, With grant of our most just and right desires; And true obedience of this madness cur'd, Stoop tamely to the foot of majesty. Moud. If not, we ready are to try our fortunes

To the last man.

And though we here fall down: Hast, We have supplies to second our attempt; If they miscarry, theirs shall second them : And so, success of mischief shall be born ; And heir from heir shall hold this quartel up, Whiles England shall have generation.

P. John. You are too shallow, Hastings, much too shallow,

To sound the bottom of the after-times. West. Pleaseth your grace, to some them directly, How far forth you do like their articles?

P. John. I like them all, and do allow* them well:

And awear here by the honour of my blood, My father's purposes have been mistook ; And some about him have too luvishly Wrested his meaning, and authority.—
My lord, these griefs shall be with speed redress'd,
Upon my soul, they shall. If this may please you, Discharge your powers unto their several coun-

Fal. I have a whole school of tangues in this how they shout?

Enter Prince John of Lancester, Westmorehad, and others.

P. John. The heat is past, follow no further now;

Call in the powers, good cousin Westmoreland.-Exit West.

Now, Falstaff, where have you been all this while? When every thing is ended, then you come: These tardy tricks of yours will, on my life, One time or other break some gallows' back.

Fal. I would be sorry, my lord, but it should be thus; I never knew yet, but rebuke and check was the reward of valour. Do you think me a swallow, an arrow, or a bullet? have I, in my poor and oki motion, the expedition of thought? I have speeded hither with the very extremest each of possibility; I have foundered nine-score and odd posts: and here travellainted as I am, have in my now and here, travel-tainted as I am, have, in my pure and immaculate valour, taken air John Colevile of the dale, a most furious knight, and valorous enemy : But what of that? he saw me, and yielded; that I may justly say with the hook-nosed fellow of Rome, —I came, saw, and overcame.

P. John. It was more of his courtesy than your descrying.

Fal. I know not; here he is, and here I yield him: and I beseech your grace, let it be booked with the rest of this day's deeds; or, by the Lord, will have it in a particular ballad else, with mine own picture on the top of it, Colevile kissing my foot: To the which course if I be enforced, if you do not all show like gilt two-pences to me; and I, promis'd you redress of these same grievances, in the clear sky of fame, o'crabine you as much as thereof you did complain; which, by minchonour, will perform with a most Christian care.

in the clear sky of fame, o'crabine you as much as the full moon doth the cinders of the clement, which show like pins heads to her; believe not the word of the noble: therefore let me have right, and let desert mount.

P. John. Thine's too heavy to mount.

Fal. Let it shine then. P. John. Thine's too thick to shine.

Fal. Let it do something, my good lord, that may do me good, and call it what you will, P. John. Is thy name Colevile?

Cole. It is, my lord. P. John. A famous rebel art thou, Colevile.

Fal. And a famous true subject took him. Cole. I am, my lord, but as my betters are, That led me hither: hed they been ruled by me,

You should have won them dearer than you have, Fal. I know not how they sold themselves : but thou, like a kind fellow, gavest thyself away; and I thank thee for thee.

War. Here come the heavy issue of dead Harry: O, that the living Harry had the temper Of him, the worst of these three gentlemen! How many nobles then should hold their places, That must strike sail to spirits of vile sort? Ch. Just. Alas! I fear, all will be overturn'd.
P. John. Good morrow, cousin Warwick.
P. Himsph. Cla. Good morrow, cousin.
P. John. We meet like men that had forget to speak.

Wer. We do remember; but our argument Is all too heavy to admit much talk.

P. John. Well, peace be with him that hath made us beavy !

Ch. Just. Peace be with us, lest we be heavier!
P. Humph. O, good my lord, you have lost a friend, indeed:

And I dare swear, you borrow not that face Of seeming sorrow; it is, sure, your own. P. John. Though no man be assur'd what grace to find,

Enter King Henry V.

Ch. Just. Good morrow; and heaven save your majesty ! King. This new and gargeous garment, majestr,

I'll be your father and your brother toe;
Let me but bear your love, I'll bear your carea.
Yet weep, that Harry's dead; and so will I:
But Harry lives, that shall convert those tears,

(3) Emperor of the Turks, died in 1596; his sen, who succeeded him, had all his brothers stranged.

Ch. Just. I am assur'd, if I be measur'd rightly,
Your majesty hath no just cause to hate me. King. No!

How might a prince of my great hopes forget So great indignities you laid upon me? What! rate, rebuke, and roughly send to prison, The immediate heir of England! Was this easy? May this be wash'd in Lethe, and forgotten?

Ch. Just. I then did use the person of your father; The image of his power lay then in me: And, in the administration of his law, Whiles I was busy for the commonwealth, Your highness pleased to forget my place, The majesty and power of law and justice, The image of the king whom I presented, And struck me in my very scat of judgment; Whereon, as an offender to your father, I gave bold way to my authority, And did commit you. If the deed were ill, Be you contented, wearing now the garland, To have a son set your decrees at nought; To pluck down justice from your awful bench To trip the course of law, and blunt the sword That guards the peace and safety of your person: Nay, more; to spurn at your most royal image, And mock your workings in a second body.<sup>2</sup> Question your royal thoughts, make the case yours; Be now the father, and propose a son: Hear your own dignity so much profan'd, See your most dreadful laws so loosely slighted, Behold yourself so by a son disdain'd And then imagine me taking your part,

And, in your power, soft silencing your son:
After this cold considerance, sentence me;
And, as you are a king, speak in your state,<sup>3</sup>
What I have done, that misbecame my place,
My person, or my liege's sovereignty.

King. You are right, justice, and you weigh this well:

well Therefore still bear the balance, and the sword : And I do wish your honours may increase,

Till you do live to see a son of mine Offend you, and obey you, as I did.
So shall I live to speak my father's words;—
Happy am I, that have a man so bold,
That dares do justice on my proper son:
And not less happy, having such a son,
That would deliver up his greatness so,
Into the hands of justice.—You did commit me:
For which I do commit into your hand. For which, I do commit into your hand The unstained sword that you have us'd to bear; With this remembrance,—That you use the same With the like bold, just, and impartial spirit,
As you have done 'gainst me. There is my hand:
You shall be as a father to my youth:
My voice shall sound as you do prompt mine ear;
And I will stoop and humble my intents. And I will stoop and humble my intents
To your well-practis'd, wise directions.—
And, princes all, believe me, I beseech you;
My father is gone wild into his grave, For in his tomb lie my affections; And with his spirit sadly I survive, To mock the expectation of the world;

SCENE III.—Glostershire. The garden of Shallow's house. Enter Falstaff, Shallow, Silence, Bardolph, the Page, and Davy.

Shal. Nay, you shall see mine orchard: where, in an arbour, we will eat a last year's pippin of my own graffing, with a dish of caraways, and so forth; come, cousin Silence;—and then to bed. Fal. 'Fore God, you have here a goodly dwelling, and a rich. Shal. Barren, barren, barren; beggars all, beggars all, sir John:—marry, good air.—Spread, Davy; spread, Davy; swil said, Davy.

Fal. This Davy serves you for good uses; he is your serving-man, and your husbandman.

Shal. A good varlet, a good varlet, a very good varlet, sir John.—By the mass, I have drunk too much sack at supper: —A good varlet. Now sit down, now sit down:—come, cousin.

Sit. Ah, sirrah! quoth-a,-we shall

I'll pledge you a mile to the bottom.

Shal. Honest Bardolph, welcome: If thou wantest any thing, and will not call, beshrew thy heart. -Welcome, my little tiny thief; (To the Page.)
and welcome, indeed, too.—I'il drink to master
Bardolph, and to all the cavaleroes about London.
Daty. I hope to see London once ere I die.
Bard. An I might see you there, Davy.

Shal. By the mass, you'll crack a quart together.

Ha! will you not, master Bardolph?

Bard. Yes, sir, in a pottle-pot.

Shal. I thank thee:—The knave will stick by thee, I can assure thee that: he will not out; he true bred.

Bard. And I'll stick by him, sir.

Shal. Why, there spoke a king. Lack nothing:
be merry. [Knocking heard.] Look who's at door
there: Ho! who knocks? [Exit Davy.

Fâl. Why, now you have a sha drinks a himner.

[To Silence, who drinks a bumper.

Bu. [Singing.] Do me right, And dub me knight : Samingo.

Is't not so?

Fal. 'Tis so.
Sil. Is't so? Why, then say, an old man can do somewhat.

Re-enter Davy.

Davy. An ft please your worship, there's one Pistol come from the court with news. Fal. From the court? let him come in .-

Enter Pistol.

How now, Pistol?

Pist. God save you, sir John!
Fal. What wind blew you here, Pistol?
Pist. Not the ill wind which blows no man to good .- Sweet knight, thou art now one of the greatest men in the realm.

ACT L

SCENE I.-London. An unte-chamber in the King's palace. Enter the Erchbishop of Canterbury, and Bishop of Ely.

Canterbury.

MY lord, I'll tell you,-that self bill is urg'd

For all the temporal lands, which men devout
By testament have given to the church,
Would they strip from us; being valued thus,—
As much as would maintain, to the king's honour
Full afteen earls, and afteen hundred knights;
Six thousand and two hundred good esquires; And, to relief of lazars, and weak ege, Of indigent faint souls, past corporal toil, A hundred alms-houses, right well supplied; And to the coffers of the king boside. A thousand pounds by the year: Thus runs the hill.

Ely. This would drink deep.

Cant.

Twould drink the cup and all.

Ely. But what prevention? Cant. The king is full of grace, and fair regard.

Ely. And a true lover of the holy church.

Cant. The courses of his youth promis'd it not.

The breath no somer left his father's body, But that his wildness, mortified in him, Seem'd to die too: yez, at that very moment, Consideration like an angel came, And whipp'd the offending Adam out of him; Leaving his body as a paradise, To envelop and contain celestial spirits. Never was such a sudden scholer made:

(2) Helmets. (3) Powers of fancy. (4) Dehate.

Cant. Hear him but reason in divinity, Exe. Not here in presence. And, all-admiring, with an inward wish You would desire, the king were made a prelate: K. Hen. Send for him, good uncle.
West. Shall we call in the ambassador, my liese? Hear him debate of commonwealth affairs K. Hen. Not yet, my cousin; we would be re You would say, -it hath been all-in-all his study : solv'd, List' his discourse of war, and you shall hear Before we hear him, of some things of weight, A fearful battle render'd you in music: Turn him to any cause of policy, That task our thoughts, concerning us and France. Enter the Archbishop of Canterbury, and Bishop The Gordian knot of it he will unloose, of Ely. Familiar as his garter; that, when he speaks, The air, a charter'd libertine, is still, Cant. God, and his angels, guard your secret And the mute wonder lurketh in men's ears, throne, And make you long become it! To steal his sweet and honeyed sentences; So that the art and practic part of life K. Hen. Sure, we thank you My learned lord, we pray you to proceed; And justly and religiously unfold, Why the law Salique, that they have in France. Must be the mistress to this theoric: Which is a wonder, how his grace should glean it, Since his addiction was to courses vain: Or should, or should not, bar us in our claim. His companies' unletter'd, rude, and shallow And God forbid, my dear and faithful lord, That you should fashion, wrest, or bow your reading His hours fill'd up with riots, banquets, sports; And never noted in him any study, Any retirement, any sequestration Or nicely charge your understanding soul From open haunts and popularity.

Ely. The strawberry grows underneath the net-With opening titles miscreate, whose right Suits not in native colours with the truth; For God doth know, how many, now in health, Shall drop their blood in approbation Of what your reverence shall incite us to: tle; And wholesome berries thrive and ripen best, Neighbour'd by fruit of baser quality; Therefore take heed how you impawn our person. And so the prince obscur'd his contemplation How you awake the sleeping sword of war; Under the veil of wildness; which, no doubt, Grew like the summer grass, fastest by night, Unseen, yet crescive in his faculty. Cant. It must be so: for miracles are ceas'd; We charge you in the name of God, take I For never two such kingdoms did conten Without much fall of blood; whose guildless dross Are every one a wo, a sore complaint,
'Gainst him, whose wrongs give edge unto the swork
That make such waste in brief mortality. And therefore we must needs admit the means, How things are perfected. Ely. But, my good lord, How now for mitigation of this bill Urg'd by the commons? Doth his majesty Under this conjuration, speak, my lord: And we will hear, note, and believe in heart, That what you speak is in your conscience wash's Incline to it, or no? As pure as sin with baptism.

Cant. Then hear me, gracious sovereign,—and Cant. He seems indifferent; Or, rather, swaying more upon our part, Than cherishing the exhibiters against us: you peers, That owe your lives, your faith, and services, For I have made an offer to his majesty,-To this imperial throne :-There is no bar To make against your highness' claim to France. Upon our spiritual convocation And in regard of causes now in hand Which I have open'd to his grace at large, But this, which they produce from Pharamond,-In terram Salicam mulieres ne succedant, As touching France,—to give a greater sum Than ever at one time the clergy yet Did to his predecessors part withal. No woman shall succeed in Salique land : Which Salique land the French unjustly glose, Ely. How did this offer seem receiv'd, my lord? To be the realm of France, and Pharame The founder of this law and female bar. Cent. With good acceptance of his majesty; Yet their own authors faithfully affirm, Save, that there was not time enough to hear (As, I perceiv'd, his grace would fain have done,)
The severals, and unhidden passages,
Of his true titles to some certain dukedoms; That the land Salique lies in Germany, Between the floods of Sala and of Elbe: Where Charles the great, having subdued the And, generally, to the crown and seat of France, Deriv'd from Edward, his great-grandfather. Ely. What was the impediment that broke this Saxons, There left behind and settled certain French; Who, holding in disdain the German women, For some dishonest manners of their life, Establish'd there this law,—to wit, no female Should be inheritrix in Salique land; Cant. The French ambassador, upon that instant, Cray'd audience: and the hour, I think, is come, To give him hearing: Is it four o'clock? Which Salique, as I said, 'twixt Elbe and Sals, Is at this day in Germany call'd—Meisen. Thus doth it well appear, the Salique law Cant. Then go we in, to know his embassy; Which I could, with a ready guess, declare, Before the Frenchman speak a word of it. Was not devised for the realm of France: Nor did the French possess the Salique land hear it. Until four hundred one and twenty years [Excust. After defunction of king Pharamond, Elv. K. Hen. May I, with right and conscience, make this claim? Cant. The sin upon my head, dread sovereign! For in the book of Numbers is it writ,— When the son dies, let the inheritance Descend unto the daughter. Gracious lord, Stand for your own; unwind your bloody flag; Look back unto your mighty ancestors: Go, my dread lord, to your great grandsire's tomb, From whom you claim; invoke his warlike spirit, And your great uncle's, Edward the black prince; Who on the French ground play'd a tragedy, Making defeat on the full power of France; Whiles his most mighty father on a hill Stood smiling; to behold his lion's whelp Forage in blood of French nobility. Onoble English, that could entertain With half their forces the full pride of France;

And let another half stand laughing by, All out of work, and cold for action! Ely. Awake remembrance of these valiant dead, And with your puissant arm renew their feats: You are their heir, you sit upon their throne; The blood and courage, that renowned them, Runs in your veins; and my thrice-puissant liege Is in the very May-morn of his youth, Ripe for exploits and mighty enterprises.

K. Hen. We must not only arm to invade the French;

Against the Scot, who will make road upon us
With all advantages.

Cant. They of those marches, gracious sovereign

Shall be a wall sufficient to defend Our inland from the pilfering borderers.

But lay down our proportions to defend

K. Hen. We do not mean the coursing snatchers But fear the main intendments of the Scot,

Who hath been still a giddy neighbour to us; For you shall read, that my great grandfather Never went with his forces into France, But that the Scot on his unfurnish'd kingdom Came pouring, like the tide into a breach, With ample and brim fulness of his force; Galling the gleaned land with hot cssays; Girding with grievous siege, castles and towns, That England, being empty of defence, Hath shook, and trembled at the ill neighbourhood.

Cant. She hath been then more fear'd' than harm'd, my liege: For hear her but exampled by herself,-When all her chivalry hath been in France, And she a mourning widow of her nobles, She hath herself not only well defended, But taken, and impounded as a stray, The king of Scots; whom she did send to France, To fill king Edward's fame with prisoner kings; And make your chronicle as rich with praise, As is the coze and bottom of the sea With sunken wreck and sumless treasuries.

West. But there's a saying, very old and true,-If that you will France win, Then with Scotland first begin:

For once the eagle England being in prey, To her unguarded nest the weasel Scot Comes sneaking, and so sucks her princely eggs; Playing the mouse, in absence of the cat, To spoil and havor more than she can eat.

Exe. It follows then, the cat must stay at home: Yet that is but a curs'd necessity; Since we have locks to safeguard necessaries, And pretty traps to catch the petty thieves. While that the armed hand doth fight abroad, The advised head defends itself at home: For government, though high, and low, and lower Put into parts, doth keep in one concent; Congruing in a full and natural close, Like music.

Cant. True: therefore doth heaven divide The state of man in divers functions, Setting endeavour in continual motion; To which is fixed, as an aim or butt, Obedience: for so work the honey-bees Creatures, that, by a rule in nature, teach The act of order to a peopled kingdom. They have a king, and officers of sorts:10

Where some, like magistrates, correct at home : Others, like merchants, venture trade abroad; Others, like soldiers, armed in their stings, Make boot upon the summer's velvet buls; Make book upon the summers verter bus; Which pillage they with merry march bring home. To the tent-royal of their emperor:
Who, busied in his majesty, surveys.
The singing masons building roots of gold;
The civil' citizens kneading up the booky; The poor mechanic porters crowding in Their heavy burdens at his narrow gate; The sad-ey'd justice, with his surly hum, Delivering o'er to executors' pale The lazy yawning drone. I this infer, That many things having full reference To one concent, may work contrariously; As many arrows, loosed several ways, Fly to one mark; As many several ways meet in one town; As many fresh streams run in one self sea; As many lines close in the dial's centre ; So may a thousand actions, once afoot, End in one purpose, and be all well borne Without deleat. Therefore to France, my liege. Divide your happy England into four; Whereof take you one quarter into France And you withal shall make all Gallia shake. If we, with thrice that power left at home, Cannot defend our own door from the dog, Let us be worried; and our nation lose The name of hardiness, and policy.

K. Hen. Call in the messengers sent from the dauphin. Exit on attendant. The King ascends his throne. Now are we well resolv'd: and,-by God's help, And yours, the noble sinews of our power,-France being ours, we'll bend it to our awe, Or break it all to pieces: Or there we'll sit, Ruling in large and ample empery,2 O'er France, and all her almost kingly dukedoms : Or lay these bonce in an unworthy urn, Tombless, with no remembrance over them: Either our history shall, with full mouth, Speak freely of our acts; or else our grave, Like Turkish mute, shall have a tongueless mouth, Not worship'd with a waxen epitaph.

K. Hea. What treasure, uncle?

Exe.

Tennis-balls, my liege.

K. Hen. We are glad, the dauphin is so plea-sent with us; His present, and your pains, we thank you for : When we have match'd our rackets to these balls, We will, in France, by God's grace, play a set, Shall strike his father's crown into the bazard; Tell him, he hath made a match with such a wrangler, That all the courts of France will be disturbed With chaces.4 And we understand him well, How he comes o'er us with our wilder days, Not measuring what use we made of them. We never valu'd this poor seat' of England; And therefore, living hence, did give ourself To barbarous license; As 'tis ever common, That men are merriest when they are from home. But tell the dauphin,—I will keep my state; Be like a king, and show my sail of greatness, When I do rouse me in my throne of France: For that I have laid by my majesty, And plodded like a man for working days; But I will rise there with so full a glory, That I will dazzle all the eyes of France, Yea, strike the dauphin blind to look on ne And tell the pleasant prince,—this mock of his Hath turn'd his balls to gun-stones; and his soul Shall stand sore charged for the wasteful vengeance. That shall fly with them: for many a thousand widows Shall this his mock mock out of their dear husbands; Muck mothers from their sons, muck castles down; And some are yet ungotten, and unborn, That shall have cause to curse the dauphin's seam. But this lies all within the will of God. To whom I do appeal; And in whose name, Tell you the dauphin, I am coming on To verge me as I may, and to put forth My rightful hand in a well-hallow'd cause. So, get you hence in peace; and tell the dauphen, It is just will savour but of shallow wit, When thousands weep, more than did laugh at it.—

for after I saw him fumble with the sheets, and play with flowers, and smile upon his fingers' ends,
I knew there was but one way; for his nose was Upon our fields.

My most redoubted father,
How now, sir John? quoth I: what, man! be of good cheer. So 'a creed out—God, God, God! For peace itself should not so dull' a kingdom, three or four times: now I. to comfort him, bid (Though war, nor no known onarret, were good cheer. So 'a creet out—tod, tod, foot, tod; sor peace their should not so dull' a kingdom, three or four times: now I, to comfort him, bid (Though war, nor no known quarrel, were making, 'a should not think of God; I hoped, there was no need to trouble himself with any such thoughts yet: So, 'a bade me lay more clothes on. From our brother England? Fr. King. Exe. From him; and thus he greets your majesty. le wills you, in the name of God Almighty, le wills you, in the name of God Almighty, hat you divest yourself, and lay apart he borrow'd glories, that, by gift of heaven, y law of nature, and of nations, 'long o him, and to his heirs; namely, the crown, nd all wide-stretched honours that pertain, y custom and the ordinance of times, into the crown of France. That you may know, I is no sinister, nor no awkward claim, ick'd from the worm-holes of long-vanish'd days, for from the dust of old oblivion rak'd, le sends you this most memorable line,

Gives a paper. every branch truly demonstrative; villing you, overlook this pedigree: and, when you find him evenly deriv'd rom his most fam'd of famous ancestors, dward the third, he bids you then resign four crown and kingdom, indirectly held rom him the native and true challenger.

Fr. King. Or else what follows? Exe. Bloody constraint; for if you hide the crown even in your hearts, there will he rake for it : and therefore in fierce tempest is he coming, That if requiring fail, he will compel;
That, if requiring fail, he will compel;
And bids you, in the bowels of the Lord,
Deliver up the crown; and to take mercy
In the poor souls, for whom this hungry war pens his vasty jaws: and on your head furns he the widows' tears, the orphans' cries, The dead men's blood, the pining maidens' groans, for husbands, fathers, and betrothed lovers, that shall be swallow'd in this controversy. This is his claim, his threat'ning, and my message; Unless the dauphin be in presence here,

For whom expressly I bring greeting too.

Fr. King. For us, we will consider of this further: Fo-morrow shall you bear our full intent Back to our brother England.

For the dauphin, stand here for him; What to him from England? Exc. Scorn, and defiance; slight regard, contempt,

And any thing that may not misbecome The mighty sender, doth he prize you at.
Thus says my king; and, if your lather's highness
Do not, in grant of all demands at large, sweeten the bitter mock you sent his majesty, He'll call you to so hot an answer for it, That caves and womby vaultages of France Shall chide' your trespass, and return your mock in second accent of his ordnance.

Dau. Say, if my father render fair reply, it is against my will: for I desire

Nothing but odds with England; to that end,

As matching to his youth and vanity, I did present him with those Paris balls.

Goto. Captain Fluellen!

Flu. So! in the name of Cheshu Christ, speak It is the greatest admiration in the universal 'orld, when the true and auncient prerogatifes and laws of the wars is not kept: if you would take the pains but to examine the wars of Pompey the Great, you shall find, I warrant you, that there is no tiddle taddle, or pibble pabble, in Pompey's camp; I warrant you, you shall find the ceremonies of the wars, and the cares of it, and the forms of it, and the sobriety of it, and the modesty of it, to be otherwise.

K. Hen. Though it appear a little out of fashion, There is much care and valour in this Welshman.

Enter Bates, Court and Williams.

Court. Brother John Bates, is not that the morning which breaks yonder?

Bates. I think it be: but we have no great cause to desire the approach of day.

Will. We see youder the beginning of the day. but, I think, we shall never see the end of it. Who goes there?

K. Hen. A friend.

Will. Under what captain serve you?

K. Hen. Under sir Thomas Erpingham Will. A good old commander, and a most kind gentleman: I prayyou, what thinks he of our estate? K. Hen. Even as men wrecked upon a sand, that look to be washed off the next tide.

Butes. He hath not told his thought to the king? K. Hen. No; nor it is not meet he should. For, though I speak it to you, I think the king is but a man, as I am: the violet smells to him, as it doth to me; the element shows to him, as it doth to me; all his senses have but human conditions: his ceremonies laid by, in his nakedness he appears but a man; and though his affections are higher mounted than ones, yet, when they stoop, they stoop with the like wing; therefore, when he sees reason of fears, as we do, his fears, out of doubt, be of the same relish as ours are: Yet, in reason, no man should possess him with any appearance of fear, lest he, by showing it, should dishearten his army. Bates. He may show what outward course he will: but I believe as cold a night as his head!

will: but, I believe, as cold a night as 'tis, he could wish himself in the Themes up to the neck; and so I would he were, and I by him, at all adventures, so we were quit here.

K. Hen. By my troth, I will speak my conscience of the king; I think, he would not wish himself any where but where he is.

Bates. Then 'would he were here alone; so should he be sure to be ransomed, and a many poor men's lives, saved.

K. Hen. I dare say, you love him not ro ill, to wish him here alone; howsoever you speak this, to feel other men's minds: Methinks, I could not die

Con. To horse, you gallant princes ! straight te horse! Do but behold you poor and starved band, And your fair show shall suck away their souls, Leaving them but the shales and husks of men. There is not work enough for all our hands; Scarce blood enough in all their sickly veins, To give each naked curtle-axe a stain, That our French gallants shall to-day draw out, And sheath for lack of sport: let us but blow on them The vapour of our valour will o'erturn them. 'Tis positive 'gainst all exceptions, lords, That our superfluous lackeys, and our peasants,— Who, in unnecessary action, swarm About our squares of battle,—were enough

To purge this field of such a hilding foe;
Though we, upon this mountain's basis by,
Took stand for idle speculation: But that our honours must not. What's to say? A very little little let us do, And all is done. Then let the trumpets sound The tucket-sonuance, and the note to mount: For our approach shall so much dare the field, That England shall crouch down in fear, and yield.

Enter Grandpré.

Grand. Why do you stay so long, my lords of France? Must lie and feater.

K. Hen. Who hath sent thee now? Mont. The constable of France.

K. Hen. I pray thee, bear my former answer back ; Bid them achieve me, and then sell my bones. Good God! why should they mock poor fellows thus? The man, that once did sell the lion's skin While the beast liv'd, was kill'd with hunting him. A many of our bodies shall, no doubt, Find native graves; upon the which, I trust, Shall witness live in bross of this day's work: And those that leave their valiant bones in France, Dying like men, though buried in your dunghills, They shall be fam'd; for there the sun shall greet them. And draw their honours recking up to heaven; Leaving their earthly parts to choke your clime, The small whereof shall breed a plague in France. Mark then a bounding valour in our English; That, being dead, like to the bullet's grazing, Break out into a second course of mischiel, Killing in relapse of mortality. The noble earl of Suffolk also lies. Suffolk first died; and York, all haggled over, Comes to him, where in gore he lay insteep'd, And takes him by the beard; kisses the gashes, That bloodily did yawn upon his face; And cries aloud,—Tarry, dear cousin Suffolk! My soul shall thine keep company to heaven:—Tarry, sweet soul, for mine, then fly a-breast; As, in this glorious and well-foughten field, We kept together in our chivalry!

Upon these words I came, and cheer'd him up: He smil'd me in the face, raucht! me his hand. He smil'd me in the face, raught' me his hand, And, with a feeble gripe, says,—Dear my lord, Commend my service to my sovereign.
